NEW CONFIDENCE.

To a nation, bewildered and despondent after more than three years of depression, culminating in a country-wide bank crisis, the new leadership in the white house this week gave an example of aggressive, positive leadership that is inspiring. At the very outset Franklin D. Roosevelt has given a dramatic significance to his administration. As he promised in his inaugural speech he has accepted the challenge of the depression willingly. He is not afraid to act, to use all the constitutional power of his high and responsible office in a determined counter assault upon the forces that have sent the nation in retreat from the citadels of national prosperity and well-being. This fearlessness, demonstrated within twenty-four hours after he had with uplifted hand assumed the solemn vow of American leadership, has already won him a national confidence that marks a far advance in the battle to restore the prestige of the American spirit and regain the ground that has been lost.

Every depression in the past has culminated in a money panic. The gathering forces of despair and disappointment sweeping up from village and hamlet and city seem to spend themselves in a final and desperate assault against the financial structure. Always in the past the assault has been withstood and the subsiding storm has left the nation calmer, with faith renewed and courage restored.

It is such an episode in the course of the present depression that we are experiencing today. It could not have been more fortunately timed. Franklin D. Roosevelt may or may not be the man of the hour in this crisis but he has struck out with a gesture of leadership that arms the nation with the most effective weapon against the forces with which we are now contending. His positive action gives hope that at last there is in the white house a figure whom we can follow with confidence and courage. Already, even in the face of extra-legal proclamations to meet the most serious phase of the crisis, this spirit of confidence is asserting itself in the markets, in financial areas and throughout the whole fiber of the citizenship. They feel that the end is near, that the electorate has elevated to authority a man who can see through and beyond the smothering fog to bright, clear ground, and they are ready to follow any leader who can inspire them with this courage of a vision. The test of a general is the confidence he can infuse into his men. There will be a short end to this depression when national forces can be welded into a united front by decisive, determined action in the white house.

PASSING OF FEDERAL FARM BOARD.

According to Washington advices, the end of the federal farm board's price pegging experiment is in sight. Henry J. Morgenthau, Jr., of New York, is the new president of the board. Henry A. Wallace of Iowa is the new secretary of agriculture. Morgenthau is close to the president. He has revealed plans for a sweeping reorganization of the government farm credit agencies which will be centralized under the Morgenthau direction and will include absorption of the farm board and retirement of its members to private life soon.

First, he is going to take the government out of the stabilization business. This declaration of policy "swept through the nation's grain markets Friday and was credited in part for the rise of three cents in wheat prices." Sec'y. Wallace is said to be an enthusiastic supporter of the original domestic allotment plan.

There are seven units of farm agencies. These will be

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Censor it as they may, the Congressional Record is still good for a few laughs in nearly every issue.

Most censorship is performed by the members themselves, in order that they may be recorded as expressing themselves more accurately, more beautifully or more amiably toward fellow members than they actually did in debate. When a member says "damn" or "hell" the official reporters apparently delete the word in the interests of public morals or something. But if such a word is used in a story or something else that is being quoted, it stays in. When Senator Tydings of Maryland said "To hell with this job!" the phrase was left out entirely. Senator Robinson of Arkansas told of the Texas orator campaigning for the late Senator Joe Bailey, who kept interposing a political speech with the rhetorical demand, "Who is Joe Bailey?" until someone in the crowd yelled, "I'll bite, who in hell is Joe Bailey?" That was left in.

Other little lines that have been left in lately: SENATOR BARKLEY of Kentucky tells how it is with the farmer: "I heard a story the other day about a farmer in my state who hauled a load of tobacco to the market, and, after he had paid all the expenses incident to its preparation for sale, and sale, he owed the proprietor of the warehouse 50 cents. When he went to the warehouse to explain that he could not pay the 50 cents, the proprietor said to him, 'Well, bring a chicken tomorrow. I will just take a chicken for what you owe me for processing and selling your tobacco. The following day the farmer brought in two chickens, and when asked why he brought two chickens, replied that he intended to bring in another load of tobacco the next day and thought he would pay the chicken in advance.

CONGRESSMAN TOM BLANTON of Texas, who speaks from the floor on more subjects than any other member of Congress—with the possible but not probable exception of Senator Huey Long—gives the last word on how to spot a real scientist while discussing scientists in the Department of Agriculture:

"Then I called attention the other day to these long-haired scientists—and, by the way, do you catch the significance of that phrase, 'long-haired scientists'? The real scientist has no hair at all, but the so-called scientists, these potato scientists, if you please, have long hair."

CONGRESSMAN BLANTON'S last words about last words about Congressman Blanton: "I thank my colleague for his commendation—the newspapers here never give me any. I want to say this to Brother Boylan—you probably will be here when I am dead and gone—when I am dead do not let a single newspaper say a kind word about me. If they cannot say kind words about me when I am alive, I do not want them to say kind words about me when I am dead."

What Do You Do in a Case Like That?

reduced to four divisions. Each will be headed by one man who will be personally responsible to Morgenthau and the unified agencies will be classified as the farm credit administration. Morgenthau believes in individual responsibility—no commission or board responsibility. This theory is, "If you want something done it is better to delegate the job to one man than to a whole bunch of them."

There are millions of Americans who are in hearty accord with the new head of the farm credit administration. He has another maxim, "A man can be fired if he doesn't make good." All of which does credit to the head of Morgenthau and his viewpoint. If a man doesn't make good, he should be fired. First, if he isn't qualified he shouldn't be placed on the job—at least, he shouldn't be placed at the picneter as a paid employe of the government.

HOOVER SIGNS BANKRUPTCY BILL.

In the closing hours of the Hoover administration, the president signed the bankruptcy bill intended to provide relief for individuals and farmers and railroads suffering from the handicaps of debts. This measure would set up machinery by which individual debtors might gain an extension of time or reduction of their debts by a cash settlement. It would be required that a majority of the creditors, both in number and amount, would petition the courts for a conciliation commissioner in order to gain an extension of time or a reduction of the total debts. It was an emergency measure, so to speak, and for a time its fate was hanging in the balance.

There are railroad relief provisions of the act. They are intricate and complicated. They provide for machinery to revise downward capital structures in order to avoid receiverships—with action taken under the guidance of both the courts and the interstate commerce commission.

Again, consent would have to be obtained for such action from a majority of creditors in the several classes. According to a report of the American Bar association as well as state bar associations, there had been many rotten receiverships. Many huge fees were allotted to lawyers by the receivers. In many instances all that had been salvaged from a defunct institution passed into the pockets of those who know how to garner the pickings where they are rich.

There is a new deal on. There is a new administration in power. Honesty is said to be its watchword. A fair deal for all its slogan. Back to the fundamentals its hope. All of which is a reminder that the wisest democrat in the early ages of the republic held to the theory that "a people the least governed are the best governed."

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER

United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, March 7.—Tom Hunter, who ran third for governor in the first democratic primary of 1932, has dubbed himself the "People's Lobbyist" and is spending a large part of his time here appearing before legislative committees.

Those who remember his forceful campaign can well understand that he has some pointed remarks to make about many of the bills. He is against getting the little consumer under a sales tax and letting the big fellows go without a considerable tax on state natural resources, such as gas and oil. To the surprise of many, he was against the combination utilities bill presented to a House committee as a compromise on the various utility regulating bill presented.

Speaker Coke Stevenson manages to maintain good humor in the midst of the house bedlam and parliamentary twistings. A member had proposed to substitute January for June as the final date on a payment referred to in a bill. "What's the gentleman's amendment?" a member in the rear of the House asked. "Just to change summer to winter," announced the speaker. With a voice that would do credit to a person three times his size, he announces the senate message so it can be heard and understood all over the house of representatives. And he has no microphone or megaphone to assist him.

The fear may be better appreciated if it is noted that the carpet on the house of representatives hall is the largest carpet in the world and that the ceiling is a good 40 feet above the floor.

Rep. B. L. Rogers, lives at Farnsworth in Ochiltree county and is nearer the capital of Colorado than Texas.

Ascension of former congressman John Garner to the vice-presidency has interested Rogers keenly in Garner's suggestion that Texas should be carved into several states. Some step along that line may be proposed by Rogers before the present session of the legislature has ended.

"I am considering the pros and cons," he said. The right to make five states of itself was retained by Texas upon entering the Union.

Passing of Walter Acker, Sr., of Houston, removed the last Confederate soldier to serve as a member of the Texas legislature. At 89, he died at the Confederate home here where he had elected to spend the closing days of his life among the "Boys in Gray."

In recent years there probably has been no more beloved member of the Texas legislature. In 1883 he served in the house as representative of Lampasas and Burnet counties. He was a representative from Harris county in the 39th, 40th and 41st sessions.

Seldom a debater in the house, he was yet one of the most forceful members. Erect as in the days when he served through the Civil war, he brought to the house an example of the courtliness of the Old South.

Epithets have become popular in the house of representatives. Most of them are used with a smile and taken in good part.

Rep. W. E. Pope who has been making a continuous fight for economies, was dubbed the "Nuisance from Necess" by Rep. George Moffett of Chillicothe.

Moffett, in turn, came in for designation as "The Gentleman from the Wide Open Spaces," when he opposed a motion by Rep. P. L. Anderson of San Antonio to take up a ratification bill out of order.

Moffett replied: "The Gentleman from the Wide Open Spaces objects to the motion of the Gentleman from the Wide Open Town."

Bills too get nicknames in the house.

Rep. Fritz Englehardt, in asking committee transfer of the bill standardizing egg packing referred to it as the "rotten egg bill."

The bill to permit pari-mutual wagering at race meets is generally called the "horse racing bill," though it neither authorizes nor prohibits equine racing. The "rural aid" bill is an appropriation for schools.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, March 7.—The new law that kept John N. Garner's congressional seat from being vacant long after March 4 will save Cameron county from being without a member in the Texas legislature if Milton West, who had a lead in the congressional first primary, becomes the nominee in the second.

Under this law, Mr. West can resign, and said he will, if nominated effective on the day of the congressional election. The governor can call a special legislative election, fixing it for the same day as that for congressman.

In discussing this, Rep. West, who lacked five per cent of a first primary nomination, said he claims beyond the remotest doubt the nomination March 15.

Heads of state departments, already having submitted their budget requests to the house appropriations committee, during this week will have hearings before the senate finance group. After that, their future supply grants will be wholly in the hands of the legislature until enacted, then subject to the governor's approval or veto.

The proposals for lump-sum appropriations for the university and educational institutions would have effect of preventing the veto of any individual salary or appropriation item. When itemized, a stroke of the pencil through a line — they rarely use blue pencils—strikes out somebody's salary for two years.

Sen. Tom DeBerry, protesting a senator's efforts to raise judicial salaries above the committee recommendations said, "he must have millionaire dust in his eyes."

West Texas lawmakers are asking that landowners who bought state lands, and by a court decision have been subjected to liability for payment of half the bonuses they collected and 10-cent rentals on the land, be given 40 years in which to pay the money to the state on installment. A second bill permits the surface owners to buy state-reserved minerals on a 40-year plan, to obviate further liabilities under the decision on the old relinquishment act.

Ernest O. Thompson, railroad commissioner, believes that every owner of more than 1,000,000 Texas automobiles would support, if he had an opportunity to do it, the plan to substitute a graduated tax on oil for the gasoline tax. The oil tax would be paid by those producing the larger quantities of oil from their wells—and 85 per cent of it passed on to people outside Texas, according to the official's estimates. Simple, sure, legal proration is the primary reason he supported the graduated oil production tax. Col. Thompson said; but the opportunity to collect all the present oil production taxes, all the gasoline taxes and about $10,000,000 more a year is a further reason that should assure enactment of the law in his opinion.

NEED ENFORCEMENT
MADISON, Wis., March 7.—Modern law enforcement agencies preferably state police organizations are required for protection against modern criminals, in the opinion of George N. D. Hall, former member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and now a plumbing engineer here. Ninety per cent of the success of the mounted police was due to organization rather than individual members, Hall said.

HAS SERVICE RECORD.
CHILMARK, Mass., March 7.—An unbroken record of 212 years in political office on Martha's Vineyard is the proud boast of the Allen family. Henry H. Allen died recently after holding public offices for a half century, but his son, F. Roger Allen, was immediately elected to the Board of Selectmen.

SWEETWATER'S CHUCK WAGON TO FT. WORTH

SWEETWATER, March 7.—Sweetwater's famous old time chuck wagon bearing one-hundred or more brands and the fifty-two year old D. Z. chuck box and equipment, will hit the trail for the Ft. Worth Stock show and Cattleman's convention, Friday, March 10. It will participate in the pioneer barbecue given by the Ft. Worth show officials, and later be in the Pioneer section of the exposition parade, after which it will be "camped" in the lobby of a leading hotel.

Accompanying the wagon will be Horace Wade, Sweetwater business man and old time cow cook, Julian Moody, a well known wagon boss of the early eighties, John Selman, wagon boss for the S. M. S. Flat Top ranch, and John M. Hendrix, wrangler for the Sweetwater Chuck Wagon association to whom the wagon belongs.

Since the organization of the association last May, the Sweetwater chuck wagon has traveled more than a thousand miles, having visited the Texas Cowboy reunion at Stamford, the state democratic convention at Lubbock, the Golden Jubilee at Wichita Falls, and entertained at Midland, in October, the cattlemen of that section.

On these trips it has served chuck wagon meals to around three thousand people making no charge. The organization was formed to perpetuate the traditions of the old time cow outfit and visit all gatherings where cattlemen are to be found. At each place visited, numbers of old timers visited it and recall having eaten at the D. Z. wagon on the South Plains and in New Mexico in the early eighties.

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY JANET HILL is engaged to ROLF CARLYLE but they do not have enough money to marry. Janet is secretary for MOLLIE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine, and Rolf works for the Atlas Advertising Co. Janet insists they must have $200 in a savings account before they can be married.

HOWARD CRESSY, another employee of the magazine, tries to make dates with Janet but she discourages him. She hurries home from the office one Saturday to prepare a surprise birthday dinner for Rolf. On the way she sees a couple entering the fashionable Brewster Hotel Coffee Shop and at first thinks the young man is Rolf. Afterward she decides she was mistaken.

The dinner party is a success. Rolf tells Janet there is something he wants to talk to her about but later evades and says it was "nothing." He says he cannot see her next day because "he is entertaining an out-of-town friend."

Sunday proves to be a gloomy day. Rolf does not telephone. Janet visits with MOLLIE, LA MURBERT, who lives across the hall. She returns to her room and there meets a young man she has never seen before.

CHAPTER V THE man found words first. "I—I—" he stammered, "hope you don't—I mean I didn't mean—that is—I guess I've made a mistake!"

Janet was clutching the pink bathrobe, holding it about her. It was surprise and not fear that held her speechless.

"Who are you?" she demanded. "And what are you doing in my room?"

"I guess I've made a mistake," the young man repeated. His face had grown quite red. "You see I didn't know—"

"But what are you doing here?" It was certainly not like Janet to use a tone like that. It wasn't like her at all. The words snapped out sharply. Shock probably was responsible for the stern way she eyed the young man.

"I'm—I'm—" he began desperately. "You see I live here?"

"Upstairs. On the next floor. My name's Grant—moved in yesterday. I'm terribly sorry about this. You see when I came yesterday the woman in charge—Mrs. Snyder—showed me a room on this floor she said was vacant. I thought this was it. And tonight when the electric light burned out and I couldn't find anyone downstairs to get another I thought I could borrow the light from this room—"

"But it's my room!" "Well, you see I didn't know that. I thought this was the vacant room. I thought it would be all right to take the light and explain about it tomorrow. I'll—I'll go now. It doesn't matter about the light—"

It was ridiculous to suppose this young man could be a burglar. He seemed more disturbed over the situation than Janet. More than anything he looked like a young man who has made an extremely embarrassing mistake and is willing to do almost anything to remedy it. Besides Janet remembered Mollie had spoken of a new roomer, Grant—was that the name? Yes, it was. She would probably have smiled and said she understood, that it was perfectly all right but suddenly Janet remembered what she was wearing. The bathrobe and pajamas! Dignity fled and, striving to recapture it, the sharp note came into her voice again. "You'd better leave," she said shortly. "And after this please remember this room is not vacant!"

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

Of course it's all right. Let's get going!" Over a table for two at the nearest cafeteria he explained. "You see I happened to be in the neighborhood. Had to see a fellow in the Security Building. When I saw it was about noon I thought we might as well lunch together. Afraid I'm not going to be able to keep that date tonight, Janet. Don't mind, do you? It's something I couldn't very well get out of. This fellow I was with Sunday—well, I forgot I'd told him I'd go to the wrestling matches with him tonight. Being new in town the way he is and not knowing anybody—well, you see how it is, don't you? And of course we can just as well go some other night."

Janet said yes, of course. They could go any night. It didn't make the least bit of difference. "Then that's that!" said Rolf cheerfully. "You know, Janet, that little car I told you about that's for sale so cheap? Well, I was looking at it again yesterday—"

"But, Rolf, you know you can't afford to buy a car!" "Oh, sure. I know that. But I was just looking at it. Say, it's a honey! Be pretty swell to have a little car like that, wouldn't it? Think of the long drives we could take—!"

Janet was smiling. "We'll have one just like it some day." "You bet we will!"

THEY talked until suddenly Janet discovered that it was 10 minutes after one. Hastily she gathered up gloves and handbag. Five minutes later they said goodbye at the entrance of the Every Home Building. "You'll see me tomorrow, won't you?" Janet asked in parting.

"Oh, sure. Take care of yourself!" Several times during the afternoon Janet caught herself thinking of Rolf's school friend, the young man from out of town whom she had never seen but for whom she was developing an active dislike.

Thinking of this she jabbed a key of the typewriter and vindictively that the machine jumped a space. She had to use the eraser and even then the page was smudged.

The incident reminded her that it was foolish to brood over something she couldn't help. And of course things wouldn't go on this way. Rolf was only trying to be nice to a friend who was lonely.

She was telling herself the same things, trying to find solace in the same arguments a few hours later as she sat in her own room with a new magazine. Somehow her attention wandered repeatedly from the printed page.

There was a knock at the door and Janet looked up gratefully. Mollie Lambert's blond head appeared, partially covered by a small green turban. Mollie wore a green coat and carried gloves. "Just came in," she said. "I saw your light. What in the world are you doing home tonight?"

"Why shouldn't I be at home?" Mollie hesitated. "Well I—well, of course it's all right." Suddenly she seemed to gain determination. "Listen, Janet, maybe I shouldn't say this but I think you ought to know! I just passed the Liberty theater. There's a road show there, you know—a swell musical comedy. And who do you think I saw? Rolf Carlyle! Gee, he was all dressed up. And you should have seen the girl with him!"

"But it's so early. I never go to lunch until—oh, it is almost 12, isn't it? I suppose it's all right. Mr. Hamilton won't be back until 1:30—"

Ancient Reptile Puzzles Expert

BERKELEY, Cal., March 7.—Complicated jigsaw puzzles are child's play compared with the task now facing curators of the university of California Museum of Paleontology here.

They are attempting to piece together a complete specimen of a 150,000,000-year-old reptile from more than 30 boxes of material in the form of fragmentary bones excavated from a "reptile quarry" near St. John, Ariz.

The work will be long and tedious. First, the bones must be identified and filed; this will be followed by a period of writing scientific reports of the findings. Then the actual construction of an exhibit will begin.

"As the specimen we are undertaking to prepare will be spectacular and also will contribute valuable information to paleontology, it will be of interest to both the layman and scientist. S. P. Welles, field and laboratory assistant of the museum, explained.

The "reptile quarry" from which the collection was obtained, was discovered in 1930 by two members of the museum's staff, Dr. C. L. Camp, director, and V. L. Vanderhoof, field and laboratory assistant.

Olds Is Oldest Hollywood Car

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 7.—The oldest automobile under the 1933 registration in Hollywood is a two cylinder Olds built in 1902, according to the latest automobile census of the United States.

The car is owned by A. E. MacDonald, who runs a filling station. He bought it for $800 in 1902 and still operates it.

Next on Hollywood's "oldest car list," according to the automobile census, is a four cylinder 1911 Cadillac roadster owned by Charles O. Graag. The old model T Ford takes two third places with a 1912 roadster registered under the name of Robert R. Bertrand and a 1913 Ford touring owned by H. W. Kelly. A 1913 six cylinder Buick owned by M. W. Satterlee is fourth.

Further figures in the census, furnished by the Reuben H. Donnelly Corporation, reveal that of the automobiles owned by Hollywood film stars, comparatively few late models are represented. Clara Bow owns a 1931 Rolls Royce sedan, a 1928 Cadillac sedan, a 1929 Packard touring car, a 1926 Kissel sedan and a 1931 Chevrolet roadster.

Will Rogers has two Fords, Douglas Fairbanks owns a 1931 Cadillac coupe, a 1931 Rolls Royce sedan, a 1930 Cadillac sedan, a 1931 Ford sedan and a 1929 La Salle coupe. Charlie Chaplin owns a Cadillac 1928 sedan a Ford 1928 sedan, and a Buick touring.

Character and mildness... the Lucky combination

Wherever you find joy in life... there you find Lucky Strike. For Luckies offer you Character—tempting flavor and the full, smooth quality of the finest tobaccos—the "Cream of the Crop". But that's not enough. A cigarette should be mild. And so these fine tobaccos are subjected to the famous "Toasting" process. It is "Toasting" that makes Luckies mild—just as surely as fine tobaccos give Luckies character. And for these two reasons—character and mildness—"Luckies Please!"

because "It's toasted"

YOU can sit in your room and turn through advertising pages—demand any portion of the world before you to come to you, and it will come! You can summon an ounce of French garden in a perfume vial; intricate pieces of Switzerland in a tiny wrist-watch; a corner of California packed in an orange; a handful of Virginia to stuff in your pipe; sunny Seville in olives; a taste of Ceylon in tea.

Advertisements tell you the desirable portions of the world you can buy. How most quickly to call them to you. How much you'll like them when yours. Grown on a far island—dug from a mine—if it's advertised and you ask for it, it's yours. If you ask it to do what it's advertised to do, it will. If you ask others who have used it what they found out about it, they will repeat facts advertised about that product. Advertisements are your surest, quickest means of enjoying the world.
