

Locals' Children Tour Famous Sites In Great Britain

EDITORS NOTE: Mr. and Mrs. Bill Westfall and children Steven and Kathleen, recently returned from a tour in Great Britain. This is one in a series. Mr. and Mrs. Westfall are faculty members at Robstown High School. Mr. and Mrs. Westfall are the children of Mr. and Mrs. A.R. Westfall of Cisco, and Mr. and Mrs.

V.B. (Volney) Ferguson, also of Cisco. Our country tour continued with our next destination being St. Martin's Church in Bladon. Here are buried Sir Winston Spencer-Churchill, his wife Clementine and his daughters, in a quiet churchyard which also hold the graves of Churchill's patrols. We were greatly impressed with the beauty of the church, which was filled with flowers, as well as the condition of the church yard. All the graves, some dating back to the 12th and 13th centuries, were adorned with pansies, violets, daisies and roses. Leaving the site of Churchill's burial we traveled to the site of his birth - Blenheim Palace, near the village of Woodstock. There is quite a story that goes with Blenheim Palace, built as a reward to John Churchill, the Duke of Marlborough, for his stunning victory over the French and Bavarians near the Danube town of Blenheim in Germany in 1704. Since this victory made Queen Anne's England the predominant power in Europe, Queen Anne gave the land the Woodstock Manor and 240,000 (pounds) to build a palace named for Marlborough's victory. This money was the equivalent of at least $2,400,000 today, but the palace could not possibly be rebuilt for ten times that figure today.

Vanbrugh was chosen by Queen Anne to be the architect of Blenheim Palace because of his great success in building Castle Howard in Yorkshire.

Her choice was a good one, for Blenheim Palace stands out as one of the most stunning residences in England. In fact, many tourists say that Blenheim is their favorite of all the castles and palaces they have seen.

Above them flies the Marlborough flag when the present Duke is in residence.

for this palace is a private home as well as a public museum.

Entering the main courtyard, we were amazed that the courtyard and building alone covered seven acres. During the building of Blenheim an army of men brought stone from more than 20 quarries to keep the masons supplied with building materials.

Once inside the great hall, we were awestruck by the fabulous painting by Sir James Thornhill which adorns the ceiling. Also of interest in the great hall is a solid sterling silver wine cooler that is large enough for Kathleen to use as a bathtub. Of course, tourists aren't allowed to get very close to it.

Of great interest to our group of WWII veterans and their families was the Winston Churchill exhibition, with memorabilia of his years as the leader of Great Britain in fighting off Nazi Germany.

Souvenirs of his early life included red locks of his hair in a case of the brass bedstead of the bed in which he was born. It's hard to think of Winston Churchill as ever having had red curls, but he did!

We also saw the uniform young Winston wore in the Boer War and one of the velvet siren suits (jumpsuits) he wore during the Battle of Britain in World War II.

Moving along to the green drawing room, we saw displays of priceless Meissen and Sevres porcelain presented to the fourth Duke by the King of Poland in exchange for a pack of stag hounds. Steven, especially, was amazed by the collection of over 1,000 metal soldiers dating back to the 17th century.

Probably the most impressive places were the Long Library and the Chapel. In the library is a large marble statue of Queen Anne by Rysbrack, as well as many other statues and paintings.

Finally reaching the Chapel, we saw the most outstanding monument at Blenheim. By Rysbrack, it commemorates the first Duke and Duchess of Marlborough and their two sons, who both died before adulthood.

This was the last of the direct Churchill lineage, just as the chapel was the last of our tour of Blenheim.

Bugged, Again!!

The things one learns when one picks up the newspaper. From D.J.'s Compendium of Amazing and Amusing Trivia comes one I'll bet you didn't know. There are more than 5,000 known species of insects in the world today. In fact, a half million more! Multiply each of these half-million-plus insect species by a billion or two individual insects in each species and you'll begin to understand how vast a number we're talking about. But that's not all.

Many entomologists estimate the number of insect species still unclassified at more than 10 million! In fact, of all the animals on earth, better than nine-tenths are insects! And you were griping last summer about a lousey chigger bite!

Though all this trivia-along, of course, with the name of Tom Mix' horse-- is sure to win you a drink at the next office party, I have more on my mind, here, than mere trivia. It's called photography. Or, more precisely, choosing a unique, interesting, and generally remarkable photographic subject. (And, no, I don't mean the office receptionist.)

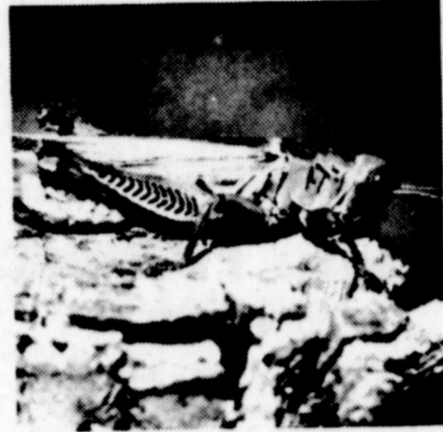

Give up? It's bugs, or course. And, while you can name your poison, you can hardly miss finding a more available, if not willing, subject.

Ahh, but there's a catch. You can hardly grab any camera, snap a photo of a fly, and expect to wind up with a winning shot. More than likely, you'll end up with a scene that is 99 percent distracting and irrelevant background and 1 percent insect. The insect will get "lost" in the scene, and your viewers won't know what the subject is. You can explain it to them, of course; but by that time, they're likely to be snoring comfortably in their easy chairs.

No, the best way to shoot an insect is to use a camera with a magnifying lens of some sort to produce a subject that occupies at least half and maybe more of the frame. That means a camera-- probably a single-lens reflex--fitted with screw-on closeup lenses, a macro lens, or bellows. Any one should be able to help you bag the shot you're after at an expenditure of between 15 and several hundred dollars.

Once your camera has been fitted to take closeup photos, there are a few other things you can do to boost your chances for success.

While most insects are down low, like on the ground, that doesn't mean that's the best place to photograph them. In fact, shooting down on an insect often results in extremely poor, amateurish photos. And the most interesting part of the beast, it's head, will likely be lost.

Instead, try segregating a single subject or two on a stump, tabletop, twig, or anywhere high enough so you can get an eye-to-eye look at it. You can usually accomplish this in one of two ways: by picking up the insect and transporting it to a suitable photographic location; or by "baiting" a suitable spot with honey, sugar, or food scraps to lure the insect into place. The latter method has the added advantage of holding the insect's attention while you maneuver for the best shot.

Since close-focusing techniques produce very shallow depth-of-field (that area of sharpness before and beyond the focused-upon subject), it takes very little movement on the part of the insect or the camera to throw the subject out of focus. You'll have better results overall if you mount your camera on a tripod. Then, keep turning the focusing ring back and forth until the subject is in critically sharp focus.

To "freeze" unexpected subject movement, use a fast film (ASA 200 or faster) and a fast shutter speed (1/250 second or better).

To eliminate distracting background, position the camera so there's little or no clutter behind the subject. Then wait for just the right moment, and fire away!

ALCOHOL + DRIVING = DISASTER

While observing the speed limits this Labor Day, be aware of your drinking limits. It takes less to get you intoxicated than you may think. Don't let the summer end in tragedy. We want you to have a safe and enjoyable holiday. If you drink, don't drive.

GEORGETOWN--
SEPTEMBER 30 is the last day to apply for Crop Insurance for BARLEY, OATS AND WHEAT in EASTLAND County, TEXAS, according to ARDELL KALMBACH, District Director for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC).

Crop Insurance covers unavoidable loss of production resulting from adverse weather conditions, wildlife, earthquake, or fire.

"Three coverage levels (50, 65, or 75 percent) are available for insurance protection. Additionally, FCIC offers three optional price elections for valuing production lost or damaged," says KALMBACH.

"To assist producers, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation will cost-share up to 30 percent of the cost of carrying insurance. For more information about the program, producers should contact an authorized Crop Insurance agent," says KALMBACH.

To select an agent, producers should check the list of agents available at their county ASCS office. Applications should be made no later than SEPTEMBER 30.

WORD of GOD

Jesus heals a deaf man:

And they bring unto him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech; and they beseech him to put his hand upon him.

And he took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spit, and touched his tongue;

And looking up to heaven, he sighed, and saith unto him, Eph'ra-tha, that is, Be opened.

And straightway his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spake plain.

Eastland County Health To Be September 6

Would you like to know your blood sugar level, determine your risk of getting cancer, learn if you have high blood pressure, or receive a personal height and weight analysis?

Eastland and surrounding county residents will be able to do everything from having their eyes checked for glaucoma to knowing their stress level Thursday, September 6 at the Eastland County Health Fair at the Cisco Senior Citizen Center, 400 Conrad Hilton Avenue in Cisco. The Health Fair will be open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

The Health Fair is being sponsored by the family living committee of the Eastland County Agricultural Extension Service and the Cisco-Eastland AARP Chapters.

During the Health Fair, various medical personnel including registered nurses, physical therapists, registered dietitians, pharmacist, and other representatives from health care organizations - will be giving free health screenings, demonstrations, and information.

A variety of health screenings will be done by the Texas Department of Health including blood pressure, anemia, glucose, skin cancer, and colorectal cancer kits will be distributed. Results of the glucose test, for example, will be evaluated by a nurse to see if the individual may have a tendency toward diabetes or hypoglycemia.

Registered dietitians from Hendrick Medical Center will provide nutrition and special diet information. Special diets might include diabetic, low sodium diets along with food allergies. Free individual consultations with the dietitians will be offered.

Also of interest to parents of young children, will be a "Poison Can Be Pretty" booth sponsored by the Cisco Garden Club. The exhibit will show common house and yard plants that can be poisonous to children and pets who might be tempted to taste them.

The Ranger General Hospital under the direction of Mike C de Baca, hospital pharmacist, will display generic drug information. Use of generic drugs is an effective way to lower a person's drug bill.

The Social Security Administration will have an exhibit with Faye Grant, Abilene representative, available to answer questions on Medicare, Medicaid, and other government programs.

Patterson's Ambulance Service will supply an ambulance so that people can see inside and learn about the emergency care equipment available in the time of need.

Dr. Charles M. Stewart, local optometrist, will provide free glaucoma eye tests.

An exhibit sponsored by the Eastland County Extension Service will feature a computerized nutrition evaluation test. Personal nutrition diet information is programmed into the computer to determine if individuals are eating a balanced nutrition diet each day.

Head lice are an annoying problem for our school age children. Pfizer drug company from Dallas will be sponsoring a booth on head lice and effective ways to eliminate lice.

The Texas Department of Public Safety is featuring a booth on infant car safety. Sgt. Wendell Rehm, will be available to exhibit approved infant car restraint seats and answer parents questions about infant safety in the car and the new law that goes into effect on October 30

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF CISCO ESTABLISHING A WATER REGULATORY POLICY AND PLAN FOR VOLUNTARY WATER CONSERVATION AND MANDATORY WATER RESTRICTIONS: PROVIDING A SEVERABILITY CLAUSE: ESTABLISHING A PENALTY: AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

WHEREAS, the water level of Lake Cisco, the City of Cisco's only municipal water source, has continued to go down since October, 1981 to its lowest point in twenty-five years; and,

WHEREAS, the City Council believes that because of the current condition of Lake Cisco regulatory action is required to conserve the City's remaining water supply; now, therefore,

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CISCO, TEXAS:

PART I: Declaration of Policy.

It is hereby declared that, because of the conditions prevailing in the City of Cisco and with Lake Cisco, the general welfare requires that the water resources available to the City be put to the maximum beneficial use to the extent to which they are capable, and that the waste or unreasonable use, or unreasonable method of use of water be prevented, and the conservation of such water is to be extended with a view to the reasonable and beneficial use thereof in the interests of the people of the City of Cisco and for the public welfare.

PART II: Purpose and Objectives.

This ordinance hereby establishes a water conservation plan with following

objectives:

1. Decrease the magnitude of seasonal peaks by reducing peak demand.

2. Eliminate the waste of water.

3. Decrease the daily consumption to levels consistent with available raw water supplies during drought or other critical periods.

4. Ensure adequate fire flows throughout the system during drought or other critical periods.

5. Provide all customers with the opportunity to voluntarily reduce their demand.

6. Implement the plan fairly, equitable and in a manner that preserves, to the greatest extent possible, the precious commodity of water for the citizens of the City of Cisco.

PART III: Authorization.

The Mayor, or his designates, upon the recommendation of the City Manager and the City Engineers, is hereby authorized and directed to implement the applicable provisions of this ordinance upon the determination that such implementation is necessary to protect the public welfare and safety. The Mayor, or his designate, shall put each or any water conservation stage into effect by publication of notice. Such implementation shall be effective immediately upon publication.

PART IV: Application.

The provisions of this ordinance shall apply to all persons, companies, customers and property served by the City of Cisco Water Utility System, wherever situated.

PART V: Water Conservation Stages.

No customer of the City of Cisco Water Utility System shall make, cause, use, or permit the use of water from the City for residential, commercial, industrial, agricultural, governmental or any other purpose in a manner contrary to any provision of this ordinance, or in an amount or method in excess of that use permitted by the conservation stage in effect pursuant to action taken by the Mayor or his designate in accordance with the provisions of this ordinance.

1. Stage 1: Voluntary Compliance.

Upon implementation by the Mayor and publication of notice the following restriction shall apply to all persons:

a. Customers of the water utility system are requested to voluntarily limit the amount of water used to that amount absolutely necessary for health, business, and irrigation, and to make every effort to prevent the waste of water.

b. Watering or irrigation utilizing individual sprinkler systems of lawns, gardens, landscaped areas, trees, shrubs, or other plants is prohibited except on two (2) days per week, with said days to be designated by the Mayor, and only during the hours of 1:00 a.m. to 12 noon.

c. Washing of automobiles, trucks, trailers, boats, airplanes, and other vehicular or mobile equipment is prohibited except on the above indicated water and irrigation days between the hours of 6:00 a.m. and 12 noon and 9:00 p.m. to 12 midnight. #### PART VI: Mandatory Conservation Stage Implementation.

The City of Cisco shall monitor the projected supply and demand for water by its customers on a regular basis during critical periods, and shall recommend to the Mayor the extent of the conservation required through the implementation and/or termination of particular conservation stages in order for the City to prudently plan for and supply water to its customers. Thereafter, the Mayor may order that the appropriate phase of water conservation be implemented or terminated in accordance with the applicable provisions of this ordinance. Said order shall be made by public announcement and shall be published a minimum of one (1) time in a newspaper of general circulation until such time as all restrictions are removed and shall become effective immediately upon such publications.

PART VII: Severability.

Senior Citizens Nutrition Menu

We want to make sure that everyone knows the Senior Center will be closed September 3, Monday. The day is Labor Day and we want everyone to have an opportunity to be with their families.

Last week we started a series of questions concerning iron in our nutrition discussion.

The question this week is: Can the absorption of food iron be affected by other foods eaten at the same meal?

The answer is yes. The total amount of iron available in a meal depends not only on the amount and type of iron, but also on the other food which is consumed. Two things especially enhance the absorption of non-heme iron: Ascorbic acid (vitamin c), and certain sulfur-containing amino acids that occur in meat, poultry and fish. On the other hand, some substances, such as antacids and the tannic acid in tea, the phytic acid and oxalic acid in plant fibers, bind iron into an insoluble complex that cannot be digested. Thus, large supplements of dietary fiber can be detrimental to iron absorption.

Next week we will discuss what is iron deficiency. Please give a lot of thought about coming to the senior center this coming week. Be sure and get a well-balanced diet at least three times a week by coming to the center.

The programs for the past week included: Rosey Marshall, Dick Lindley and Rea Hunt who presented several musical numbers: Wednesday was fun day and the Senior Citizens Band performed. The Speegle family also presented a musical program. Birthdays and anniversaries for the month were recognized.

The menus for the coming week will include:

Monday-- Senior Center closed for Labor Day.

Wednesday-- ham, lima beans, stewed tomatoes, and okra, cornbread, butter and drink, and fruit.

Friday-- oven fried fish, broccoli-rice cheese casserole, corn o'brien, fruit cocktail, bread, butter and drink.

City Council Accepts Three Ordinances

A SPORTS Writer and photographer from The Dallas New was in town one day last week. His mission was to make pictures and check up on a freshman football recruit at Cisco Junior College - Wayne Hutchinson.

Wayne was a standout defensive back in two all-star games - the annual coaches convention game at Houston and the Oil Bowl game at Wichita Falls recently. He hails from Knox City. The writer wanted to know "how all the colleges overlooked Wayne?" This Sunday's Dallas News is expected to have an article about him.

Coach Bob Keyes of the Wranglers is excited about prospects for the coming season. His Wranglers are starting off with three games in a week. They open Sept. 6 at Goodwell, Okla., return home to play McMurry JV Monday night, Sept. 10, and then go to Stephenville to take on the Tarleton State JV on Thursday, Sept. 13.

FOOTBALL COACH John Parchman of Cisco High School will speak at the Cisco Lions Club luncheon at noon Wednesday, reports Program Chairman Rick Whitley. Mr. Parchman has a brand new shotgun - one of those over and under jobs - and his hunting buddies have been unsuccessful in efforts to see him in action. (It's probably a secret weapon of some sort and he's not ready to show it off.)

Whatley and Lawyer Billy Wright, who hunt with the coach, invited Mr. Parchman to target practice without results.

The new dove season opens Saturday, Sept. 1, and the three men are scheduled for a hunting trip. We'll be alert for a report on the outing.

YOU PROBABLY saw newspaper and television reports about President Reagan's orders to NASA to include a school teacher in a forthcoming space mission.

Cisco High's Rick Whitley, DE teacher, has been nominated by two of his buddies, Jim Puryear and Jim Yowell, according to our scouts. Understand they have petitions for folks to sign in the effort to obtain the honor for Rick. If you'd like to sign a petition, see one of the two Whatley supporters. Rick should be able to fill the position.

Big Country Real Estate Update

THE EATING business at the public school cafeteria is better than ever this year, reports Mrs. Shirley Darr, lunchroom supervisor. We've heard good reports on the quality of food they serve... Mrs. Darr also reports that the 1984 swimming season, which ends after Labor Day, has been unusually good. Guess it was due to the hot and dry weather... Mrs. Emma Lee Donovan, who suffered an ankle fracture in a recent accident at their ranch, is home and doing nicely, our

obituaries . . . .

Avery Holt, of Cisco, died Friday at 5 a.m. in the E.L. Graham Memorial Hospital. Funeral services are pending at Cisco Funeral Home.

scouts report. Her cast was changed recently and the healing process was considered satisfactory.

THE CONRAD Hilton Memorial Park and Community Center Corporation, which is in the process of organization to replace a Chamber of Commerce steering committee, is moving along nicely, we're told. The Cisco Historical Society has nominated Mrs. JoAnn Cermin and Mrs. Barbara Pope to be members of the corporate board, and the Chamber of Commerce has named Dick Woolley and Bobby Smith as their board representatives.

The City of Cisco's representatives will be Mayor Eris Ritchie and Brad Kimbrough. The six members will select a seventh member.

Initially, the corporation will file application with IRS as a non-profit corporation. After this is received, the hotel property is scheduled to be deeded to the local corporation and the Hilton Foundation grant of 1.2 million dollars will be paid. And, of course, the architects will get the "go ahead."

Watch for announcements.

THINGS ARE sort of on needles and pins out at the Delbert Schaefer home, we hear. An oil company is getting set to drill on the Schaefer farm south of town... Mike Woolley, son of the Dick Woolleys, departed Wednesday for his junior year at Angelo State University at San Angelo.

A Meals on Wheels program operated by the Church of Christ serves food on Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays to some 20 local shut-in folks. The church group picks up and pay for the food at the Senior Citizen's Center and delivers same... Hear that the CJC Band and Belles trip to New York City at Thanksgiving time has only about 25 seats left. Better check into the trip if you want to go.

VISITORS IN Cisco last weekend included Mrs. Maurine (Mancil) Royal of Dallas and Mrs. Paul (Ruth) Woods of Midland... The Winston Heidenheimers observed their 30th wedding anniversary last Wednesday... Mr. Owen King, who lives with his wife Margaret in the nice house adjacent to the airport, decided Wednesday to remove the big assortment of things from a small storage building out back. He was putting in a couple of windows and some shelving.

Night came before he finished. It wasn't going to rain, he figured, so he left everything where it was until he could finish the inside work. He was startled at 6 a.m. Thursday when lightning flashed and thunder rolled and the rains came. Owen hastened into shoes and clothes and dashed out. He moved several bags of expensive fertilizer inside before the rains really started coming down. All of the other stuff, including a dozen cans and jars of nails and screws and bolts, were water logged. And the King rain gauge registered seven tenths of an inch... What is more, the rain shower was general over town, dropping from two to seven tenths of badly needed moisture. And the temperature didn't get out of the 80's all day, maybe some other folks oughta unload their store rooms and leave things out overnight.

Make the Connection

Three ordinances were accepted by the Cisco City Council at Tuesday night's regular meeting in City Hall and discussions were held on several other topics. All council members, as well as the mayor, were present for the meeting.

One of the main ordinances to be accepted establishes a water regulatory policy and plan for voluntary water conservation and mandatory water restrictions. Since the ordinance also declares an emergency, it will go into effect as soon as it is published in the newspaper. The ordinance appears in this issue and is effective Monday, September 3.

Voluntary conservation of water is encouraged and City Manager Mike Moore said from all indications, Cisco will probably have to go into mandatory conservation no later than the first of next year.

A separate story on the conservation ordinance, and a copy of the ordinance itself, may be found elsewhere in this edition.

Council member Bobby Ingram suggested the council form a committee to consider alternate water sources for the city of Cisco. It was agreed upon by the council to add the item to the agenda for the next meeting.

Discussed by the council was amendment to the city's utility ordinance establishing water service conservation rates. There was no action taken on the amendment and the discussion was tabled until such time as it might be needed.

The council approved an ordinance establishing the tax levy for the 1984-85 budget year. The tax rate will be left the same as it was last year at 52 cents on each and every $100 valuation of 100 per cent of the assessed market value of the property.

The other ordinance accepted limits the on-street parking along East 6th Street to parallel parking only. City Manager Moore said the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation said parallel parking would make the intersection of 6th Street and Conrad Hilton a safer intersection.

The ordinance will affect the parking along East 6th Street from Conrad Hilton to the railroad tracks which cross U.S. Highway 183, east of State Highway 6.

The council also approved change orders to the water improvements project in the amount of $6,994.00 and they tabled the awarding of bids for an oil and gas lease, since no bids were received by the city.

City Manager Moore said he feels City should not advertise the property again, but if someone is interested they might contact the City.

A discussion was held concerning the financial plan and development of a proposed new wastewater treatment facility. City Manager Moore informed the council that the city's hopes of receiving community development funding for the project has virtually vanished. He said both applications made by the city for funding have been pushed back down the list far enough that he doubts the city has any hope.

He said now the city needs to start looking at doing the project on its own and develop a financing plan. He also recommended the council hold out as long as possible on committing itself to the actual construction, in order to allow the city manager and Mayor Eris Ritchie time to go to Austin and meet with someone there to discuss the situation.

The council passed a motion to postpone any action until the city manager, mayor and others have time to pursue other fund resources.

Lake lot leases will be dealt with in the future as the south side leases have been in the past according to a motion by the city council. In the past, the north shore and the south shore leases were different, but from now on all leases will be the same. The price of the leases will be determined upon the renewal of the lease.

Council members said they felt sure this council, and future councils, would not allow the leases to jump a very considerable amount each time it is renewed. However, they feel the city should have the right to determine the cost of the each lease.

Mayor Ritchie and council member Brad Kimbrough were selected by the council to serve as members of the Conrad N. Hilton Memorial Park and Community Center Board of Trustees. They will be representing the City of Cisco on the board.

Others who will also be serving on the board will be Dick Woolley, Bobby Smith, Joann Cermin, and Barbara Pope. Woolley and Smith will represent the Chamber of Commerce while Cermin and Pope represent the Cisco Historical Society.

Council member Kimbrough said he would like a letter to be prepared and sent to the Public Utilities Commission asking why Cisco cannot get specialized telephone services (call waiting, call transfer, etc.).

City Manager Moore said the Commission only controls rates charged for services. He said he had contacted two representatives of Southwestern Bell Telephone and was told that no equipment has been installed to handle such services between Fort Worth and Abilene. He said if the council would like, he would ask one of the representatives to attend a future council meeting.

Also discussed by the council was the fact that the city water tower will be cleaned and re-coated on the inside as a part of the water system improvements. City Manager Moore said if the funds are available, the city might also paint the exterior of the tower. He also said improved lighting is to be installed.

Mayor Ritchie said representatives of the Chamber of Commerce had asked about the painting of the tower and offered to help solicit funds for that purpose. He said the council might ask the Chamber for help in the fund raising efforts, if needed.

In the city manager's report, Mr. Moore informed the council that the boat ramp extension at Lake Cisco is finished and he emphasized the project did not cost the city anything, since the funds came from the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife.

He also said the water treatment improvements project is 95 percent complete. He said there were some sections of flow line near college hill which were badly deteriorated and have to be replaced.

The city's seal coating project is coming along nicely, according to Mr. Moore, and the area around the football field will be finished before the high school's first home football game, September 7. The contractor for the West 17th Street project has also started work on that street this week.

The financial report for July was accepted by the council, as were minutes of previous meetings.

Letters To The Editor

During 1983, The National Association of Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni (NACCCA) celebrated the 50th Anniversary of the establishment of the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC). The NACCCA is trying to locate about two million former members and persons who were connected or affiliated with the CCC during the 1930's and 1940's. It is a known fact that many of these persons reside in Texas and areas served by the "Telegram".

I am sure that many of your readers have often wondered what became of the CCC. You can tell them the CCC lives again in the NACCCA. It is a young and growing organization with 108 Capters throughout the nation, and more are in planning and development stages. One of its major objectives is to have the CCC reactivated.

A commemorative postage stamp honoring the CCC 50th Anniversary has been available for purchase for the past year.

Anyone interested in the organization can write to NACCCA, Loel & Manning Plaza, 7245 Arlington Blvd, Suite 318, Falls Church, Virginia, 22042, for more information and literature.

The Supreme Court's Workload

By Howard A. Specter
President
Association of Trial Lawyers of America

Chief Justice Burger has expressed concern for many years that the workload of the Supreme Court is too heavy. Recently other members of the Court have echoed his concerns. The crux of the problem is said to be that the Justices do not have sufficient time for studied, deliberative decision making. The Chief Justice recently pointed out that in 1953 the Court had only 1,463 docketed cases and issued only 65 signed Court opinions; in contrast to 5,311 docketed cases and 141 signed Court opinions during the term that ended last July. In other words, the Court has to handle 3½ times as many cases as it did 30 years ago.

But, this increase in Supreme Court cases is a sign of a healthy nation of laws in which the citizenry has, pursues, and defends cherished rights. It is not something to complain about. Even so, if the Court does need relief, it should be forthcoming.

But any relief should be provided without any adverse impact on litigants, without undermining the Court's traditional role and without creating unnecessary restrictions. Unfortunately, some of the proposed suggestions are inconsistent with these goals. One suggestion involves creating a new court to decide which cases the Supreme Court should hear. Such a court would give the Supreme Court more time to deliberate and decide substantive issues. However, the power to screen is the power to decide. Cases which are screened out in effect are decided without any decision by the Supreme Court. The Court now has discretion to decide which cases it will hear in certain areas. So long as the Supreme Court is to have discretionary jurisdiction, it, and only it, should determine which cases to hear.

The Chief Justice has suggested the creation of a temporary intermediate court of appeals. But the addition of another court to hear a second appeal prior to possible final appellate review by the Supreme Court is certain to delay the appeal process further. Whatever steps are taken to alleviate the Court's burden, they should be taken only after careful consideration with regard to providing relief without sacrificing rights.

Coronary Bypass Surgery

"Bypass" surgery has become a common procedure for restoring health and vigor to persons suffering from narrowing of the coronary arteries by fatty deposits. More than 160,000 Americans this year will undergo the operation, which involves using veins from another part of the body to bypass obstructed sections of the heart's arteries (see illustration). The blood supply thus is restored to areas of heart muscle where it had been reduced by the obstructions.

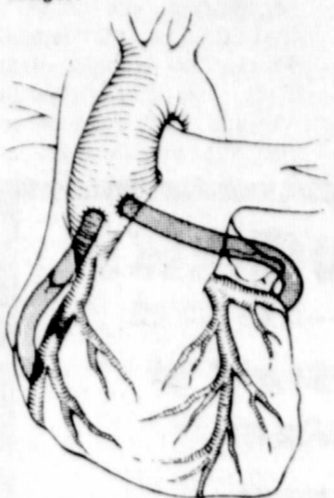

If you must undergo this open heart surgery, you and your family should have sufficient information to relieve everyone's anxiety. Discuss your concerns with your doctor.

Admission to the hospital is usually scheduled for two or three days before your operation to allow time for certain tests. During this time, you will become acquainted with the team of surgeons, cardiologists, anesthesiologists, nurses and therapists that will provide your care during and after the operation.

Nervousness or anxiety before surgery is a normal reaction just as athletes often are nervous before important games. Understanding the need for the operation, meeting members of the professional team and asking them questions should help calm you.

On the day before surgery, much of your body hair will be shaved and areas of the incisions will be scrubbed with antiseptic surgical soap. On the day of the operation, you will receive medication to produce drowsiness. Attendants will move you to the operating room on a rolling bed. After you are given an anesthetic that brings sleep and freedom from pain, the operation will be performed. Generally it takes from three to six hours, but it may be longer.

After the operation, you probably will stay in the hospital for one to two weeks. As your recovery progresses, you will appreciate the effects of the surgery. Increased blood flow to the heart muscle should mean less of the chest pain called "angina." You may find you need much less medication, if any, and that you are better able to sustain physical activity. In addition to making you feel better, there is a chance the operation may prolong your life, particularly if you help your heart by keeping high blood pressure under control and your weight down, eating food low in salt, saturated fats and cholesterol, and not smoking cigarettes.

Southwestern Bell Launches Tele-Help

Tele-Help, an information program designed to increase customer understanding of recent changes in telephone service, has been launched by Southwestern Bell Telephone throughout Texas.

"Since the break-up of the Bell System last January 1, many of our customers are still not sure how all the changes affect them," said Jim Adams, Texas Division president. "The Tele-Help program is aimed at providing answers to some of the most common questions our customers are asking."

An informative campaign featuring free brochures on various aspects of telephone service will be used to help clear up customer confusion. Adams said research shows that only about 17 percent of the company's 8.5 million customers in its five-state territory fully understand the changes brought on by the split.

"Despite the confusion, the level of customer service in Texas has remained high," he said. "I think our employees deserve a lot of credit for the fact that service didn't suffer."

However, even with continued high service levels, customers are unsure of the impact of the changes in telecommunications.

An analysis of customer questions shows that the problem of a single customer is actually shared by many. "By identifying these most common questions, we hope to continue our education program on a broad scale," Adams said.

Initially, six brochures containing information on the most common problems raised by customers will be distributed without charge as part of the Tele-Help program. The topics include: how to select a long-distance company; what to look for when buying a phone; phone repair; saving money on phone service; the phone bill; and long distance service. The brochures also provide an overview of the major changes prompted by divestiture.

To get any or all of the free brochures, Texas customers may call a special toll-free number, 1-800-2686, extension 82. Coupons for the brochures will also be made available through inserts with customer bills.

Additional brochures will be produced later in the year.

A promotional campaign will be conducted throughout the state to acquaint customers with the assistance program.

A Greek philosopher asked his attendant to provide the best dish for his guests, and he served out iniquities. "They search out iniquities," he explained, "The tongue is the best dish. With it we may bring happiness, dispel sorrow, remove despair, and inspire."

A few days later he was asked to provide the worst dish, and he prepared tongue. "This is the worst dish," he reasoned. "With the tongue we may break hearts, destroy reputations, and promote discord and war."

He was a wise man, and so was the writer of the 64th Psalm. In it he gave a vivid description of the tongue being used in the best and divestiture, Adams said. "We knew early on that our customers would need information on the new operations and tried our best last year to provide it. The Tele-Help program is a continuation of that effort to help minimize confusion and keep customer service at high levels."

Tele-Help is not Southwestern Bell's first effort to alleviate customer concern connected to

Public Utility Commission of Texas Consumer Update

Part of the Public Utility Commission's final order in the recent Southwestern Bell Telephone Company rate case requires the state's largest telephone utility to expand availability of a low-cost alternative service to many of its residential customers.

The economy rate (also known as Measured Residential Service) provides residential customers 25 outgoing local calls a month at a rate which is approximately one-half the cost of flat rate private line service. Economy rates range from $4.10 to $5.55 a month, depending on the exchange rate group of the customer. Additional outgoing local calls are billed at 8 cents each, and there is no charge for incoming calls. There also is a one-time $15 charge for customers to switch to economy rate service.

Southwestern Bell only offers the economy rate in areas which have electronic switching capabilities. Okay, so you're a Southwestern Bell residential customer and you want to have the most economical service that will meet your calling needs. Is the economy rate for you? Currently, all but a few thousand of Southwestern Bell's 5 million-plus residential customers pay a monthly flat rate which allows them unlimited local calling. However, there are some Bell customers who are opting for the economy rate because it enables them to control their individual costs.

The main factor in determining whether the economy rate or the flat rate would be more economical for you is usage. If you only make a few local calls each month, the economy rate could save you some money. But, if you make a lot of local calls each month, the flat rate could actually be more economical.

If you think the economy rate may be for you, contact your local Southwestern Bell business office. The business office can supply availability and pricing information, and can help monitor your usage patterns to see what type of service can best meet your calling needs.

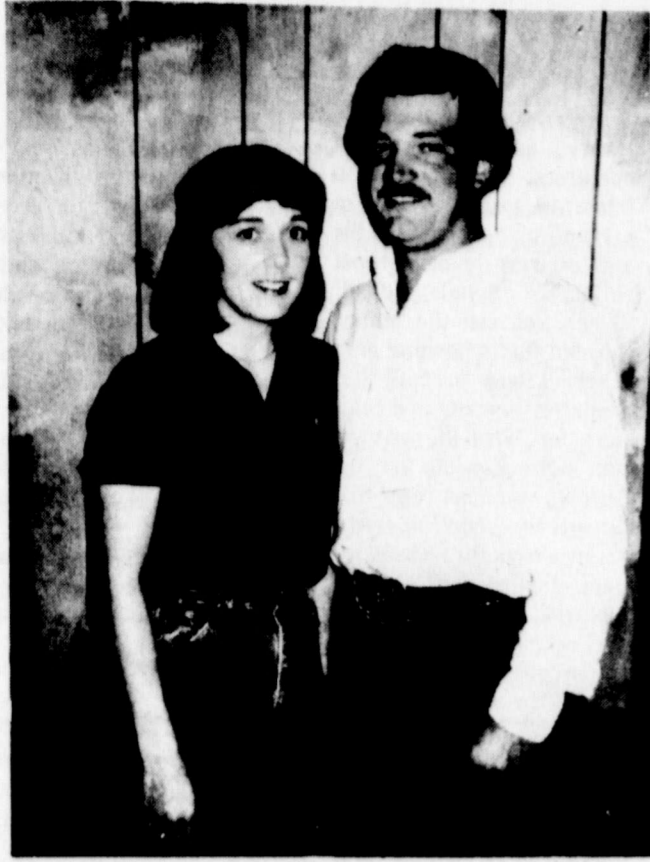

Consumer Update is prepared and distributed by the Consumer Affairs Office of the Public Utility Commission of Texas. Our address is 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 450N, Austin, Texas 78757.

Le Bon Vivant BY FILIPPO MILONE

Champagne

As reported in Champagne, shipments of Champagne to the United States in 1983 set records. Some 9.7 million bottles of the bubbly beverage left France for America last year, an increase of 37 percent over 1982, and an even greater increase over the average of the five previous years.

Americans are not the only people drinking more Champagne, however. According to the Champagne News and Information Bureau, total exports of Champagne were up a hefty 13.8% last year over 1982. The relatively tiny Champagne region of France, some 90 miles east of Paris, produced over 159 million bottles of their namesake beverage in the year 1982. Of these, nearly 110 million bottles went to markets close to home, right there in France.

All this adds up to good news for the consumer. Healthy reserve stocks of Champagne, coupled with the continued strength of the dollar versus the franc, should mean that in 1984 there will be plenty of genuine French Champagne available at stable prices. The Champagne News and Information Bureau's report is good news to all who plan a festive celebration during this year, for Champagne is indeed the most festive drink available.

Editor's Note: Filippo Milone, owner of the world-renowned restaurant, The Pillars, (which is located in Mobile, Alabama) has just completed his book, Cooking with Filippo. Cooking with Filippo is the culmination of over two years' work, and contains nearly 250 recipes from Milone's extensive repertoire.

Milone explains that the book includes a variety of recipes from a variety of cuisines. "A great many of the recipes in the book come from the mediterranean area where I grew up—southern Italy and the island of Sicily. They are, however, influenced by my training in France and by the years I have spent here on the gulf coast."

The book does contain some of the dishes made popular at the Pillars. ## Where Do All Those Coupons Go?

By Peter M. Feldman
(Ed. Note: This timely article is reprinted from Southwestern Bell's publication UPDATE).

To a supermarket manager, 5 pounds of manufacturers' coupons means customers moving through the doors, products moving off the shelves and cash in the till.

To J. Jay Bristol, vice president of Nielsen Clearing House of El Paso, Tex., and A.C. Nielsen Company de Mexico, S.A., that double handful of coupons means business. Big business at anywhere from $200 to $500 per pound!

It is through the Nielsen Clearing House operation on both sides of the Rio Grande that some 150 million coupons move every month. At an average face value of 35 cents, plus another 8 cents' handling charge, those face values total well over several hundred million dollars a year. That face value has grown from a year ago when 31 cents and 7 cents' handling were the norm.

Although these values are stated in dollars, Bristol is quick to note that his operation handles little in the way of hard cash.

"We remit to the Safeways and others by check or bank wire for the most part. Some cash remittances to consumers are made on behalf of companies such as Mountain Bell, which uses the operation for coin telephone refunds, and for many manufacturers who offer rebates—even up to $50 on which the consumer will receive a check or bank draft," Bristol said.

To the consuming public, this is perhaps the least-known division of the Nielsen company, whose name is a household word as far as TV ratings is concerned.

Nielsen Clearing House is ranked, by far, as the largest of the coupon redeemers; several other large national concerns and a multitude of regional and local redeemers handle an estimated seven billion coupons a year. Some manufacturers' operations are large enough to enable them to maintain their own redemption operations.

"This is but a mere fraction of the estimated 140 billion coupons distributed annually," Bristol said. "Actually, manufacturers are probably quite content that redemption is at its present level."

"They must figure into their costs and profits projections the current rate of redemption. Too much redemption and they could lose a bundle. Coupons are considered a form of advertising and a way of getting consumers to try new products or help reduce inventories of existing stock."

That couponing works, Bristol said, is easy to prove. He cited the Tylenol incident in which all of the product was yanked from retailers' shelves following several poisonings.

"The product was repackaged and heavily promoted, especially with coupons. It has since been able to regain a significant market share, where at one point the doomsayers were saying the product would never be able to come back," he said.

Nielsen also handled the Rely tampon recall campaign, in which consumers returned the product to the clearing house and were issued refunds, following the wave of toxic shock syndrome cases.

"We were able to help the manufacturers keep their positive images with the public despite the adverse publicity," he added.

Couponing is divided into several major categories, such as rebates and refunds and bouncebacks (in which the consumer is sent a coupon good on a subsequent purchase).

Nielsen's is a typical operation in an industrial age in which hundreds of thousands of coupon offers prevail.

Curiously, Bristol added, there is yet to be a standard for coupons like the standard for bank checks. Thus, the typical clearing house operation is a labor intensive business, much the way bank clearing houses and brokerage "back room" once operated.

Automation, i.e. the computer, has made stock exchange operations much easier, and virtually all bank clearing houses use machines to read the data on checks. Although automation has yet to make much of a dent in coupon redemption, at least in the sorting stages, Nielsen offers payment analysis and coupon statistical summaries that are generated by computers.

The Nielsen operations in Mexico employ some 4,500 people, mainly in Juarez, Chihuahua and Nuevo Laredo, where the firm takes advantage of the "twin plant" operation available on both sides of the border.

The coupon redemption process is very similar to the process by which a bank check is cleared.

Coupons are, in fact, considered as cash by retailers and manufacturers alike, and scrupulous care is taken throughout the redemption process to assure accountability and security, Bristol said.

Coupons are not usually counted or sorted at the retailer level, but the retailer has a sharp grasp of the face value moving through his cash register. Coupons are usually shipped to the clearing house in boxes weighing 30 to 50 pounds. A retailer, such as the Safeway division in Denver, will ship some 2,000 pounds or so per week.

These are received in El Paso, weighed and issued a job number which will be associated with all of the coupons in the shipment throughout their handling.

After the weighing in process, the boxes are shipped in Nielsen trucks to the counting and sorting centers south of the border. In another 25 to 30 days, the final tallies will be readied and Safeway will be paid. Nielsen will bill the issuers if, in fact, Nielsen is their clearing agent for the appropriate amounts.

The clearing house receives a small fraction of the handling charge for its work.

The majority of the coupons will be destroyed or turned into mulch. Some coupons, depending on the issuers, will be returned for analysis. Some coupons will be shipped to other clearing houses who are authorized by the manufacturers to clear these particular coupons or to the issuer who will then settle with the retailer.

The labor intensiveness of coupon clearing makes the border areas of the U.S. and Mexico ideal (under the twin plant concept, see Twin Plants of El Paso, Update magazine, Summer 1983). Nielsen also operates in Haiti, where labor is less expensive, and has operations in other countries as well, where couponing is yet to catch on as well as it has in the U.S. and Canada, Bristol said.

Bristol also directs a national marketing force that maintains contacts with the large companies that issue coupons and aggressively markets Nielsen's coupon research services.

The majority of coupons are usually redeemed within the first several months of issuance, Bristol said, and, in deed, many coupons do not have expiration dates.

"We'll see about five of every 10,000 coupons come in after two years of date of issuance. We'll even see some coupons come in 10 or 20 years after they've been issued. Most manufacturers will still honor these as a matter of good faith with the consumer."

Schools Open - Drive Carefully

BROWNWOOD--"Schools are opening throughout the State, which means motorists will have to be more careful," Brownwood District Engineer Lawrence Schulz warns. "The increase in traffic will cause more accidents involving school buses and school children. One way to help reduce these accidents is by following safe operating procedures as well as the laws pertaining to passing a stopped school bus."

State law requires drivers on the same roadway as a school bus that has stopped to stop at a school bus.

children to stop and remain stopped until one of three things happen: (1) the bus driver signals you to go on by (2) they turn off the flashing red lights, or (3) the bus itself goes into motion. The law applies whether you are meeting the bus or whether you are going in the same direction as the bus. It also applies inside the city limit as well as outside the city. The only exception to the law is when driving on the other side of a divided highway (one separated by a physical median). Motorists who fail to stop for a school bus could be fined up to $200.

"We, as motor vehicle operators, must realize the importance of our role in preventing needless deaths and injuries to our school children," Schulz added. "When you see the amber warning lights flashing atop a school bus, prepare immediately to come to a complete stop. When the red warning lights atop the bus are flashing, you must come to a complete stop a safe distance from the bus and remain stopped until the red lights are turned off. Always give special observance to the proper courtesies and rules of the road when driving near a school bus." We must exercise caution whenever school children may be walking. Although safety education in both home and school can result in more experienced and self-aware young pedestrians, they are still children--active and impulsive. A child may dash into the street on a moment's notice to chase a ball or catch a friend. Let's make the start of the new school year a happy one.

by the staff of THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS. ABOUT SUPERINSULATED HOUSES

Many people, when they first hear the term, likely think that "superinsulation" involves nothing more than cramming every nook and cranny of a home with fiberglass batts. However, while such houses do have more insulation than the norm, their efficiency is equally dependent on several interrelated construction details, which include the following: [1] A continuous air vapor barrier. The home's shell, basement, and ceiling are literally shrouded with sheets of 6-mil polyethylene, which are carefully overlapped and joined with acoustical sealant, a pliable butyl rubber compound. [2] An air-to-air heat exchanger. These uncomplicated blower-augmented machines continuously suck fresh air into the house while exhausting stale air, thereby removing odors and pollutants, reducing humidity, and reclaiming heat at the same time. [3] Careful attention to glazing. These homes typically have a window area equaling 5 to 10% of the total heated floor surface, a proportion similar to that of other houses. However, many designers try to locate the majority of the windows toward the south to take advantage of solar gain, employing triple and/or quadruple glazing.

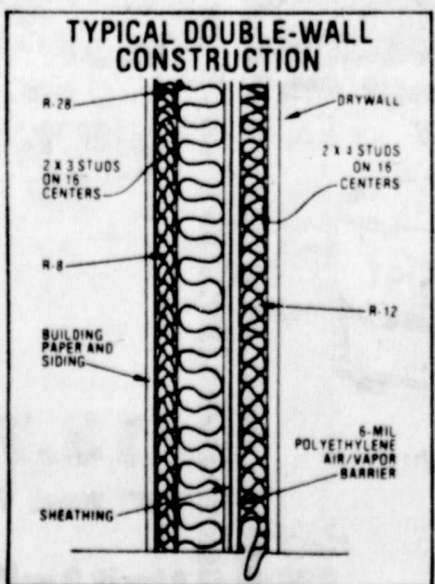

In a 1980 experiment that tested the efficiency of superinsulated houses in the severe climate of Saskatoon, Canada, the Canadian builders found that the most convenient way to incorporate all the features necessary to minimize air leakage and to retain heat inside a dwelling is to use double-wall construction (see the accompanying diagram). Essentially, the technique involves building two stud-framed walls the interior one is load-bearing), with the air vapor barrier placed behind the inner wall. Insulation is then sandwiched between the studs of both walls. This kind of construction allows most of the electrical, plumbing, and ducting work to be located within the interior wall, thus maintaining the integrity of the vapor barrier. The R-values of the double walls used in the 14 Energy Showcase homes in Saskatoon varied from R-30 to R-60.

The ceiling of a superinsulated home receives its own wrap of polyethylene, above which R-60 insulation is installed. The basement, too, is insulated to a minimum of R-20, and has its own vapor barrier.

As a result of such careful building, the homes in the Energy Showcase experiment use about 75% less fuel for heating than do even those houses that were previously considered to represent the state of the art in energy efficiency. For example, during one ten-month period, the total heating bills for the Saskatoon residences ranged between $59 and $143, or from $6.00 to $15.00 a month per household.

Superinsulated construction offers several advantages in addition to its fuel efficiency. First, it's a flexible building method that can accommodate many different housing designs. Second, a superinsulated home isn't as dependent upon optimum solar siting as are typical passive or active sun-heated houses. Third, superinsulation is an unobtrusive technique. The foot-wide windowsills in the houses are about the only visible indications of the dwellings' unique and unusual construction.

While the future of superinsulation remains to be seen, one fact shines clear: Contractors can build such affordable, comfortable airtight homes at reasonable prices.
