

Exchange stores to begin accepting credit cards

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—Shoppers soon will be able to use credit cards in military exchange stores, according to Army and Air Force Exchange Service officials.

An AAFES spokeswoman said stateside exchanges are expected to start accepting credit cards before Christmas. Credit Card use at overseas stores will start "sometime later," she said.

Credit cards will be accepted in main exchange stores, clothing sales stores, some exchange concessions and convenience stores. However, shoppers will not be able to use credit cards for personal services such as haircuts at the base barber shop, officials said.

Officials have not yet decided which credit cards will be accepted. They have solicited bids from credit card companies to find out which offer the best rates. Bids are due back Nov. 8.

Officials said more than one credit card may be selected. They expect MasterCard and Visa may be among those accepted.

Credit card use is expected to increase exchange sales about 6 percent. Officials said the cards will not cause any price changes.

A House Armed Services Committee panel opened the way for credit cards in exchanges earlier this month. The Morale, Welfare and Recreation panel approved their use. That panel oversees military exchange store practices.

Both the Navy and Marine Corps exchange systems soon will accept credit cards. A Defense Department official close to the issue said the service exchanges will try to adopt similar credit card practices. However, he said, they may not necessarily accept the same credit cards.

Enhanced fitness program delayed

RANDOLPH AFB (AFNS)—The Air Force had delayed the start of its enhanced physical fitness program until late 1986. The program had been scheduled to begin in January.

According to Capt. Joseph

Mazzola, chief of military fitness at the Manpower and Personnel Center here, senior Air Force leaders are looking at alternative means of funding manpower slots needed to start the program.

He said the exact start date of the program will depend on the outcome of those options. The program probably will begin in about one year, he added.

Air Force began testing the enhanced fitness program in 1983. The program is designed to increase readiness and encourage members to participate regularly in exercises such as walking, bicycling, jogging or swimming.

Under the programs, running times for men are faster than the current standards, which were set in the late 1960s. Women's running times are nearly the same since they were implemented in the mid-1970s and based on more current data.

Sit-ups have been added to the program to encourage members to include a variety of muscle-building exercises in their personal exercise programs.

The stationary run will not be included, Capt. Mazzola said, as it is not a creditable method of testing fitness. The three-mile walk still will be optional, but only for people born in 1951 or earlier, he added.

Four units earn ribbon

Members of the 35th Flying Training Squadron, the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron, the 64th Supply Squadron and those who were assigned to the 64th Air Base Group Squadron have been awarded the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

Only those who were assigned to these units for at least one day between April 30, 1983 and Dec. 31, 1984, are now authorized to wear the award. According to Personal Affairs officials, Air Force records for the award recipients who are still here are being updated to reflect the new award.

The ribbon is worn, in precedence, below the Air Force Achievement Medal but above the Air Force Good Conduct Medal.

As I see it

Col. James McIntyre

Bill Tynan insists that my article be in to him by Wednesday morning each week. So I'm writing Monday or Tuesday evening at the latest for the Friday newspaper.

That's why last week's paper didn't mention the outstanding job the folks in Fuel's Management did showing the AF evaluation team why Reese ought to win the American Petroleum Institute Award. So I'll mention it now. The team left Thursday—after the deadline for the Roundup—singing praises. You fuels guys couldn't have done better. All of Reese will keep their fingers crossed, but win or not, you are the best in our book, and thanks. I guarantee the flyers appreciate the 66,000 refuelings without a delay.

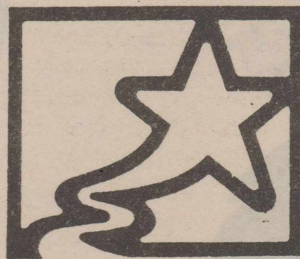

Saturday's special "Tops in Blue" performance, I thought, was great. The theater was packed—glad to see that so many of you, including families, could make it. Earl Hutchings organized the affair. Thanks Hutch. The performers are like pros, although they come from Air Force jobs and specialties that have nothing to do with entertainment. And there's a message there—hidden talent. Like that of so many here at Reese. I hear Lt. Col. Skip Layman, for example, sports a darn good voice with a local Barber shop Quartet. Hidden talent, of one sort or another, is everywhere, in every one of us. Music, humor, sports, art, and so on. We all have talent in some area which, if used constructively, enriches our own lives and those around us. Consider Airman Mike Neff, 64th FMS, who's fast becoming a Reese legend for his fantastic murals and warrior paintings that bedeck organizational walls basewide. We're all benefiting from his talent, which he gives to us so generously. The next time you're in San Antonio, go see the "Reese Room" at the ATC NCO Academy. Its 30-foot mural, representing the mission of all the men and women of the 64th, has just been completed by our one and only "Michelangelo." Thanks, Mike.

As everyone knows, Maj. Gen. Charles Hamm, the ATC vice commander, spent about five hours with us on Tuesday. We kept him busy, visiting as many work areas as possible, and meeting a great many of you. That's what he came here to do, and I guarantee he liked what he saw and heard. Many were involved that deserve special recognition. Too many for this article. Let me just make a couple of points here:

a. What we do at Reese is very important to the Air Force...and we do it better than anyone else. Congrats to the 35th FTS, for example, for receiving from General Hamm the ATC Sustained Performance Award. A proud achievement for the unit. But also, as the general said, five years without a major accident is a success made possible by the whole Reese Community—suppliers and maintainers, on and off the flight-line as well as the operators. It's a team effort all the way. We seem to understand that at Reese better than most.

b. Showing off Reese is not a problem, because each of you is "living" high standards of performance from day to day. Knowledgeable visitors sense that genuine pride and confidence immediately, throughout this wing, from airman to colonel, GS-3 to 12. Believe me, General Hamm is knowledgeable. He sensed it in the tire shop as well as in the flying squadrons. Perhaps eating Pauline's lunch and watching Joe Erkmann's "UPT Today" nailed it down. Maybe he saw it in MSgt. Matt Alvarez and his folks in the Mobility Bag Storage area—they are packed up and ready to move out! If that didn't seal it, the pride of SMSgt. Mike Custy in the OMS dorms did for sure.

c. To supervisors at all levels: Your people are busting their butts for you. Take note of it. Hug 'em from time to time. Let them know you care. As I see it, that's important.

A few "quit tips"

Hide all ashtrays, matches, etc.

Lay in a supply of sugarless gum, carrot sticks, etc.

Drink lots of liquids, but pass up coffee & alcohol.

Tell everyone you're quitting for the day.

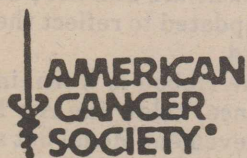

When the urge to smoke hits, take a deep breath, hold it for 10 seconds, & release it slowly.

Exercise to relieve the tension.

Try the "buddy system," and ask a friend to quit too.

TAKE A DAY OFF...

... from smoking. Join the Great American Smokeout on Thursday, November 21. Millions of Americans across the country will make a fresh start and try not to smoke for 24 hours. How about you? Or, if you don't smoke, adopt a smoker for the day and promise to help that friend get through the 24 hours without a cigarette!

Commander's column

By Col. Thomas F. Sheffer

Our dependent dental care program has been in operation for the past four months, and this is a good opportunity to give you an update. My dental staff reports that they are very pleased with their progress and have had over 1,000 dependent patient visits since July 1. Despite the heavy publicity, there continues to be misunderstandings concerning the appointment policies. The decision to restrict dependent appointments to the sponsor's birth month was made by Headquarters USAF, Office of the Surgeon General, Assistant Surgeon General for Dental Services, and is consistent throughout the Air Force. This policy prevents the dental clinic from being overloaded with patients and is used to ensure continuity for a mobile population. Of course, emergencies can be treated at any time.

Although we can now provide more care than ever for our families, the primary mission of our dental clinic remains active duty readiness. Our active duty personnel must receive the care they require to maintain worldwide eligibility status. Because of our priority commitments to active duty personnel, readiness training, and other military duties, dependent dental appointments may not always be available at your most convenient time. We have a small dental staff and a large patient population, so at times it may be necessary to take the children out of school or take time from the job in order to schedule dental treatment.

For more information on our services, please pick up a handout on dependent dental care at your orderly room or the base dental clinic. If you have any questions concerning the appointment system or the services available, please address them to our Base Dental Surgeon, Lt. Col. (Dr.) Matiasevich, at Ext. 3711.

Don't shortchange yourself

By Chaplain Bill McGraw
Installation Staff Chaplain

A contractor was about to make a business trip. He had made his wealth by subdividing land and building houses and selling them. In his business he employed a builder who very efficiently built quality homes. The rich contractor owed his business success largely to the builder.

Before the businessman started his long journey he spoke to his builder, "While I am gone I want you to build a house according to your own plans, such a house in size and convenience of construction as you yourself would like to own and live in. I shall give no instructions and you can draw on me for the cost whatever the cost may be." With these words he departed on his business venture.

The builder began his task. He used inferior materials and employed unqualified laborers who cut corners and did shoddy work. On the surface the house was magnificent; beneath the surface it was third grade, shoddy and shabby. It would not bear close inspection. But the builder made a great deal of money because he made his charges represent quality materials and labor.

The businessman returned. He met the builder and walked through the house which appeared so magnificent on the surface. He was pleased with what he saw, and said, "My friend, you have built many houses for me, and because of your efficiency I have prospered. This house was built according to your own plans. Your own ideals are in the house. I am most happy to make it yours. It is my gift to you."

By now you get my drift. God has given each of us all necessary gifts to build a great life. We can blow it if we choose to by cutting corners and using shoddy materials. We only go around once. What you do with your opportunities determines what your life will be like. Think about it.

If you're asked...

...about aerospace doctrine, Air Force Manual 1-1, Basic Aerospace Doctrine of the United States Air Force, provides answers about preparing and employing the nation's primary aerospace arm. Chief of Staff Gen. Charles Gabriel states, "I urge that all airmen study, evaluate and know our doctrine—for each of us, as professional airmen, has a responsibility to be articulate and knowledgeable advocates of aerospace power."

Aerospace doctrine has resulted from the necessity for common guidelines for military action and is an accumulation of knowledge gained primarily from the study and analysis of experience. As such, doctrine reflects what has usually worked best. Doctrine is particularly important under the stress of combat.

Officially sanctioned beliefs and warfighting principles describe as well as guide proper use of aerospace forces in military action. This doctrine determines how the Air Force organizes, trains, equips and sustains forces.

Aerospace doctrine is in a constant state of refinement to make it relevant in the present and workable in the future. To achieve this goal, open communications between commanders and subordinates is essential. Feedback from the various echelons is critical to evaluating and modifying existing doctrine and, when necessary, to formulating new doctrine.

It is important for each military member of the Air Force to use aerospace doctrine as a basic reference for why the Air Force exists. If individuals can see their parts in the overall picture, they will be more inclined to exercise appropriate initiative to accomplish the Air Force's goals.

...about our national military objectives: The United States military forces must be capable of achieving these objectives:

—Deter attacks against the United States, its allies and vital U.S. interests. This includes defending sources of essential materials and energy, as well as lines of communication.

—Prevent any enemy from politically coercing the United States, allies and friends.

—Should deterrence fail, fight at the level of intensity and duration necessary to attain U.S. political objectives.

The essence of deterrence is that the enemy perceives we have the military capability to exert overwhelming counters to aggression and that we will use this capability. (AFNS)

No free time off

Why do some people get time off to play golf and bowl on Friday's without having to take leave? My supervisor told me I had to take annual leave if I wanted to bowl on Friday's.

Your supervisor told it to you straight. There is no "free time off" for civilian employees of the federal government. All time away from your duty section that is not devoted to the performance of official business must be charged to some form of leave.

There are more than 20 different types of absences that may be approved by your supervisor or base officials. These range from annual leave and sick leave and leave without pay through time off for hazardous weather conditions, treatment of job related injury, registering to vote and voting.

You were not very specific in your call about the circumstances under which people were given time off, but if you still have questions ask your supervisor; check with the civilian personnel office or civilian pay unit staff; or call again.

Alcoholics and alcohol abuse defined

By Tom Joyce
American Forces
Information Service

He began his drinking spree in the local area with a buddy. The next thing he knew, he was at a bar 450 miles away. He asked his buddy what they were doing and how they had gotten there. "I don't know," the friend responded. "You drove."

That is a true experience related by a recovering alcoholic. Alcoholic blackouts (the numbing and knocking out of the memory part of the brain) are just one indicator that someone is having serious problems with alcohol. And for many such people, the path to alcoholism began many years before.

People drink today for many of the same reasons they always have: peer pressure, stress or the "high" associated with alcohol. Depending on who you are and what situation you are in, biological, psychological or social and cultural factors could get things rolling on the road to alcoholism. More likely, it will be a combination of all three. "Some people are born with what appears to be a predisposition to alcoholism," said Lt. Col. (Dr.) Louis W. Rosato Jr., senior policy analyst for the Defense Department's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Rehabilitation Program. "The psychological factors include things like drinking to feel good, drinking to dance better and drinking to relieve inhibitions. 'I get more dates when I've been drinking.'"

Rosato, who holds a doctorate in social work, said social and cultural factors exert strong influences, as when an 18-year-old serviceman who is away from home for the first time goes drinking with the gang every Friday night and gets bombed.

But there is a difference between alcoholism and alcohol abuse. "People around the world tend to talk about anyone who has a drinking problem as an alcoholic. People need to understand the difference between alcohol abuse and alcoholism," said Rosato.

Someone who makes a conscious effort to get drunk on a Friday night to blot out the day's troubles but remains in complete control as to when he or she intends to abuse the drug are thought to be an alcohol abuser.

"You abuse alcohol when you take in more than your body can metabolize. It's an alcohol overdose," explained Rosato. He pointed out that means about one drink ever hour for the average person. "But that doesn't mean 24 drinks in 24 hours," he said.

Alcohol abuse, in whatever form, can lead to alcoholism. Some people are full-blown alcoholics by the time they are 14 years old.

How about you? Rosato said once people reach the point where they are concerned about their drinking they probably have a problem.

"Those who don't have a problem, don't even think about it," he said.

If you are thinking about your drinking habits, a yes answer to one of the following questions should start you thinking much harder.

• Do you have an increased tolerance to alcohol? Over time, the body builds up a tolerance to alcohol. At first, it will take a six-pack to get a buzz on. Then it's a case. "At this stage, the drug alcohol is not alien to your body," said Rosato. "It's like the body saying 'We were made for each other.'"

• Do you have alcoholic black-outs? This is not passing out or falling asleep because of too much alcohol. This is where you continue to function but don't recall what you did.

• Have you lost control of when you drink? This is the most important question. "It's not that someone can't stop drinking or decide to stop at three beers," said Rosato. It's the inability to predict when you'll stop drinking or when you can't. This week you might drink socially, but next week you won't. You've lost control."

The key, said Rosato, is early intervention. Friends, co-workers and family members may know about the alcoholic, but for some reason don't intervene. In most instances, military people are not identified as needing help until an incident occurs. "We would like to get these people before some incident occurs that would ruin a career," said Rosato.

Have you seen my child

By AIC Saenz.
Base Crime Prevention Monitor

My child is missing. Yes people, this is what a lot of parents are experiencing everyday. Just one moment when the parents least expect it, and the pain of your missing child can begin. It could be a beautiful day, as the parents play cheerfully with their proud son or daughter and all of a sudden the phone rings. The parents rush to find out its only grandma, to say "Hi" and "how are the kids doing?"

Meanwhile, the child plays outside learning about life with the love of the parents and all of a sudden it stops. The parents rush through the house and the neighborhood looking for their tender child. The mother cries, trying to avoid the thought in the back of her mind, that her lovable child could have been kidnapped. The neighbors assist looking for the child with negative results. The cops come by the house, make a report and courteously advise the parents that anything possible to recover the child will be done. As they leave, the parents cry in fear, thinking "why did this happen to me", with a thought in the back of their minds, wondering if they will ever see their child again.

Believe it people, it can happen to anyone. Everyday in this country about 60 kids disappear, which half are never seen again. Kidnappers are always out there, and looking for children. People don't realize that children can be kidnapped at any time. Most children are kidnapped around their own neighborhood and when the parents are around.

Halloween is coming and kids will be all over the neighborhood, so please protect your kids by joining them as they trick or treat. Keep an eye on your kids, because if you don't a stranger might be watching your children for you.

UPT Graduation Section Reese AFB, Texas

UPT class 86-01 graduates today

By Capt. Alfred J. Flateau and
2nd Lt. Robert T. McSpadden

Forty-nine weeks ago, all that stood between us and the wings we'll receive today was 17 days of preflight training, 189 days of flying training, 268 hours of academics, 77 hours of physical training, 41 hours of officer development, and 45 Friday night beer calls. The route to graduation was "turbulent" at best; but in looking back...

...both sections quickly grew into tight, cohesive (sometimes even coherent) armadas. Section I adopted the ideology "Work Hard, Play Hard," while Section II was tagged "Laid Back." We immediately dispatched ourselves to earn our keep and our wings in the UPT arena.

As "neophyte aviators" in the T-37, we learned the basics of airmanship. We could distinguish the difference between passive and active airsickness, although some couldn't tell between the white baggies and our helmet bags. We experienced the bounce drill, otherwise known as touch and go landings, with an occasional "Flare, Go Around" from the box. If surviving a pattern only "Pogo" flying circus wasn't challenged enough, we also had to get used to names like Beaker, Pot-roast, Spud, Mongo, Flatus, Bipper, Bommer, and IPs called Wang, Bones, Buda, and Jughead. We also learned the basics of officership and the lifestyle of an Air Force pilot—commander's call, sick call and last call at beer call, usually in reverse order. We were certainly "happy in our work!"

After what seemed like eons, the trip to Fizzle became a milk run for those who could find the Bud radial back to Reese, and we moved on to the White Rocket—T-38's. Here as apprentice aviators we were to refine our skills, sharpen our air sense, and face the fire hose head on. We chased and caught "the demon" on our zoom and boom ride, and after we got used to flying with our eyes in the backs of their sockets we were ready to venture alone in this faster than sound Air Force training aid. We relearned aircraft systems, operating limits, and bold face, and stand-up Emergency Procedure situations had at least one of us face down on the carpet. We learned how to handle ourselves in a fog or a haze, and also how to handle ourselves in the weather. The Talon was fun and as we crept closer to graduation, we could see the light at the end of the tunnel hoping it wasn't the headlight of an oncoming train.

In retrospect, we lost our fair share to the pitfalls of UPT, but on this the first day of November, 1985, those of us walking across the stage are proud of the way we attacked the program. We came, we flew, we graduated.

Col. Chuck Edwards (far left) and Col. James McIntyre (far right) stand with ATCs newest IPs. They include (from left) 2nd Lt. James Miller, T-38; 2nd Lt. Paul Wittsach, T-38; 2nd Lt. John Reidy T-38; 2nd Lt. Carl Randolph, T-37; 2nd Lt. Randal Craven, T-37; and 2nd Lt. Richard Born, T-37 all assigned here; and 2nd Lt. Ronald Meyer, T-37 who will be assigned to Mather AFB, Calif. All were members of UPT class 86-01.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES:

Approach Open Season with an open mind.

How long has it been... since you really looked at how well your health care plan protects your family? If you're like most people, it's been too long.

Approach this Open Season with an open mind. And take a good look at Blue Cross and Blue Shield Standard Option. It's coverage worth looking at.

An eye-opening value.

Last year more federal employees switched to Standard Option. Why? Value.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield Standard Option provides as much coverage as many "High Option" plans. Yet it costs less. That's value.

Look closely at hospital coverage.

Standard Option pays 100% of your hospital bills for all the care you need* for as long as you need to be in the hospital, except for a $100 deductible and personal items such as phone calls. That's protection that makes a difference.

Insist on dental benefits. Standard Option helps pay for both preventive and routine dental care according to a fee schedule... with no deductible or yearly maximum. And starting in 1986, Standard Option pays even more for covered services.

Examine your medical coverage. Standard Option helps you pay for a wide range of services, including physician's services, hospital outpatient and emergency room care, once you have met the annual deductible. And new for 1986, Standard Option has eliminated the deductible for accidental injury, and has added coverage for well baby care and up to $3000 of home hospice care, both with no deductible.

Most importantly, with Standard Option you have the freedom to choose your own physician or hospital, so you have maximum control over the quality of your health care.

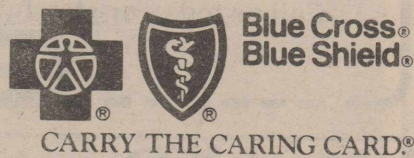

Sign up today. If you need more information, call our Open Season Hotline.

It's open 24 hours a day, from Oct. 21-Dec. 31. Our trained staff will give you all the details you need to compare. Quickly and painlessly.

Get all the facts. Then get all the benefits. Standard Option... coverage worth opening your mind to.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Perle clears the record

Richard N. Perle, assistant secretary of defense of international security policy, recently challenged statements made by Soviet officials at a conference in Geneva, Switzerland.

Perle, known for his staunch position against Soviet misinformation, challenged the substance of the Soviet's presentations point by point.

He said they "would have us believe that the Soviet buildup of strategic nuclear weapons has been forced upon them by American efforts to achieve what (they call) 'unilateral advantage.'

"But it is the Soviet Union alone," continued Perle, "that today possesses a force of intercontinental ballistic missiles with a combination of yield and accuracy sufficient to attack and destroy hardened military facilities that are essential elements of the American nuclear deterrent. The United States has no comparable hard target offensive capability.

"It is the Soviet Union alone that has deployed a system of antiballistic missile defense.

"It is the Soviet Union alone that has fully tested and deployed an anti-satellite system.

"It is the Soviet Union alone that has mobile missiles with multiple warheads of intercontinental range."

Perle compared United States and Soviet trends in weapons development.

"The last of our B-52 bombers rolled off the production line in 1962, 23 years ago, and some of our active fleet of strategic bombers were built as far back as 1959. We began deploying our newest land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles 15 years ago. And during the same year we began deploying the Poseidon submarine-launched ballistic missiles.

"We did not field another new strategic system until 1978, when we began deploying the Trident I submarine-launched cruise missiles and to build the Trident I ballistic missile carrying submarine at the rate of about one a year.

"By contrast the Soviet Union has, since 1971, deployed at least three, and probably four, new types of ICBMs, eight improved versions of existing ICBMs and SLBMs (submarine launched ballistic missiles), long-range cruise missiles, and we are about to see a new intercontinental bomber," he said.

"And the Soviet Union is continuing to develop new strategic weapons of all types."

Perle said the Soviet Union has more than 1,200 warheads on SS-20 intermediate-range ballistic missiles, probably twice that number when retired missiles are considered. The range of these missiles, he said, is twice that of American cruise missiles.

"We...accept an image of the strategic relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union that is characterized by a spiraling arms race," Perle summarized. "And yet the facts are significantly different."

"The United States has today, deployed around the world, some 8,000 fewer nuclear weapons than we had deployed in 1967...The megatonnage of this diminished American force is barely one-quarter of what it was in the late 1960s."

He added that the Western alliance has agreed to further reduce the number of U.S. nuclear weapons deployed in Europe by 1,400.

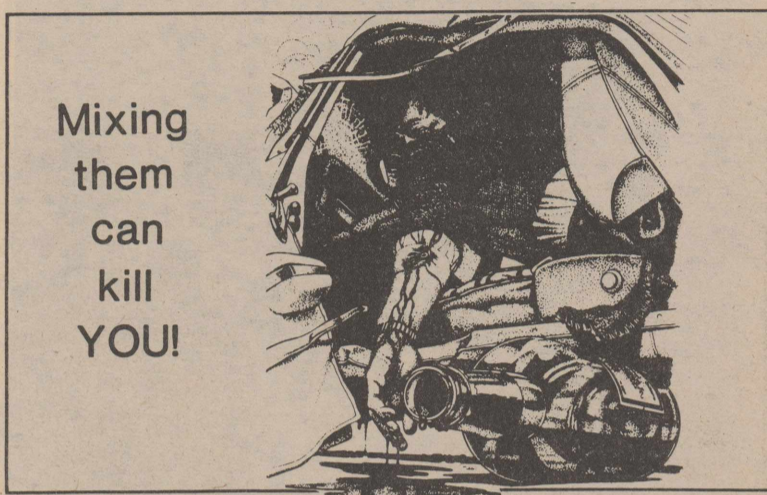

"By contrast, we have seen in recent years consistent additions to Soviet nuclear forces: 8,000 new strategic warheads alone since 1969, when SALT I negotiations got under way, 4,000 of which have been added since 1979 when the SALT II Treaty was signed."

Perle also rebutted Soviet criticisms of the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative research program, noting that the Soviet's strategic defense program—including large investments in advanced technology, such as directed energy and particle beam weapons—began in the 1960s.

Perle said if the United States and Soviet Union are to come to an arms reduction agreement, the Soviet Union will have to end its "artificial linkage between reduction in offensive forces and its demand that the United States terminate its SDI research."

"I hope that we will find mechanisms, however difficult it may be, for composing the relationship between us, based on common understanding of what (offensive) forces are possessed on both sides, leading to a radical reduction of those forces."

Mixing them can kill YOU!

CFC drive winds down

The annual Combined Federal Campaign drive started at Reese Sept. 23, with a goal of $113,000. Five weeks later, Oct. 30, the campaign ends with a total of $134,763. The total was 119.2 percent of the goal. This year's total exceeded last year's total of $125,095 to represent the largest collection ever at Reese.

Success can be attributed to the hard work of the key workers in the wing who pushed the program, as well as the overall support of the wing personnel, said Lt. Col. Phillip Marzolino, the base's CFC project officer. "All the people at Reese supported the program," he said.

Rattlers, Cannon split two

By 2nd Lt. Mike Burgan
Public Affairs Office

Last weekend Reese flag football split a double-header of two hotly contested games against Cannon AFB.

Saturday's game ended in a 20-12 win for the Rattlers after many arguments with the officiating from both sides. Cannon, being a Tactical Air Command team, was unfamiliar with the ATC rules which the officials were going by. The officials, in turn, were uncompromising in their interpretations of them.

Using a new offense designed to keep the defense off balance by using three different players to throw the ball, the Rattlers scored first when Mark Bethea took a pitch and passed down field to Travis Allen who ran it in from the 5 yard line. The score was 6-0 after the extra point failed. Later in the first half, Pat Barnes went to the air hitting Tom Benton for a TD from 30 yards out and connected with Leo Jones for the extra point. Cannon answered making the score 13-6.

Each team scored once more in the second half. Reese's score came on a 10 yard strike from Pat Barnes to Larry Holding. Tony Jordan managed to hang on to the extra point pass from Barnes keeping his toes just inside of the end zone making it 20-12. Spurg Williams stopped Cannon's attempt to come back by intercepting a pass in the end zone sealing the win.

Sunday's game was just as hard fought with an extra point being the difference in the 13-12 loss. The answer to Cannon's first score came on a play-action pass from Pat Barnes to Mike Burgan who scooted in from the 10 yard line. Reese failed to make the extra point, however, making the score 7-6 in Cannon's favor.

In the second half, Mark Bethea took a pitch on an option play and raced 40 yards to give the Rattlers a 12-7 lead. Again, the point after touchdown was unsuccessful giving Cannon the opportunity to go ahead late in the game when they scored from the 20 yard line making the final score 13-12.

Reese's overall record is now 3-1 going into the ATC District Tournament this weekend at Goodfellow AFB.

Air Force scalps Utah

By Sgt. Mike Leighow
Academy Public Affairs

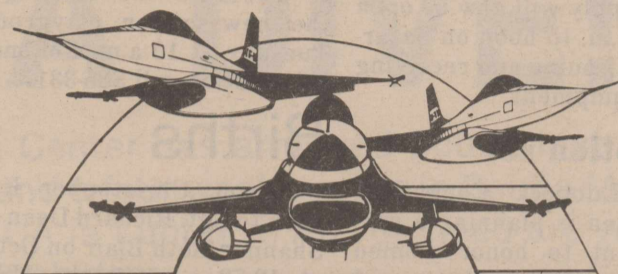

The Air Force Academy Falcons stretched their winning streak to 11 straight games Oct. 26, bumping off the University of Utah Utes, 37-15, in Falcon stadium.

The win pushed Air Force's season record to 8-0, established a new school record for consecutive wins and tied the school's best start ever. The win also moved the Falcons into first place in the Western Athletic conference.

Three Falcon runners each gained more than 100 yards in Saturday's win, another first for Falcon football. Fullback Johnny Smith romped for 175 yards, while quarterback Bart Weiss and halfback Kelly Pittman both broke the 100-yard barrier. The Falcons finished with 451 yards of rushing offense.

All-American candidate Scott Thomas became one of four players in college football history to score touchdowns on punt, pass interception and kick-off returns. He took the opening kick of the second half 102 yards for a score.

Air Force faces another WAC showdown today when San Diego State University visits the Academy. The Falcons won the matchup against the Aztecs last year, 34-16. Air Force will return to interservice play the following week when Army comes to town to battle for the Commander-in-Chief's trophy.

Commissary undergoes changes

The commissary is undergoing some big changes that promise to improve customer service and reduce the number of out-of-stock items, according to Wendell Daniel, commissary officer.

"Right now we're reviewing our entire stock selection to make sure the products we have will meet the needs of our patrons," he said.

The stocking of many slow moving items in the store has caused "dead space" on the shelves which led to shortages of faster moving products.

"There just wasn't enough room on the shelves for our more popular products," explained Daniel. "Now we're going to drop the products that are just taking up space and stock more of what the shoppers want."

Air Force Commissary Service officials said the Reese Commissary's present 11,000 line items are too high. They said 6,500 line items are the optimum number for the facility.

"Reducing from over 11,000 items to 6,500 is no easy task," Daniel said. "The process may take several months so we ask that our customers bear with us as we complete the process."

Also pending are key personnel changes in the grocery and produce departments and a new store manager. All posi-

American Peddlers to appear

The American Peddlers will present their show of variety music Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Mathis Recreation Center.

The group travels from base to base providing variety music for military individuals and their dependents.

A $2 admission charge will be required. Also, a door prize of two tickets to the Dallas Cowboys vs. Philadelphia on Nov. 24. The drawing will be open to active military personnel only.

tions should be filled by the end of this month.

"The bottom line is that we're committed to making improvements in the commissary," Daniel explained, "and we welcome any suggestions from our patrons."

"We have a commissary advisory council whose sole purpose is to let us know what the customers' needs are. Please feel free to contact any of them or the commissary staff with suggestions or comments."

A Plan for All Reasons

For Postal and Federal Workers Who Are Serious About Health Protection

Health insurance has cost too much for too long. That's why the APWU Health Plan wants to put health care dollars back into your pocket. And we have many ways to do it.

Start with our phenomenal 40 percent decrease in premiums. That makes the APWU Health Plan truly affordable for everyone.

Add to that our exceptional service record which boasts some of the speediest claims service available today. The kind of prompt, personal attention you don't see much anymore.

Postal Bi-Weekly Rates

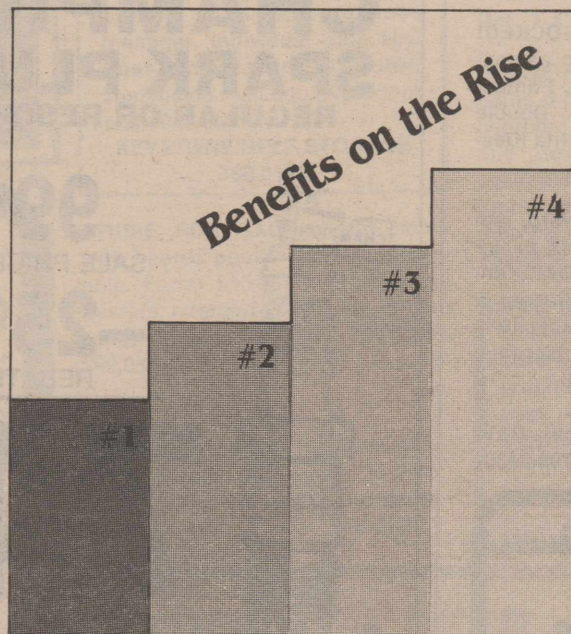

1986 Biweekly Rates

	Postal	Federal	Monthly
471 Self Only	$ 9.06	$14.66	$31.77
472 Self/Family	$16.18	$28.66	$62.10

Then add our comprehensive coverage for real peace-of-mind security. See how we've strengthened major benefits to provide even greater coverage at a lower cost.

A full spectrum of coverage for complete health benefit protection:

#1. Full inpatient room and board coverage when the admission is pre-certified. No deductible, no copayments, no coinsurance.

#2. Catastrophic expense protection which is among the best and an annual deductible which is among the lowest.

#3. Innovative special benefits, like our often-copied Wellness Benefit, to give more for each premium dollar.

#4. An ever-growing nationwide network of discount provider arrangements to save you even more.

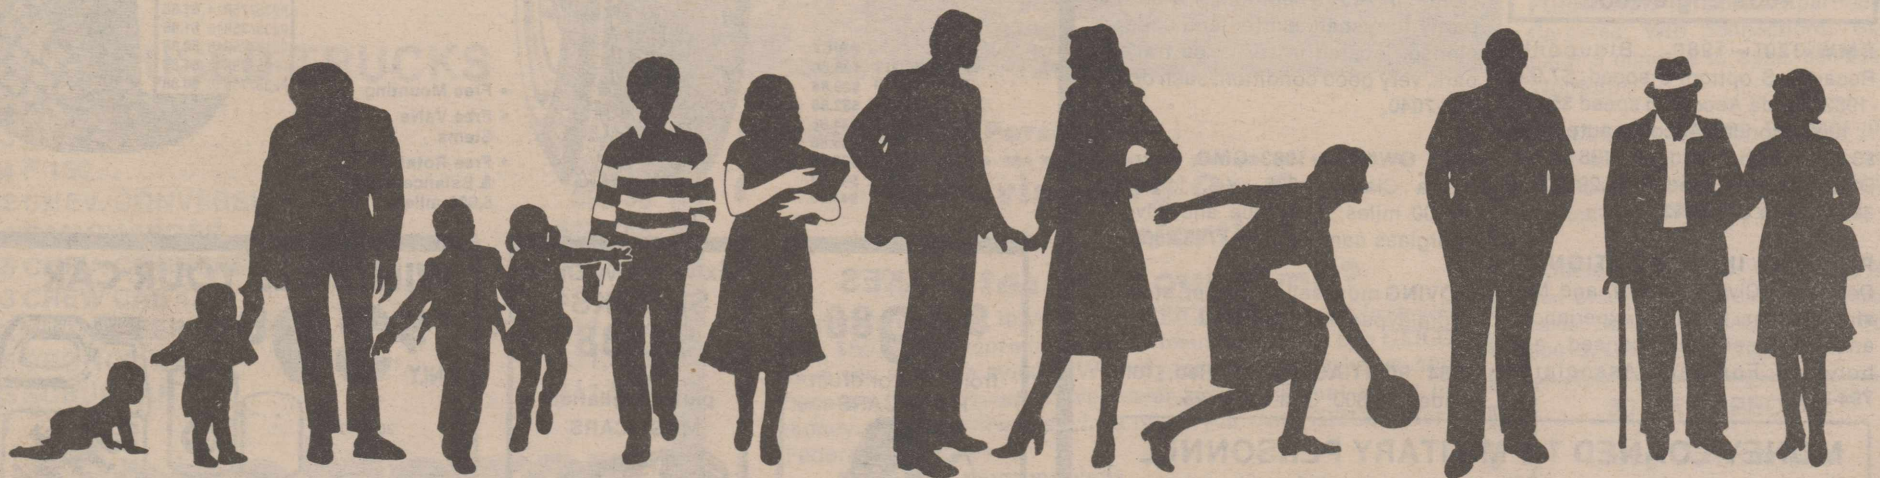

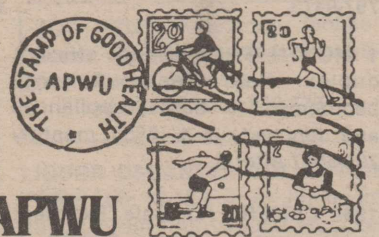

Compare and see why we call it "a plan for all reasons"—low cost, comprehensive coverage, prompt service and personal attention. Choose the APWU Health Plan—it may be the most important decision you make this year.
