Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

Since Monday is a very busy day for me, it is practically impossible for me to get away from the office for almost any reason. However, I am most sorry I was not on hand when the webworm infestation discussion came up at the Commissioners Court.

When I mentioned that interested citizens might meet with the court and come to some sort of solution about the invasion in my column last week, never in my wildest dreams did I ever think the court would think anyone was suggesting that the county go into competition with the local tree sprayers. Yet, this is what we get out of the monthly report. That, and an urging that all citizens spray their trees, plus a report from the county agent discussing the cause and the cure.

Almost anybody with average intelligence knows the problem. We've got them and each year they get here a little earlier and last a little longer. It does hardly any good for a home owner to spray his trees when a vacant lot next to him is full of trees with the insects hanging from every limb. And it certainly seems to be a community problem to me.

In fact, I discussed the problem at length with one of the local tree sprayers before I wrote my column last week. He was most helpful and seemed to welcome any sort of help to control the webworm. I also discussed the problem with another local sprayer over the weekend. He had no intention of getting mixed up in county politics, but indicated his willingness to be available.

It is obvious from the court report that nothing fruitful came from the discussion, and I guess I was pretty darned stupid to think that it might have. But to think anyone was suggesting that the county go into competition with local businessmen, is just too far off the track for intelligent discussion. I can't for the life of me imagine how that ever came into the discussion when it is so obvious that they would be the main ingredients in any sort of solution to the problem.

Oh well, maybe I'll learn one of these days.

Maybe we need an organization like "Keep New Mexico Beautiful, Inc." The organization, one of the most active groups in the Nation, is made up of volunteers and a concerned public.

They are presently engaged in collecting glass and sending it to Waco, Texas to be recycled.

Kimble Foods, Inc. is transporting the glass for the organization. Incidentally, this is a first for private industry, and they must take great pride in doing their bit for pollution control. The story is in the first page of "Kimbell Keynotes" this month, the organization's trade magazine.

Recently more than 20 tons of glass -- crushed for recycling by Keep New Mexico Beautiful members and other volunteers, left Albuquerque for the recycling plant in Waco Texas.

I am sure this was the result of many hours of discussion on the same wave length, much hard work and plenty of cooperation on the part of many people, and they are right to be proud of their accomplishment.

Sunday's rain was certainly welcome, and plants and trees along with flowers have really perked up. You can water plants all summer long with pretty good results, but you just can't beat a shower from old Mother Nature to really have things blossom forth.

4-H LEADER AWARDS--Miss Dorothy Price and Miss Ethel Wolf are shown receiving 4-H Leader awards from Dr. John E. Hutchison, (L) director, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and Aubrey Lockett of Vernon, trustee with the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation, June 7 during State 4-H Roundup at

They are directors of the Ozona Community Center and have spent many years working with young people.

Miss Wolf And Miss Price Named As Top 4-H Leader

College Station - Misses Dorothy Price and Ethel Wolf of Ozona and Troy Douglas of El Paso have been cited as outstanding 4-H adult leaders by the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation. They were recognized as the top adult leaders in District 6 of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the parent organization of 4-H.

The three leaders were honored at a special luncheon June 7 in the Memorial Student Center on the Texas A&M University campus along with 24 other adult leaders from throughout the state. All were presented a special plaque by Robert (Bob) Hillery of Wichita Falls with the 4-H foundation as a part of the 1972 State 4-H Roundup program.

Misses Wolf and Price serve as director and program director, respectively, of the Ozona Community Center. The center is a project related to the National Division of the Board of Missions of the United Methodist Service. Both have worked as adult leaders for 19 years -- 10 years in Arizona and the

At 6:00 a.m. Monday the official gauge had recorded .63 of an inch of rain from intermittent showers which fell through the night. An additional .12 of an inch was recorded early Tuesday from brief showers, and heavy cloud cover was the order of the day for Tuesday.

The three-day total of 3.95 inches in the official gauge brought the monthly total to 4.04 inches, and the total rainfall for the year to 9.85 inches.

DR. WM. JOHNSON OPENS MEDICAL PRACTICE HERE

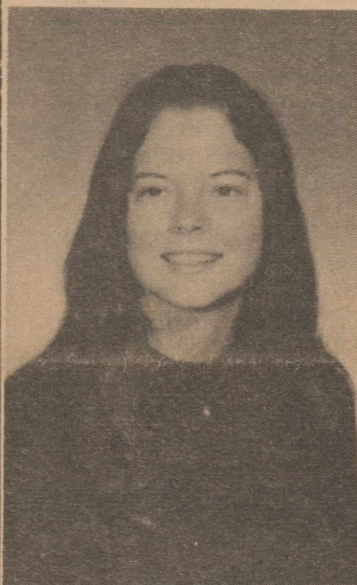

Dr. William R. Johnson announces the opening of the Clinic facilities of the Crockett County Hospital, Monday through Friday during the hours of 1:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. The telephone number at the Clinic office is 392-2611.

Dr. Johnson is a native of Sonora, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvis Johnson. He is a graduate of Baylor University School of Medicine and did his internship in Seattle, Wash. past nine years at Ozona. Miss Price serves the Limazona 4-H Club while Miss Wolf serves the Tejas 4-H Club. Both have served as leaders for the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts for 15 years. They have been named "Outstanding 4-H Adult Leaders" for Crockett County.

"In their positions, Miss Price and Miss Wolf have been responsible for planning and implementing a program for the betterment of the Ozona community," says Pete Jacoby, Crockett County agricultural agent. "They have given priority of 4-H as they believe it is most beneficial to community needs. They were instrumental in establishing the home economics program in the county since the county does not have the services of a full-time home demonstration agent. Miss Wolf and Miss Price have helped and inspired 4-H'ers and others to do what they were capable of doing."

Ross Hufstetler was rushed by ambulance to San Angelo Sunday morning, reportedly suffering from a heart attack.

Oil-Gas Sales Added $47 Million To Crockett Co. Economy In 1971

Sale of Crockett County oil and gas production accounted for $47,078,768 of the county's economic output for 1971, according to a study by Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn. In producing 7,811,396 barrels of crude oil and 128.9 billion cu. ft. of natural gas, the county ranked 32nd in Texas. Value of its crude oil was $27,496,114; natural gas value was $19,582,655.

The county is among 190 Texas counties with oil and gas production value topping $100,000, although 211 counties produce oil and gas.

"Crockett County oil and gas wells made a significant contribution to Texas' share of the nation's energy last year, but growing demand is sapping reserves in Texas faster than they can be replaced," Robert A. Buschman, Association president, said. "As fewer new fields are discovered, due to less drilling, the continuing strong economy and tax base of many Texas counties may now depend on updating Texas oil conservation laws to encourage wider use of new recovery technology," he said.

The county's wells generated $1,264,821 in crude oil production taxes for state government and $1,468,699 in state taxes on natural gas. Oil and gas producers spent $7,957,973 in drilling 95 wells in the county last year. $1,114,412 of which was lost in drilling 26 dry holes.

Texas Employment Commission figures showed 286 oil and gas industry employees in the county last year, with an annual payroll of $2,189,760.

Processing plants also added to the county's economy. The Oil and Gas Journal lists six natural gasoline plants with a daily combined capacity of 147 million cu. ft.

Webworm Control Needed To Save Ozona Pecan Trees

Home-owners should take steps to control fall webworms which are showing up on shade trees in Ozona, warns county agent Pete Jacoby.

Most everyone is familiar with the fall webworm and they can be recognized when tree leaves are eaten by larvae living in loosely woven, dirty white webs. The adult is a white moth which may have black or brown spots on the forewings. Its wingspan is about one inch.

Webworm larvae are pale yellow, spotted with black. They attain a length of one inch when full grown and are covered with long black and white hairs. The insect overwinters as a pupa in a lightly woven cocoon in debris on soil or under bark. In spring, adults emerge and lay masses of greenish white eggs on leaves in colonies under webs they construct. After feeding for a month to 6 weeks, larvae crawl down the tree and pupate in loose cocoons in debris, under bark or in loose soil. Adults appear during summer and deposit eggs for the second generation. Larvae of this generation feed extensively until fall, crawl down the tree and pupate for winter.

Light infestations of the first generation now showing up on trees can be eliminated by pruning out affected branches and burning them. If this control method is not practical, then spray trees with a recommended insecticide.

Charles E. Neeb, Extension Service Area Entomologist of Fort Stockton, advised the county agent that Malathion and Toxaphene are recommended for control of fall webworms on pecan trees while the insecticide Sevin can be used on shade or ornamental trees. Tree owners are cautioned to follow label directions closely.

Rancher Help Needed To Fight Worm Outbreak

Screwworm cases now number over fifty for the county this year, reports county agent Pete Jacoby. Cases have been reported from all over the county and some ranchers report quite a few cases while others still have found no screwworm cases, reports the county agent.

Don't depend on the sterile fly program entirely to curb the present outbreak, says the county agent. "They are doing all they can and must have the cooperation of every livestock producer if the present outbreak is curbed this year," he adds.

Livestock producers should take the following action:

Livestockmen must protect themselves by inspecting livestock regularly and carefully. All wounds--particularly navels of newborn calves--must be found and treated promptly whether they are wormy or not.

Surgical operations are now dangerous and if at all possible should be postponed until cool weather. Castration, dehorning, shearing and docking provide additional wounds on which screwworms can lay their eggs. If these practices must be performed now, animals should be properly treated and inspected each day for possible worms until the wounds heal properly.

Spraying of herds in infected areas should be started. All animals being shipped from the (Continued on last page)

INCOME REDISTRIBUTION

A healthy society is one in which the laws are designed to assist the energetic, productive members of that society to develop their potential to its fullest. A sick society is one in which the laws are devised in such a manner as to favor the non-productive elements in the population.

From the beginning, American society was soundly conceived. This was a land of opportunity for people who wanted to work. Ours was a dynamic, growing society that appreciated the value of the creative, enterprising individual. He was encouraged to acquire property and build up the nation. In more recent times, however, the character of American society has altered. The focus of attention has shifted from the self-reliant citizen to the under-achiever and welfare recipient. Political movements catering to the less energetic have been fashioned around such slogans as New Deal, Fair Deal, New Frontier and Great Society.

The latest call to lavish favors on the non-productive comes from Sen. George McGovern (D-S. D.). He hasn't produced a new label for his scheme but he openly urges a massive "redistribution of income" in this country. He wants Congress to take from the productive and give to the welfare element.

This is a revolutionary design that strikes at every enterprising citizen. Sen. McGovern would eliminate the $750 a year exemption that every taxpayer now gets for himself and each of his dependents. In its place he would substitute a minimum income grant of perhaps $1,000 a person. But there's a catch to this. Only the welfare class, the free-loading element, would get to keep the grant. And every American with an income of $12,000 or above would pay sharply increased taxes.

According to the Washington Post, the McGovern "share the wealth" plan is derived from the writings of former Kennedy administration economist now at Harvard and MIT. The radical economists aim at boosting the income of the poorest fifth of the population by taking money away from other citizens with more skill and enterprise. One of these economists estimates that an income redistribution plan would shift $43 billion a year to the poorest fifth.

Working Americans aren't likely to regard Sen. McGovern as Robin Hood. Forced income redistribution is a feature of totalitarian societies such as exist in Cuba and behind the Iron Curtain. The plan devised by Sen. McGovern would deny to productive citizens the fruit of their labors. It would go far beyond existing relief laws to make the welfare element the privileged class in our country.

The truly American system is to distribute income on the basis of individual skill, enterprise and know-how. Market demands for skills and the innovative planning of the individual provide for a wide range of incomes. The blue-collar worker who attends night school and gets a supervisor's job is the beneficiary of a changed pattern of income distribution. In the present system, higher income is geared to improved education, personal saving, and longer hours on the job.

Sen. McGovern would penalize the skilled mechanic or white-collar worker who moonlights at a second job or who attends a technical or business school in order to qualify for a higher-paying job. This type of individual would pay higher taxes under McGovern-style socialism. The individual who does little or nothing to improve his lot, who fails to seek employment or is a poor worker, would be rewarded by a minimum income grant.

This is still a country of working, productive people. And if they recognize their own interest and interest of the nation, they will be adamantly opposed to the McGovern income distribution plan. Sen. McGovern's plan would go far toward destroying the incentive for a productive life. Actually, the nation needs laws that are the very opposite of the McGovern plan. It needs laws to compel relievers to take any job offered to them. It needs a law that would make public assistance conditional on relievers not having offspring during the period of public assistance. The country needs an overhaul of the tax laws to provide new incentives for saving and investment.

The point that should be made in discussing the McGovern "income redistribution" plan is that it is profoundly unjust. The good incomes received by energetic citizens are their proper due. Politicians should not be allowed to redistribute or transfer a portion of those incomes to persons who aren't doing anything to help themselves, their communities or the country.

Washington News Letter

by Congressman O. C. Fianar

What some criminalologists believe may be recorded as the most glaring instance of miscarriage of justice in modern times, was the jury verdict in California which acquitted Communist revolutionary Angela Davis of murder.

1. The accused admittedly purchased and owned three guns which were used in abduction and murder of a judge who was conducting a trial for a murder which had been committed in San Quentin prison. Under California law one who furnishes a gun for a crime is guilty as a principal.

2. The guns were smuggled into the courtroom by one Jonathan Jackson, brother of a prison inmate, George Jackson, with whom Angela had visited in prison and was carrying on a torrid love affair via correspondence. In one letter she wrote: "I dreamt we were together fighting pigs, winning... we have to learn to rejoice when pig's blood is spilled..."

During the courtroom scene Jonathan suddenly pulled a gun, disarmed the guards, removed the prisoners' handcuffs, and handed guns to two of them. Downstairs the judge was herded into a waiting van. Gunfire erupted. One of the prisoners killed the judge. Jonathan and two prisoners were killed by officers. Jonathan and the accused were seen together inspecting the courtroom the day before the crime was committed.

3. Davis, a black Pantherette, promptly disappeared. She was caught two months later in New York where she was hiding from the law.

This and other incriminating evidence pointed to the guilt of the accused beyond any reasonable doubt. What happened after the acquittal was most disgusting. The victor embraced several jurors. A champagne party celebrating her acquittal took place that evening, attended also by most of the jurors. George McGovern, campaigning in the Watts area, declared the acquittal was reason for "great rejoicing".

The red militant who hates pigs has announced plans for a triumphal trip to Moscow and to other Communist strongholds where she is to be toasted and applauded.

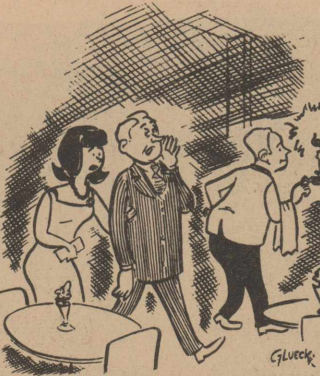

What a travesty! The Goddess of Justice must surely bow her head in shame for what she has witnessed.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club By Mrs. Bailey Post

Long established as the most common of hardy flowers in the Southern garden, the long-lived perennial iris is a traditional favorite. Our grand-parents lined their walkways with white, blue and yellow "flags." In recent years, flags have undergone much improvement via hybridizing.

In our area dig and divide irises from June to October. Irises tend to become crowded in growth and should be dug, divided and reset every three to five years. They may be moved at any convenient time, but many flowers prefer to transplant about six weeks after flowering.

If you intend to order new rhizomes, now is the time to make your selections while many garden centers have sales.

Bearded iris, the most commonly grown in the South, need a neutral or slightly acid soil and good drainage is very essential. They will grow and bloom in stony soil. Full sun is a must so don't plant other flowers or plants near enough to shade irises.

Too much fertilizer is worse than none at all, yet irises need a moderate feeding. Potash and phosphorus are essential but too much nitrogen is harmful. It produces soft growth which is susceptible to rhizome rot.

During its period of flowering, an iris planting commands attention in any garden. They are most effective planted in clumps or planted with other flowers where they contribute seasonal color. If your garden is small select a few of the same variety and use them for a spotlight of color.

Always hand cultivate bearded iris, as shallow-growing rhizomes are easily injured with a sharp hoe.

If you have a shaded spot that needs color during the summer, fancy-leaved calladiums will do a better job than almost anything else, with a lot less trouble and work.

Groups of one variety or a combination of generous clumps of several different varieties is quite striking. A new dwarf type features long lance-like leaves. If you failed to get tubers earlier, you can still buy them already started in pots at nurseries.

Commissioners Sidestep Worm Spray Request

The Crockett County Commissioners Court met Monday in regular monthly session and reports were received.

Mrs. O. D. West, Mrs. Bailey Post, Mrs. Charles Williams, and Mrs. Glenn Sutton met with the Court and discussed the infestation of webworms in the trees in town.

They were told by the court that the court does not own sprayer equipment, neither does it desire to go into competition against the local people who make a livelihood spraying trees. However, the Court strongly urges everyone in town to take care of their trees and have them sprayed at the first indication of infestation.

The County Agent has been contacted and will have information concerning control measures to be adopted.

J. D. Brown appeared, representing the Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee, and requested the Court to paint curbs at corners and fire plugs, install new street signs, and continue cleaning up vacant lots, including hauling away abandoned autos.

The Court agreed to build rest rooms under the stands at the rodeo arena.

It was reported that paving the parking area at Fort Lancaster has been completed and we are awaiting inspection.

according to Judge Troy Williams.

Bids were opened regarding doors for patients' rooms at the hospital, but no action was taken. The administrator was advised by the court to cut hospital expenses in every practical manner.

Jack Williams was directed to formulate detailed plans for the juvenile facility to be completed on the second floor of the old jail.

Bids will be opened the 23rd day of June for an additional tractor to do mowing.

The courts will reconvene as a board of equalization June 23.

It's pretty evident that we have toppled the little red schoolhouse. Ideas we had about economics, science, race and education itself, have come and gone. New ideas are breaching the surface of life and thundering over us.

Campus unrest and street demonstrations make us reappraise old values and ideas.

But one idea remains steadfast. It is the idea that God loves man and men, and that He cares about what happens to our lives.

Are shouting television newscasts and bold headlines overwhelming you? Then you need an open mind and a steady faith. God's love is for you. Your church is where you find out about it. Try it next Sunday. It will help you grasp an old idea, even if it is a new one for you.

xxxx America. Some 75,000 have united with the church under his leadership. He has addressed over 300 high school and college student bodies. His message has been carried over radio and television to millions.

Rev. Gage has spoken in numerous prisons, reform schools and the Federal Narcotics Hospitals at Fort Worth, Texas and Lexington, Kentucky. He assisted Billy Graham in working with youth in the New York Crusade held in Madison Square Garden. Social workers, prominent businessmen, educators, law enforcement officers and judges are eloquent in their recognition of his work with delinquent youth. He is co-author of "Pulpit in the Shadows," published by Prentice-Hall. He has been described as "A minister to the unreachable."

Rev. Gage can communicate with the restless youth of our time and more mature audiences are overwhelmed by the spiritual depth of his message.

Everyone is impressed by the obvious sincerity of his conviction. Through his evangelistic association the Pulpit in the Shadows ministry in Houston reaches to the drug culture. He has lived with them, conducted their funerals when they fell victims of drugs. Through his ministry, many young men and women who were described as hopeless cases are now in fulltime Christian service.

Evangelist Gage has a wife, Barbara, and four sons. He is a graduate of Baylor University.

Singing with Freddie Gage will be Jerry Wayne Bernard, one of the finest Gospel singers in the world today. Jerry has been with Freddie since 1963 and both sing and teach the Bible studies. He and his wife Gaylon have four daughters.

Rancher—

(Continued from page one) infested area should be sprayed before being moved. Spraying animals with approved treatment keeps screwworms from maturing. This type of regular preventive treatment will help delay the natural spread of screwworms and will protect the health of the livestock. Livestock owners are warned to be cautious about livestock shipments coming from infested areas. Any shipment of cattle from, in or near the infested areas may be carrying screwworms. Each animal should be thoroughly checked for wormy wounds. A cow's vagina, bull's sheath or a calf's navel could be harboring screwworms that will start a large infestation in a new area.

Samples of worms from wounded animals must be collected and sent in to the Mission Screwworm Laboratory for identification. Sample bottles are available at both wool houses and at the county agent's office.

The situation is serious and assistance of all livestock producers is needed to help bring this outbreak under control, warns county agent Pete W. Jacoby.

Scouts—

A LOOK INTO THE FUTURE

What will the home of tomorrow be like? Here are some ideas on how homes will look perhaps 20 or 30 years from now -- or less. We thought you might enjoy reading this.

Lamps will be cordless. They will automatically turn on when you enter a room, and then turn off automatically when you leave the room.

You won't have to worry about closing windows anymore when it rains. Windows will close electronically by themselves when rain starts.

Walls will be one way transparent -- you'll be able to see out the whole length of the wall space -- but nobody will be able to see in.

Some decorators feel tables will be recessed into ceilings and then lowered electronically when needed.

Chairs and sofas will be recessed into walls. When you want one -- you just push a button and out it comes into place.

These chairs and sofas will have adjustable legs that will automatically raise or lower for tall or short people.

These are great ideas to think about, and no doubt they'll all come true, but meanwhile, if you want some present down-to-earth furniture values for your home, we are ready to serve you with the best there is -- in the world today -- for your home right now.
