Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

Another year has rolled around and here we are saying "goodbye" to this year's crop of seniors. The largest class, and without a doubt the smartest, most talented, in the history of the school. If I sound prejudiced, it's only because I am.

I believe they will be able to cope with life better than most. Of course, they have yet to learn that life is hard. This is something they will discover for themselves. I have known most of these kids personally for most of their lives, and I believe they all have the potential to be successful in whatever they undertake.

So, go after it kids. Aim high and if you get knocked off the ladder, get up and start climbing again. Don't find a crutch to fall back on everytime disappointment comes your way. There is no substitute for working hard at something you like to do. And remember, that old adage is a good one, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

I'm not happy to turn you out into the world under the present conditions, but you and your generation will have the opportunity to change it. Above all, don't be drawn into radical groups who have no solutions, just complaints.

If you can't come up with a better way to do things, don't knock the old way. Those who go around rioting and bombing and mouthing about the establishment have nothing but a zero in the accomplishment column and that's what it's all about. The most miserable people in the world are those who have accomplished nothing and have never tried. Whatever you decide to do, do it well. This old world desperately needs people who are efficient in their field of endeavor, whether it's cleaning sewers or running the country.

You are all fierce competitors. Keep that competitive spirit always. Competition is a great character builder and those who can't compete fall by the way early in life.

Above all, don't be quitters. As you would say it "Hang in there." The most pleasure in life comes from achieving success when there were times you thought it impossible.

I will miss you every one, especially those I have known so well. I'll miss all the noise, the sharing of confidences, the teasing and even the fighting you were always doing in your earlier years. However, you are all grown up now and the only thing left to do is send you on your way with my fondest best wishes.

As usual at the end of school I open my teen-age employment office. Things look bleak as far as jobs are concerned this summer, but the kids are out hunting already. If you need some help at doing almost anything, give me a call. I can almost promise you an applicant or two or three.

CALLEY IN RETROSPECT

The national confusion over the case of Lt. William Calley is not easy to understand. That he killed civilians is universally admitted. He admitted it himself. Some of the confusion centered around the fact that the civilians in question had collaborated with the Viet Cong, and that they themselves fired deadly weapons or set off booby traps. But after they were rounded up, disarmed and put in a ditch under armed guard, they no longer seemed to pose any threat to anyone.

At best they were civilians. At worst they were prisoners of war. According to international law, and according to moral law, no soldier has a right to shoot either non-partisans or partisans, once they have been disarmed and placed under guard. POW's have been shot at times in any war, but it has not been justifiable.

The difference in this war is that the media wants to blame all of us for Calley's actions. Maybe he was terribly confused. Maybe he was not even balanced mentally at the time. Probably what he did was unpremeditated. But what he did was wrong, and in defiance of U.S. policy. He was 24 years old, and a commissioned officer.

The very fact that the media has to go back to 1968 to find such a case is proof that it happened very rarely. But it makes no sense to say we are all to blame, unless one holds that we have no right to help another nation defend itself. If so, such persons are advocating a policy that would bring about the slaughter of thousands of innocent people.

This war is a test case between the forces of Communism and the forces of freedom. If we lose out, there will be scores of such wars around the world, and it will not be a case of other My Lai's, but of hundreds of Hue's, where the V.C. killed 10 percent of the population, burying thousands of them alive. What the V.C. did was standard Communist procedure, done on official orders from Hanoi.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Passing the Pedal Pusher

Motorists today are sharing our streets and highways with more than 60 million bicycle riders, an all-time high. As never before, a driver must be alert to his legal responsibilities as he passes his slow and silent companion of the road.

The law's Number One Rule is that a motorist must make fair allowance for the vagaries of bicycle riding. Take this case:

A driver saw a bicyclist ahead of him on the highway, wobbling noticeably. It seems that the rider was steering his bike with one hand and balancing a rake over his shoulder with the other. Nevertheless, the driver neither slowed down nor steered to the left. At the last instant, the bicyclist lurched into his path and got hit.

Was the driver guilty of negligence? A jury decided that he was indeed, for failing to adapt his driving to a danger he should easily have foreseen.

Still, motorists are not expected to do the impossible. Another case also involved a bicycle that swung across the path of a car. But this time, the accident occurred on a dark night, the bicycle had no lights, and the rider was wearing dark clothing from head to toe.

Under these circumstances, the court saw no reason for blaming the motorist. The court said he could hardly be expected to notice someone who was so nearly invisible.

Furthermore, the bicyclist himself has the responsibility of handling his own vehicle with care.

One rider, pedalling around a bend, crashed into a car that was parked at the curb. Painfully injured, he decided to put in a claim against the owner of the car. He based his case on the fact that the car had been parked in a no-parking zone.

But the court refused to let him shift the blame for what was really his own fault. The court said:

"A bicycle rider has the same duty as any other vehicle operator—to keep it under such control that he can avoid collisions. He cannot, willy-nilly, run into a standing vehicle and (expect to) recover damages."

WASHINGTON AND SMALL BUSINESS

Independent Business Speaks Out

The week beginning May 16 is being designated as "National Small Business Week."

But in addition, at that time in Washington, D.C. from May 16 to May 19, under the sponsorship of the National Federation of Independent Business a convention will be held titled "Independent Business Speaks Out."

This is the first time in the 28 year old history of that organization that a convention event has been held. It was decided upon by Wilson Johnson, president of NFIB, in view of the current economic situation.

The importance of this conference is perhaps best illustrated by the fact that President Richard Nixon is scheduled to speak at the closing banquet.

There appears to be a growing national concern over the welfare of the independent entrepreneur... the person with a little capital, big big dreams, and big courage, who wants to operate his own business.

The current unemployment situation also appears to be creating part of the impetus for this concern. It is significant that some 60 per cent of all the jobs in private industry are furnished by the independent and small firms.

Equally as significant is the fact that a major share of the unemployment has resulted from cutting down, by big business, especially those in the aerospace industry.

Last fall, in a meeting with President Nixon attended by small business leaders, Johnson advanced the thesis that independent business deserves greater attention from government, and especially the administrative branch.

This thesis was accepted with the President arranging for quarterly meetings with Dr. Paul McCracken, Chairman, Council of Economic Advisers.

This has led to dialogue which caused Johnson to break Federation tradition and ask that independent business leaders from all over the nation meet in Washington to bring to government the consensus of their local business communities in such areas as taxation, crime control, insurance, and many other pressing issues.

It now appears that upwards of 1500 independent business leaders will be in attendance, with an outstanding program before them.

Interested bona fide independent businessmen who wish to participate in what is reported to be the first major gathering of independent business in Washington since 1938 can contact the National Federation of Independent Business at 150 West 20th Avenue, San Mateo, California 94003.

Tips For Gardeners

From The Ozona Garden Club By Mrs. Bailey Post

For this area we haven't had the best planting opportunities. The night temperatures have been so low it has been difficult to get some seeds to germinate. You may have to plant again or wait longer for germination, but stand may not be so good.

If you want some fragrant flowers for planting near a door or patio, choose from these or others - petunias, four o'clock, snapdragon, scabiosa, phlox, sweet alysum or dianthus.

The dianthus, a member of the carnation family, has a pleasing spicy fragrance.

To have giant flowers in the fall, plant dahlias now. If well grown, they rank with roses, chrysanthemums and daylilies. They have gained popularity in recent years due to the ever-increasing range of varieties on the market.

Blooms measure from less than two inches to over a foot in diameter, and height of mature plants range from less than a foot to over five feet. Colors run from white through pastel-tints to bright shades of yellow, red, orange and purple.

Dahlias are classified in 14 flower types: single, anemone, miniature, dwarf, ball, colarette, orchid flowering, informal and formal decorative, incurved and semi cactus, peony and mignon.

The dahlia tuberous roots should be planted between mid-May and early June to have mature flowers after the weather cools in early autumn and with better quality blooms. They flower in 3 or 4 months. A sandy loam that is slightly acid is ideal soil for dahlias, but they will grow quite successfully in almost any well-drained soil. Water must never stand around the roots after a heavy rain. If your soil is not naturally fertile, spade in well-rotted manure at a depth of 12 inches in hole 3 or 4 weeks before planting or use 5-10-5 or 8-12-8 commercial fertilizer.

Select a place that receives at least 6 hours of sun daily. Partial shade in afternoon is helpful and they need protection from strong winds. For cultivation it is easier to plant in rows. They must have adequate moisture during the growing season.

When planting a dahlia root, drive a sturdy stake in the planting hole for later support. Place root so growing tip or eye is about one inch from stake.

In light sandy soil the hole should be 6 to 8 inches deep and wide enough to accommodate the root. Cover the root with 2 or 3 inches of soil. As growth develops, add soil around the plant, until soil surface is level or slightly mounded. In heavy clay soil, dig hole no deeper than 4 or 5 inches. Then fill hole to ground level after planting root to prevent water standing over roots in a partially filled hole. Keep soil over roots loose as crusting can prevent sprouts from emerging. Plant large varieties 3 or 4 feet apart. Always water thoroughly around base of plants rather than sprinkling to prevent mildew.

After graduation today, Martha dressed her little sister, Amy, in cap and gown and let her walk across the stage. Amy chortled all the way home, "I graduated, just like Martha."

Martha is a sweet big sister. She lets Amy watch while she gets ready for dates, makes clothes for her dolls and invents endless games designed to please a four-year-old. On the other hand, Amy adores the ground her "Marthy" walks on and listens to her advice before all others. It was Martha who straightened her out when she rebelled against church-going. Class History - 1971

We, the Seniors of 1971 declare this as our "Strange but True" class history. The events we are about to reveal begin early in our years as our class began to blossom and grow into the great class it is today.

In kindergarten the first lesson we learned we learned was that we all did not use the facilities of the same rest room. Because of our lack of reading ability, pictures were pasted on the rest room doors to designate "boys" and "girls". However, Tom D. invariably waited until the last possible minute in our "rest room break" and then was in such a rush that he was forever being found in the wrong one.

Our kindergarten class started with Tanya Blanton, Sharron Barbee, Cuatro Davidson, Tom Davidson, Freddie Deaton, Alton Everett, Karen Loudamy, Jim Montgomery, Mickey McBroom, Philip Perner, Mike Schneider, Greg Stuart, Grace Ann Tabb, Cyndie Whitehead, Craig Williams, David Williams, Kathy Williams, Lex Barker, Susan Boyd, Karen Brownrigg, Shane Farson, Jordice Harvick, Diane Henderson, Terry Hickman, Gwen Loudamy, Sandy Mayfield, Lynn Neal, Sandra Newton, Vicki Patterson, Linda Scott, Martha Simon, Ed Bissett, Rebecca Bissett, Mona Wagner and Chuck Womack.

First Grade: This was our first big year of a "whole day of school." No more milk breaks, finger paints, rest room breaks and trying to poison the fish in the aquarium. It seems, Miss Oehler realized her first big mistake for in her class was Craig and David Williams. Also, to add to the confusion was Mickey McBroom's unwilling attitude to leave his mother. He would sit at the rear of the room and make such a fuss that Miss Oehler would call his mother to come sit with him.

Second Grade: By now, we had begun to get into the swing of school life pretty enthusiastically. Each day after recess we would line up to go into the building in a straight quiet line. Mike S. realized the consequences of coming in with gum in his mouth and quickly found the only convenient place to deposit it, which was in the back of Kathy Williams hair.

Charlene, Craig Deaton and Joanie B. brightened up the whole mess when they joined our dynamic class in the second grade. Our second grade year came and went without any big catastrophe except when the "Big Three" Tom, Cuatro and Mickey decided they would play "tie the villain to the railroad tracks" except this time it was the merry-go-round. They overtook Craig Deaton and tied him securely with baling wire. But, as we all know, Beaters lived through that one too!

Third Grade: This year rallied 'round and Tanya Blanton got a little sexy on us, when she slid down the slide and left her dress at the top.

Julian Ramirez was a little rat. He used to throw blackboard erasers out the window and the teacher gave him the name "Knucklehead," which was later shortened to "Noco."

Alton Everett, Georganne Janes and Greg Stuart joined us this year.

Everyone was terrified of the horrible halls. Our punishment for being naughty was standing in the hall with face to the wall. If Mr. Janes happened to walk down the hall while we were being punished, any average third grader would casually stroll over to the water fountain in an effort to fake him out. It seems that Georganne had to be different, she would hide behind a door while her buddy, Karen L., almost drowned at the fountain. Melissa moved here this year.

Fourth Grade: This was the year of many battles and broken bones. Tom broke his collar bone and when the doctor told him it was broken, Tom was real upset, and asked if he would ever walk again.

During fourth grade, Philip fell madly in love with Grace Ann. He was bringing her a box of candy for Valentine's Day in his bicycle basket when he had a wreck and ran over the candy. He went home crying.

Gary Bradford, Doris Carter, Butch Bankhead, Mitzl Friend and Bill King joined us in the fourth grade.

Chris was the captain of the softball team and he was forever getting hit in the head.

This was the year we received our first lesson on the birds and bees. Gregory and Bill brought the current issue of Playboy to the playground and our education began.

Fifth Grade: Brenda Bratton left us and Lane Garrett joined us. Cyndie and Lane had something going. In the cafeteria their true love was noticeable when they shared the same carton of milk. This ended when Lane burped in his straw. This year Melissa gained the name of "The fighter," after she and Pete fought continuously.

Sixth Grade: We gained Pat F., Jim Bob, and Donald Olson, David Pagan, Suzy T., Curtis and Debbie Roberts. We lost Doris and Butch. This was the year we learned the famous square dance, Jim Bob Bailey and Joyce Chancey being our most distinguished couple.

Fred Deaton became our Don Juan when Suzy Tankersley moved to Ozona. His well-known name was ruined when he had to read his love note to Suzy in front of the class.

In Day Camp the two clowns, Georganne and Debra Wellman built the badly needed latrine. Debra built the trench going uphill, they did not realize their mistake until they argued over who would go first. Georganne won and she suffered the consequences. Suzy, Lou, Tanya, Grace Ann and Joannie got kicked out of Girl Scouts because of their lack of enthusiasm. They broke every rule in the book. Their final blow was playing poker with the dues.

Another catastrophe came when Jim fell on the slick basketball court and broke his two front teeth. Philip and Tom ran to the rescue. As Jim lay there in pain, Tom exclaimed, "Hey look Jim, I found your teeth, sell 'em to you for a quarter."

Debbie Roberts made a habit of staying out in the bus stop house at Crockett Heights, afraid to go home after missing her bus. Debbie played this game 3 days out of 5 but was soon discovered by Mommy, which ended her game quite abruptly.

Seventh Grade: Now, we were finally getting to be "Big Kids." Our first venture into Junior High started out in a mass of confusion. Changing classes was very confusing and many students spent a great deal of time hiding out in the rest rooms. Our seventh grade year gave us our first taste of culture, mainly, our first boy-girl dances. At Christmas our dance was at the Janes. At first the boys were very withdrawn, but as soon as Jim M. and Pat F. got things rolling by being the first under the mistletoe, the party perked up.

Our first taste of heartbreak and romance began with Greg's brand new L. D. bracelet. He fell in and out of love at least twice a week and kept his bracelet in circulation until it soon broke.

This year Karen Mosley, Debra Bishop, Gary Davee and Nikki Henderson joined us. Sharron's artistic talents began blooming this year, only to bring her disaster. She was so proud of herself for drawing Mrs. Nations' portrait on the board, but Mrs. Nations' opinion was very low. In turn for her trouble, Mrs. Nations left her mark on Sharron's backside in front of the class.

Eighth Grade: Starting out this year we gained Will and Lou. Backing the Cubs were cheerleaders, Lou, Sharron, Karen M., Suzy and Georganne. Their mascot was Lisa Mitchell. The mighty Cubs were undefeated in football and did almost as well in basketball.

This was the year Barbee's Beauty Salon opened, with her first and last customer, Tanya Blanton.

This also marked the year all the girls fell in love with an older man, Grosse Mohler, our math teacher.

We closed out our Junior High years with a graduation dance, given for us by some of the mothers. It ended with a helpful mother turning out and that beautiful crop-top haircut.

In our Junior year Teresa Albertson, Vidette Brown, Janie Sinclair, Reggie Kirby and Janie Tumbinson and Larry McMillan joined us. Class officers were Mark, president; Jim Bob, vice-president; Karen, secretary. Favorites were Grace Ann and David Pagan.

Cheerleaders were Karen, Georganne, Suzy, Wanetta, and Sharron. During homecoming Karen really set things afire when she got football sweetheart.

Freddie, Mike and Craig tried to build an Empire State Building with the books in Mr. Guntherburg's room after class hours, only to have it topple on them. The topple was Mr. Moody with D. T. hall and licks.

"It was a darned good party" quoth Beaters. Good party or not, "Hands" Everett made his debut by proving that the hand is quicker than the eye

We didn't know who was the worst candy-striper, Joanie or Kathy Williams. They were always in a close race spilling trays. Joannie ended in first place when she pushed the button that had "push only for emergencies" written on it. We didn't know which was the loudest, the alarm or Joanie's heartbeats.

This year Craig got to carry the golf ball bag for the golf team. This was also the year that Mickey M. and David W. had the terrific tin grins.

In our Sophomore year we gained Mark, Karen S and lost Karen M. Class officers were Cuatro, president, Greg S. vice president, Grace Ann, secretary. Favorites were Will and Karen S.

This was the year that we initiated the freshmen. Craig was more than slightly disappointed when the Freshmen turned on him and took off his clothes.

During this time Tom made second team all-district and his head started his magnificent growth. Cuatro and Will opened up their wine factory. It was pure dynamite. Greg Stuart was their biggest customer along with Nikki Henderson.

Mark added all the speed we could ask for to our track team. Coach Sewell was convinced that it was caused by Wheaties around Ray Tambunga. Ray was on the kick-off team. Ray could just see Craig and say "Aw shut-up Craig."

The Midnight Assault of Jim Bob Bailey, when he killed three cows with one blow, resulted in his walking for a spell.

All year long Mark T. tried everything possible to make a touchdown without success. We are not sure if he stopped eating his Wheaties or his

MISS LYNN COX

Wedding Plans of Lynn Cox Announced By Her Parents

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Cox, III, of Ozona announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Lynn, to Jay Curtis Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Evans of Austin.

Plan on Dying

Some years ago a clerk in a bookstore, unpacking a shipment of new books, found one on the subject of "estate planning." Thinking it must be about the landscaping of large homes, he placed it in the gardening section.

He would hardly make that mistake today. Estate planning has come into its own, used by thoughtful people everywhere to preserve assets during their lifetime and to pass them on wisely—and economically—at death.

One reason for the growth of estate planning is the growth of estates. Nowadays even the ordinary citizen is likely to have an estate of substance. It may well include not only a home and a savings account but also personal life insurance, group insurance, stocks, pension plan benefits, profit-sharing options, and social security rights.

Another reason is that estate planning has become far more sophisticated. Its techniques have gone well beyond the traditional "testamentary trust" for a rich old lady and "spendthrift trust" for a rich young man.

Unfortunately, there are pitfalls aplenty for the amateur planner. For example: many people think avoiding probate is the same as avoiding taxes. But the federal estate tax is based on the entire estate, whether it passes through probate or not.

Likewise, many people think life insurance is not taxable. But life insurance proceeds are included in determining a person's gross estate for federal estate tax purposes unless he has retained none of the incidents of ownership of that policy.

True, it may be sensible in certain circumstances to avoid probate. And it may be possible in certain circumstances to avoid taxes on life insurance. But clearly this is a field in which the layman needs expert help.

Much information is available from trust departments, accountants, insurance men, and investment counselors. The ultimate adviser, however, should usually be an attorney, since he alone is fully qualified to give the personal legal guidance a program should have.

Some people shrink from the thought of estate planning. But, like it or not, some plan is going to govern the care and distribution of your possessions. The plan could be yours, if you make one. If you don't, state and federal laws—oblivious of your wishes—will do it for you.

SENSING the NEWS

By Anthony Harrigan
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

The mass demonstrations in late April and the first days of this month testify to the mastery of agitation and propaganda techniques by the radical organizations that planned the protests. Unfortunately, the reading and viewing public hasn't been given the information needed to grasp the character of the protest groups.

The two principal organizers of the demonstrations contain a cross-section of Hanoi's helpers in the United States. The NPAC has a steering committee that includes representatives of more than 100 militant organizations, including the Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam and the Socialist Workers Party. This group demands immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all U. S. troops and material from Southeast Asia -- the prime objective of Hanoi and Peking.

MPAC's marches in Washington and San Francisco were endorsed by a New Left element in Congress, Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., Americans for Democratic Action, and extreme left-wing factions in the labor movement.

The so-called Peoples Coalition for Peace and Justice is an umbrella organization for such groups as the Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam, the American Friends Service Committee, the Fellowship of Reconciliation, and the War Resisters League. It represents many of the more militant "peace" groups that attempted to disrupt the national capital May 3. The coordinating committee of the Coalition includes David Dellinger and Rennie Davis, convicted in the Chicago conspiracy case, and other hard-core leftists such as Sidney Lens and Terry Hallinan. In staging protests, the Coalition cooperated with other radical groups such as the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the National Welfare Rights Organization, and Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers Organizing Committee.

Despite the hard-core radical character of the organizers of the protests, the public undoubtedly received the impression that many of the marchers were idealists. The public simply hasn't been provided with the facts about the individuals and groups masterminding the demonstrations. The failure of the networks and the metropolitan media to provide important information is nothing new. What's especially hard to understand is why high government officials don't speak directly to the people and give a run-down on the anti-American forces involved.

Instead, the public has been exposed to endless stories about the "vets" marching in Washington. Often the stories of these "veterans" are taken at fact value without the kind of check a reporter would make in writing routine news stories.

Undoubtedly some of the protesters served in Vietnam. Considering that over two million Americans have served in Southeast Asia, it isn't surprising that a contingent of radical disgruntled former servicemen can be found. In a nation of more than 200 million people, one finds every human type.

What's disturbing is that the network reporters and the liberal Washington and New York journals apparently didn't check out the discharge papers of the veterans who marched. Those newsmen who covered the protest marches in the South in the 1950's and early 1960's remember that demonstrators were known to put on the attire of clergymen and nuns in order to lend moral distinction to their sit-down strategy. It should be borne in mind that anyone can buy a pair of Army fatigues from an Army-

Navy surplus store. The truth is that the country is still terribly naive about the protests directed at the war. The protests don't just happen. They are planned -- just as the bombings and acts of arson are planned by terrorists. Moreover, it should be clear that the organizers of demonstrations seek the humiliation and defeat of the United States.

The vast majority of Americans accept the leadership of their President and the Congress. They resent the New Left's mass pressure tactics and the kind of plebiscitary absolutism that the radicals seek to impose. But these good Americans don't get the publicity. They aren't interviewed on television. Rallies in support of America receive sneering treatment from the liberal commentators. A huge publicity build-up is accorded those who break into the offices of congressmen, attempt to block entrances to government buildings, and engage in mob tactics.

If the peace and security of this country is to be assured, the organizational methods of the New Leftists must be exposed and explained. It is outrageous that small cadres of super-radicals are all owed to stab this nation in the back.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

Last week J. Edgar Hoover concluded 47 years as director of the FBI. During that time he has directed the development of an agency which is universally acclaimed as the most efficient law enforcement organization in the world.

The magnitude of the work performed by the Bureau is staggering. Last year, the agency was asked to search through its files for 2 1/2-million names. During the same year its workload included 882,254 criminal, security and other cases. By next year the figure will exceed a million.

The agency's criminal and scientific laboratory is a busy place, and serves as a clearing house for a vast number of investigations. Scientific examinations last year totaled 384,690. As of last July, the number of sets of fingerprints on file was 197,149,816.

Upon request, the FBI assists in training for large numbers of local law enforcement officers.

Fines and recoveries resulting from the Bureau's activities amount to a dollar and a half for every dollar expended. Of more importance is the peace of mind that American people enjoy because the FBI is on the job 24 hours a day.

Recently, Mr. Hoover came under widely publicized criticism, mostly from the far left. Some politicians got into the act, charging too much wiretapping. But investigations revealed most all of the charges were unfounded.

The performance of J. Edgar Hoover has been superb. He has for nearly a half a century earned and gained the respect and gratitude of masses of American people, including every patriotic and peace officers organization in the country. Let us hope he can stay on the job for a few more years.

Class History —

Class officers were David W. president; Grace A., vice-president and Suzy, secretary.

Favorites were Tanya and Mike. Cuatro had to go to the restroom and has to be the only senior boy who could have a car wreck while going to the restroom.

The Lions Roar went to press with or without pages. The staff relied heavily on Janie T. during press time.

Suzy tried once again for Football Sweetheart and when Tanya was announced the winner, Georganne sniffed a tear of disappointment while Suzy was yelling No! No! It can't be.

No one heard this because the spirit of Lion Country took their cue from Charlene and played "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," while Tom laid one on Tanya. Tom's dad was convinced that the kiss had been practiced ahead of time.

During our senior year, Leslie Blalock and Chuck Morris joined us. We could never have made without Chuck, is that correct Charlene? And this can go for Freddie too. Greg's only thought was to help Snowflake out when he gave him a bottle of Protein 21 after a basketball game one night. It did more harm than good.

Betty Martinez moved up to cheerleader after Karen Chapman moved. Her various boyfriends kept her attired in jewelry. This was the year that Vidette fell in love with Fort Hood. During basketball season Suzy's one dream came true, she finally became a queen, she could hardly believe it, she had waited so long.

Pete and Ray just had to skip one afternoon. They were at the filling station when Mr. Moody stopped by, and back to school they went.

The story of Bonnie and Clyde lived again when Bonnie S. wore her brown hat to school. During bookkeeping Larry serenades Janie S. His favorite, "Down the road comes our sweet Janie, Hair of gold, but not too brainy."

We, the seniors of 1971, declare this to be our class history. The past 12 years have been full of memories and happiness for us. It saddens us to realize that we have only a few short months left in the halls of O. H. S. Now we must look to the future and wish the Class of '72 as many happy years to look back upon as we have had.

Pecos Co. Screwworm Warning To Ranchers

The first screwworm case of the year was reported in the area last week when a specimen from the Clint Owens ranch, eight miles west of Sheffield, proved positive.

Dr. James Novy of Mission, who is with the screwworm eradication program there, was in Ozona all week to supervise sterile fly drops. Drops covered an area from Ozona to Del Rio, covering Val Verde, Terrell and the southern part of Crockett counties, plus Pecos county.

The positive specimen was collected May 5 from a ram sheep with a head wound caused from fighting. Location was at the edge of Pecos County.

Although Crockett County escaped a large outbreak of screwworm last year, Terrell and Pecos counties had a severe outbreak in August of 1970.

Dr. Novy urges all ranchers to be on the lookout, and send a sample of all wounds whether they think it is screwworm or not. Also, he stressed the importance of treating all wounds occurring in herds.

Upon finding a positive screwworm case, the Texas Animal Health Commission will spray the herd in which the case is found and all adjacent herds.

Crockett county has not had a reported case of screwworm since 1969. Dr. Novy stressed the urgency of sending samples and treating wounds to prevent an outbreak.
