Bush continues to demonstrate support for Tower

dent Bush joined John Tower for a security briefing at the Pentagon this morning in a show of support for Tower as the Senate prepared to continue debating the nomination of the embattled defense secretary-designate.

The first day of debate produced its share of partisan sparks Thursday, with one key senator holding out the possibility of airing sensitive information in a closed-door session.

Bush traveled to the Pentagon by motorcade and was greeted there by Tower, Adm. William Crowe, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and national security adviser Brent Scowcroft.

They were briefed on a NATO exercise called Wintex-Cimex, conducted every two years from Council, an advisory panel to the contains.

"I don't suggest it and I want to avoid it, (but) it may be necessary to have a closed session," Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn said Thursday in the midst of a flareup over material damaging to Tower that has been leaked from an FBI report.

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., said Tower had been "trashed" by material that was leaked, and said those responsible never mentioned exculpatory material that also appeared in the FBI report. "A closed session of the Senate would not repair the damage that's been done," he

Spelling title is bestowed

"Slavishly" and "smirky" were the key words as Stanfield Elementary School fifth grader Andrea Corkran won the annual Scurry County Spelling Bee Friday morning, winning the right to advance to the April 1 regional contest in Lubbock

The contest took a little over an hour to get to the final two contestants, with sixth-grader Jason York of East Elementary School missing on "slavishly." Andrea then spelled that word and "smirky" to win the event

Andrea is the daughter of Gerald and Margaret Corkran and Jason is the son of Larry and Keta York.

The other top five contestants were Tiffany Jones, a West Elementary School sixth-grader, third place; Maria Rodriguez, a Snyder Junior High School seventh-grader, fourth place; and Jannica Northerns, a West Elementary School fifth-grader, fifth place

The regional contest, selecting the West Texas representative to the national bee in Washington, D.C., will begin at 1 p.m. April 1 at Monterey High School in Lub-

James Jacoby

Throwing it all away

By James Jacoby

The jump to three spades by responder showed a hand strong enough to play at least game, plus five or more spades. Why then would North suddenly bid a two-card diamond suit? The answer is that North was saying: "Partner, I have a good hand for spades, and I have first-round control of diamonds. If you have some slam interest, I'm happy to go further." Since South had only enough values to play game, he signed off at four spades and North passed.

When the 10 of diamonds was led against four spades, declarer lost his ability to do simple arithmetic. All he had to do was count tricks to know that he could take the ace of diamonds, five spade tricks and four heart tricks. That would be enough for his contract, and he could worry about the overtricks later. Instead, declarer played the diamond queen. He figured that even if that lost to the king, he would still have the chance that the ace of clubs was in the East hand. But that wasn't the layout. East won the diamond king and switched to the queen of clubs. Quickly the defenders took four tricks to set the contract. The rule is simple - don't take a finesse if losing it can cost you the contract.

Lesson: The bid of four diamonds was a cue-bid, showing good spade support and indicating willingness to play slam. When cue-bidding in support of partner's suit, make your cheapest bid first. Because of this rule, South knew that North did not hold the ace of clubs.

do. And they think well, you know, if he can't get along with those people over there in the Senate, why should I think I can?" Clements said. He said a number of people whom he might like to appoint to the board "have manifested no interest."

Clements said he tried to talk Smith out of leaving the post, which pays about $64,000 a year.

down as chairman but remain on the board, which leads an agency of 1,300 employees that regulates the $25 billion per year insurance industry in Texas.

Smith was appointed to the Insurance Board in September 1987 for a term to end Jan. 31, 1993. He was insurance director for 15 years for SEDCO Inc., the oildrilling contracting firm founded by Clements. He worked for the company for 28 years.

Since the Legislature meets in regular session once every two years. Smith has served as chairman without being confirmed by the Senate.

The Insurance Board has been at the center of controversy since the October collapse of National County Mutual Fire Insurance Co., based in Dallas. It was the largest property and casualty insurance company failure in the state's history.

Smith said critics of him and the agency "seem more bent on destruction rather than construction.'

Sen. Hugh Parmer, who serves on the Senate State Affairs Committee, said he'll be "a lot more comfortable" with three new board members. Evidence presented to the committee during hearings on the agency "indicated a great deal of in-competence," said Parmer, D-Fort Worth.

Rep. Eddie Cavazos, who heads the House Insurance budget and oversight subcommittee, said Smith needed to resign.

"It gives us the opportunity to start with a fresh, new board," Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, said. 'We're not here to destroy this agency, but to find out what the problems are and a lot of these problems were personnel problems.'

Sen. John Montford, a Lubbock Democrat who heads the State Affairs Committee, has been the board's chief critic and also had called for Smith's resignation. He did not immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press.

Gov. Bill Clements on Thursday signed a $289 million corporate franchise tax bill to take effect immediately, after the measure sped through the Legislature in 10 days.

Also Thursday, a Senate panel approved a $372 million insurance tax proposal. Another insurance tax bill, which could generate about $480 million, was The franchise tax bill signed by

A court has ruled that the state's practice of taxing a company's pre-acquisition earnings is illegal. The law will legalize that practice.

The Senate Finance Committee approved, 9-0, a so-called "insurance tax repair" bill. The measure would raise $372 consider the bill next week.

The measure would reinstate certain taxes on out-of-state companies that had been successfully challenged in court, and increase the tax rate on all insurance companies doing business in Texas.

The bill would change the minimum tax rate paid by insurers from 1.2 percent to 1.65 percent. It would also impose a 0.35 percent surtax for six years.

Caperton also filed another insurance tax bill dealing with life insurance companies that will generate about $480 million in revenue. He said the finance panel will consider that bill next week.

The tax bills are part of plan to recover more than $1.2 billion that State Comptroller Bob Bullock had cut from his revenue forecast that lawmakers will have for the 1990-91 biennium.

8 arrested in undercover drug probe

FORT WORTH (AP) — An undercover investigation has resulted in the indictment of eight people, including six U.S. Postal Service employees at the Fort Worth General Mail Facility, authorities say. The others indicted were a former postal employee and a former contract employee, authorities said Thursday. The indictments accused the defendants of selling marijuana, cocaine and methamphetamines to undercover drug agents.

U.S. Magistrate Alex H. McGlinchey arraigned the defendants and released them on personal bonds.

Dusters win regional crown 80-79

By BILL McCLELLAN SDN Sports Editor

WACO--Valery Jackson scooped a loose ball and put it in the hole as time was running out here Thursday to lift Western Texas College to an 80-79 win over Odessa in the championship game of the Women's Region V basketball tournament.

The championship, WTC's second in three years and Coach Kelly Chadwick's fifth in 11, sends Western Texas, 25-8, to the Tyler March 13-17.

Led by tournament MVP Duster turnovers. Nickey Allen, who delighted the crowd of more than 1,500 with 30 on a Janice Holliday jump shot Allen. The Dusters then dialed their hands on the ball, but Hollipoints and 10 rebounds, WTC took an early lead in the contest. The Dusters jumped ahead 26-17 when Allen, Tami Wilson, Jackson and Julie Roewe tallied consecutive baskets.

Western kept a 10-point cushion through the rest of the first half and into the second. But with 12:27 left, Odessa began to rally. Angela Meadough slipped in two wick. 'I just saw it and got it and put it in," grinned Jackson. "It was a natural reaction.'

The clock had seven seconds on it when Jackson scored the goahead points, but three ticked off before Odessa could call timeout. Odessa made a futile effort to win the game, but at first Wilson knocked the ball out of bounds,

Western shot a hot 37 of 61 from the field, led by Jackson's seven of nine. Jackson had 18 points and eight rebounds for the game. Wilson, an all-tournament selecleast three Odessa players got tion along with Allen, scored 15

Tigers edged Hereford 6-5 in what Lewis described as a well played game except for allowing too many walks.

Like the season opener earlier in the week, the Snyder pitching staff got in trouble by allowing too many free passes, played real well, but we've got to do something about our walks,' Lewis said.

Lee Fletcher went the first four innings for the Tigers and Kevin Dollins finished the final two innings. In addition to nine walks, the duo allowed five runs on seven hits.

In the bottom of the sixth, Hereford had the bases loaded because of walks, but Dollins struckout the lineup's fourth batter to give Snyder the victory.

Lewis was pleased with the defensive effort, to include two double plays, and Snyder got another double play in the day's second game.

RANCH FOR SALE: 632.8 Acres South of Lake Thomas Dam. 2,296 Square Foot House with 796 Square Foot Garage. Storage Building & Barn. 915-

The Senate on Thursday passed the measure 30-0. Under the bill, a person aquaplane, other waterborne device, or water skis" while intoxicated would be subject to a fine of $100 to $1,000 and a jail sentence of up to 180 days.

If the drunken person caused serious injury to anyone else, the person could be fined up to $1,500 and jailed for 240 days.

Last week, the bill bogged down in the Senate. But Parker won quick approval after amending it to exclude inner tubes, or other kinds of craft propelled solely by the water current.

Parker also amended the bill to remove penalties if a person refused to take a Breathalyzer test to determine the amount of alcohol in that person's bloodstream.

Parker said his bill, which now goes to the House, "will get the worst drunken boaters ... out of the water.'

In 1988, 298 boating accidents were reported in Texas that resulted in 67 fatalities and 133 injuries. Two-thirds of these accidents were the result of alcohol

Since introducing the bill, Parker said he has been contacted by many people who have complained about drunken boaters endangering the water-postponed voting on bill that would make it a felony, punishable by one to 10 years and prison and a maximum fine of $5,000, to offer a student athlete money or other inducement to enroll at a certain university.

Woman's success at removing TV ads leads to bigger hopes

Rakolta unexpectedly won a skirmish and now she wants to start a battle against what she says are grams that cut into the network television fare her children can watch.

The 40-year-old mother of four, offended by the off-color humor on the prime-time series "Married ... With Children," conveyed her distaste to the show's major advertisers in a flurry of letters starting in January.

Much to Mrs. Rakolta's surprise, the letters prompted two of the nation's largest advertisers, Proctor & Gamble Co. and McDonalds Corp., and several others to pull their commercials from the series, the top-rated program on the fledgling Fox Broadcasting Co. network.

The American family is being In other business, the Senate painted into a corner. It's an invasion of my privacy at this point," Mrs. Rakolta said Thursday.

She said she objects to having to monitor prime-time television for shows she doesn't want her younger children to watch. "If people want that stuff, they can pay for it, or rent it, or go to the movies," she said.

But Fox, which has tried to attract young adult audiences, has had no trouble selling advertising time on the Sunday evening show said Fox spokesman Brad Turell in Los Angeles.

The show is completely sold sexually oriented and violent pro- out," he said, adding that reports of Mrs. Rakolta's campaign have rallied support behind the show.

'We have received literally hundreds of telephone calls today from across the country from viewers saying that this one tised, then stayed up to 4 a.m. woman's opinion is getting too much attention and hoping that we won't change the show," Turell said.

Mrs. Rakolta, who lives in the affluent suburb of Bloomfield Hills and has three daughters, ages 18, 10 and 9, and a son, 8, said she intends to start a group, or join existing ones, to organize national boycotts of advertisers.

Her writing campaign began one Sunday night in January when she and her children watched "Married ... With Children" and she ended up shooing the children out of the room.

tinued house-to-house searches in downtown Caracas and the western slums.

Automatic weapons fire was heard after midnight as soldiers fired in the air and at buildings. It appeared the gunfire, in addition to flushing out suspected snipers, was meant to enforce the government's strict dusk-todawn curfew by keeping people off the streets.

Venezuelans, unaccustomed to the rigors of a state of emergency after three decades of political stability, have tended to remain on the streets despite the curfew, making soldiers nervous.

Growing food shortages have threatened the government's attempts to restore order.

Looters emptied the shelves of supermarkets and neighborhood grocery stores in the first days of rioting. Since then, part of the 22,000 police and soldiers ordered on alert in Caracas have guarded stores, where people have been waiting hours in line to buy such staples as eggs, bread and cheese.

In a nationwide television broadcast Thursday, President Carlos Andres Perez' chief of staff said the capital was steadily returning to normal, but acknowledged there were still "pockets of disturbance" that the military was trying to quell.

"There is a growing process of normalization in the capital,' said Reinaldo Figueredo. He said subways and buses would be running normally today, and urged Venezuelans to go back to work. Perez, who has been in office for just one month, blamed leftist "remnants" for prolonging Venezuela's worst unrest in 31 years of democratic rule. He said some acts "were induc-

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawyers for states. "Ms. Petty was denied the of time or place." the state say a woman who spent ability to learn the basic skills 51 years in Texas mental institutions got the best care available, but her attorney says she received "pathetic and abysmal" care and is entitled to $2.2 million.

Opal Petty, 70, spent 37 years in the Austin State Hospital for the mentally ill after being committed at age 16 in 1934. She later was transferred to San Angelo State School for the mentally retarded, where she spent 14 years before being released to a foster home in 1985.

The suit filed by Ms. Petty against the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation and four current or former officials alleges that her halfcentury confinement illegally deprived her of "liberty, privacy, and other fundamental rights."

It also alleges the state did not provide proper services and failed to release her to a community home after her psychiatric problem subsided within months of her 1934 commitment.

Orlando Fonseca wants the bookcase against the wall, while newcomer Martie Georges wants it to extend from the wall, dividing the room. When one changes the location of the bookcase.

The piece of furniture has been moved several times in the past two weeks.

County purchasing agent Piti Vasquez said he laughs every time he walks into the commisbookcase in a different position.

"I call it the tortilla curtain," he said Wednesday. It all started when Ms. Georges' secretary moved out of an enclosed office to make room for the new county architect. Fonseca said Ms. Georges' secretary had the bookcase mov-

But neither side has talked directly to the other.

The commissioners are deeply divided over personal and political conflicts and have resorted to name-calling in the press. Fonseca is allied with Charles Hooten against Ms. Georges and County Judge Luther Jones. The other commissioner, Rogelio Sanchez, usually sides with Fonseca and Hooten.

Jones seems to take delight in she said. "I feel that if (Fonseca) baiting Hooten and, to a lesser meetings. One time during a meeting, he displayed a chart attacking the Fonseca-Hooten plan for a new county courthouse, and Fonseca and Hooten defaced and tore up the chart in front of startled spectators.

Jones appointed Ms. Georges in January to succeed Mary Haynes, who resigned to run for El Paso mayor. Before she was appointed, the 24-year-old Ms. Georges was Jones' secretary. She has lived in El Paso two years since graduating from law school. The appointment angered fellow Democratic leaders and pleased Republicans who believe they will capture the seat in the next election.

The antics have prompted a columnist for one of El Paso's daily newspapers to write that the commissioners' actions should be void unless they vote while wearing red balls on their County Court-at-Law Judge Robert Galvan said the bookcase dispute could be settled like most domestic cases his court handles: locking Fonseca and Ms. Georges in a room and forcing them to talk.

'I would encourage them to see the fallacy and ridiculousness of their positions," he said.
