Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

I am still exhausted from our kitchen fire Monday night. We would have been much better off if we had either let it all go up in flames or called the fire department in the beginning. However, we spent valuable time trying to put it out ourselves. After deciding it was out of hand, Tom called the Fire Department and had no more than hung up when they arrived. It took them about two seconds to extinguish the blaze and only a few more minutes getting the black smoke out of the house.

We had spent much more time than that, trying to smother the blaze with cup-towels and soda. We didn't realize we were making no headway until we burned up all the cup towels and used up the soda.

The moral of this story is "When you need help, call the experts." We are the newest members of the Ozona Volunteer Fire Department's Admiration Society. Hope you don't have an occasion to join, but if you do, we recommend them highly.

Carl Conklin was home over the weekend and brought a clipping which spoofs our cumbersome bureaucracy. The government loan agency mentioned is probably non-existent, but you will, no doubt see many similarities.

"A New Orleans lawyer sought an RFC loan for a client. The loan would be granted, he was told, if he could prove title to property offered as collateral. The lawyer went to great pains to prove that the title dated back to 1803. He received this reply from the RFC:

"Let us compliment you in the able manner in which you prepared and presented the application. However, you have not cleared the title before 1803, which must be done before final approval is granted."

"The outraged lawyer replied: 'You wish the title to be cleared before 1803. I was unaware that any educated man failed to know that Louisiana was purchased from France in 1803. The title to the land was acquired by France by right of conquest from Spain. The land came into the possession of a sailor named Christopher Columbus, who had been granted the privilege of seeking a new route to India by the then reigning monarch, Isabella. The good Queen, being a pious woman and careful about titles, almost, I might say, as the RFC, took the precaution of securing the blessing of the Pope upon the voyage.

"Now, the Pope, as you know, is the emissary of Jesus Christ, the son of God, and God, it is commonly accepted, made the world. Therefore, I believe it is safe to presume that He also made that part of the United States called Louisiana, and I hope you are satisfied."

Income tax time is drawing near and since I haven't had time to figure all the deductions, exemptions etc. that one must have in order to avoid even greater indebtedness to the government, I have hit upon an idea.

Being one of those people who have withholding tax removed from my salary weekly, I have decided to send my W-2 form with a letter to my District Director of Internal Revenue. I shall say:

Dear Sir:
I am preparing to send a kid to college in the fall. With various high school graduation expenses among other things, I find I need it all. Please send it back at your earliest convenience.

If this works, I will let you know. If my next column is datelined Leavenworth, you will know it didn't.

Lions Prep For Dist. Track Meet In McCamey Sat.

Ozona Lion tracksters are getting geared for the District 5-AA Track Meet in McCamey Saturday, following a rather disappointing showing at the San Angelo Relays Friday and Saturday of last week. The Lions came in fourth in their division behind district opponent Crane, picking up 26 points.

The Lions have taken easy wins over the other teams in the district and this was their first meet with Crane. Hard luck plagued the Lions. A foot injury still has Gerald Huff slowed somewhat and speedster Mike Schneider suffered a pulled muscle. Coach Richey feels that if the team can pull itself together by Saturday they have a good chance to win the district title. However, he says Crane is definitely the team to beat and that the Lions are going to have to make every point count if they pull it out. The fourth, fifth and sixth place points will no doubt decide the winner, Coach Richey says.

District line-up for the Lions follows:

440 Relay - Ruben Tambunga, Robert Maldonado, Mike Schneider, Gerald Huff
880 Run - Ricky Crawford, Randy Crawford, Lucio Fierro
100 yard dash - Schneider, Tambunga, Cheo Vargas
440 dash - Huff, Oliver Payne, Rick Hunnicutt
330 HH - Mike Wellman, David Sewell, Cuatro Davidson
120 HH - Sewell, Wellman, Will Collett
220 dash - Maldonado, Vargas, Tambunga
1 Mile - Bill Edgerton, Juan Garcia, Dean Shaw
1 Mile Relay - Ricky Crawford, Robert Maldonado, Schneider and Huff

Shot - David Pagan, Greg Stuart, Mike Jenkins
Discus - David Pagan, Davidson, Stuart
High Jump - Chuck Womack, Collett, Crawford
Broad Jump - Mark Tillman, Womack, Collett
Pole Vault - Womack, Collett, Sewell

San Angelo Relays results for the Lions:

First Place - Discus - David Pagan, 153'
First Place - Chuck Womack, Pole Vault, 13'
Third - Will Collett, pole vault, 12'6" - High Jump 5'8"
Fourth - Womack, high jump, 5'8"; Pagan, Shot, 47'10"; Schneider, 100-yd. dash, 10.2; 880 relay, 1:34.0
Sixth - Mile Relay and Sprint Relay.

Crane was third with 323, followed by McCamey with 335 and the Ozona B with 347. Stanton did not compete and the Coahoma team is out of the running.

The tournament in Big Spring yesterday was the fifth district meet of the season --0--

WINDMILLS ARE HER HOBBY. Miss Billie Wolf of Lubbock, far right in picture, has made windmills and the history of windmills her hobby for many years and she spoke on the subject at the TFWC District convention luncheon here Friday. The windmill pictured was an unexpected illustration for her lecture. It is a scale model of an Aeromotor mill made by Buddy Phillips of Ozona. With Miss Wolf in the picture are left, Mrs. Richard Moseley of Rochelle, immediate past District President, and Mrs. Phillip Carpenter of Burkburnett, State President.

WALLS CAME TUMBLING DOWN at the Bishop building housing Commercial Motor Co. just off U. S. Highway 290 west last week when this car, parked in front, was crammed into the building by a wild truck which had just lost its driver after sideswiping a car at the intersection. The truck driver had swerved his vehicle in an attempt to avoid collision with a car driven by Mrs. Roy Miller and as he did so the truck door swung open and the driver fell out of the truck. The truck continued on until it struck the parked car and the building. Result: one totally demolished car, a badly damaged tile building, a damaged truck and a slightly damaged car. The truck driver miraculously escaped serious injury in his fall from the truck. Mrs. Miller was not injured.

TV: STILL SLANTED

Slanted television is back in the news again, and if people are confused, it is little wonder. On March 18, Vice President Agnew charged CBS-TV with "inaccurate and slanted reporting" in its 1968 documentary, "Hunger in America." CBS responded that the Federal Communications Commission (the FCC) had "cleared" CBS network of any wrongdoing in the production of the documentary; other politicians jumped in to attack the Vice President waging "media guerrilla warfare" and the fat was again in the fire.

Endeavoring to throw some light, rather than heat, on the subject, Accuracy in Media (AIM), a Washington D.C. non-partisan, non-profit organization to promote accuracy in news reporting, conducted their own investigation and came up with the following report:

"The Federal Communications Commission found that on October 27, 1967, a CBS camera crew filmed an incident that occurred in the premature nursery of the Robert Green Hospital in San Antonio, Texas. A premature baby, Claude Wayne Wright Jr., who weighed only 2 lbs. 12 ounces at birth, stopped breathing. The resident physician... was summoned and he (revived) the infant. A CBS cameraman filmed the entire incident. The FCC ascertained that the child died three days later of meningitis and peritonitis due to prematurity. It found that there was no evidence that either the mother or father was suffering from malnutrition.

"CBS showed the film... in its documentary, 'Hunger in America.' It stated: 'This baby is dying of starvation. He was an American. Now he is dead.'"

AIM, in its special report, further found that CBS, prior to broadcasting the film, had made no effort to establish the identity of the baby or its parents; that the doctor show in the film said that the baby had not died from hunger, but from complications because of prematurity; and that the prematurity was not caused by hunger, but from an accidental fall.

Concluded AIM: "It was clear, therefore, from the FCC findings that what CBS said of the baby shown in 'Hunger in America' was false. The film did not show the baby dying; and the death of the baby three days after the film was made had nothing to do with malnutrition."

We'll leave it to the reader to decide whether the CBS program was, as Mr. Agnew charged, "inaccurate and slanted."

The Unspeakables

Guest Editorial The Dallas Morning News

Yes, Virginia, there is a Mafia--only we must not use the word because it is a slur against all Italian-Americans. Read that again. It comes from a man who--get this--is accused by the federal government of being a Mafia chieftain himself.

He has organized a league to stamp out the words, Mafia and Cosa Nostra--both of which suggest that all Italian-Americans are gangsters, he says.

We, too, wish the Mafia would go away, name and all, but we don't thing Italian-Americans need this kind of defense any more than Negroes need the Black Panthers to protect them against racial slurs. The overwhelming majority of decent, law-abiding Italian-Americans despise and resent the stigma imposed by a few.

They do not need the Mafia to defend them.

It is a protection racket not worth its weight in smuggled dope or dirty money. It preys on the sensitivity of a proud nationality and seeks to exploit the American sense of fair play. It tries to establish immunity for the Mafia through moral blackmail.

And it is working. Even a movie about the Mafia itself has dropped all mention of the Mafia or Cosa Nostra. Even the old-fashioned term, Black Hand, is out.

In official and lawmaking circles, the growing preference is for "The Syndicate" or "organized crime." We wonder what the Mafia itself calls it self these days--The Untouchables? The Unmentionables? The Unspeakables?

Dear Editor--

Dear Kitty: It must seem that an institution such as the Ozona Stockman, which informs its readers and services its advertisers on a weekly basis, is sometimes taken for granted. Too often we fail to let you know just how valuable you are to our business. Consequently, I am taking this opportunity to thank you and your entire staff for the fine cooperation and even finer results which we have obtained from The Ozona Stockman.

Our appreciation is whole-hearted, and now, with two and one-half months of the income tax season gone, we can see that our confidence was well placed. Our statistics show that the Stockman is producing results which will be in the top 10% of the 1200 plus newspapers we use across the country. This fact, plus a most pleasing association, assures you of a good share of our future advertising. Again, our deep appreciation to your fine newspaper. Sincerely, H & R Block /s/ Fred Baker manager

CARD OF THANKS

Tips For Gardeners

From The Ozona Garden Club By Mrs. Bailey Pgst

A busy month both indoors and out will make your garden a success.

April brings no letup in garden work. Usually there is more to do now than in any previous month.

Doubtless there will be very few bluebonnets and other native flowers along West Texas Highways this spring, but enjoy them in the parks and yards where water is available.

Though we are having beautiful warm days, be prepared if a late freeze is forecast before Easter, to cover up tender plants.

Although this is not the time to plant spring-flowering bulbs, it is the season gardeners are most excited about them since they are the earliest blooms to appear in December on through spring. Some are the many varieties of Narcissi, crocuses, chionodoxa, scilla, grape hyacinth and later bulbs.

Consider planting some of the new hybrid morning glories, to cover your fences and trellises, to climb over walls or to trail from hanging baskets. They are the most colorful and easily grown of all the annual vines. They prosper in garden loam of moderate fertility and produce flowers most abundantly in soil that is not too high in nitrogen. They will tolerate hot, dry areas. If all the sunny spots in your garden are taken by other plants, plant some morning glory seeds in a pot for your patio. If you soak them in warm water for two hours or nick the coating, they will show leaves in a few days after planting. Leave only the most vigorous plant and train it with string or wire around a support plunged to the bottom of the pot. The All-American Selection for 1970, Early Call Rose, thrives in the hottest driest spot in the garden. The huge deep rose trumpets bloom profusely all summer. Pearly Gates is the best white and Heavenly Blue is still very popular.

Easy-to-make, fashionable hanging baskets for your plants can create new eye-level beauty in both indoor and outdoor living. There are many varieties of attractive trailing ivy, Jew, philodendron, vines, succulents, and trailing flowers such as fuchsia, lantana, periwinkle, petunia, geraniums and others.

All dead and diseased leaves on iris should be removed and soil stirred lightly to help retain water, but don't disturb the roots. An insect spray now will help prevent damage to blooms later.

Our city is looking cleaner, but there is still litter accumulated after all the severe windy days of the last month, so if your property or vacant lot has been missed, help the Girl Scouts and others get every nook and corner clean.

Hopefully the midnight oil will be burning this week since six-weeks tests began Wednesday. With spring fever here, temptation to flick out the midnight oil is blossoming like the season itself.

The band traveled to Cisco last Friday for contest. After completing two months of thinking, feeling and playing the 3 contest songs, the band was very disappointed with a No. 3 rating in both contest and sight-reading.

SENSING the NEWS

By Anthony Harrigan

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

NEW ORLEANS, La. - Extremism in defense of the environment is not a virtue, especially when the concept of the environment is inadequate.

This is a point ably stated in a speech here by Lowry Wyatt, president of the National Forest Products Assn. Mr. Wyatt took note of the fact that many Americans are concerned about the environment and the general quality of life. He warned, however, that the environment often is poorly defined. The environment isn't simply a forest preserve visited a few days a year or a chunk of Alaskan wilderness that is home to caribou.

Providing decent housing is an environmental problem, he observed, remarking that "70 percent of our lives is spent in a single-family home."

Unfortunately, the environment often is depicted in terms of retaining land in a wilderness state. Some environmentalists oppose building of industrial plants and fight construction of electric power generating facilities. Not a few environmental extremists are advocates of "Zero Growth." Originally, this notion had to do with population. Now it is related to the economy.

In the United States today, Mr. Wyatt said, we must "work out acceptable solutions that our society can afford." No one wants to see the country buried under a layer of litter. No one wants to see a pall of smoke above our cities. But there has to be a sense of proportion in dealing with environmental issues. Not every river can be a pure wilderness stream. Not every stretch of the stretch of the coast can be reserved for oyster beds and shrimping.

Most certainly, the public wants effective pollution abatement measures. Industry is responding to this public demand by installing control equipment and cleaner industrial processes. It is imperative, however, that the public also understands the need for continued industrialization and new power-generating facilities, in addition, the public needs to understand the wisdom of multiple use of forest lands. Intelligent harvesting of timber crops is not incompatible with good game management. On the contrary, wisely planned cutting of timber makes possible improved food resources for wild animals.

Insofar as power plants are concerned, these are vital to improving the urban environment. One of the worst features of our urban environment today is the high rate of crime in the streets. And one of the most effective means of reducing urban crime is improved street lighting. If power companies are denied permission to build plants adequate to cities' increasing needs, American communities will be darkened and street crime will worsen.

A danger in our time is that extremists among the environmentalists will insist on arbitrary and unwise controls over land use and over industrial development. It would be tragic if the American public went on an ecological "kick" that ignored opportunities for more Americans in future.

Sometimes it seems that environmentalists don't want to be confused by facts. They fight construction of new power in the New York City area, for example, even though the result is increasingly frequent halts in electric service.

Selected wilderness areas are desirable, but the entire country can't revert to what it was in Indian days -- not without impoverishing the American people and bringing back the most primitive conditions.

The real public need, therefore, is cooperation and understanding between the industrialist and the informed, responsible environmentalist. Working together, they can develop and present balanced, practical concepts of the future in our cities and countryside.

Goat Men Urged To Plug Mutton Goat Meat Label

A notice proposing to permit the use of the name "Mutton" or "Chevon" to identify goat meat on markings and labels of federally inspected meat and meat products has been published in the Federal Register.

The notice was published after a delegation of Texas meat packers and representatives of goat producers petitioned the Consumer and Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, to use the common or usual names that are readily understood by both consumers and industry. The names mutton and Chevon have been used on goat meat and meat food products containing goat meat to identify products distributed in intrastate commerce in the Southwestern area of the United States for many years, the notice said.

In addition, petitioners further claim the name "goat meat" is discriminatory since meat from other species of animals does not have to be identified by names that include reference to the common name of the species of animals from which they are derived; for example cattle meat, pig meat and sheep meat.

No decision on the proposed change will be made until the public has had a chance to comment on it, the USDA said.

The Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association has gone on record in support of the term "mutton." All goat producers and others are urged to submit two copies of comments to the Hearing Clerk, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250, prior to or by April 22.

Bill Sims, executive secretary of the TS&GRA, said the duplicate comments on the proposal should carry a reference to the date and page number of the Federal Register announcement. The notice appeared on page 5435, Federal Register, March 23, 1971.

Mrs. Jim Rink and daughter, Cindy, of Lubbock were visitors in the Mike Miller home last week. Mrs. Rink is Mrs. Miller's sister-in-law.

Mrs. Ben Robertson returned to her ranch home here Saturday night after undergoing some tests in a San Angelo hospital last week.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

From Kitty's Kitchen
The following recipe is much sought after in this area. After sampling some of the sweet pickles made from sour ones, I prevailed on Dorothy Doll to share the recipe with us and she was happy to oblige.
Sweet Pickles
1 gallon whole sour pickles
6 pounds sugar
1 pint white pickling vinegar
1 box pickling spice
1 small jar chopped pimientos
1/2 box dill seed
Pour liquid off of pickles and slice in large plastic bowl. Add pimientos and dill seed and bury pickling spice, tied in cheesecloth, under pickles. Cover with sugar and pour vinegar over all. Cover bowl with foil. Let stand 5 to 7 days. Stirring each day to dissolve sugar. Place in jars and cover with juice. May be sealed or will keep indefinitely in the refrigerator.
Mrs. Doll said the original recipe called for tarragon vinegar and a button of garlic, but she prefers the above recipe.

On a lonely hill a man died slowly, nailed to a cross.
His crime—goodness.
He walked the hills of Judea and the shores of Gallilee, healing and comforting, loving everyone He met. Confidently, simply, He spoke of the Kingdom of Heaven, and crowds hurried to hear His vital words.
To some, His clear, sure talk of the Kingdom and the Way and of Himself the Son of God seemed a threat. And so He suffered on a cross, while a faithful few huddled in its shade and wept at the sacrifice.
Today, the shadow of that cross circles the globe, as people gather in churches around the world to remember that first Good Friday and give thanks for Jesus, the gift of a loving Father. His life and death and resurrection point the way for every man to find joy in the reality of God's love.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

Cong. O. C. Fisher

U. S. commercial airlines will in the future be obligated to buy their supersonic planes from the Soviets, or from the French-British producers. That was the decision made in the Congress recently, when both the House and Senate voted against any further government-financed research on supersonic jetliners.

Both the Soviets and the French-British have already completed SST prototypes. The Russians have produced their TU 144, and is already making overtures for U. S. customers. Experts believe the TU 144 is an improvement over the French-British Concorde, which is slightly smaller and slower.

Moneywise, tax revenues and royalties on supersonic planes produced in the future would, had our $900-million investment in research been continued, be expected to reimburse our government many times over.

By a margin of 18-to-4, Texans in the House favored continuing our supersonic research and completing two prototype planes now under construction. Our Senators split -- one for and one against.

In any event, it now appears the U. S. will take a back seat in commercial avionics -- a field American ingenuity and technology have dominated since the birth of aviation.

Speaking of research, in the field of textiles, synthetics have for years been extremely generous in the battle to excel natural fibers in market places. More recently both nohair and wool producers have succeeded, by set-asides from incentive payments, in advancing both research and promotion of these competitive fibers. It is an inviting field, and according to reports considerable progress has been made. If producers don't look out for themselves nobody else will.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Forced Fingerprinting

Arrested for a traffic offense, Harold objected strenuously to being fingerprinted. He finally gave in, but only under protest. Shortly afterward he filed suit against the city, demanding that his prints be destroyed.

"They were taken by force," he pointed out at a court hearing. "That was a violation of my constitutional rights. According to the Fifth Amendment, no one shall be forced to be a witness against himself."

However, the court ruled against Harold, saying he could no more withhold his fingerprints than he could mask his face or cover up a tattoo. "The witness does not testify," said the court. "The facts speak for themselves."

Generally speaking, courts have agreed that forced fingerprinting is not a violation of the Fifth Amendment.

But another objection has also been raised: isn't this an invasion of privacy? A man arrested on a misdemeanor charge made that argument in opposing the fingerprinting procedures of the local police.

But this objection too was tur ed down in court. Calling attention to the great need for fingerprinting in law enforcement, the judge said:

"The right of privacy has its limitations and is not always superior to the rights of the public. The taking of fingerprints is a humiliation to which a possibly innocent person must submit for the benefit of society."

Of course fingerprints, like all facts, are neutral. They may be just as useful in proving a man's innocence as in proving his guilt.

In a murder case, a bottle found at the scene of the killing had several fingerprints on it. But none matched those of the man arrested for the crime. The prosecutor decided that since the prints did not help his case, he would not bring them into court at all.

But at the trial, the defense attorney said the fingerprint evidence should be brought in for the benefit of the prisoner. To the court, this was "elemental justice." The prints were duly displayed to the jury—and helped the prisoner go free.
