Kitty's Korner

by Kitty Montgomery

After a three-day weekend we've found it nearly impossible to get back into the swing of things around here. If there is any news to speak of we missed it this week.

Ozonans did enjoy a cool holiday period. However, by Tuesday the sun was blazing hot and there wasn't a cloud in sight. Summer has settled in and will no doubt make itself at home for some time to come.

Most Ozonans are staying in out of the heat, but out the window on Hwy. 290, the entire rest of the world is on vacation. You can look out this window and in the course of an hour see every type person and vehicle. If you have time for amusement, it's an interesting past time. If 1-10 gets finished in our lifetime, we are probably going to miss all the sights we see. Of course, it will be nice to miss the noise.

Everybody is gardening, and everybody's garden seems to be thriving in spite of the heat.

We planted patio tomatoes in our planters and the tomatoes are all getting ripe at once.

I pulled some a little green the other day and put them in a west window to ripen. I forgot them, naturally, and when I remembered to retrieve them, they were stewed in their own skins. I couldn't bear to put them down the disposal, so I put them in the refrigerator instead.

Tom came home late one night after helping with the pool tournament at the "V" and ate the tomatoes. He was telling me about the strange consistency of the vegetables. He said the skin just fell off them when he tried to slice them. Said it was the damndest thing he ever saw, said they were just like stewed tomatoes.

I let him puzzle about it for some time, but finally had to fess up. You see, I am basically an honest person.

Some of the projects they spend our tax dollars on are downright ridiculous. Only today I read that the National Science Foundation plans to spend $84,000 to study why people fall in love, and another $260,000 to investigate "passionate love." The NSF spends hundreds of thousands of dollars every year for some highly dubious studies. One of the silliest, in my opinion, was a study on why children fall off tricycles. The result was: they go around corners too fast.

It's really laughable until you stop and realize where the money comes from. The whole stupid thing is financed by your tax dollars. The Congress appropriates the money and the IRS asks you to pay the bill every April 15.

These are things we need to write our representatives in Washington about and complain long and loud until such stupid waste of public monies is stopped. And we wonder what causes inflation. Good grief!

Unusual Sports Car Makes Appearance In Ozona

Frank Turner, president of Turner Research and Development Co. in Graham, was passing through Ozona last week traveling in a Bricklin, new concept in an American safety sports car. He was visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Turner, and stopped by the Stockman with his car. Turner Research converted the hydraulic door system, which took 10 seconds to open and close to an air system which opens and closes the doors in two seconds. The doors open from the top, much like an airplane cockpit.

Turner picked up the car at the main office of Bricklin in Scottsdale, Arizona, and has ten days to return to Graham and complete the system for presentation to the engineering staff at Detroit.

The Bricklin Company is the first independent automotive company since Tucker,

It has produced over 2,000 cars. The production plant is in St. John New Brunswick, Canada. The plant can produce 24 cars per day. Cost of the car is $9,775, and with all options, $12,000.

Malcolm Bricklin is owner and president of the company. They are preparing to enter into a contract which will use a rotary engine developed by Turner in all cars produced.

The engine is a miniaturized version of Turner's rotary "V" concept. It weighs 20 pounds, eight cubic inches, and is 20 horsepower. The engine is named Prototype No. 4 and will be used to promote Frank Turner's rotary engine design throughout the United States and Canada.

Ozona Has Quiet Holiday No Wrecks, Two Men Injured

It was a quiet Fourth of July weekend in Ozona and Crockett County. There were no wrecks investigated during the three-day period and the only injuries were an accidental gunshot wound in Todd Field Sunday, and an accident at the rodeo arena Sunday afternoon.

Carlos Judd of Big Lake was visiting Douglas Ewing at Todd Field. The two had been getting in his car to go home when his gun discharged, the bullet going through the calf of his leg. He was taken to the hospital in Big Lake where he was treated and released.

Rotary Club Team Wins Minor League

Ozona minor leaguers turned in a successful season with the Rotary Club team winning the crown. The winning team was managed by Manuel Hartnett, assisted by Robert Flores.

The teams were formed for players who didn't make a Little League team. All boys and girls who showed up for practice were placed on one of the four teams, and all boys and girls on all teams played during the season.

Other teams and managers were M & M Cafe, Coy Tambunga; Shell Oil, Bill Crawford, and Ozona Shamrock, Joe DeLaRosa.

Sunday afternoon at the rodeo arena, Perry Hubbard was injured when his horse either fell with him or threw him. Nobody actually saw the accident, but he suffered a concussion and possible internal injuries. He was taken to Shannon Hospital by ambulance and regained consciousness by the time he was admitted. He was in intensive care Monday where he was being observed for possible internal injuries. He was released and returned home Tuesday afternoon.

Speeding led the list of violations with 12 charges filed and 11 warnings given. One person was charged with violation of signs and signals and one warning was issued. Five warnings were issued for operating a vehicle on the wrong side of the road. One person was charged with DWI. NEW SOVIET MILITARY MOVES

Secretary of Defense Schlesinger has now confirmed deployment of three large Soviet MIRVed missiles. These are the SS-19, carrying six warheads per missile, the SS-17, with four warheads each, and the huge SS-18. The latter is said to be deployed so far only in a single warhead model, but this is the same missile that was recently tested in the Pacific with at least seven warheads and with a "slightly better accuracy" than American experts had anticipated. This is the weapons system which now poses the major threat to the U.S. Minuteman land-based missile system. According to Schlesinger, these deployments confirm a "disappointing" drive toward "major counterforce capability" by the Soviet Union.

At the same time, the Secretary of Defense continues to warn that Russia is building a short-range missile base at the Somali port of Berbera, which dominates the entrance to the Red Sea and could support Soviet naval and air operations in the northwest Indian Ocean, near the Persian Gulf. The Soviets and Somalis both denied the report, but Schlesinger has the aerial reconnaissance photographs to prove his statement. (The Russians also denied they were putting missiles in Cuba in 1962.)

Then there is also a report that Soviet Yankee class nuclear missile submarines have moved in about 1,000 miles closer than usual to the U.S. east coast. One has been seen cruising only 350 miles off Cape Cod and another the same distance off Norfolk.

All of this new Soviet military activity should remind us that, whatever the talk about detente, the Soviet Union goes right on improving its capabilities to make war.

What most alarms us about these developments is that so few Americans seem to care. A few headlines in the newspapers, usually accompanied by reassuring commentary that it was all "expected" anyway or that the Pentagon is using "scare tactics" again, and John Q. Public ho-hums and turns his attention elsewhere.

Such complacency is tragic. Even if Russia has no intent to actually use her military power against the United States, her creation of a perceived capability to do so enormously enhances her leverage for blackmail and gives further impetus to the worldwide leftward shift now taking place. In the real world, the political and the military are always closely intertwined. The Soviets are acutely aware of this fact of international life. We only wish more Americans were, too.

REVOLUTION AND THE BICENTENNIAL

As we prepare to celebrate our country's 200th birthday, it is important that we understand just what we have that's worth all the fuss.

America's revolution is so far in the past that many of us tend to forget that we ever had one. But that is what the Bicentennial is all about — a revolution that gave birth to a new form of government so perfectly conceived that today it stands as the oldest constitutional system on earth.

The American Revolution was unique. Unlike many since, it arose out of the legitimate grievances of the people rather than the ideological extremes of a tiny minority. And the unparalleled stability that has followed it is also traceable to the wisely limited goals of American revolutionary leaders.

Irving Kristol, Henry R. Luce Professor of Urban Values at New York University, recently compared the American and French Revolutions in a speech reprinted by American Brands, Inc. Kristol noted that the French Revolution, which has become a "model" for most other revolutions, "promised — as practically all revolutions have promised since — the abolition of poverty. The American Revolution promised no such thing. . . .

"... the leaders of this revolution understood what their contemporary, Adam Smith, understood and what we today have some difficulty understanding," Kristol continues, "namely, that poverty is abolished by economic growth, not by economic redistribution — there is never enough to distribute — and that rebellions, by creating instability and uncertainty, have mischievous consequences for economic growth. Similarly, the French Revolution promised a condition of 'happiness' to its citizens under the new regime, whereas the American Revolution promised merely to permit the individual to engage in the 'pursuit of happiness.'"

More Americans across a wider strata of society have pursued and caught that happiness — and shared in the fruits of a productive country — than anywhere at anytime in the world's history. And for that fact alone, the Bicentennial of the American Revolution is indeed worth celebrating.

The American turkey got its name from being confused with European Guinea fowl which at one time were imported from Turkey.

AUSTIN — The row over medical malpractice insurance has landed in district court here.

Argonaut Insurance Companies, one of the largest carriers of malpractice insurance, filed suit to enjoin the State Insurance Board from freezing rates at the June 3 level.

Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie charged insurance companies appeared to have inflated their rates when a new law required them to file with the Board.

"It's beginning to look like the classic case of weighing the butcher's thumb along with the hamburger," Christie said. He said one company nearly doubled quoted mid-May rates after the legislature ordered filing with the regulatory agency.

A Board order of June 27 put companies on notice that only premium rates in effect June 3 may be charged for renewal of policies for doctors and hospitals unless a 90-day notice of increase is furnished the insured.

Argonaut went to court and got a temporary restraining order effective until a July 10 hearing, blocking the 90-day notice provision.

The provision, Argonaut attorneys claimed, imposed a past duty they could not have anticipated. They also contended that re-issuing policies at pre-May rates even though inadequate would "result in irreparable damage" to companies.

Press Buy Protested
Texas printers are strongly protesting a proposal by Secretary of State Mark White Jr. to explore purchase of a large web-offset printing press to print copies of the proposed new state constitution.

White said press dealers informed him the state could save $150,000 by doing its own printing of the document and the new official "Texas Register."

Printers, backed by an auditor's letter, claim the press purchase would cost the state far more than commercial printing of the constitution and register, and would lead to additional government competition with the printing industry.

Austin State Sen. Lloyd Doggett requested an attorney general's opinion on constitutionality of the purchase. Printers threatened a lawsuit to stop it.

White said no purchase will be made unless bids clearly show money can be saved.

Five and a half million copies of the constitution document must be mailed to voters by October. About 100 editions a year of the Register will be printed, containing official state orders, proposed regulations, notice of hearings and attorney general's opinions.

Jobless Payments Drop
Jobless benefits dropped $1 million — to $22 million — in Texas during June, according to Comptroller Bob Bullock.

But a total of $118.7 million in unemployment benefits have been paid January-June, compared with $79.1 million in all 1974.

AG Opinions

State employees may be compensated for job injuries after July 18, Atty. Gen. John Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

Texas Air Control Board can take photos of pollution control equipment, most of which would be confidential.

The complete financial statement of a municipally-owned radio station is public information and should be disclosed.

A county can finance drainage ditches from its general fund.

A municipal utility district can contract with a private party to haul garbage and levy a charge.

County Commissioners must fill a vacancy in a county school superintendent's office.

A "hot check" submitted for tax payment is public information in absence of any assertion of a privacy interest.

Hearings Slated

Five hearings over the state are examining needs for revision of solid waste disposal regulations.

The first was held in Dallas July 1, the second in Corpus Christi July 8, another in Pasadena July 9. They will wind up in Austin July 18 after a July 11 session in El Paso.

Information gathered at the hearings will be presented to Texas Water Quality Board at an August 22 meeting in Austin.

Short Snorts

Texas Employment Commission office at McKinney, Lorena B. Byrnes of the State Department of Public Welfare and Ron P. Mansolo of the State Commission for the Blind received awards for contributions to employment of the handicapped.

Former Gov. John Connally will be honored at a statewide non-partisan dinner in Houston July 31.

A $1.37 million federal grant has been received to assist economic development of Laredo.

Ten meetings are being conducted July 7-25 to brief local officials on the Texas First program to locate 15,000 new jobs.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reported a 12 per cent reduction in Texas cotton acreage this year.

Eight hundred cities and towns received $28.8 million in city sales tax rebates for the second quarter of 1975.

Two commercial colleges in Austin and Dallas agreed to refund $239,000 in tuition to former students within 90 days.

Bob Krueger Reports

U. S. Representative
21st District

One of the most outrageous and annoying encounters that a citizen may have with the federal government comes when an agency bureaucrat who understands nothing of our business expects us to respond on his terms. Last week, a letter to me brought the frustrations of a businessman who had to deal with such a problem.

A San Antonio car dealer had received a questionnaire to which the Federal Trade Commission demanded his response in 45 days or he would face legal action. He was chosen at random to respond to the questionnaire. He had done nothing wrong, but by sheer chance he was selected to spend great time and expense trying to answer impossible questions.

On the fifteen page questionnaire there were 29 questions, two of which I give below:

(1) "During calendar year 1974, state the approximate number of the instances and number of motor vehicles offered for sale where, after an opportunity to inspect said vehicle, the customers decided not to purchase said vehicle."

"Take away the bureaucratic language and it means the dealer was expected to know how many people walked in, looked at cars, and decided not to purchase them — clearly an impossible and outrageous request."

(2) Another question asks what percentage of customers did not receive satisfactory repair service the first time they brought in their car for repair. If a dealer gives repair service to some 1000 customers a week, this would mean going through more than 50,000 repair orders for the year to try to ascertain what number of people came back for repairs. Even if this were undertaken, accurate figures would be impossible to attain.

Imagine fifteen pages of such questions and one can readily understand the frustration and annoyance the businessman would feel when he recognized the expense required of him to try to gain the information, and the futility of providing accurate documentation, while the federal government would not reimburse any part of his cost. It is almost as though a few people were chosen by lottery to pay double income tax one year. They may have done nothing wrong, but a bureaucrat made the request and threatened court action if they did not respond.

This example, from our district, points out the paramount needs (1) to revise and update our regulatory procedures so that they are sensible, realistic and genuinely protective of our citizens, and (2) to expect that an agency would employ people who have some genuine understanding of the businesses they work with.

I appreciate this businessman's having called this matter to my attention and have written a letter, expecting prompt explanation from the Federal Trade Commission for sending the absurd questionnaire. Perhaps we can still get this questionnaire stopped. Certainly I would appreciate hearing from my constituents who have similar encounters with their government so that I might lend whatever assistance I can.

POWER WALKS
by U.S. Senator for Texas
JOHN TOWER

WASHINGTON—A partisan power play may deprive the citizens of a sovereign state of the right to choose who will represent them in the U.S. Senate.

The Democratic majority in the Senate is practicing the "old politics" in the dispute over who won the election for the U.S. Senate in New Hampshire last year.

The election last November between Republican Louis Wyman and Democrat John Durkin plainly is too close to call, even though the New Hampshire Ballot Law Commission, whose authority has been upheld by the federal courts, has awarded the victory to Republican Wyman by a margin of two votes.

Clearly, the dispute should be sent back to New Hampshire for another election. This is what the people of New Hampshire want. This is what the duly certified winner of the election, Sen. Wyman, has advocated. But the Democratic majority intends to force the Senate to turn its back on pressing national business for the rest of the month to itself to decide the outcome of the Wyman-Durkin race.

The majority is setting a precedent that could haunt the Senate for many years. Never before has the Senate interfered in an election in which there has been no allegation of fraud.

Democrat Durkin has not alleged that the election was stolen from him: he has merely asked the Senate, with its top-heavy Democratic majority, to overturn the judgment of the voters and seat him instead of the duly certified winner.

The actions of the Senate Rules Committee in the Wyman-Durkin dispute raise many questions about the intentions of the majority.

The kindest description of the Rules Committee behavior is that it has not been even-handed. It has frequently made judgments contrary to New Hampshire law. It has ruled one way on some disputed ballots, and the exact opposite way on similar ballots. It has examined virtually all of the ballots protested by one candidate, and hardly any of the ballots protested by the other. The only consistency in the committee's actions is that they have all tended to favor Democrat Durkin.

A flagrant example of the all-too-common partisanship of the Rules Committee was the acceptance of two straight Democratic ballots cast by the same woman. She'd cast the other for her dying sister, she said.

This partisanship has changed the issue from the narrow question of whether Wyman or Durkin will be seated to a matter of grave concern for all Americans. Are we to establish a precedent whereby the loser of a close election, if his party is in a majority in the Senate, will go to the Senate to have the verdict of the voters overturned? I fear for democracy if this is so.

carries a plastic bag in his pocket. Despite the handicap, all persons involved with the livestock industry are fully aware that sample submission is a key part of the screwworm eradication fight. Identification of samples as screwworms, or their look-alike cousins, the common blowfly, is the only way the Screwworm Eradication Program knows how to direct its fight against this parasite of all warm blooded animals.

The cowhand climbing into the saddle knows full well that he must submit samples from any worm infested wound he finds. If he doesn't he may end up treating screwworm infestations in all his animals because counter measures have not been taken.

Ruth McLaughlin, head of the sample identification laboratory for the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Screwworm Eradication Program, receives thousands of samples every year. Most arrive in the test tube within a cardboard mailing tube which is supplied by the Program, administered for USDA by the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

Yet, she has received worm samples rolled up in green leaves, envelopes which also enclose a letter telling when and where the sample was collected, bound in wax paper, strange looking boxes, and even one in a box including the animal tissue the larvae had been consuming.

Cigar chomping Dr. Fagan and soft spoken Dr. Belcher, both veterinarians working for the Texas Animal Health Commission (TAHC), got into a discussion the other day. Subject of their chat was the cowboys' sample collection problem as shown by the fact that most samples submitted from the larger ranches are sent in by foremen.

The two doctors kicked many ideas around in an attempt to discover a practical way for the working cowboy to collect samples. The twin needs:

Of the program to receive samples of all suspected cases; and,

Of the cowboy to carry the lightest, softest, material possible seemed almost incompatible.

Ultimately they agreed that if each cowhand would stuff a small plastic bag in his pocket before saddling up in the morning the problem might be solved.

At noon or evening (when he returns to the cook shack or corral) he can turn each worm sample over to the foreman along with information about the case. The foreman can send the sample and information to the Screwworm Eradication Program,

Tips For Gardeners
From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Light showers last week gave our gardens a refreshed appearance, and left us with a feeling of hope for a good soaking rain soon. I can hardly believe that we arrived in Ozona 20 years ago June 30 to make our home. The Crockett County Hospital was in the planning stage then, and now the new Care Center has just been completed. That July was a very pleasant one with showers most every week. We have never regretted moving to this beautiful little city. Maybe we will have a repeat of that rainy July.

I notice so many homes are displaying hanging baskets that add beauty, and coolness to your summer enjoyment. One of the most colorful baskets I have seen growing is the purple velvet plant. Other appropriate plants are several varieties of wandering jew, ferns, ivy, impatiens, begonias, petunias, hoyas, artillery plant, red and variegated Joseph's Coat, succulents and foliage plants. These baskets are exposed to hot, dry air from all sides, so they do better in partial shade. The best method for thorough watering is to submerge the basket in a tub of water or a slow stream allowing for gradual water penetration. During the hottest dry weather they may need daily watering. To maintain good growth, feed the plants weekly or bi-weekly with a complete liquid or water-soluble fertilizer. Groom the plants by removing dead foliage and faded flowers for them to look their best.

Some of the dependable shrubs and plants that provide flower color during the summer are now blooming. Among them are the hardy hibiscus, the common lantana, lilies, hydrangea, marigolds, hypericum, abelia, nandina, althea, and the beautiful crepe myrtles.

Debra Says
by Debra Price H. D. Agent

Only fresh, firm, not too ripe products should be used for pickling. Cucumbers and green tomatoes should be small or medium sized and freshly gathered. Use a good grade of vinegar, one with 4% to 6% acidity. Strength of vinegar is usually shown on the label on the bottle. If vinegar or brine is too weak, the pickles will spoil or become soft.

Pickling salt should be used for brines. Any pure granulated salt containing less than 1% chemicals added (to prevent caking) is satisfactory.

DILL PICKLES-FRESH KOSHER STYLE
30-36 cucumbers (3-4 inches long)
3 c. vinegar
3 c. water
6 T. salt
fresh or dried dill
garlic
mustard seed

Wash the cucumbers. Make a brine of the vinegar, water and salt. Bring to a boil. Place a generous layer of dill, 1/2 to 1 clove of garlic (sliced) and 1/2 tablespoon of mustard seed in bottom of clean hot jars. Pack the cucumbers into the jars. When the jars are half filled with cucumbers, add another layer of dill and complete the packing of jars. Fill the jars to within 1/2 inch of the top with the boiling brine. Put lids on jars. Process 15 minutes in boiling water bath. Pickles will shrivel some after processing. They will later plump in sealed jar.

People on special sugar-limited diets may enjoy trying pickles made with artificial sweetener.
BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES
15 medium cucumbers
4 large white onions
1 large sweet pepper
1/2 c. salt
2 1/2 c. cider vinegar
5 T. liquid saccharin
1 T. mustard seed
1/2 t. cloves

Slice the cucumbers as thin as possible. Chop onions and pepper and combine with the cucumbers and salt. Let stand three hours and drain.

Combine vinegar, liquid saccharin and spices in a large kettle and bring to a boil. Add drained cucumbers and heat thoroughly, but do not boil.

Pack while hot into clean, hot jars and seal at once. Heat in water bath for five minutes.

This recipe makes seven pints of pickles and a one-third cup serving contains 15 calories.

Foxworth Galbraith Celebrating 75 Year

Just released is a booklet that tells you, among other things, what Mr. Galbraith telegraphed about Mr. Foxworth in 1901.

The booklet is entitled "The 75th Year" and is a condensed history of the Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber Company. Reproductions of interesting old photographs make up about half of the 20 pages of easy-reading text. Copies are available at the local Foxworth-Galbraith Building Materials Center.

Tommy Harris, manager of the local Foxworth-Galbraith Building Materials Center, comments, "very few American businesses reach 75 years of age and the whole story of Foxworth-Galbraith strikes me sort of like a good lesson in the free enterprise system". Mr. Harris points out, "a part of this success story has happened right here in Ozona because our local center is now 35 years old.

Last of the three original founders died in 1960 and the Company is now managed by second and third generation Foxworths and Galbraiths.

"One of the things the booklet points out" says Mr. Harris, "is the importance of the local manager and employees to the successful operation of the Company. From the very start, we have built our business by trying to better serve customers."

Foxworth-Galbraith now operates 51 Building Materials Centers in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. Company headquarters are in Dallas with division offices in Phoenix, Arizona and district offices in Sherman and San Angelo, Texas. Approximately 450 people are employed in the total operation.

"The 75th Year" booklet points out that the Company has always kept abreast of the changing times, and is today modernizing facilities and increasing merchandise selection in each community served. Special values will be featured during the balance of the year to call attention to the upcoming 75th anniversary.

The booklet makes one thing abundantly clear. The folks at Foxworth-Galbraith here and at 50 other places think of themselves as "people helpers since 1901", and they have the history to back it up.

Jennifer Nicholas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Nicholas, will be attending band camp at West Texas State University in Canyon, commencing Sunday, July 13th for two weeks. Jennifer is a member of Ozona High School and Stage Band.

Reddy's helpful tips for your Room Air-Conditioners

- Set air-conditioner to maintain a slightly higher temperature than you might normally; each degree cooler than 78 uses substantially more energy.
- Clean the filter regularly.
- Close draperies, blinds and use shades or awnings on all windows exposed to sun.
- Use appliances that give off heat (ovens, dishwashers, dryers) during cooler times of the day.
- Remember to keep outside doors, windows, and fireplace dampers closed. If you have window units, close the heating vents near the floor, as cool air falls and can escape through vents.

THERE'S MORE TO LIFE THAN A PRETTY BALLOON!

A bouncy red or yellow balloon is the symbol the world over of good fun and happy feelings. There's rarely a festival, a fiesta, or a fair held anywhere without the familiar balloon vendor strolling through the crowd, selling happiness for a few pennies. Parents buy them for their kids and young men present them with a flourish to their girl friends. Just why a balloon is so much fun isn't clear, but one thing is certain -- the pleasure never lasts. The air leaks out, balloons unexpectedly pop, careless fingers send them soaring away forever. But there is a far greater pleasure to be found that will last for an eternity. It is the happy pursuit of a Christian life and you can find out all about it this Sunday -- in church.

Rapid Increase In Screwworm Cases

Screwworm infestations increased rapidly in South Texas during June, while smaller numbers of the live flesh eating parasite moved into areas that hadn't seen an infested wound since 1972. Female screwworm flies deposit their eggs on the edges of wounds in warm blooded animals. As eggs hatch larvae (worms) dig into the wound to feed on live flesh.

Dr. James E. Novy says worms taken from infested wounds in Robertson and Walker counties were the first from those counties in three years. He is director of field operations for the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Screwworm Eradication Program. A total of 271 cases were recorded in Robertson County during 1972, and 13 in Walker County.

The 1,164 confirmed infestations in 67 Texas counties this June compare to 628 the same month of 1974, and only 398 in May. By July 1 Texas had recorded 1,744 laboratory identified infestations, compared to an even 1,500 a year earlier.

The Screwworm Eradication Program, administered for USDA by the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, (APHIS), is based on the sterile male concept. Female screwworm flies mate only once in their lifetime.

Millions of flies are raised in the APHIS insectary. They are sterilized by brief exposure to atomic energy.

Sterile, but sexually active, screwworm flies are released among wild screwworm fly populations. When enough sterile matings occur, eradication is achieved.

Texas counties recording their first 1975 case during June were Bastrop, Bell, Brewster, Burnet, Caldwell, Concho Culberson, Fort Bend, Gonzales, Jackson, Midland, Reagan, Robertson, Sterling, Upton, Walker and Wharton.

June's most extreme population case counts came in two "tiers" of eight South Texas counties which accounted for 72% of the June totals. Some 616 cases of 53% of the total were marked in the State's eight southernmost counties.

The other "tier" is the eight county region including Zavala, Frio, Atascosa, Bee, Live Oak, McMullen, La Salle, and Dimmit counties which is also showing a rapid buildup. It totaled 218 confirmations in June and accounted for 19% of the total.

Novy expresses particular concern over the migration of infestations into Jackson, Wharton, Walker, Robertson and Bell counties. This north-east movement, unless checked, might lead to movement into southeastern states where an over-wintering population could be established.

Thinly, but well scattered, populations of the screwworm fly in the Big Bend and Trans-Pecos areas point to increasing numbers as summer rains improve the habitat for the screwworm fly. When sheep and goat shearing season is underway, increasing infestations are expected in that region.

Livestock and pet owners are urged to submit samples of larvae (worms) from deep in the center of the wound for laboratory identification. Only trained specialists can determine the difference between screwworm larvae and their look-alike cousin, the common blowfly, which feeds on dead flesh.

Pre-addressed, postage paid, sample kits are available from County Agents, veterinarians, and livestock inspectors. Screwworm infestations can be prevented by avoiding man made wounds and by treating all unavoidable wounds (such as navels of newborn animals) with an approved larvicide. Spraying or dipping livestock with Coral or Korlan regularly also protects animals from screwworm infestation.

Fresh Peaches Now In Season

Fresh peaches--a sure sign of summer--are in season now. That means consumers can find highest quality and lowest prices now. Marilyn Haggard, foods and nutrition specialist said this week. She advised selecting peaches that are bright in color, plump, fresh looking, fairly firm and free from bruises.

"Shy away from peaches that are close to overripe, because a small bruised or overripe spot quickly takes over the entire peach," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System, said.

Ripening can be delayed temporarily by refrigerator storage. Peaches can be kept refrigerated for three to five days, depending upon their stage of ripeness.

An easy way to loosen the peeling is to dip the fruit into boiling water for about 45 seconds, then plunge directly into cold water. Peel the peach gently using the dull edge of a knife, she said. 17-tfc

When you're trying to decide what colors to decorate with, you might be helped by considering the qualities that different colors have.

For example, if you want a room to be relaxing and peaceful, you might want to go to blues and greens. On the other hand, if you want to bring more warmth and excitement to a room, you probably would want to turn to colors such as reds, yellows, and oranges.

While you should use colors you like--it's also wise to choose colors that will do the best job for you, and accomplish what you want a room to say--within the limits of your color preferences.

Beside making rooms more relaxing or more exciting, color choices also decorate rooms for you in other ways. For instance, if you want a piece of furniture or accessory to stand out, you should choose it in a color that sharply contrasts with other colors around it. If you want to give a feeling of space and size to a room you should choose pale colors. If you want the opposite effect, choose bold colors which make objects seem to come toward you.

We can offer many decorating suggestions, and actually one of the most helpful of all is an invitation to you to visit us and see our selection of furniture and ideas. Stop in soon.
