U. S. Marines Are Guests At C. of C. Meeting

The Chamber of Commerce luncheon had the best attendance in many weeks last Friday and for a good reason. Two of Muleshoe's young men who have been away for several months, Babe Barbour and Myron Bayless, of the U. S. Marine Corps, have been places since last summer. The last heard of them until Tuesday of last week, they were in Iceland. For all we knew they may have been in Norway or Russia. But Tuesday of last week they dropped in on the old home town like the Japs did on Pearl Harbor.

After luncheon, most everyone wanted to ask questions about their trips, the countries they had visited, how a convoy is handled, about subs and battleships, etc. They are typical service men. The harmless questions they answered in as much detail as possible. Other questions were diplomatically turned aside.

Although they enjoyed the sights in Iceland, they said they were glad to get away. It is the land of the big cold and no football. The days and nights are well divided—six months of one and the same amount of the other. World War I ex-servicemen have been accused of telling some tall stories of their travels when they were really giving facts. Here's a sample of present facts as the boys tell it. Na-fish. Most of the young people lose their teeth, or most of them, at about the age of 17. This is due to a lack of fruits and vegetables. Natives do not like American soldiers, marines, or any other country's soldiers and marines. But they all want to come to the United States.

The old AEF of 1918 fought with the English at the first opportunity. They were accused of being hard to get along with, and were told that the present generation would be more gentlemanly, more diplomatic, more considerate, more everything except fight with their allies. Men of the old AEF were never convinced that an American soldier, marine or sailor would lose his self respect to that extent. When the marines and soldiers landed in Iceland last summer, they found English soldiers there. The other day we asked one of these marines about the "brotherly love" situation between the Americans and English. We ain't talking, but by gosh, the honor of the service is being upheld, just like we knew it would.

Former Local Gridster 'Steals Show' At Tech

Dick Standerfer, former backfield star for the Muleshoe Yellowjackets, was the shining light of his team's defeat last week in an Inter-squad game at Texas Tech.

Although Standerfer's team—the "Whites"—lost, 23-13, the former Muleshoe gridster turned in a creditable performance from his halfback post. He did his team's kicking and passing and most of its running.

The sports editor of the Lubbock newspaper, and other observers, were undivided in their opinions that Standerfer would be called upon as a sophomore next season to furnish a big share of the Red Raiders' power on offense.

It is estimated that Indians were living in Texas 100,000 years ago.

April 12 Date Of Singing Meet

Announcement is made of the annual Bailey County Singing Convention, to be held at Enoch Sunday, April 12. S. E. Morris, president of the association, extends an invitation to everyone to attend. Visiting quartets from Clovis and Lubbock are expected as well as musical organizations from other towns.

Wheat Quotas Vote Scheduled For May 2

Uncle Sam already has his hands full and should not have to worry about a problem farmers can decide for themselves, Lonnie Arnold, chairman of the Bailey county AAA committee, pointed out today.

Solution of the problem of marketing quotas which will be decided at community ballot boxes, Saturday, May 2, when wheat farmers vote in a national referendum.

"We must produce the feed and food it will take to help whip in- flation," the chairman said. "Instead of spending time, labor and money raising crops we don't need," the chairman said in explaining that a two-year supply of wheat is in sight and the United Nations are in desperate need of meat, milk, vegetables, eggs, fats and oils.

"Just as there must be no more 'business as usual,' there must be no more 'farming as usual.' Wheat is no exception and we must fit it into our war program," he continued. "What marketing quotas which divide a limited market equally among all wheat producers, give farmers opportunity to continue as masters of their own wheat production and reserves."

Also at stake in the referendum is the 88 percent of parity loan program which is one of the principal reasons for present fair prices of wheat, the chairman said, and added that with abnormal supplies, wheat quotas are essential to maintenance of fair prices.

"We've done a good job of producing wheat, we have adequate reserves, and we're getting a fair price. What marketing quotas is just another method we have of keeping our business-house in order," the AAA official said.

O. E. S. MEMBERS ATTEND LITTLEFIELD MEETING

Several members of the O. E. S. were in Littlefield Tuesday night, attending a joint session of that organization. The local chapter was joint hostess, honoring the worthy grand marquis with a banquet.

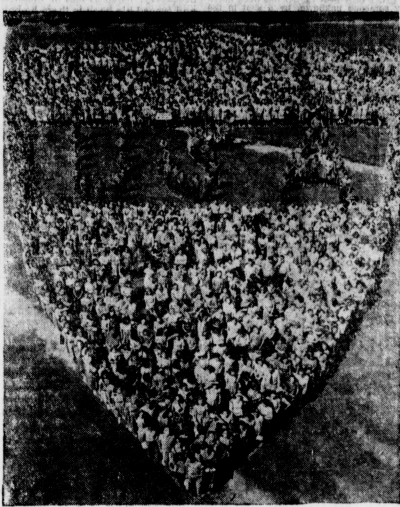

Members were present from the chapters at Olton, Sudan and Dimmitt.

Those attending from Muleshoe were: Mesdames Charles Beavers, Bobo, Gardner, Elliott, Copley, Tate, Delma McCarty, Burkhead, Hart, Huskabee, Osborn, St. Clair, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Carlyle, R. J. Klump and Miss Elizabeth Harden.

Needmore Men Promoted In Army

Announcement was made last week of the promotion of Corp Wesley H. Long, son of O. M. Long of Needmore, to sergeant. Sergeant Long is stationed at Goodfellow Field, San Angelo, Texas, and is with the 49th School Squadron.

A SHIELD FROM HUNGER

Three Bailey county 4-H Club girls and their sponsor are in this picture of Texas farm and ranch youth, made during the last 4-H Club Short Course.

The sponsor is Mrs. B. B. Dickenson, and the girls are Zelma Herrington of West Camp; Joyce Sheest of Progress, and Evelyn Mueller of Watson, Texas' 75,000 4-H Club boys

J. T. Gilbreath Grocery Selling Out This Week

One of Muleshoe's oldest grocery stores is now in process of closing out. Last week, J. T. Gilbreath, who has been in the store and announced that he was quitting the grocery business to devote his time and capital to the feed and seed business, which already is one of the largest concerns of its kind in West Texas.

For the past ten years, Gilbreath has served the people of this territory, and for the past five years it carried the largest stock of goods between Lubbock and Clovis, N. M. Mr. Gilbreath stated that increased sales in the feed and seed line and scarcity of help at this time made it impracticable to run both businesses.

Weather Changes To Rain And Sleet

The weather bureau, or somebody, stepped on the wrong button Tuesday afternoon. The change from summer to winter started with rain, which turned to sleet just before night. A high wind from the north brought heavier clouds laden with moisture, and as we go to press, it is still raining and sleeting.

The moisture will be fine for freshly plowed fields, as well as wheat and pastures.

ATTEND AMHERST MEETING

J. C. Smith, county crop insurance supervisor, W. L. Key, member of the county committee, and Leon Best attended a meeting at Amherst Monday, relative to crop insurance. E. R. Duke and H. M. Marshall, state officials, conducted the meeting.

KEEPING UP

Japan, the Far East and Latin America were top all other topics for Texans' study and discussion, if requests for package libraries of reading material received by the University of Texas extension loan library are any indication.

Market Co-op Plans Finally Abandoned

Due to a lack of interest on the parts of farmers, plans for the permanent organization of the Muleshoe Truck Growers Co-operative have been abandoned, S. E. Goucher, secretary, said Monday.

Money already contributed toward organization of the co-op has been returned to the donors, the secretary announced.

"Plans for organization of the co-op will be revived next summer if sufficient interest is shown," Goucher said.

Papers of incorporation have already been obtained by directors of the group, and will be used when, and if, efforts are again made toward setting up of the project.

"It looked as if we were off to a flying start, but labor shortage and curtailment of tire purchases served to cut down on the enthusiasm of many growers who otherwise would have chipped in," Goucher said.

More than $200 had been contributed toward purchase of land for packing sheds, storage houses, etc., and organization of the group, and was returned with the exception of $10 used to pay for the incorporation papers and incidental expenses.

Trustees Named In County's School Districts

Balloting in the school trustee elections Saturday was light, which is the usual case. However, this year seems to be the poorest, politically speaking. It's all blamed on the war.

New school trustees are: Progress: Tom Radney, Joe Thomas.

West Camp: E. L. Smith, Lloyd Stevens.

Watson: A. R. Haley, S. H. 'Serge'.

Liberty: A. R. Mathiesen, Mervin Witterling and D. B. Head. (Last two tied).

Goodland: C. C. Lancaster, M. L. Grant.

Wilder: P. B. Richardson, L. M. Dupler.

Watson: R. C. Day, E. W. Brewer.

Longview: R. C. Williams.

Muleshoe: C. E. King, H. H. Cagle.

Segal: C. L. Taylor.

Circleback: Luther Hall, Leon Smith.

Bula: Johnnie Robinson.

Balleboro: T. J. Sanders, Pat Barnett, and H. C. Goodman. (Last two tied).

R. L. Jones Is Elected Mayor

Vote in the election of city officials was light Tuesday, although more ballots were cast than was expected.

R. L. Jones was elected mayor by a one-vote majority over R. L. Brown, incumbent. Jones received 31 votes, Brown 30.

For commissioners, J. A. Wimbler received 29 votes; W. B. Wagon, 31; Roy C. Moore, 29; and Julian Lenua, 40.

Bailey County 4-H Club Girls Are Honored

Top honors in 4-H Club work for girls in Bailey county go to Verneeden Weaver of Bula, who was selected by a committee of Home Demonstration Club women as the Gold Star Girl of the county.

She was closely followed by Maxine Hughes of West Camp, who received second place, and Gemma Sue Vernon of YL, who placed third.

Fifty-one other girls in the county have completed ten goals and are eligible to receive merit pins, which are presented each year by the county Home Demonstration Council to girls who deserve them.

Fourteen girls from the Bula club completed their goals this last year. They are: Verneeden Weaver, Juanita Weaver, Marie Weaver, Catherine Lee, Roberta Stratton, Justine Bryant, Juanita Autry, Eva Belle Durham, Cora Eunice Trutt, Florence Autry, Eva Nelle Durham, Juanita Cherry, Kathleen Countryman, Mary Beth Rhodes, Billie Hallford and Inez Hallford.

Those from Longview completing ten goals are: Ruby Helen Seals, Clea Rivers, Nathalia Watson, Bobbie June Clark, Warena McKnight and Norene McKnight.

Eleven girls from Watson are on the honor list. They are: Colleen McMillen, Lona Mueller, Betty Jo Fine, Jessie Marie Henderson, Billie June Fine, Nelma Angel, Darlene Weed, Doris Campbell, Lois Hawkins, Jewell Lee Landroop, and Christine Kelley.

Frances Lou Dammron and Nancy Black of Circleback did very fine work and completed ten goals.

The Maple club has three girls on the honor list. They are: Mable Carter, Mable Paul and Mary Beth Toombs.

Pauline Barber, Dorothy Morris, Mattie Hogan, Jeanne Hogan and Faye Davis of the Progress club are on the list of those who worked right on through to the completion of their work.

Members of the West Camp club who completed ten goals are: Celeste Gossman, Jo Ann Williams, Melba Dearing, Catherine Grammer, Zelma Herrington, Vera Le Morgan and Joyce Marie Knowles.

Eloise Fern Preston of the Balleboro club made the honor roll with the completion of her ten goals.

8 Men Ordered To Report, Induction

Eight Bailey county men have been ordered to report for induction into military service April 14. None of the men are in the county at this time. It was stated, and will report to other draft boards for induction.

SEEK EMPLOYMENT

Gail Holt, Ross Smith, H. D. King and Thurrell Lemons were in Houston last Friday to see about employment with a construction firm.

4-H, FFA Stock And Poultry Show Success

The 4-H Club and FFA Stock and Poultry Show held here Saturday was a success from the standpoint of exhibitors, but attendance was the smallest in the history of the annual event.

There were a number of reasons for the small crowd. Farmers were busy preparing fields for the new crops, and the curtailment of automobile tire sales kept many away.

Some excellent calves and poultry were shown, and judges and visitors were well pleased with the boys' exhibits.

Winners in the show in the order they placed were:

Show Calves: Bill Dotson, 4-H; Richard Dennis, 4-H; Bill Dotson, 4-H; Richard Dennis, 4-H. Commercial Calves: Byron Gunter, 4-H; John William Gunter, 4-H; Alfred Hicks, FFA; Alfred Hicks, FFA. Champion Beef Animal: Byron Gunter. Shortborn Heifer: Reese Witterling, 4-H; Donald Barrett, 4-H. Guernsey Heifer: Dan Gault, FFA; Doyle Trapp, 4-H; Dan David Thomson, 4-H; Dale Rice, 4-H.

POULTRY

White Leghorns: Gordon Thomson, FFA; Ralph Broyles, 4-H; Talmadge McKillip, 4-H. White Hackles: Richard Dennis, 4-H; Reese Witterling, 4-H. Barred Rocks: Jack Young, 4-H. Rhode Island Reds: Dan Gossenberry, 1st and 2nd.

FFA: All Other Breeds: Vernon Cranmer, 4-H; Donley Daniels, 4-H; Roy Fried, 4-H. Pen of Two Hens: David Cranmer, 4-H; Vernon Cranmer, 4-H; Talmadge McKillip, 4-H. Champion Pen of Chickens: Gordon Thomson, FFA.

Fat Lambs: Howard Ashley, 1st and 2nd.

Champion Fat Lambs: Howard Ashley, FFA.

Registrants Still Fail To Properly Fill Out Forms

Local draft board officials are again warning registrants about filling out their questionnaires fully and correctly. Questionnaires are still being returned improperly filled out, and this is causing considerable confusion and loss of time.

When questionnaires are mailed, officials said, an envelope is attached for returning the form. In many instances, these forms must be returned to the registrant for further information because the questions are not fully answered. In the future, questionnaires will have to be returned by the registrant and all questions MUST be answered clearly and fully.

There are a few questions on the forms which do not apply to all persons, but these should be read and checked off. For instance, the question: "Are you a minister?" If you are not a minister, simply check the question to show that you have read it. Do the same to other questions which do not apply to you.

All other questions, however, should be answered as clearly as possible. Take time and write plainly or print the answers. If you do these things, it will save you, as well as the draft board, time and trouble.

THE INFANTRY

A few weeks ago we read an article by a famous military analyst, in which he took some twelve or fourteen pages of good magazine paper to prove that the days of the infantry as a vital striking force of the Army were gone forever. For centuries, the infantry has been called the "Queen of the Army" or the "King of the Army." Title of the above mentioned article was "The Queen Is Dead—Long Live the Queen."

Reasons given for the passing of this great branch of the Army were the advent of tanks and super-planes. But even smart men can be misinformed. Generals MacArthur and Wainwright would hardly concede the infantry obsolete. Neither would the Japs, who have been trying for nearly four months to take Bataan. Super-planes and tanks have been battering at a thin line of infantry all these weeks, but they are still there. The same is true in China, where for four years the Japs have thrown everything at Gen. Chiang Kai Shek's soldiers but the Chinese infantry is still fighting and holding. We could name any number of examples to prove that "The Queen" is far from dead.

There is no greater bunch of fighting men today than the infantry. Monday, we heard a broadcast of an Army Day parade. There were jeeps and tanks and planes and, finally, a faint, far sound. It was that soul-stirring rhythm of marching infantry. Our fever began to climb and what hair we have left on the back of our head stood up. Marching infantry has that effect on one, especially if you have "belonged" at some time or another. Have

TEXAS LENDS ITS SHARE TEACHERS TO WAR EFFORT

AUSTIN, Tex., April 6—Texas school systems are sending their share of teachers to the armed forces and defense industries, a report of the University of Texas Teachers Appointment Committee reveals.

During the last year, vacancies in Texas schools almost doubled the preceding year's number, according to calls made on the committee, while the number of applicants for positions declined more than 10 percent.

Requests for teachers numbered 2,413, while only 1,078 came from the committee. Of the applicants, 714 were placed in jobs, and Miss Miriam Dozier, secretary, estimates at least another 100 could have been placed.

DEFINITE PLACE IN WORLD FOR FOLKLORE, SAYS J. FRANK DOBIE

AUSTIN, Tex., April 6—There's a definite place for folk-lore in the war-torn world in the opinion of J. Frank Dobie, University of Texas professor-author and folk-loreist who is secretary and editor of the Texas Folk Lore Society.

Announcing the approaching annual meeting of the Society to be held in Denton, May 1 and 2, Mr. Dobie said:

"As no other organization in the Southwest, this group concerns itself with tradition. And now nations and institutions of the world are reeling, collapsing, and the very ground under them availing itself to the unknown."

"Under such conditions it is fatuous to regard tradition? It is not. No matter how overturned by revolution, people cannot cut themselves off from the past or from the soil of this earth. When appraisers seek to define Stalin, they go back to Peter the Great."

Dec. 7, 1941 stunned America found a word; it was a paraphrased echo of the immortal battle cry of remembering fighters who charged across the San Jacinto prairie yelling, "Remember the Alamo, Remember Goddard."

In commenting on this urgent need for the protection of life and limb in the American home, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer, today declared that accidents in the home are the cause of more deaths than diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles combined; of more than appendicitis; of nearly as many as diabetes; of over two-thirds as many as automobile accidents, and over a third as many deaths as tuberculosis.

"Slippery floor surfaces, lack of handrails on cellar steps, absence of protective gates at the top of stairs in homes where there are small children, toys left on stairs, un-anchored small rugs on polished floors, poisons in medicine cabinets accessible to children, and the careless storage of sharp tools and firearms are some of the more prominent hazards resulting in home accidents," Doctor Cox said.

"However," he added, "in the last analysis the problem boils down to one of reasonable individual caution. We can not view complacently the more than 30,000 deaths annually due to home accidents. These deaths, chargeable to remediable carelessness, can and should be reduced."

Doctor Cox declared that such a needless and profitless loss of life should be deplored at any time, but to permit such a condition to persist in 1942, in view of our national crisis, is to neglect that which can not be condoned.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—A rustler has been killed by someone unknown, by a shot in the back. Calhoun Terry, manager of the Diamond Reverse B Ranch, is looked upon suspiciously by other small ranchmen when he visits Round Top. Terry has sold out his own small ranch and has been in bad odor with the small men since he joined the big outfit.

CHAPTER II—Terry talks over the killing with Editor Garvey, his friend.

The flags of Spain, France, Mexico, The Republic of Texas, The Southern Confederacy and the United States have all flown over Terry.

Terry asked for stock in the company, provided he was made manager. Since nobody in the territory could do better than Terry, the directors jumped at the offer. The news of the deal shocked the small settlers. They felt that he had betrayed them. A bitter resentment wiped out his popularity.

Politically the small man dominated the county. The nesters combined with the people of the towns to elect tickets opposed to the cattle barons.

CHAPTER III

Terry tightened the saddle cinch, taking more time over it than was necessary. When at last he was mounted and turned his back to them he held his horse to a walk. His enemies were not going to have it to say of him that he had dragged out of town on the run.

He caught a glimpse of a face staring at him from a grimy window of the Red Triangle Saloon. A moment later a gun roared. His hat tilted forward. Through the brim and the crown a bullet had torn its way.

Calhoun Terry mounted. He walked back along the wooden sidewalk, close to the wall, and pushed through the swing doors of the Red Triangle. They had tried to kill him from cover. He would find out if they would dare to do it in the open.

Three customers were at the bar. Alford—Tulley—Brand. The gaze of Terry picked them up in turn. "You got away with it at Evans' store. Don't you reckon you're pressing yore luck too far?"

"The cattlemen ignored the question."

"Didn't Lee Hart have time to shut the door when he ran away?" Terry asked, his voice gentle, almost caressing.

"There was a pause, too long, before Brand spoke up."

"Hart hasn't been here."

There was another moment of silence before Tulley answered: "We heard a shot. It didn't come from here, if that's what you mean."

The comment struck out his left arm and laid a forefinger on the hole in one of the panes of the window beside him. "My mistake," he said.

"Fellow shot that hole in the window in a row two months ago," the bartender explained.

Terry did some swift guessing. The bullet which had passed through his hat had come from a rifle. The sound of the shot told him that. But Hart had been armed only with a revolver. Therefore he had borrowed the saloon Winchester. Since he was in a hurry to get away unnoticed, he had not taken it with him. The weapon must still be in the room, but Calhoun's searching eyes had not found it. Probably somebody had passed it to the saloon man, who had hurriedly put it under the bar.

Terry held out an expectant hand. "Give me that rifle under the bar," he ordered.

The bartender's eyes grew big. "Why, Mr. Terry, I—I don't reckon—"

"The rifle," interrupted Terry coldly.

"You don't have to give it to me, Hank," Brand told the man. "This fellow ain't cook-a-doodle-doo in this town."

Apparently the bartender was of a different opinion. He stooped down and passed a rifle across the top of the bar.

The investigation showed that it had been fired very recently. Terry laughed scornfully and handed it back to the man in the white apron.

"Somebody may want it again to shoot me in the back when I leave," he said.

Terry's gaze passed to rest on Alford. "I'm a little surprised at you, Roan. When I was your neighbor you wouldn't have stood back of a scoundrel who tried to shoot another man in the back."

Alford shifted uneasily on his feet. A flush crept up into his wrinkled face. "I don't stand back of anybody doing it now," he said.

Calhoun Terry gave him a long, keen look. He could see that the scoundrel was embarrassed and ashamed.

"I get it, Roan. Lee took you by surprise. Didn't give you time to stop him?"

He let his cold eyes sweep the room again disdainfully, then turned and pushed through the swing doors. Walking to his horse, he mounted and rode away at a good gallop.

CHAPTER IV

Though it was not yet seven o'clock the morning was a sodden land with light. So still was the air that even the aspen leaves did not tremble. It seemed to Ellen Carey, during that momentary impression of a country without voice and empty of life. Yet the fugitive thought had not faded from her mind before a meadowlark flung out its gay and joyous song, before she saw outlined against the horizon a file of antelope passing through the sagebrush.

It was all familiar to her, yet how good to see again! For five years she had been away at school with her aunt in Kansas City, and during that time she had been at home rarely and for short holidays.

She turned Buck's head toward the ranch. Breakfast would be waiting for her, and Lane Carey liked to have his daughter eat with him. She guessed how lonesome it had been for him during the years she had been away.

At the top of the first rise she stopped a moment to look into the valley where the Box 55 lay among the cottonwoods by the river. From the hollow beyond, rose a cloud of slowly moving dust. She knew what that meant. Cattle or horses were on the march, traveling so steadily that she could tell they were being driven. Somebody must have got an early start.

A rider showed on the nearer lip of the hollow. While she watched, a second came out of the valley and joined the first. One of the men rode a bay horse, the other a black. It was too far to be sure, but she thought she recognized the one on the bay. There was a little grace about the figure that suggested Jeff Brand. A faint pink beat into her cheeks. That reckless ne'er-do-well had been in her thoughts a great deal during the past two weeks. She found the combination of deference and audacity in him fascinating.

Apparently one of the riders caught sight of her. Both of them looked in her direction for a moment, then disappeared into the valley from which they had come.

At breakfast Ellen mentioned the riders she had seen. Lane Carey

"You don't know how grateful I am," she mocked, with an ironic curtsy.

"Are you grateful enough to let me take you to the Sleepy Cat Ranch dance?" he wanted to know.

She considered that a moment. "No, I don't think so." She added, "Of course I'm greatly flattered."

"Why won't you go with me?" "Must I give reasons?" "Are you going with someone else?" "Since you ask—yes."

"Who?" "Who?" "You'll find out in time, if you number of times."

"Dear me! Is that a threat or a promise?" she asked lightly.

"I do hope so. If he looks bored it will be a bad social start for me, won't it?"

"He won't be bored," Brand predicted. "I'll help you entertain him."

Ellen read into his words vindictive resentment. She stopped, slim and straight, dark eyes flashing. "I don't think that will be necessary, Mr. Brand."

"It will be a pleasure," he told her.

"He had reached the house. The girl moved up the porch steps and turned to look down at him. She said slowly, "I can see I'm going to like you."

Not at all abashed, he smiled up at her confidently. "Oh, yes, you are. Very much. I'll take care of that."

She felt anger stirring in her. "Some people would call it impudence," she said, a tide of color in her cheeks.

Ellen turned and walked into the house, leaving him there.

In Jeff's eyes, as he walked back to the post-office, little devils of mischief gleamed. Long ago he had discovered that one way to stir a girl's interest in him was to arouse her resentment. It kept her mind full of him while she was devising ways of satisfying it.

Ellen turned and glanced over to another horse at the hitch-rack across the road from the post-office. It did not take him a second look to read the brand.

"A gent from the Diamond Reverse B with us this morning?" he asked one of the loungers.

"His royal ribs," a young man in chain answered. "None other than Mr. Calhoun Terry."

Terry came out to the porch, let his gaze drift around slowly, and crossed the road to his horse. There was a cool arrogance in the way he approached Brand that got under the young man's skin. Jeff could not let it alone.

"I see you are still wearing the hat that went to the last wars, Mr. Terry. That night at supper Ellen said to her father, 'How's everything, Jeff?' The dravling answer was, 'Fire and dandy, Lane.'"

Carey relieved his daughter as she walked out of the post-office. Three men lounged on the porch. One of them joined Ellen and stroked to the house with her. "Thought I saw you this morning while I was riding," she said. "Brand slanted a look at her. 'Not unless you were up at Jack Turley's place,'" he answered. "I've been busy breaking a colt to the saddle."

"No, I was out Flat Top way."

Through the window she caught sight of a man alighting from a sorel horse. A faint excitement stirred in her. She heard someone walking across from the big house. Her father said, "How's everything, Jeff?" The dravling answer was, "Fire and dandy, Lane."

Carey relieved his daughter as she walked out of the post-office. Three men lounged on the porch. One of them joined Ellen and stroked to the house with her.

"Thought I saw you this morning while I was riding," she said. "Brand slanted a look at her. 'Not unless you were up at Jack Turley's place,'" he answered. "I've been busy breaking a colt to the saddle."

"No, I was out Flat Top way."

He shook his head. "Must have been someone else." He smiled at her. "I'll have to do better than that. Can't have you mistaking every boggled waddy for me."

"It doesn't matter, does it?" "A lot." "Take a good look at me, young lady."

She did not avail herself of the offer. "I've seen you before," she mentioned.

"And you'll see me again, any number of times."

"Dear me! Is that a threat or a promise?" she asked lightly.

"I do hope so. If he looks bored it will be a bad social start for me, won't it?"

"He won't be bored," Brand predicted. "I'll help you entertain him."

Ellen read into his words vindictive resentment. She stopped, slim and straight, dark eyes flashing. "I don't think that will be necessary, Mr. Brand."

"It will be a pleasure," he told her.

"He had reached the house. The girl moved up the porch steps and turned to look down at him. She said slowly, "I can see I'm going to like you."

Not at all abashed, he smiled up at her confidently. "Oh, yes, you are. Very much. I'll take care of that."

She felt anger stirring in her. "Some people would call it impudence," she said, a tide of color in her cheeks.

Ellen turned and walked into the house, leaving him there.

In Jeff's eyes, as he walked back to the post-office, little devils of mischief gleamed. Long ago he had discovered that one way to stir a girl's interest in him was to arouse her resentment. It kept her mind full of him while she was devising ways of satisfying it.

Ellen turned and glanced over to another horse at the hitch-rack across the road from the post-office. It did not take him a second look to read the brand.

Less Sugar Is No Hardship, Says Specialist

With rationing of sugar in the offing, many housewives will have to manage well enough for the weekend breakfast, dinner and supper.

According to Hazel Phipps, specialist in food preparation of the A. and M. College Extension Service, people can get along with less sugar and still have tasty nutritious meals. Any reduction in food energy which sugar furnishes easily can be supplied by increased serving of starchy vegetables, cereals and dried fruits.

Prepare only the amount of sweetened food needed for each person, Miss Phipps suggests, and avoid waste by thoroughly stirring the sugar in iced tea and coffee.

Fresh fruits, which carry their own sugar, make nutritious desserts and dried fruits are a good source of natural sugar. Honey, cane syrup, molasses, sorghum, and corn and maple syrups make good sugar supplements. Several of these are sources of calcium and iron.

When substituting honey, use approximately the same quantity as the sugar called for by the recipe. But on account of moisture in the honey, decrease the liquid normally required by about one fourth cup for each cup of honey used. Usually one eighth to one fourth teaspoon of soda is used for each cup of honey in products which are leavened.

It takes about one and one half times as much sorghum or molasses to give the same sweetness as the sugar the recipe calls for. Add one fourth teaspoonful of soda for each cup of syrup in leavened products, and decrease the liquid given in the recipe one fourth to one third cup for each cup of sweetening in order to equalize the moisture in sorghum or molasses.

Miss Phipps cautions that the baking temperature should be lowered when honey or molasses is substituted for sugar in a recipe.

Red Cross Women To Sew This Week For Our Hospitals

Twenty-one women were at the Red Cross sewing room Wednesday of last week to complete several hundred garments for shipment. This week the women will sew for American hospitals, it was announced.

Plenty of yarn for knitting is on hand at the sewing room, and all women who wish to knit may now receive their quota of yarn.

Women who sewed last Wednesday were: Mesdames M. A. Goodson, Paul Goodson, T. L. Snyder, W. H. Autry, Byron Griffiths, Mamie McAdams, W. J. Finley, Ray Griffiths, Olen Jennings, H. A. Barbour, H. T. Bentley, Walter Witt, Virginia Wyer, H. D. Clement, Jane Beavers, Marie Hawkins, Snow Davis, Mabel Robison, Mary Hart and C. C. Mardis.

NEED MORE NURSES FOR WAR SERVICE DIRECTOR ANNOUNCES

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Enrollment of nurses in the Red Cross for service with the armed forces must be stepped up to meet the increasing needs of the expanding military forces, Miss Mary Beard, director of the Red Cross Nursing Service, announces.

The announcement followed a conference between Miss Beard, Miss Sue Dauser, Superintendent, Navy Nurse Corps, and Miss Katherine S. Read, Superintendent of Hospitals for the U. S. Public Health Service.

"Although we have 25,800 nurses enrolled in the First Reserve, we need 50,000," Miss Beard declared. "The National Committee on Red Cross Nursing has asked us to concentrate on giving the utmost help to the Army and Navy in their great need for well-qualified nurses."

Every pound of meat saved for home use releases that much Food-for-Freedom to help feed America and her armed forces, so Texas County agents are brushing up on their meat butchering. In one school on the Caldwell Ranch, Taylor County, Roy Snyder, animal industries specialist of the Texas Extension Service, wielding the saw, shows his "students" how to make a perfect beef cattle "V for Victory."

GRADUATES URGED TO ENTER COLLEGE IN JUNE

AUSTIN, Tex., April 6—There is not the time to lose for high school graduates to wait through a summer before starting their college training. Dr. Homer P. Rainey warned in urging immediate college enrollment for members of June classes.

"With the demand for trained men in many technical fields, it is urgent that students with aptitude and ambitions in the realms of these vital courses start their technical training immediately," he said.

Particular emphasis was laid on the need for physicists, chemists, engineers and doctors.

Probably the first white man to visit Texas was the Spanish explorer, Alonso Alvarez de Pineda, who was sent on an exploring expedition in 1519 by Gov. Francis de Garay of Jamaica.

According to the most dependable records, the oldest missions in Texas were San Antonio de los Tiguas, 1682, later known as Nuestra Señora del Carmen, and San Miguel del Socorro, 1682, which was located a short distance southeast of El Paso.

From where I sit...

Best storekeeper I ever knew was a fellow named Sam Abernethy. Sam's specialty was to take over some run-down store that somebody else had given up as a failure. Then Sam would turn it into a gold mine.

"But the most important thing of all," he used to say, "is to remember who's Boss!"

"You may think you are Boss of your business... but you're not. The Public, your customers, are the real bosses... and you've got to run your business the way they want it."

That little statement of Sam's made a big impression on me... particularly since it certainly seemed to work so well in Sam's case.

And Sam isn't the only one. I see the beer industry feels the same way... certainly, the brewers believe in running their business the way you and I would like to see it run.

Folks like us like to see beer sold in clean, quiet, decent places.

Well... the brewers feel the same way about it. They don't want their beer sold in wrong surroundings. They know it hurts the good name of beer.

I was reading the other day how the brewers and the beer distributors work together and cooperate with law enforcement authorities. The idea is to make careless beer retailers clean up their places and practices... or close up.

It's a good plan... and it seems to me it ought to work. I understand it is already in operation in a number of states and is being extended.

It's a mighty fine thing when a great industry has the gumption to do a job like that on its own initiative. And if Sam Abernethy was right, the brewers should be mighty successful... because they're running their business the way the public wants to see it run.

How this oil with its modern synthetics—man-made betterments—triumphed in the Certified Death Valley Test. Why it out-mileaged five others more than 2 to 1...

A PEBBLE starting an avalanche that wrecks a town can illustrate one big thing to you about getting full mileage from your oil change this Spring. (Spring change is a serious "must," all authorities warn you.)

Now folks in the hills take care not to give pebbles any start. And by changing to Conoco Nth motor oil you are taking care not to let thickening mud get a start in your crankcase. The mud gets a start in Conoco Nth... man-made added modern synthetic... Thiaklene inhibitor in Conoco Nth... is aimed to inhibit or ward off the very start of bad "jelling" that often drags down mileage these days.

And still another synthetic in Conoco Nth has long been noted for its magnetic way of attaching OIL-PLATING to inner engine surfaces. OIL-PLATING isn't all constantly draining down. Then instead of plain fluid-type oil film alone, which comes and goes, your engine can have this steadfast OIL-PLATING besides... Oil film sliding between OIL-PLATED engine parts!

What's gained in engine life and oil mileage? You can judge from the impartial Death Valley Test. Conoco Nth ran up more than twice the mileage averaged by five big-name quality brands—each run till engine was ruined. Conoco Nth out-mileaged the next-best by 74% and another by 161%... certified.

What's the best oil your own car? See if hope for in your own car? Your Conoco Nth doesn't deliver. Your Conoco Mileage Merchant knows your correct Spring grade. Change today. Continental Oil Company

ADVANTAGES OF QUICK FREEZING OF FOOD IN LOCKER PLANTS MANY

Today there are 4,400 community locker plants in the United States, serving the people with frozen food the year round. The advantages of quick freezing of food are that fresh vegetables may be had in midwinter at a cost so cheap it is almost unbelievable. There is practically no waste to meats, and the danger of loss by improper curing is eliminated. Government officials predict at least 40,000 to 50,000 locker plants will be in use in the United States within the next ten years, each serving a rural community.

Other advantages of the locker plant is the elimination of so much preserving and canning of fruits and vegetables in one short period. With the quick-freezing plant in your community, fruit may be washed, steamed a few minutes and packed in jars or other containers and turned in to the locker man. For a few cents, he takes care of the job for you from there on. It is the same with meat. The hog or calf is butchered, taken to the locker and for a small fee, the locker man does the cutting, packaging and freezing.

If you want cured meats, he will attend to that, too, and much better than it can be done at home. Tests by competent specialists prove that frozen foods reduce the cooking time, quick frozen vegetables requiring only one-half the time to cook as fresh vegetables.

S. A. COLLECTION LATE

The collection from the Salvation Army jars will be late this month due to the fact that Maj. M. Saunders, in charge of the work at Littlefield, is in Baylor Hospital at Dallas. There were some slight complications in connection with a minor operation, which delayed Major Saunders dismissal from the hospital.

The origin of the name "Alamo" is unknown. According to one legend, the Alamo took its name from a grove of trees nearby, since alamo means poplar or cottonwood. Another story tells that the Alamo was named for a group of soldiers bearing the name who were quartered there.

In recognition of Spain's influential role in the history of Texas, the Spanish flag of Aragon, Leon and Castile is displayed among the six flags of Texas on the east wall of the Great Hall of the Texas Memorial Museum, as well as the Spanish seal with the date, 1519, inscribed thereon.

HOW to SAVE those "Important Vitamins"

Your gas range is ideally suited to modern "waterless cooking" which saves vegetable vitamins and minerals. Because of its flexibility you can regulate the heat to any degree you need.

- Cook vegetables in as small an amount of water as possible.
- Bring to boiling point quickly over high gas flame.
- When boiling begins, turn gas flame down and boil gently.
- Use covered utensils to keep steam in.
- Do not use soda, as it destroys vitamins in vegetables.
- Cook vegetables as short a time as possible.
- Serve foods soon after cooking.
