Fur Trappers Experience Better Times After Winter

(Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles entitled "A Fur Trapper" and written by Mrs. Syd Davis. The articles are about Warren Angus Ferris, the grandfather of Mrs. Allie Ferris Pounds of Newcastle.)

By Mrs. Syd Davis

After this first winter they learned how to take care of themselves in a better way, as well as supply their food needs. Buffalo was the main stay of their diet. Ferris said that a good buffalo cow was far better flavored than beef from the States. They roasted it, fried it, and boiled it. They learned from the Indians to prepare it in many ways. It was dried in strips so that it could be eaten on the trail without any preparation. It was also made into pemmican, a nutritious food which sustained men for long periods of time. Pemmican was prepared from the choicest cuts of buffalo which were dried to the point that they could be pounded into a powder. This was stored in hide bags. Dried berries and melted buffalo marrow added to the powder and it became substantial meal. Buffalo marrow was an excellent substitute for butter. One of the Frenchmen in the group made a tasty dish. Forming smalls of finely chopped buffalo meat, he wrapped them in small pancakes and dried them in buffalo marrow. The Flathead Indians made a delicious stew from deer and lynx meat. Another tribe made cake from acorn flour and current jelly that tasted so much like the Scottish bannock cakes that a Scotchman gave them the name Bannock which became the name of their tribe. Certain roots and berries provided the trappers and Indians alike a balanced diet at certain times of the year.

The Flathead Indians were a great help to the mountain men for a number of years. They were the most nearly Christianized of any of the mountain Indians at that time. About 1816 a number of Catholic Iriquois had been brought from Canada to teach the western Indians how to trap. They also taught them their religion. In 1831, when the American Fur Co. first met this tribe just west of the Yellowstone area, they saw them approaching in a slow orderly manner, singing their songs of peace. They discharged their guns twice in the air as a salute, dismounted, left their arms and horses, and advanced with their chief carrying an English flag. Grasping the hand of the trapper leader, the chief raised it as high as his head, and held it in that position while he muttered a prayer. Each Indian did this to every white man present, and the ceremony took over 2 hours.

These Indians were taught never to fight except in self defense, and in that situation they were brave and fierce. They were the only tribe in the Roc-

(Philadelphia, July 1776 - -) Tension mounted here today as word spread through the waiting crowds that the Continental Congress had received the now famous Jefferson - authored "declaration."

The adoption of the official document will highlight the chain of events which began last May when Richard Henry Lee of Virginia moved that the Congress declare itself independent of England and HRH George.

John Adams of Massachusetts second that motion, which conservatives delayed by arguing that the public opinion was not yet ripe for a full division from the motherland.

In the midst of this sweltering heat wave, the Congress has continued to meet in the Pennsylvania Statehouse.

July 2 was marked by the most decisive action to date, when the Congress adopted the resolution to declare independence from His Highness.

Late this morning (July 4), the committee which was assigned to write the "declaration," reported back to the Congress. It is rumored here that Thomas Jefferson of Virginia was entrusted with the actual writing.

Jefferson appeared red-eyed and unshaven when he returned here today, and told newsmen that he had not slept since he had begun to pen the document.

Benjamin Franklin, Lee, Adams, Roger Sherman and Robert R. Livingston, other members of the committee, also appeared tired and bedraggled.

Franklin, who is a noted newspaperman and author, is quoted as saying, "It is a noble document, worthy of our high ideals and democratic purpose."

Although the document to be approved is said to begin by saying that all colonies approve of it, reporters here have heard numerous reports that only 10 colonies are in unanimous approval, and that while Pennsylvania and Delaware are divided (three votes against) New York has abstained entirely from the voting.

Various sources say that the discussion on the "declaration" may take several days, however, this reporter is of the opinion that action will be taken fairly quickly, and the throngs surrounding the Statehouse seem of the same opinion.

LATE BULLETIN

(Philadelphia - 1776) The sonorous peals of the Old Statehouse Bell announced late this afternoon that the Continental Congress had read and approved the Jefferson - authored "Declaration of Independence."

Roars of approval from the waiting crowds almost drowned out even the great bell, hats flew into the air, women fainted and several young men fired guns and side arms.

This reporter spoke briefly

Children's Books Added To Library

Once children discover the world of books, and the limitless experience it offers them, they become fascinated with reading.

According to Mrs. H. W. Barnhouse, president of the Library Board, Olney children have been reading so much this summer that the shelves in the children's department were beginning to look rather bare.

"To enlarge our reading stock and provide new books for our youngsters, we borrowed two hundred children's books from the Texas State Library, Field Services Division," Mrs. Barnhouse said.

The TSL Field Services Division maintains a free lending service to public libraries in Texas. The Olney Public Library may keep the books for one year, with renewal or exchange privileges.

"The service is really remarkable," Mrs. Barnhouse said. "Within three days of our request for assistance, two hundred books were sitting outside the library door."

Sixty children are enrolled in the Library's Summer Reading Club, and many other Olney youngsters are availing themselves of the exciting reading to be found at the library.

The Library also purchased four new books, two for the adult shelves and two for youngsters.

Olney adults will enjoy Louis Auchincloss's new novel, "The Embezzler." In recent months it has consistently been near the top of the best seller lists.

Adults will also enjoy "The Collected Stories of Katherine Anne Porter," a collection which has garnered several awards and commendations.

Teen-agers will find "Crazy Mary" by Molly Cone enjoyable reading.

"The Griffin and the Minor Canon," by Frank R. Stockton, illustrated by Maurice Sendak, will delight children and adults alike.

"With the addition of these books and the two hundred books from the Texas State Library, we feel the Olney Library has something to offer everyone in Olney," Mrs. Barnhouse stated.

MRS. DAUGLAS H. GREGORY

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a fitted formal gown of Bengaline taffeta, with a shapel length train. Following the ceremonies, the bride's parents were hosts at a wedding reception at the church. The bride's colors of pink and white were used throughout. The serving table was covered with pink and satin with a ruffled white net overlay. Streamers of pink satin and clusters of lilies-of-the-valley decorated the overlay.

White milkglass appointments were accented with a centerpiece of pink carnations in a white milkglass container.

White napkins, imprinted with silver bells and the couple's names completed the theme. Carlene Wilson registered the guests, Suzanne Gordon served cake, the punch was served by Mrs. Lonnie Beasley.

Leaving on a wedding trip to Fort Worth and point of interest north to Michigan, the bride wore a cranberry silk suit with white accessories. She wore a white orchid corsage.

L. M. McCARROLL

The question is often asked me, "Can I or can't I afford to own a combine or hay baler or other piece of machinery?"

The question, of course, cannot be answered with a simple "yes" or "no." But there is available some information which may make the decision easier.

For instance: The decision whether or not to buy a certain piece of machinery should be based on a simple economic theory called "principle or opportunity cost."

The theory means your profits will be the greatest if your land, labor and capital (money) are used where they add the most to your income.

Simply stated, the opportunity cost of owning a piece of machinery is the amount of income you would give up if this money was invested in the next most profitable place in your business.

Before buying, you should estimate the breakeven point in the profitability of owning the machine opposed to hiring the work custom done. When estimating a breakeven point, be sure to consider more than just your own acreage on which you'll be using the machine. Consider the possibility of doing some custom work yourself.

Some advantages to hiring work custom done are: reduces amount of capital invested in machinery, can produce crops that require equipment that a farmer cannot economically own, risk of timeliness may be reduced by hiring more than one machine, custom operators may be more expert operators and do better work and frees farm operator to do other work.

Disadvantages of hiring custom hiring are: may not be available when needed, carry noxious weeds and grass from farm to farm, small acreage unattractive to custom operators since they don't make a large profit and not all custom operators do good conscientious work.

Taking the time to evaluate both possibilities, buying the machinery or hiring the work done, can pay off with a more economical set-up on your farm. There are several reasons for working out the arrangements of a farming partnership into a formal contract. One of the more important, is that the contract clarifies the responsibilities of each partner before misunderstandings have a chance to occur.

The formal contract also provides an outline or blueprint for the way the business is supposed to function.

The partnership papers should provide a record of the cash contributions of each partner; also the amount of land, livestock labor, management and other resources each will put into the business. When it comes time for the payoff, the contract should specify the way profits or losses will be shared.

Numerous other items should also be covered in the contract, such as who will keep the books, how the checks will be signed and what bank accounts will be kept. The partnership, in every instance, should spell out how the business will be dissolved if and when the time comes. Such points as how one partner will buy the share of the other, or what method of evaluation will be used to determine the value of the shares. These are considerations of prime importance and should be covered in detail, says the agent.

Each partnership is unique and deserves individual attention but business transactions should always be conducted in a businesslike manner. Since the formation of a partnership is a business transaction, it should be covered in a written contract. Several publications concerning leases are available from the County Agents office including: "Adapting Leases for Successful Farming", MP-677; "Your Livestock - Share Farm Lease", MP-837; "Your Crop - Share - Cash Farm Lease." MP-838; "Your Farm Lease Checklist", FB 2163 and "Your Farm Lease Contract", FB-2164.

The Brown Spots showing up on the leaves of Pecan Trees has been diagnosed as Leaf Minor. This is a very tiny insect that works between the leaf layers. In heavy numbers, damage may result in dropping of leaves and a reduction of nuts.

Spraying for this insect should start early in the season, possibly before the leaves are grown, using diazinon. This insecticide will also control the Pecan nut casebearer and the aphids, both showing up in heavy numbers in some in some locations of Young County.

Members of the Young County 4 - H Horse Club made a good showing for themselves last Saturday at Seymour. Seven Counties competed in what was termed as a very competitive show.

Several 4 - H's are getting calves, lambs and pigs on feed for next year's shows. Keith Atwood of Graham recently purchased 3 lambs, a Hampshire, a Dorset and a Southdown. Carolyn and Debra Seeding of Graham are partners on 4 lambs, a Hampshire, a Dorset, a Southdown and a Delaine.

Others needing lambs are invited to contact the County Agents office.

TAX MAN SAM SEZ:

What are the requirements for filing an estate tax return? This question bothers many taxpayers, but the rules are fairly simple. Your administrator will have to file an estate tax return if the fair market value of your estate of 60,000 or more on the date of your death. However, if there is a surviving spouse and the estate is community property, you do not have to file unless the estate exceeds $120,000, since 50% of the community property belongs to the surviving spouse. Getting the correct evaluation on your estate is important since this evaluation affects all future tax transactions on the property.

July Fourth Traffic Count Predicted At 31 Persons

What will this July Fourth bring traffic wise? If it is similar to the ones in the past it will be deadly, injurious, and destructive. Our forefathers thought back in 1776 after declaring Independence that future generations would be free from wanton deaths and destruction. However, they were greatly mistaken to what the future would bring. During the last 190 years since our nation declared its Independence there have been eight major wars claiming 1,130,393 American lives. The automobile has been in existence for about 65 years claiming 1,559,950 lives. Thus, the battlefield has been a safer place than the "homefront."

The 1965 July Fourth holidays covered a period of three days in which there were 19 persons killed and 372 persons injured in rural traffic accidents in Texas. The 19 persons killed were involved in 14 fatal accidents. These fatal accidents involved 21 hazardous violations and one pedestrian violation. The 372 injured were involved in 178 injury accidents. The injury accidents involved 167 hazardous violations and 11 vehicle defects. There were 395 property damage accidents involving 344 hazardous violations, 28 vehicle defects, and one pedestrian violation.

On the rural highways in this DPS Region there was one fatal traffic accident claiming one human life. This fatal accident involved two hazardous violations. There were 20 injury accidents injuring 48 persons. These injury accidents involved 19 hazardous violations and four vehicle defects. There were 51 property damage accidents involving 40 hazardous violations and two vehicle defects.

Target Date Set For Recreation Center Start

A target date of August 15 was announced as the date for actual construction to begin on the Olney Recreation Association facilities during a meeting of the board of directors Friday morning.

Ed Biggs, engineer in charge of the overall project, said it would probably take two to three more weeks to get all the plans finalized and ready to be submitted to FHA at Temple for final approval and after they are submitted it will take another two to four weeks for approval there.

Olney Housing Authority Gets $551,217 Loan

Announcement was made this week that approval had been given by the Department of Housing and Development for a loan of $551,217 for construction of an additional 40 low-rent houses for the elderly in Olney.

The announcement was made Monday from the offices of Congressman Graham Purecell, Senator Ralph Yarborough and Senator John Tower.

The units will be built on West Oak west of the new apartment complex and north of Piggly Wiggly. Neil Larimore, director of the Olney Housing Authority, said that plans call for the construction of 36 one-bedroom and four two-bedrooms houses costing approximately $10,281 each. Actual construction is expected to begin about the first of 1967.

Larimore said the houses are designed for persons who are more than 62 years of age and for persons defined as disabled under Social Security.

Bonds, guaranteed by the government, will be sold in the next five or six months. The bonds mature over a 40-year period, at which time the federal government will be rapid over half the loan.

The need for additional housing is indicated by the fact that 12.4 per cent of the people of Young County are over 62, while the percentage for the state is only 7.4, Larimore stated. Approval for a study was received here several months ago and the study was completed and submitted for this final approval.

THURBER REUNION IS SCHEDULED JULY 4

Thurber, once a mining town owned and operated by Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Company, had a population of 8,000. It is now a ghost town.

Fur Trappers . . .

kies who could with truth boast that they never killed or robbed a white man or stole a single horse. Throughout the trapping period they befriended the trappers many times, at times traveling with them in order to strengthen the group through the territory.

Of course it was impossible to constantly carry their load of furs, so it was necessary to store them in places where they could be picked up and transported back to St. Louis. They had to be well hidden from the Indians. After stationing lookouts to observe the surrounding area for Indians, they made a "cache". This was an excavation made near some stream, but high enough to be in no danger of inundation in case of flooding. A hole 2 feet in diameter was carried down 3 feet, where it was then gradually enlarged and deepened until it was large enough to contain whatever was to be stored. (It was similar to Texas' underground cisterns.) The bottom and sides were lined with branches so the furs would not get damp and mouldy. When the "cache" was filled, rocks were packed in on top, then more earth, and finally grass, so as to present the same appearance as the surrounding surface. The surplus earth taken out was thrown in the nearby stream. At least once a year, and sometimes twice, the trappers would raise the furs from the caches, load them on the pack animals, and carry them to an appointed place called a "rendevous". At this place they were met by men from the east who brought supplies and who then carried the furs back to markets. The rendevous was in a different place each year, depending on the area in which they were trapping. Usually a week long party took place at the rendevous. There was feasting, horse races, foot races, wrestling, gambling, and the fire water flowed freely. Indians were present to trade their furs, and they joined in the festivities. At the end of the week the trappers departed in various directions to trap another year.
