Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

After watching and listening to Governor Preston Smith all week long in his effort to defy the wage-price freeze and raise the salaries of teachers and state employees, one must unavoidably come to the conclusion that the whole thing was just so much phoney baloney.

I certainly don't think the national coverage did much for the Governor's future in the political arena, and he won't win an Emmy for his television performance, too comy. I was acutely embarrassed for the Governor and for Texas throughout the whole thing, and I feel that I have plenty of company.

I hope if the Governor decides to seek public office again when his present term expires that he considers going to some other state, perhaps one where people think like Ralph Nader and George Meany. It would be a shame for the old boy to wind up without a single vote, and that's possible in Texas.

The Governor's performance was a big boon for Smilin' Ben, who probably would have been the next governor anyway. He is probably perfectly safe in making plans to redecorate the mansion.

So far the President's radical program seems to be working rather well, in spite of opposition from the extreme left and labor. The stock market is up and things seem to be looking up for business. With the price freeze, the average consumer seems to have a chance to make ends meet, and that's what it's all about. The continuing spiral of inflation was threatening to bankrupt America and drastic action was a must.

A government program to benefit Americans is something of a novelty, and it behooves us all to pitch in and pull together for the common good.

Well, everybody seems to have slipped back into the old school days routine without much trouble and it's as if summer had never happened. Except, of course, for the weather which seems uncommonly hot after the cool days with rain we had the latter part of July and first part of August.

It's awful quite around my house. I got my son off to school Sunday and the man of the house left Monday for a three-day business meeting, so there was nobody around the first part of the week but me and the cat. I was so depressed Monday night that I got in the car and went to Lewis Drive In and bought two huge candy bars and two packs of peanuts and ate every bite of both, wrecking my diet, but giving me some solace. The Lions will be out of town their first three games before meeting their arch rival Sonora on their home field Oct. 1. The Lions are picked to win District 5-AA and are 10th in state in Class AA. The plant, grown in a garden cultivated by Mr. and Mrs. Ogle near their Pioneer Self Serve filling station on Highway 290 west, is more than 10 feet in height and the big leaves are about 20 inches long by 12 wide. Mrs. Ogle is sitting on a step-ladder to lift up the giant bloom. A smaller bloom may be seen behind the big one.

FILTHY FISH -- In spite of their bedraggled appearance these little dears were "having fun" on their way to becoming members of the Ozona High School student family. Their first year initiation was taking place in downtown Ozona at the hands of the upperclassmen who applied liberal doublings with molasses, paint, and various concoctions calculated to temper the ego of the new high schoolers. They suffered the indignities with good grace and became working students with the opening of classes Monday.

"PEACE IN OUR TIME?"

President Nixon's drive for detente with the Communist world, climaxed by his projected "journey for peace" — to Peking, of all places — has touched off a lot of far-out speculation. Almost wholly ignored, however, is the possibility of a restoration of the Moscow-Peking Axis that existed into the early 1960's.

Yet this decidedly is not a far-out prospect. Both Communist superpowers continue to regard America, not each other, as their number-one enemy. Neither of them has retreated one inch from the same basic commitment to One Communist World. The core of their quarrel, indeed, is about primacy in finishing the job.

Surely their common objective, held by both with near-religious zeal, provides a foundation solid enough for an eventual rapprochement. They have just renewed their long-term trade pact. The Kremlin has been pleading with Peking for negotiations to settle their differences. The main barrier is Mao's dogmatic inflexibility. With his inevitable passing, the road will be open for the two like-minded dictatorships to unite against us.

Where would that leave the United States and the free world? Having in effect dismantled alliances to resist Communist expansion, having helped fortify both Russia and Red China by giving them access to Western technology, having meanwhile allowed our own military vitality to deteriorate, we would face their combined power in weakness and political disorder.

Nixon's hopes for a detente rest on the illusion that the cold war is over. But a worldwide ideological struggle, like a shooting war, cannot be ended unilaterally — except by surrender. That, we have reason to fear, may be the ultimate outcome of our President's "journey for peace." Another statesman, we can't help recalling, once brought home "peace in our time" from his journey to another totalitarian capital.

VIETNAM WAR HAS BEEN WON — AFFIRMED

In this day of managed and mismanaged news few Americans would venture the view that the war in Vietnam has been won by the Allies. But that idea has been gathering strength in our editorial mind for about a year now, and it is good to have it supported by the Hudson Institute, famous think tank on the Hudson River in New York.

The North Vietnamese are no longer capable of undertaking any large pitched battles. They have been reduced to hit-and-run guerrilla actions that could never win the war. Such actions seem to be rearguard moves designed to conceal the fact that Hanoi is putting its best foot forward in the United States, not in Indochina. America is the main target of the Communists. If we can be shorn of our will, the rest will be easy.

Hanoi had no choice. A reasonable estimate of the North Vietnamese casualties is 3,500,000 dead and wounded, in a country with less than ten million males, including infants and old men.

The North Vietnamese have fought without a navy, without bombing planes, without effective supply lines. More than anything else they have been engaged in terrorizing the freedom-loving people into surrender. Their only hope has been to confuse and frustrate the American people. It is a war of propaganda. Who said the cold war was over!

WILL THEY WRITE AMERICA'S EPITAPH?

The Ten Commandments, the U.S. Constitution, and the natural right to private property are all under fire in a withering war against ourselves. Whether we win or lose depends upon us. Perhaps we will lose sooner or later, but whether it is sooner rather than later also depends upon us.

With this in mind, an archaeologist who is also an historian predicts that some day an exploring archaeologist will find carved on the unearthed tombstone of the United States the following epitaph:

"Here lies the greatest civilization that the world had ever seen. It died at the peak of its tremendous power which it refused to use in its own defense.

"Here lies the nation that wagered its fabulous wealth and strength upon the love of mankind and in the process of the wager, lost all three.

"Here lie the people who abandoned their priceless patriotic heritage of religious truth, and with it their freedom and their will to live.

"Here lies the last hope of the Free World.

"Here lies the United States of America."

SENSING the NEWS

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

THE "LAND REFORM" GAMBIT

When the communists took control of mainland China, apologists for the Peking regime presented themselves to the American public as "agrarian reformers." The friends of Fidel Castro also sold his communist dictatorship as an instrument for achieving "land reform" in Cuba. Indeed the words "land reform" are associated with totalitarian regimes throughout the world that seek to strip people of their property and their rights. At long last, a demand for "land reform" is being voiced in the United States -- and from a not very surprising quarter.

Earlier this summer, Sen. George McGovern (D-SD) gave a talk in the U. S. Senate which appeared in the Congressional Record under the heading "Why America Needs Land Reform." He praised a series of articles by Peter Barnes in the New Republic magazine.

In these articles, Mr. Barnes attacked the present system of land ownership in the United States, saying "it's time to reform landholding patterns in the United States."

In a very revealing statement, Mr. Barnes declared that land "is a public resource." That's incorrect, of course. Land in the United States -- most of it, at least -- is a private resource. While the federal government has huge landholdings, especially in the Western states, the vast majority of lands in the United States are private property.

Countless numbers of Americans have inherited land. Many farms, ranches, town and city properties have been in the same family for generations. It is not up to faceless bureaucrats or socialist planners to decree the future use of these lands or to alienate these properties from their true owners, as is the system in totalitarian countries.

Yet that's what Mr. Barnes had in mind and what Sen.

McGovern apparently thinks would be a good idea, for he endorses Mr. Barnes' articles. Specifically, Mr. Barnes wrote that one "major area for change involves redistribution of land -- the kind of peaceful social restructuring that the United States imposed upon Japan after World War II."

In other words, landowners in the United States are to be treated as conquered foreigners were treated. Mr. Barnes is very explicit in his revolutionary thinking, saying that the "guiding principles behind redistribution are that land should belong to those who work and live on it, and that holdings should be of reasonable, not feudal proportions." That's the type of notion one hears in Castro's Cuba. It hasn't anything to do with American concepts of law or with American traditions of economic freedom and individual liberty.

Mr. Barnes would have the government begin its revolutionary land program by using the Reclamation Act of 1902 to force landowners in the West to sell their property to the government. His notion is that the government would obtain "all property too big or owned by absentees." He favors a 160-acre limitation on individual landholdings.

The misnamed "land reform" proposed by Mr. Barnes is a design for stripping Americans of their right to own land -- a right as old as the first settlement of this country. Countless numbers of people settled on these shores in order to own land and to avoid a powerful central authority that asserted claims to all property possessed by its subjects. The settlers of America wanted land -- lots of land. They regarded ownership of land as a guarantee and symbol of their freedom. If the day come when falsely labeled "land reform" denies Americans the right to buy and hold all the land they can afford and wish to buy, then freedom will have vanished from this country.

Generations ago, Americans were warned that eternal vigilance would be necessary if they and their descendants were to maintain their freedom. It is well to remember that warning, for it is clear that a basic freedom -- the right to own land -- will come under increasingly heavy attack in the years ahead from homegrown "agrarian reformers" who want to take a harvest of our liberties.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

The American public has stood helplessly by on the sidelines this year as the wage-price spiral has taken its toll and inflation, fueled also by excessive federal deficits, has moved steadily upward.

Using a 5% boost in living costs as an excuse, average pay raises this year have exceeded 30% with little likelihood of any significant increase in production per man-hour.

Industries which yield to pressures and grant inflated wage raises have no option but to pass the added costs on to consumers to pay.

For example, when steel wages were recently upped by 42%, the industry immediately announced an increase of 8% for steel products. The can industry upped their prices by 8%, aluminum by 6% -- following huge wage hikes.

While good wages are highly desirable in a viable economy, when the levels get out of bounds the entire economy suffers, some businesses are forced to close down or lay off some workers, and lower-cost competitive imports claim an even bigger share of the American market.

Because of foreign-domestic price differentials, Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans recently stunned a Congressional committee by saying the U. S. may run a trade deficit for 1971, the first since 1893! Are our high-cost policies killing the goose that lays the golden eggs?

The President's action in freezing wages and prices for 90 days should be given a fair trial and it should have general public support.

In addition, updating of the Taft-Hartley Act is long overdue, and labor unions should be placed under the anti-trust laws. Unions are now big business and no longer need to be coddled or wet-nursed. They should no longer seek special treatment, and should join in a push for realistic, progressive reforms in labor laws. The public interest should come first.

Reserved Seat Sale Under Way For Grid Season

Letters went out Monday to those who held season tickets for the Ozona Lions home football games last year, and they will be given an opportunity to reserve their seats for this year before the reserve seat sale is opened to the public September 1.

Tickets will go on sale to the public after that date, and those wishing to buy season tickets may select seats and purchase tickets at the superintendent's office.

There will be five home games this year and tickets will be $7 each. This represents some saving over purchasing tickets for individual games.

Tips For Gardeners

From The
Ozona Garden Club
By
Mrs. Bailey Post

Since mid-July, the delightfully cool days and nights, along with a month of most unusual moisture, one could easily imagine being in Colorado for a summer vacation. We will have to wait and see if the map which appeared in the paper proves to be an accurate weather forecast, the balance of the summer cooler and more moisture than usual.

Continue to clip your hedges for another month or so.

If you haven't already done so, your chrysanthemum plants may need to be staked, if they are the exhibition type. Give them the final pinching out the top in late August. This will cause the plants to branch out in more sturdy and compact plants. Too, they may need to be sprayed or dusted for insects and kept moist if no more rain falls.

Flower and bulb catalogues are arriving, so it's time to make your plans and lists, or order bulbs you will want this fall and spring.

To keep your lawn a rich green and healthy, use a nitrogen fertilizer this and next month.

I have heard several complaints of toadstools in lawns as well as pavement. These usually appear in humid weather. Although unsightly, toadstools do not damage the grass. They can be removed by lifting out, raked over with the back of a rake, or spraying the lawn with a fungicide that will keep them down. Do not try to use them for food though, for I have read recently of mushroom poisoning.

The most important chore for the next month will be the control of weeds all over Ozona. If everyone will help with this, there shouldn't be such a problem for any one person. Too, cultivating the soil around plants, shrubs and trees will conserve moisture. The hard rains left the soil so packed it needs to be carefully broken up.

Plan to feed your roses the last of this month. After the rains, the fall blooms should be the finest in several years.

SOLITUDE but not SOLITARY

Quiet moments in solitude are good for the soul. Each of us needs those moments apart from the busy world—where we can distill our thoughts, reshape our purpose and revitalize our spirit.

This is not the same as living a solitary life—to be shut off from society, aloof and alone. We must remain in touch with the rest of mankind, or we will become lonely and selfish. We must be a part of the common flow of life.

In a society filled with patterns and cross-currents of both good and evil, where we dare not live in isolation, every person needs a strength greater than his own. That strength, derived from the presence of God in our lives, is the central concern of the Church. Spend some time in solitude with God before you attempt to meet the rush of life.

MORE THAN 300 HOUSES were destroyed or damaged by the raging flood waters of Johnson Draw the morning of June 28, 1954. The SCS picture shows one of the teacherages of the Ozona School system wrecked by the flood waters. The litter of broken residence and business houses and household articles stretched for miles downstream from Ozona.

A FLOOD CONTROL DAM at work. The small lake of water is being held up by this flood control dam just north of Ozona. The picture was taken in 1958. Had just two or three such dams been in operation on the watershed, the damage in Ozona would have been only minimal in the 1954 flood. The dams hold up and permit an orderly flow of flood waters, preventing the downrush of the entire run-off from flooding rains.

Control Dams Saved Ozona From Ravages Of Another 1954 Flood

By C. H. Sinclair
Area Conservationist, SCS

Johnson Draw flows, but flows under control. This is the second time this year the draw has functioned to prevent severe damage from flooding waters. The first flow was in mid-April this year.

The possibility of flooding Ozona and on this draw has been greatly reduced. This control of flooding has been made possible by construction of seven flood water retarding structures above on the watershed and two miles of channel improvement through the town of Ozona.

The construction of these structures and the channel improvement were made possible through Public Law 566. The program, one of the early congressional efforts in environmental improvement, was designed originally to help local sponsoring groups control erosion, slow sediment production, and prevent floods. Water supply, recreation, fish and wildlife, and other multipurpose features added since then have provided a means for people to meet broad and positive community aims.

The Soil Conservation Service administrators U. S. D. A.'s upstream watershed-protection and flood-prevention activities as an integral part of the total soil and water conservation job. The job involves working with local organizations that sponsor watershed projects and with individual land owners and operators in watershed project areas. The local sponsoring organization in Crockett County are the Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District and the Crockett County Commissioners Court. Local landowners and operators gave permission and provided the sites to construct the structures. These sites were provided by the land owners at no expense to the local sponsoring organization and the S. C. S. The local sponsoring organization agreed and has made needed maintenance repairs to the structures and the two miles of channel improvement when needed to keep them function-

The Watershed protection plan for Johnson Draw includes the following sites and owners involved:

- Site No. 1 - Boyd Baker, O. B. Trap Company and Jack Holt.
- Site No. 2 - J. B. Parker, Richard Flowers, John Childress and O. B. Trap Co.
- Site No. 3 - Jack Holt and Rudy L. Vaughn.
- Site No. 4 - Richard Flowers
- Site No. 5 - Richard Flowers and Bill Baggett.
- Site No. 6 - Bill Baggett
- Site No. 7 - W. E. Friend.

And - 2 miles channel improvement through the town of Ozona.

Ozona was flooded in 1954. It was estimated that this flood resulted to more than four million dollars in property damage in the town of Ozona and the loss of 22 human lives. Local ranchers suffered great losses in the county, in livestock, ranch improvements, sedimentation damages and severe scouring and erosion.

By the initiative and action of local people and ranchers, the Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District, the Crockett County Commissioners Court, and the Soil Conservation Service it is felt that the Johnson Draw Watershed protection plan will prevent, or hold to a minimum, the recurrence of such loss to the town of Ozona and Johnson Draw Watershed.

Flood prevention measures are not completed with the seven structures constructed and the two miles of channel improvement through Ozona. Land treatment above on the watershed is very important to make the plan work. Land treatment is constantly needed and being applied to make the system work. Soil and Water Conservation practices, put into application by local ranchers on this watershed, such as proper grazing use of grasses and other vegetation, deferred grazing, deferred rotation grazing, brush control, range seeding, and wildlife upland habitat management are very important to hold water where it falls. There is where water does the most good for all concerned.

The seven flood control dams above Ozona will store a total of 1,029 acre feet of water before any flow from the structures occurs. This is the amount of flood waters that is retained before any channel flow starts. This is equal to water 10 feet deep over 102.9 acres of land. This storage is in addition to that percolating into the ground and replenishing underground water supplies when prevented from running off uncontrolled.

Additional flood water storage is provided between the draw down tubes and emergency spillways above the structures in the amount of 25,827.35 acre feet. This is equivalent to water ten feet deep over 2,582.7 acres of land. Thus, the importance of control and orderly flow to prevent severe damage is apparent.

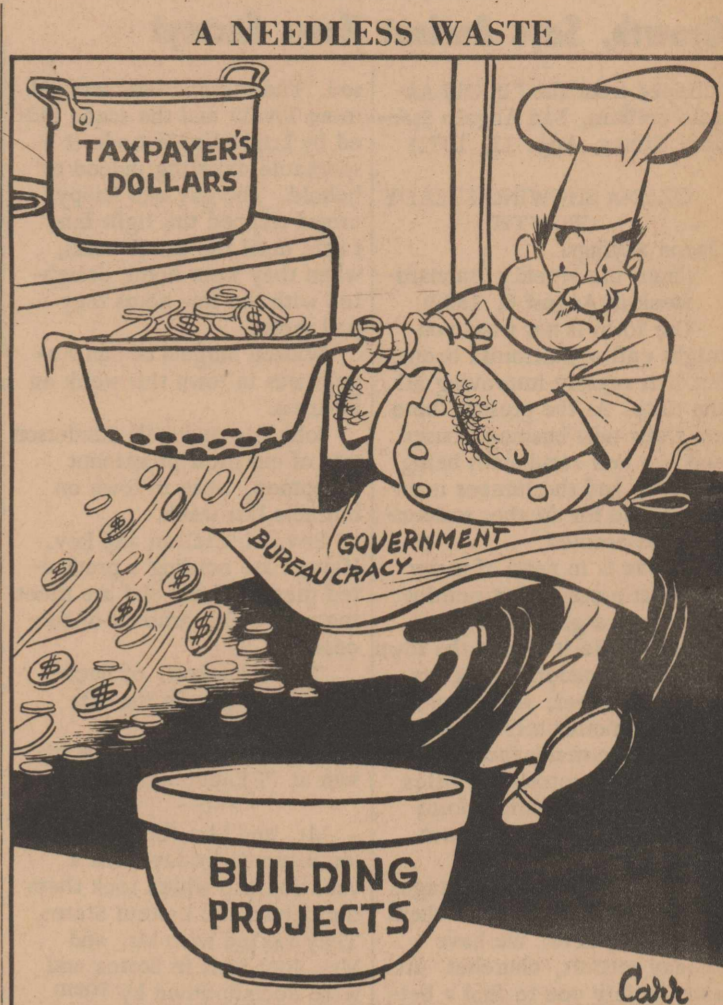

The recent rains put water approximately two feet over the draw down tubes at dam sites 2, 4 and 5 and barely flowing over for a short time at sites 1, 3 and 6. At site 7 on the W. E. Friend ranch controlling flood waters on Gurley Draw, the water rose approximately two feet above the draw down tube and with a refill from additional rains, flowed for nearly two weeks.

In 1892, Ozona Was Showing Steady Growth, Says Ancient News Excerpt

(clipped from the "In Old Angelo column, San Angelo Standard Times, Aug. 11, 1971)

OZONA SHOWING STEADY GROWTH

Ozona Sayings:
(from the Weekly Standard-week of August 6, 1892)
Our town is not what you might call a California boom, but it is rapidly improving all the time. At the present there are three new business houses and two new residences being erected, and the lumber is on the ground for another residence to be erected.

Ozona is in need of many things at present, but nothing more than a good live newspaper. While it is true the town has made wonderful progress without a paper, if we had one we could better tell the advantages of the many facilities presented by a town 90 miles from a railroad, and inform people that railroads do not make a town.

As to our social advantages -- nowhere will you find them better than here. We have Sunday schools, churches, etc. and we defy you to find a better class, or more refined and dignified people anywhere. A grand ball was given last Friday night in the honor of Miss Annie Perry. The young ladies looked beautiful in their evening costumes, and the boys -- well, they looked about as common as usual, although they were stylishly dressed. The music never seemed more lovely and the scene aided by bright lights made it a spectacle dazzling indeed to behold. The gay and happy crowd tripped the light fantastic until the small hours, when they went home delighted with the few hours they had spent.

Walton Burgess of San Angelo was in town this week on business.

John Rae and Will Sanderson, two of our most prominent sheepmen, were in town on business last week.

Rev. McClellan and Rev. Haynes are holding a protracted meeting here and are meeting with a fair amount of success.

T. C. Puckett, of Buckhorn draw, was in the city this week.

A grand picnic will be given at 77 Ranch next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Littleton returned Friday from a vacation trip which took them throughout the Eastern States. They visited with Mr. and Mrs. Joel Huff in Boston and were accompanied by them to Bar Harbor, Maine. They also visited with Rev. Keith Bailey, former Ozona pastor, and his family in Augusta, Ga.

I never thought I would miss that loud rock and roll with the television blaring, a bunch of hungry kids fooling around in the kitchen, the ring around the bath tub, all those dirty shirts to wash, and that unending job of cooking, but I do. Somehow I feel downright unnecessary without a kid in the house. I'm thinking about taking up sky-diving.

TAX MAN SAM SFZ:

Unfortunately the drouth has forced many livestock owners to sell a part or all of their herd. The Internal Revenue Service provides a modified form of tax relief on the sale of livestock due to a drouth. You are not required to pay taxes on any profit that you make on the sale of your herd (provided your sales for the year are in excess of normal sales) if you reinvest within two years with the same type of herd. An extension of this period beyond two years may be granted by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue Service in exceptional cases. Publication 225, the Farmers Tax Guide, spells out all the requirements on drouth sales of livestock on pages 36 through 40. Local county agents and Internal Revenue Service offices have free copies of the Farmers Tax Guide available for you. IRS advises farmers considering a drouth sale to obtain a Farmers Tax Guide and carefully check the rules in advance.
