THINGS IN GENERAL

Last Sunday a radio commentator asked the question, "What do you think of when you see the Stars and Stripes?" As we couldn't answer him right back, we got to thinking to ourselves—or trying to—and the things we "think" on the above subject were numerous.

We tried to line our "think" up in two columns, like the credit and debit sides of a ledger. The good things on the credit side and the bad on the debit side. First, we thought of the early days, when the new republic was established, with all the hardships the boys went through back then in order that we might enjoy life in any way we saw fit.

Soldier-Senator - Promoted in Army

It is First Lieutenant Verno Lemens now. The soldier-legislator who is asking for promotion for Senator of the Twelfth District Lieutenant Governor of Texas, go a promotion this week which he did not ask for when he was raised in rank from second to first lieutenant. He is serving as assistant adjutant at Camp Hood, Temple. He is a veteran of World War I was a reserve officer and active legionnaire, and was recalled to the armed forces for World War II on April 6. He will be granted leave to serve during the legislative session. No more time is required in Austin of the Lieutenant Governor than a Senator.

We think of the words Admiral Dewey sent to the German commander of a naval squadron at Manila, who was too obviously trying to hinder the American fleet: "My advice to you, sir, is to keep your ships from between my gun and the enemy." And of recent months the words of a member pilot in his report to headquarters: "Sighted sub; sank same," and the words of a squadron commander at the battle of Midway: "We will attack regardless of consequences." There are hundreds more, which should stir the blood and raise the fighting spirit of every true American.

But on the other side of the ledger, we place the infamous words of "famous" statesmen. These, for the most part, during the past few months. To General MacArthur, from a high executive: "Don't worry about Guam and the Philippines. We are at

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Newton and family attended the singing convention in Clovis last Sunday and reported a grand time. Mr. and Mrs. Foyne Cash left Wednesday, 22nd, for Flagstaff, Ariz., where he intends to work in a defense plant. Council met with Mrs. Newton last Monday to elect a delegate to go to Fort Worth.

Mrs. Jim Clements was a visitor in the home of Mrs. Jessie Barnett, Tuesday. Kelly Jo Barnett spent last week-end with Son Carter of Longview community. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Renfro and baby were visitors in the home of Mrs. S. D. Clements Sunday. Crops are looking good in these parts now and most everyone is glad. We think of the words of a patriot of long ago as he cried out in anguish to the world: "Oh Liberty, what crimes are committed in thy name!"

Next Saturday is election day. We are asked to urge our people to go to the polls and vote. No need for us to urge. You know there is an election coming up, and if you are qualified, just use your own judgment. You may never have another opportunity.

CHAPTER XXXII

After supper Ellen walked out into the soft, moonlight night to see where her father was. She found him in the stable putting harness on Sam and Buck.

"I'm going with you," the girl told him. "I think you had better," he agreed. "There's a chance these invaders might come this way. Pack a valise with things to last you two-three days. Until things settle down you'll be safer at Round Top than here."

Lane clucked to the horses and they started off. Presently the trail ran into the road. A man came out into it at a canter. Ellen saw a crowd of relief. He was a man of flesh and blood, and one she knew. His name was Wade Scott.

"Ellison's men got Dave Morgan and Sib Lee," he blurted out. "Only a few hours ago he had been Morgan start for Deep Creek to work the settlers."

Scott rode down beside or behind them to Round Top. He dropped off the crystal palace to tell his news. The place was boiling with life, as was the street outside.

The man from Deep Creek banged a tumbler on the top of the bar for silence. When the voices died down he told his story to a stilled and shocked audience. They waited till he had finished, then poured questions.

Lee Hart slammed his fist on the wall. "That settles it. We'll take those fellows out of the calaboose and string 'em up, no matter what Nate says."

A little wrinkled man with a wide, gray, weather-beaten hat walked into the place. He had just ridden down from his ranch to find out how large a force Round Top expected. When the voices died down he told his story to a stilled and shocked audience. They waited till he had finished, then poured questions.

Hart turned on him angrily, a glass of whiskey halfway to his mouth. "Not a thing to that story. Horace Garvey sent it."

Alford was worried, but he said no more in protest. He knew it was of no use. "How is Jeff?" he asked. "Where is he?"

"Doing all right. I reckon. He's at the Round Top hotel." Roan left his horse tied at the hitch-rack and started for the Round Top, which was really only a boardwalk. He went to see if Ellison's men were waiting there for a moment to discuss the chances of trapping the invaders. He mentioned casually that he had seen Lane Carey at the Holden House. Lane and his daughter had reached town. Alford decided to consult with the Box 55 man about the best thing to do.

"It's life or death for two men," Roan explained. "We've got to see him, doctor's orders or not."

As soon as Jeff saw Ellen his face lit. "I been thinking about you," he said. She could see by the light of the lamp that he was flushed with fever, but she had to tell him for what they had come.

"Oh, Jeff!" she cried. "The town has gone mad. Nate Hart has arrested Calhoun Terry and Larry Richards, and Lee Hart is gathering a mob to lynch them."

Jeff set up on an elbow and stared at her in surprise. "What for are they doing it?" "Because Ellison's band of killers shot Dave Morgan and Sib Lee today."

The wounded man's gaze did not shift from her, but Ellen knew he was seeing something else. His face had gone rigid.

"How do you know?" he asked, after a long silence.

"Wade Scott rode down with us. He helped carry the bodies to Sib's home." Ellen pushed past to the terror crowding in on her. "They think Terry is in with the invaders. He sent telegrams asking the President to send troops to stop the trouble. Father thinks he did right. No-body can talk these crazy men out of what they are going to do—unless you can do it, Jeff."

"How can he talk to them when he is sick abed?" the nurse wanted to know. "Even if you were to bring them here? The doctor said he was to keep quiet."

Jeff hardly heard what they were saying. He was thinking about "Who are the trusty men you have downstairs?" Terry asked, a note of irony in his voice.

He knew that the sheriff was a game man. Nate would do his best within reason to save his prisoners, but it would not be possible for him to prevent a determined mob from breaking into such a ramshackle building.

Hart said that the men were his two deputies and a volunteer, Horace Reverend. He, the sheriff found it difficult to tell these men that the hour of doom was at hand. He hesitated.

Larry laughed hardily, without mirth. Like Terry, he was a tough and hardy realist, not afraid to face a situation which had to be met. "Split it out, Nate. When do the guns go boom?"

"Soon. I'd say in ten or fifteen minutes." "Who are the trusty men you have downstairs?" Terry asked, a note of irony in his voice.

Dave Morgan. They had frolicked a lot together and they had ridden lawless trails side by side. Between them had been a close comradeship. Each of them had trusted the other completely, had known his friend would not fail him at a pinch. Now Dave was gone.

Out of the fog of his thoughts Ellen's voice came to him. "... so father is coming with the wagon to carry you to the jail if you can go."

"He can't go," the nurse snapped. "I wouldn't think of letting him."

Roan Alford said: "We hate to ask it of you, Jeff, seeing how sick you are. It's up to you. Lane and I can carry you to the wagon. I dunno as it will do any good, but we figured maybe if you would tell the boys about how Richards and Terry stood by you they wouldn't be so bull-headed."

The nurse said, "No, he's going to stay right there on that bed."

"I ain't a-going to do it. The doctor said—"

Calhoun Terry and Larry Richards played seven-up with an old deck of cards the sheriff had given them. Calhoun Terry looked at the other of them strolled to the window and looked out through the bars at the crowds milling on the street.

"The Crystal Palace and the Red Triangle must be doing a land-office business tonight," Larry said. "I reckon a war must be good for trade. A lot of red-eye must have gone down the hatch since supper time."

Calhoun came and looked over his shoulder. The noise of excited voices beat up to them. A group below caught sight of them. Someone shook his fist at the prisoners and

'CALAMITY TOWN'

Ellery Queen, the American master of the mystery novel, after three years' absence from the field, returns to give us a new treat. Not only is 'Calamity Town' a bang-up mystery, but it has all the attributes of a fine novel. Mr. Queen's characters are well drawn and clues to the solution of the murder are all there before you. If you really work at it, you may figure out 'who done it' before you get to the last chapter; and if you don't, you will wonder why you didn't when the author explains all. Mystery story fans certainly shouldn't miss this one.

'REACHING FOR THE STARS'

This book, by Nora Walsh, is an understanding, sympathetic picture of the German people in the days when the Nazi party was just beginning its rise to power. It is, essentially, a picture of the common people and their way of life, simple and sincere. It is undoubtedly colored by the fact that the author is a gentle Quaker woman who feels a deep kinship with her fellowmen all over the world. If you feel that your heart is being corroded with hatred for a people who have come to represent to us all that is cruel and ruthless in the world, it would be good to read this book. It will reduce the German, as a person from the monster he has become to many of us to a simple human being much like ourselves; but very unlike us in his submission to dictatorial power.

'BERLIN DIARY'

Since it is well to balance all things and keep our minds unbiased, especially in turbulent times, it would be well to read this journal of William L. Shirer along with Mrs. Wain's book. It will give you a more rounded picture of Germany and the German people.

Chronologically, Shirer's book begins about the time that Mrs. Wain's book ends. And of course it deals chiefly with the political and journalistic viewpoint regarding the Nazi regime. I might add that if you would like a clearer understanding of 'why the German people put up with it,' you should by all means read this journal.

Our librarian has been at work combining book length novels from the Redbook magazine under covers containing three novels each. These are all good stories and of a wide variety. You might find a lot of good reading in them. Ask Mrs. Burton about them the next time you are in.

I was born an American; I will live an American; I shall die an American.—Daniel Webster.

A crowd of Nazis arrived at the pearly gates and clamored to get in. "Who are you?" asked St. Peter. "We're the fifty Nazi aviators shot down by the R. A. F. today," they answered. The official Nazi communique says only two Nazis were shot down today. Two of you can come in temporarily, and the other forty eight know where they can go."

Wife: "I'm afraid I was quite outspoken at the club today." Hubby: "I can't believe it. Who outspoke you?"

Two recruits were unpacking. One, from the city, examined the other's straight-edged razor with interest. "Gee," he said, "don't you cut yourself pretty often with this?" "Nope," drawled the mountaineer, "I been shavin' nigh onto five years now and I hain't cut myself neither time."

LIFE WITH FATHER

FATHER: I've called this family council to get our living program adjusted. MOTHER: What's the trouble, Father? FATHER: Well, the way living costs are up, I'll give a dollar to anybody here who contributes a suggestion to save money. How about it, Bob, my boy? DAUGHTER MARY: For goodness sake, Father, you know Bob never saved a cent in his life... SON BOB: Silence, worm! I've got an ad here. It's about motor oil and it says: "You can hardly think of one working part in your engine as cheap to replace as dirty, thin oil—a jinx to precious parts" FATHER: I get it, son... and that car of ours has to go another two years at least. What oil is it? SON BOB: It's Conoco Nth motor oil and the ad tells how the six engines were run to destruction in a Certified Death Valley Test. Conoco Nth made twice the mileage averaged by the five other big-name oils. FATHER: Son, you get the first dollar. Take the car down tomorrow and get Conoco Nth oil.

Save Fats!
Uncle Sam Can Use Them!

Waste fat homemakers save in their kitchens for the nation's salvage campaign may one day sink an enemy battleship or help crumble axis fortifications on the world over. Grease makes glycerine, and glycerine makes gunpowder, explains Lillie Gentry, county home demonstration agent for the A. and M. College Extension Service. She explains that every ten pounds of fat saved in the nation's campaign will produce one pound of glycerine for gunpowder or other explosives needed in winning the war. The two billion pounds of fat wasted in American kitchens every year would provide two hundred million pounds of glycerine Uncle Sam badly needs, according to the Bureau of Home Economics. Recently the War Production Board arranged with meat dealers to receive some of this waste fat from housewives, and the A. and M. Extension Service will cooperate with state and county salvage committees in helping every rural family in Texas know its part. Cooperation in the national fat-saving campaign is in line with the war-time Extension program—the Victory Demonstration—to which thousands of rural Texans are pledged.

A. Foy Curry, Jr.
Makes Statement
To District Voters

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE 120TH DISTRICT OF TEXAS COMPRISING BRISCOE, CASTRO, FLOYD, BAILEY, HALE, LAMB, PARMER AND SWISHER COUNTIES:

I, like millions of other Americans, have a keen desire to better serve my country in this time of war. Since I am unable to get into the armed forces at this time and in view of the existing crisis, I feel that I can be of service to Texas and the Panhandle in the forthcoming 48th legislature of Texas. For that reason I announced as a candidate for the office of State Representative of the 120th Legislative District of Texas, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary on July 25 next.

In making the announcement, I did so without prior commitments on any particular issue or subject to any potential legislation. At this time I do not propose to make any specific or unqualified commitments. Should I do so, I would be honor bound to adhere to the same regardless of the demand that may arise for preferential legislation designed to protect our very existence in the prosecution of our war objectives. None know what the next few months may bring, nor do we know the sacrifices that we may be called upon to make, the denials and privations that we may suffer in order to preserve the American and Democratic way of life. Too often in recent years have our representatives in state and national government sponsored and endorsed legislation only to realize their mistake and see the folly of their idle promises. In these dark and revolutionary days, a policy of legislative promises would, in my opinion, be unfair and perilous to the citizens I propose to represent.

My only pledge to the people of the 120th legislative district, if they see fit to send me to the legislature, is: I will always bear in mind that I am a servant of the people in my district and not controlled by a few vested interests. I am for the present state and national administration in their all-out war effort and I will continue to cooperate with them at all times. I realize that the tax burden is now tremendous and should not be increased unless absolutely necessary. I will fight to abolish unequal taxation and to see that the Texas Panhandle gets its share of the tax dollar. I believe that improvements should be made in facilities used to take care of the mental cases waiting to be transferred to our state institutions. I believe that the indigent, the aged, the needy and otherwise unfortunate should receive every consideration; that our educational facilities should be extended and promoted in order to guarantee the future welfare of our American youth. I will not assent to any vote, bill or resolution which shall appear to me to be injurious to the people I propose to represent; neither will I vote for any legislation or act that will tend to lessen or abridge the rights and privileges we now enjoy under our own constitution.

Upon the above and foregoing statements I have submitted my candidacy. Due to the present emergency and in my effort to cooperate with the national administration in the conservation of war materials, I regret that I will be unable to see and talk with each of you personally. I hope that you will accept this statement as a personal plea for your vote. I assure you that your constructive counsel and advice is sought and always welcome.

Respectfully yours,
A. Foy Curry, Jr.

Banking In Tomorrow's World
The trend of banking has been toward more complete financial services for the individual. In part this trend is due to the desire of banks to be of maximum helpfulness, and in part to the growing complexity of modern life, which accents the importance of individual financial management.

This trend will continue, we believe, into the world of tomorrow. This bank, for one, will continue to study the needs of the average individual and to provide new or improved banking services whenever necessary.

Littlefield Banker Dies In Wreck Monday Night

John C. Elms, 40, cashier of the First National Bank at Littlefield, was killed almost instantly Monday night when a car in which he was riding struck a parked pickup truck four miles north of Littlefield on highway 51.

Grover Dennis, Littlefield druggist, who was driving the car in which Elms was riding, remained in a Littlefield hospital Tuesday with minor injuries. Mrs. Lewis Foley, wife of the pickup owner, was dismissed after treatment. Authorities said Dennis and Elms had been to Fieldton to attend a political rally and were returning to Littlefield when the accident happened about 10:30 o'clock.

Foley was fixing a flat tire at the side of the road. His four-year-old son, standing near the car, was uninjured. Lights of another machine going north and facing Dennis blinded him, he told officials. He said he did not see the Foley car. Elms is survived by his wife, who was in Dallas when informed of the mishap, his father, Bob Elms of Waco, two brothers, and a sister, living in Erick, Okla.

I advise thee to visit thy relations and friends; but I advise thee not to live too near them. —Thomas Fuller

C. D. Russell

Candidate For

District Judge

In offering myself as candidate for District Judge, I do so upon the record made by me, both as to economy and fair and just administration of the duties of this office.

As there seems to be, particularly in Lamb County, a question in some voters' minds as to whether I am running for a second or third term, I take this opportunity of explaining to you my exact position in that regard.

I AM RUNNING FOR MY SECOND FULL TERM AS DISTRICT JUDGE. I was elected to fill out the remaining part of the term of Judge R. C. Joiner, and then was re-elected for a full term.

If you feel that my past record merits a continuation of your support and influence, the same will be deeply appreciated.

C. D. Russell
