There is a steady market in the cities for milk and milk products. One of the large Dallas dairies maintains a milk-buying station at Denton and there are innumerable small towns in the state which are regularly shipping milk and cream into the markets.

Under present conditions in this country a single cow giving six gallons, testing around five per cent butter fat, will easily yield a return of five dollars a day

Anyone interested in these cattle should communicate with me at the eariest possible date and I will be glad to assist them in getting a start of these. It may be possible to secure financial aid where necessary.
