Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

This has been another busy week without much news. That may seem impossible, but it's not, believe me. We can't take the liberties the national news media does and report rumors and rumors of rumors. We feel it's our responsibility to report only facts, and we try to stick to them as closely as possible.

I almost admire their biased reporting. They have gotten more news footage out of Watergate than anyone would have ever thought possible. Who would ever have dreamed that the arrest of four Cuban refugees who had broken into Democratic headquarters would lead to all this furor. I can't for the life of me figure out who the injured party is. Nothing seems to have been taken in any instance and nobody has been killed. One must wonder what the news coverage has done to the country and how many innocent people and families have been harmed irreparably. To a man, they scream about freedom of the press, but some sort of guideline or law is in order. They have all condemned almost the entire administration, and most have not been indicted, much less found guilty. Fact must be separated from fallacy, and if the lid is clamped on freedom of the press, the national media must take the responsibility. Never have I heard so much slander, character-assassination and slanted story-telling.

Ozona Native's Work Exhibited In Art Show

Friends of the Library of the College of Santa Fe presented Betty Grimmer Rosenberger with her collection of 40 paintings, entitled "The Parishes On The Rio Pecos," Sunday, May 6, at the college from four until six in the afternoon.

The exhibit was of unusual artistic and historical interest, as Mrs. Rosenberger has painted most of the old parish churches on the Upper Pecos River. Her feeling is that they should be preserved for history as many of these churches are becoming abandoned and in a few years will be gone forever.

Betty Grimmer Rosenberger was born near the southern end of the Pecos River in Ozona. Her family moved to a farm near Winfield, Iowa when she was ten. Betty graduated from the University of Iowa with a BA in Fine Arts. After graduation she was Art Instructor in the Fort Sumner Municipal Schools for three years, where she met her husband, Duane Rosenberger, a rancher from Wyoming.

Betty and Duane presently live in Fort Sumner, N. M., where she has been a fifth grade teacher in the Fort Sumner schools and her husband operates a horse training farm and raises thoroughbred horses. Their two sons are attending college. John is a pre-medical student at Tulane and Lee is a freshman at New Mexico Military Institute.

Several Ozonans, friends and relatives, were on hand for the one-woman showing.

SRBiology Head To Lecture Here

Barton H. Warnock, chairman of the Biology Department at Sul Ross State University will lecture with slides on "Landscaping with Native Plants and Shrubs," Monday afternoon at 1:30 at the Ozona United Methodist Church.

The lecture and program on native plants and shrubs is being sponsored by the Ozona Garden Club and the public is cordially to attend.

Club members and guests will have an opportunity to purchase Dr. Warnock's book on native plants.

Be On Lookout For Fall Webworm Now

County Agent Pete Jacoby warned homeowners to be on the look-out for the fall webworm now in order to prevent a full scale outbreak later in the year.

Egg clusters and small webs of the fall webworm are already showing up in homeyard shade trees. This insect has been causing havoc to shade trees and shrubs in the homeyard for the past few years and shows no signs that it is about to let up.

Besides making a tree or shrub look unsightly with the webs it constructs over the tree foliage, the fall webworms have large appetites and often cause premature defoliation of the host tree or shrub. Early defoliation of trees and shrubs weakens them and creates favorable conditions for tree bores or disease attack.

The fall webworm overwinters in a pupal stage. The white adult moths emerge from the pupal stage in late April or early May. The white female moths lay eggs in a cluster of 20 to 75 eggs on the backside of the leaves. The eggs hatch in 7 to 14 days.

Baccalaureate For Class Of 1973 Is Sunday

Baccalaureate services for a record number of seniors will be held Sunday evening at 7:30 in the high school auditorium.

Over sixty members of the senior class will be honored at the services. This is a record graduating class for Ozona High School. The previous largest class was in 1971 when 54 seniors received diplomas.

The processional and recessional will be played by Teresa Shaw.

Father James Plegans of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church will give the invocation. The sermon will be given by Rev. John Berkley, pastor of the Ozona United Methodist Church, and the benediction will be given by Bill Morrison, minister of the Ozona Church of Christ.

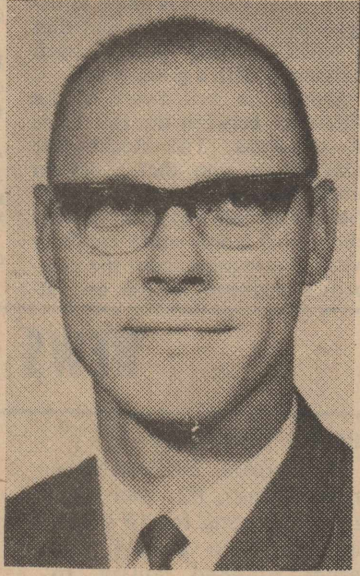

Traditionally, the service has been held on Sunday morning before graduation. The public is cordially invited to attend the services Sunday evening.

Commencement exercises will be held next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium.

The young worms start feeding immediately on the surface of the leaf on which they hatch. The young worms start spinning a web around the foliage that they attack. The young worms keep together and can devour entire leaves on an infested twig in a few days.

The fall webworms feed for 4 to 5 weeks before reaching maturity. Then the mature worms leave the web or nest in search for a place to pupate. A second generation of fall webworms emerge in the (continued on last page)

Nixon's Housecleaning

President Nixon's housecleaning of his staff in the White House, his support for full investigation and disclosure, and acceptance of responsibility for this sordid affair should satisfy Americans.

Nixon-haters, however, have of late had little to crow about—as the President won a smashing reelection victory and ended the Vietnam War. Nothing will satisfy them; they would find something else if there were no Watergate. Some are so eager to cash in politically by discrediting the President, they would impeach him if they could fan public sentiment to that heat.

The average citizen will nevertheless be satisfied with Mr. Nixon's broad housecleaning and his appeal for cleaner politics from both parties. There's no chance, of course, the President will be impeached. Those dwelling on this idea give themselves away as personal haters or political hoppers.

Television News

Network and news officials in the television industry argue regularly that television news is in the same class as news in newspapers. The telecasters have persuaded many Congressmen and millions of Americans on this point.

They have misled those who accepted that argument. Television news is nothing like newspaper news and never can be. The primary reason, of many, is that television news programs must be sold. Newspapers don't sell news columns. They sell advertising but, except in unfortunate cases, the news columns of newspapers are unaffected by advertising. Newspaper reporters are trained from the beginning to report news, not produce entertainment.

Secondly, television news is almost inevitably slanted news. It is slanted because of the very limited amount of time available, which means discriminatory selection, slanted by film considerations, because of what is available on film, what films well, the desire for live action, etc.

Furthermore, national television news is limited by cost considerations. It costs the networks a fortune to go into the hinterland. The western states create time problems, so after about one p.m. little is covered there. The result is that the networks end up with overemphasis on the east coast and totally disproportionate coverage of events in the five big metropolitan areas that tie into the big cable. Events here are further distorted by concentration on small action scenes, often not at all representative of the general picture.

Newspapers offer a hundred times the volume of news, and their news columns contain no commentary (which is reserved for columnists and editorials). Their news columns are non-commercial. There are about fifteen hundred daily newspapers, hundreds of independents. There are, of course, but three television networks, and a small group of executives in New York decide what most Americans see on their television news each morning and evening.

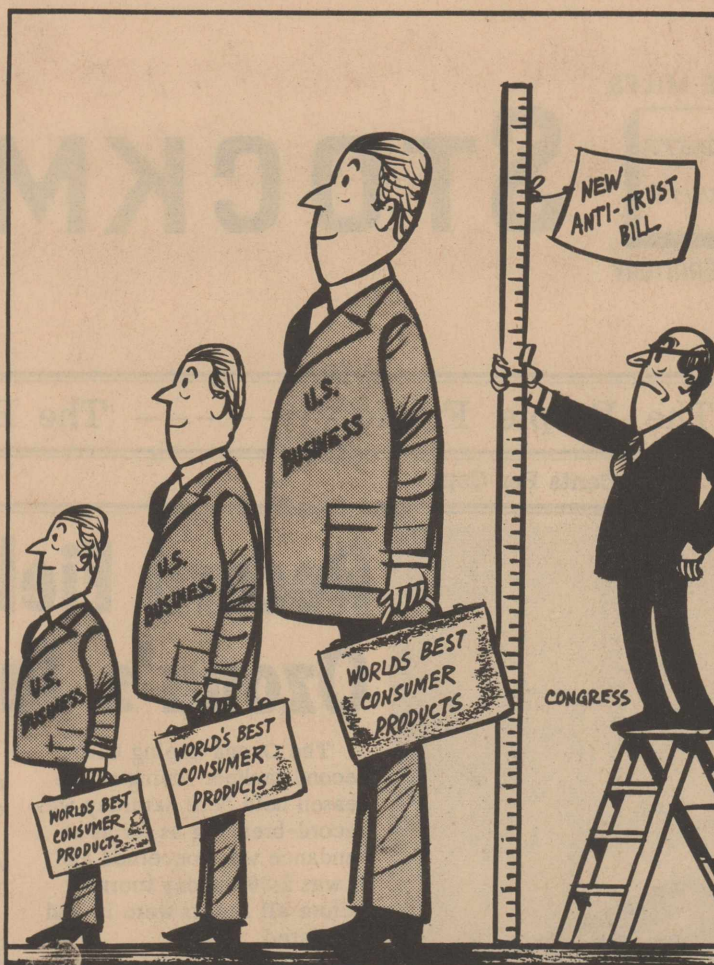

Women & Common Sense

In this era when women, especially American women, read and hear so much hokum about their poor lot in life, the answer for most people is common sense. A glance around, at nature and the way life is, and how the Creator made it, is in order.

Females are different from males, everywhere, in all forms of life. That's the way it always has been, always will be. They have a different role than that of males in life and nature. Yet being feminine is not second-class or inferior. Smart women, in fact, are glad they're women, and feminine.

Many two-bit psychologists, seeking fame, recognition or perhaps profits, are currently offering plans and programs to free women. Politicians, likewise, are telling women what women's lib types want to hear (often not what the majority of women want to believe). Various women writers, leaders, etc., kick in with their almost total-condemnation of the system men made, under which we live today.

Much of it is nonsense. Not all, and there are injustices. A glance around the world will show, however, that American women particularly enjoy a better life than women anywhere else in the world. They are equal in the eyes of the law and also enjoy many advantages over males. Most of them, thankfully, know rearing a family and operating a home constitute a high calling, as an important profession, perhaps the most important, and know it's a rewarding one. In addition, it's one most women enjoy most. That's the way of nature and instinct in life as created on our planet. Discriminations should be eliminated of course, and there are also discriminations against males. But the current fad of painting the lot of females in America as a sorry one is misleading and disruptive and, if carried far enough, can wreck the cherished institution of the family, the foundation of a strong, orderly and united country.

standing debt (matters of fact). Consider an actual case. A customer buying a short-wave radio asked the salesman whether it would get broadcasts from Rome. The salesman assured him it would.

But it wouldn't. The customer demanded his money back, and a court ruled in his favor. "The radio, so far as getting Rome is concerned, is a failure," observed the judge. "The warranty is breached."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Word to the Wise Consumer

"Beyond any doubt, the greatest engine ever invented for the discovery of truth."

John Henry Wigmore, famed legal authority, was not talking about such modern devices as the lie detector or truth serum. He was talking about the ancient art of cross-examination—that is, the use of careful, patient questioning to get at the facts.

You as a consumer can put this "engine" to good use every time you go shopping. Asking the right questions about a product can do wonders toward helping you get your money's worth.

But one vital distinction should always be kept in mind—the distinction between questions of fact and questions of opinion. This distinction is a key to your legal rights as a consumer.

Suppose you ask, "How much weight will this water bed support?" This is a question of fact. The seller is legally bound to give you accurate information.

But suppose you ask, "What do you think of these water beds?" That is a mere question of opinion. The seller can say "They're just great!" or "They make you feel 10 years younger!" without incurring any legal responsibility at all. The law assumes—realistically—that a seller is likely to exaggerate his enthusiasm and that a buyer is likely to take such statements with a grain of salt.

Sellers are well aware of the difference between the two kinds of questions. The stockbroker who assures you that a certain stock "has a terrific potential" (matter of opinion) will probably choose his words more carefully when you inquire about the company's dividend record or out-

Senator Tower Reports

Congress faces some very critical times in the weeks and months immediately ahead in determining how to check run-away Federal spending that has become a way of life in Washington. As one of my Senate colleagues said recently we have piled debt upon debt, stacked deficit upon deficit, and incurred continuing financial obligations that are most difficult, if not possible, for our government to accommodate.

A quick look at recent history of government spending clearly illustrates what he was talking about. During the 54 years since 1920, the budget of the Federal government has been in a deficit 37 times. In 32 of these years, the deficit were submitted by the Administration to Congress with deficits. During the 1960's, vast new government programs calling for the spending of added billions and billions of Federal funds were enacted. The present Administration inherited not only the fruits of these costly new programs, but it inherited the out-of-control inflationary economy that resulted.

Congress has been caught up in this spending philosophy and has contributed to a fiscal strain that is moving rapidly toward the dimensions of a grave fiscal crisis. As a result of these vast new government programs of the 1960's, the Federal deficit in the last four years alone has amounted to a whopping $106 billion.

The strength and capacity of our economy and borrowing power are not unlimited. Yet, the Congress in recent years has continued to establish new and more costly services and programs which increase Federal obligations and help to fuel the fires of inflation. The 92nd Congress alone enacted legislation authorizing the spending of more than $320 billion over the next five years to fund some 148 new and expanded governmental services and programs.

A recent report by a joint Congressional committee established to study the budgetary process stated that failure to arrive at congressional budgetary decisions on an overall basis has been a contributory factor in the size of deficits. In other words, Congress has failed to provide any method to determine the proper level of expenditures, or to set any kind of ceiling that would match expected income.

I have reached a decision on my own to support efforts by the present Administration to hold down spending levels. I played a small part in the recent vote by the Senate to sustain the President's veto of the Vocational Rehabilitation bill, although I was a strong supporter of many sections of that Act. But the facts are that the bill was fiscally irresponsible. It proposed an increase of more than $1 billion during the next two years, yet many of its new categorical grant programs would overlap and duplicate existing programs.

Unless the Congress buckles down to the tasks facing it, there will be more vetoes of spending programs, I am determined to support efforts to check Federal spending this year. There has to be leveling-off in Federal spending, and we must take new looks at many of our existing programs to see where we can economize.

As an example of the belt-tightening we will have to do, the President recently announced a major realignment of continental United States military bases. As direct American involvement in the Vietnam war has come to a close, the base structure that was built up here in the United States became in many instances outmoded.

After extensive study, the Department of Defense concluded that the base structure that functioned well during the peak of the Vietnam years was over-blown for the reduced Armed Forces needs of the post-Vietnam era. We no longer have the high training requirements of the Vietnam era and the logistical infrastructure in the United States is due for a change. Simply put, it would be a waste of the taxpayers' money to continue the present system of nationwide installations. The resulting savings are estimated to be $3.5 billion over the next 10 years.

Of course, we in the Congress will have to examine very carefully the base realignment package. I am well aware that the Defense Department has in the past used inaccurate or incomplete cost data to justify a base action such as the proposed 1971 closure of Ft. Wolters.

And, I am not yet satisfied that certain realignments here in Texas are entirely justified, and will continue my inquiries until adequate justification is given. We also need to re-examine our overseas installations, although we have closed most of our installations in Indochina and have brought numbers of troops home from Korea and the Philippines.

The sum and substance of all this is that there simply has to be some belt-tightening in virtually all areas of Federal spending. The very special interest groups must recognize the fact that we no longer can continue to pour more and more Federal dollars into ever-increasing programs. I intend to do my part in helping hold down spending and to avoid a tax increase.

New Words Reflect Changes in Society

Hundreds of new words have come into the English language in recent years, words that reflect the great changes taking place in our society, particularly among young people, minorities and in the variety of subcultures that have sprung up all over the country.

This serves to complicate the existence of the renowned word arbiters, the editors at Merriam-Webster in Springfield, Mass. who annually analyze and select new words for dictionary entry. And acceptance of these new words in our language is indicated by the fact that they are listed in Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary which has just been published by G. & C. Merriam Co.

Among words included in the new dictionary are: "bummer" which comes from the world of drugs and means an unpleasant experience; "chopper," a customized motorcycle; and "juvencocracy," a state ruled or influenced by youth.

Use Plants To Reduce Noise Levels In Yard

Ever hear of using plants to reduce noise levels? "Research has illustrated that properly designed landscape plantings can be used to deflect, absorb and mask excessive environmental noise," says Dr. William C. Welch, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

According to experts, noise levels are increasing at an alarming rate. One out of 10 Americans have a hearing deficiency and this number will increase in the next few years at least partially as a result of excessive environmental noise.

Plantings 25 to 50 feet wide placed close to the noise source have been shown to reduce high frequency noise more than 50 percent.

"Urban residential property may be effectively screened from normal passenger car noise with a single row of dense shrubs backed by a row of taller trees," notes the Texas A&M University horticulturist.

Vegetation reduces noise by breaking up sound waves, changing their direction and reducing their intensity. Since winds channel sounds, plantings that divert and direct winds also reduce noise levels.

"Combinations of trees and shrubs usually provide the most effective noise control. Shrubs by themselves are not tall enough and trees alone usually lose their lower branches in time, creating a large area void of foliage," points out Welch.

For year-round noise reduction, use evergreen plants. Texas trees effective in reducing noise include adapted pine species, Eastern and Western red cedar, Arizona cypress, live oak, salt cedar and camphor.

Shrubs that are effective include elaeagnus, yaupon, American holly, Pfitzer junipers, waxmyrtle, oleanders, pampas grass, ligustrum, pittosporum and primrose jasmine.

"The greater the total width of planting, the more effective it will be in controlling noise. However, wide plantings are not always possible in urban situations. Vines covering exterior walls of a building can also reduce noise," adds Welch.

Therapy Center Benefit Ball Is Slated May 18

"Everything seems to be going just great," according to Pierce Miller, co-chairman of the West Texas Therapy Center Stompede.

"Stompede" is the descriptive title set for the Friday, May 18, benefit affair in San Angelo Coliseum. Mrs. George Harrison is co-chairman along with Miller for the annual event to raise operating funds for the Therapy Center.

An hors d'oeuvres serving kicks off the evening at 7:30. Featured entertainer will be Mel Tillis, well known for his appearances on the Glen Campbell Show and Grand Ole Opry. He will be "backed up" by the Statesiders, a six-piece band that Miller guarantees "will make you want to get up and dance."

Just to ensure that there is no lag in the evening of fun, the Cavaliers, will provide dancing music during those periods when Tillis and the Statesiders are not performing.

Patron memberships to the annual event have been on sale for several weeks. Such memberships are still on sale, although it is now past the deadline to be listed in the souvenir program.

General tickets have been placed on sale at a variety of locations in San Angelo. Listed as having the $10 per couple tickets for sale now are all San Angelo banks, all local savings and loan institutions, Leddy's, Sears, Bill's Man's Shop, Boots & Saddle Club, ASU Student Center, Goodfellow AFB, and Concho Lake View Drug. Tickets may be ordered by mail by writing Box 3972, San Angelo.

Table reservations for groups of eight or 16 persons may be made now by calling 949-7959 or 653-8818.

1971 Eldorado

1973 Sedan deVille

1969 Coupe deVille

Own a Cadillac? Of course you can!

Right now, you could be very, very close to the special pleasures of Cadillac ownership.

Because right now there exists a very special set of circumstances favoring the person who longs to be a Cadillac owner.

It begins with the beautiful new 1973 Cadillacs themselves. These cars are the finest ever built by Cadillac—reflected by the fact that the '73 Sedan deVille, shown above, has already established itself as the single most popular luxury car in automotive history.

There are nine great '73 Cadillacs from which to choose. And right now, your Cadillac dealer can probably supply just the model you want . . . just the way you want it!

If a new Cadillac is not yet in your plans, consider the pleasure of driving a Cadillac of another year. The great demand for new Cadillacs has made a number of beautiful previously-owned cars available. Like the 1971 Eldorado or 1969 Coupe deVille, shown above.

It's true. A Cadillac of any recent year will likely have more luxury, more convenience features, more power equipment than you'll find on many of today's new cars.

For a lot of reasons, there couldn't be a better time to visit your authorized Cadillac dealer than right now.

First choose Cadillac . . . then choose the year.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Weather during May is usually warm, but the first few days and nights were quite cool. The cool nights have caused caladiums and many plants very slow to show much growth. But, be patient, warm days are ahead, and we may be wishing for cool days again. It is very dry now, so continue to water thoroughly if the drought continues.

Crepe Myrtles are beginning to put on new growth, so fertilize with an application of 5-10-10 or 8-8-8 to cause clusters of blooms during the summer. Use about 3 cups to a large plant, 1 cup to smaller or newly set plants. Work fertilizer into soil and water well. Soak soil once a week if there is no rainfall.

Watch your magnolia for mites by spotting their presence by these signs:

Leaves distorted, smaller than normal.

Leaves and stems turn brown. Yellowish discoloration appears on upper leaf surface, especially near the stem.

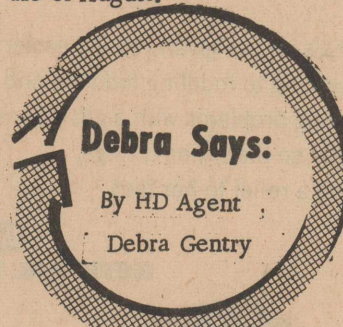

Underside of leaf has irregular dark brown blotches that are distinct from normal brown fuzz found on underside.

Heavily infested young leaves fall from the tree. If you find this infestation you will need three Miticide sprays at six-week intervals.

Watch your violets and columbine for red spiders. Dust leaves with sulphur, and allow some to fall on the ground around plants. Violets can be dug, divided and reset now. Keeping seed pods cut from columbine will prolong their blooming period.

Watch for activity of young bagworms on trees this month. They will be easier to control while insects are small. Perhaps this might keep from having such a seige of these bagworms as we had last year. To be sure you have poinsettia blooms next Christmas out of your own yard, either report your plants, or place directly in the garden. Cut the top back to 4 or 5 inches in height. Shake the old soil from the roots and plant in a fertile, well-drained soil consisting of half compost or peat moss. They need full sun in daytime, but no artificial light at night. Keep tips of new growth pinched out when it reaches 4 to 6 inches in length. Repeat this until middle of August.

The subject of hem lengths can cause various reactions. There seems to be no set hem length in today's fashion. Women are selecting hem lengths that look best on them. Becoming hem lengths can vary between the thigh and the floor for day and evening dress. With so many different lengths, you may be asking, "How do I select the right hem length for me?"

Preferred hem lengths are determined by using an art principle, "emphasis." Emphasis occurs when a line or design catches the eye. Emphasis can be achieved by using these techniques: Contrasting color bands to create emphasis at the hemline. Leading lines that draw attention to the hem. Pleats would do this. Bands of plaids or stripes cut on the bias or crosswise grain attract the eye to the hem area. Groups of pleats at the sides or center front and back also create emphasis.

Emphasis in the leg area is created also by the length of a hemline. The leg appears larger if the hemline is placed at the largest part of the leg because width is emphasized. The leg appears slimmer if the hemline falls one inch or more or below the largest part of the knee, mid-calf, or ankle.

How a hem looks makes the difference between the professional-looking garment and the garment called "home-made". The standard hem should be inconspicuous, uniform in width, parallel to the floor and well proportioned to the entire garment. The hem should be flat and smooth, but should not appear overpressed.

Let me remind you that there is no one right hem finish, hem technique, or hem stitch. Careful consideration of the fabric and style of garment will determine the type of hem you use.

AT HOME

Kangaroo mamas have one advantage over "human" mamas—their crib is "built-in." There's no need for them to dash around the house to give Junior tender loving care. He is always nearby, located quite conveniently for mother's attention.

Any mother's attention is crucial in providing a child with the religious foundations needed to produce a responsible adult. Enough freedom so that he can be independent — enough discipline to provide structure for his life. And moral precepts instilled by the Church and parental example.

One day Junior will outgrow mama's pouch or crib. Then, and only then, can parents know if they have been successful.

Webworms—

early fall. This generation produces more webworm numbers and usually results in complete defoliation of host trees and shrubs.

Homeowners should start checking the foliage of trees and shrubs in the home yard for signs of fall webworm feeding. Foliage of poplar, mulberry and willow trees are preferred by the first generation.

Fall webworms stay within their web nests until they have completed their worm stage. Early detection of small webs may result in cutting out infested leaves, twigs or branches. Then destroy the worms inside the web.

Fall webworms may be controlled with insecticides when they are still feeding on foliage. For control of the first generation worms (webs that could not be pruned out of trees), foliar insecticides sprays should be applied as soon as the webs are detected in May and early June. Sprays should be applied to the point of run-off to foliage above and below the webs.

For chemical control of the fall webworm, use Sevin 50% wettable powder at the rate of 2 tablespoons per gallon of water or Diazinon 48% liquid spray at the rate of 1 tablespoon per gallon of water.

A spore-forming bacterial disease organism, "Bacillus thuringiensis," available in commercially prepared spray formulations, is effective against the fall webworm. Apply this disease spray according to the manufacturers label instructions. This bacterium spray is not known to be toxic to man, pets or plants.

Before applying any pesticide spray, always read and follow the safety instructions on the pesticide label.

A conscientious program on destruction of first generation fall webworms may eliminate the need for later control of the second generation worms.

Barn Burns On Thompson Ranch

Ozona Firemen extinguished a fire in a barn at the Thompson ranch near the hospital north of Ozona last Thursday afternoon.

The entire inside of the barn was ablaze when firemen arrived, but they managed to get the fire under control and out before the structure was completely destroyed.

Feed was stored in the barn, and firemen thought the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion.

K-K— (Continued from Page One) dy was involved in what I would call a "real scandal" the national media gave only two or three days of most sympathetic reporting. And as far as I know, nobody knows what happened in that incident either, if they do nobody forced them to tell.
