

Russians due out of Afghan capital

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The last Red Army convoys abandoned their garrisons and headed north for home today, Soviet officials said, bringing to an end a nine-year adventure that cost more than 13,000 Soviet lives.

Hundreds of Soviet troops, meanwhile, guarded the airport of the war-weary Afghan capital as military transports ferried in loads of grain and other supplies to help ease food shortages caused by guerrilla blockades.

In Moscow, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda reported today that "the last Soviet soldier left Kabul" on Sunday. But Soviet officials in the city said about 1,000 troops would remain at the airport until the end of the week.

They said the last convoy left the capital on Saturday.

Under a U.N.-brokered accord, all Soviet forces are to be out by Feb. 15.

Pravda said Soviet troops would today abandon their garrison in the western city of Shin-dand, the other remaining Soviet military complex in the country.

The paper said Soviet troops had by Sunday removed defensive checkpoints on the Salang

Highway to about 50 miles north of Kabul at the southern end of a tunnel that cuts through some of the roughest terrain on the withdrawal route.

Pravda said insurgents did not fire on Soviet convoys as they moved along the highway, the only land route to the Soviet border from Kabul. But four avalanches crashed down on retreating columns Sunday, killing three Soviet soldiers and injuring a fourth, the paper said.

Three officers were also injured by "terrorist grenades" in a Kabul suburb Sunday as the Soviets handed over motor vehicles to the Afghans, the newspaper said.

Just across the Soviet border in Termez, where a Soviet airborne regiment arrived today, military spokesman Lt. Col. Igor Korolev said the last remaining Red Army soldiers were on the move toward the border.

He said Soviet soldiers remained in Balkh, Samangan, Baglan, Parvan and Herat provinces. The first four are located between Kabul and the Soviet border; Herat province borders the Soviet Union in the west.

Along the road behind the Kabul airport soldiers dressed in padded olive green uniforms manned the bunker checkpoints, nervously clutching their Kalashnikov rifles.

Andrei, a 20-year old soldier from Moldavia, said the troops would be flown home sometime before Feb. 15. He said they had not been told exactly when.

Tass today reported heavy shelling by guerrillas in the Kabul province, killing eight people, and in the cities of Gardiz and Khost in Pakista province, killing one and wounding two.

Q. — Is there a law library in Snyder?

A. — The closest thing to a facility open to the public would be the library on the ground floor of the Scurry County courthouse. It is not left open normally but could be used by receiving permission from county officials.

C-City probe

COLORADO CITY, Texas (AP) — The FBI will investigate the 1988 death of a man who was killed by officers attempting to arrest him, an agency spokesman said.

The FBI's civil rights division will be in Colorado City, about 85 miles east of Midland in West Texas, to conduct the investigation into the May 13, 1988 shooting death of Sammy Gomez, said bureau spokesman Charles Steinmetz.

"We feel we have a responsibility to investigate any allegations involving the violation of a citizen's civil rights," Steinmetz told the Big Spring Herald.

Colorado City Police Chief Bobby Sparks reiterated that his department has violated no laws and will "stand up to any investigation."

Sparks has said he and three other officers went to Gomez's aunt's house to arrest him on an alleged sexual assault charge when parttime officer Billy Ray Williamson and Lt. Pat Taylor, who were inside the residence, were attacked by Gomez. Police claim Gomez was wielding a knife.

Sparks has previously stated that Williamson was forced to shoot Gomez three times.

Stranded

AUSTIN (AP) — The weekend's cold, icy weather stranded more than 20 people, an owl, a falcon and a huge turtle at Austin's Barton Creek Country Club.

Unable to leave the club's hilly location after a Saturday benefit gala because of ice on the roads, members of the Humane Society of Austin and Travis County were forced to spend a day and two nights there, officials said.

Attorney Michele Kaufman, who chaired the "Pedigreed Affair," said members of the orchestra, KVUE-TV anchor Judy Maggio and honored guest Peter Gros, host of "Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom," spent Saturday night at the country club.

Others trapped at the club included the owl and falcon that Gros had brought with him.

'Uncertain' at noon today...

Curtailed of gas could close school in Snyder Tuesday

Snyder school officials at noon Monday were uncertain if classes would resume Tuesday after a one-day holiday related to the frigid cold which currently has all of Texas in its icy grip.

Curtailments in natural gas, the primary heating source for campus buildings, prompted the closure here Monday.

Superintendent Dalton Moseley explained that the district's contract with Lone Star Gas Company—which grants the district the lowest rate sold—allows the utility company to direct cutbacks in the amount of gas used.

Such cutbacks are ordered to insure the utility will have sufficient fuel for its other customers to include residential accounts.

Snyder ISD and Hermleigh ISD have such contracts with Lone Star and both dismissed classes Monday. Ira ISD, which held class Monday, uses butane as its primary heating source.

The gas allocation for Snyder was ordered cutback to 50 percent late Friday.

During the weekend, Moseley said, the school operated its boilers on a schedule of three hours on, three hours off. To do this, maintenance personnel have been working around the clock since late Friday.

With the cutbacks, temperatures in campus classrooms never rose above 58 degrees. "That's just too cold to have school," Moseley said.

As a result, classes were ordered dismissed until a greater gas usage is allowed or the cold onslaught here weakens.

During the morning Monday, school officials were attempting to determine if Lone Star would raise the Snyder allocation above the 50 percent level.

No decision had been reached at noon Monday. An announcement is expected to be made Monday afternoon over the local radio.

Regarding the closing Monday, Moseley noted he will ask that the district be exempted from state requirements for makeup days due to bad weather.

"I'll request TEA excuse this day," he said, citing as the reason the general widespread conditions which have prompted school closings statewide.

If the district has to makeup the lost day Monday, it would occur on one of two "bad weather" makeup days slated on Saturdays in April and May.

Monday morning, Moseley said he has "some hope" that an exemption to this rule might be granted, however.

Snyder school students in the odd numbered grades are also slated to take TEAMS tests beginning Tuesday.

If the district is required to miss another day of school, Moseley noted these state-mandated exams would be postponed until next week.

Extended cold is forecast for area

From Local, Wire Reports

The Snyder area outlook is for continued very cold temperatures through Friday, when the National Weather Service (NWS) predicts the big chill now embracing Texas will moderate somewhat.

The weekend mercury never rose above 22 degrees here and the early morning low temperature Monday was 8 degrees. The overnight low Monday is predicted at 10 degrees.

The Snyder area has remained dry throughout the frigid weekend, however, and the immediate forecast includes no prediction for drizzle or snow.

The NWS does predict a chance for snow in the Panhandle and South Plains and light snow mixed with freezing drizzle in the Concho Valley Monday night.

Advisories have been issued to discourage traveling whenever possible.

The long range forecast also offers little hope that the extreme cold will abate any time soon.

For all of West Texas, the prediction is for partly cloudy skies and continued very cold readings Wednesday through Friday.

The Snyder area during this period is predicted to have daytime highs in the 20s through Wednesday and into the upper 30s or lower 40s by Friday.

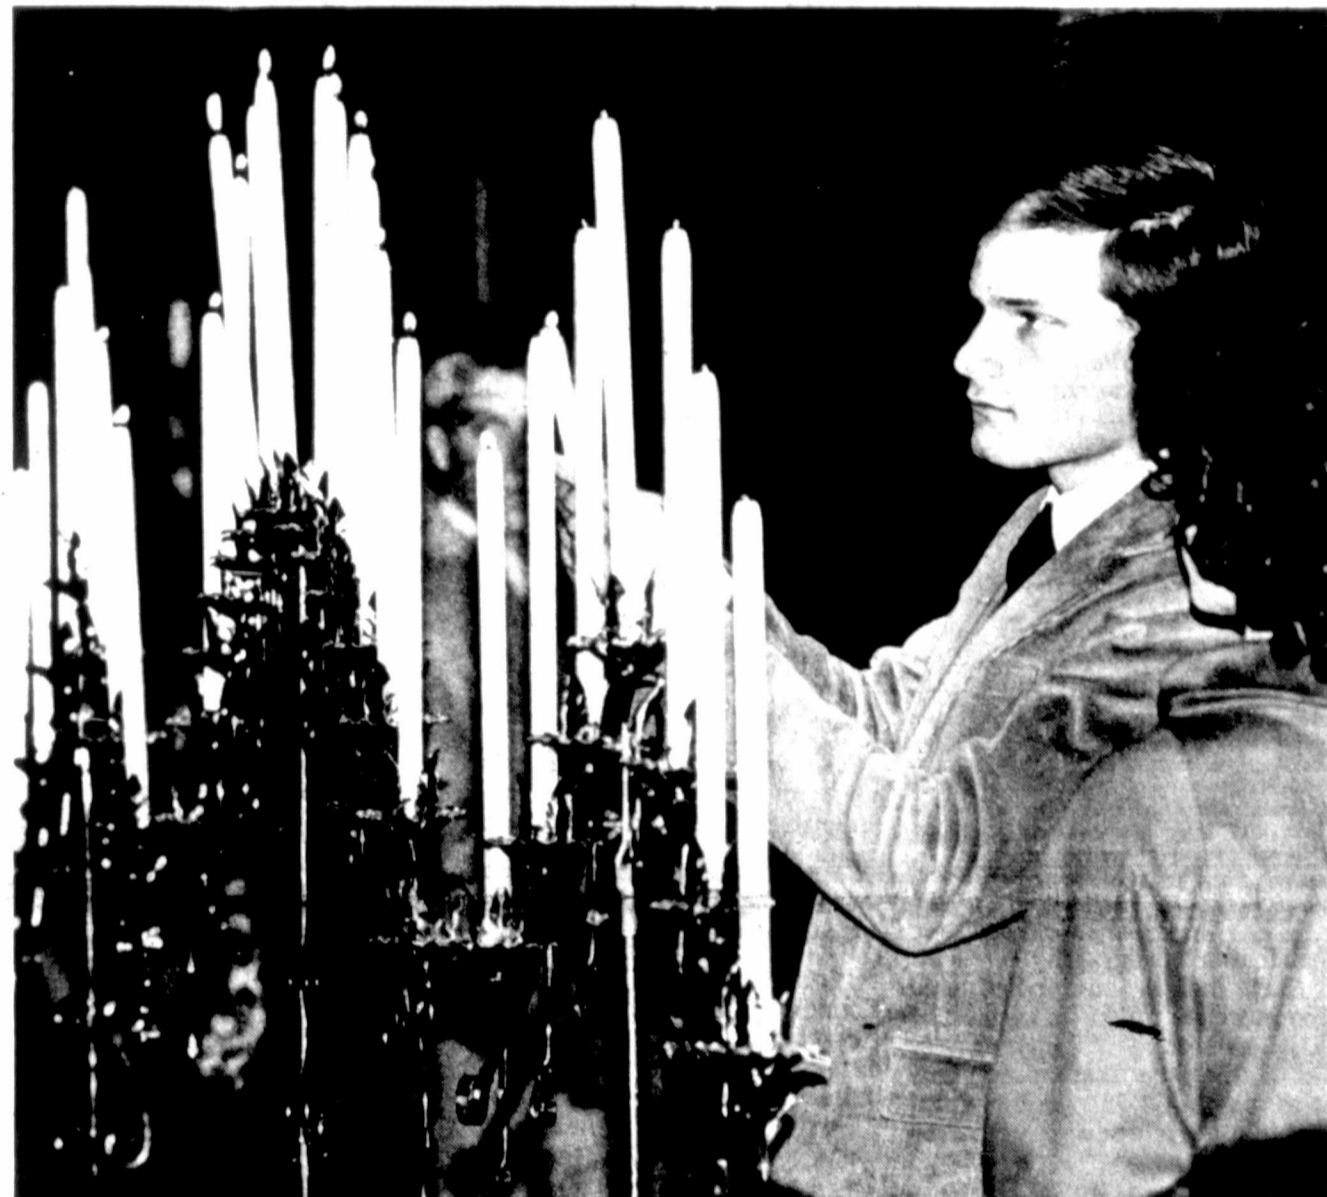

During the nights, lows are expected at 10 degrees or in the teens through Wednesday. By Friday, the overnight low is still expected to be in the teens to lower 20s.

Across Texas Monday morning, temperatures remained cold with freezing drizzle reported in South Texas and parts of East Texas.

Light snow dusted parts of the Texas Panhandle.

Skies were mostly cloudy over South and East Texas, much of See COLD, page 8

Cogdell due visit by TDC

A contingent of Texas Department of Corrections officials will tour Cogdell Memorial Thursday as part of the local hospital's application to provide medical services for TDC's Daniel Unit.

The group will visit also with officials at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, which has applied to be the primary care provider for TDC's two West Texas prison units, and at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, which seeks to provide medical care for the 2,250-bed unit under construction there.

Facilities to be visited by the TDC group comprises the list of health care providers which have submitted a "solicitation of interest" to TDC related to the two West Texas prisons.

The group is expected to include James Riley, assistant See HOSPITAL, page 8

CHILLED TO THE BONE — The early morning low Monday was 8 degrees and no immediate relief is in sight from weekend readings in Snyder which never rose above 22 degrees. SO reports arrests in local burglaries

Two Nolan County men have been arrested for burglary in connection with a Jan. 10 break-in at Ira Pump & Supply.

The case has been investigated locally by the Scurry County sheriff's office.

Danny Pate, 34, of Blackwell was arrested by Sweetwater police at a residence in Sweetwater Saturday afternoon, and his bond was scheduled to be set Monday morning by Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway here.

Louis Diaz, 31, of Sweetwater was arrested Friday afternoon at the White Buffalo Motel on 25th St. and was released on $5,000 bond.

Sheriff's deputies said Pate is also being charged with a Jan. 10 burglary at Dick Gray Co. a half-mile south of Ira and a Jan. 16 See BURGLARY, page 8

Court oks smoke alarm bid

Scurry County commissioners Monday authorized Sheriff Keith Collier to advertise for bids for smoke alarms in the county jail to satisfy requirements of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

Collier said he has mostly completed the installation of an improved smoke removal system. Once the smoke alarms are received, he said he would be installing electric motors for the system. Bids will be opened at 11 a.m. Feb. 21.

The only other action item on the 10 a.m. Monday agenda was postponed at the request of a Southwestern Bell official in Lubbock. Bell had asked the court to pass a resolution supporting the company's "Texas First" telecommunications alternative.

Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. was absent Monday.

Foundation helps pay for education

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1989 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've been helping a friend do some carpentry work at his house lately, and I've noticed that his 8-year-old daughter has a crush on me. I'm 18, so the most attention I paid to her was to let her help me with some small jobs and engage in some man-to-kid conversations during the breaks.

Today, while I was bent down tying my shoestring, she grabbed me around the neck and tried to kiss me! I quickly pulled away by standing up and getting out of her reach and went right back to work.

Other girls have had crushes on me and got rather aggressive, but I've never had a girl this young come on to me the way this girl did. Now I worry that one day she might do this to the wrong guy, and, for want of a better word, get herself raped.

I think nature is sending this little girl mixed signals, and I don't know whether to tell her parents or to tell her myself. I don't want to get her in trouble with her parents, but I'm not sure it's my place to tell her what could happen to her if she tries to kiss the wrong guy. What is your advice?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: First tell her that you think she's a nice little girl, and you're quite upset when she tried to kiss you because she could get into a lot of trouble with that kind of behavior. Tell her that you don't have time to explain the danger of that kind of conduct, but you are going to ask her parents to have a talk with her. Then tell her parents. This child doesn't need punishment — she needs to be warned. Please take my advice. If she were your child, I'm sure you'd want her to know.

DEAR ABBY: I had to write and tell you about my story of love and forgiveness. I am white and my wife is black. Fifteen years ago, when we got married, my mother disowned me and cursed my wife's existence. She never acknowledged any of my three children. She just cut me out of her life as though I had died.

Two and a half years ago, my mother was stricken with a debilitating form of cancer, and it was obvious that she would have to go to a nursing home. Although there are five of us siblings in the family, none of the other four volunteered to take her. My wife came forward and said no one in her family would go to a nursing home as long as we had a home.

At first it wasn't easy, but my wife and mother eventually developed a very special relationship. When my mother couldn't dress herself, my wife dressed her, and when Mom couldn't feed herself, my wife fed her. During those two years, my wife never complained.

Mom told my wife many times how sorry she was for all the years she wasted. Best of all, our children grew to know and love their grandmother before she died. I feel very blessed. Sign me...

ARANSAS PASS, Texas (AP) — They've just started school, but first graders in the Aransas Pass Independent School District already have money set aside for college.

Aransas Pass is shifting from a community known as the "Shrimping Capital of the World" to an educational center that guarantees financial aid to students who want to further their education.

Last month, school district officials and representatives of a private foundation announced a program to provide college and trade-school scholarships to public school children beginning with this school year's first-

Probe begins into shooting by patrolman

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A special investigation has been launched by the Arlington city manager's office into the third fatal shooting involving one police officer.

Officials will be trying to determine why officer Brian Farrell, who was involved in two other fatal shootings since August, was serving an arrest warrant on a potentially violent suspect in Dallas and was not at his desk job in the department's forgery investigations unit.

"We're just mystified," said City Manager Bill Kirchhoff. "It was our understanding that he was assigned clerical duty."

Farrell, 25, fatally shot Michael Wayne Robinson, 21, on Wednesday in Dallas.

With two citizens groups pressing for Farrell's dismissal, the case is shaping into a political problem for the city.

Hazel Lewis, head of the city's black citizens advisory committee, said she fears Arlington could suffer the same racial tension existing between citizens and police in Dallas.

The victim killed Wednesday was an Anglo. In the other shootings, the victims were Hispanic and black.

Houston cuts tuberculosis funding despite many cases

HOUSTON (AP) — The city of Houston, which experienced a 17.2 percent jump in tuberculosis cases from 1987 to 1988, cut its contribution to a prevention program by 48 percent over the past four years, a state review shows.

The city's funding for TB was $407,717 in 1984 and only $213,100 in 1988. The state's funding was $1.44 million in 1984 and $1.39 million in 1988, a 3.9 percent decline.

City health officials have complained that while Houston has nearly 30 percent of the state's TB cases, it receives just under 16.45 percent of funds the state has for such programs.

State health authorities said the increase might be caused by AIDS-related TB, but the city lacks a registry that would allow it to match TB and acquired immune deficiency syndrome cases.

Marcus Longoria, director of TB control for the city, said the decrease in city funding for tuberculosis resulted from city budget cuts.

The state report notes that this year will be the first in three years that the program will be able to hire any new people. But they will just replace those that have left, Longoria said.

"It's frustrating," said City Councilwoman Eleanor Tinsley. "I've been arguing for more funding. Houston should be doing better than we are doing."

Ms. Tinsley said health officials have known of the city's TB problem since last February when a study sponsored by the American Lung Association revealed that tests of Houston schoolchildren were positive in rates much higher than those of the nation's youngsters. Later tests showed that case rates of tuberculosis in Houston children are three times the national average.

graders — the high school class of 2000.

Starting this year, $17,500 will be invested annually in a trust for incoming first graders in the school district, said Ben Pate, executive director of the Coastal Bend Foundation.

The program was started with seed money from a portion of the profitable sale in 1982 of Coastal Bend Hospital, which the foundation built and sold.

The scholarship plan is intended to encourage students to continue their formal education, Superintendent Glenn Acker said. Currently, the dropout rate in Aransas Pass is 5 percent, although only 55 percent of high school graduates go on to college or trade school.

Joey Lozano, a spokesman for the Texas Education Agency, said he was unaware of any other school district in the state offering a similar scholarship program.

Based on current interest rates, the initial $17,500 investment would be worth $50,000 by the year 2000, Acker said. Hypothetically, a current first-grader who spends all 12 years in the Aransas Pass school district would be eligible for a maximum initial $2,500 scholarship upon graduation.

Acker said the amount of scholarship money a student receives would be determined by a formula. For example, a pupil attending all 12 years in the school district would receive 12 credits. That amount would be divided into the total amount of money available that year.

The criteria for continued eligibility has not yet been determined.

Residents are touting the program as innovative, visionary and unique.

High school counselor Linda Smith says the day the program affecting the district's 207 first graders was announced, she looked at the 6-year-olds scurrying around and thought: "All these little children are going to be in my office applying for scholarships 11 years from now."

Carol Callender, whose daughter will graduate from high school this year, has a first-grade son who will be able to participate in the program.

Study says Dallas, Tarrant counties more dangerous

DALLAS (AP) — With crime substantially on the rise, Tarrant and Dallas counties became more dangerous places to live in the 1980s, according to a newly-released study.

Criterion Inc., an Irving-based private demographic and economic consulting company, conducted a study examining population, income, crime and building trends in Dallas and Tarrant census tracts — 383 in Dallas and 190 in Tarrant.

The study updates a 1984 profile of Dallas County and is expanded for the first time to look at Tarrant County.

Total crime in Dallas County rose to 130.3 per 1,000 residents in 1987 from 98.7 per thousand in 1981, the study said. In Tarrant County, total crime jumped to 112.1 per thousand in 1987 from 88.8 per thousand in 1981.

The crime is concentrated within the city limits of Dallas and Fort Worth rather than in surrounding suburbs, according to the study. The area with the most crime is the Dallas Police Department's central division, which encompasses downtown and parts of Oak Cliff, east Dallas and south Dallas.

Fort Worth has more high-crime districts — those with 175 or more incidents per 1,000 people. But violent crime, including murder, rape, robbery and assault, is more widespread in Dallas, the study revealed.

"Fort Worth is the city of high property crime, but Dallas is the city of violent crime," said Steve Parsons, Criterion staff vice president.

Another trend cited in the report is that the spatial gap between the wealthiest area residents and the poorest is growing — especially in Dallas County.

The well-off are moving further north into the suburbs while the less-well-off continue to be confined to the southern half of the city.

"Dallas is the jurisdiction of the poor in Dallas County and Fort Worth is the jurisdiction of the poor in Tarrant County," Parsons said.

Both the Dallas and Tarrant County communities matured in the 1980s, with Dallas eclipsing Tarrant in median age. The study points out that the median age of Dallas County residents rose to 31.9 in 1988 from 28.4 in 1980. The median age of Tarrant County dwellers increased to 31.8 in 1988 from 28.8 in 1980.

The convergence in age of residents in both counties, Parsons said, is further indication that differences between Dallas and Tarrant County are disappearing and a true, single metropolitan area is taking hold.

Small business course slated

In today's economy, businesses that succeed are those with a competitive edge says Don Altman, director of the Caruth Small Business Development Center at Abilene Christian University.

He will be giving pointers on "How To Start Your Own Business" in a 21-hour Continuing Education course set to begin Tuesday at Western Texas College and running through March 28.

Included in the course discussion will be basic considerations in planning and establishing a business. The emphasis is one personal assessment for success and the development of a business plan. Class members will develop their own business plan, describing in writing the proposed or existing business and its services or manufacturing process.

Altman has been director of the Small Business Development Center since it was started in September, 1986, and he has worked with the small business community in the Abilene area since 1971.

Persons wishing to enroll in the class are to call the WTC Continuing Education office at 573-8511, ext. 240. Tuition for the course is $28.25 and they will need to purchase a textbook costing $25, making the total cost $53.25.

Banks' tight loan policies criticized

HOUSTON (AP) — After being shellshocked by five years of economic upheaval, lending institutions are slowing the city's economic revival by making it impossible for many small businesses to borrow money, critics say.
A number of Houston small businessmen struggling from job to job say many deserve to have their loan requests rejected, but many seemingly have applications that would be approved anywhere but Houston, the Houston Chronicle reported Sunday.
"It is slowing down the recovery," said Susan Macy, assistant director of the University of Houston Small Business Development Center, an organization devoted to helping small businesses.
"Repercussions of these short-term capital constraints may prolong the recovery period for the region," concluded a recent study by the Rice Center, a research group associated with Rice University.

Many observers point to a capital shortage as the state's No. 1 economic problem. But the Rice Center came to the opposite conclusion. A controversial study contends capital is plentiful, but banks are reluctant to part with it.

The Rice Center findings have stirred controversy because the report relies on anecdotes instead of hard numbers.

Discipline problems high

HOUSTON (AP) — Discipline problems within the Houston Independent School District are on the rise and teachers and school officials say some parents refuse to deal with their disruptive children.

Teachers say parents, who should be their partners, are at times ineffective or even obstacles in dealing with an unruly student.

"Probably all of them have no structure at home," Austin High School teacher Bernard Jackson said of the disruptive students. "When you pick up the telephone and say, 'I'm sorry, Mrs. Martinez, I'm having a serious problem with your kid, he's skipping class,' she'll tell you, 'I can't do anything with him.'"

"Sometimes, they just don't give a damn," he said. "One parent I called said, 'He doesn't live here anymore. I never see him anymore.' Sometimes the parents can't do anything." Jackson said he wants the school administrators to "call the parents, get them off work and get them up there and tell them you must — you, you must, take responsibility for them. I don't think we hold the parents responsible enough."

Texas occupancy rates are lowest in the nation

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas' major cities have some of the worst year-end office occupancy rates in the nation — including four of the nation's five emptiest suburban office markets, according to recent real estate surveys.

Austin, San Antonio and Dallas ranked among the five emptiest in the nation for downtown office buildings, said a study by Cushman and Wakefield of Texas Inc.

For suburban office buildings, Austin has the worst occupancy rate in the nation.

"It's going to be five to 10 years before you can say: 'Hey. The Texas office market is healthy again,'" Matthew S. Khourie, partner in the Houston office of Trammell Crow Co., told the Houston Chronicle.

San Antonio blotted the state's image with the biggest decline in downtown occupancy rates in the nation, about 4.4 percent between the third and fourth quarter, Cushman and Wakefield said. Dallas also reported declines in the period.

But Houston showed improvement in both suburban and downtown office markets in the fourth quarter of 1988, Cushman and Wakefield said.

"Even though Houston's office market has shown improvement throughout 1988, the nation's occupancy rate still exceeds Houston's," said James E. Peters, senior vice president and branch manager of Cushman and Wakefield.

Cushman and Wakefield's survey showed the nation's downtowns ended the fourth quarter with an average 85 percent occupancy rate. That was better than Houston's downtown

Teachers admit parents are not solely to blame. Teachers interviewed said when the parents get involved, there is almost always improvement in the child's behavior, but when drugs or liquor are involved the situation can be hopeless.

Teachers are reporting students being openly drunk, high on drugs and hostile. They also bring guns to school, sell drugs, walk out of class and curse their teachers, officials told the Houston Chronicle.

The discipline problems are apparent from stacks of weekly incident reports filed by campus security guards and newly installed Substance Abuse Monitors, known as SAMs

Don't Blame Your Age For Poor Hearing.

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest hearing aid Beltone has ever developed will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than an eighth of an ounce, and it fits completely into the ear canal.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Although a hearing aid may not help everyone, more and more people with hearing losses are being helped. For your free sample send your name, address, and phone number today to: Department 89080, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 West Victoria Street, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

Send for yours now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than an eighth of an ounce, and it fits completely into the ear canal.

Dramatic discard

By James Jacoby

One of the more unusual recent bridge books is Allan Falk's "Spingold Challenge" (Granovetter Books, 18 Village View Bluff, Ballston Lake, NY 12019, $11.95 postpaid). It is a fictional account of a team match played in the finals of the prestigious summer North American Championships. This week we will look at some of the interesting problems depicted.

Against four spades, West leads the king of hearts, and defender East needs to convey to West that the best defense is a diamond switch at trick two. When East eventually wins the ace of spades, he will get West back on lead with another heart and get a diamond ruff. Obviously it would not be enough to simply play the deuce of hearts on the opening lead, since West would almost surely then play clubs. Is there an answer?

The recommended play for East is the queen of hearts. And the hope is that West will be able to determine that it is quite unlikely that East holds only two hearts. Therefore, the wastage of the heart queen must be a dramatic suit-preference play, calling for the play of a diamond. If West reads all that correctly, the contract will be set. In this particular deal, since West holds only five hearts, he should reason that declarer probably doesn't hold four hearts, since he didn't bid two hearts at his second turn. At any rate, it costs nothing for East to play the heart queen, and it may get West to draw the right conclusion, thus setting the contract.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books. © 1989, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

For conference games tonight...

WTC teams travel to Odessa

Western Texas College faces some of the conference's elite when the Dusters and Westerners take on Odessa College in a pair of Western Junior College Athletic Conference basketball games here tonight.

Western Texas' women, the Lady Dusters, hope to hold on to a share of first place in the WJCAC but need a win over the up-and-coming Lady Wranglers to do it. Western is 6-2 in conference play and 19-7 for the season while Odessa is 5-2 in the WJCAC and 17-7 overall.

Game time is set for 6 p.m. In another key women's conference game this evening, South Plains, also 5-2 in conference play, visits Borger to play Frank Phillips. The FPC Lady Plainsmen are 3-3 and still in the hunt for a regional tournament berth. In tonight's other game, Howard visits Hobbs, N.M. to play New Mexico Junior College.

Western Texas' men have the unenviable task of taking on the nation's top-ranked juco team in the Odessa Wranglers. Western, winner of the last two ballgames, is 12-13 for the season and 3-8 in conference play.

Odessa, featuring last season's NJCAA Player of the Year Larry Johnson, is undefeated at 24-0 and 9-0. The clash is set for 8 p.m.

In other men's games this evening, South Plains (24-2 and 10-1) plays Frank Phillips (11-9, 2-6) in Borger while Midland (15-8, 6-4) entertains New Mexico Military Institute (7-16, 2-7) and Howard College (14-10, 6-4) is at Hobbs, N.M. to play New Mexico Junior College (11-13, 3-6).

Tonight's game is the only one of the week for Coach Kelly Chadwick's Lady Dusters. The Westerners, under the direction of Tony Mauldin, travel to Roswell, N.M. for a game with NMMI on Thursday.

Next week, Western Texas will host a pair of home doubleheaders, entertaining South Plains on Monday, Feb. 13, and New Mexico JC on Thursday, Feb. 16.

Porsche wins Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Derek Bell of Britain, Bob Wollek of France and American John Andretti combined to drive a Porsche 962 to victory Sunday at Daytona International Speedway.

Bell, who twice won America's most prestigious sports car endurance event as a teammate of the late Al Holbert, the five-time IMSA champion who was killed in the crash of his private plane last September, said the race was dedicated to his friend and colleague.

"This was a little bit special to me, especially with Al Holbert dying last year," said Bell, who also has won the 24-hour race at LeMans, France five times. "I thought about Al quite a bit this week. He is missed."

Car-owner Jim Busby, whose cars battled Holbert on the racetrack for years, said, "He was a friend as well as a competitor. I'm proud we're able to carry on for him. It was an inspiration to our whole team and all these drivers."

Longhorns take over conference leadership

AUSTIN - The University of Texas Longhorns took over sole possession of the top spot in the Southwest Conference basketball standings Saturday - at least temporarily.

The Longhorns, who defeated Baylor 110-81, will have to knock off Arkansas at home on Wednesday to stay on top.

In other SWC games over the weekend, Arkansas fell out of a two-way tie for the lead with an 84-73 loss to Texas Tech in Lubbock while Texas Christian University was defeated 64-59 by Texas A&M and Rice upset Houston 67-66. It was Houston's fifth conference loss by a combined total of eight points.

TCU's loss to A&M was the Horned Frogs' third straight

LA Lakers back to old form as Jabbar finds range again

by The Associated Press
The Los Angeles Lakers are back in sync, largely due to the improved play of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Rumored on the way to the bench a month ago, Abdul-Jabbar has responded by scoring in double figures in his last 11 outings. He had 18 points Sunday night in a 134-116 victory over the New Jersey Nets.

His first basket, a 10-foot sky hook from the baseline just 22 seconds into the game, pushed him over the 38,000-point mark, nearly 7,000 ahead of runner-up Wilt Chamberlain on the all-time list.

"These milestones are nice," the 41-year-old Abdul-Jabbar said. "I'm contributing more, and that's something to feel good about. I was feeling like I was just taking up space."

In his last 11 games, Abdul-Jabbar is averaging 13.8 points, compared to his 8.4 average in the previous 27 games. He also had nine rebounds in Sunday's victory, the Lakers' 10th in their last 12 games.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, it was Cleveland 110, Charlotte 91; Detroit 113, Chicago 102; Seattle 89, Boston 87; Miami 102, Sacramento 98; and Houston 124, Denver 112.

Magic Johnson had 27 points and 13 assists, James Worthy had 22 points and Orlando Woolridge 20 for the Lakers.

Rookie Chris Morris led the Nets with 29 points, a career high, and Dennis Hopson had 21.

Rockets 124, Nuggets 112
Houston had eight players in double figures in its victory over Denver.

The Rockets outscored Denver 44-31 in the second quarter by shooting 76 percent from the field, extending a 32-26 lead to 76-57 at the half.

Purvis Short had 23 points for the Rockets. Walter Davis had 25 points for Denver.

SuperSonics 89, Celtics 87
Seattle held Boston to 14 points in the fourth quarter and Derrick McKey's two free throws with six seconds left capped a rally from a seven-point deficit with less than four minutes remaining.

Dale Ellis scored eight of his 30 points down the stretch for the Sonics. His layup tied the score 87-87 after the Celtics turned over the ball with 44 seconds left on a 10-second violation.

After the Sonics forced a jump ball, McKey was fouled in the ensuing scramble and calmly sank both free throws.

The Celtics were led by Kevin McHale with 31 points.

Girls register for soccer

Any girl age 10 through 12 as of Jan. 1, 1989 is encouraged to register for soccer.

Snyder had its first all-girls soccer team last season. Girls who are interested should contact either Mickey Ferris at (915) 573-8467 or Becky Winkler at 547-7470.

The season will begin in late February or early March and end before May.

TTL meeting this week

Parents or persons interested in coaching a team or serving as an officer, umpire or concession stand worker are urged to attend a local Texas Teenage League baseball meeting Tuesday at Snyder Athletic Center.

Agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting will include selection of new officers, starting date, draft date, managers and coaches (for at least two teams), fund raisers, concession stand volunteers, finances and equipment.

Ladies at home Tuesday

Coach Ken Housden's Lady Tigers play their final home game of the 1988-1989 basketball season here Tuesday as they entertain San Angelo Lake View in the high school gym.

The girls complete this season on Friday, Feb. 10, in Monahans. Snyder's boys are on the road Tuesday to San Angelo but will complete their season with three straight home games - Monahans on Feb. 10, Sweetwater on Feb. 14 and Pecos on Feb. 17.

Housden's girls are 10-14 overall and 4-8 in District 4-4A. Lake View is 7-15 overall and 5-7.

Coach Larry Scott's boys are 13-10 for 1988-89 and 6-4 in the district while Lake View is 13-14 and 4-6.

Bowling tourney coming

The annual Snyder Bowling Association Tournament begins this weekend at Snyder Lanes.

The tournament, scheduled for this Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 11-12, and for the following weekend, Feb. 18-19, is open to all ABC-sanctioned bowlers. Nonmembers may enter by paying $7 for a membership card.

Trophies will be awarded for first place in each event. Special trophies will be awarded for high handicap game and series, high scratch game and series and high scratch all-events. Trophies are limited to one per bowler.

Bowlers must enter both singles and doubles or neither. Fee is $12 per event ($24 singles and doubles) and $60 per team.

Entries close at 10 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 9.

For information and registration, contact Snyder Lanes.

Calcavecchia claims triumph at LA Open

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Mark Calcavecchia said he would be glad to give up his second victory in the last three weeks.

"If I could trade it, I'd let him win by one again if I could beat him in the Ryder Cup," Calcavecchia said Sunday after he had turned back Sandy Lyle and scored a one-shot victory in the Los Angeles Open.

"I didn't know I had it in me," said Calcavecchia, who is rapidly establishing himself as one of American's premier performers.

He won the Australian Open in November, scored a seven-shot triumph in Phoenix two weeks ago and took over the PGA Tour's money-winning lead with $358,952 after pocketing $180,000 Sunday.

This one, the fifth of his PGA Tour career, came at the expense of the Scot who beat him in the Masters last year with a magnificent shot from a fairway bunker.

"It never even crossed my mind," Calcavecchia said. "Sandy's a great guy, a great player. There was no revenge factor involved. I was just trying to win the golf tournament. It wasn't important to me that I beat Sandy. I didn't matter whether he was second or third or 50th."

Calcavecchia compiled a final-round, 3-under-par 68 in biting cold and coming from two shots back. He won with a 272 total, 12 under par on the Riviera Country Club course that was still wet from rains that disrupted play Friday and Saturday.

But he also said he would trade the victory for an American triumph in the Ryder Cup matches against Europe's best at Sutton-Coldfield, England, on Sept. 22-24.

Calcavecchia is certain to be on the 12-man American team and Lyle will be a member of the European team.

Lyle, two shots ahead after the day-late finish of the third round, could do no better than par 71 over the final 18 holes and finished one stroke back at 273.

Obituaries

Billy Foree

Services for Billy Foree, 47, of Angleton, former Snyder resident, will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. James Merrell, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will follow at Hillside Memorial Gardens.

He died Saturday at a Fort Smith hospital.

He was born Dec. 6, 1941 in Snyder and had lived in Angleton since 1973. He had been a self-employed welder and construction contractor.

He is survived by his wife, Claudia; two daughters, Debbie Cody of Marshall and Daphne Thompson of Snyder; his mother, Mittie Idellah Foree of Snyder; his father, D. M. Foree of Hermleigh; and three brothers, Ed Foree of Snyder, Tommy Foree of Weatherford and Dink Foree of Austin.

Ardelle Henderson

DE LEON—Services were set for 1:30 p.m. Monday at the First Baptist Church for Ardelle Skaggs Henderson, 79, who died Saturday in a De Leon nursing home. Burial was to follow in the De Leon Cemetery.

She was the sister of Cotton Joiner of Snyder.

Born in Comanche County, she was a homemaker and a long-time resident of De Leon. She was a member of the Rock Bluff Baptist Church and was the widow of Robert Skaggs and Charlie Henderson. Survivors include three sons, the Rev. Lowell D. Skaggs of Clyde, Melvin Skaggs of De Leon and Stanley Skaggs of Everman; a daughter, Margie Hale of De Leon; another brother, Pete Joiner of Gorman; two sisters, Agnes Baker and Geraldine Singleton, both of De Leon; nine grandchildren; and 19 great-grandchildren.

Robert Perez

MULESHOE—Final rites are set for 2 p.m. Tuesday in immaculate Conception Catholic Church for Robert Perez, 51, who died Sunday in St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock. Burial will follow in the Bailey County Memorial Park.

He was the brother of Janie Perez and Tony Perez, both of Snyder.

He was born in Texas and moved to Muleshoe from San Benito in 1954. He was a mechanic and was a member of the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church. He married Francis Bryand in 1959 in Muleshoe.

Survivors include his wife; three sons, Robert Perez Jr. of Gorman, Eddie Perez and Juan Miguel Perez, both of Muleshoe; his mother, Geronima of Muleshoe; five other sisters, Gloria Del Toro, Alice Garcia and Sylvia Castorena, all of Muleshoe, Lupe Gurra of Friona and Mary Vasquez of Lazbuddie; two other brothers, Mike Perez of Carlsbad and Ernest Perez of Mercedes; and three grandchildren.

Arrests noted

Bush S&L plan likely to hit taxpayers and institutions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is putting together a plan to bail out the savings and loan industry, and many are predicting he'll ask taxpayers and financial institutions to share the cost of paying off billions of dollars in borrowing.

Bush, who retreated to the presidential retreat in Camp David, Md., over the weekend to listen to advice from top advisers, could make his decision known as early as today. White House aides, speaking on condition of anonymity, say they do not expect the final package to include a much-criticized proposal to levy a fee on depositors of about $2.50 for every $1,000 in their accounts.

Instead, trade association officials and members of Congress who have spoken with the Treasury Department predict the plan will feature these elements:

—Borrowing, in the form of bonds, of about $50 billion over the next three years, —Money from a mixture of sources, including taxpayer dollars and insurance premiums from S&Ls and banks, to pay $7 billion to $9 billion in annual interest on the bonds.

—An administrative reshuffling that would include a separate apparatus to sell off insolvent S&Ls, a recapitalized insurance fund for healthy S&Ls and a regulatory agency, perhaps under the control of the Treasury Department.

There has been little disagreement over borrowing the S&L cleanup money. The much more difficult problem is figuring out how to pay the interest on the bonds.

Instead of the deposit fee, insurance premiums paid by the institutions — currently 83 cents per $1,000 for banks and $2.08 for S&Ls — probably will be increased.

The increase mentioned, at least before Bush reviewed the plan, would bring the premiums to about $1.80 per $1,000 for banks and $2.50 for S&Ls. That would raise about half the $7 billion to $9 billion needed each year.

Another option would be to siphon off interest earned from money deposited with the Federal Reserve. Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan has opposed this. He argues that the Fed pays its income into the general treasury anyway and that siphoning off interest would merely inflate the budget deficit.

Commercial bankers have vociferously opposed being made to help pay for problems in a competing industry. They do not want any mingling of their insurance fund, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., with the S&L fund, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

But, they probably would accept higher premiums for a limited period, say three years, if the money went to build up the FDIC, which has had its own less publicized and less severe problems after paying to close or merge 217 banks last year.

FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman told a group of Illinois bankers in Washington on Friday that the fund will report a balance of about $14 billion for the end of 1988.

Another financing problem is how to sell the bonds without inflating the government's already huge $2.7 trillion national debt.

A way around that is to cover the principal of some bonds with several billion dollars in retained earnings at the regional Federal Home Loan Banks, which are owned by the industry. That way, only the annual interest paid on the bonds would be "on-budget."

As a way of easing the pressure to push more of the cost onto financial institutions, bank officials are pushing the notion that any spending from general revenue should be exempt from Gramm-Rudman budget deficit limits, because the S&L problem developed over a period of years.

Six-year-old Fort Worth boy victim of Colorado avalanche

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP) — A 6-year-old boy struck by an avalanche along with his two young cousins as they played in a condominium driveway died late Sunday, about 12 hours after rescue workers found him buried under 5 to 8 feet of snow.

Taylor Huddleston, of Fort Worth, Texas, had been playing with Erwin Effler, 6, and Michael Effler, 4, of Toledo, Ohio, in the shoveled portion of a driveway at the Mountain Sunrise Condominiums when the snow roared down on them at 11:20 a.m. Sunday from a hill behind the building.

The boys' fathers were identified by Colorado authorities as Lauren Huddleston of Fort Worth, Texas, and Erwin Effler of Toledo.

The two Effler boys were buried near each other in 3 to 5 feet of snow and were pulled out within 15 minutes of the slide by volunteers who rushed to the scene, said Mount Crested Butte policeman Jeff Bates. But the Huddleston boy was buried some distance away, under 5 to 8 feet of snow and he was buried for about an hour.

Searchers from the Crested Butte Search and Rescue Team, the Crested Butte Fire Department, the ski patrol at the Crested Butte Ski Resort and others used probe poles and shovels to find and uncover the boy about 12:30 p.m.

The Effler brothers "were semi-conscious and were revived on the scene," said Bates. But Huddleston "was transported to a local clinic. They worked on him there for a little bit ... he had a weak heartbeat

Gunnison County Undersheriff Russ Locke said the boys were waiting for a bus to take them to the airport when the avalanche hit.

"The bus had just driven into the parking lot and their fathers had stepped out and yelled for them to 'come on' when the avalanche swept past a row of condominiums and into the parking area," Locke said.

Under attack from insurgents...

Afghan conscripts on the run

EDITOR'S NOTE: Barry Renfrew, the AP bureau chief in Islamabad, Pakistan, from 1985 to 1987, has just made his fourth trip into Afghanistan with Moslem guerrillas.

By Barry Renfrew
Associated Press Writer
GERDE GHOU, Afghanistan (AP) — The road to Kabul is littered with burned-out Afghan army tanks, trucks and security posts abandoned by retreating communist forces.

Dotted along the highway leading from the Pakistani border to the Afghan capital about 120 miles to the west are signs of the collapse of the Afghan army in the area as Moslem insurgents move in.

Guerrilla commanders say Afghan government forces began to disintegrate after Soviet troops pulled out of the area late last year under a total withdrawal plan now in its final days.

"The communists are all gone. They are running for their lives," said one guerrilla commander.

Tanks and armored personnel carriers destroyed by guerrilla rockets stood abandoned in the center of the highway or lie in roadside ditches. Trucks and radio command vehicles stood where their crews abandoned them.

Senior guerrilla commanders told a visiting journalist over the weekend that Afghan army forces in the area are surrounded in the major city of Jalalabad and a few outlying towns. They claim government troops are demoralized, that just a handful of diehard communists want to fight.

The Afghan army is composed mainly of ill-trained conscripts who are unwilling to fight for the Soviet-backed Kabul government. Western intelligence estimates put its strength nationwide at 30,000 troops.

Afghan army units around Jalalabad have put up little resistance as the Red Army withdraws after nine years of propping up the Kabul regime.

the High Plains and Trans-Pecos. They were partly cloudy to mostly clear in the other areas of the state.

A winter weather advisory was posted for Monday night for northeast Texas and the southern sections of north Central Texas.

Commander Abdul Zaher said the guerrillas expect Jalalabad to surrender soon when its supplies run out, but would attack if the garrison tried to hold out. The guerrillas, he said, wanted to avoid civilian casualties.

The only sign of fighting were a few salvos from government artillery in the distance around Jalalabad, which is about 90 miles east of Kabul. Guerrilla commanders said 12,000 insurgents were surrounding Jalalabad, but there was little fighting.

"When the communist government is destroyed the fighting will end," said Khial Nur, a commander of the guerrillas, most of whom are based in Pakistan. The insurgents are aided chiefly by Pakistan and the United States.

An Afghan army prisoner dressed in a ragged green uniform appeared dazed and shocked as guerrillas helped him walk to their base. "He does not want to fight. We will look after him," said one guerrilla.

Some of the abandoned Afghan army bases and security posts along the Kabul highway bore signs of heavy fighting. Walls had been shattered by mortar and rocket fire and were pocked with machine-gun bullets.

Other installations were undamaged and appeared to have been abandoned without a fight.

At Landhi Khyber, guerrillas relaxed in a sprawling Afghan army base. Green Islamic flags with crossed swords fluttered from the top of the barracks and guerrillas prayed in the courtyard.

The burned-out wrecks of about 20 Afghan army trucks littered what was once the motor pool. A few bits of green and khaki army clothing lay on the ground, flung away by fleeing soldiers.

At Gerde Ghous, about 20 miles east of Jalalabad, guerrillas showed off a captured barracks they said once housed 1,200 government militia troops. Buildings were pocked with bullet holes. Two shattered tanks stood on the nearby highway, their guns pointing blindly into the air.

Guerrillas had crawled their names and Islamic slogans on captured army posts. "Long live Islamic holy war," said a slogan at Ghazi Abad.

Insurgents wearing traditional baggy Afghan trousers, long shirts and turbans perched on gutted tanks, yelling greetings to bands of compatriots who roared up the highway in trucks and buses. Islamic flags and posters were plastered on the wrecked army vehicles.

Bush ethics chief maintaining dual role

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's point man for ethics policy says he plans to remain chairman of a multimillion-dollar communications company while serving in the White House, a dual role that would have violated Reagan administration policy.

C. Boyden Gray, who has been Bush's counsel since 1981, says he plans to continue serving as chairman of the family-owned company, Atlanta-based Summit Communications Group Inc., although he has asked not to receive any reimbursement for doing so, according to The Washington Post and The New York Times.

26 WTC sophomores named to Who's Who

Twenty-six sophomore students at Western Texas College have been selected for the 1989 edition of "Who's Who in American Junior Colleges."

Awards Day and will be presented certificates at that time.

Who's Who students are selected by campus nominating committees at more than 1,400 institutions in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. A Who's Who directory has been published since 1934.

WTC students in the new Who's Who selections are Lance Jones of Andrews, Vicky Maloney of Colorado City, Tim Howard of Davenport, Iowa, Anthony Lopez of Eldorado, Michelle Pena of Hamlin, Gary Schoen of Hamilton, Julie Roewe of Haskell, Lisa Kay Gross of Knox City, Chawn Cummings of Richardson, Allison Adams, Jignesh Bhakta, Howard Bigham, Mary Gill, Kathryn Hall, Stacie Hart, David Holley, Larry Jay McGee, Tonia Robinson, Linda Kay Schwarz, Sheila Martin Sorrells, Julie Lou Strunk, Cindy Tolbert, Tammy Williamson, Dale Williamson and Amy Wilson of Snyder, and Edward Salonus of Sweetwater.

Jones is co-captain of the WTC golf team. He is a member of Phi Theta Kappa, national honor fraternity for students in junior/community colleges, and was named to the 1988 spring semester Merit List. He is a pre-optometry major and plans to transfer to Texas Tech University for the 1989 fall semester. He is the son of Jerry Jones and Mrs. Billie Jones of Andrews.

Maloney is a word processing major and plans to pursue a degree in business administration following graduation from WTC. She was named to the 1988 fall semester's President's list and was previously on the Merit List. She was recognized as a member of the honors economics class at the 1988 Awards Day. She and her husband, David, have one son, Patrick.

Howard is majoring in golf course and landscape technology. He is a member of the WTC chapter of Phi Theta Kappa and has been named to the Dean's List. He received an associate of arts degree from Blackhawk College in Moline, Ill., before enrolling at WTC. His parents are Dr. and Mr. J. Thomas Howard.

Lopez, a drama major, was nominated for an Iren Ryan Scholarship for his performance in "The Fifth Sun" at the American College Theatre Festival in December. He will go to Lubbock in March for further scholarship audition. He plans to transfer to Angelo State University to study criminal justice and to continue working toward acting professionally. He is the son of Thomas and Josie Knight of Eldorado.

Pena is a WTC cheerleader and a member of the Phi Theta Kappa executive committee. She is an elementary education major and plans to transfer to a four-year university following completion of her studies at WTC this semester. Her parents are Chris and Louise Pena.

Roewe, a pre-med student, is captain of the Lady Dusters basketball team. She is vice-president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and a member of Phi Theta Kappa. She has twice been named to the President's List and once to the Dean's List. She was recognized as an outstanding U. S. history student at the 1988 Awards Day. She plans to continue her education to pursue a career in physical therapy. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Roewe.

Gross, a drama major, plans to transfer to Texas Tech University to pursue the bachelor of science degree in nursing following graduation from WTC in May. She is a member of the WTC chapter of Phi Theta Kappa. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. George R. Cross.

Cummings, a member of the Westerner basketball team, is president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He received Coach Tony Mauldin's Hustle Award for 1987-1988. A psychology major, he is a member of Phi Theta Kappa and has twice been named to the Dean's List. He plans to transfer to Austin College to continue his studies. He is the son of Mrs. Carleatha Cummings.

Adams is a member of the executive committee of Phi Theta Kappa and will be seeking the office of vice president for PTK's Southern Region in March. She is a new WTC cheerleader and was named Miss WTC for 1988. She has chosen a liberal arts major at WTC. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Adams.

Bhakta has completed his studies at WTC and is currently enrolled at Texas Tech University. He was a member of the campus chapter of Phi Theta Kappa.

Deadly storm system spreads more snow and freezing rain

By The Associated Press

Frigid air cloaked the nation today, turning highways into icy demolition derby courses, leaving snow in unlikely places and forcing a camp of nudists in Texas to decide they couldn't bare it.

The arctic front that spilled out of Alaska last week remained stalled over virtually the entire nation, forcing temperatures below normal just about everywhere but Florida. Forecasters said relief is at least several days away.

In Arkansas, churches canceled Sunday services to spare worshippers the danger of traveling on icy roads. In Texas, Sam Houston State University and Texas A&M canceled today's classes for the same reason.

The weather has contributed to at least 38 deaths in the lower 48 states since the air spread from Alaska on Tuesday.

Among the latest victims were three people killed Sunday night on icy roads in Kentucky and a man who froze to death beneath a freeway overpass in Salt Lake City earlier in the day.

Accidents on slick roads also were blamed for four deaths in Louisiana, including two people who died when an 18-wheel truck spun out of control on an icy bridge just east of Monroe and rammed their vehicles.

In addition, four teen-agers competing in a Wisconsin ice-fishing derby were found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning Sunday after they left propane heaters running overnight in a wooden shanty. The overnight temperature near frozen Harp Lake was about 16 below zero.

A Texas boy remained in critical condition in a Grand Junction, Colo., hospital late Sunday after being trapped beneath an avalanche earlier in the day.

Two other boys were buried but managed to escape from the snowslide at Mount Crested Butte in the central Rockies.

At 2 a.m. EST today, the nation's low was minus 44 degrees at Craig, Colo. Sacramento, Calif.'s 29 degrees early today broke a 90-year-old record for the date. Elsewhere, it was 1 degree in Chicago, Denver and Minneapolis-St. Paul, 5 in St. Louis, 6 in Albuquerque, N.M., 8 in Salt Lake City, and just above freezing in San Francisco.

On Sunday, low temperature records were reached in at least 26 cities, from the Pacific to the Plains.

In Denver, it was 24 below zero, the city's coldest temperature in 26 years. At 1 p.m., the thermometer crept to 1 degree, breaking a 70-hour streak of subzero cold. The nation's low Sunday was 46 below zero at Wisdom, Mont.

It was minus 21 at South Lake Tahoe, Calif., and parts of the San Francisco Bay area remained coated in snow, astonishing longtime residents.

"You could only find a scene like this on a postcard," said Timothy Waters, a 77-year-old ranch resident at the Point Reyes National Seashore just north of the Golden Gate. "It's just extraordinarily beautiful. Our family can't remember snow like this in 40 years."

Persistent snow in Chicago forced the temporary closure of Midway Airport and the closure of two runways at O'Hare International Airport, causing 40 flight cancellations and numerous delays.

"It just won't stop," complained Kirsten Svare, a spokeswoman for Chicago's Department of Streets and Sanitation. "It just keeps coming."

Cool, drizzly weather in New Orleans didn't stop 11 scheduled Mardi Gras parades, but it did contribute to sales of hot drinks in Bourbon Street bars.

"Thank God it did get a little bit colder," said Toni Reyes, manager of the Seaport Bar. "As soon as it rained, it pushed everyone inside."

Freezing rain was reported early today across the Eastern seaboard from Delaware to Virginia, and south and west across Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, northern Mississippi and into the Texas Gulf Coast and central Texas.

In Decatur, Texas, 60 miles northwest of Dallas, members of the Bluebonnet Nudist Park couldn't keep their clothes off Sunday as temperatures were in the teens and low 20s.

"Unfortunately, we nudists have to put it on hold for a few days," said manager Arthur Moss. "As nudists, we're generally a sensible lot."

Mother reunited with her children

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A mother awarded $4.5 million in a suit against her husband and in-laws in connection with the abduction of her children was reunited with the youngsters after a seven-year separation.

Bonnie Edwards, aided by the FBI, was reunited with her teen-age son and daughter over the weekend in Los Angeles. She and the children planned to return to Texas.

Authorities accuse the children's father, Noel Welrich, of taking the children from their elementary school in 1982 in violation of a court order.

Chief faces mountainous task

DR. GOTT PETER GOTT, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently read a book that says it is chlorine in our water, rather than cholesterol, that causes atherosclerosis. Is this true?

DEAR READER: False. No reputable scientific study has linked chlorine in drinking water to atherosclerosis, the progressive blocking of arteries that comes with the aging process. Cholesterol seems to play a much more important role by acting like sludge in a pipe, attracting blood cells and calcium to form an obstruction that reduces blood flow.

For more information I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Understanding Cholesterol." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm pregnant and don't want to keep the baby. What are my options legally?

DEAR READER: Your two options are abortion and adoption.

Abortion is an emotionally charged issue and I don't choose to detail the pros and cons. Suffice it to say that abortion is legal in the United States and, with the guidance of your family doctor or organizations such as Planned Parenthood, you can be referred to the appropriate facility. Medically speaking, abortion is safe only when performed early in pregnancy, usually during the first trimester (first three months).

Adoption is a viable alternative. The procedure usually works as

Once you have tested positive for pregnancy, ask the doctor to refer you to an adoption agency. Or, if you wish, refer yourself. Most cities and many religious groups have such organizations.

Agencies work in different ways. Some will put you on a list and agree to place the baby soon after delivery. Most reputable agencies will try to pair you with prospective parents before you give birth. The prospective parents will usually pay for your prenatal and obstetrical charges. You may even get to know the parents to satisfy yourself that your baby will have a stable home. You may play a large role in selecting the adoptive parents if you wish. In addition, some adoption agencies arrange for pregnant women to live with out-of-town families during the last weeks of pregnancy when they may be embarrassed by the changes taking place in their bodies.

Upon delivery, you will be asked to sign a legal document releasing the child to its new parents.

I am not against abortion. However, there are thousands of childless couples who desperately would like to adopt newborns. I believe that adoption is a sadly under-utilized option for pregnant women. By giving up your baby to a loving couple, you will be saving a precious life and performing an act of great generosity. Out of your despair, you will be giving enormous happiness; you'll be secure that a part of you is being loved and cared for.

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — Although Roy Schwitters spent his youth leading expeditions up Mount Rainier in Washington state, he sees the flat prairie of Ellis County as the most challenging ground he has ever confronted.

Schwitters last month became the director of the biggest physics project now on the federal government's agenda — the $5.89 billion super collider. If it receives funding, the super collider would be built on a site near Waxahachie, south of Dallas.

"It's an absolutely unique experience that doesn't come along every day," Schwitters, 44, said recently during his first visit to the site area. "The notion of creating a laboratory, and all that it means, is pretty heady stuff."

He comes to the job with no experience in running a big laboratory, although he has managed one important large scientific collaboration. His vision for the facility is still undefined, he told The Dallas Morning News.

Schwitters uprooted his family from the comforts of a Victorian house outside Boston, forsook a professorship at Harvard University and essentially abandoned physics research that is only now bearing fruit.

Universities Research Association, a Washington, D.C.-based consortium that will manage the collider, selected Schwitters for the job.

Unlike previous founding directors of U.S. high-energy projects, whose careers were carved by the Manhattan project, Schwitters is a new breed of physicist. He entered the field as it became a more "corporate," faceless scientific enterprise involving teams of physicists who work for months to run experiments in one expensive machine.

After completing a doctorate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1971, Schwitters spent eight years at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center near San Francisco, participating in the first confirmation of the subatomic particle called quarks — a discovery that won a Nobel Prize for the project's leading scientists.

He taught at Harvard while commuting to the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory near Chicago, overseeing construction of the giant Collider Detector Facility for the 4-mile Tevatron accelerator, which involved hundreds of scientists and engineers.

As director of the super collider he must oversee thousands of scientists, engineers and technicians who will build the underground ring, 53 miles in circumference. In the ring, powerful magnets will guide two beams of protons toward collisions.

"Schwitters has an unusually good sense on how to work with other people," said Wolfgang K.H. Panofsky, the Stanford accelerator center's first director.

"That is quite unusual in science these days for somebody as young as he is. Because of the large collaborations in science, we have a hard time identifying leaders in the next generation."

Schwitters' youth was a key selling point, Panofsky said. The collider is scheduled for completion in 2000, but the machine won't produce fruitful physics for years.

"Among other things, you have to have a director who lives long enough to see it finished," Panofsky said. "We made a clear decision that, as a matter of policy, the torch should be passed to the young generation. In that generation, Schwitters was absolutely unique."

Schwitters hopes to have open access to the project, but his plans so far only include a commitment to preserve creek beds and perhaps to build a 53-mile bike path along the top of the collider's main ring.

Bush, Mosbacher names considered

HOUSTON (AP) — The names of two potential candidates in the 1990 Texas Republican primary sound awfully familiar — Bush and Mosbacher.

George W. Bush, son of the president, and Robert A. Mosbacher Jr., son of the secretary of commerce, are considering runs for the GOP nominations for governor and lieutenant governor, respectively.

Both say they are considering the races carefully and independently of their famous fathers.

The gubernatorial race is wide open since Republican Bill Clements is not seeking re-election. Democratic Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby likewise is retiring and has ruled out a bid for the governor's mansion.

The famous father factor might be more of a liability for Bush than for Mosbacher since Bush's father is much higher profile and the gubernatorial primary is more likely to be heated.

Familial tie assures Bush "he'll be given serious consideration both by people who give money and run campaigns and by the primary electorate," University of Houston political scientist Richard Murray told the Houston Chronicle.

Jury change may save time, money

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — A Fort Bend County prosecutor is hoping to get legislative support to change an existing statute and eliminate individual juror questioning in capital murder cases where the death penalty is not possible.

"It will save a considerable amount of time and money for taxpayers without compromising the rights of the defendant," said Sam Dick, Fort Bend County district attorney.

State Rep. Jim Tallas, R-Sugar Land, said it's a statute change that is long overdue.

"It's one of those things where you wonder why it wasn't done 20 years ago," Tallas said. "It's a terrible waste of county funds to start off with. And, in my opinion, it doesn't take anything away from the rights of the accused."

Rural gas pumps may shutdown

HOUSTON (AP) — A new Environmental Protection Agency rule requiring owners of underground fuel storage tanks to carry $1 million in pollution insurance could shut down rural gasoline pumps, an oil marketers' group says.

Oil marketers in Austin last week warned that 3,000 rural gasoline outlets and service stations could be gone unless something is done to head off a crisis caused by the new federal requirement for liability insurance.

The Texas Oil Marketers Association is asking the state Legislature to institute a fee on stored petroleum, the Houston Chronicle reported Sunday. The money generated would be used to pay for pollution cleanup, presumably lowering insurance costs.

Today's session cancelled

AUSTIN (AP) — The second month of the 1989 Legislature starts this week, although lawmakers canceled today's sessions because of cold, icy weather.

Senate leaders were the first to announce Sunday that today's business would be postponed because of bad weather. House Speaker Gib Lewis later decided that the House would not convene, said Lewis press aide Tim Conger.

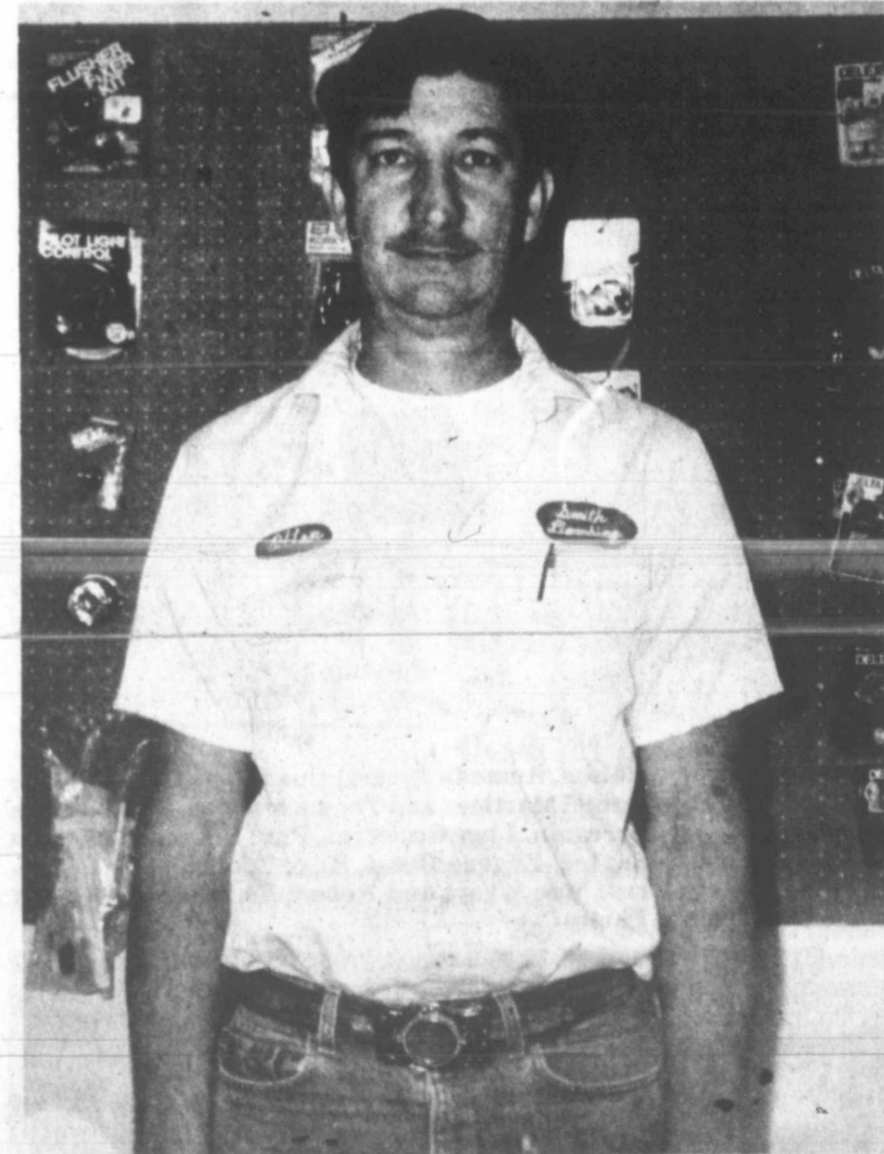

As Texas lawmakers enter their second month of work, more bills were being scheduled for a possible vote in the Senate and the House is concentrating on work in committees.

Another round of 1990-91 funding requests is expected from state agencies appearing before both Senate and House panels.

Senators, who have already passed a few bills to the House, had 10 proposals listed for action today.

The Senate Economic Development Committee will be looking at a bill that, according to Professional Insurance Agents of Texas, would Texas save consumers millions of dollars in car rental fees.

The 3,600-member trade association said the bill would prohibit car rental companies from selling collision damage waivers. The Texas Personal Automobile Policy, which insures most Texas drivers, already provides coverage for damages incurred by drivers while operating a vehicle they have rented, the association said.
