THE ROUNDUP is an unofficial newspaper published weekly under exclusive written agreement with the 64th Flying Training Wing Commander in the interest of personnel of Reese AFB, Texas, of Air Training Command. It is published by Barron Publications, Inc., a private firm, in no way connected with the Department of the Air Force. Opinions expressed by the publisher and writers in this publication are their own and are not to be considered an official expression of the Department of the Air Force. The appearance of advertisements, including inserts, in this publication does not constitute an endorsement by the Department of the Air Force of products or services advertised.

Welcome

As wing commander at Reese, I want to welcome our civilian guests to the base annual open house. The people of Reese have worked hard to put on the best open house possible for you and we hope you enjoy yourselves as you get a close look at our base. We're proud of Reese, we think we're doing a fine job here and we hope you get a sense of this pride during your visit.

Those of us who wear the Air Force Blue understand the importance of the job we've chosen to do. We also realize how important it is for us to have the support of the people who pay the bills: the American taxpayers. And that's why we think it's important for us to give you a look at what we do "inside the fence."

So while you're here, look around; ask questions; find out a little more about the Air Force than you knew when you drive through the gate. I think you'll be pleased with what you see. Like I said: We're proud of Reese and we want you to be too.

Enjoy your visit.

President salutes 35th anniversary

As commander-in-chief, I take great pleasure in commemorating the 35th anniversary of the United States Air Force. On this proud and happy occasion, we celebrate the establishment of the Air Force as a full and separate part of our military services.

Through these years the men and women of the Air Force have provided dedicated service to our nation and the defense of freedom around the world. This branch of service has repeatedly demonstrated far-sighted leadership and guidance in its role as defender of our skies. From the blockade of West Berlin to the war in Southeast Asia, this part of our military force has not only successfully carried out its mission, but has also played an instrumental role in the world affairs and the course of history.

It is with courage and distinction that the United States Air Force has earned a well-deserved reputation for excellence on the ground, in flight, and in directing our aerospace efforts. All Americans take great pride in the accomplishments of the Air Force and look to it for inspiration in meeting the challenges of the future.

The devotion to duty of the civilians and military members of the United States Air Force plays a crucial part in preserving the freedom and independence of our nation and truly reflects the best in the American patriotic spirit. But beyond that, the vision of the Air Force has pushed forward the limits of man's imagination and captured the sense of adventure that is the hallmark of American achievement.

"May the United States Air Force continue to carry out its mission with success and distinction in the future.

President Ronald Reagan

Verne Orr notes proud AF history

Since it became a separate military service 35 years ago, the United States Air Force has tailored its operations to two major principles.

The first is to maintain a strong and modern force, optimally equipped and manned, fully capable of meeting any anticipated threat. The second is to provide the American public with a full and open report of Air Force stewardship of tax dollars spent for national defense.

Despite rapid and continuing innovations in weapons, tactics, and strategic concepts over the past decades, people continue to be the key to combat capability. Operating as a total force, Air Force men and women — active duty, Air National Guard, Reserve and civilian — work and train to safeguard our nation's security.

Although the Air Force came into being in 1947, its origins extend back 75 years to the founding of the Aeronautical Division of the Army Signal Corps in 1970.

Tribute on this 35th anniversary of the Air Force belongs to those who served during that time and to those earlier pioneers who dreamed and worked for the recognition of airpower as a decisive dimension of military strength.

I salute the dedicated men and women of the U.S. Air Force and express my deep appreciation for a job well done.

*Verne Orr
Secretary of the Air Force*

Air Serv. formed in Aug. 1907

by MSgt. Jim Troyer
Langley AFB, Va.

It was 75 years ago this August when Capt. Charles de Forest Chandler received a memo putting him in charge of the American air force.

The year was 1907, four years after the Wright brothers' success at Kitty Hawk. But balloons, not airplanes, were the passion of the day. Thus, the U.S. Air Service began not with the sputter of aircraft engines, but with the silence of hot air balloons.

The best ballooning was in Europe, so that's where Captain Chandler and 1st Lt. Frank P. Lahm spent their leave time. Lieutenant Lahm won the first International Balloon Race in France in 1906. His success prompted the newly formed Aero Club of America to offer a trophy to anyone who could do better.

Captain Chandler and J.C. McCoy took off from St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 17, 1907. They touched down 473 miles away at Walton, W. Va., to claim the prize.

With his flying experience, the soaring captain was the obvious choice to head up the Army's new aeronautical division. One of his first tasks, according to the opening chapter of today's Air Force regulation on public affairs, was to put out a press release. That, of course, also made him the Air Force's first public affairs officer.

Captain Chandler did not allow his love of ballooning to obscure his interest in the Wright brothers' new invention.

Base operation began in 1941

Lubbock Army Air Corps Advanced Flying School was officially established by the War Department June 26, 1941, shortly after the citizens of Lubbock County had donated almost 2,000 acres of land in western Lubbock County to the federal government for construction of a military air field. The field began operating in late 1941, and the training of Aviation Cadets began on Feb. 25, 1942 with the arrival of Class 42-E. Subsequently the base became known as Lubbock Army Air School and later Lubbock Army Air Field on April 26, 1943, then Lubbock Army Air Base on Jan. 13, 1948 before finally becoming Reese Air Force Base.

That first class graduated April 29, 1942 after training in the single engine AT-6s. Class 42-H, graduated on Sept. 6, 1942 and was the first of many to train twin-engine pilots in the AT-9 and AT-17.

On June 21, 1942 the field was formally dedicated during its first open house. By the end of World War II a total of 7,008 bomber, fighter and transport pilots had been trained at the facility. With the end of the war, the base was closed down Dec. 31, 1945.

During the period it was closed, the base was used as a housing area for veterans and their families. National guard units also used the base for training.

The base was reactivated Aug. 1, 1940, with the 3500th Pilot Training Wing moving to Reese from Barksdale AF Base, La. The wing was redesignated as the 64th Flying Training Wing April 14, 1972.

Reese was named in honor of Lieutenant Augustus F. Reese, Jr., a native of nearby Shallowater, Texas, during a ceremony on Nov. 5, 1949. Lieutenant Reese was killed in action during World War II while flying a combat mission in a P-38 against an enemy railroad supply train. He was lost in Cagliari, Sardinia, Italy, on May 14, 1943.

Many training airplanes have been used at Reese. During World War II the AT-6 Texan, AT-7 Navigator, AT-9 Jeep, AT-10 Wichita, and AT-17 Bobcat all were flown. Following reactivation, the T-28A flew from January 1951 into early 1955. Perhaps the best known training aircraft to fly at Reese was the TB-25 Mitchell. The TB-25 flew from September 3, 1945 through January 1959 and was used as the only trainer from January 1955 to September 1955. The last TB-25 to fly at Reese is now on display at the main entrance to the base. Reese was

Food — ★★★

Price — $5

The quickest and shortest way from Dallas to the Mexican border no longer takes you through Waco, Austin and San Antonio, which is almost equidistant from Nuevo Laredo and Piedras Negras.

Nowadays, the shortest route to the border is to go west on Northwest Highway until it becomes Spur 348. A little beyond Stemmons Freeway and Walton Walker Boulevard, just past the Texas Honky Tonk and the super Estrella at the corner of Northwest Highway and Spangler Road, there's a chocolate brown building that looks like a cinderblock warehouse.

One step through the building's doorway will take you the remaining 634 miles to the border.

What you will experience defies description in a single word.

I guess we could call it a restore or a giftaurant. Whatever.

The Mercado Juarez is a cross between a restaurant and a dry goods store or gift shop. Oh, yeah. I almost forgot. There's a bakery, too. And a bar.

A Chicana dining companion who hails from El Paso proclaimed that the giftaurant serves the "most authentic Mexican food in town," and I'd have to agree. But if the food alone isn't attraction enough, you might be lured into driving halfway to nowhere by the biggest stockpile of imported Mexican goods in the Dallas area.

In addition to the mesquite-broiled steaks, cabrito and shrimp that are the house specialties, you also can buy anything else in the building, including the colorfully painted, highbacked chair you sit on while eating your lunch or dinner.

The mercado (market) part of the establishment offers everything from trinkets and toys costing as little as $1 to a dining room suite with eight chairs for $1,250. There are of course, guayabera shirts and sombreros, embroidered skirts and dresses from Oaxaca, those giant crepe paper flowers, woven baskets, wood carvings and clay flower pots. Not to mention the pottery, blown glass and sculptures.

And I'm told you can haggle over the prices, just like in Mexico.

The food and drink prices are not negotiable, but they are reasonable.

The appetizers, most of which will serve more than one person, average about $3, and on the recommendation of our waiter, we found that three adults were more than satisfied with only two orders of the 10.95 house special, a combination of mesquite-roasted cabrito, (baby goat), steak and shrimp — all of which are served on small charcoal braziers which are placed in the center of your table.

The Mercado Juarez has a very limited menu, offering three charbroiled meat plates: enchiladas made with chicken, beef or cheese, a lone taco plate, and three desserts.

We sampled three appetizers, and highly recommend the Chile con queso (3.25) which was the best we've had anywhere.

In place of the melted cheddar and jalapeno concoction we've come to expect, we were delightfully surprised by a bubbling hot casserole of Monterey jack cheese with onions, tomatoes and poblano peppers, generous spoons of which we ladled onto flour tortillas.

Also recommended are the Nachos Juaritos ($5.95), bean and cheese nachos topped with sour cream, guacamole and strips of charbroiled steak.

The mesquite-roasted cabrito, which tastes almost like lamb, was the best I'd tasted in years. The meat was moist and tender, and the size of the bones belied any suggestion that the meat came from an older goat.

Also much admired is the salsa picante that is served hot (both with fire and peppers) and is heavily seasoned with cumin. Eating this salsa with tostadas is a little like eating peanuts: you can't stop after just one.

The charbroiled beef resembles pieces of flank steak that had been marinated in soy sauce and a liquid smoke preparation. It was tender and flavorful, but little of the flavor is attributable to the mesquite logs that are occasionally tossed onto a bed of charcoal briquets and are consumed without producing much smoke.

The mango custard is about the best of the dessert offerings.

The restaurant presently does not accept reservations, is open for both lunch and dinner seven days a week, and honors the three major credit cards. Dress is casual.

the last basic training school to use the old war bird.

The first jet trainer, the T-33A Shooting Star, was introduced on Sept. 4, 1958. The second jet trainer, the T-37A "Tweet", entered the program March 13, 1961 and is still being used as the primary jet trainer today. Training went supersonic in Sept. 1963 when the T-38B Talon replaced the T-33A. Training still continues in the advanced flying stages in the T-38. Many of these aircraft are now operating with more than 10,000 hours of flying time. From 1965 through 1973, the T-41A Mescalero, a military version of the Cessna 172, was used as a preflight trainer. These flights were flown from what is now Lubbock International Airport. Students now receive preflight training before they arrive at Reese.

On Aug. 11, 1977 the Air Force's first Undergraduate Pilot Training Instrument Flight Simulator became operational at Reese, when the members of class 78-06 began training in the T-37 simulator. Class 78-07 began training in the T-38 simulator on Feb. 27, 1978 and was the first class to undergo the full UPT course using the UPT/IFS. The UPT/IFS facility houses eight each T-37 and T-38 simulator cockpits plus their associated visual computer equipment. The majority of instrument training is conducted in the simulator, thus reducing the number of aircraft flying hours necessary. This training results in substantial savings in fuel, aircraft wear and tear, and maintenance expenses.

The years have brought many changes to Reese. Silver wings have now been pinned on more than 21,000 new pilots since 1941. These totals include about 200 sergeants who graduated during World War II as members of Classes 42-G, 42-H, 42-I and 42-J. Between August 1949 and Sept. 14, 1961, when the last cadet graduated, 4,005 Aviation Cadets were graduated. The cadets were commissioned as second lieutenants upon successful completion of their flying training and supplemented the production of already commissioned officers who entered the program. Included in Reese's total number of graduates are more than 1,000 foreign students from more than 50 countries.

On Sept. 21, 1979 UPT Class 79-08 graduated Reese's first three woman pilots. Now, most, if not all classes include women students along with the men. Women have served alongside the men at Reese continually since the first contingent of Women's Army Air Corps personnel arrived at Lubbock Army Air Field in June 1943.

In April 1961, Reese was named as one of seven Air Training Command bases designated to conduct undergraduate pilot training. This brought an end to the three-phase program where preflight, primary, and basic training were given at three different bases. As set up now, UPT is conducted at Reese in three phases over a 49-week period. These phases are: ground preflight training, T-37 flying training, and T-38 flying training.

In the late 1980s, the T-46A "Next Generation trainer" (NGT) is scheduled to replace the T-37B at Reese as the jet trainer to be flown in the primary phase of UPT. Plans are also being discussed to replace Reese's T-38s with an executive type jet trainer aircraft during the same time period so that Reese can concentrate on training pilots for the Air Force's fleets of tanker, transport and bomber aircraft into the next century.

Many new facilities have been constructed, but the mission of Reese has remained—and apparently will remain—the same: To train top quality military pilots.

THE NEXT GENERATION TRAINER, T-46A. This artist's sketch displays the jet slated to replace the T-37 later this decade.

Tweety Bird trainer

Nicknamed "Tweety Bird," the T-37 became a part of Reese's Undergraduate Pilot Training in April 1961.

Student pilots train in the 350-mile-per-hour twin-engine jet aircraft as part of their first phase flying training at Reese. Each student receives 90 hours of training in the T-37 in which its design allows the student and instructor to sit side-by-side for training purposes.

The aircraft, built by Cessna Aircraft Corp., is often referred to as "the 7,000 pound dog whistle" due to its high-pitched noise. The aircraft is 29 feet long, nine feet high and has a wing span of 34 feet. Weighing 6,600 pounds, including 300 pounds of fuel, the aircraft is capable of climbing to 35,000 feet.

Student pilots are able to get the feel of handling larger, faster tactical jet aircraft used in the Air Force by training in the T-37.

There are more than 690 T-37s used by Air Training Command for pilot training.

When the T-37 first arrived at Reese it was used along with the T-33. The T-37 will itself be replaced by the T-46A Next Generation Trainer, scheduled to begin operational service in 1987.

Reese pilot training graduates about 450 new aviators a year

United States Air Force pilots are among the best trained and most professional aviators in the world. More than 450 student pilots train and graduate from Reese annually.

Air Force pilots must enter pilot training prior to age 27 and one-half, and they must be a commissioned officer. All student pilots are sent to one of the five Air Training Command Bases that conduct pilot training.

Initial training is conducted in the twin-engine, subsonic T-37 jet, a fast and rugged aircraft that is equal in speed and maneuverability to most of the fighters of World War II. Students receive 75 hours of flying instruction in the T-37 as part of their first phase of training.

During the first phase, the student pilot and instructor, seated side-by-side in the T-37, are assigned a specific practice area. During the 80 minute practice session, the student learns the characteristics of the aircraft; emergency procedures; take off and landing techniques; aerobatics; and formation flying. The students also practice night, instrument, and navigation flying, including cross country flying.

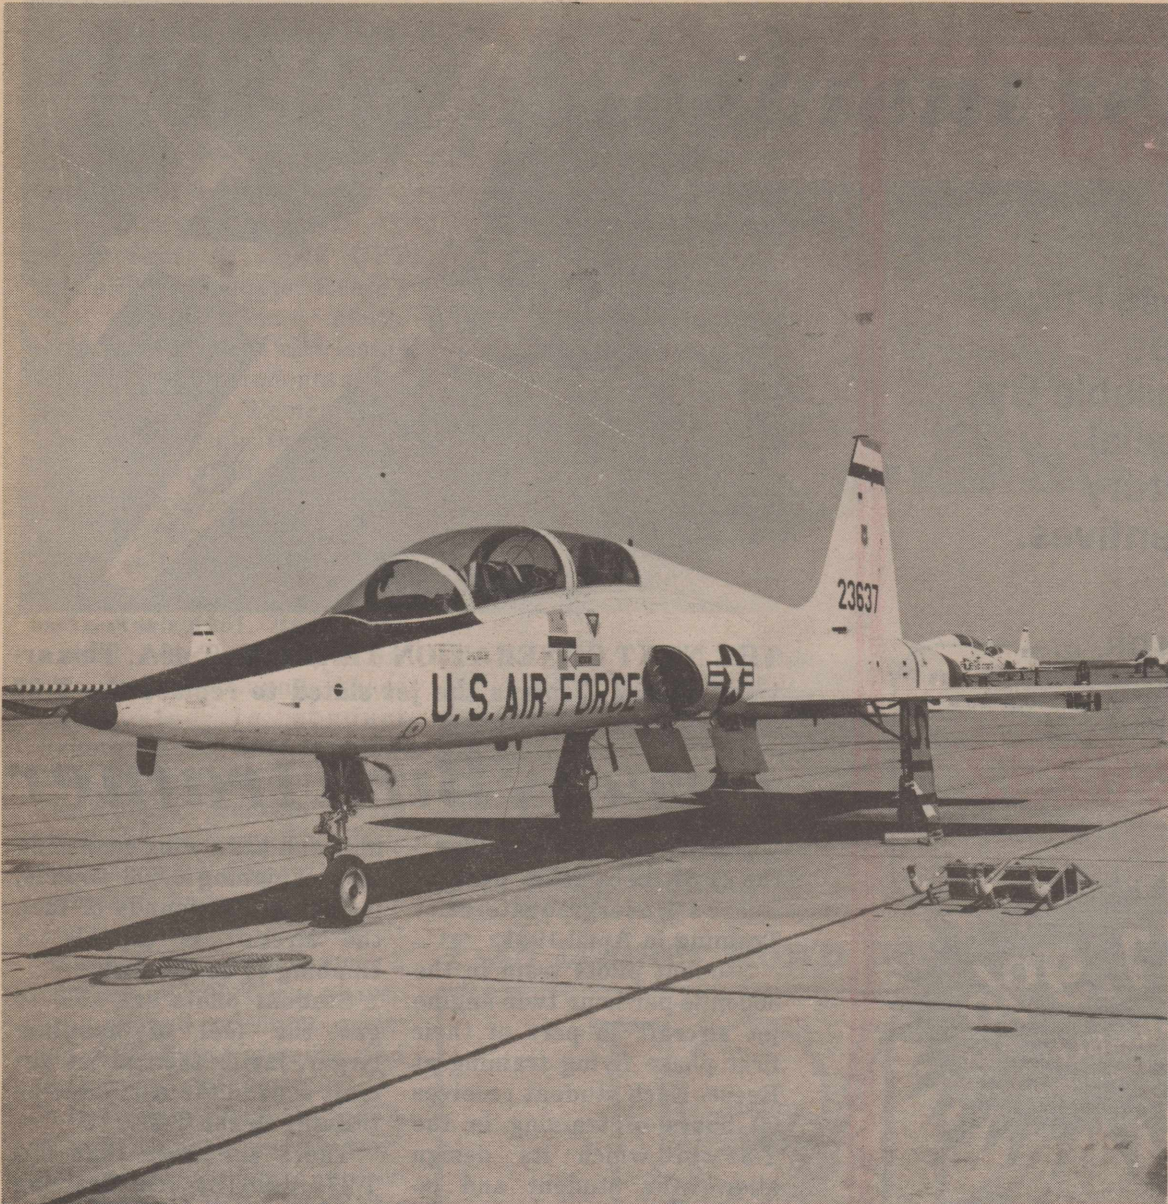

After the T-37 phase of training, the student makes the transition to the T-38 Talon, the Air Force's first supersonic undergraduate pilot training aircraft. Its twin jet engines boost the Talon to speeds in excess of 800 miles per hour and to an altitude above 50,000 feet. The T-38 provides excellent preparation for future transition to high-speed operational aircraft.

Of the 101 flying hours in the T-38, the student spends approximately 37 hours on contact missions, 17 hours on navigation flights, from five to 11 hours on instruments, and from 37 to 41 hours on formation flying.

During the time the student is not flying, much of the 12 hour workday is taken up with academics, officer development, cockpit familiarization trainer practice, or evening study. Academic training includes performance computation, flight planning, weather, aerospace physiology, aircraft systems operation, aircraft accident prevention, applied aerodynamics, flight instruments, and instrument procedures.

After a year's intensive training the student pilot realizes the dream of becoming an Air Force pilot when presented with the silver pilot's wings during graduation ceremonies.

Flying the T-38 Talon

The T-38 Talon first flew in 1959 and arrived at Reese Jan. 11, 1963 to replace the T-33 jet trainer for undergraduate pilot training.

Used as part of the second phase training for Reese's student pilots the Talon is a twin-engine, high-altitude, supersonic jet trainer.

The Talon is used primarily by the Air Training Command for undergraduate pilot and instructor pilot training. Tactical Air Command, Strategic Air Command, Air Force Systems Command, Air Force Logistics Command and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration also use the jet in various roles.

Students fly the T-38A in pilot training to learn supersonic techniques, aerobatics, night and instrument flying and cross-country navigation. More than 50,000 pilots have earned their wings in the T-38A.

The Talon is capable can exceed 50,000 feet in altitude, but needs as little as 2,300 feet of runway to take off. It can climb from sea level to 30,000 feet in one minute. The Talon can also reach 812 miles per hour.

During training, the student pilots sit in front of the instructor pilot. Unlike the side-by-side seating in the T-37. Students spend 101 hours for flying training in the T-38 during their second phase training.

AF celebrates 35th anniversary

The United States Air Force celebrates its 35th anniversary as a separate military service tomorrow.

Historically, its origins are more than twice as old—stemming from founding of the Aeronautical Division of the U.S. Army Signal Corps in 1907.

Saluting the past as they train today, the anniversary theme of Air Force men and women is "Ready Then—Ready Now."

Many still alive can remember the news of the first successful powered flight of a heavier-than-air flying machine at Kitty Hawk,

N.C., in 1903. Spanning the years between the 120-foot solo of Orville Wright and today's global missions and beyond, the growth of aviation has been as spectacular as the launch of an Air Force missile.

Fostered in World War I, the potential of airpower flashed bright reflections from the shiny, canvas-covered wings of combat-locked fighter, bomber and reconnaissance aircraft.

Front-mounted machine guns, firing through whirling, wooden propellers, were the weapons of attack. Today's equivalent fighters can knock out a 60-ton tank or disable a ship at sea.

Airpower displayed its might in World War II as allied aircraft exerted decisive pressure in attaining unconditional surrender of the Axis powers.

Flushed with honors won in two world wars, the Air Force was recognized as a separate service, co-equal with the Army and Navy, on Sept. 18, 1947.

Within a year, its aircrews flew to new fame in Operation Vittles, history's largest peacetime demonstration of airpower. Flying Berlin Airlift missions around the clock, Air Force and allied pilots transported more than 2 million tons of food, medicine, and coal to the beleaguered citizens of the former German capital. The 15-month operation answered the Soviet blockade of the Western sector of the isolated city, by affirming America's commitment to a free West Berlin and impressing the world that American airpower was a force to be reckoned with.

Despite peaceful resolution of the 1948-49 Berlin Blockade, the fires of war soon flared in Korea. Answering the call of the United Nations, U.S. Air Force jets rose to defend South Korea from attack by the communist north. Earning an aerial victory margin of 10-1, over Soviet-built MIG-15s, Air Force pilots proved the superiority of the training and aircraft.

Historians record that had it not been for the U.S. Far East Air Forces, South Korea would not be an independent nation today.

In Vietnam, the Air Force again carried the war to the enemy. Flying cargo aircraft, helicopters, fighters, fixed-wing gunships and bombers, its airmen provided close air support to ground forces, aerial resupply to forward areas, air strikes on enemy supply lines and medical evacuation.

In each area of operation the Air Force established new standards of efficiency, resulting in the best-fed, the best-cared for and the best Air Force-supported fighting man the world has known.

By conflict's end, the application of airpower was credited with sparking peace talks that, after four years, led to the freeing of American prisoners of war.

Though the regulations might phrase it differently, U.S. airmen say their mission is to fly and fight.

As any third grader who has faced a bully knows, preservation of peace and independence depends on being strong and ready. The same goes for the United States.

Today's Air Force of 828,000 military men and women in the active-duty and reserve forces and a contingent of 247,000 civilians is strong and ready now. With the support of the nation it will continue so. (AFNS)—

“Friends of Reese” total six

by TSgt. Bill Miller
NCOIC, Public Affairs

Two people were made official “Friends of Reese” in ceremonies at Building 800 Friday morning, raising the number in that distinguished group to six.

Bill McMillan, president and owner of the W.G. McMillan Construction Company of Lubbock; and Douglas Boren, vice-chairman of the board of Security National Bank of Lubbock, were the latest recipients of this honor, the highest made by Reese to civilian supporters of its mission.

Both men received portraits of themselves, which now hang in the lobby of Bldg. 800.

McMillan was the first to receive his award. A Lubbock native, he holds a bachelor of science degree from Texas Tech University in business management and architectural engineering. He has held numerous positions in the McMillan Construction Company, which was founded by his father and which has built many of the facilities at Reese.

He served three years as chairman of the Armed Services Committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, is a member of the Defense Orientation Conference Association and acted as host to the Crown Prince of Iran during the prince’s pilot training here. He has a son in the class of 1984 at the Air Force Academy.

Doug Boren is another long-time supporter of Reese and, besides being named a Friend of Reese, he also recently received the Air Force Scroll of Appreciation for his efforts.

Like McMillan, Boren has served as chairman of the Lubbock Chamber’s Armed Services Committee. He has been Texas Wing Group Commander of the Civil Air Patrol as well as president and treasurer of the Lubbock chapter of the Air Force Association. He’s been actively involved in improving Lubbock-Reese relations through the workings of the Base-Community Council, civilian orientation tours, joint planning conferences and specific initiatives to improve life at Reese, such as drives to completely remodel and refurbish the VIP suits at the Reese Visiting Officers’ Quarters and to refurbish the lounge at the Reese Professional Military Education Center.

Col. Richard E. Hearne, wing commander, presented the awards, noting that “we couldn’t have picked two better guys for this. They’ve supported me in my job tremendously.”

McMillan and Boren are the fifth and sixth people to be named “Friends of Reese.” The others are L.E. “Jack” Davis, U.S. Representative George Mahon, Charles Guy and Dr. O.W. English.

All the “Friends of Reese” portraits have been drawn by Carlos Jordan, quality assurance evaluator for the base audio-visual services.

Project Warrior

This week's Project Warrior book review: To the Marianas: War in the Central Pacific, 1944.

To the Marianas: War in the Central Pacific, 1944 by Edwin P. Hoyt, New York: Van Nostrand Reinhold, 1980, 292 pages, $12.95.

As allies of the victors, the Japanese suffered only one casualty during World War I. Yet at the Versailles peace conference they were rewarded with League of Nations' mandates over the Marshall, Caroline, and Marianas island groups. In a separate pact, concluded in 1921, the United States recognized those mandates in exchange for the right to put a cable through Yap Island. (The United States never ratified the Versailles Treaty, thus necessitating the separate accord.) In World War II America paid dearly for the mandates so matter-of-factly accepted two decades earlier.

In this sequel to his Storm over the Gilberts (1978), Edwin P. Hoyt, a military historian and journalism instructor at the University of Hawaii, argues that the costly experience of the Gilberts helped the United States military better prepare for the Marianas undertaking. Yet persistent squabbling between the Army and the Marine Corps leadership and the courageous resistance of the Japanese forces rendered the Marianas a difficult and costly campaign.

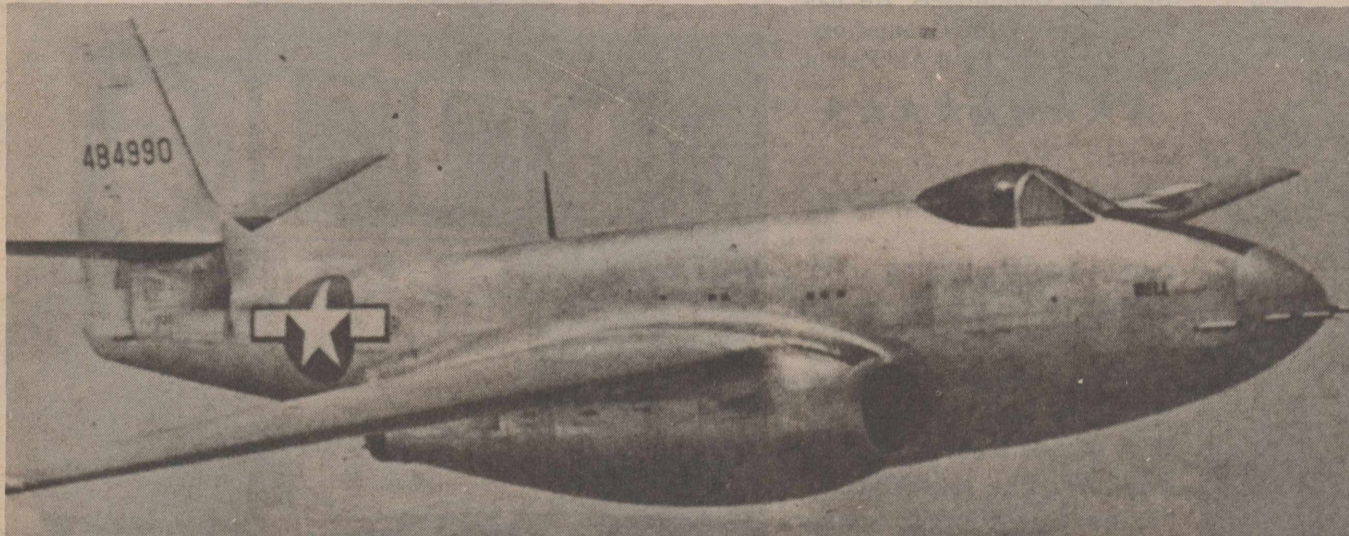

The hard-fought victory in the Marianas brought about a fundamental change in American strategy in the Pacific theater. Previously, the Pacific Ocean Command, under Admiral Chester Nimitz, had been given the lead in the war against Japan with General Douglas MacArthur's Southwest Pacific Command in a support role. In July 1944, President Franklin Roosevelt became convinced that MacArthur's plan to retake the Philippines made more sense both militarily and politically than did the planned move against Japanese-occupied China. The campaign against the Marianas had demonstrated that larger land masses could not be readily taken by the techniques used previously by the Marine Corps on smaller islands. Instead, a slow army advance along a broad front appeared to have the greatest hope of success. From this juncture, Roosevelt concluded, MacArthur and the Army would take the lead in the war in the Pacific with the Philippines as the near-term objective. The Navy would be relegated to a support position.

Hoyt's study is crisply written and insightful. It would be of value to anyone interested in the Pacific conflict and the myriad problems inherent therein.

Combined Federal Campaign

Goal $91,500

Reese launches '83 CFC

The 1983 Combined Federal Campaign kicks off here Tuesday morning under the direction of Wing Commander Col. Richard E. Hearne.

Assisting Colonel Hearne with this year's CFC campaign are vice-chairmen, 1st Lt. Jackie Lopez at Reese and Lee Holmes in Lubbock. Holmes works for the Federal Aviation Administration.

As campaign chairman, Colonel Hearne is responsible for offering all federal employees in the Lubbock area a chance to contribute to CFC.

This annual campaign is a total effort on the federal employee's part to contribute to the United Way, National Health Agencies and International Service Agencies. Having consolidated several charitable organizations into one campaign, federal employees can contribute once a year to the charity or charities of their choice.

The 1983 CFC goal for Reese is $91,500, which is only part of the total Lubbock federal goal of $134,000.

CFC is the only authorized fund-raising drive allowed for federal agencies. As such, most federal employees elect to make contributions compatible with those listed in the voluntary giving guide, according to Colonel Hearne.

Amounts listed in the guide are based upon the ideal that an hour's wages per month is a fair share for federal workers to contribute. All donations are voluntary and contributors may give more than the suggested amounts if they wish.

Those using the payroll deduction plan will not begin contributing until the first pay period in January. The minimum payroll deduction per month is 50 cents.

There is space available on the form for up to five specific charities that a contributor may specify money to be sent to. Those contributing

Let's give the public what they expect; a polished AF

by CMSgt. Jerry A. Price
Wing Senior Enlisted Advisor

It is that time of the year again when we at Reese get the opportunity to open our gates to the surrounding communities. This open house gives the public a chance to see how we maintain our families, how some of their tax dollars are being spent, and most of all how professional we are.

The gates will open to the general public at 9 tomorrow morning and close at 4 p.m.

Some of the events the public will see are: the U.S. Army's 82nd Airborne Division jump team, a dog handling demonstration by a security police team from Dyess AFB, Texas, and several events by U.S. Air Force Academy teams, including the Falcon demonstration.

The public will see a large display of Air Force aircraft that includes: the F-4 "Phantom", F-15 "Eagle", F-16, A-10, C-141 "Starlifter", an F-111 and the C-130 "Hercules". There will also be many World War II vintage aircraft on display by the Confederate Air Force.

What we are most proud of here and the thing that we take the most pride in displaying is our people. The American public takes pride in their armed forces and are eager to show their support as you will see tomorrow.

So let's wear our uniforms proudly and give the public what they expect to see; a highly polished and professional Air Force.

Rec center offers many "good" deals

by Sgt. Doyle Tillman
Public Affairs Specialist

Just the other day, my boss and I were having lunch at the Mathis Recreation Center. You know: the 50-cent hot dog, the 40-cent soda and what amounts to a free bag of potato chips.

While we were waiting for the rec center employee to serve us, I started thinking out loud about the benefits offered by the rec center, and my boss commented that I should express my opinions to Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division officials.

Well that's what I plan to do. The services provided by the recreation center and the entire MWR Division are outstanding.

For single people and even those families living near Reese, the recreation center has a lot to offer.

For example, where else can a person take a coffee break and get free coffee and cookies? Stop by the recreation center; they offer both. And, the list goes on: pool, ping pong, a movie (once a month), Thursday afternoon snacks, shuttle service to the South Plains Mall, TV rooms for adults and the family, a piano room, chess tables and darts. All for free.

At a minimum cost, families and everyone else can have a "whopping" good time. The recreation center has several video games (my favorite is Ms. Pacman). The center also has facilities for taping on either eight track cartridge or cassette. People can even just sit and listen too.

At the concession bar, center guests can play the more economical Atari game system and eat at the same time.

If I were a single airman or if my family lived close to the Reese recreation center I would indeed have little need to leave the Reese area for recreation, except to go on vacation.

During my short time here, I've seen the MWR center staff go the extra step needed to make Mathis a first rate operation. Anyone with access to the center who isn't enjoying its benefits, well, they're just losing out.

Recovering alcoholic explains day

by Janet K.
a recovering alcoholic

Good God another morning. I rolled over and glanced at the clock on my night table. It was 10:30. I groaned as I reached for my bathrobe and wondered what kind of havoc my three children had wrecked in the front room. My head ached as I dragged myself out of bed, hoping I could make it to the bathroom before I became sick.

I went into the den, screaming at the children for the messes they had made. I managed to make some kind of breakfast for them before sending them outside, threatening their lives if they came back in.

I sat in the rocking chair and lit a cigarette while trying desperately to remember what had happened the night before. I remembered picking up a friend, going to a nightclub and having a few drinks. I vaguely remembered dancing a bit, but that was all. The idea of not remembering what I had done, "blacking out", terrified me. Had I made a fool of myself, been unfaithful to my husband? I had to remember, but I couldn't.

I looked at the clock, it was almost noon. I wanted a drink to clear out the fog in my brain, but I couldn't have one. Only alcoholics drank before 2 in the afternoon and I knew I wasn't an alcoholic, or was I? This kind of insane thinking ruled my life for quite a while, one little voice in my head said "you are definitely an alcoholic", while another voice said "that's crazy if you were an alcoholic you wouldn't think you were." One thing I had to admit was that my drinking was entirely out of hand. I tried to control it but to no avail. I always got drunk and then tried to figure out if it were the 10th or 11th drink that got me drunk. It never occurred to me that it was always the first.

I am now happy to say I haven't had a drink or tranquilizer for six months. Alcoholics Anonymous has taught me that I don't have to drink today. AA and a lot of wonderful people in the AA Program have given me back my family and my self-respect. I no longer have to worry about what I might have done the night before.

If I sound like I've been reading your mail or listening at your door come to an AA Meeting Tuesdays in Bldg. 75 at 6:30 p.m. and let me share a little of my experience, strength, and hope with you. Who knows, you may find out you're not alone after all.

No Charge for Initial Consultation

ON THE EVE of our annual open house, I want to take one last opportunity to encourage everyone at Reese to join us on the flightline starting at 9 a.m. tomorrow. Of course, along with the good times planned for tomorrow, we all have a responsibility to do our best to look sharp for our guests—whether we're in or out of uniform. The impression we make on our friends from downtown can have a lasting effect for good or otherwise. The public eye will be on Reese tomorrow and we want to make sure our best foot is forward.

A PREVIOUS CARE LINE was also the subject of another call, this one referring to a question about Base Exchange employees speaking foreign languages while on the job. The answer was that, while on duty, everyone must speak English in order to prevent any confusion or ill will on the part of BX customers.

ALSO CONCERNING THE EXCHANGE, someone recently received a preferred customer discount program too late to use any of the coupons in it. This was apparently a mistake on the part of the Exchange, which strives to run promotions during specified time limits. Problems such as this should be brought to the immediate attention of the Exchange manager.

President proclaims Citizenship Day

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—President Ronald Reagan has proclaimed today Citizenship Day and the beginning of Constitution Week.

The president stated in his proclamation that the day and the week are set aside to recognize the place the Constitution holds in our nation, and the paramount role our citizens play in maintaining the United States.

"The Constitution provides the structure of our federal system and a system of checks and balances that applies equally to each branch of government, to relations between the states and federal government, and as importantly, to each of us," said President Reagan. "It protects the rights of all Americans to 'life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness' and limits governmental authority to ensure these liberties are faithfully protected — both by and from the state.

"But in the end it is each citizen who is responsible for protecting the liberties set forth in the Constitution and Bill of Rights. Therefore, while Citizenship Day is a day of celebration, it is also a day of remembrance and dedication.

"On this day and throughout this week, we should reaffirm our commitment to this 'compact' which gives 'stability to the present and certainty to the future.' And, as we approach the 200th anniversary of the Constitution, we must remember that an active and informed citizenry is not just a right; it is an obligation."

MWR Trip

Twenty-three kids and 4 adults visited Six Flags Over Texas recently as part of a Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division - sponsored tour.

Leaving Reese Sept. 11, the 11 girls, 12 boys and four adults traveled by bus to Carswell AFB, Fort Worth, where they spent the night in sleeping bags.

Before turning in for the night, though, they spent six hours at Six Flags, returning to Carswell by midnight.

The next morning, the group loaded back on the bus for Reese and pulled in at 6 p.m. Each person received an official Air Force MWR T-shirt for going on the trip.

49 accept wings

Forty-nine Air Force officers will become full-fledged Air Force pilots in undergraduate pilot training graduation ceremonies here Friday.

The graduates of Class 82-08 will receive their wings from Brig. Gen. Edward Giddings, deputy chief of staff for operations Air Training Command, at Randolph AFB, Texas, and Col. James Ulm, Reese Director of Operations.

With the award of their silver wings, the graduates receive their "aeronautical pilot" rating.

The ceremony marks the end of nearly a year of intense classroom and hands-on training for the students, who were selected for pilot training by a board of senior Air Force officers. Following graduation, the new pilots will report to their individual bases around the world, the sites depending on the kinds of aircraft they'll be flying: fighter, bomber, cargo plane, refueler or trainer. Seven of the students will, in fact, remain at Reese as instructor pilots for future classes.

Class 82-08 began its training here in early October 1981 after learning basic flying skills in small, propeller-driven airplanes at Hondo Airfield, near San Antonio; the Air Force Academy, at Colorado Springs, Colo.; or through the Reserve Officers' Corps program at their universities.

Beginning with parachute training and, after becoming familiar with the physiological effects of high-powered jet flight through the use of the physiological training unit here, the students begin their actual flight training in the subsonic T-37 jet trainer. Seventy-five hours later, the class moved on to the final phase of training: 100 flying hours in the supersonic T-38 Talon, capable of Mach 1.2 speeds (more than 800 mph) and altitudes in excess of 50,000 feet.

Besides the 175 hours of flying time, the students also study such academic subjects as flight planning, weather, aerospace physiology, aircraft systems operation, accident prevention and instrument procedures.

Instructor pilots were assigned to the class at a ratio of about one instructor for every three students.

After graduation ceremonies, the 64th Student Squadron — administrative "home" for the students for the past year — will treat parents of the graduates to a tour of the educational facilities and other areas of the base, followed later in the evening by a dinner dance at the officers club.

What About EAS

General Telephone recently restructured local telephone monthly rates to (1) recover the costs of extended area service (EAS) or toll-free calling between exchanges from customers benefiting from the service and (2) to show the monthly charge for EAS separately from the charge for local service for the first time.

Prior to this restructure, customers in all exchanges had been paying for EAS service. However, the charge for EAS was not shown separately but was combined with the charge for local service and appeared only as local basic service on monthly statements.

Now only customers in communities with EAS pay for the service and customers who have the service know what it costs them each month.

The changes resulted in a number of questions from customers since the monthly charges to them were shown separately for the first time. The most often asked questions and answers follow.

Q What is EAS?
A Extended Area Service (EAS) is a service that expands the calling area of customers within an exchange so they can call other exchanges without a long distance charge.

Q What is General Telephone's position on EAS?
A General Telephone wants to meet its customers' needs and desires and will provide the service if it is in the public interest of the communities.

Q Is this a new service?
A No. The service has existed for a number of years.

Q How did an exchange get this service?
A Usually cities would determine their community of interest including one or more neighboring exchanges and EAS between those exchanges was implemented in response to public interest. The local monthly rates were increased to reflect the company's additional costs.

Q When EAS was established, we paid higher rates for the service. Why do I have to pay for it again?
A The rates established when the service was implemented were designed to recover the costs at that time. As communities have grown, so has the use of the EAS facilities, requiring additional costs which must be recovered.

Q Since we were already paying for EAS, why did General Telephone change the way costs for the service are recovered?
A EAS was established on a city-by-city basis prior to the establishment of the Public Utility Commission of Texas. Customers in cities with EAS paid for the EAS service. When the PUC assumed jurisdiction of local telephone rates, investments and expenses were recovered statewide. Cities with similar calling scopes paid similar rates. This rating technique did not recognize the additional costs of EAS. Customers in an exchange without EAS paid the same rate as customers in a city of similar size which had EAS. This resulted in the customers without EAS paying rates that helped recover the costs of providing EAS to those benefiting from the service.

In its January 1982 rate filing, General Telephone sought and the request was approved to have rates established which would have customers with EAS pay the costs associated with the provision of EAS rather than all customers paying for those costs.

Q How did you determine what the EAS rate should be?
A Company records show the total investment required to provide local, EAS and long-distance telephone service. In addition, investments that are required just for long-distance and EAS calling are known.

The minutes of use for an exchange for each type of call—local, EAS and long-distance—are also known.

By taking these known investments and minutes of use, it was possible to equate the revenues required to recover the respective costs. Rates were then established to recover these revenues.

Q What is meant by "minutes of use"?

A Minutes of use are those actual times, in minutes, which customers use our various services, i.e., interstate toll (long-distance calls between states); state toll (long-distance calls within a state); extended area service (calls between communities for which there is no long-distance charge) and local calls (calls within a single community). After toll is removed, EAS accounts for approximately 34 per cent of all usage.

Q Can I elect to have or not have the service?

A EAS is not an optional service—either all customers in the exchange have the service or none. There are other similar services, such as foreign exchange, which allow individual customers to have a direct line to or from another city.

Q What can be done to change EAS?

A Normally the local government would determine what is in the public interest in regard to EAS. However if there is a problem in determining the public interest the company will assist in developing and tabulating a survey. General Telephone is neutral on the question of EAS as long as we are compensated fairly for providing the service.

Q Why is the EAS rate shown separately on the bill?
A We feel it is in the public interest for customers to know what they are paying for EAS each month.

Q Why does an exchange in my area of similar size have a lower EAS rate?
A EAS rates are set by rate bands or calling scope based upon minutes of use/cost.

Q Why such a large increase in some cases?
A To some degree, increases were larger than normal because of shifting the costs from exchanges which do not have EAS service and should not be paying rates for a service they do not have to customers who do have EAS service.

In summary, deregulation of the telephone industry, inflation, growth in both the number of customers and usage of the telephone network, modernization and other factors have created a need for new revenues.

The needed revenues must come from increased rates, and General Telephone rates have been restructured to place the cost of individual services on the customers who benefit from those services—rather than all ratepayers. EAS is one of the services for which all customers have been paying rates that recover the company's investment and expenses for the service. The change in rates places the cost of providing EAS on those customers benefiting from the service, and that cost is shown separately on customer bills so they will know what part of their monthly telephone charge is for EAS.

Second widows, dependents home construction to begin

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AFNS)—Construction of a second Air Force enlisted men's widows and dependents home at Fort Walton Beach, Fla., will begin with a ground breaking Oct. 19. Some $10 million is expected to be raised in a money-raising campaign for the 256-unit project named in honor of comedian Bob Hope. Bob Hope Village was named for Mr. Hope for his more than 40-years' service to the military community.

Teresa Village, with its 121 units, was the first enlisted men's widows home.

A pledge of $1.5 million, announced by Harry J. Gray, chairman and chief executive of the United Technologies Corp., kicked off the campaign. In announcing the pledge, Mr. Gray invited members of the U.S. aerospace industry and members of the Air Force to support the foundation.

For more information about the campaign project, write: Bob Hope Village; 572 Mooney Road, Fort Walton Beach, Fla. 32548. Or contact Tom Dwyer at 1-315-469-1412.

Completion of the project will bring to 377 the total number of apartment units.

Suggestors earn cash, recognition

by Hal Corbin

The fiscal 82 program will show once again the excellence of Air Force personnel. Last year the total program recorded $107 million in tangible savings, an increase of $31 million over the fiscal 80 program. We expect this year to be a repeat of last year's program.

Our local program has recorded $37,500 in savings to July 31. This is more than 200 percent of the fiscal 81 savings. We have already exceeded the Air Force goal of 13.5 by 2 percent. While the Air Force adoption goal of 3 percent has not been met the overall program has been a success.

We recently paid an award of $1,575 to a former student pilot for a suggestion on safety in maintenance of the E-3A aircraft Radome. The suggestion saved the Air Force $94,500 and resulted in an improved safety harness at a reduced cost. While we will not get credit for this suggestion due to an error in procedures at another suggestion office when it was first submitted, the suggester was a Reese member at the time.

It requires the support of the entire wing to make any program successful. The members of the 64th FTW have accomplished this in the suggestion program and we look forward to your continued support.

SWAT TEAM.

At the Supreme Court, we make working up a sweat with someone an enticing proposition indeed. We're Lubbock's finest racquetball facility and fitness center. All rolled into one. Our comfortable uncrowded atmosphere has more in common with most country clubs than it does with our average franchise row "health" club. We've got fully supervised Nautilus equipment for men and women. A beautiful pool and spa. A carpeted exercise room. Saunas and steam baths. And deluxe racquetball courts. Including two challenge courts where you can drop by for a quick game with no reservation and no partner necessary. For all this, we charge you less than most clubs charge you for the initiation fee alone. Stop by today and reserve your place. Or call 792-2525. Because memberships are limited. After all, the days when he had his club, and she had her club, are long gone. At the Supreme Court, we're living proof that men and women can learn to SWAT - and sweat - together.

AF views divorce, retired pay

(AFSINC) Making retired pay subject to property division presents important implications for retention and force management, according to Lt. Gen. Andrew P. Iosue.

The Air Force chief for manpower and personnel at the Pentagon told a Senate subcommittee that "We are concerned that allowing a state court to consider military retirement pay as property subject to division in a divorce settlement has complications which need to be examined more fully. Retired personnel represent our most significant individual surge capability."

He added that it would be "more difficult to legitimately and equitably recall thousands of retirees, as now contemplated in a total mobilization, if their retired pay were to become subject to property division and shared by former spouses." He explained that in a "similar vein, redefining retired pay as property would in essence cede to state divorce courts control of our most powerful retention incentive. If up to 50 percent of retired pay could be awarded to a former spouse, the incentive for members who are divorced to remain on active duty and complete a 20-year or longer career could be substantially diminished."

Heritage week gives a special insight

by Lt. Col. Daniel Gomez

Many of us are discovering Hispanic heritage for the very first time. We've known that it was there all along, but are just now starting to really take a look at it and appreciate it.

By presidential proclamation, the week of Sept. 19 through 25 has been designated as National Hispanic Heritage Week. During that week, the people, achievements, culture, places and history will be highlighted throughout the country.

Why Hispanic? What does it mean? First of all, the word is derived from "Hispanic," which was the name of the Iberian Peninsula (later called Spain and Portugal), during Roman times, about 206 B.C. Second, through history, Spain has had a tremendous influence on the North and South American continents. In the last few years, the increasing number of Spanish-speaking people in the United States coming from all over are now collectively referred to as Hispanics, or Hispanos, while they still retain their national origin of Cuban, Puerto Rican, Mexican, Colombian, Venezuelan, etc. Spanish is the second most common language spoken in America, and Hispanic form the country's fastest growing minority group, estimated at more than 16 million people.

Why is Hispanic heritage special to Hispanos, and why is it significant to other Americans? As for other minority groups, we should be aware of the Hispanic aspect of present day America, and its lasting contributions to United States history. Awareness goes a long way towards knowing and understanding, and this is how we develop and enhance our overall knowledge about the country we live in and people with whom we associate every day.

For example, who are Hispanics? As I pointed out, they are Spanish-speaking or Spanish-surnamed people living in the United States, and they are usually Mexican-Americans (born in the U.S. but have ancestry going back to Mexico), Puerto Ricans, Cuban-Americans, Spaniards, Mexicans, Cubans, and other Central or South Americans living in the United States who are U.S. citizens or not yet naturalized. Many Americans who do not live in the Southwest or West, have the misconception that Mexican-Americans are located only in the Southwest, Puerto Ricans in the East, and Cubans in the Southeast. However, a more realistic look reveals, for example, that New Jersey has more Hispanos than Arizona; Illinois (primarily Chicago) has more than

New Mexico. There are significant populations of Hispanos all across the country in other states as well, such as Minnesota, Ohio, Colorado, and Wisconsin. Washington, D.C., has more than half a million Spanish-speaking people in the district and its surrounding suburbs.

What has the Hispanic heritage contributed to United States history?

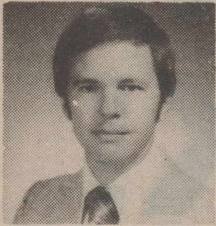

One important historical aspect is colonization. While most history books list 1607 and 1620 as the start of colonization in America, they often overlook the colonization of Santa Fe, N.M., which was colonized by Spain in the late 1500s. Santa Fe is the oldest capital city in the country, and was colonized well before the Pilgrims arrived on the East Coast. At about the same time, Florida was being explored by two Spaniards, Juan Ponce de Leon (1513 and 1521) and Pedro Menendez de Aviles (1565). As a result of this exploration, St. Augustine, Fla., was founded.

If we take the question, "When did American colonial history end?", the traditional answer would be 1776, when the British colonies declared their independence from the mother country. But what is now the Southwestern part of the United States did not declare its independence from its mother country (Spain) until 1821. And much of this territory did not become part of the United States until the conclusion of the Mexican War in 1848.

Hispanic society in America is at least three and a half centuries old, and Spain ruled in Mexico 100 years before that. The encounters between Spanish and Indian cultures have produced traditional ways of life that have become characteristic of much of the Southwest. Not strictly Spanish, not solely Indian, this heritage represents a rich mixture of language, culture, values and customs which have been modified in their new surroundings, making them a permanent part of American life. Add to this foundation the influx of all other Hispanics in New England and Florida, and the immigrants from Mexico, Central and South America, and we have a significant addition to the Spanish-speaking community. They, of course, bring their national traditions, mores, religions and customs, and further enrich the American way of life. The bottom line on all of this is that every day, we speak Spanish words, notice Spanish names of cities, rivers, states, and see Spanish architecture. Also, we have listened to Hispanic music, watched Hispanic movies, studied the language, read Spanish literature, participated in Spanish-style celebrations, visited Spanish-speaking countries, made friends with Hispanics, and in many cases, have become a part of a Hispanic family through marriage.

Reese AFB is an important part of National Hispanic Heritage Week. Everyone is invited to all the week's activities.
