27,000 Bales Is Estimate For County

REVIVAL SEASON FOR YEAR CLOSER HERE

The Methodist revival closed here Sunday night with one of the largest crowds that has been out this summer. The attendance was good throughout the entire week with interest unabating throughout the entire series of sermons.

Five additions were made to the church and no man can tell or even estimate, the good and far reaching results that Brother McReynolds strong and appealing sermons may eventually bring forth.

A work spoken on the Radio wave may be carried the world around. Gods Radio system will carry words good or bad on a wave that may continue throughout all time.

Wemkens To Erect New Resident Building Here

Breaking the stillness of a long period growing out of the lack of hammer sounds, John Wemkens will begin work right away on a pretty new home on his farm just out of the city limits south of town.

The pretty four room residence will face north looking across highway No. 7. Wemkens owns a choice farm here, the residential aspects of which will be graced by the construction of this pretty new building.

To Renew Acquaintance With The Print Shop

Agent C. H. Grace who worked in a print shop in his younger days, says he thinks he shall come to the shop here some evening and renew his acquaintance with the print shop. Come ahead, Mr. Grace.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO OPEN HERE MONDAY

The '29 30 session of the Hermleigh school will begin Monday morning, Sept. 2nd. Supt. Kerr is elated over the prospects for a record breaking school this session. Everything seems to be in its place, every one is in good spirits, and school will start off in a good way Monday morning.

The faculty is as follows: Supt. Kerr, Science; Principal T. B. Hicks, Mathematics; Miss Callis, English; Miss Verna Couch, History and Spanish; Mrs. E. C. Patterson, seventh grade; Miss Opal Sloan, fifth and sixth grades; Miss Faye Joyce, fourth and fifth grades; Mrs. Duncan, second and third grades; Miss Perle Martin, first and second grades.

The school Board, F. A. Werner, president, has succeeded in securing for the school this year what is considered the strongest faculty in the history of the school.

There will be a formal opening at the High School auditorium Monday morning. The whole school community is invited to be present.

Husband Helped Build Town

Mrs. Woodson and family of Childress are visiting in the A. Parker home here this week. Mr. Woodson, the husband, is an old resident of this place. He helped haul the first lumber which was put on the ground when Hermleigh first began to build. It is said that his finger prints are to be seen in the shaping of everything here.

Miss Zula Stevenson, Ft. Worth lady attorney, spent the past week visiting kinspeople here. She returned Wednesday.

CITY HAS FIRST WATER TROUBLE THIS WEEK

The city has had trouble this week with the large pump at the city well. The sucker rod was pulled Wednesday and the pumping machinery put back into operation. The water situation looked a little serious for a while but no danger resulted.

Four inch pipes were put in the well, whereas, only 2 1-2 inch pipes were needed in the beginning. This causes a loss of power which will need to be overcome sooner or later.

Representative of Community Makes Serious Inquiry

Supt. Mize, of the German school, was in for a short visit with us Saturday. Mize says he likes the Herald, but he doesn't like to see a paper which he reads carry no local advertising. "What is the matter with the Hermleigh merchants," Supt. Mize asked. Our answer is; they like to be "seen and not heard," as mothers use to teach their children. The Herald's readers are its best friends.

Hasn't Had Fair Deal

Bob Glasscock needs cheering up. He is getting blue. He says providence has dealt him a bad deal in that it has rained all around him and has failed to favor him with moisture.

Glasscock is one of our best men and best farmers and the sender of the 'former and latter' rain has dealt him a bad deal, he states humorously.

Miss Chlodelle McMillan spent last week, visiting in and near Rotan.

CROP REPORT FOR COUNTY IS NOT BAD

According to J. J. Lee, recognized authority on local crop conditions, Scurry County will gin 27,000 bales of cotton this year. This estimate is based on the present prospect, with several weeks of opportunity yet to our credit. The dry weather cotton crop is the crop which always turns out best in the long-run.

The county ginned less than 12,000 bales last year, according to Mr. Lee, and the increase this year over last will be near 15,000 bales, according to this estimate.

Hermleigh will probably gin 2,500 bales, as compared with 1,200 last year. The price of cotton is looking up some, and which is encouraging to cotton growers all over the country.

College Students Make Fine Records This Summer

Miss Agnes Early who entered the State Normal at San Marcos in June, made an average grade of B during the summer school term. She entered as a scholarship student from this school, should she maintain this grade through her Freshman and Junior years, she will be entitled to a scholarship from the Dr. Naley Scholarship Society.

All the other girls who attended the Normal from here made like grades. There were no poor grades made by any of them.

Those attending school from here were:

Misses Mary Ann Nachlinger, Bessie White, Ollie Coston, Miriam Snowden, Agnes Early, and Hallie Rea.

J. T. Parker of McAdoo, Texas is visiting with his uncle, Mr. A. Parker, here this week.

A COLOR FOR EVERY ILL

YOU remember Coue who a few years ago gave us a new slogan with his "every day, in every way, I am getting better and better."

From the small beginnings of a cult of auto-suggestion and self-confidence, Coueism is branching out to cure everything—both physical and mental ills, and with simple colors.

Indeed we have definite news from Paris that prominent Coueists are about to launch upon the world their new theory of using colors to cure anything, including insanity.

For people with unbalanced minds, the best cure, according to a prominent Coue professor, is the simple method of having certain table-

Mother's Cook Book

If the law were to edict that man and wife should never be together for more than six months in the year, it would be broken every day, and men and women would stand hunger and stripes to come together for twelve months in twelve. If love of home were a crime, a family life would arise more touching than anything Queen Victoria ever dreamed.

SEASONABLE FOODS

COOL fruits, frozen ices and tinkling drinks are the things which have the most appeal during warm days.

Have dinner, luncheon or supper served out of doors—in the woods if possible or by the side of a stream or lake. If that is not convenient set a table on the lawn or porch and stay out in the open air as much as convenient.

A cool, back porch makes a fine breakfast room, and many of the vegetable dishes may be prepared for the dining table.

OLD APPLE TREES

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

OLD apple trees grow tired of bearing.

Young apple trees are always wearing Blossoms in spring, and fruit in fall. Old apple trees grow tired of all The plucking, plucking, and not caring.

I wish that some old apple tree, Some harvest season, this could see: Some mortal kneeling on the sod, Thanking the tree, and thanking God, For all the apples that there be.

Old apple trees grown tired of bearing;

Old horses weary of the wearing Of ancient harness; even men Weary a little now and then Of all the taking and not caring.

I wish some night that some old sire Would find youth grateful for the fire, The table, and the roof, and all. Perhaps old trees less soon would fall, Perhaps old hearts less soon would tire.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

CROWS-BIRDS OF ILL OMEN

THE raven and the crow are so nearly related that they are frequently called by the same name and for all superstitious purposes are one bird. In all parts of the world, from time immemorial, the crow—or raven—has been regarded with a superstitious dread. The Australian aborigine, the American Indian, the German peasant, the farmer of old England and of New England, hear in his raucous voice a warning of death or misfortune.

This universal superstition with regard to the crow can evidently have its origin in no mythological association. The various and widely separated races which entertain it prove that it springs entirely from the physical characteristics of the bird—its black gloomy color and its harsh and threatening voice—characteristics naturally calculated to inspire the primitive mind with a sense of foreboding. Added to this is the crow's character as a crow-devourer and his

Who clothe the world?
Who house the world?
Shall you complain who are the world?
Of what the world may do?
As from this hour
You use your power,
The world must follow you!

THE world's life hangs on your right hand!
Your strong right hand,
Your skilled right hand,
You hold the whole world in your hand,
See to it what you do!

The Legend of Quetzalcoatl

CULTURE HEROES are very rare among the natives of the Americas. Search the records and you will find it so. Aboriginal heroes were fiercely savage. In Mexico, Central America and South America only a few centuries ago, human meat was exposed in the flower-adorned public market places for sale.
Cannibalism was common throughout these lands. The human flesh, however, was not eaten for sustenance but as a religious rite. In some places prisoners of war were pinned up and fattened as we fatten domestic animals for slaughter. It was accepted; common.
Out of all this savagery one bright name appears. It shines like a star. This man came into a world where human sacrifice was the ordinary thing. He condemned the practice and other forms of savagery. Legions are handed down about him. He is not wholly a mythical character. There is definite evidence that he lived.
The man's name was Quetzalcoatl. He came out of somewhere to a place called Tulla. His forehead was black and broad and his eyes were large. He wore a flowing beard and long white robes. The legend pictures him with a sickle in his hand—like Father Time.
His habits were pure. He was kind to all. He never married; was chaste. He lived a life of celibacy at a time when anything like that was almost unknown in Mexico. For in the early religions of Mexico and the lower Americas, sex played a large and it was essentially promiscuous and disgraced in their habits.
To be sure there must be much fiction in the stories about Quetzalcoatl. Some parts of the legend cannot be true. For example, it is said that when he lived, corn grew so large that a man could only carry a single ear. Cotton grew already dyed in all colors of the rainbow. Snakes of many colors grew so big that people could climb them like trees. The earth teemed with fruits and flowers with out the labor of cultivation.
Quetzalcoatl taught that wars were wrong. When anyone talked of war Quetzalcoatl would stop up his ears. In his ears. He had that no-

GOLDEN TEXT—The hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek Him. TEXT—Ezra 7:1-8:36.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Care on a Journey.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Care on a Journey.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Prayer Helps.
VOLUNTARY PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Prayer and Providence.

1. The Leader—Ezra (7:1-10).

(1) Who he was (vv. 1-6).
The High Priest was to stand between the king and the people; a descendant of Aaron and the chief priest who had a throne next to Aaron. The leader of the first company was Zerubbabel, a sort of military governor. The great need now was for a religious leader, for the people had come far from God.
(2) A ready scribe (v. 6).
He was a teacher of the law of God. A scribe's training began at thirteen years, but he did not enter upon his official duties till thirty years of age, giving him seventeen years of training.

2. His high ambition (v. 7-10).

(1) He set his heart to seek the law of the Lord (v. 10) the definitely set out with the purpose to know God's word. No one who possesses in his heart to seek the law of the Lord can fail.
(2) He set his heart to obey the Lord (v. 10).
He did not only connect with knowing God's word, but obeying it. God's word cannot be known in its fullness by the intellect; it must be experienced.
(3) He set his heart to teach in Israel God's statutes and judgments (v. 10) He not only had a love for God's word, but a desire to impart it in the hearts of others.
II. Ezra's Commission (7:11-26).
ARXIS: The king gave him a copy of the decree, authorizing him to lead a company back to Jerusalem. This decree empowered him:
1. To collect funds (v. 15, 19).
2. To levy

Shark's Confidence in Pilot Fish Coat Life

A pilot fish failed miserably in its duty and came to grief the other morning, when according to the fishermen, it piloted a 300-pound shark into the seine on the fishing schooner Aladen, off South Short Lightship, Nantucket shoals. Pilot fish and shark, together with a catch of mackerel, were hauled aboard the schooner. The shark was killed and the pilot fish was brought to the fish pier and probably sent to the museum of comparative zoology at Harvard.
Fishermen at the pier said that they could not remember ever having heard of such a catch being brought in here, and expressed belief that the shark and the pilot were following the market from southern waters. The specimen brought in is eighteen inches long, weighs about two pounds and is of an amber color, transversely banded with darker stripes. The pilot fish is so named because it is often seen swimming with a shark, and sailors are of the belief that it is the shark's constant companion.—Boston Transcript.

ARAB-ZIONIST QUESTION

We are reading much the past few days about the Arabian riot.

The constant ingathering of Jews to Jerusalem, growing out of the Zionist movement, will inevitably result in this. The Arabs are Mohammedians, and their history like that of the Jews, dates back to Abraham of old. The place of the present
"Weeping Wall" in Jerusalem is near the place where Abraham offered Isaac on altar, and which is very sacred to the Arab.

The Jews lay claim to this sacred spot and meet there every Sabbath to deplore their ruined national existence which dates back to the destruction of Jerusalem in A. D. 70.

It is possible that this present riot might finally develop into what is feared as the "Yellow Peril." The Yellow Peril is a world wide war which is feared will sometime be fought between the Christian and heathen nations. Classified by color, there are but two religions—white and yellow. The white represents the Christian Religion, white the yellow represents heathenism.

Nearly all national religions date back to the time of Abraham, 2000 B. C., and center around old ancient Jerusalem.

All students of religious history fear for the future and more especially when such reports as the present conflict between the Jews and Arabs are going fourth. The "Weeping Wall" in Jerusalem where the Zionists of today gather weekly, though modern, is one of the greatest evidences of Christianity.

HERALD RENDERS VERDICT OF 'NOT GUILTY'

Leo Nachlinger has found an alibi and will fight his case in which he is charged with mis-appropriating weather predictions.
Leo says he didn't prophecy rain on the 20th. as has been charged, but he offered to accept Bob Lee's challenge to bet two to one that it didn't rain. Bob backed down, Leo claims, and no one else put up, so he is in the clear.
He further claims that he wasn't predicting, he was offering to bet. The Herald is going to render a verdict of not guilty in the Nachlinger case, and serve papers on Lee for backing down on his proposition. In this case Lee is responsible for our not getting rain last Tuesday. Bob, you are summoned to appear before the kangaroo court for trial.

Prophetess Hits Right

Out of our school of weather prophets, with which humorous mentions most of our readers are familiar, there has grown a pretty prophetess. All along through this "dry season" when the older prophets were pouring out their very souls in efforts to get rain for this dry time in Scurry County, Miss Lottie Maud
Lewis said secretly that there would be no rain.

Just at the parting of her beautiful black hair in the front there is a tress which she says responds to the changes of the weather. All this long three months of drouth this pretty tress has been clear of the waves which the electrical current of the air place in it when there is indication of rain.

Sunday morning when Miss Lewis stood before her mirror to wave her hair for Sunday School, she found this beautiful tress already curled and ready.
Changes of the weather favorable to rain will place a more beautiful wave in this tress than any electrical curler, Miss Lewis says.

The Value Of An Idea

Among the many other good things which the Rev.
McReynolds said during his meeting here, was this: "No nation ever rises above its ideas of God." With like appropriness it might be said: No town ever rises above the ideals of its citizenship.

What evidence have we that the world is getting worse?

Initiative is one of our scarce-st articles.

IT 'SWUNK' UP, BY JOE!!

It was announced some time ago that Major Kimzey had fifty acres of the best cotton in the country. Grocer Ely was the Herald's authority for this statement. Kimzey said Saturday that Mr. Ely mis-stated the proposition. He said he had one of prettiest patches of cotton in the country. It is about six inches high, uniform in size, and has a bloom right in the top of each stalk and looks pretty "straight across the field," Kimzey said.

McFarland Is Trying His Hand

W. A. McFarland who has lived in the quietness of his home all this dry year has matriculated recently in our school of prophets. Mr. McFarland has lived in this country for 54 years and is well acquainted with our West Texas moon. He has opened up and is predicting rain on or about the 3rd. of September.

McFarland ought to make a good weather prophet—he lives near Geo. Hamil.

School Students Return With Tanned Faces

A. E. Snowden made an auto trip to San Marcos last week returning with an auto load of school girls who were returning for a few weeks visit with home folks here. The girls appear some little tanned, but that is no matter, they say, for it is stylish for girls to tan these days. The sun in that part shines down straight, Miss Miriam Snowden says. The girls, many of them, will return for the autumn term of school within a few weeks.

Mr. Brom Visits Office

Mr. Jacob Brom of the Ganaway community was in for a short visit with the Herald Saturday afternoon. Mr. Brom is quite a live community man, and his good community influence is being felt here. While in Saturday, Mr. Brom renewed his subscription to the Herald. Thanks, Mr. Brom.

will find a safer future, mothers' strong support in time of disaster, fathers a source of satisfaction and protection against the unknown.

As Labor day comes this year we are proud of our record, proud of the confidence shown by our movement in our great enterprise, knowing that we have built well and for the good of the millions.

By next Labor day we shall have written a great record of business progress. That is what we look forward to. Meanwhile, our greetings and salutations go out happily to the millions of organized workers in America. We are building a great enterprise, of, by and for the workers.

Women Union—Pioneers

The first women's strike in the United States is believed to have been in December, 1828, when 3M or 4M women and girls, cotton mill workers of Dover, N. H., marched out of the factory in protest against fines and other "obnoxious regulations." Six years later 800 Dover women mill workers formed a union, went on strike and resisted for some time a wage reduction, monthly payments and "exasperating rules."

Veteran Unions

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers was organized in 1825. Wood carvers in New York city organized in the same year. The Cigar Makers' International union was organized in 1864. The Bricklayers' union was organized a few months after the Civil war ended, on October 17, 1865.

Leader in Great Movement

It is difficult to say which was the first union, to establish workers' educational activities, but the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union was one of the first labor organizations in the field in the United States, having approved the principle in 1914.

Developing Citizenship

"Higher wages, better schools, shorter hours of labor and the independence of the worker tend to enrich life and to develop a stronger type of citizen," is from an appeal of 41 leading clergymen to the Industrial leaders of the South, issued March 27, 1927.

First in Labor Council

The first woman delegate was sent to the American Federation of Labor in 1890. She represented the Clerks' union of Findlay, Ohio.

Blessings all things prospered amazingly.

But he came to defeat Tezcatlipoca, who was the antispirit of Quetzalcoatl, who was as evil as he was good, led a revolt against him. Tezcatlipoca encouraged human sacrifices and the religion he conjured up was a fierce and bloody one. The people favored the bloody deity.

For some reason Quetzalcoatl was permitted to go out from Tulla in peace. So away he marched with a handful of brave followers. As he went a myriad of birds, richly feathered and bedecked songsters, flew along the road, ahead of him, behind him, on both sides of him, above him and made the air gay with melody.

Also as he passed along unnumbered flowers nodded and beckoned by the roadside and gave off most unusual volumes of perfume, until the air was filled with it. Quetzalcoatl went to Tloluca, and while he stayed there that place knew nothing but peace and plenty.

Those who had been enemies of the people of Tloluca came and went and none raised hand against them, and they raised hand against no others. The sculptor and architect and builder flourished and an era of great peace and prosperity came to all.

Finally after twenty years here, working his reforms, Quetzalcoatl went down to the sea one day, seated himself in a skiff made of serpent skins, bestowed his blessing upon four young men who had been faithful to him above all others, and sailed away.

A part of the legend is that Tezcatlipoca was a sorcerer, a wizard, and that he gained his power over Quetzalcoatl by getting him to drink a wine over which a spell had been cast. That disgraced him, in spite of his goodness, and made him an easy victim to the sorcerer's power.

Some Snakes Maligned Without a Good Reason

Just because a few snakes are poisonous, all snakes have been deemed dangerous. The first impulse on sighting the reptile is to kill him or run. Says Herbert C. McKay, in Field and Stream.

There is no justification of such action, is the writer's opinion. He points out the black reputation of the sparrow adder. By photographs of children playing with snakes, he shows the harmlessness of the more falsely labeled reptiles. As regards the so-called deadly spread-adder, he says, "Not only is the snake absolutely harmless, but it cannot be made to bite! It will coil. It will strike, and strike most viciously, but it strikes with the side of its head, not with the open mouth. I have teased one of these little reptiles until it was furious, yet never hurt me. I been able to make it strike with the open mouth."

111. The Company Which Returned

The company was comparatively small—only seventeen hundred and fifty-four miles, but including women, children and servants there were perhaps 2,000 or seven thousand people.

IV. Ezra's Prayer and Fasting

The first thing that Ezra did was to seek God's guidance. All the Israelites, as well as leaders of the people, should seek divine guidance and help in every new undertaking. No success can be realized without His help and blessing. The reason Ezra sought the Lord's help was that as far as possible he desired his mission to be free from human dependence. He did not minimize the dangers attending his journey, but since he had assured the king that the hand of the Lord would be upon all for good who sought Him, he was now ashamed to ask the king for a military escort to protect them from the marauding Arabs. His desire was to prove to the king the reality of God's help for God's honor among the heathen was at stake. This was a real test of faith, but God was faithful.

V. The Successful Journey

God heard their prayer. The treasures entrusted to them was great. Perhaps the entire value of money and sacred utensils was about five million dollars. For a small caravan carrying such an amount of money to go through a country infested by robber bands was most perilous, but Ezra knew that God was able and would protect them. Observe:

1. Care and honesty (vv. 24-30). The money was weighed into them at the start and was to be weighed when turned over to the authorities at Jerusalem. The incentive to honesty and strict accounting of the trust was that they were holy men and were entrusted with that which was holy because it belonged to God. Most exacting care should be exercised in handling the Lord's money.

2. Their safe arrival (v. 31-32). Some four and one-half months were required to make the journey. God brought them safely to their destination, thus proving that He is faithful to those who put their trust in Him.

God's Answer Not Always Yes

A little girl had been invited to a picnic party. Being a devout little girl, she prayed for fine weather and a happy time. But on the morning of the day the skies were gray and rain fell heavily. Instead of running in the fields she stood looking out on a desolate landscape. "You prayed for fine weather, dearie," said her mother. "and God hasn't answered your prayer, has He?" "Oh, yes. He has, mother," came the apt reply, "and He has said 'No.'"

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

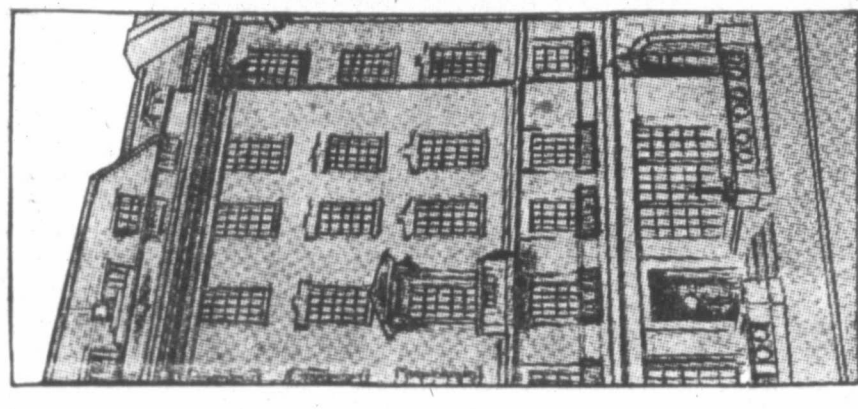

Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

bosses saw fit to dole out to them. Socially, they were despised. But now—NOW—a union working man can and does hold high his head. No longer is he socially ostracized. He owns the house he lives in, and probably also owns an automobile. He is financially able to dress his wife respectably and give his children a good education. He is free, independent and prosperous NOW—all due to trade unionism, a movement first started right here in Philadelphia in 1857.

(Editorial from the Philadelphia Trades Union News).

HEADQUARTERS OF BRITISH UNIONISTS

The General Federation of British Trade Unions, for years in offices in Hamilton house, B. Dorchester street, London, has decided to build, and has purchased a site within 200 yards of its old offices, has had plans prepared and is ready to begin construction on what is known as the "Woburn Lodge" site, Woburn place. The Federation expects to occupy its new quarters by May, 1930. The illustration shows the proposed front elevation and is taken from the thirtieth annual report of the general secretary, W. A. Appleton, well known in the United States. Mr. Appleton has just completed his twenty-first year in that office.

Whatever progress the American labor movement makes rests on an educational basis.—Samuel Gompers.

its fame scientific and industrial accomplishments is as wide as the world, and its great and glorious history is something that no other city in the land can ever take away from it. It has a record in "firsts" that is magnificent, the list published by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, containing nearly 50 premier events, of national importance, which have, unquestionably, given this city its very enviable reputation. It is generally known, of course, that Philadelphia was the first capital of the nation; that the first paper and carpet mills were started here, and that the first convention ever held by manufacturers in this country was held in this city. It is also well known that the first law and medical schools were established here and that the first grand opera was produced here. These and many other of the "firsts" associated with the illustrious history of Philadelphia are well known throughout the country, but we regret to say in connection with this mention of "firsts" that only a few trade unionists in this city seem to know that it was in their own historic city that this country's first trade unions were established.

Historians Support Claim.
For a labor journal published in Philadelphia to make such a claim as that will appear very natural but in other old cities, but our claim is sustained by the most reliable historians of the labor movement in this country. Those who are inclined to scoff and pooch-pooch our claim should consult the history written by John R. Commons and his associates, who are regarded by the International Labor News service, published at Washington, as "the leading authorities on the subject." The title of their book is "The History of Labor in the United States," and in it they make this very significant assertion:

"We place the beginning of the American labor movement in the year 1827 at Philadelphia. In that year and place American wage earners for the first time joined together as a class, regardless of trade lines, in a contest with employers."

The contest referred to in the above paragraph was a strike of building trade workers for a ten-hour day and other improvements in their working conditions, which strike, we are pleased to note, was successful. These interesting historic facts regarding the origin of the labor movement in the United States were broadened throughout the nation by the I. L. N. S. and published in hundreds of labor newspapers.

Workers Lifted From Slavery.
No nobler movement for the uplift of humanity and for bettering the living conditions of working people was ever inaugurated than was the move-five mind now and in the future. It is true that in Norse mythology the raven was the attendant bird of Odin and when the god went forth to war, but the assignment to this position was entirely on account of those characteristics which in lands that never knew Odin made the crow a harbinger of evil to the superstitious.

Dear Editor:

READ a book review by Sinclair Lewis and it didn't have a single word of criticism or bitterness in it. Must be a fake. That's like those gracefully phrased testimonials that "movie" stars sign with an illiterate hand—too good to be true.

Well, we're starting out on a trip. I'll tell you about it from day to day. There goes Beanyville's poor house, palatial but set so far out in the country that six steady boarders refuse to stay. They actually got jobs and moved back to town. I'll bet the country felt bad about that.

Prepare sandwiches and salads and serve such foods often instead of hot meats, pastries and other heavy desserts.

When one has a few fresh fish (not enough to serve for a meal for the family) try a fish chowder.

Fresh Fish Chowder.

Fry five or six tablespoonfuls of finely cubed salt pork in a kettle. When well browned add four to six sliced onions and six to eight potatoes cut into slices. Cover with boiling water and cook until the vegetables are half done, then add the boned fish cut into small pieces and cook until all are tender. Season well with salt and pepper and add six to ten milk crackers to a quart of rich milk heated hot. Serve after the mix has been added to the chowder, and if not rich enough, add butter to soup. Serve two crackers in each soup dish.

Very tender young cabbage, shredded very fine and mixed with a boiled dressing makes fine filling for sandwiches.

For another vegetable sandwich— slice firm crisp radishes very thin and lay them on the buttered bread with a bit of shredded onion.

Water cress sprinkled with salt is another fine filling for buttered bread.

Simple Boiled Dressing.
Mix together one-half cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of flour and one teaspoonful of mustard. Add one-half cupful of milk and one egg well beaten. Heat one-half cupful of vinegar and the other ingredients very slowly, stirring constantly. Add whipped cream when using. This will keep indefinitely.

Ownership
An Indianapolis family having a lit the boy five years old visited friends in a western city. In the course of conversation they discussed a very rich and powerful Mr. S—, who owned the hotel at which the guests were staying, the apartment in which the friends lived, a bank and a department store. Although the little boy did not seem to pay much attention to their talk, the next day at the beach he asked: "Mother, is this Mr. S—'s beach?"

"No," mother replied.

"Who owns the beach?" was the next question.

"God owns the beach," was the reply.

"But mother, how did God get it away from Mr. S—?" was the final query.—Indianapolis News.

few minutes. The healing effect will be noticeable, we are told, in two weeks.

Rheumatism can be cured by concentrating for ten minutes, three times a day, on a sheet of light blue paper. Flangings should also be of this color, for this purpose.

Dishonesty is eradicated in the same way, only the color must be jolly-white. Kleptomaniacs, according to our information from Paris, are easy subjects to cure in this same manner.

For inferiority complex, red is the color that will cure. The same is recommended for a man who has fears, such as to "crossing streets, in speaking to his employers, or facing his wife."

That's all that has been given out so far. But there are so many colors, and so many ills and faults that need cure. I think I shall send to Paris for the complete list of questions to cover some of the most pressing and immediate ills, the proper color to cure which would be gratefully received. It would go something like this:

When people don't like to work what color please?

For friction in the home, what color, or slight one gaze on to bring peace?

For the extravagant wife—what shade will give her a true perspective?

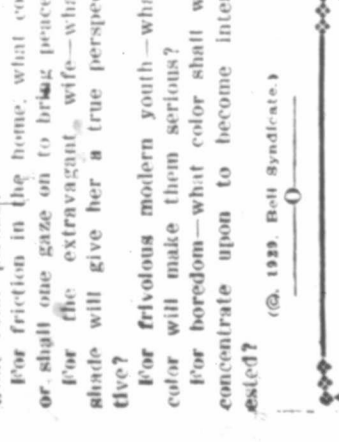

For frivolous modern youth—what color will make them serious?

For boredom—what color shall we concentrate upon to become interested?
