Trustees mull staff salaries

Employee salaries, an item normally reserved for budget setting time, prompted a lengthy discussion by Snyder school board members Monday as they mulled perceived "inequities" related to pay levels for some school district employees.

The board met in a work session lasting almost four hours and discussed salary levels for both district teachers and district bus drivers.

Prompting the most discussion was at what level the district should consider setting beginning teacher pay "above" state base—the salary level the state mandates a school district must pay its employee.

Coupled with this discussion was the influence such a decision could have for teacher pay throughout the district—the premise of setting an equal standard on which all salaries could be based in part.

The question of pay "equity" arose since currently there is a wide degree of variance regarding how much local teachers are paid above state base depending on which pay "step" they qualify for. These steps differ based upon experience and, in some cases, the fact of a masters degree.

On an annual basis, these steps range from the current beginning pay of $19,000 annually to the top teacher salary of $32,575. The highest "above" state base currently is the beginning salary, which is $3,800 more than the starting base pay directed by the state of $15,200.

For comparison purposes, the lowest amount paid above state base here is for teachers employed at step 3, which at an annual salary of $19,295 is only $675 above the state minimum directed for this level.

Since state base pay increases annually at a rate of $1,140, some Snyder teachers are guaranteed a pay raise next year since another pay freeze would see their salary drop below the state base.

Local salaries have been frozen the past three years for classroom teachers. This income is independent of any extra monies earned through career ladder designations, it was noted.

The decision regarding pay for beginning teachers was requested by Superintendent Dalton Moseley since he is about to begin teacher recruitment efforts.

During discussion Monday, the board appeared unanimous in favor of reducing the amount paid above state base for a beginning teacher.

From its current level of $3,800 above the minimum, figures used for discussion were $500, $1,000 and $1,500 above base.

Trustees directed Business Manager Lee McNair to produce cost estimates for district wide salary levels using these three figures. Using the example of $1,000, the board asked for an estimate of what it would cost in annual salary to guarantee that every teacher is paid at least $1,000 above state base.

No pay cuts were proposed since some teachers are currently paid at levels above the figures used for board discussion.

For such staffers, their pay would be frozen. The ultimate goal discussed by the board would see all teachers in each step paid approximately the same amount above state base.

For this to occur, it was noted, it would likely take many years of attrition. The levels where the highest "above state base" pay occurs is among teachers with the greatest longevity with the

WELCOME HOME -- Dave Appleton, an Australian who made Snyder his home for two years while attending Western Texas College, was honored in activities here Monday. Appleton, from Queensland, Australia, helped Western to two straight appearances in the National College

Grand jury indicts three

A 31-year-old Sweetwater man accused in a Jan. 9 burglary at Ira was one of three criminal defendants to be indicted by a Scurry County grand jury Monday.

Louis Diaz Jr. was ordered to stand trial for burglary with intent to commit theft in connection with a break-in at the Dick Gray Co., a half-mile south of Ira on the Big Spring Hwy. in which a battery charger and a jack were stolen.

Other true-bills included Gloria Rocha, 32, whose address was not available because she had not been arrested, for forgery by making in connection with a relative's name being forged on a $100 money order in Snyder last Oct. 12.

Alvis L. Grove II, 29, of 1908 Ave. R was indicted for felony DWI, having been arrested on March 1.

You're past middle-age if you can remember when motels were called tourist courts. As a boy it was always a secret desire to get to stay in one of those little square cubes, but the longest trip we ever made was four hours down the road to grandma's house.

Tourist courts soon become motels and each tried to outdo the other by providing little extras. Even if the ice machine was a block away, a room wasn't complete without a bucket of ice.

There was a day, for the benefit of the young, that televisions were not standard room equipment. We spent one semester in college living in a motel. In exchange for room, it was our job to carry a TV to the guest who was willing to pay $5 bucks extra.

Now, in addition to TV, there are pay movies, quick in-room checkout using the TV and room service by pushing buttons. Big-city hotels have people who come in and turn back your bed and leave a piece of chocolate.

A recent newsletter mailed to frequent travelers listed things people hate most about hotels. The list included a saggy mattress, thin pillows, poor reading lamps, skimpy or worn towels, mediocre soundproofing, poor lighting in the vanity area, too little counter space around the sink, too little closet space, theft-proof hangers, lack of luggage racks, noisy air conditioners, poor TV reception, no full-length mirrors, no extra toilet tissue and windows that don't open.

We were somewhat surprised at the list. Our pet-peeve is a high-dollar hotel that charges you a dollar for local or credit card calls.

Also on our list is maid service that waits until evening despite the fact that the room has been empty all day. It just proves that the best thing about a trip is getting home.

Everett scholarship honors Appleton, WTC rodeo star

One of Snyder's "adopted sons" was honored here Monday night at a banquet that climaxed Dave Appleton Day in Snyder.

Appleton, a Western Texas College standout who went on to earn status as the 1988 PRCA All-Around World Champion Cowboy, was toasted during special ceremonies at the National Guard Armory.

Speakers included Dr. Harry Krenek, WTC president; Don Newberry, former WTC president; professional barrelman Quail Dobbs; long-time rodeo advocate Ralph Miller and Bob Doty, Western Texas rodeo coach.

Guests among the estimated 300 attending included Appleton's wife Keeley, her parents, welding instructor Sam Walker - who gave Appleton a welding scholarship at Western - and numerous current and former Western Texas students. During the evening's activities, the Jess Everett family presented the Dave Appleton Living Memorial Scholarship, in honor of the late Dewey and Faye Everett.

Earlier in the day, Appleton talked about coming to the United States.

"Here I was, 20 years old. I'd been out of school. Where I live in Australia you only went as far as the tenth grade. If you wanted to go to 11th or 12th grade you went off to a boarding school. I didn't do that," said the Queensland native.

Appleton went off to be a jockey, but outgrew the sport when he filled out to 5-11, 160 pounds.

"So, I was kind of bumbling around and I just fell into rodeo somewhere and I came over here. I was rodeoing and got the opportunity to go to college," he said, referring to Western Texas.

Exotic animal law considered in city

Snyder city councilmen Monday night deleted regulations regarding maintenance electricians in the new electrical code and decided to consider two different types of ordinances pertaining to exotic animals.

Passing the electrical code on first reading, council members discussed including qualifications and requiring a test for maintenance electricians working for other governmental entities and private businesses.

Councilman Paul Zeck said he did not favor defining and regulating maintenance electricians in the code because business owners and homeowners are allowed to do some electrical work anyway "until we need a permit and we hire a master electrician." Mayor Troy Williamson suggested requiring a test for the issuance of a maintenance electrician's license, and he said one might be allowed to replace wiring at an employer's business.

But the discussion ended with the council in agreement to delete all references to maintenance electricians from the code, which, among other things, details the testing and licensing of journeymen and master electricians.

An exotic animal ordinance was discussed at the request of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Grimmer of 200 33rd St., who had said in a letter to Zeck that they were concerned about a neighborhood family keeping a tiger in their home.

"If there was a tiger next door to us, I'd be up here pounding on the lectern," Zeck commented.

The council discussed modeling an ordinance either on Midland's, which regulates the keeping of exotic animals in general terms, or one in Dallas, which specifically prohibits certain animals by biological classification.

At Mayor Williamson's suggestion, the matter was tabled so councilmen could consult with city staffers to draft a proposed ordinance for consideration at next month's meeting.

Other business in the 2½-hour meeting included the passage on second reading of an ordinance setting May 6 for a municipal election in which the mayor and two at-large council members will be elected and 34 proposed amendments to the city charter will be decided.

Cronkite blasts trash TV

AUSTIN (AP) — On the whole, journalists today are more responsible than ever, but some "trash television" interview programs are "absolutely, totally useless stuff," says former CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite.

The veteran newsmen said programs that depend on the sordid, lurid and sensational endanger good journalism.

"I am concerned about the garbage that is masquerading as television these days," Cronkite said Monday. "Most of it is real scandal-tabloid journalism."

But, said Cronkite, "We're very lucky ... We have a more responsible press today in this country than we've ever had."

He said reporters now are much more enterprising and conscientious than during the mid-1940s and several years after, when journalists were "passive" and practiced "reporting by hand-out."

His remarks came during a news conference here to pitch a local water pollution documentary he narrated.

Cronkite, who lives in New York, signed off for the last time as anchor of The CBS Evening News eight years ago Monday.

Reporters asked Cronkite his opinion about programs such as the Geraldo Rivera show, which has been criticized for its subject matter. In one show featuring white supremacists, Rivera was punched in the nose during a brawl that involved the studio audience.

Cronkite said networks are reducing the amount of time allotted for genuine news in favor of such programming, while the amount of important world and local news is increasing.

"Good journalism," Cronkite said, should be "an attempt at honesty, an attempt at fairness, and an attempt at completeness."

Another issue Cronkite said he gets "terribly worried about" is the increasing use of unidentified sources in news stories.

Cronkite, who covered national politics during World War II, said that except in "whistle-blower" stories, where disclosure might jeopardize a source, journalists should identify their sources.

Divorced Dad Isn't Homebody Wife Had Thought Him to Be

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I divorced last year, I allowed him to have custody of our (then) 15-year-old son, "Jason," because I honestly thought it would be better for our son. My "ex" was a physician, a homebody, and could golf with Jason and provide him with all the necessities.

Now, six months later, I find that "Dad" goes out nightly with his ladyfriend, leaving our son home alone with written instructions on how to prepare a meal, and without any kind of supervision whatsoever.

I stayed there one night and waited until 3 a.m. for Dad to get home. That's when I confronted him and obtained his promise, under threat of a custody fight, that he would straighten out and be a better father.

Well, I don't think he's straightened out. The mother of one of Jason's friends told me that the two boys had gone to a party where all the kids drank and smoked. I know that Jason is not into that kind of behavior; he just wants to be accepted, so it's easy for him to go along with the crowd, especially when there's no parental supervision, which a boy that age needs.

If I interfere, I'm afraid I'll be accused of sour grapes. Jason is a quiet, sensitive boy who never complains, but he seems so sad all the time.

If I complain (legally), I'm afraid the court would say that a (now) 16-year-old boy can take care of himself.

Please print this. Perhaps some other mother has had this problem and knows how to solve it. Or maybe Jason's father will see it in writing and see the light.

MIFFED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR MIFFED: Phone your lawyer. Your son is considered a minor until he is 18 years old, and until that time he should be with the parent who can give him the proper attention, supervision and companionship.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are both well educated, but we grew up with different lifestyles. Her household included full-time help; my mother did all the housework, and we kids did the dishes.

We were always required to "clean our plates" — and were told it was a "sin" to waste food. My wife was brought up to believe that it was considered bad manners to eat everything on the plate, and to this day she insists that it's bad manners to do so.

Any comment?

MR. CLEAN PLATE

DEAR MR. CLEAN PLATE: It's bad manners to mop up every drop of gravy with a piece of bread, but to deliberately leave edible food on one's plate for "appearance's" sake is both wasteful and foolish.

Tomb found desecrated in historical cemetery

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Police believe vandals dabbling in devil worship desecrated a tomb and a grave at historical Concordia Cemetery.

The vandals broke into a burial vault where the remains of a prominent 19th century El Paso judge and his wife were kept, burned one coffin and took the remains from the second coffin, police Sgt. Celso Fonseca said.

The vandals took a skull from one of the coffins, yanked a 4-foot-high wooden cross from a nearby grave and placed the skull atop the inverted cross, officer Thomas Duran Jr. said.

The skull, which had wisps of golden hair and a gold tooth, was found lying on the ground next to the tomb. An inverted cross and other signs of satanic ritual were found drawn on the outside of the vault, Duran said.

The cross was taken from the grave of Juan Pablo Resendiz, an infant who died at birth in 1984. The boy's father, Julian Resendiz, said it was the second time vandals had removed the cross.

Workmen cleaning up the damaged tomb helped Resendiz place the cross back atop his son's grave. He complained that two gates to the cemetery are always kept open, allowing riffraff from all over the city of 500,000 to wreak havoc at night.

Bill would allow concealed guns

AUSTIN (AP) — A state senator says his bill to license Texans to carry handguns would deny permits to those people who shouldn't have them.

"These are not the individuals that are shooting up schools. That person could not qualify for this licensure. This is not (for) the people that are in the penitentiary. They could not qualify for this licensure," said Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria.

"This allows people their constitutional right to provide for their own defense," he said after filing the bill Monday.

Under Armbrister's bill, a license would cost $125 and be issued to qualified applicants.

To be eligible, a person would have to be a Texas resident, at least 21, not convicted of a felony, not under felony indictment, not a fugitive, not a habitual drug user or drunk, and not have been convicted of a misdemeanor within the three preceding years.

The bill also would require that applicants complete a handgun proficiency course, with both written and shooting tests.

It would allow law enforcement agencies to utilize "local knowledge" to submit evidence that an otherwise qualified applicant not be given a license due to prior activities, Armbrister said.

The bill would make it a violation to carry a handgun at schools, polling places on election days, courts, taverns, secured areas of airports, sporting events and meetings of governing bodies, including the Legislature.

Home care is club feature

Sandra Galyean, R.N., director of Cogdell Hospital Home Health Services, and assistant director Freda Murray, R.N., gave members of the Business and Professional Women's Club an update of the professional care offered through the service.

The dinner meeting was held at Martha Ann Woman's Club Feb. 28 with program chairman Fay McCollum introducing the speakers.

Galyean cited studies which state that patients have more comfortable and rapid recoveries in the home environment and said the service is available to anyone who needs medical attention.

The staff visits all ages, currently ranging from three days old to 90 years. The service is of great benefit to those who have difficulty getting to doctor's offices for check-ups during their treatment.

Individuals may ask their physicians for referral to the service. No one needing care is refused for inability to pay, and the service is covered by Medicare, Medicaid, veteran's and private insurance.

Murray stated that a registered nurse is on duty at all times. Joe Ann Deavers, R.N., is also on the staff.

South was showing a second suit as well as a first-round control for slam purposes. North now bid six hearts, and the opponents chose to defend. Six spades doubled would be down 800, not an attractive save against a potential 980. Furthermore, West's K-J-10-8 of diamonds had defensive value, and East knew there were no extra tricks coming from any club length held by North.

With the opening lead, declarer's first inclination was to ruff and hope that the diamond king was onside. Then he realized that he was being shortsighted. Since he could lose two diamond tricks if the king was behind his A-Q, why not simply discard a diamond from dummy on the opening lead? Let East win the spade ace, and declarer's king would then be a winner to take care of another small diamond from dummy. And that's just what declarer did. He lost a spade trick but in return got rid of two diamond losers from dummy to make his slam.

Reassessing king-doubleton

A guarded king in a side suit counts as half a trick since in half the deals the ace will be to the right of the king, and the king will take a trick. In practice the king is more valuable than that, since on many occasions when the opponents hold the A-Q over the king, they still cannot manage to lead through the guarded king. One might also think that K-x would not be a valuable holding when partner is void in that suit, but that is not so, as today's deal shows.

South trusted his partner's cue-bid in spades, so he bid five diamonds over East's four-spade interference bid.

YOU'VE GOT TO
SHAKE HANDS?
AT THE HEIGHT OF THE FLU SEASON?

DR. GOTT PETER GOTT, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am an 85-year-old man, rather active and in good health. I have to urinate very frequently at night. I take Lanoxin. Is the drug or something else causing the frequent urination?

DEAR READER: Probably something else. Three possibilities come to mind.

First, you may be drinking excessive amounts of fluid, or the wrong kind, in the evening. If you are accustomed to having a cup of tea or coffee after dinner, forget it. The caffeine in these beverages acts as a kidney stimulant and can produce nocturia (urination at night). In addition, whatever

Freeway motorist killed by rock

HOUSTON (AP) — Police are seeking help from motorists of a Houston freeway who may have seen someone hurl a large rock from an overpass that went through a car windshield and killed a motorist.

Police say they are treating the bizarre Monday morning incident as a homicide.

A witness told detectives he saw a man deliberately drop the rock from an overpass on northbound U.S. Highway 59, which heads into the downtown area, during the morning's rush hour traffic.

"It appears the rock struck the windshield of the car, entered the car and either struck her in the face or chest, causing her to hit the embankment several times," police spokesman Al Baker said. "A witness driving in front of the victim saw a man walk to the overpass with a rock in his hand."

The driver of the car, Anne Elizabeth Masera, 32, of Sugar Land, was traveling downtown for her first day on a new job. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Hermann Hospital.

Baker said detectives were looking for a young male but had little other information.

"It appears it was a deliberate act," he said. "It's ridiculous. It's very dangerous and doesn't make any sense. Here's a young gal who probably never hurt anybody in her life."

"Whoever it was that threw it had to throw 20 pounds a distance of over 10 feet high to get it over the fence," Sgt. Jim Ladd said. "I'm not discounting the fact that it might have been a juvenile, but whoever it was, they were full size and fairly strong."

liquids you consume after, say, 6 p.m. will be excreted during the night, particularly that glass of water at bedtime. So, don't drink fluids after supper. This includes alcohol.

Second, you probably have benign prostatic hyperplasia or BPH. This harmless overgrowth of the prostate gland affects all men as they grow older. When the gland enlarges, men have increasing difficulty emptying the bladder. You may not be aware of this, as the only symptom can be nocturnal frequency of urination: A partially empty bladder takes less time to fill up than an entirely empty one.

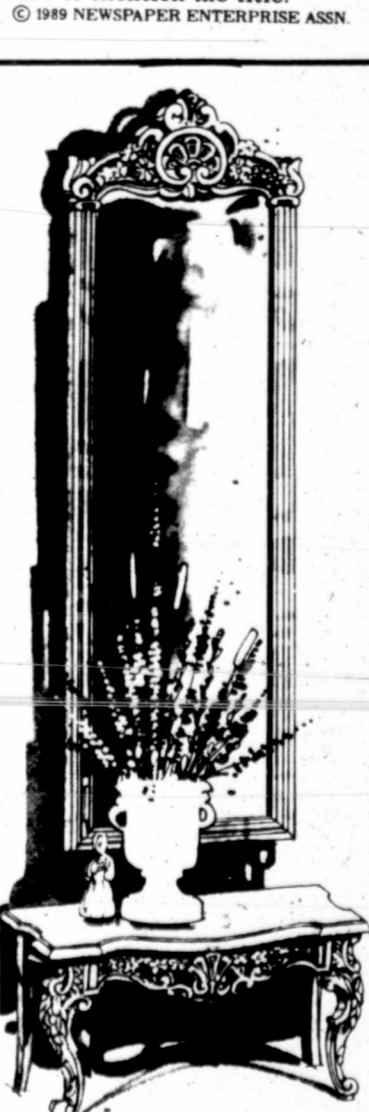

Other symptoms of BPH include difficulty starting and stopping urination, dribbling, urgency of urination and decreased force of the stream.

Third, you mention that you are taking Lanoxin. This is a form of digitalis, a medicine used for heart disease. The drug increases the strength of cardiac contractions, among other effects. It is often helpful in treating a weak heartbeat, a condition that frequently results in congestive heart failure — an excess of fluid in the body. When this fluid is mobilized (put back into circulation through the kidneys), nocturia can occur. Thus, your nightly trips to the bathroom may be a symptom of heart failure.

To a large degree, the identification of your problem depends on how often you urinate at night. Most men experience age-related nocturia, once or twice a night several nights a week. More frequent urination usually indicates that something is amiss.

You should be checked by your doctor. Describe your symptoms in detail. After an examination, which should include a rectal exam, the doctor will be able to advise appropriate treatment. This may include fluid restriction, attention to an enlarged prostate gland or re-assessment of your cardiac status. Let me know what he says.

Solon blasts group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Ron Coleman says attempts by the "righteous right" to influence the outcome of an ethics investigation of House Speaker Jim Wright are "tantamount to jury tampering."

"They have a mailing insisting Republicans have to be unified and anything short of censure or expulsion would be a whitewash," the El Paso Democrat said Monday. "It sounds like a vigilante group ... out of the last century with a 'hang him regardless of the evidence' mentality."

The House ethics committee has been meeting behind closed doors over a series of ethics charges against Wright, a Fort Worth Democrat, including allegations he used his office for personal financial gain.

An independent counsel has spent nine months investigating the charges. Wright has steadfastly denied violating any law or rule of the House, although he has conceded he might have done some things differently if given the chance to do them over.

The panel, evenly split with Republican and Democratic members, met to consider the independent counsel's findings last week, and the outcome of the investigation may be known sometime this week.

In an interview, Coleman said a small group of Republicans is operating a lobbying effort within the House and is behind a mailing demanding sanctions against Wright, regardless of the committee's findings.

"They've determined Jim Wright's a target and they're going to go after him by hook or by crook," Coleman said.

Speaking on the House floor Thursday, Coleman decried the actions of a coterie of Wright's Republican opponents, including Rep. Newt Gingrich of Jonesboro, Ga.

"A small band of right-wing Republican activists is engaged in an undertaking so brazenly cynical and so blatantly partisan that it should offend and thoroughly outrage everyone who is sensitive to due process," Coleman said in a one-minute speech.

Recent news accounts "make it clear this small band of propaganda terrorists has been plotting all along, on a series of conspiracies to discredit Speaker Wright and other Democrats," Coleman said. "Moreover, they are cynically trying to intimidate Republican members of the ethics committee into finding some complaint against the speaker to be valid."

Super collider mailing earns golden wastebasket award

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New Hampshire congressman says the Energy Department's decision to mail 17,000 copies of a 26-pound environmental impact statement on the super collider earns the first "golden wastebasket award" for extravagant misuse of taxpayer money.

Rep. Chuck Douglas, a Republican, blasted the agency for sending several sets of the environmental impact statement, which was so large it had to be broken into 23 separate volumes, to some Illinois households that had not even requested the report.

Douglas estimated the cost of the mailing at $1.4 million, but Energy Department spokesman Jeff Sherwood said the cost was closer to $1.3 million.

"This, in my eyes, is a totally absurd waste of money and that's why I think the DOE is a worthy recipient of the first 'golden wastebasket' award for waste in government," Douglas told a news conference Monday, placing a copy of the 8,800-page report in the "official golden wastebasket."

"It is appalling in this day of tight budgets that such a ridiculous waste of taxpayer's money could have occurred, but submitted substantive comments on the draft environmental impact statement were to receive a copy of the final statement, as well as affected landowners and those who wrote seeking information.

Douglas said that rule does not mean every person who ever expressed interest should have received the final report, particularly when it is so massive and expensive.

"It would have been far more efficient to send interested parties a simple letter advising them that the reports were available at their local library," Douglas said.

Some households got more than one copy because Energy Department officials may have gotten bogged down in figuring out mailing lists for the thousands of witnesses and landowners.
