How Did It Get There? Postal authorities at Worcester,

Mass., were supprised the other day to discover in the mail matter a elightly soiled linen collar. At first it seemed that some absent-minded person had mistaken a letter box for soiled clothes basket. But an address on one side of the linen with a canceled postage stamp, and a lever written on the other, proved that the linen had been put to use as the conveyor of intelligence. So the collar was back stamped and the missive
