EPA warns U.S. air still unhealthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 100 million Americans live in areas where they breathe unhealthy air with pollutants exceeding federal standards, despite general improvements over the last decade, the government reported today.

The Environmental Protection Agency's annual report on air quality singled out ozone pollution and carbon monoxide emissions, both largely caused by automobiles, as being of particular concern in urban areas where air pollution problems are greatest.

Ozone levels increased 5 percent between 1986 and 1987 and, largely because of the unusual heat last summer, jumped another 14 percent in 1988, according to the EPA statistics.

Despite a decade-long campaign for cleaner air and a long-term reduction of all six of the major pollutants examined, the EPA report reiterated that many urban areas continue to be in violation of federal air quality standards.

The statistics covered air quality from 1978 to 1987 for five pollutants and through 1988 for ozone. The pollutants examined by the report were sulfur dioxide, a source of acid rain which also can cause lung damage; carbon monoxide, which can seriously affect the heart and brain; nitrogen dioxide, which contributes to bronchitis and pneumonia; ambient lead, which can cause brain and nervous system damage; ozone, which can damage eyes, mucous membranes and respiratory systems; and suspended particulates that cause breathing problems.

Ozone is the product of a complex series of chemical reactions in which organic compounds mix with nitrogen oxide emissions, mostly from automobiles, and are exposed to sunlight.

Here are the EPA assessments covering the five other pollutants:

—Carbon monoxide: Levels in the air were cut by 32 percent since 1978 and 6 percent from 1986 to 1987, but actual emissions were slightly higher in 1987 than the previous year. The increase was blamed on forest fires.

But an estimated 29.4 million people continue to live in counties where carbon monoxide levels exceed federal standards. While the highest concentration during an eight-hour period in 1987 was found in New York City, 21 metropolitan areas in all exceeded the federal standards.

—Sulfur dioxide: Levels in the air were cut 35 percent since 1978 and 3 percent in 1987 from the previous year. Almost all regions of the country fell within federal standards for sulfur dioxide. The exception was Pittsburgh, where a monitoring site reported levels higher than the EPA considers

Family favors mules

First contest try ends with success

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kellner of Ira were attending a high school class reunion of Mrs. Kellner's in Longview in the summer of 1985 when they saw something that would have a big impact on their lives in early 1989.

It was two mules pulling the school's first football team in a wagon, and Kellner was so struck by the sight that he blurted, "I would like to have a mule."

Mrs. Kellner and her son, Doyle, took him at his word and secretly bought one that was 6 months old from a Snyder man.

The mule was kept a secret until Christmas, when the animal was presented to Raymond, complete with a big red ribbon around his neck.

Doyle, a horseman who had trained horses for the show ring, trained the mule, Little Jack, and Raymond entered him in the San Antonio Stock Show's mule contest this year, winning ribbons in nine of the 10 events in which they competed.

They won two first places, in mulemanship and western pleasure.

TDC job test has date

Second offering of BEST exam

The Snyder Texas Employment Commission office has scheduled the second round of BEST tests here, exams required for clerical positions associated with the opening of the Texas Department of Corrections Daniel Unit.

Appointment slips to take the test, scheduled April 1, may now be obtained at the TEC office, located at 2501B College Ave.

TEC staffers note that these tests will be given only to those individuals who have appointment slips.

Further instructions on applying for positions with TDC are to be given at the time of the testing, said Rae Adams, job service representative for the Snyder TEC office.

The first series of BEST tests was given here Jan. 20. It also involved 40 individuals.

Annual oil award now due

Contributions to the oil industry in Snyder and Scurry County will be recognized for the 13th time Saturday night as the McLaughlin Award is again presented at the annual Snyder Chamber of Commerce banquet.

Last year's recipient, M. Derald Lambert, is expected to make this year's presentation.

Tickets to next Saturday's banquet are priced at $12.50.

The program will include speaker Henry Cisneros, mayor of San Antonio, and the annual presentation of awards to honor outstanding service to specific areas of Scurry County.

The McLaughlin Award was begun in 1977 in recognition of C.T. McLaughlin, Scurry County oil man, rancher, political figure, art collector and philanthropist.

The criteria for the award's presentation are described as characteristics attributed to McLaughlin, that is a "significant" contribution to the local oil industry.

McLaughlin died here July 29, 1975 at the age of 78. He was originally from Pennsylvania and had adopted Texas as his home state for 40 years prior to his death.

He developed oil field producing properties under his Diamond M emblem which was the trademark for his ranching interests and the Diamond M Foundation.

During his life, he held high posts in both state and national Democratic Party organizations to include serving as chairman of the Texas Department of Public Safety Commission.

His philanthropic interests were as varied as his business ones. At the time of his death he was serving as vice president of the board of directors of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame.

The annual chamber banquet was an important time for McLaughlin as he hosted a range

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Subtlety is the art of saying what you think and getting out of range before it is understood."

If you still have good intentions about raking the leaves, the spring winds will probably take care of that one chore, but the dilemma of procrastination is said to be one of America's greatest failings.

If your desktop resembles the aftermath of an explosion, you're likely one of those folks who has it "organized" for future reference.

Experts on executive effectiveness have now offered a list of 13 ways to procrastinate efficiently and gain control of life's most fleeting commodity—time.

Efficient procrastination may seem as paradoxical as "army intelligence," but researchers say these tips will help:

- build flexibility into a daily to-do list.
- make a list of lower priority items and feed them into the daily action list.

- handle only one project at a time and complete it.

- place the top priority task in the center of a clean desk.

- choose the best time of day for work.

- use blank spaces of time constructively.

- assign deadlines to high-priority items.

- promise yourself that discretionary time after completing a high-priority project can be used for fun.

- get the hard part of any project out of the way first.

- write lists.

- take a break from chores when bogged down.

- turn difficult tasks into games.

Before you get too serious about these suggestions, it might be helpful to know they came from a time-management newsletter arriving at the office in January. It bore an October, 1988 dateline.

Sniper attack

BALCONES HEIGHTS, Texas (AP) — A man armed with a semiautomatic pistol opened fire on police at an apartment complex in this San Antonio suburb early today, wounding one officer before he surrendered, authorities say.

A security guard at the apartment complex told officers that the man, believed to be a Vietnam veteran, had allegedly been holding his wife hostage in the apartment.

Apartment residents reported shots were fired in the area at 5:38 a.m. While two Balcones Heights police officers met with residents, a man emerged from his apartment and began firing the pistol, said Sgt. Paul Buske, a San Antonio police spokesman.

"He fired two shots. The officers got down between the cars," Buske said. "One of the officers was hit once below the jaw. The suspect went inside and that's when police converged on the area."

While officers in the Northwest San Antonio suburb asked the city for assistance, police tried to contact the suspect with a bullhorn but he did not respond, said Buske.

The suspect surrendered shortly after 7 a.m. He was handcuffed and taken in a squad car to San Antonio police headquarters for questioning.

American jets

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines today announced one of the biggest aircraft orders in history, a double-barreled, multibillion-dollar deal for up to 150 Dutch Fokker 100 short-haul planes and 35 Boeing jetliners.

The purchases announced by American's senior executives at a New York news conference signaled the latest push by one of the nation's biggest commercial carriers to modernize its sprawling fleet through the 1990s. Over the last two months American has gone on an aircraft shopping spree exceeding $10 billion.

Robert Crandall, American's chairman and president, said the short-haul Fokkers would enable the company to retire older Boeing 727s and replacing aging British Aerospace planes used primarily for flights of less than 1,000 miles.

American has placed firm orders for 75 Fokkers and options for another 75 in a deal potentially worth $3.09 billion.

The Boeing order is for 25 757-200s and 10 767-300ER aircraft.

IRS will report overpayments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thanks to an IRS whistle-blower, the Internal Revenue Service is dropping a policy that prohibited notifying some taxpayers who had overpaid the government.

"The IRS should collect the appropriate amount of tax — no more and no less," Acting Commissioner Michael J. Murphy told reporters in disclosing the new policy. He said the agency would issue a formal notice today telling taxpayers who had been victimized by the old policy as long as three years ago how they could apply for refunds.

Furthermore, said Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., who discussed the issue in private for nearly an hour with Murphy on Tuesday, the acting commissioner assured him there would be no reprisals against the IRS employee who had publicly disclosed the old policy.

"In fact, he said this is the kind of employee the IRS needs more of," Gore said.

Linda Johnson, an examiner who has worked in the IRS service center in Memphis for four years, disclosed the problem to Gore in a private meeting several days ago. She repeated the assertions in interviews last week, insisting that she not be identified by name, but eventually identified herself publicly.

"I knew it was stealing from the taxpayers if we did not tell them when they did not claim their withholding," Ms. Johnson said.

Murphy said the IRS has no idea just how many taxpayers — most of whom apparently were pensioners — overpaid their taxes in 1985 and 1986 and were not notified by the agency. Ms.

Johnson said she knew of dozens of such cases in the Memphis office, usually involving overpayments of $100 to $1,000.

The problem was discovered as part of the IRS's computerized program to catch people who fail to report some or all their income. This involves comparing income statements — W-2 forms for wages and 1099 forms for several other types of income — with tax returns.

If that computer check finds some income has been reported by an employer, bank or other payer but not by the earner, examiners decide whether the taxpayer should be sent a form letter demanding more taxes plus interest and penalty.

Book returned after 75 years

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — A retired librarian who thinks it's never too late to turn the page on an embarrassing event in his family's past has returned three library books nearly 75 years after his mother checked them out.

Edward MacConomy Jr., of Virginia, said he wanted to clear the family name by returning the books to the Jackson Public Library.

The books now have cracking bindings and fragile pages. Library Director David L. Leamon said they are the longest overdue books he's ever seen returned. Library officials decided not to fine MacConomy.

"It's nice to know that guilt is still alive and well. Imagine, still interested in clearing the family name after all these years," Leamon said. "He could have just tossed those books into the trash, but instead, he took the time to add a little humor to our day."

It takes craftsmen between three and four months to produce a single Rolls-Royce sedan, while the newest limousine to be sold in the United States takes six months.

Bush having fun as president

WASHINGTON (AP) — From horseshoes and tennis on the White House grounds to frequent side trips to "do stuff," George Bush two months after his inauguration still displays obvious glee in just being president.

"It's wonderful. Get to work quicker," Bush told a reporter who asked if he shared what former President Reagan called the occasional frustration of "living over the store."

For the nation's 41st president, the thrill still hasn't worn off.

"From where we are standing, most of the landmarks of this town are almost a stone's throw away," he marveled the other day in a speech on the South Lawn. "That's one of the beautiful things that Barbara and I have rediscovered, but discovered principally from living in the quarters above here."

And if Bush's administration is adrift or off to a slow start, as some critics suggest, you'd have trouble telling it from the schedule he keeps.

In eight weeks, he's traveled to Canada, Japan, China, South Korea, Virginia, South Carolina, Maine, New Hampshire, Missouri, New York, Texas and Colorado, Delaware and Pennsylvania.

He presented his revision of President Reagan's budget to a joint session of Congress and met repeatedly with congressional leaders to prod the process along; proposed a sweeping savings-and-loan rescue plan; endured the controversy over the John Tower nomination; became involved in controversies ranging from assault weapons to tainted grapes and Japanese jets.

He also watched over the birth of six presidential pups and met with reporters in question-and-answer sessions a dozen times.

He routinely puts in 12-hour days in the Oval Office and has made frequent forays from the White House — to church, to restaurants, to the theater, to give speeches around town.

"There's no — at least at this juncture — any confinement. ... You move and go out and do stuff, and the Secret Service are very, you know, they do their job. But they're flexible in approach if you want to go someplace," he said.

Bush also tries to take setbacks in stride, with a dose of self-deprecating humor. Asked at a news conference about the controversy surrounding Tower, his first nominee for defense secretary, he said: "What controversy?"

Board appointments expected this week

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas businessman Richard Reynolds and retired Houston banker Tom McDade will be appointed to the embattled State Board of Insurance this week by Gov. Bill Clements, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

The newspaper reported that Reynolds and McDade were selected from what Clements has called his "short, short list" of finalists for the three-member board.

Reports indicate that both men will be named by the end of the week to fill two of the three open spots on the three-member board.

Reynolds and McDade have each met with the governor in recent days to discuss their possible appointment to the board, which has come under fire for alleged mismanagement.

Knowledgeable sources and files obtained through the Open Records Act indicate that those under consideration for the third spot are Paul T. Wrotenbery of Austin, the governor's former budget director; Tom Clowe of Houston, former executive director of the Texas Railroad Commission; and Tom Francis of Houston, manager of an insurance company.

The governor's office declined to discuss who will be appointed to the board.

"We expect to announce the appointments to the Insurance Board this week and I will not engage in speculation," Reggie Bashur, a spokesman for the governor, said.

The governor's appointments are subject to confirmation by the Texas Senate.

Your Birthday

March 23, 1989

Your greatest successes in the year ahead are likely to come from enterprises or ventures you've already begun. Big payoffs could be in the offing from situations that previously only eked out sparse returns.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to take a laid-back position today in all of your affairs, even ones that could be a bit testy. Relax and let others worry about what and how to do things. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Outdoor activities where you can use your mental and physical attributes could do wonders for your feelings of well-being at this time. Don't be a couch potato today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Things in general should go rather smoothly for you today because of your natural inclinations to view events in a positive manner. Your attitude will make the difficult easy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A matter of importance to you materially can be finalized to your satisfaction today or, at the very least, put on the track to success. Make it a priority project.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your obvious fairness will attract favorable attention from others today. Should a mediator of sorts be required, you'll probably be pegged for the assignment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Follow your instincts today regarding ways to keep your material affairs in proper balance. Your value awareness will be very keen and you'll know how to walk the narrow line.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're likely to be a much better leader than a follower today. In matters that are of importance to you, take measures to keep the control in your hands.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be very effective today if you handle important developments in ways that do not call too much attention to yourself. Don't worry about instant recognition, because credit will come later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to go where the action is today so that you can enjoy others and they, in turn, can enjoy you. You should be able to blend very comfortably into any group or gathering.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can enhance your image today by underplaying your recent achievements. Exercise humility and let associates do the boasting on your behalf.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The key to getting maximum cooperation from others today is to treat them exactly as you'd like to be treated. Try it, you'll like it — and so will they.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be extremely lucky today in ways that will not be immediately obvious. Someone may do something special to advance your interests that you won't learn of until a later date.

Performances set for Nureyev

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudolf Nureyev's great leaps will replace the Rockettes' high kicking at Radio City Music Hall in May when he dances seven performances in five days with the Paris Opera Ballet.

It will be the first full-length ballet program at the 6,000-seat hall known for its vaudeville shows, movies and pop music.

"Until you have performed at Radio City Music Hall, you have not performed in New York," said Nureyev, the Soviet-born dancer and artistic director of the French troupe.

Nureyev, who at 51 is far from hanging up his ballet slippers, will dance two works in the company's May 17-21 engagement — "Petrouchka" and "The Afternoon of a Faun."

Kindergartners have special day

HOWELLS, Neb. (AP) — It was a special "K" day for kindergartners who learned about kittens, kaleidoscopes and the state's top Kay — Gov. Kay Orr.

The governor accepted an invitation from Dee Morrison's morning and afternoon kindergarten pupils, who decided Mrs. Orr could help them learn about the letter K.

The youngsters treated the governor to Kool-Aid and, well, conversation, during her visit Monday to Howells Public School.

Settling for eight

By James Jacoby

When you reach a seemingly safe part-score contract, it is very difficult to give up the play for overtricks just to guarantee the contract. When West led the six of clubs, East won the ace and returned a trump. Declarer put in the 10, losing to West's queen. Back came a spade. Declarer ducked and East won the king. Now a diamond was played. Of course South played low, and West won the king. That was four tricks for the defense, and West still had two natural trump tricks remaining, so the contract was one away. Sympathy to South, who caught a trump stack behind the A-J-10-8 and also found the king of spades and king of diamonds held by the wrong defenders.

There are two things worth noting. First, after the club lead, declarer will make the contract by giving up the play for overtricks. When East plays back a heart at trick two, South should win the ace and play to dummy's queen and jack of clubs. Even though West ruffs, declarer will be able to get back to his hand with the diamond ace to pitch dummy's losing spade on the king of clubs.

Second, West's defensive strategy was poorly conceived. With length in the opponents' trump suit, West should not be trying to develop ruffing tricks. If the opening lead is a spade, declarer never has any chance to make the contract.

New album set for Jacksons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five years after their popular "Victory" album and concert tour, members of the Jackson singing family are set to release a new album, but superstar sibling Michael will play only a minor role.

The album will feature brothers Jermaine, Jackie, Randy and Tito, with singing contributions by brothers Michael and Marlon and sisters LaToya and Janet, publicist Mitchell Schneider said Tuesday.

The expected May release of the album will be preceded by the single and video "Nothin' (That Compares 2 U)," which will draw on the Jacksons' tradition of alternating lead vocals and harmonies.

Arlington officer not indicted

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas County grand jury has declined to indict an Arlington police officer in the shooting death of a forger suspect, the third fatal shooting in six months by the officer.

The grand jury action Tuesday cleared Brian Farrell of any criminal wrongdoing in the Feb. 1 shooting death of Michael Wayne Robinson, 21.

Officers said Robinson confronted Farrell and his partner, Detective Ed Gordon, with a kitchen knife and lunged at them. Farrell shot him once in the chest.

Farrell and Gordon were attempting to arrest Robinson on a forgery charge.

Arlington Police Chief David

Kunkle said Tuesday that despite the grand jury action, Farrell will no longer carry a badge or firearm while a member of the Arlington police.

"Brian Farrell will be returned to a job where he does not carry a firearm and does not exercise enforcement authority," Kunkle said.

Farrell was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Grand jurors heard testimony from Farrell and Gordon and Dallas officers who investigated the shooting.

A Tarrant County grand jury had ruled earlier that Farrell's use of deadly force was justified in two previous cases, the shootings prompted his transfer to a low-risk assignment in the forgery unit, where he was working at the time he shot Robinson.

Bill would fund sewage, water lines to colonias

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Solomon Ortiz has introduced legislation seeking to curb the presence of Third World diseases in the Rio Grande Valley by providing running water and sewage lines to impoverished communities without sanitary services.

The bill sponsored by the Corpus Christi Democrat would create a pilot program using $20 million for grants and low-interest loans to build "trunk" sewer and water lines and to make connections from the main line to individual homes in colonias.

Colonias, unincorporated communities along the U.S.-Mexico border that are frequently without running water, have become the source of "a lot of diseases — hepatitis, dysentery, tuberculosis," Ortiz said. "We are beginning to see diseases which we haven't seen in a long time, that we normally see in Third World countries," Ortiz said.

Ortiz said the $20 million could help just a fraction of the thousands of residents of colonias along the border — he estimates there are 75,000 people living in colonias in the Rio Grande Valley alone, and that his bill could reach 2,000 to 3,000 of them.

"That's not very many. This is only the beginning," he said, describing the plan as a pilot project. "I hope to learn from this."

Local track times among area's best

Several Snyder High School athletes have turned in some of the area's best track times, according to information compiled by the Abilene Reporter-News.

Edward Rios' high jump of 6-5 ranks second in the Big Country area behind Kelly Williams of Breckenridge. Williams has a best of 6-6 - something Rios believes he can and will achieve. Others in the area's unofficial top ten include Clay Travis with an 11.10 in the 100 meters and a 22.93 in the 200 meters, Shelby Bufkin with a 51.69 in the 400 meters, Michael Riggins with a 22.43 in the 200 and Charles Guyne with a vault of 13-3 in the pole vault. Still others are Nichole Overman with a 16.85 in the 100 meter hurdles, Katina Brandon with a heave of 32-9 in the shot put and a throw of 102-11 in the discus, and Melissa Williams with a 5-1 in the high jump.

Also looking impressive early have been some of the Tiger relay teams.

Listed among the ARN's area bests were the boys 400 meter team and the girls 1600 meter foursome.

The girls 1600 team includes two of the top girls in individual events - Williams and Overman, who run the first and third legs. Taking the first handoff is Shannon Warren. Dana Fenton runs the final leg. Warren, incidentally, runs all three relays for Coach Patty Grimmer's Lady Tigers.

Weather has caused problems with workouts and even cancelled meets, and neither of SHS's track teams will compete this weekend because of Spring Break. Despite those disruptions, Grimmer is pleased with the girl's progress.

"They've been working really hard in practice. From Denver City to last week all our relay teams improved. Some of the field events weren't as good but I think the weather had something to do with it. But all in all from last week to this week it seemed like everybody improved their time," she said.

Several area athletes earned all-region and all-state recognition from the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches this week. They included Tiffany Bryant, a 5-11 senior from Jayton, who was named first team all-state and all-region. Teammate Tracie Hamilton, a junior, was selected second team all-region, as was Roscoe senior Mira Richburg.

Big Spring senior Tami Wise was also second-team all-region in Class 4A.

Boys receiving honors include Andrews' Gym Bice, chosen second team all-state and first team all-region. Teammate Damon Clay, son of Western Texas College assistant basketball coach Don Clay, was third-team all-region.

Chet Byerly, son of former Snyder High coach George Byerly, was second-team all-region.

NFL battle against steroids will get serious next season

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) - The NFL has given notice to its players that it's no more acceptable to use steroids than cocaine.

In fact, as of now, steroids are technically less acceptable than the so-called "street drugs."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced Tuesday that beginning next season, any player testing positive for steroids - even for the first time - will be automatically suspended for a minimum of 30 days. Second-time offenders in a given season will be suspended for the balance of the season.

Users of cocaine and other illegal substances aren't suspended until their second violation. First-time offenders are warned and, in some cases, given counseling.

Rozelle, who said the more stringent policy on steroids was the result of an arbitrator's ruling in 1986 that limited penalties for substance abuse, said he deliberately announced the new policy now to give players currently on steroids time to get off them before they are tested early in training camp next July.

"We want them to stop using steroids," he said. "This should be a very positive incentive to do so."

The NFL has tested its players for steroids in each of the past two seasons but has not imposed penalties for their use. Rozelle said that between 7 and 8 percent of the 2,500 players tested in each of those two years had tested positive, a figure slightly higher than the 6 percent the league had previously given.

The NFL also took action Tuesday at its owners meeting to crack down on another element owners feel was hurting competitive balance - loud home crowds who disrupt the signal-calling of visiting teams.

In what Tex Schramm, chairman of the Competition Committee called "an upset," the owners approved by the bare three-fourths margin needed a measure that will allow referees to take away timeouts or penalize teams that can't silence their crowds. Three teams that play in domes - Minnesota, Detroit and New Orleans voted for the measure though domes are the arenas where the problem is most pronounced.

The owners also approved unanimously a resolution that would impose penalties ranging from fines and suspension to loss of a draft choice against any team feigning injury. Seattle's Joe Nash acknowledged he did in the Seahawks' playoff game against Cincinnati in an effort to slow down the Bengals' no-huddle offense.

Off date allows Lewis a scouting opportunity

Tuesday's postponement of the Tiger baseball opener could work in Snyder's favor. If nothing else, it gives Coach Albert Lewis a chance to do a little scouting.

"With both of those guys over there it's a good opportunity to take a look at them," said Lewis this morning.

It's a tailor made scouting opportunity for the Tigers, who entertain Big Spring next Tuesday, March 28, and host Andrews three days later on Friday.

Tuesday's snow wrecked the 4-4A opening date, which was to pit Snyder at Pecos, Andrews at Big Spring, Fort Stockton at San Angelo and Sweetwater at Monahans. Snyder and Pecos postponed their game until 7 p.m. Thursday. Fort Stockton will play Lake View 4 p.m. Thursday. Sweetwater and Monahans have rescheduled their ballgame for March 30.

Andrews, the pre-season 4-4A favorite, was to take a 6-3 record into today's game at Big Spring. The Steers are 5-6.

National Invitation Tournament...

Redmen claim win for Quinn

NEW YORK (AP) - St. John's University basketball team, which saw its hopes for an NCAA bid end on a sour note with a loss to last-place Boston College in the Big East tournament, is playing for a cause in the NIT.

The Redmen have dedicated the tournament to sports information director Katha Quinn, who died last Friday, one day before her 35th birthday, after a long battle with liver cancer.

They wore black bands on their uniform shoulders in defeating Oklahoma State 76-64 in a second-round game Tuesday night and captain Matt Brust said:

"We've taken it upon ourselves to dedicate this tournament to her and to try to win for her. We know she's with us in spirit, and we felt her presence tonight."

Jayson Williams led St. John's with 27 points and shared rebounding honors with teammate

Malik Sealy, each with eight. Darwyn Alexander scored 15 points for Oklahoma State.

In Tuesday night's other second-round game, New Mexico beat Pepperdine 86-69. The quarterfinals begin tonight with Alabama-Birmingham at Connecticut and Michigan State at Villanova. On Thursday night, St. John's plays at Ohio State and St. Louis visits New Mexico.

The semifinals and finals will be played at New York's Madison Square Garden next Monday and Wednesday.

"We needed to stop Williams inside, and didn't," said Oklahoma State coach Leonard Hamilton, whose team finished 17-13, the same record St. John's will take against Ohio State.

New Mexico 86, Pepperdine 69
At Albuquerque, Luc Longley scored 18 points and blocked seven shots and Charlie Thomas added 17 points as New Mexico advanced to the NIT quarterfinal round for the second straight year.

The Lobos dominated from the start, taking a 15-5 lead. Pepperdine got within 30-26, but New Mexico led 46-37 at halftime. It was 61-54 with 13:45 remaining, but the Lobos responded with a 12-2 run and put the game out of reach.

Thomas scored 10 points in the second half when Longley got into foul trouble. Marvin McBurrows added 15 points, Darrell McGee 13 - plus nine assists - and Rob Robbins 10. Craig Davis led Pepperdine with 21 points and Tom Lewis had 18.

Investigation continues...

Pete not smelling like Rose

by The Associated Press
Pete Rose's reputation is in tatters, his place in the game he loves in doubt.

In two days since major league baseball announced he's under investigation, the Cincinnati Reds' manager has become the eye of a storm of allegations about his gambling, his finances and his parenting.

Rose took refuge behind an armed guard in the team's clubhouse on Tuesday before a spring training game in Florida, declining comment on an array of reports.

The most serious allegations, contained in this week's Sports Illustrated, could drive Rose from the game if proven accurate. The magazine reported in this week's issue that Rose is accused of betting on baseball and could be banned from the game if the charge is proven during an investigation being conducted by the office of baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

The Dayton Daily News reported today that Rose is selling off his baseball memorabilia, and is under investigation by federal authorities in Cincinnati looking into his gambling and taxes.

And Gentlemen's Quarterly printed an article in which Rose's children say he was a poor parent, and his former wife is quoted as saying Rose didn't pay his gambling debts - a statement she later denied.

The allegations dogging Rose revolve around gambling. Rose's affinity for horse and dog tracks is no secret; he has denied a report that he places bets on college basketball.

Sports Illustrated quoted an unidentified source as saying that Rose allegedly "exchanged signals somehow relating to baseball-betting" from the dugout at Riverfront Stadium. SI also reported allegations that Rose's all-time hits leader placed bets on baseball through friends.

Under Major League Rule 21-d, if Rose bet on games in which his team was not involved, he would be suspended for one year. If Rose bet on games involving the Reds, he would be banned for life.

Sports Illustrated said Ron Peters, a restaurant owner in southwest Ohio, has been linked to possible baseball betting involving Rose. The magazine said Peters' lawyer, Alan Statman, described his client as Rose's "principle bookmaker" and approached the magazine in hopes of selling Peters' story. The magazine said it declined to pay. The Cincinnati Enquirer said it, too, declined an overture from Statman to buy the story.

Gambling also was mentioned in the GQ story contained in the magazine's April edition. The magazine said Rose once received a dead fish in the mail as a warning to pay a gambling debt. The magazine also quoted Rose's former wife, Karolyn, as saying, "He said he was Pete Rose, and he didn't have to pay no gambling debts."

Karolyn Rose, in a telephone interview Tuesday night, denied making that statement. She told The Associated Press that she never had an indication during her 16-year marriage that Rose was placing bets with bookies. She also said she can't believe allegations that he bet on baseball games.

In the GQ story, Rose's daughter, Fawn, 24, is quoted as saying of her father, "He's unique. My father is the world's worst father."

Rose's son, Pete Jr., now a minor-leaguer in the Baltimore Orioles organization, said he never hugged or kissed his dad, and that their relationship is "more player-manager."

Defenders: Adams' time in jail 'miscarriage of justice'

DALLAS (AP) — Even as Randall Dale Adams walks as a free man today, his supporters say his more than 12 years' behind bars remains a "miscarriage of justice."

But Adams himself says his vindication will come only with a new trial — one that finds him legally innocent of the 1976 shooting death of a Dallas police officer.

Adams, whose 1977 conviction was dismissed earlier this month, was released from jail Tuesday, after two days of last-minute legal wranglings.

While his mother, Mildred Adams, decorated her trailer in Grove City, Ohio, with yellow ribbons for his return, Adams traveled to Houston with his attorney to lay groundwork for a new trial.

He was scheduled to talk with reporters at a 1:30 p.m. news conference today at defense attorney Randy Schaffer's office.

But on Tuesday, Adams had little to say to reporters, except that he was glad to be freed. "It's been an experience," Adams said Tuesday as he left Lew Sterrett Justice Center in Dallas.

Adams, whose story became the focus of the documentary "Thin Blue Line," was convicted of killing Robert Wood when the officer stopped a car on a traffic violation. But the documentary questioned the testimony of then-16-year-old David Harris of Vidor, Texas, who had picked up Adams the day of the shooting after Adams' car had run out of gas.

Harris was the state's key witness against Adams. But the film showed Harris recanting his accusations, as well as other witnesses reporting information that conflicted with their testimony.

In an interview today on NBC-TV's "Today" show, Adams said he hopes questions raised by the film will be answered in a new trial.

"I would like to have some answers from (the prosecutors)," Adams said. "I don't know if we can receive all the answers I'd like to have but I would like to receive some of them."

Filmmaker Harold Morris said he felt "privileged to have been involved in this whole case."

"I met Randall Adams now nearly four years ago, and in the course of making an entirely different movie," Morris said. "Randall Adams told me a story and at first I didn't believe him, but I became caught up into a three-year investigation into this case, and it's my hope that the film has helped, and that I have in part been instrumental in what's happened yesterday in Texas."

"I'm very very happy for him and for his family. This is a day that we've been waiting for for so many many years. I'm just delighted that he has another chance at life," Morris said.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled March 1 that Adams did not receive a fair trial, based on the witnesses lying on the stand and suppressed evidence from the Dallas County district attorney's office.

"The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has said that (former Dallas County District Attorney) Doug Mulder put perjured testimony on the stand and himself suppressed evidence," said filmmaker Erroll Morris of Cambridge, Mass. "But the whole story of what he did to Randall Dale Adams has yet to be told. There is still a lot of stuff that has yet to be made public."

Adams steadfastly has maintained his innocence in the case, saying Harris dropped him off at home before the shooting occurred.

"I am 40 years old and have no violence anywhere," Adams told reporters Tuesday. "The state wants you to think that for five minutes, I went crazy. That's stupid."

"They want you to think that for five minutes, I can execute a man and turn around and let David Harris run off," he said. "Naw. They can't have it both ways. If I'm crazy, you would have found Harris somewhere out in the middle of the road."

Adams said, "I am still here today because I am non-violent. And being non-violent, I cannot even cause violence on myself and commit suicide, which the state probably wished I had done a long time ago."

Morris said he was "proud, very proud" to have prompted renewed interest in Adams' case that led to his release from prison.

"This is not a story of how someone uses legal wrangling to get out of jail," Morris said. "This is the story of a miscarriage of justice. This is the story of a man who came within three days of a lethal injection in Huntsville."

"It's a terrible story," he said. "It's a story of manipulation of evidence, suppression of evidence."

Adams originally was sentenced to death, but in 1980, the sentence was commuted to life in prison.

"I have often wondered what would happen if the evening ever came when they came to my cell to take me out to my death," Adams said on ABC's "Nightline" Tuesday. "I often wondered if I could just walk out and go to my death as a man. Thankfully, I never had to answer that."

Adams still faces the possibility of a retrial.

"It ain't over," Schaffer said Tuesday after hours of wrangling over whether a judge in the case should be dismissed.

Adams said he welcomed a new trial and was confident he would not be convicted again.

"I'm not afraid of that now," he told "Nightline." "I believe we're going to win and I believe we can prove it."

Cut your own taxes and save How to figure what you owe the IRS

By George W. Smith, CPA
(Seventh of 14 parts)

There are four possible ways to figure your tax:

- Using the tax table in your instruction book;
- Using the tax rate schedules;
- Using Form 8615 for a child under 14 with more than $1,000 in investment income;
- Calculating the alternative minimum tax.

How do you know which one applies? Let's take them one at a time and see.

Tax table: The vast majority of people with incomes less than $50,000 can find their tax by using the tax table included in the instructions for Forms 1040, 1040A and 1040EZ.

All that is necessary to find your tax is to locate the column that describes your filing status: single, married filing jointly, married filing separately or head of household. Now find the income range that covers your taxable income. At the point where that income level intersects your correct filing status, you'll find your tax liability.

Tax rate schedules: If finding your tax in the tax table sounds simple, you may wonder why everyone doesn't do it that way. Well, life's not that easy. The tax tables stop at $50,000.

There are now four tax rate schedules for taxpayers with taxable income of $50,000 or more:

- Schedule X for single taxpayers;
- Schedule Y-1, for married taxpayers and qualifying widows and widowers;

- Schedule Y-2, for married filing separately;
- Schedule Z, for heads of households.

Using the tax rate schedules requires a bit more mathematics. Like the tax table, the schedules reflect tax cuts made by the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

Form 8615, the "Kiddie Tax": Children under age 14 on Dec. 31, 1988, who have investment income (such as dividends and interest) in excess of $1,000 must have their tax figured using Form 8615. In order to complete Form 8615, the parent must first complete his or her tax return. Following the line-by-line instructions will help produce the following results:

- The first $500 in investment income is not taxed, if there is no earned income.
- The second $500 in investment income is taxed to the child at his or her lower tax rate.
- Investment income over $1,000 is taxed to the child at the parents' highest tax bracket.
- Earned income up to $3,000 is not taxed.
- Earned income over $3,000 is taxed to the child at the child's marginal tax bracket.

If the child's parents are divorced, the custodial parent's tax bracket is used. If parents are not divorced but file separately, then the tax bracket of the parent with the greater income is used.

The "kiddie tax" does not apply if the child is an orphan at the end of the year.

Alternative minimum tax: In addition to their regular income tax, some taxpayers may find they owe an alternative minimum tax. This is Congress' attempt to make sure that we all pay at least part of our fair share. For tax years beginning in 1988, the number of tax rates will be reduced to two: 15 percent and 28 percent.

But, beginning in 1988, taxable income within certain higher income ranges will be subject to an additional 5 percent tax.

Also starting in 1988, the amount claimed as a deduction for exemptions will be phased out at a 5 percent rate once taxable income goes above a certain higher income level, depending on your filing status (married, single, etc.).

The benefit of the deduction for one exemption will be phased out completely for each income increase of $10,920 over the taxable income level.

The amount of income subject to the 5 percent rate for the phase-out of the benefit of exemptions is the lesser of: 1) taxable income in excess of the applicable income level; or 2) the number of exemptions claimed multiplied by $10,920.

Former minister says he can't pay for his wife's care

DALLAS (AP) — Former minister Walker Railey has nowhere the wealth to pay an almost $18-million judgment for a brutal attack that left his wife comatose almost two years ago, Peggy Railey's family attorney said.

No criminal charges have been brought against Railey, but his wife's parents, William and Billie Jo Nicolai, won a civil default judgment of nearly $18 million against him last year.

But Railey never responded to the lawsuit and has never paid any part of the judgment.

When authorities said he was their only suspect in the attack, Railey surrendered his church credentials, gave guardianship of the couple's two children to friends in Dallas and moved to California, citing increasing stress from the attack and investigation.

He was served with a subpoena to meet with Bill Arnold, the attorney representing the Nicolais, when he visited Dallas last weekend to celebrate his children's birthdays.

Railey underwent a three-hour deposition at Arnold's Dallas law office Tuesday to review his financial standing.

Railey produced financial records indicating he has a full-time job as a "glorified secretary" for an aerospace firm but doesn't have enough income beyond living expenses to pay for his wife's care, Arnold said.

"From what it looks like today, it doesn't look like under the law that he has any assets and money that she can execute on at this time," Arnold said at a news conference after the deposition.

The judgment remains for 10 years by law.

"I am still hoping that he come into some income in the future that will help pay Peggy's medical expenses," Arnold said.

Railey was represented by Dallas attorneys Michael F. Pezzulli and Doug Mulder, who said he acted as an adviser, when he answered the subpoena.

The Dallas County district attorney's office, which earlier had expressed interest in Railey's questioning, did not attend his deposition.

"He (Railey) produced everything he had that was in accordance with the subpoena that was served upon him," said Pezzulli. "Essentially, what income and expenses he has had over the past two years."

Railey has a net worth of $15,000, including a car and some household furniture, Arnold said.

Arnold said that Railey traveled previously on funds from a $25,000 pension fund he received as a Methodist minister and a trust set up at First United Methodist Church of Dallas. Other expenses included attorney's fees.

"He has exhausted all of his savings," Arnold said. Pezzulli said filing for bankruptcy is an option available to Railey. Judgments generally are dischargeable in such filings.

Mrs. Railey has not gained full consciousness since the attack April 21, 1987 at her home. Her parents care for her daily at a Tyler nursing home but Mrs.

Railey's insurance payments run out Sept. 2.

Arnold declined to name a threshold of money that would be worth seizing from Railey, but said he will continue to monitor Railey's finances.

Railey got a job in Long Beach, Calif., within the last five months, attorneys said. Arnold said Railey told him he was making about $2,000 monthly as a "glorified secretary" for a company that did aerospace testing.

Judge John Whittington ruled on Dec. 5 that Railey was financially responsible for his wife's condition. Railey did not attend the trial.

Possible trouble worries Rep. Ortiz

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Solomon Ortiz, a former sheriff, says all the elements are present for an "explosive" and life-threatening uprising of Central American refugees being held at a South Texas detention center.

Ortiz said he is afraid the Central Americans could fashion crude weapons from tent poles at the "tent city" on the Bayview detention center grounds, and could use the wooden tent flooring to start a fire.

"After personally inspecting the Bayview detention facility, it is alarming to see the serious potential for such a catastrophe to occur," Ortiz wrote Immigration and Naturalization Service Commissioner Alan Nelson on Tuesday.

The Corpus Christi Democrat is appealing to Nelson and Attorney General Richard Thornburgh to consider housing the aliens at another facility, such as an old military installation, with permanent structures, while their applications for political asylum are decided.

A former Nueces County sheriff, Ortiz said he is concerned a fence-shaking disturbance at the center last week "is a warning to us that things are not right" and a dangerous demonstration is possible that could endanger the lives of officers assigned to the facility.

"The weather is going to get hot very soon. Tempers are going to flare, people want to get out, and it worries me," said Ortiz, whose district includes the INS detention center where more than 2,000 refugees are being held.

"I'm afraid the poles on the tents can be used as weapons, against officers and against each other," Ortiz said. "And the (tent) floor is made of wood. It's very easy to start a fire. I used to be a sheriff. These are the kind of things you look out after, for potential weapons for a disturbance."

INS spokesman Duke Austin acknowledges tensions at the facility, but says the agency has never had a population of strictly illegal aliens "attack federal officers, take hostages, or burn down a facility. It is not a normal reaction" for aliens whose only crime is crossing the border illegally.

INS spokesman Verne Jervis said the Central American detainees are "not hardened criminals."

The spokesmen said the agency has the capability to quickly dispatch trained law officers to the center, outside Port Isabel, and is also working to keep tensions down. While there were 1,622 men in the immediate area of last week's disturbance, they said only 200 participated.

"We do have a crisis," Ortiz said. "The facility was built to house 680 detainees and now it's gearing to house 5,000."

In his letter to Nelson, Ortiz said the situation at the Bayview center is "anything but peaceful and calm. All the elements are present for a serious uprising of these Central Americans."

Ortiz told Nelson the number of people being held is unmanageable for the limited number of officers on hand and for the size of the facility.

"With the high volume of inmates that INS personnel must oversee, it is evident that we are jeopardizing the lives of these detention officers," Ortiz wrote.

"I think this situation is critical, since we know little about these individuals other than their stated country of origin," Ortiz told Nelson. "Last week's uprising, which INS officials have described as a minor disruption, was just a small example of what could be an explosive and dangerous demonstration in the future if conditions are allowed to continue unchecked."

Ortiz said he is leery some of the detainees may not be Central Americans but of other nationalities sent by Communist countries to "create unrest."

"There are a lot of people detained there that we don't know who they are," he said. "I'm For Results Use Snyder Daily News Classified Ads Call 573-5486

Austin update

Prison plan released; warning issued

AUSTIN (AP) — Prisoners sentenced to the Texas Department of Corrections but who are being held in county jails are the state's responsibility, a state judge said.

The state has "a mandatory, nondiscretionary legal duty to take the inmates in question," said State District Judge Joseph Hart of Austin Tuesday. His ruling came in a case brought against the state by Nueces County officials, who want the state to take such prisoners.

However, the judge noted, state officials have argued "that it would be impossible to perform what (Nueces County) has requested." Hart said he wouldn't issue an order "to compel an impossible act."

Hart, in a letter to Assistant Attorney General Robert Ozer and Nueces County Attorney Carlos Valdez, said a trial should be set "as early as possible" in the case to decide whether it is impossible for the state, which is under a federal court order because of prison crowding, to take the prisoners.

Reggie Bashur, press secretary for Gov. Bill Clements, said Hart's letter emphasizes the need to build more prison space. Clements and legislative leaders Tuesday unveiled a $300 million-plus plan to build facilities for 10,800 new prison beds.

The TDC now limits the number of prison admissions with a quota system for counties. Elna Christopher, spokeswoman for the Texas attorney general, said it is "impossible" for the state to take the prisoners from Nueces County.

Otwell seeks free drivers license

AUSTIN (AP) — The Rev. W.N. Otwell, who has fought the state for years over his homes for troubled youth, blasted state government for placing too many regulations on the public.

"It's time the Legislature got their head out of the sand," Otwell said Tuesday during a chilly rain at a rally outside the Capitol.

Otwell, pastor of the Church at Fort Worth, who has said he is seeking the Republican Party's nomination for governor, was flanked during the rally by about 35 homeless people from Fort Worth.

The homeless people carried signs saying, "I am a political casualty of the streets," and "Big Brother government put me on the streets."

Otwell said bureaucratic red tape and high taxes are putting thousands of Texans out on the street.

The maverick, fundamentalist preacher proposed the state give poor people free driver's licenses, license plates and basic auto insurance.

He also said rock, country and western, and gospel rock singers should be required to pass a drug test before being allowed to perform.

Would bills harm consumer rights

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers are considering measures that are "an unprecedented attack" by business interests on the state's consumer protection laws, three consumers' rights groups say.

"Proponents of these changes in consumers' protection will whittle away at Texas law every session until consumers have no remedies against dangers and deceit in the market place," said John Hildreth, director of the southwest regional office of the Consumers Union.

Annette LoVoi, president of the Texas Consumer Association, also decried the proposals, which would change the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act and reduce manufacturers' responsibility for dangerous or defective products.

Hidalgo County Sheriff implicated in drug trafficking from Mexico

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Hidalgo County Sheriff Brig Marmolejo denied he has ever helped smuggle drugs into the country as charged in an unsealed affidavit filed in U.S. District Court here.

"It's all crap as far as I'm concerned," Marmolejo said.

The affidavit contained statements from a confidential informant who implicated Marmolejo in aiding a drug smuggling operation that brought 150 tons of marijuana into the country from Mexico.

The 13-year sheriff was elected to a fourth term last November amid accusations from his opponent that he was tainted by dealings with organized crime figures.

The affidavit, unsealed last week and filed Monday in the U.S. District Court clerk's office in Brownsville, was drafted in June 1987 to support a request for an FBI wiretap on the McAllen phone of convicted drug smuggler Antonio Franco.

Among other charges, the informant contended Marmolejo allowed smugglers linked to reputed Mexican drug lord Rafael Caro Quintero to use his Edinburg ranch to unload illegal drugs.

healthy in a region with 1.6 million people.

—Nitrogen dioxide: Levels have been reduced by 12 percent since 1978, but ambient levels showed no change during the last study period. Emissions of nitrogen dioxide actually increased slightly from 1986 to 1987.

Levels are relatively high in the Northeast, but the Los Angeles area with a population of more than 7.5 million is the only region in which nitrogen dioxide exceeds federal standards.

—Lead: This showed the greatest improvement, largely because of the gradual switch since 1978 to use of unleaded gasoline. Ambient lead levels fell 88 percent from 1978, including a 19 percent reduction from 1986 to 1987.

But the EPA reported that 1.7 million people, most of them near industrial plants using lead, continue to be exposed to air that exceeds federal ambient lead levels of 1.5 micrograms per cubic liter.

—Suspended particulates: These include dirt, dust and soot. Levels have been reduced by 21 percent since 1978, but ambient levels increased by 3 percent in 1987 over the previous year. The EPA blamed the increase on forest fires.

Alcohol excess has youth in ICU today

A 16-year-old Snyder boy was listed in stable but guarded condition Wednesday morning in the Cogdell Memorial Hospital intensive care unit after reportedly drinking a near-fatal amount of alcohol at a Tuesday night keg party here.

The boy was unconscious when he was brought to the hospital emergency room at 12:11 a.m. Wednesday by other young people who police said they believed had also been at the party at a residence in northwestern Snyder.

A city detective said the youth's blood alcohol content was measured at the hospital at .58, over 5½ times the level at which a person is considered legally intoxicated, and that it had only fallen into the lower .40's by daybreak.

Police went to the keg party and at 1:43 a.m. arrested an 18-year-old boy for disorderly conduct and being a minor in possession of alcohol and a boy and girl, both 16, for MIP.

The detective said the youth who was hospitalized was reported by witnesses at the party to have consumed numerous whiskey "shots" at a rapid pace.

Police were told by the youngsters who took him to the hospital that they had found him unconscious on a roadside, but the detective said an investigation into the party and its consequences had not been completed.

Researchers in Latin America have successfully developed biopesticides as an alternative to environmentally risky chemical pest-control methods, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. In Brazil, costs of controlling a major soybean pest have been reduced an estimated 75 percent through the use of viral insecticides. Also in Brazil, a genetically engineered virus has been used to control an insect that attacks sugarcane, soybeans, millet and vegetables.

The weak link in Latin America between research and development and its practical application constitutes a major stumbling block in the region's way of making advances in the field of biotechnology, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. In Latin America, nearly all research and development is carried out at universities and other specialized centers which traditionally shun the practical business of putting new techniques into production. At the same time, manufacturing firms do virtually no R&D themselves.

Experts are seeking clues to Trident 2 missile explosion

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Investigators are analyzing wreckage and four seconds of flight data to learn why a $23.7 million Trident 2 missile spun like a burning pinwheel and exploded on its first test-firing from a submarine.

The Navy's newest and most powerful weapon was launched Tuesday from the nuclear submarine USS Tennessee as it cruised submerged in the Atlantic, several miles off Cape Canaveral.

The unarmed missile's first stage ignited above the ocean surface and the 44-foot missile immediately cartwheeled out of control, spewing a shower of fiery debris over the ocean.

A Navy statement said an unknown malfunction caused it to veer off course and self-destruct after four seconds of flight. It said no damage was done to the submarine or nearby support ships.

Divers recovered the nose section and other parts, wreckage that could help in the investigation of what went wrong, authorities said.

Navy officials at the Pentagon who spoke on condition of anonymity said the failure appeared to involve a malfunction in the first-stage rocket motor.

"But we have no idea at this point just what went wrong," said one official. "It will take awhile to sort through the data."

The three-stage Trident 2 is a new, more lethal version of the weapon that's the heart of America's naval nuclear deterrent.

It can deliver three to 12 nuclear warheads to individual targets up to 6,000 miles away.

The Navy plans to have the intercontinental range Trident 2 operational in time to send the Tennessee on patrol late this year with 24 of the weapons.

In a statement from the Pentagon, the Navy said it was still planning to conduct eight more undersea test launches and that it was premature to suggest the missile wouldn't be ready for its scheduled first deployment this December.

The Navy said it was disappointed with the failure, but added, "It is through this type of developmental test program that you iron out problems."

The Trident 2's predecessor, the Trident 1, experienced similar test failures but still was deployed on schedule, the Navy said.

The Navy says the new weapon is much more accurate than its Polaris, Poseidon and Trident 1 — and can match the targeting ability of land-based missiles even though it is launched from a submerged, moving submarine.

Published reports have said Trident 2 warheads can strike within 400 feet of their targets, compared with about 1,500 feet for the Trident 1.

BEST testing slated here

"when" the individual takes the test will have no bearing on their chances for ultimate employment.

The BEST test stands for Basic Employment Service Test and is an exam which measures an individual's aptitude for a specific occupation, in this case, clerical skills.

The test can take from 3 to 3½ hours to complete. It includes multiple choice questions, some math and "recognition" testing and some tests of dexterity.

Mule favored by Ira family

Asked what the main differences are between horses and mules, Kellner said mules are stronger, smarter and more level-headed while horses, of course, run faster. "The main difference is, a mule won't hurt himself," he said.

Little Jack, 55 inches tall, is strong enough that Kellner has ridden hard all day for two days in a row on occasion, and he never faltered.

Now that they have had such success in the show ring, Kellner, part-owner of Kellner Brothers Construction in Ira, plans more of the same in the future, feeling that they might have done even better in San Antonio if it had not been his first such experience.

It takes craftsmen between three and four months to produce a single Rolls-Royce sedan, while the newest limousine to be sold in the United States takes six months.

DR. GOTT

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband is 44 and can't hold an erection. He went to the doctor two years ago who gave him a "hormone" shot and told him to quit smoking. Now he will only get a shot when I beg him and it lasts only a week. I'm only 39 and can't accept that our sex life is over.

DEAR READER: Impotence is a disastrous calamity for most men. It has many causes, including fatigue, stress, circulatory disturbances (such as diabetes and arteriosclerosis), hormone deficiency (rare in men under 60), illness of one sort or another, and psychological factors.

In addition, many medicines — and alcohol — cause impotence. I recommend referral to a urologist, a specialist in diseases of the male reproductive tract. Many types of impotence are treatable, often curable.

For example, supplemental testosterone in hormone-deficient men will usually correct the problem. Also, certain drugs (such as yohimbine) and prosthetic devices have been shown to help men who can not achieve erections. Once physical illness is treated, erections can return.

Counseling may aid men who are experiencing psychological impotence.

I am concerned that, from your description, your husband does not seem to be particularly eager to find an answer to this problem. (Otherwise, wouldn't he be more interested in more frequent injections?) I wonder if he has lost his sex drive (libido) as well as his ability; this distinction is useful in differentiating various causes of impotence.

How are the family relations? Is he under particular personal or work-related stresses?

Before seeing a specialist, your husband will need to decide whether this is something he wants to do. That is, seeing a urologist because you are badgering him to do so may not be helpful. The situation can become very complex. I once saw a patient whose wife insisted he be seen for impotence. Within 15 minutes, the cause was clear. The man was having an intense extra-marital affair and was physically unable to perform with his wife. The conflict was resolved during marriage counseling.

Although always alert to possible physical causes of impotence, a practitioner must not forget to inquire about the obvious.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Impotence." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 with their name and address to: R.O.-Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Woman seeks settlement

WILLOWS, Calif. (AP) — Car lot celebrity Cal Worthington testified that for years he alternated between living with his spouse and the woman who became his second wife.

Worthington, whose television commercials feature him and a variety of exotic animals, said that during much of the 1970s he moved between the home he shared with his then wife, Barbara, and the apartment of former actress and model Susan Henning, whom he married in 1979.

In separate divorce and palimony suits, 41-year-old Susan Worthington seeks a division of income and property acquired by her and Worthington during their marriage and in the approximately seven years they lived together before they married.

Worthington, 68, took the stand earlier this week in his own defense during the trial over the palimony suit.

One of Susan Worthington's attorneys estimated Worthington has accumulated a net worth of up to $100 million.

Convicted killer in slaying was executed early today

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas inmate Leon King was executed early today for abducting and then killing a Houston-area man nearly 11 years ago by smashing his victim's head repeatedly with the butt of a shotgun.

King, 44, showed little reaction as he received lethal injection for the April 1978 slaying of Michael Clayton Underwood, 26, of Baytown.

"I would like to tell Mr. Richard I appreciate all he has done for me," he said to Richard Wall, one of five friends he was allowed to invite to witness his execution. "I love you all. God bless."

He closed his eyes, heaved a sigh as the drugs began to take hold and then stopped breathing.

He was declared dead at 12:27 a.m. CST, 10 minutes after the lethal dose began to flow into his veins.

"It's about time," Doug Shaver, an assistant district attorney who handled King's case, said.

Shaver, now a Houston judge, said King never expressed remorse for the slaying of Underwood.

"If anyone deserves the death penalty, it's him," Shaver said.

Underwood's family declined to talk about the execution.

"We are apprised always of what is going on," his mother, Mrs. C.J. Underwood, of Houston, said. "But we really do not have any desire to make any comment. I don't think it would serve any purpose."

King on Tuesday lost last-minute appeals before a federal district judge in Houston, a federal appeals court in New Orleans and the U.S. Supreme Court. His attorneys contended King, who had prior convictions for burglary, forgery and drug possession, suffered from organic brain damage. They unsuccessfully raised 11 challenges to his death sentence.

Attorney General Jim Mattox said King admitted to at least 30 arrests and acknowledged fathering at least eight illegitimate children.

According to court records, Underwood and his 19-year-old girlfriend were abducted at gunpoint from a Houston nightclub April 10, 1978 and taken to a remote area where Underwood was beaten to death.

Dr. Ethel Erickson, the medical examiner who performed the autopsy on Underwood, compared the damage to that one would suffer if they were run over by an 18-wheel truck.

Authorities said King and an accomplice, Allen Ray Carter, were enraged because the abducted couple was carrying only $11.50. After Underwood was killed, the woman was repeatedly raped and sodomized but survived the five-hour ordeal and identified King and Carter as her attackers.

"This was a particularly brutal murder, one that was totally senseless to an unarmed and defenseless individual," said Mattox, who witnessed the execution.

Telemarketers Make Us Jump By Reaching Out to Touch Us

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1989 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You recently ran a series of scathing letters condemning telemarketing. It was discussed at length on one of our local radio call-in talk shows, and telemarketers took a verbal beating that made telemarketing in this area very difficult.

I have been in sales all my life, and for years I listened to people gripe about our door-to-door salespeople: "They are too persistent." "They always come at the wrong time." Then when we tried mail-outs, people complained about all the junk mail they were getting. We tried radio and television advertising, but people griped that we were aired too often and came across like used-car salespeople (my apology to used-car salespeople; however, that stigma persists). Even newspaper advertisements drew fire.

So, we turned to calling people on the telephone in order to sell our product, and never has there been a more economical way to reach people in the history of America — and what happens? People complain, and you add fuel to the flame!

Who in all of God's creation ever said that we would go through life without interruptions? What makes people think that they possess an unalienable right never to be approached by anyone at any time for any reason that they feel to be an improper interruption?

So, Abby, please remember: Peeking in your window while you are taking a shower is a direct violation of your privacy; telemarketing is only one of life's interruptions, but whose efficiency and effectiveness to this economically struggling nation far outweigh its inconvenience.

TELECHIEF IN BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

DEAR TELECHIEF: You rattled the wrong cage. I am still of the opinion that one's telephone is for the convenience of the person who pays for it, and that solicitors and market researchers should find some other way to sell their products or gather information.

Some people sleep at odd hours; others may be ill, or otherwise occupied. Why should we accept a salesperson's telephone call as "one of life's interruptions" as though it were an act of God?

The late Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis said, "One of our most cherished rights is the right to be left alone." (I'm with Louie!)

DEAR ABBY: I was amused to read the letter from Wallace A. Krapf, who stated unequivocally that a friendship cannot survive where there is a business relationship. (He specifically deplored relatives in business.) Mr. Krapf may be interested in our story:

My husband and I met in 1974 when I took a job as his secretary. We worked together for four years, then we both moved to another company in the same department.

In 1979 he moved in with me, and in 1982 we were married (a second marriage for both of us). He left the company I was with for a short time, but returned to become the manager of my department.

We still work for the same company and I am his assistant. We ride to work together every morning and go home the same way. And whenever it's possible, we go to lunch together. We have never taken separate vacations because we enjoy being together and are each other's best friend.

We both feel that we have an ideal, enduring relationship and wouldn't trade it for the world.

I know this probably sounds like I made it up, but you may sign me ...

WOULDN'T HAVE BELIEVED IT EITHER, BUT IT'S TRUE

DEAR WOULDN'T, ETC.: Now that's what I call "togetherness." Siamese twins could not be closer. If it works for you, bravo and congratulations. May it ever be thus.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Irked," who applied for a sales job in a large retail store, brought back memories. He was told if he wanted the job he'd have to shave off his beard.

Back in 1929, I applied for a job with the Standard Oil Co. The job paid $80 a month for working a 60-hour week. I was told I wouldn't be hired unless I shaved off the moustache I'd been wearing for 10 years.

I didn't think twice. I agreed to shave off my moustache and felt lucky to get the job.

DON McLELLAN, FLINTRIDGE, CALIF.

DEAR DON: You made it by a whisker. Back in 1929 you were lucky you had a razor to shave it off with.
