BANKERS MAGAZINE REFLECTS MISERY

In his article copied from the Banking Record, Banker Lewis says: "We bankers may have to resort to the farm." This raises a question with us. What would it profit a banker or any one else to resort to the farm now? This is one of the times in the history of the revolution of business that the farm promises nothing.

It has always been said by those in other businesses that "If I were a farmer I should do so and so." It is easy to draw on one's imagination, but when a man knows the struggles the average farmer has as this country editor knows, they will not be anxious about the farm.

During the war farmers made money, but what have they made since? They have been slaves. The high price of cotton at that time ran the price of everything else up, and cotton went down.

The farmer now has to pay for what he buys at prices based on 25 cent cotton and can't sell it for more than half.

Poor we poor they; we are all in a dickens of a shape now!

LOY ATCHLEY

The young Loy Atchley is among the coming young farmers of the county. The best evidence of this is the fact of his not having to depend on the bank for financial support. He has two milch cows which, and his chickens, support him while he "looses" time fooling with cotton, like the rest of us.

Mr. Atchley is not a "one crop" farmer, as too many of us are. He practices diversification to the best of his opportunity.

Atchley is a dairyman by inclination. He now has two excellent milch cows. The one is a registered jersey while the other is an excellent grade cow. These two cows give 9 gallons of milk per day. This produces one gallon of cream per day above home use. He sells about $6.50 worth of cream per week.

He has chickens and other live stock which have an accorded place on the farm.

OUR OWN MR. HESS

Mr. W. M. Hess was in town Saturday and renewed his subscription to the Herald. He wants the Herald, he said. We are very glad for you to have the paper, Mr. Hess, and wish there were hundreds of others who felt just this good toward us.

Since our first acquaintance with him, Mr. Hess has seemed like a father to us. When one is hundreds of miles from any of his own people he is inclined to feel close to any one who will show a kindly disposition. Thanks, Mr. Hess, we greatly appreciate your friendship and favors.

A HUSTLING JOE

Joe Neal was in the office Tuesday for a short visit. We were glad to see you, Mr. Neal. Come again.

Mr. Neal is one of our oldest and best Hermleigh friends.

Neal is also among our best and thriftiest farmers. He has hit it hard the past two years, but he is still purposely sticking to his task.

INADALE HAS A BIG COMMUNITY SINGING

What was perhaps one of the biggest and best Sunday afternoon singings which has been enjoyed in this part of the singing country was entertained by the Inadale people last Sunday. The pretty church building was filled with anxious listeners and the choir section was filled with trained voices.

Music; why it would raise the hair on one's head. Any lover of music would have allowed himself to melt away, giving place to the melodious charms of such music! "Earth echoed back from heart of grateful love, from every cavern, stream and grove." The whole atmosphere was filled with chimes of sweetness. The flowers without rejoiced that nature's frost had robbed them of their fragrance and sweetness rather than to yield to the control of the human voice. The music was "so sweet that the birds hushed their singing."

Old brother W. M. Hess sat back in the audience with the windows of his soul wide open, dreaming he could "hear the singing over there." In his imagination the great "choir of Heaven, which sing the Song of Moses and Lamb" had begun their sacred rehearsal.

R. B. Tucker of Hermleigh was "swinging in the grapevine swing" of an imaginary reality which no human has ever dared to picture. The author of "Rock Of Ages," who died in the flames of a burning church, singing: "Rock Of Ages, Cleft For Me," was vividly seen in his imagination.

The charms of real harmony is the most controlling influence in the world.

Mr. Cummings of the entertaining city was so lifted that he forgot that his cotton which he planted this year failed to measure up to his expectation. When a man is lifted by any means out of the seat of ordinary responsibilities of life, he is helped.

Tom Weaver of the big Pyron ranch sat back in such a charming trance that he forgot that it is his good fortune that he is a ranchman instead of a cotton farmer this year. Weaver enjoyed the occasion.

J. N. Narrell of the hostess city sat with his soul, his hat and his pockets all open that they might be filled with the sweet tones, hopeful that he might reserve them for such controlling influences during the following week.

Time would fall us to tell of the many others whom we knew who were basking in the sweetness of a music filled atmosphere. These shall anxiously await the coming next Sunday afternoon when Wastella shall be hostess to the several singing communities.

Eight classes were represented with a special quartet from Sweetwater. Professor Shepherd was leader of this class.

RECEIVES $25 CHECK

Upon hearing of his superannuation, a friend of Rev. and Mrs. Hudson, mailed them a check for $25.00 this week.

Mrs. J. F. Drennan is attending the Telephone Convention in Abilene.

Miss Adala Laster of Sweetwater is visiting in the J. F. Drennan home here this week.

INTEREST IN GERMAN SCHOOL IS GROWING

The first P. T. A. meeting was held at the schoolhouse Friday night. Frank Watzl was elected president, A. J. Kuss, vice president; Christine Neal, secretary; and H. J. Schulze, treasurer. The meetings will be held on the first Friday night of each month hereafter. All people interested in school work are invited to come.

A school literary society was organized Friday afternoon, electing Aurelia Wimmer president, Adolf Senkerik vice-president, and Albert Kuss secretary.

A few neighbors and relatives called at the Rufus-Mize home Sunday night and enjoyed a good singing.

Joe and Mrs. Roemisch of Hermleigh visited in the Frank Zalman home Sunday.

Jim Kubena invited a number of friends and relatives to his home Sunday afternoon. A fine lunch was served.

Rufus Mize and A. J. Kuss with their families called at the J. M. Pagan home Sunday.

W. J. West visited at the Marvin West home Sunday.

BIG BOX SUPPER

Lone Wolf—Friday night the 28th. there will be a little program and one of the big box supper at the Lone Wolf School. Everyone is requested to be there—boys and men with money and girls and women with boxes. Let us all be there and have a good time.

The proceeds of the supper go to pay for books that have been bought during the past year.—James Hudson.

SMITH MOVES TO SNYDER

Mr. J. W. Smith has moved near Snyder, and has ordered his Herald sent to him at that address.

We regret to see Mr. Smith move, even though he is going but a short distance.

China Grove News

Sunday school and church were well attended Sunday morning.

We were very sorry indeed to report the death of our good friends and neighbors, Mrs. Brown and Mr. Haywood Allen. Both were old settlers of Scurry County.

Mr. John Webb and family of near Ira spent Sunday with Hubert Webb and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Obie Beene were callers at the home of J. A. and Mrs. Seale Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Homer Newby left Monday night for Dallas where he is to attend a barber school. We all wish him much success.

Mr. Raymond Seale of Fluvanna spent Sunday afternoon with Lewis I. Seale and family.

Mr. Bryant of near Snyder called at the Webb home Sunday.

Mr. John Newby and wife spent Sunday with Clarence and Mrs. Newby.

POWERS DRY GOODS OFFERS BIG BARGAINS

Notices of one of the biggest sales to ever be held in Hermleigh has been made by Powers Dry Goods Co. In looking over the notices you will readily see that unusual offers are being made. Mr. Powers informs the community that this is a Quitting Business sale, and that every thing must go.

It has not been learned by the editor, just what plans Mr. Powers has made for the future, but we are sure that he will be successful. The Herald joins with the numerous friends of the Powers in wishing them success wherever they may go.

BAPTIST SOCIETY MEET

The Baptist Missionary Society which met in Lamesa the 12, 13, and 14 was attended by a large crowd, not withstanding the inclemency of the weather. There were four and five hundred regular attendance.

Churches from all over the state were represented, and near five thousand dollars in cash was raised to forward the work of the Association. The next session of this body will meet in Dallas.

—C. E. Leslie.

OUR LAST DERBY HAT

When the Rev. Parks gave the illustration of how to "burn up all foolish desires" in his sermon Sunday, we were reminded of the last derby hat we wore. In the fall of '13 when we first gave up the professional life and settled on the farm down in Leon Co.

We started our farm career by clearing the timber away preparing to farm on virgin soil. One evening we were burning brush when the "derby" got fastened in brush and went over board into the fire.

We have had no 'derby hat' since, but we have sweet recollections as to how "professional we felt when we wore it. Good by, old times!

ALL GONE WRONG

Cotton has gone to the dogs, the turkey market "ker flunked," each man's wife is peeved because she is afraid Santa Claus is not going to bring her a "permanent wave," and we fellows are in a "dickens-of-a shape."

NEW PREACHER ARRIVES

The Rev. W. L. Moody of Sweetwater, new Methodist pastor, will take up his work here next Sunday. It has not been his practice of the more recent years to locate with the local church served, but when he got here and saw the pretty parsonage made ready for him by the Ladies Missionary Society, he changed his notion and will move in right away.

According to Mr. John H. Lynde who has known him for many years, the Rev. Moody is an excellent preacher. He is a Greek scholar and can quote the scripture as freely as he wishes, it is said.

According to custom, we shall all be at the church on time next Sunday to see "how we like the new preacher."

Messrs Louie Brock and James Hudson were visitors in the Herald office this afternoon.

TEN YEARS SERVICE AS RURAL CARRIER

M. U. Vernon has constantly served the people of Route 1 out of Hermleigh for nearly a decade. He began his service as temporary carrier in November of 1920. He was officially appointed in July of '21. when it was decided to establish the two routes he served the one without charge for nearly three months.

Last year his route was extended giving him an opportunity to serve more people. During all these years he has been off of duty only twice.

First and last he has served with three different post masters and three different carriers on route 2. In point of time and in quality of service, Mr. Vernon holds the record here.

In character, ability, disposition, etc., Mr. Vernon is one of the most outstanding men in this part of the country. He visits in more sick home, is of more general community serthan any preacher in town. If any needs help of any nature, Vernon is the man. There are few like him.

STILL GOT COTTON

The general indication at present is that a great percentage of the present crop of cotton for the Hermleigh territory is already gathered and marketed. However by noticing carefully what we hear on the streets we learn readily that there is still quiet a lot of scattering cotton to be gathered.

One or two who expressed themselves placed the estimate for the amount remaining in the field as from one fifth to one fourth of the total crop.

Everything points to a much higher yield than was anticipated before gathering commenced.

The chief thing that seems to have hurt the community is the quality and not the quantity of cotton produced this year.

THE SUPERANNUATE HEN

The plans to make the round for the "Superannuate hen failed through misunderstanding. The idea has not been given up. Some one will be around to your place some evening about roosting time for the hens. Now don't say no.

The Lord, or at least the preacher says, "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." When these hens have been put in the Rev. Hudson's chicken yard, the "superannuate hen" talk will all be over.

CENTRAL BAPTISTS

There can be no question as to the ability of the Rev. Parks as a preacher. His discourses are sane, sensible and profound. His suggestions are worthy of consideration, and his life is exemplary.

There is an air of culture and spiritual refinement in his services which lends much grace to them. Services thus conducted and ministers of such high type are worthy of the best attention of the entire community.

"God send us men! Sun crowned, above the rabble of a noisy crowd!"

Master E. H. Vaughn was a caller at the Herald office Saturday afternoon.

DON'T QUIT IS THE SYSTEM

We have received many compliments on the way we have stuck to our job and put it over, and none of which we deserve. A man is supposed to do his job. There is no one else to do it for him. The individual will either stand or fall at his own will. If one fails he is in fault somewhere—it may be the fault of bad judgement. The exercise of poor judgment fails many men. No one should "bight off more than he can chew."

As we view society, the individual is the most important unit in its progress. When every individual succeeds at his task, we shall have a perfect society. When one man fails he weakens the fabric of the whole to that extent.

So long as one waits for the government, some friend, any clan, or for providence to put his big job over, it shall not be done. Each man must keep the machinery of his own self in good repair. It is said that "time waits for no man," and just so does providence care for none of us. By the sweat of the brow thou shalt eat thy bread." It is said that providence cared for Elijah of old but the modern Elijah says it was the ancient prophet's good fortune that the "widow" happened to have a few spare crumbs." Providence is an excellent fellow if the other fellow is succeeding. To him that hath shall more be given, but from him that hath not shall be taken even that which he hath." This is providence's way of dealing; and, by the way, every man we come in contact with has the same attitude toward us as providence has. Providence is for the man who helps himself.

The fellow who waits for the legislature, to help him will be a little slow about getting started. Legislature, like providence, is for the fellow who is helping himself. The man who rolls up his sleeves and does his own task, is the man who gets there. The whole world is for the winning man.

According to our recent experience, it is certainly not easy for a man who wakes up on a lone island, as it were, to take hold of his situation and begin to build a civilization. Fail, under any conditions? why no! one cant afford to fail. The world is ready to "laugh with the man who laughs," but when one weeps, he has the job all to himself.

When we moved out of the neatly furnished Christian parsonage at Plainview, about two years ago, with bare hands, a light head, empty pockets, standing in a pair of narrow shoes which caused a hundred corns on our feet, a stylish 'necktie' with a family and with no experience except knowing how to prepare a sermon, say a wedding ceremony, conduct a funeral, and plough with a "georgia stock," with one little mule to the end of it. What was experience and equipment worth to one who was "marooned on an island of starting life all anew?"

Work! yes, we worked. Stick! yes, we stuck. Think of failure! no; such thoughts were carefully avoided. Quit! no! There was no place to quit! One has never failed until he quits. Success is slow about coming, but success will finally crown successful effort. There are hundreds of people to whom these suggestions might be helpful, and they are being made for the good they might do. Hunt yourself out. You are a useful man.

BOTH WERE RIGHT

In the issue of the fourth instant, we got our ms, ns and us all mixed up in the word remuneration. Seeing it, Messrs B. Y. Rea and E. J. Ely engaged in a short controversy as to whether or not the word was spelled correctly. All the letters were there but they were considerably jumbled up!

It is no particular matter with us just so we furnish some entertainment for the people

MASON'S PHILOSOPHY

Clyde Mason reasons: "Why trouble trouble or let trouble trouble you? when it is said: "Man is of few days and full of trouble."

In this Mason is thoroughly philosophic. Why worry? occasions of worry will surely come' but the man who lets trouble get the better of him is not a master of himself. Stay in there, Clyde.

WHAT WATTS HAS TO SAY

With reference to the Herald's unrest in connection with a permanent location for the new Herald office, R. C. Watts said: "Come out to my place, I will give you an office for the new shop."

This may sound like newspaper talk, but Watts was speaking his actual sentiment. In this conversation he also reminded us of a conversation he had with us when we first came here. If this is your first business experience, you are likely to get your "bearings burned out."

Well, the Herald has little doubt as to Watts' friendship.

C. A. DACUS

Mr. C. A. Dacus was in the office with a linotype dollar Wednesday morning. Mr. Dacus is one of our older, and so far as we know, one of our best satisfied readers. A good man is good any place.

In addition to being a good man, evidenced by the fact that for a period of ten years he has lived on the same tenant farm, he is a useful citizen. He is an excellent musician, community leader, etc. Thanks, Mr. Dacus.

Mr. Robert Schulze was in the office Saturday.

Homer Gannaway was seen in town yesterday.

Regarding ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

FOR many years this Company was concerned with only one problem—that of delivering dependable and economical electric energy to the home.

Then the electric appliance—of one type and another—began to play a very important part in electric service to the home. This condition brought a further and deeper responsibility to this Company—that of supplying the proper kind of electric appliances to its customers.

An electric appliance for the home should do certain definite things. First it should be efficient; that is, give the most service for the least cost price. Second, it should use the least amount of electric energy in operation, and should stand up for the longest period of service.

It became necessary, then, for this Company to adopt a very rigid policy in the matter of selecting and offering appliances for sale to its customers. So, throughout the years this Company has maintained a testing laboratory through which each appliance must pass with creditable performance before it is offered to our customers.

You can depend absolutely on the appliances which we offer to you through our stores. Each one is the best of its kind. They have been carefully tested for quality, workmanship, economy of operation and are backed by the reputation of this Company, as well as by the manufacturer of the various appliances. Enjoy the fullest use of electric service with the best of electric appliances.

TAKE YOUR MEDICINE

Boys, Branch Banking is A-
 -The best thing a
 -lot of us fellers can do is
 -to go back to the farm.

Says
CHAS. J. LEWIS, President
 First State Bank
 Hermleigh

Doctor (to small town banker): "My dear sir, you have an enlarged heart. This has been brought on by your living in too close contact with the people you do business with. Their troubles become your troubles, their ills, your ills. I would recommend a vacation trip to the north pole. When you get there, take a seat on the pole, and sit there until you get thoroughly cooled off, and when you get home connect up with the Frigidaire and set solid from now on. Your friends may cease to love you, but you will have more money to invest in foreign securities."

Just think of it! Branch Banking will relieve you of this severe remedy! You can sit back and blame George with it all. You just say to the borrower: "I would like to go right on, Bill, like I have been doing for the last twenty years. I have never lost a penny on you, but I am not the boss any more, and George says you will have to and so if you get any help." Way back yonder when the Federal Reserve Bank made the world safe for the democrats to elect republicans, we swore and be darned if we would give up our exchange, but we did, and liked it. We just finally hopped on the band wagon and rode with them. These city fellers have all these matters figured out and their plans will work out so gradually that we will think we did it ourselves.

People in trying to infuse a little humor in their elucidations are too apt to be like the feller writing poetry: it doesn't always make good sense, but it just has to rhyme. For instance:

The woods are ringing with bumble bees,
 I have cold fet, they are about to freeze.

But to be serious, there is no getting around the fact we are up against a revolution in banking. You know revolutions are hard to stop. Ask Mexico.

It is all true enough that the small town banker has had a liberal share in the building of the west, making the path easy for the city banker. Just so it has ever been with all lines of industry and civilization, from John Smith, Ben Franklin, Davy Crockett, and other pioneers who have made it easy for the next man, and so on.

Many a pioneer has staked his claim in the west and sold out to the new comer, who in turn doubled the price. The pioneer sold out and moved on or stayed and cussed the country, while the new comer was gathering in the sheaves.

Go into any prosperous country, and you will find in 49 cases out of 50, that the ones who have lived there the longest, and had the greatest opportunities, have profited the least by them. Banking is not different. The same thing has happened and will continue to happen. Some one has to look over our shoulders, that are right under our noses.

It may be right for us to fight what we think are evils in the business world, and stay hitched to old methods as best we can, yet we know that there is none so wise that they can foresee the final bad results.

We used to think that a trust, or a big corporation was an awful thing, and would, if let alone, fast bring our country to destruction. But do we think so now? No. We say the bigger the better. If it is good to have big corporations in other lines, why not in banking?

It is said that 95 per cent. of merchants are failures; perhaps this is too great a per cent., but if the chain store reduces mercantile failures, would not chain banking reduce bank failures?

Please don't think that I am trying to sponsor the cause of chain banking, or chain stores. They do not need me. But it does look like that it might be better if a good bunch of us merchants and bankers would return to the farm. Now I hope this won't happen very sudden, for just between you and me, I would have a hard time rustling the collateral that this new order would exact, to finance a crop. But let it, as it eventually will, come about gradually and naturally, in the fitness of progress, resulting for the final good of us all.

stop the trend of affairs; such as branch banking, and a few other little things that are inevitable. The thing to do is to make Texas a money center of the old U. S. A. Let the American Exchange National Bank start on a merging campaign and it won't be long until we will have a billion dollar bank; then we can open up at 40 some odd Broadway and get busy.

We have the biggest state, the biggest oil fields, the biggest cotton fields, why not have the biggest bank?

Build a wall around Texas with factories and keep our money at home.
