Valley Basks In Ideal Weather

This past week has seen ideal growing conditions for crops in the Valley, hot and dry. This year has been most unusual, weatherwise. According to Briscoe County Agent Earnest Kiker, the Silverton area has received approximately 20 inches of moisture since January 1, 1979. This has delayed planting and replanting. The Plains area has received more damage due to the heavy rains, hail and high winds and due to the fact that they can expect a freeze at least two weeks earlier than the Valley, some of the fields may be unproductive this year.

According to the reports from Turkey and Quitaque, the rains have not left that much damage. The hot, dry days this week have brought up the cotton in four days, according to report, and it has been ideal growing weather. It is reported that the crops will have an excellent chance to go to maturity barring another disaster.

Acteens Entertain Baptist Women

Tuesday morning, July 3, at 10 o'clock, two Baptist Acteens, Patti and Dana Ramsey, completing a step in their mission work, were presented to the Baptist Women in a program.

Mrs. Glenn Ramsey, Acteen leader, opened with prayer before refreshments of dainty sandwiches, cookies, coffee and tea were served.

The two girls gave a delightful puppet show, then read letters from foreign missionaries after a prayer was led for the missionaries by Mrs. Frank Robinson.

The focal point was a table centered with one big candle, representing Christ, surrounded by fourteen small candles representing the missionaries who had birthdays that day. The names of the missionaries were read and a special prayer was led by Mrs. Gladys Stroup for these missionaries.

The Little League Game was impressive, with Quitaque winning by a score of 18 to 13. The game was good, with every player getting into the game. The players did a good job defensively, and several of the boys and girls got some good hits.

Scoring for Turkey were Will Williams, two; Shorty Kimbell, three; Wes Farley, two; Lee Smith, one; Kirk Bell, two; Fernando Silva, two; Bo Garvin, two and Angie Edwards, one.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYERS

There was a split decision on the Pee Wee team Most Valuable Player this week. Sharing the honor are Lane Myers and Scott Saul.

Lane Myers was chosen for his outstanding home run hit, and for a good job at first base and short stop. Lane gives a good performance where he is placed. He is nine years old and will be in the fifth grade next school term. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Deloy Myers.

Scott Saul was chosen for his ability to play as catcher. He always hustles and gives the team his best in every way. He is nine years old and will be a fourth grader next school year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Saul.

The Little League Player of the Week is Criss Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murry Wayne Morrison. He is 12 years old and will be in the seventh grade this fall.

Criss was selected for his outstanding play as fielder. He saved at least one run in every that has been played. He is a big asset to the team.

Wasp May Soon Help Cotton Farmers

One of the cotton grower's worst fears may be coming true. Cotton bollworms and tobacco budworms, which destroy about a billion dollars worth of the nation's crop annually, are getting tougher to control each crop season.

A possible solution is a tiny parasitic wasp. A wasp no bigger than the period at the end of this sentence.

The generic name for these tiny wasps is Trichogramma, and they are a natural parasite of bollworm and budworm eggs. A mass-producing facility, operated at the USDA/SEA Cotton Insects Research Lab in College Station by Richard Morrison, hatches and rears these wasps by the millions under controlled conditions as a part of a major pest management project.

The way Trichogramma works to combat bollworms and budworms can be effective, and does not present some of the problems that are sometimes associated with the broad spectrum insecticides. The wasps are usually flown on a field by airplane. The Trichogramma then find the budworm or bollworm eggs on a cotton plant and sting the eggs to kill them. They bore a hole in each egg and lay their own egg inside. When the Trichogramma egg hatches, it goes through the larval and pupal stages within the budworm or bollworm egg and then emerges as an adult, ready to find more eggs. By releasing large numbers of Trichogramma, scientists at College Station have been able to achieve high levels of kill of pest eggs in heavily infested fields of cotton.

"Farmers are beginning to realize that beneficial insects such as the Trichogramma wasps are a valuable resource," said Dr. Roger Ables, another of the scientists working on biological control at College Station. "Under the proper conditions beneficial insects can be quite useful, if you can conserve them through careful and selective use of insecticides, then it may be possible to reduce the costs of pest control."

"We've got to get away from our dependence on broad spectrum insecticides. Those that wipe out everything in the field. We've got to go to more selective chemicals which affect the target pest while having relatively little or no effect on our beneficial insects."

Some of the research funding for Trichogramma was made possible by cotton producers through Cotton Incorporated.

The economic loss by budworms and bollworms on cotton has been something like about 500 million dollars, and to all crops nearly one billion dollars per year. Thus, biological control may represent a logical answer to the problem: with more research. Trichogramma may prove to be an important weapon in our pest control arsenal.

SIDEDRESSING CROPS WITH NITROGEN

Due to late planting caused by unfavorable weather, some farmers need to consider nitrogen sidedressing, recommends Buddy C. Logsdon, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Early nitrogen applications—within 30 days after planting if possible—are important where no fertilizer was applied at or before planting. Nitrogen sidedressing is also important for late-planted crops.

If some nitrogen has already been applied, the sidedressing can be put in the row middle. Otherwise, apply the nitrogen closer to the row so it can reach the roots sooner. Of course, take care not to damage plant roots and beds, cautions Logsdon.

Incorporate the fertilizer into the soil's top four inches to hasten its availability, suggests Logsdon. Also, soluble nitrogen will reach roots sooner.

Phosphorus sidedressing is generally not profitable. Logsdon says most crops need a good supply of readily available phosphorus in the seedling root zone, and delayed application fails to meet this need.

The objective of sidedressing is to apply fertilizer quickly so it will be available to plants as soon as possible, adds Logsdon.

County Fashion Revue Held Friday

The Briscoe County Fashion Revue, "Clothing Reflections," was held at the First Baptist Church in Silverton on Friday, June 29.

Contestants modeled garments they had made themselves in the clothing groups.

There were seven participants: Stacie Chappell, Katrice Minyard, Devona Smith, Carman Juarez, Kristy Fogerson, D'Anna Smith, junior division, and Cynthia Edwards, senior division.

Two 4-H members from Briscoe County will model their fashions in this year's District 2 4-H Fashion Revue Friday, July 6, on the campus of Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

They are Kristy Fogerson, junior division, and Cynthia Edwards, senior division.

Members from 4-H clubs in 20 South Plains counties will compete for honors and the right to represent the district in state competition. Theme for this year's event is "Fashion Fever." The contest and revue will be held in the Home Economics Building at Tech.

Already these entrants have won in county competition. Contestants are judged on their sewing and construction skills, overall appearance, modeling ability and their 4-H record books.

Contestants in the district competition will register at the Texas Tech Home Economics Building at 2:00 p.m. Judging will begin at 2:30 p.m. At 5:30 p.m., participants and their parents will be guests of Plains Co-op Oil Mill at a dinner in the University Center ballroom.

Contestants will model their fashions in a revue at 7:00 p.m. in the home economics auditorium. The revue is open to the public.

In addition to naming the top seniors who will compete in the State 4-H Fashion Revue in September in Waco, awards also will go to the contestants making the best all-cotton outfit and the best all-wool/mohair garment, and those having the best record books.

Two junior level contests will be staged at the same time as senior competition. These younger 4-H members, ages 9-11 and 12-14, will not compete beyond the district level.

Awards will be presented to the participants by the Plains Co-op Oil Mill.

THE VALLEY TRIBUNE

THE VALLEY TRIBUNE THURSDAY, JULY 5, 1979

Jean Setliff of Plainview and Theresa Setliff of Houston spent the day with Mrs. Elmer Self in Turkey.

Kaylene and James visited at Plains with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chambliss, and with Betty's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Chambliss of Lovington, New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Green,

For the past twenty-four years I have worked in Quitaque as a beautician, and you, my friends, and patrons, made that possible.

Thank you so much for your support during that time, but my heartfelt thanks for the friendship you have shown. I have made friends through my work that I would have never known otherwise, and I thank God for the opportunity He gave me to be of service to you.
