Locals predicting no help in senate for work comp '1'

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

Local supporters of workman's compensation insurance reform, who have endorsed a measure passed by the Texas House of Representatives called House Bill 1, say they are now doubtful of support for the measure by area Senator Steve Carriker (D-Roby).

Members of the area delegation to a demonstration at the Texas Capitol for workman's comp reform report dissatisfaction with a meeting they were given with Carriker.

Dan Hicks, owner of Tri-State Construction Co., was one of an estimated 2,000 to 3,000 people who went to the Capitol Tuesday morning to voice their support for House Bill 1, which incorporates most of the reforms they seek.

The protest group divided up into smaller groups to speak with state senators from their own areas, and the group of more than a dozen businessmen from Snyder, Colorado City, Aspermont, Sweetwater, Jayton, Roby and Rotan was told to wait in the Capitol basement coffee shop for Sen. Carriker.

"We didn't feel like the basement was a good place to wait for him," Hicks said, adding that in the 20- to 30-minute discussion with Carriker, "He was not very forthcoming and indicated that he may not vote for House Bill 1."

A legislative assistant for Carriker had said prior to the rally that the Roby Democrat had reservations about what he considered the lack of safety requirements in the House bill, on which the Senate

Suspect waives jury trial

Trial slated for robbery-stabbing

A Scurry County defendant under indictment for attempted capital murder has waived a jury trial and Monday morning will see his case argued before 132nd District Judge Gene Dulaney.

A jury had been summoned to hear evidence against Jorge Serrato Solis, a 24-year-old citizen of Mexico who is charged with stabbing a convenience store clerk last Jan. 20 during an apparent robbery attempt.

That jury has now been canceled after Solis' attorney, Javier Alvarez of Lubbock, indicated his client wished the case to be decided by the district judge.

The hearing is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Monday with District Attorney Ernie Armstrong presenting the state's case.

Armstrong said Saturday the charges against Solis may be attempted capital murder or aggravated robbery, an option still open to the prosecution.

Solis was arrested by city police approximately two hours after the stabbing-robbery occurred at the Fina convenience store located in the 1000 Block of 25th Street. See TRIAL, page 16A

SNS seeks volunteers

One week remains before local volunteers will undertake this year's second annual Snyder Neighbor's Sharing project, and spokesmen say more workers are now needed.

A volunteer work force of approximately 125 individuals has signed up to date, noted SNS officer Rick Hall, but this may not be sufficient to successfully complete the nine targeted houses.

Senior parents plan end of school events

Dates have been established for the annual round of events scheduled for Snyder High School's graduating class of seniors.

The night of graduation, May 30, the senior parents are again planning an "all night" activity session at the Western Texas College athletic complex.

The event is planned to offer activities "alcohol and drug-free," sponsors say.

Other dates will include May 19 for the traditional boy's volleyball and girl's Powderpuff Football game; and May 25 for the senior steak supper in the Towle Park Barn.

On graduation night, the senior activities will include a dance in addition to the all night activities at WTC as well as a breakfast to be served the next morning.

An estimated 75 senior parents attended an organizational meeting last week. Heading up See SENIOR, page 15A

Landscapes and More is new local business

A new business specializing in yard landscaping, to include both lawn, tree and plant care and such outdoor features as decks, has opened here.

Called Landscapes and More, it is located at 1311 College Ave. at the "Y" intersection of College and the Old Lubbock Highway.

Owner of the operation is Sally Jordan with partner Derwin Price. The partnership grew out of the two's association with the WTC Golf and Landscape Technology program.

The business offers landscaping and contract designs for a "workover of an entire yard," Jordan said, adding "We specialize in what grows in West Texas."

The operation now offers special orders for trees and shrubs and currently has several projects underway involving the construction of decks, retaining walls and fencing.

Effective June 1, underground sprinkler systems will be installed as well.

Jordan was recently certified as an applicator for pesticide and herbicide spraying also, a certification which requires passing an exam offered through the state pest control board.

Within the next few weeks, the business will begin offering spraying services for lawns and ornamentals such as trees and shrubs.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "There are two kinds of people—those who can't do what they're told and those who can't do anything else."

Most students are taught that only success is acceptable. But a business professor in Michigan runs a class in which the student has to fail in order to pass.

Called "Failure 101," the course is designed to be a school of hard knocks. The prof wears a combat helmet in class to illustrate that the business world is a war zone. He is motivated by the observation that most students are so averse to failure that they won't take necessary risks.

His 50 students started out with a project to create something of value out of ice cream sticks. Each student was required to make a marketing pitch for their products to classmates who in turn were encouraged to boo to show disapproval.

Next students were required to sell their wares on the streets. If they were easy to sell, students flunked because the items should have been priced higher.

The prof further insists that business students can't really learn unless they lose some of their own money. One student lost $160 trying to sell bagels flown in from Manhattan. His gamble to increase business by hiring a banner flown from an airplane over the football stadium was a flop because the promotion was shown early in the contest before most people had arrived.

But as the professor contends, success often springs from adversity. The bagel peddler made an A in the course.

Give an F-minus to the worker who appealed his firing. The worker called in and claimed his arm was hurting. Nonetheless, he travel 150 miles and played 18 holes of golf.

Because of an injury, doctors had prescribed daily exercise and rest, and the employee claimed the golf outing was medical therapy.

An appeals court says his drive was a good effort, but "out of bounds."

Q. — What's the biggest voter turnout for a city or school election here?

A. — The turnout for city races generally falls below the school's. In this decade, which likely represents the largest turnouts ever, there have been two school board elections with votes in excess of 1,400. In 1984, the school board ballot generated approximately 1,400 votes. The all-time high was in 1987, with a turnout of 1,568. The largest vote of the 1980s, however, involved a WTC board race in 1984 when 1,700 votes were counted.

Prices to increase

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government oil company Pemex plans to increase its prices in May for some crude oils sold in the United States and Europe, Pemex announced Friday.

A Pemex statement said the increases were announced Friday afternoon by the Foreign Petroleum Commerce Committee, made up of various government officials.

The adjustments were designed to bring Pemex's prices in line with those being charged on the international petroleum market.

The committee agreed that beginning May 1, Pemex will begin charging 10 cents more per barrel for its light crude Isthmus and 20 cents more per barrel for its heavy crude Maya blend sold in the United States.

Munoz said that in March, Pemex charged American customers $17.61 per barrel for its Isthmus blend and $13.51 per barrel for its Maya blend. During the first 15 days of March, European customers paid $18.59 per barrel for Isthmus and $14.26 per barrel for Maya, she said.

Judge lowers award in lawsuit to $5.3 million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge said a jury's passion led it to give Rock Hudson's lover an excessive $21.7 million in a landmark AIDS lawsuit, and he slashed the award to $5.5 million.

"It's still a big award," said Marc Christian, 35, who was reached by telephone Friday after Superior Court Judge Bruce Geernaert's decision.

Christian had sued the late actor's estate contending Hudson should have told Christian he had the deadly and contagious disease.

During the trial, Christian, a former bartender, testified in sometimes lurid detail that he continued to have sex unwittingly with Hudson for months after the actor was diagnosed with AIDS.

The jury ruled in February that Hudson was guilty of "outrageous conduct" for concealing his AIDS diagnosis from Christian, his lover for two years.

Although Christian did not contract AIDS and has tested negative for the presence of the virus, both the judge and jury found he deserved damages for the extreme emotional distress he suffered. Christian said he didn't learn of the star's illness until a few months before Hudson, 58, died on Oct. 5, 1985.

"I thought I was a dead man," he testified about the terror that gripped him in the wake of the disclosure.

Wright calls probe 'agonizing'

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The long, intensive investigation of Jim Wright by the House ethics committee has been "agonizing," says the House Speaker, who is trying not to become embittered by the probe.

"I have been called names in the past year that I have never been called in my life before," Wright told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in Washington Thursday.

"I never dreamed it would drag on this long," he said, recalling his inaccurate prediction that the ethics case, convened last June 10, would end within a matter of weeks. "It's an agonizing experience, of course."

The 66-year-old Democrat was formally accused Monday of violating congressional standards of ethics.

"I have tried to cultivate a quality of forgiveness. I must not allow myself to be embittered

The quartet is making its inaugural tour, bringing to audiences the classic and modern repertory for piano quartet as well as a broad range of trio and duo literature. against those who have said vicious things about me. It isn't easy."

But Wright said he believes his detractors have engaged in more unethical behavior than anything of which he has been accused.

"The most unethical behavior I've observed by any colleague is the deliberate attempt to ruin another colleague's reputation," Wright said, in an obvious reference to his Republican nemesis, Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga.

Wright, who spent about five hours before the ethics committee last September, said he did not realize at the time that the investigation was focusing on his relationship with Fort Worth businessman George Mallick.

In their report Monday, the 12-member ethics committee — six Republicans and six Democrats — found "reason to believe" that Wright accepted nearly $145,000 in cash and financial benefits from Mallick, mostly in the early 1980s.

The committee concluded that Mallick put Wright's wife, Betty, on his payroll as part of a scheme to funnel financial favors to his powerful friend. The panel also accused Wright of violating congressional limits on outside income through sales of his 1984 book, "Reflections of a Public Man," to lobbyists and special-interest groups.

"They weren't asking about those things in any detail at all," Wright said, repeating his insistence that his wife earned the money.

"I didn't imagine those issues to be the focus of their inquiry, and therefore I don't feel I've had an opportunity to present my side."

"I supposed that I had satisfactorily answered all the questions on their minds. I didn't dream that they were thinking that Betty's job was a gift or that George was in fact a lobbyist or that the book sales violated the rules."

Wright added, "I'm absolutely confident that when given the opportunity to appear personally, I can provide sufficient, totally convincing information that would dispel any of these remaining questions."

The ethics committee accused the speaker of selling the book to lobbying groups in lieu of speaking fees, but Wright said he never deliberately relied on sales of the book to avoid House income limits.

While House rules prevent lawmakers from earning an amount equal to 30 percent of their salary in speaking fees, the restriction does not apply to book royalties.

"In no case did I knowingly speak in any way that would be an exchange for the purchase of books," Wright said, adding that he does not plan to return any of the approximately $55,000 he made on the book unless buyers request a refund.

Ethics team due to arrive

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A team from the U.S. House Ethics Committee, including the panel's chairman, was to arrive in the Alamo City Sunday evening to continue its investigation into a deal negotiated by a local businessman that benefited House Speaker Jim Wright.

Committee members will interview businessmen who helped Wright's investment partnership parlay a $9,120 investment into a $440,000 return in a short period last year.

Meanwhile, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Jim Wright is considering hiring an experienced trial lawyer to help him at a disciplinary hearing where an ethics committee would decide if Wright violated House rules.

The newspaper said one of the attorneys Wright is considering is noted Washington attorney Richard Ben-Veniste, a former special assistant in the Watergate scandal.

Wright's chief of staff, Marshall Lynam, said yesterday that "no decision has been made" when asked whether Ben-Veniste would be hired.

Ben-Veniste, 45, was recruited in 1973 by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox to help prepare the prosecution's case against then-President Richard Nixon. He subpoenaed Nixon's White House tapes and argued successfully in court for their release when Nixon refused to supply them on grounds of national security.

Ben-Veniste declined to comment when asked whether he would represent the speaker, the newspaper reported.

The trip by the ethics team to Texas is part of the committee's continuing investigation into an oil well deal called the Sabine Lake prospect.

They plan to question financier Morris Jaffe and his son, Doug, of San Antonio, who helped set up the deal for Mallightco. The panel is investigating whether the profits realized from the investment — including $186,000 that went to Wright — were improper gifts to the speaker.

Mallightco, the investment company owned by Wright and his business partner George Mallick, bought a 4 percent interest in the well for an initial payment of $9,120 on May 10, 1988.

Oil prices increase nice, but long-term impact doubted

DALLAS (AP) — The rise in domestic oil prices was front page news, but likely won't be enough to send wildcat drills back to the Texas oil fields — or to cause banks to loosen up purses riddled by oil failures.

The price of West-Texas Intermediate crude oil, the benchmark U.S. grade, has risen steadily in the past several months, and now stands about $10 a barrel higher than last fall.

In Friday's trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the

June contract for WTI rose 4 cents to $21.32 a barrel while contracts for delivery after June were up as much as 41 cents a barrel.

On Thursday, the last day that contracts for May delivery could be traded, WTI rose $2.04 per barrel, setting a record for the highest one-day rise since the exchange started trading crude oil futures in March 1983, said John Santana, NYME statistical analyst. The contract closed at $24.65, the highest level since

Jan. 15, 1986, when it reached $25.15.

In the four days before the contract expired on Thursday the contract rose more than $3, or about 16 percent.

The increases are generally regarded by analysts as aberrational reactions to the Exxon Valdez oil spill, which stalled production from the Alaska oil fields, the nation's largest, and to an oil rig explosion in the North Sea, which produces Brent crude, highly favored for gasoline production.

"The price has to go up and stay up for a period of time" before exploration or development resumes to any degree, said Peter Vig, president of Toreador Royalty Corp., a small Dallas independent.

Vig also noted that many of the major oil companies have pulled back in Texas, even though the state has regained the lead from Alaska as the top producing state so far this year.

That pull back leaves the market more open for independents, at the same time that financial institutions are less willing to lend money because of past failures.

Vig, and banker Sam Atkins, said the most helpful part of the increase prices will be the stronger cash flow it brings to producers, providing a financial cushion on projects begun at lower prices and enabling them to build up reserves.

"We're not really anticipating that they (prices) are going to hold up at this level," said Atkins, vice president of NCNB Texas National Bank's energy group.

Student arranging gift of reference books to Soviets

DALLAS (AP) — A Memphis State University graduate student is raising money to place reference books, including a copy of the Bible, in every university library in the Soviet Union.

Dick Jensen, who was in Dallas recently to raise funds for the project, said he has received permission from the Soviet Ministry for Education to place four books in every university in the country.

The four books selected are "The Story of the Constitution," by Sol Bloom; "The Beginning of the Republic," by Clarence Carson; "Webster's New World Dictionary," and a Russian-language edition of the Bible.

Jensen told The Dallas Morning News that it is one of the first instances in which the Soviet government has agreed to permit students to have unrestricted access to the Bible and other American books.

The donations were proposed after Jensen toured several Soviet university libraries last year and noticed a lack of American reference works. His visit was arranged through the Soviet press agency Novosti.

Jensen said it appears the Americans and Soviets "have begun to move beyond old suspicions and stereotypical attitudes and are discovering there are really fewer problems" than were imagined.

Jensen hopes to raise $25,000

through private and corporate donations in what is called Operation Knigi. The Russian word "Knigi" means books. Some of the books already have been donated by publishers.

Bibles are having to be back-ordered because of a great demand for Russian-language Scriptures, Jensen said.

Sheriff's official enraged over ruling

ODESSA (AP) — An Ector County sherriff's official says he is enraged by an appeals court ruling that a confession he obtained from a drifter was improper and grounds for reversal of the man's murder conviction. Doyle Wayne Morris was convicted by an Ector County jury in March 1988 for the slaying of Marsha Ann Gilbert. He was sentenced to life in prison for the Feb. 1987 murder. Ms. Gilbert's body was discovered by a motorist lying by a roadside. But the Eight District Court of Appeals in El Paso reversed Morris' murder conviction. The decision made earlier this week was sent to officials in this West Texas city on Friday. In the written confession that Ector County Sheriff's Lt. Jerry Davis obtained, Morris said that he strangled Ms. Gilbert and dumped her nude body on the roadside after an evening of drinking, dancing and sex erupted into a heated argument. Davis read the confession to jurors during Morris' trial. U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton ruled last month that a lawsuit brought by Morris against Davis for alleged civil rights violations in connection with Morris' confession was frivolous, the Odessa American reported. In a judgment entered March 10, Bunton ruled that questioning of an accused criminal may proceed as long as a valid waiver is obtained.

"Prior to the Ector County confession, no Ector County attorney was appointed or requested," Davis said. "He was well aware of his rights ... we had numerous written waivers." But Morris' court-appointed attorney Lawrence Barber said Friday that Davis should never have taken the confession. Barber had sought to bar the statement from being admitted to evidence, arguing that no attorney was present when it was given. The appeals court sided with Barber, ruling the trial court erred by overruling Barber's motion to suppress the confession. Davis on Monday said he plans to leave law enforcement after 19 years because of dissatisfaction with the criminal justice system. "That's exactly why I'm getting out of law enforcement," Davis said after hearing of the reversal. Ector County District Attorney Gary Garrison said he doesn't yet know if his administration will retry the case. If a home improvement product becomes defective, 75 percent of consumers would hold the manufacturer primarily responsible, if it's American-made. Fewer than half would do so if the product is imported, according to the Bureau of Building Marketing Research. Then consumers hold retailers responsible.

Oil prices increase nice, but long-term impact doubted

DALLAS (AP) — The rise in domestic oil prices was front page news, but likely won't be enough to send wildcaters back to the Texas oil fields — or to cause banks to loosen up purses riddled by oil failures.

The price of West Texas Intermediate crude oil, the benchmark U.S. grade, has risen steadily in the past several months, and now stands about $10 a barrel higher than last fall.

In Friday's trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the

June contract for WTI rose 4 cents to $21.32 a barrel while contracts for delivery after June were up as much as 41 cents a barrel.

On Thursday, the last day that contracts for May delivery could be traded, WTI rose $2.04 per barrel, setting a record for the highest one-day rise since the exchange started trading crude oil futures in March 1983, said John Santana, NYME statistical analyst. The contract closed at $24.65, the highest level since

Jan. 15, 1986, when it reached $25.15.

In the four days before the contract expired on Thursday the contract rose more than $3, or about 16 percent.

The increases are generally regarded by analysts as aberrational reactions to the Exxon Valdez oil spill, which stalled production from the Alaska oil fields, the nation's largest, and to an oil rig explosion in the North Sea, which produces Brent crude, highly favored for gasoline production.

"The price has to go up and stay up for a period of time" before exploration or development resumes to any degree, said Peter Vig, president of Toreador Royalty Corp., a small Dallas independent.

Vig also noted that many of the major oil companies have pulled back in Texas, even though the state has regained the lead from Alaska as the top producing state so far this year.

That pull back leaves the market more open for independents, at the same time that financial institutions are less willing to lend money because of past failures.

Vig, and banker Sam Atkins, said the most helpful part of the increase prices will be the stronger cash flow it brings to producers, providing a financial cushion on projects begun at lower prices and enabling them to build up reserves.

"We're not really anticipating that they (prices) are going to hold up at this level," said Atkins, vice president of NCNB Texas National Bank's energy group.

Student arranging gift of reference books to Soviets

DALLAS (AP) — A Memphis State University graduate student is raising money to place reference books, including a copy of the Bible, in every university library in the Soviet Union.

Dick Jensen, who was in Dallas recently to raise funds for the project, said he has received permission from the Soviet Ministry for Education to place four books in every university in the country.

The four books selected are "The Story of the Constitution," by Sol Bloom; "The Beginning of the Republic," by Clarence Carson; "Webster's New World Dictionary;" and a Russian-language edition of the Bible.

Jensen told The Dallas Morning News that it is one of the first instances in which the Soviet government has agreed to permit students to have unrestricted access to the Bible and other American books.

The donations were proposed after Jensen toured several Soviet university libraries last year and noticed a lack of American reference works. His visit was arranged through the Soviet press agency Novosti.

Jensen said it appears the Americans and Soviets "have begun to move beyond old suspicions and stereotypical attitudes and are discovering there are really fewer problems" than were imagined.

Jensen hopes to raise $25,000

through private and corporate donations in what is called Operation Knigi. The Russian word "Knigi" means books. Some of the books already have been donated by publishers.

Bibles are having to be back-ordered because of a great demand for Russian-language Scriptures, Jensen said.

Financial Focus

At one time, all interest on tax-exempt municipal bonds was collected by clipping a coupon and mailing it to the paying agent. In a few days, you received your interest payment.

Unless you own or can buy, on the secondary market, some of these old bearer-coupon bonds, those days are gone. Several years ago, Congress decreed all new tax-exempt bonds be issued in registered form and that the paying agent, usually a bank, mail the interest checks directly to the bondholder.

On the surface, this may appear to be simply another Congressional invasion of the way we do business. In practice, however, it has made investing in tax-exempt bonds much easier for thousands of investors.

Under the old bearer-bond system, the certificate you received had no name on it. It was in "bearer" form, which meant anyone who held it owned it.

It was no simple matter to replace a lost, stolen or destroyed bearer certificate. First, there was a waiting period, often up to one year, to make certain the bond had not been sold or redeemed. After this, your request for a replacement certificate began. This required the deposit of a substantial cash bond, which was determined by the face value of the lost certificate plus any remaining interest coupons. In the meantime, as your interest became due, you couldn't collect it because you had no coupons to submit for payment.

There were other problems. Because bonds pay interest in different months, investors with several bearer bond holdings had to set up a system of bookkeeping to know when to clip which coupons. Those investors with small bearer-bond holdings often forgot to clip their coupons, so they didn't receive interest when it was due.

Add to this the inconvenience of a bond being called, or redeemed before the maturity date. The bondholder had no way of knowing until he or she mailed the next coupon for interest payment. At that time, the paying agent generally returned the principal amount of the bond with a letter explaining the bond had been called after the last interest payment and that payment of interest had stopped at that time. The bottom line was that the investor could lose up to six months interest.

Of course, investors often complained, but since their bond was in bearer form and there was no registered owner, the paying agent had no way to inform the bondholder when the bond was called. That was the issuer's defense, and it held.

With all new bonds not in registered form, these inconveniences no longer exist. If a registered certificate is lost or destroyed, a replacement must still be made, but the process is much simpler. Usually, no cash bond is required. When due, interest checks are mailed promptly to the registered bondholder. If a bond should be redeemed, the registered holder is notified in time to present the bond for payment without loss of interest.

If you've avoided tax-exempt bonds because of the inconvenience of clipping coupons and the risk of a lost certificate, consider the advantages of registered bonds.

Lawman furious over plea bargain for drug traffickers

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Lawmen are incensed over a plea bargain in which four men received probation instead of jail time even though they admitted they hauled nearly 700 pounds of high-grade marijuana to Winkler County last year.

The four men, three from California and one from Amarillo, received 10 years' probation after pleading guilty to drug trafficking charges April 11 in Kermit.

The agreement was made between Michael Fostel, district attorney for the 109th Judicial District, and defense attorneys.

"It is difficult for the criminal justice system to justify how major smugglers can be given probationary sentences when 1/4-gram cocaine dealers are often sent to the penitentiary for 20 years," said Art Van Dorn, commander of the Midland-based Permian Basin Drug Task Force.

Donald John Brizzie Jr., 41, of Moraga, Calif., Michael Patterson, 35, of Amarillo, and David Nishimura, 42, of Oakland, Calif., pleaded guilty to delivery of marijuana over 200 pounds in exchange for the probated sentence.

Each also was fined $25,000 by Judge James Clack of the 109th Judicial District.

Lonnie Johnston, 41, of Pinole, Calif., pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana over 200 pounds and also received 10 years' probation and a $10,000 fine.

The officers had stopped the vehicles shortly after 1 a.m. near Kermit, an hour after they had spotted a low-flying plane in the area.

WTC golfers playing well; ready for regional tourney

MIDLAND -- Western Texas College is in solid position to bid for a national tournament berth following its third place finish in the final conference golf tournament of the season, believes Coach Dave Foster.

"Going into the regional tournament it's anybody's ballgame. We've been getting beat by Odessa and New Mexico (JC) by three and four shots. We've picked up a lot of ground the last few weeks," said the coach.

Western competes in the tough Western Junior College Athletic Conference, which features three nationally ranked teams. According to the May 17 NJCAA coaches association poll, Odessa is ranked No. 2 in the nation, New Mexico is No. 4 and Midland is No. 15. Western Texas is unranked.

New Mexico won the final tournament, held at Greentree Country Club, with a 427 stroke total over 27 holes. Odessa was second at 428. Western was just four strokes off of NMJC's winning pace with a 431 which tied with Midland, while New Mexico Military was fifth with a 444.

"We played very well," said Foster. "This is the first time we finally played the last nine holes of the 27 like we should. We shot five-under on the last nine holes."

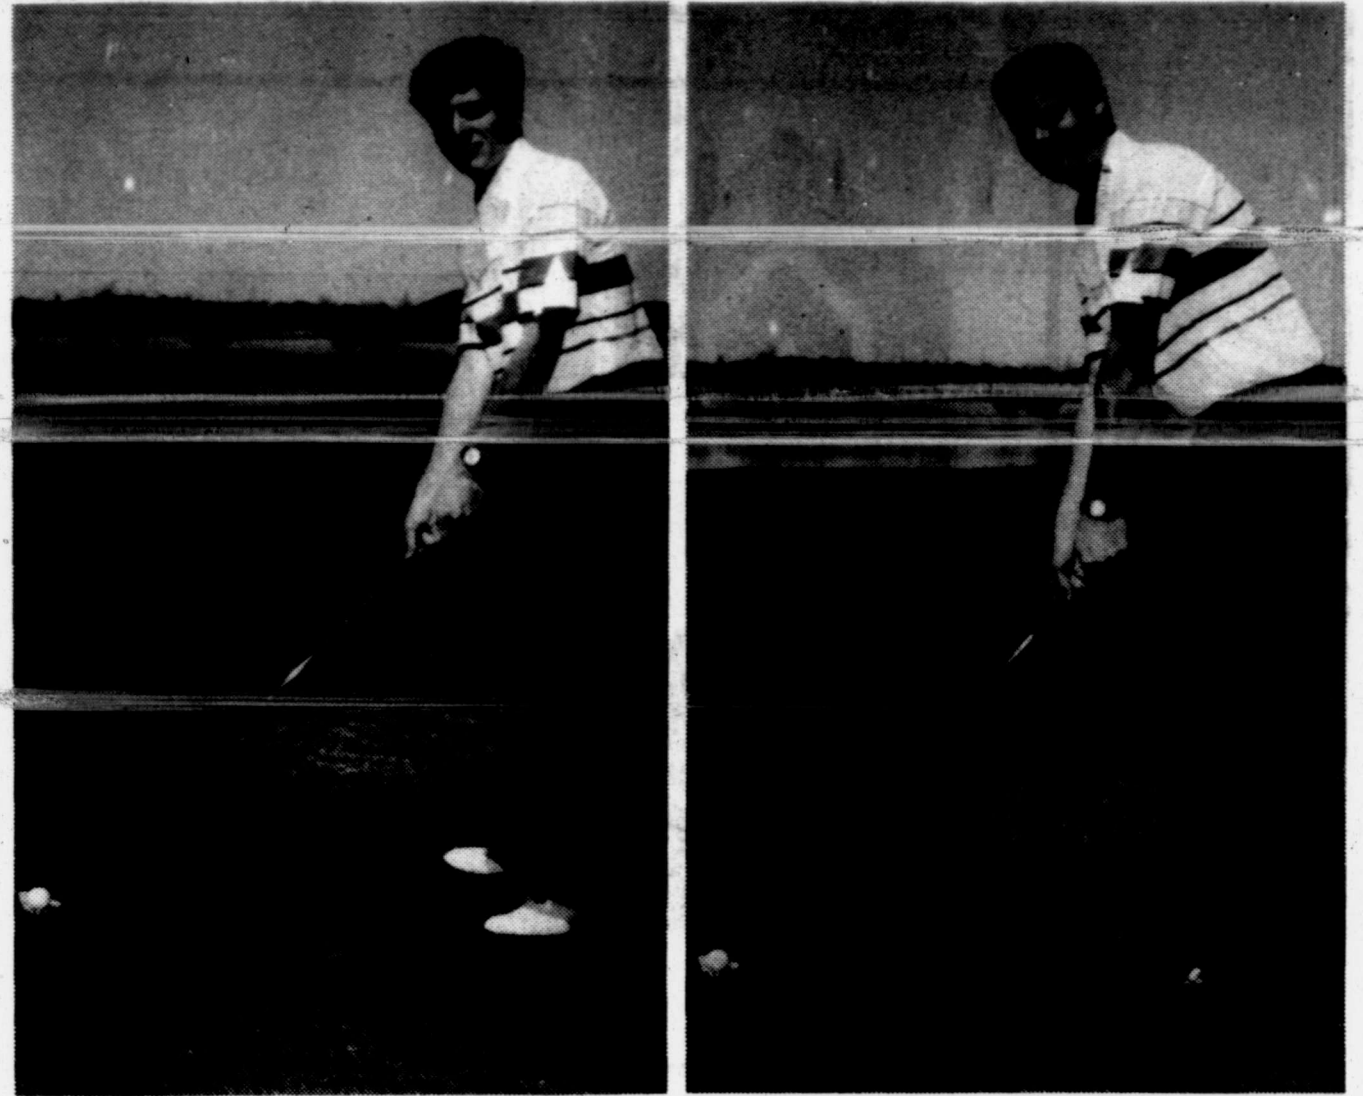

Dean Robertson of Midland and Shawn Haverstroh of NMJC were co-medalists with 104s. One stroke back was Western's Mark Burgen. The sophomore from Andrews shot 105.

Burgen was one of two WTC players who earned all-conference status. Burgen averaged 71.6 through the season and was sixth among the top 10. Lance Jones, also of Andrews, was eighth with a 72.1 average. Narrowly missing the elite squad was Darrell Cofer, whose 73.3 average stood alone at 11th place.

Western makes its bid towards the national tournament Monday in the Region V Tournament, held at Grayson County Golf Course in Dennison. The 54-hole event will conclude Tuesday, with the first and second place teams advancing on to nationals.

"It's a very easy golf course so there's not an advantage to anybody," said Foster. "We have a lot of momentum going into the tournament. I feel real confident we will play well."

In addition to Burgen's 105 here Friday, Jeff Beal shot 108, David Turrentine 109, Cofer 111, Jones 114 and Jerry Whitten 115.

ALL-CONFERENCE GOLFERS -- Western Texas College golfers Lance Jones, left, and Mark Burgen, both of sophomores from Andrews, earned All-Western Junior College Athletic Conference honors as the final WJCAC tourney concluded Friday. Western Texas will now compete in the Region V Tournament, beginning Monday in Dennison. (Harley Bynum Photos)

Western cowboys riding in Abilene

ABILENE -- Coach Bob Doty's men were in line to score some solid points Saturday as the Hardin-Simmons University NIRA Rodeo held its final show.

The last of the long-go was scheduled to begin here at 2 p.m. Saturday, with the top 10 cowboys and cowgirls in each event advancing to the 8 p.m. short-go.

The only men's team member to compete Friday, Russell Merchant, did not land in the top 10 in the calf roping, but scores and times from Thursday's show have held up well. Also to make a bid Saturday afternoon were team members Michael Gaffney in the bull riding, Kenny Taton in the saddle bronc and Clyde Himes in the calf roping and steer wrestling.

Ray Brown, a team member who competed Thursday, was winning second in the calf roping with an 11.1 and sixth in the steer wrestling with a 7.6. Denny McLanahan had his 72 in the bull riding changed to a 74 by the judges and was winning third in that event.

As for the women, Melanie Graf clocked an 11.6 Friday to take over seventh in the goat tying. She had a no-time in the breakaway. Krista Jeffries was sitting seventh in the barrel race with an 18.32. She had an 18.3 in the goat tying which is not placing.

WTC's best ride so far has come from Jim Blain Kenney, who is not a designated team member. Kenney took over first place in the saddle bronc Friday with a score of 76. Only designated team members (six men or three women) can contribute to team points but individuals may also earn points for themselves, and, of course, money.

Steve Roberts scored a 72 in the bronc riding and was sitting in fifth place going into Saturday's action.

The only other WTC non-designated members to land in the top 10 Friday were Kenney and Brian Davis, whose 9.4 second time in the team roping was seventh going into the Saturday afternoon show. All others either took no-times, no-scores, or finished out of the top 10, said Coach Doty.

Brenham's Peters ties mark for straight wins

BRENHAM, Texas (AP) -- Brenham's Jon Peters had a reason for not performing his post-game chore of raking the pitcher's mound at Firemen's Park Friday night.

Coach Earl Hathaway eased up on his disciplined ritual because Peters was too busy being mobbed by fans and media after he pitched his 50th consecutive victory, tying a national high school record for consecutive victories in a career.

"One more and then we can relax," Peters said. "We're just trying not to get too excited and play our game."

Peters' victory gave him an 8-0 record this season and tied him with Timmy Moore, McColl, S.C., who won 50 games from 1977-1980.

Peters will go for the record Friday night, again before the home crowd.

Peters started slowly but retired the final 15 batters in a row and struck out 12 batters, leading Brenham to a 3-1 victory over Katy Taylor.

He pitched the fourth two-hitter of his career; Peters also has

Tiger win streak ends at six; fall to Andrews Mustangs, 4-2

ANDREWS -- Snyder's Tigers couldn't find their bats when they needed them and fell to Andrews here Friday night, 4-2.

The loss snapped a six-game winning streak for the Tigers, who dropped out of a two-way tie with Fort Stockton for first place in District 4-4A; at least temporarily. Fort Stockton was to play Sweetwater on Saturday. The rest of the league was also playing Saturday with Big Spring at Pecos and Monahans at San Angelo Lake View.

Following weekend action, Snyder will be tied with the Big Spring-Pecos loser for second place, and could be locked in a three-way tie for first, should Fort Stockton lose to Sweetwater.

For Andrews, the win keeps the Mustangs in the playoff hunt. The 'Stangs are now 5-4 and just two games out of first place.

Friday's loss was a hard one to take because the Tigers still haven't shown an ability to push baserunners across in key situations. Snyder left 11 stranded, including two in the final inning. However, Coach Albert Lewis took the loss in stride.

Tommy Lane had hit into an error.

Mihecoby also swished Otto, Hamilton and Morton in order in the seventh after Odom and Lane had singled aboard.

Snyder pitchers did not have the strikeout rate of the Mustangs, but put together a good effort. The Tigers gave up just seven hits. Four of those came in Andrews' three-run, fourth inning. Lee Fletcher opened on the mound and held the hosts to one run until the fourth when Clay Gidney tagged him for a double. Next-up Teddy Jennings struck out but Armendariz singled and pinch-hitter Mike Hernandez walked to load the bases. That brought up the top of the order and David Emiliano greeted Fletcher with a two-run single that put Andrews ahead.

four no-hitters, including two this season.

Peters has given up five earned runs this season. Friday night's run was unearned.

Peters struck out eight of the last 11 batters he faced and looked stronger at the end.

Peters hasn't lost a game since his final game as a Little Leaguer in 1985 when Brenham lost to Taiwan in the semifinals of the Little League World Series.

Peters compiled records of 13-0 as a freshman, 15-0 as a sophomore and 14-0 as a junior, leading Brenham to three straight Class 4A state titles, unprecedented in Texas.

"Realistically, I was thinking that I would be happy to win two of the three ballgames and we got two of three," said Lewis. "When you have Fort Stockton, Pecos and Andrews all in a row, it's tough. All of these teams still have to go through similar situations so we're in pretty good shape still."

Snyder got its two runs in the second inning on errors by the Andrews infield. Mustang pitcher Jesse Armendariz gave up singles to Bert Otto and Bart Morton and walked Lee Hamilton to load the bases. Between a couple of strikeouts, Jason West hit a ball that second baseman Eric Hammack couldn't handle, and Otto scored. Later, short stop Ricky Morris fell down trying to corral a ball hit by Snyder's Randy Morris, and Hamilton scored.

The Mustangs also scored on a Brent Leffingwell single before Coach Lewis brought Kevin Dollins in to relieve Fletcher. Dollins went the final two and one-third innings and did not give up a hit.

Andrews' first run came in the third inning when Emiliano singled aboard, went to second on a balk and scored on a hit from Leffingwell.

Fletcher took the loss; Armendariz the win. Season records are now 14-7 for the Tigers and 12-7 for the Mustangs.

Next action for the Tigers will be Tuesday when they entertain Lake View at 7 p.m.

Judge's attorneys claim he should remain on bench

AUSTIN (AP) — The state district judge who told a newspaper he was lenient on a convicted murderer because the victims were homosexuals is fair and impartial and should remain on the bench, his attorneys said in court filings this week.

State District Judge Jack Hampton's remarks about the sexual orientation of the two murder victims made him the subject of intense criticism and two state investigations.

The 23-page brief was filed by the attorneys Wednesday with the Texas Supreme Court to contest a petition for Hampton's dismissal.

The brief says there is "no evidence that (Hampton) is anything but a fair and impartial trial judge."

The attorneys allege "the real complaint of those who seek to oust Judge Hampton is that he disapproves of the practice of homosexual sodomy" and claim a Dallas Times Herald reporter interviewed Hampton under false pretense.

The Supreme Court and the state Commission on Judicial Conduct have begun investigations of Hampton, 57, and the commission has received more than 2,000 complaints against him.

Last December, Hampton told the Times Herald he gave Richard Bednarski — convicted of killing two men in Oak Lawn — a 30-year prison sentence rather than a life term in part because he thought the victims were "queers cruising the streets for teenage boys."

The brief filed Wednesday argues that, under the Texas Constitution, a judge can be removed from office only if he is incompetent to discharge his duties, demonstrates partiality, has "habits and conduct such as to render him unfit to hold such office," negligently fails to perform his duties or fails "to execute in a reasonable measure the business in his courts."

The brief says Hampton's remarks to the newspaper "can only be considered in light of the actual language used in the Bednarski trial." It notes that attorneys and witnesses in the trial used the word "homosexuals" 22 times, "gays" 19 times, "queers" nine times and "faggots" once.

William Waybourn, president of the Dallas Gay Alliance, which has joined in a formal request for Hampton's ouster, said Friday he finds it "offensive that Hampton now says he was only using the language of the courtroom to demonstrate a point to a reporter."

The brief also notes that homosexual conduct remains illegal under the Texas Penal Code and cites case law backing a state's right to prohibit such conduct.

Assistant principal arrested

HOUSTON (AP) — A middle school assistant principal was charged with possession of crack and authorities say they spotted him buying the drug from juveniles on a street where drug-trafficking is common.

Billy Joe Jacobs, 45, dean of instruction at Hartman Middle School, was arrested Friday and jailed in the Harris County Jail.

Police said Jacobs was standing with three youths when Houston police Officer A.V. Duncan pulled up and watched an exchange of cash for what was later discovered to be three rocks of crack, a highly-addictive derivative of cocaine.

Duncan became suspicious when he saw Jacobs examining something in the hand of one of the youths, said police department spokesman Danny Turner.

The officer moved in on the group about after one of the teens saw him and fled, Turner said.

Turner said when Duncan grabbed Jacobs, the instructor threw the drugs in the street.

Jacobs waited in the patrol car while Duncan retrieved the drug, Turner said, and he told the officer that he was an assistant principal at the school.

Gayle Fallon, president of the Houston Federation of Teachers, said dean of instruction is another name for assistant principal. Jacobs' duties include teacher evaluation and overseeing of instructional material, Ms. Fallon said.

Ms. Fallon said Jacobs served as an instructional supervisor for the an area district office in 1981 and 1982.

"As an instructional supervisor we never had any problem with him," Ms. Fallon said. "He has a real good reputation with the district. It's just tragic. He's always seemed like a very nice person. It is a tragedy for him and the entire educational community."

NOTICE OF SETTLEMENT MODIFICATION

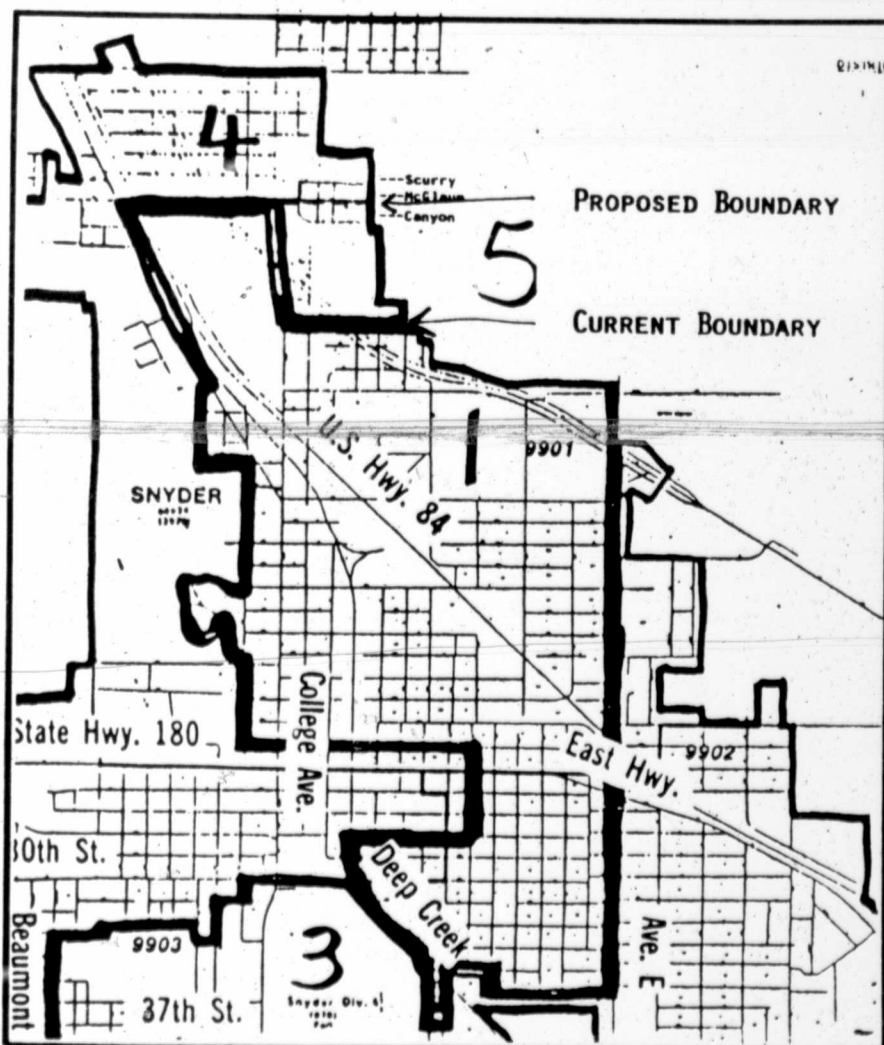

In November of 1986, two classes, the first defined as all Mexican-Americans eligible to presently or in the future vote in elections for trustees to the Snyder Independent School District, and the second defined as all blacks eligible to presently or in the future vote in the elections for trustees to the Snyder Independent School District, were certified by the court in Malone, et al v. Snyder Independent School District, et al. Civil Action No. CA-5-85-259, pending in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Lubbock Division. After lengthy negotiation, the parties to the above referenced lawsuit reached a settlement which was approved by the Court on October 15, 1987.

Under the agreement, a new method of electing trustees to the Snyder Independent School District was adopted. Four of the seven trustees were to be elected from single-member districts and the remaining three were to be elected at-large. Subsequently, and in accordance with the terms of the settlement agreement, a fifth single-member district was created to replace one of the at-large spots. By doing this, the trustee, Mr. Ygnacio Benitez, Jr., who was originally elected to single-member district one was placed in single-member district four. At his request, and believing that he should be allowed to represent those who elected him, the school board for the Snyder Independent School District voted to change the boundaries of the new single-member district one to include this trustee's residence as well as other surrounding property. No other changes were made.

Because the court was required to approve the original settlement agreement, it must also review proposed amendments to that agreement. A hearing will be held on the 24th day of May, 1989, in the United States District Courtroom for the Northern District of Texas, Lubbock Division, at 1:30 o'clock p.m. at which time the court will consider the amendment. Members of the above defined classes will be given opportunity to object to the change. Their objections must be written and filed with the Honorable Halbert O. Woodward, Judge, United States District Court, Room C-210, Federal Building, 1205 Texas Avenue, Lubbock, Texas 79401, Mr. Rolando L. Rios, Attorney for the Classes, 201 N. St. Mary's Street, Suite 521, San Antonio, Texas 78205, and Mr. Brian P. Quinn, Attorney for the Snyder Independent School District, 1722 Broadway, Lubbock, Texas 79401. All objections must be received by the court, Mr. Rios, and Mr. Quinn no later than the 17th day of May, 1989.

Since the court may wish to hold a hearing on any objection, anyone filing one must appear at the Federal Courthouse in Lubbock on May 24, 1989, at 1:30 p.m. and be prepared to present his contentions in open court. If he does not, the objection will be waived.

Right to die question raised

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A family's decision to have a feeding tube removed from a 90-year-old, semicomatose stroke victim has rekindled a debate over whether it is humane to withhold food and water from terminally ill patients.

Both doctors are supported by the American Medical Association, which says it is ethical to discontinue life-prolonging treatment for patients facing imminent death or in irreversible comas. Such treatment "includes medication and artificially and technologically supplied respiration, nutrition or hydration."

For many doctors, cutting off the flow of nutrients through a tube is equivalent to pulling the plug on a respirator. But opponents argue that withholding food oversteps the line between allowing nature to take its course and actively ending a life.

"There is a line in many people's eyes," said Fenella Rouse, legal services director at the Society For The Right To Die in New York City, which supports the right to cut off nutrition.

"I don't think there's a practical difference," she said. "I think there's an emotional difference."

Wisconsin is among at least 39 states and the District of Columbia that permit so-called "living wills," in which people can declare whether they would want to refuse life-sustaining medical treatment if they became terminally ill, according to the society.

But Wisconsin is one of a handful of states with laws that specifically prohibit cutting off food from patients.

"Do we want to go around starving and dehydrating people to death?" said Susan Armacost, legislative director for Wisconsin Right to Life. The group has fought proposals to broaden the living will law to include nutrition and hydration, successfully defeating one effort last year.

Norman Fost, director of the medical ethics program at the University of Wisconsin Medical School in Madison, said it is misleading to say patients starve to death. He says comatose patients cannot experience hunger or thirst.

"Of course it's always hard to withdraw treatment," he said. "It goes against natural medical impulses. But death is often in the interest of the patient."

"People should have the right to control medical care," concurs Arthur Caplan, director of the Center for Biomedical Ethics at

Subcommittee okays $3 billion, 6 year plan for school funding

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate subcommittee Friday approved a public school financing plan calling for $3 billion over six years that the author said would "put us on the right track" toward equal funding between rich and poor schools.

The proposal by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, requires $500 million from the 1989 Legislature and would force 20 school districts to raise taxes to qualify for more state money.

The scheme also would mandate the State Board of Education to establish a funding formula taking into account factors affecting poor school districts, Parker said.

"This bill makes some serious, serious policy changes that I believe will put us on the right track," Parker told the Senate Subcommittee on Public Finance.

The measure now will go to the Senate Education Committee, of which Parker is chairman. If that panel approves the plan, it will be considered by the full Senate.

"It does not distribute any money for facilities, but it commits the state, statutorily, to begin funding" a more equitable system, Parker said.

The plan follows a court ruling two years ago that declared the state's school finance system unconstitutional. An appeals court sided with the state, however, and the issue is pending before the Texas Supreme Court.

"This bill will lead us to 95 percent equity in funding" by 1995, Parker said.

Under the proposal, lawmakers this session will have to find $500 million in "new money" for funding the next two years, followed by $750 million during the 1991 session, and $600 million in 1993, Parker said.

He said the total over three legislative sessions would be about $3 billion.

"Which is not a shocking amount. It is a very conservative amount if we're to keep pace with education competition worldwide, and achieve some measure of equity," Parker said.

The House Appropriations Committee has set aside $500 million for public schools in 1990-91. The Senate Finance Committee has approved spending $400 million.

"I'm taking a wild guess that the comptroller, with $24-barrel oil is going to be able to find us at least, another $100 million," Parker told the committee.

"We will serve the state well, we can serve the issue of equity well to do this," he said.

Subcommittee members Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, and Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, said the increases provided under Parker's plan were still much too low.

"We've got to take what we can get," Uribe said.

Two years ago many Snyder Citizens turned out in support of me. Again I request your support on May 6 as I am seeking re-election for the Snyder City Council at-large position.

Who report drug suspects...

New bill would give legal immunity to Texas teachers

AUSTIN (AP) — Public school employees would be required to report students suspected of using drugs or alcohol at school and they would be protected from lawsuits that might result from their action under a bill passed Friday by the Texas Senate.

In other business, the Senate passed bills aimed at tightening regulation of Medicare supplement insurance policies, and requiring that prospective adoptive parents have access to the full medical histories of children they are considering for adoption.

The drug-suspect bill by Sen. Gene Green, D-Houston, drew heated criticism from several senators who said some teachers may abuse their authority knowing they could not be sued.

Sen. Steve Carriker, D-Roby, said a teacher may suspect a student uses drugs because the student likes rock 'n' roll music and has a spiked hairdo. "Students have a right to not be maliciously persecuted," he said.

The bill was initially approved 21-7, but Green allowed the measure to be amended by Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, so that a teacher must "reasonably" suspect a student before reporting to a school administrator.

The bill won final approval on a 28-0 vote and was sent to the House.

The Senate also approved, on a 26-0 vote, a bill that would require the State Board of Insurance to establish guidelines for standard Medicare supplement policies.

Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, said some insurance agents are preying on the fears of elderly citizens and selling them so-called Medigap policies that are either fraudulent or unnecessary. He said an elderly woman in his district was sold in one year 14 policies at a cost of $14,000.

The bill also increases monitoring by the Insurance Board of Medigap policies.

A bill by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, would allow prospective adoptive parents to examine all medical and historical records on the child they are considering adopting. The bill was sent to the House on a 28-0 vote.

Currently, the adoptive parents are allowed to see a summary of the medical history. Brooks said many adoptive parents have been denied access to important medical information that could help with the professional treatment of their children.

Under the bill, the records would continue to be edited to protect the identity of the birth parents.

The Senate also approved bills that would:

- Require railroad companies that transport hazardous materials in or through Texas to file their federal reports with the Texas Railroad Commission, which would compile and disseminate the data to local emergency management agen-

- Mandate insurance companies include chemical dependency coverage under group health insurance policies.

- Prohibit discrimination by persons who contract with the state.

- Require automobile rental companies to advertise rental rates that reflect the amount to be charged, except taxes, extra mileage and charges for certain optional features.

Work comp law response noted held hearings all last week.

Hicks noted Carriker again expressed this concern during their meeting. A release from Carriker's office indicated also that the senate had heard testimony that House Bill 1 would not serve to lower existing workman's comp insurance premiums.

The Texas Trial Lawyers Association has been lobbying against the bill, and critics have said the lawyer-laden Senate is a poor place to achieve reform.

Hicks' group included Jim Whitney of Energy Electric, Ken Holt of Everybody's Thriftway and Lawrence IGA supermarket chain owner Jere Lawrence of Sweetwater.

House Bill 1 would eliminate the trial de novo system, which allows lawyers to take workman's compensation disputes to a jury trial in a state district court where the findings and evidence from Industrial Accident Board proceedings are inadmissible.

Businessmen have been motivated to press for reform primarily, they say, because workman's compensation insurance rates have risen 149 percent since 1985.

"From the reception we got, I don't feel like we're going to get any support out of the senator," Hicks said. "I hope I'm wrong."

During that incident, clerk Mary Ann Harris, 44, received stab wounds to the chest and upper right arm as she struggled with a man who fled the store with some $200 in cash.

She was subsequently hospitalized for several days, initially listed in serious condition.

A customer who witnessed the incident was also injured slightly during the struggle.

The incident occurred around 3:12 p.m. and Solis was arrested at the Travel In Motel across the street from the convenience store at 5:42 p.m. the same day as he returned to his room there. Police say he was staying at the motel with several other individuals.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

As a child, Dorothy Giles mourned the loss of a China doll given to her by her aunt and broken by her brothers.

As a mother, she provided her growing daughters with plenty of dolls to play with. And when she no longer had small children left at home, she turned her attention to making crochet dolls.

Now, she has a wide assortment of her creations residing in the homes of several Snyder residents.

Mrs. Giles said she loves to make dolls because she enjoys seeing the expression on the face of a child who gets one of her creations.

Her work includes all shapes, sizes and colors of dolls. She orders the different appendages like heads, hands and feet from a hobby shop in Abilene, but the body she crochets in Love Knit because it "has more body and is stronger and firmer."

Her various dolls at one time or another bore the heads of Strawberry Shortcakes, Cabbage Patch dolls or clowns. Most of her creations have plastic arms and legs, except for the clown dolls which were fashioned with a braided yarn body.

Others have their body stuffed with polyfill. Waterproof glue is used to secure the head and hands in place. She crochets clothes for all her dolls and in many cases the clothes also serve as the body of the doll.

The original design she started with years ago was intended to be either a clown or a Santa Claus, Mrs. Giles said.

"I let my imagination 'run wild' when I am envisioning a doll in my head and before I get finished with it I'm already thinking about the next one I will make."

Hobo clowns probably rank near the top of Mrs. Giles' favorite doll list, but since the heads are now hard to get she is not sure when or if she will be able to make another one.

"I especially like the clown dolls because I can do more with them," she explained. "I can use more colors and designs."

Mrs. Giles' husband, Billie, often lends a helping hand. For the clown dolls, he made a cone shape out of screen wire for the foundation of the dunce cap.

The head of the clown doll is a four-inch styrofoam ball. The face was glued onto the ball later. Yarn was braided to form the clown's body. For the clown's hair, she tied yarn on its head, one piece at a time. Pom poms were tied to the head and yarn hair to cover up the screen wire.

Mrs. Giles said that big dolls can be made in about a day, involving approximately 10 hours of actual work. The doll which takes the longest is the Strawberry Shortcake. She admits that her dolls would probably take less time if she could work on them without interruptions.

Once a daughter sent her the heads and hands for a doll which took her about a week to make.

She is so dedicated to doll making, that on those occasional nights when she can't sleep, she gets up and begins working on a doll.

Mrs. Giles' Miss Piggy dolls follows a somewhat different pattern. In 1982, she made one with long curls which won a first ribbon prize at the Scurry County Fair.

For a newborn baby doll she especially liked, Mrs. Giles bought a new pair of baby shoes for it. Her granddaughters have been the recipient of her dolls lately and even her grandsons have been given clown dolls.

She has also made a giant duck which can serve as a child's chair or toy, she said. The first she made was 4 ft. in length, 2 ft. thick and took 9-12 bags of polyfill to fill it. She also used rug yarn.

Several years ago, after Mrs. Giles' children were grown and on their own, she found herself with a lot of time on her hands. She got a pattern and started making dolls in 1977 and has been making them ever since.

She enjoys crocheting and making dolls and attributes her success to God whom she says gave her the talent.

Mrs. Giles has crocheted since she was 18 years old, learning by reading a book of instruction and practice. Every thing she made she gave away, including bedspreads, and afghans, to her children. The Giles family moved to Snyder in December of 1968.

DOLL MAKER—Dorothy Giles is pictured with just a few of the dolls she has made since first learning the art in the late 1970s. She orders the face and hands from a hobby shop in Abilene and often uses the clothes she crochets for her creations as their body. Other times the body of a doll may be made from braided yarn. (SDN Staff Photo)

STRESS AND ITS EFFECTS

Stress is a common event of everyday life and is related to the pressures everyone faces from day to day. No one is free from stress.

Babies as young as eight months of age can detect stress in their mothers and show signs of depression as a result. Only in death does one have complete freedom from stress.

Excessive stress stems from meeting the demands of family, maintaining a household or work. Sudden expenses, unemployment, sickness and death can also produce unexpected pressures.

However, some pressure serves as motivation to get things done. Stress is like medication: the right dose is good for you, but too much can be a poison.

Like poison, stress also affects the health. The body may signal the mind that stress levels are too high. The signals should be listened to before serious conditions such as emphysema, ulcers, colitis or a heart attack develop.

Some of these health signals include:

- quicker heart beat.
- increase in hormones produced by the adrenal glands.

- increased circulation.
- increased lung activity.
- high blood pressure.
- full energy as a result of glucose in the muscles and brain.
- improved muscle function.
- acceleration in blood clotting mechanisms.
- improved hearing and eyesight.
- cold hands and feet.
- suspension of digestive processes resulting in indigestion.

Everyone reacts to stress differently, so there are different ways of managing stress. Breathing deeply to improve oxygen intake, exercising, or taking an imaginary 10-minute mind vacation to a peaceful place are all helpful methods of relieving stress. Talking to someone about the problem can also help.

Abuse of alcohol or drugs can worsen stress. In the long run, you have to get over both the stress and the side effects.

Since stress cannot be avoided, there are things a person can do to minimize the effects of it. Eating right; getting enough sleep; allowing time for relaxation and organizing personal life, home, or work area can all be helpful. Cultivation and use of faith and values also provide a source of support.

PLANS REVEALED — Mr. and Mrs. David C. Hayes announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their son, Van Lee, to Kristy Denise Jasek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin D. Jasek of Arlington. A 3 p.m. wedding is set July 15 at the First United Methodist Church of Big Spring. (Private Photo)

Piano Guild sets auditions

National Piano Guild Auditions will be held Monday through Saturday in the First Baptist Church Parlor with Louise Gunderson Nystel of Lubbock as adjudicator.

Teachers with students to be presented during the auditions include Lynn Bethel, Judy Neill, Barbara Tune, Barbara Mott, Paula Howard, and Betty Morris of Midland. Some 125 area students are scheduled for the event, coming from Abilene, Ira, Jayton, Rotan, Roby, Colorado City, Fluvanna, and Midland.

Registered as candidates for membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians, the students will strive for pledges and local, district, state, national and international honors. Sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers, Teacher Division of the American College of Musicians, honors will be based on the number of standard classic, romantic and modern pieces chosen from the Masters of piano-forte literature which the student can creditably perform in the presence of a non-local examiner of note.

Nystel holds her bachelors and masters of music degrees from Texas Tech University with honors. She is a member of Lubbock Music Teachers Association (certified), Texas Music Teachers Association (certified), Music Teachers National Association (certified), National Guild of Piano Teachers, Lubbock Music Club, an affiliate of N.F.M.C., Lubbock Chapter of American Guild of Organists, and Mu Phi Epsilon Alumni, charter member.

Jazz concert set

A Jazz Concert featuring Bethel Studio of Music students and the Snyder Junior High School stage band will be held at Martha Ann Woman's Club in two sessions Sunday afternoon.

The first performance will be at 2 p.m. with another concert at 3:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

MAY WEDDING — Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Edmonds of Omaha, Neb., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Christine Grace of Richardson, to Thomas H. Social isolation affects elderly COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Friendship and social contacts contribute to good health among the elderly according to a Texas A&M sociologist.

"A number of the elderly end up in nursing homes, and their social network contains very few people," says Dr. William McIntosh, who studies the influence of social support systems on elderly diet.

People with high-quality social relationships take better care of themselves, he says, adding that those who are isolated tend to care less about what they eat.

"These relationships affect the quality of diet, and therefore affect nutritional health," McIntosh says. "We need to remind people that their elderly friends and relatives shouldn't be isolated."

The study points to the merits of such community food programs as Meals on Wheels and Congregate Meals.

Quit smoking: don't fear weight gain

ORADELL, N.J. (AP) — Kicking the smoking habit shouldn't be delayed by fear of weight gain. The metabolic rate may slow down when a person stops smoking, says RN Magazine, but ex-smokers can expect to lose extra pounds by expending more energy through exercise and cutting back calories. To cope with increased appetite or nervous tension that may accompany nicotine withdrawal, healthy snacks such as vegetable salads, fresh fruit and plain popcorn are recommended. Nicotine gum may be used but see a doctor first.

A sure-fire play is overlooked

By James Jacoby

When your hand is all aces and kings, it's hard to decline an invitation to slam. South bid six no-trump and now had to navigate the play. From West's point of view, there was no automatic lead. He tried a low spade rather than leading away from any of his queens. If declarer had reasoned that West would be reluctant to lead away from a queen, he would have played low from dummy. That would have given declarer one more trick right away, but he put up the jack from dummy. He took East's queen with his ace and played the king of diamonds and a small diamond. It was good news when the queen of diamonds appeared. He then played three more diamonds, throwing two hearts from his hand as West shed a spade, a club and a heart. He then played a club back to his jack. West won the queen and returned a club. At the finish declarer had to give up a trick to West's 10 of spades. Did anything go wrong?

After the second diamond, when declarer has won West's queen with dummy's ace, there is a sure play for the contract, assuming that West is not false-carding. Declarer should not play more diamonds. Instead let him play ace of hearts and another heart. When East follows low, South also plays low. West can now win the queen of hearts, but his next play must present declarer with the extra trick he needs to make the slam contract.

Clean, repair clothes to be stored

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — When it is time to put away winter garments that won't make it through spring, be sure you wash or dry-clean everything first.

The International Fabricare Institute says some stains that are invisible now may darken with age. Also, dirt and food stains attract insects.

Make all necessary repairs — sagging hems, missing buttons, split seams. You know the offenders now, but they may sneak past you when you pull out your wardrobe next fall.

Store all items in a cool, well-ventilated area, away from natural and artificial light. Try to avoid hot attics, damp basements and garages. Woolens should be stored in cedar chests or other airtight containers such as canvas bags and cardboard boxes.

Pack airtight containers with mothballs or cedar chips or blocks. Try to keep mothballs from making direct contact with the fabric.

If you have space to hang out-of-season clothes in a closet, drape an old bed sheet over the rod to protect them from dust and light. Do not store in plastic. It encourages moisture which can create mildew.

To decrease wrinkles in sweaters, fold them and wrap in white tissue paper before storing. If you hang your sweaters, fold them over the cross bar to avoid shoulder stretches.

Down, like other clothing, should be cleaned before storing. It should be stored loosely to allow for air circulation.

A fur should be stored on a well-padded hanger in a cool, dark place, ideally with a professional fur-storage company.

If you do not have proper storage space, ask your dry cleaner about box storage.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD DODDS

Duke, Dodds say vows

Peggy Louise Duke became the bride of Richard Dodds in a 2 p.m. ceremony March 11 in the home of Shannon Mhoon, daughter of the bride. The Rev. Don Kleindel of The Nazarene Church officiated the double-ring vows.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Phipps.

Vows were exchanged before an arrangement of greenery and ivy.

Presented to the groom by Jared Dodds, his son, the bride chose a waltz-length beige gown of lace and silk designed by Patra. The bodice featured a dropped torso and complete lace overlay finished with sheer, lace sleeves.

The open back was accented by tiny, pearl buttons. The three-tiered full skirt fastened at a border of embroidery and featured a split front which draped at each step. An orchid corsage embellished with beige lace and tulle and entwined with off-white silk loops was a gift from the groom. A portrait hat to match the dress completed the bridal attire.

The bride wore a pink and beige lace garter for good luck, and carried a cluster of silk gladioli flowerettes surrounded by off-white sweetheart roses and English ivy. Off-white tulle and ribbon loops were accented by streamers of off-white, beige, and brown silk ribbons.

Following tradition, for something old the bride wore a silver and turquoise bracelet belonging to her daughter, Shannon, and her wedding gown was new. Gold earrings were borrowed from her sister, Bennie Goines of Odessa. A blue bandana belonging to Richard Mhoon, the bride's son-in-law, was tucked into her garter.

Matron of honor was Elaina Duke, daughter of the bride. Bridesmaids were Penni Green, the bride's niece; Shari Wolf and Shannon Mhoon, daughters of the bride.

Raymond Phipps, father of the bride, was best man. James Wolf, grandson of the bride, ushered guests. Wayne Duke, the bride's son, registered guests.

The groom wore a robin blue suit with white shirt. A rust tie completed his attire.

The reception table was covered in off-white lace. A three-tiered bridal cake was completed with appointments of pink and white with crystal punch bowl.

The white chiffon cake was frosted in smooth, vanilla creme accented with a pink ruffle and shell design. Separated by five-inch Grecian columns, each tier was decorated with cascading pink roses entwined with green leaves. Rosebuds and sweetpeas in pink, beige and off-white accented the frosting roses.

The cake was topped by a miniature bride and groom in bone china accented by a column trimmed in lace and flowers. The cake was created by Reta Graham of Snyder.

Hostesses at the reception were Shari Wolf, Shannon Mhoon, and Elaina Duke, the bride's daughters. Bunni Welsh helped prepare the table.

The couple makes their home in Snyder.

Youngsters write before they read

PHOENIX (AP) — "One day I went to the porck weth mi dady and we sow a brd and we went to the zoo weth mi momy and mi dady and sow a moncke and a zebra and a rabbit and a snak and a turtl the end."

Thus wrote a first-grader in her second month of Beverly Kerner's class at Lowell Elementary School in inner-city Phoenix. The composition was good enough to be displayed on a bulletin board, illustrated with the author's crayon drawings, and used as an example by the teacher.

Although technically imperfect, even the most discriminating reader gets the gist of the story: The author went to the park with her dad and later to the zoo with her parents, and wrote about the animals she saw.

That a 6-year-old who has barely learned to read could type her story on a computer keyboard, using a range of words not found in traditional first-grade spelling books, is an accomplishment that has educators singing praises for a writing program adopted by the district.

The "Writing to Read" program is being used in several school districts statewide. It focuses on kindergarten children and first-graders and encourages them to begin writing even before they read.

The premise is that young children come to school with broad vocabularies and abundant ideas, and they should be encouraged to write those ideas even though they don't know grammar, syntax and spelling.

The program, created by International Business Machines Corp., combines computers with pencil-and-paper writing lessons, listening programs and play exercises to teach children how to write any idea they want to express.

"The way they're being taught to write is to get out a whole idea," says Debra Gomez, principal of Lowell Elementary. "The first focus is on the complete thought."

The mechanics of writing — spelling, grammar, punctuation and capitalization — also are taught, because children must have a solid grounding in basic skills, Gomez says. But those skills are secondary in the writing lab, reinforced instead in the regular classroom.

"What we're finding is minority students, when they get to college, can't write," Gomez says. "It's not so much the mechanics, but how you put the idea together."

So teachers like Beverly Kerner and Mary Griffin coax ideas out of their pupils during sessions at the "writing table" and have them develop the ideas in their own words. They then follow up with lessons that tackle troublesome words like "said" and "night" that defy grammar rules.

Words that can be sounded out evolve into pupils' writing in a distinct pattern, says Griffin, who teaches a group of children who lack some essential kindergarten skills and need special help to catch up with their peers.

"When the glimmerings begin, they write the first sound," Griffin says. "And when they understand a little more, they put down the final letter."

The vowels, those multiple-sound letters often found in the middle of a word, are the last letters to materialize, she adds.

Dee Diehl, a media resource specialist for the Phoenix Elementary district, says the approach encourages pupils to tap vocabulary words that they understand but might not know how to spell. Most children go to school with vocabularies of almost 4,000 words, while traditional reading-and-spelling programs have limited children to fewer than 500 words a year, she says.

"It's the most wonderful thing when they use the 'wicked king' instead of the 'bad king,'" she says.

Backers of the Writing to Read program contend that children can read anything they write, and such an approach accelerates the rate at which pupils learn to read.

Griffin agrees. In October, she says, her pupils couldn't read. By early December, they were able not only to read back their own works but to pick up on their classmates' stories and plow into the "easy to read" classification of books.

"I have one girl who is reading at a beginning first-grade level," Griffin says.

The writing has given the pupils confidence that they can sound out words, and it reinforces the correlation between letters and certain sounds, she says.

"My goal is to see my students think of themselves as writers, as authors," she says.

"Many of them do. They'll come to the table and say, 'When I was in bed last night, I decided to write about this.' And you know they've been thinking about it beforehand."

Exercisers need iron — NEW YORK (AP) — The more you exercise, the more you need iron.

The Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau says endurance exercisers run out of iron faster, losing the important nutrient through perspiration. Iron deficiency will reduce aerobic performance and taking an iron supplement may help.

Layered cake holds a heart-shaped surprise

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

"Sensational!" we said when we saw this strawberries-and-cream dessert. The sample tasted even better than it looked. The top and bottom layers are tender cake. As you serve, each wedge reveals a sweet heart of strawberries and cream.

STRAWBERRY SILHOUETTE CAKE

3 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup sifted cake flour or sifted all-purpose flour
3 egg whites
6 cups whole strawberries
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
2½ cups whipping cream
3 tablespoons powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Beat egg yolks for 1 minute. Gradually add ½ cup of the sugar. Beat 5 minutes or until thick. Add peel and juice. Beat until combined. Gradually add flour, beating until combined. Beat egg whites until stiff peaks form. Fold one-fourth of the beaten whites into yolk mixture. Gently fold yolk mixture into remaining whites just until combined. Spread evenly in an ungreased 9-in. springform pan. Bake in 350-degree F oven 20 to 25 minutes or until top springs back when lightly touched. Invert to cool.

Reserve 4 berries for garnish. Crush 1¼ cups of the remaining berries. Stir in remaining sugar. Set aside. Combine gelatin and cold water. Let stand 5 minutes. Cook and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in crushed berries. Remove from heat. Cool.

Meanwhile, cut around sides of pan to loosen cake. Remove pan sides. Cut between bottom of cake and pan. Remove pan bottom. Cut cake in half horizontally. Wash and reassemble pan. Beat 1 cup of the whipping cream until stiff peaks form. Fold into cooled gelatin mixture. Chill until mixture mounds when spooned.

Place bottom cake layer in pan, cut side up. Arrange remaining berries, pointed ends up, evenly on top. Spread gelatin mixture evenly over berries. Top with second cake layer, cut side down. Cover. Chill several hours or until gelatin mixture is firm. Cut around sides of cake to loosen. Remove pan sides and bottom. Place on serving plate. Beat remaining whipping cream, powdered sugar and vanilla until stiff peaks form. Frost top and sides. Garnish with reserved berries. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

The new products are: Wheats, a heart-shaped snack cracker made with whole-wheat flour; Krispy Whole Wheat crackers, a new taste in saltines; Shuffles, a bite-sized cracker made with 100 percent skim milk cheese; Sport Snacks, a bite-sized cracker in the shape of a football, baseball and basketball; O.T. Bears, oatmeal cookies in fun bear shapes; and Chip-O-Lotomus, a new chocolate chip cookie. Sunshine products do not con-

The Yellow River watershed, cradle of Chinese civilization, has supported an agricultural society for more than 7,000 years, longer perhaps than any other place on Earth, says National Geographic.

Hunts came within weeks of cornering the silver market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The multimillionaire Hunt brothers of Texas came within weeks of cornering the world silver market, according to a previously secret government document, but the Hunts say they were only following a family tradition of thinking — and buying — big.

Filings in the government's price-fixing case against Nelson Bunker and William Herbert Hunt show that government investigators believe they were close to establishing a world silver monopoly in 1980.

The brothers, in their response, say the silver shopping spree was nothing out of the ordinary for the sons of legendary Texas oilman H.L. Hunt.

The government and defense documents, which had been under court seal, were obtained by The Associated Press this week through a Freedom of Information Act request.

"H.L. Hunt was a wildcatter," the brothers' lawyers say in their response. "He raised his sons with a wildcatter's philosophy, which involved risk-taking and rapid decision making. When the Hunts enter a field of investment they typically do so on a relatively large scale in light of their substantial wealth."

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission contends that the brothers actually were engaged in a price-fixing scheme.

In a previously sealed submission by the CFTC to an administrative law judge, the agency contends that had the scheme not collapsed, "by the end of May 1980, they could have owned virtually the entire available world supply of deliverable .999 silver bullion."

Attorneys for the Hunts counter that their silver investments stemmed simply from their preference for investing in hard assets as a hedge against inflation and monetary uncertainty.

And they said such large purchases were in keeping with the brothers' approach to business.

At the time of the 1987 filing,

Hunt attorneys said, Bunker owned a forest in Florida, the largest tract of land in northern Australia, a quarter of million square feet of building property in downtown Anchorage and the biggest piece of waterfront property in San Diego. He was one of the largest cattle raisers in the country, and owned the largest Arab coin collection in the world.

Their oil holdings "of course, are very substantial," the lawyers said, and include interests in "many of the richest fields discovered to date."

Many documents in the case had been sealed from the public view since 1985 at the Hunts' request; the stack is now more than 5 feet tall. The filings in the quasi-judicial proceeding were released by the agency this week in response to the AP request.

The CFTC has accused the brothers, heirs to one of the world's greatest fortunes, of rigging the price of silver futures between fall 1979 and March 27, 1980. That day came to be known as "Silver Thursday" as prices crashed to $10 an ounce from a one-time high of more than $50 an ounce.

"The prices for silver bullion and futures during that period rose to their highest levels of the century and then fell even more quickly than they had risen. Only the (Hunts') silver-buying frenzy ... accounts for the magnitude of the price rise," said a CFTC document.

Explaining effects of drug Antabuse

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm attending AA, getting private counseling and take Antabuse. Could you please tell me about this drug?

DEAR READER: Antabuse (disulfiram), when taken regularly, produces an unpleasant sensitivity to alcohol; when alcohol is ingested, the patient usually experiences flushing, throbbing headache, difficulty breathing, vomiting, thirst, chest pain, uneasiness, weakness and confusion. Patients who choose to take Antabuse quickly learn that drinking alcohol-containing beverages isn't worth the reaction.

There are several contraindications to the medicine, including heart disease, diabetes, epilepsy, kidney disease and cirrhosis. Because even tiny quantities of alcohol — such as contained in a usual dose of cough syrup, or in sauces — can provoke a reaction, patients must be cautioned to avoid alcohol in ANY form.

The drug is available only by prescription and should be used under medical supervision. Side effects include rash, drowsiness, mental disturbances and impotence.

Nevertheless, Antabuse is a valuable adjunct to counseling or a 12-step program for alcoholics. The efficacy of the drug lasts up to two weeks once it is discontinued. The major value of Antabuse is in patients who want to remain in a state of enforced sobriety so that counseling or AA can be used to best advantage. It is not a cure for alcoholism.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report

"Help II — Mental/Substance Abuse." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-33679. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What causes bowel impaction? How can I avoid it? I have a long history of constipation and laxative use.

DEAR READER: Impaction refers to a severe form of constipation in which a large amount of fecal material builds up in the lower colon. With time, this material becomes too firm and too large to pass through the anus and it must be digitally removed, meaning it has to be manually dug out so that pieces of it can be passed.

This is the only treatment for impaction, because the width of the anus cannot accommodate the mass of feces.

Prevention is the best approach. Constipation has to be controlled — through the use of bran, laxatives and stool softeners — before impaction develops.

Since the aging colon does not empty readily, older patients are at increased risk for impaction; also, certain drugs — such as heart medicines — will reduce peristalsis, leading to constipation.

If you are chronically constipated, talk with your doctor, rather than relying on over-the-counter preparations. In many instances, constipation is due to treatable conditions. You will want to do all you can to avoid an impaction.

DEAR READERS: Time to update you on some recent topics that I mentioned in my column.

THE CHILD WHO TURNED TO STONE — I couldn't find an explanation for a questioner who had heard of a child in India who turned to stone. A few readers suggested that the condition could be related to scleroderma, a disease of unknown cause in which extensive scar tissue — followed by calcium deposits — forms in various body organs. This phenomenon (in addition to the taut and shiny skin seen with scleroderma) could, I suppose, cause an individual to APPEAR to turn to stone. This is a guess, however.

CAFFEINE ADDICTION — I stated that caffeine is not particularly addicting. A few doctors pointed out to me that, in some people who drink large quantities of caffeine-containing beverages, this addiction can be quite severe and difficult to give up. I accept this. People who regularly consume more than 500 milligrams of caffeine a day may have withdrawal symptoms when they stop.

Symptoms include headache, restlessness, irritability, lack of energy and craving. The following table lists the caffeine content of selected beverages.

(See chart at the end of this column.)

MEITEI-SHO — A questioner inquired about this Japanese disease from which people become drunk without drinking alcohol. I could find no reference to such an unusual affliction. However, an alert reader forwarded to me a Time magazine article from 1959 that described a man with Candida yeast infection of the intestinal tract. When the man ate starches, the yeast appeared to ferment the carbohydrate into alcohol, making him a non-drinking drunk. To my knowledge, this is the only historical example of the syndrome.

BLEPHARITIS — I goofed on this, as several ophthalmologists wrote, by describing one form (infectious) and ignoring the more common type (non-specific).

Blepharitis refers to a chronic irritation of the eyelid and is ordinarily treated by lid hygiene: scrubs with a cotton swab moistened with baby shampoo, followed by the use of an antibiotic cream and artificial tears (an emollient). I'm sorry I may have misled some readers. Thanks to the ophthalmologists who wrote to clarify the issue.

CAT B DISEASE. A reader inquired whether this is an infectious disease spread by cats. I answered in the negative because I could find no medical reference to Cat B disease in humans — or cats.

Thanks to a microbiologist in Louisiana, the mystery has been solved. Branhamella Catarrhalis is a bacterium that causes disease — such as ear infections, bronchitis, sinusitis and other infections — in humans. It is abbreviated to "B Cat" by microbiologists.

B. Catarrhalis is resistant to many commonly used antibiotics. It has nothing to do with cats. So, to readers who were as confused as I, it's "B Cat," not Cat B disease, and it's not feline.

Rat hair, insect parts said to be okay in moderation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Insect parts, rodent hairs and maggots don't sound appetizing, but when tossed with a salad, churned up in tomato sauce or baked in bread they're not bad at all, the government says.

The Food and Drug Administration says that though vermin and their residues are "aesthetically unpleasing," within prescribed limits they are "harmless, natural and unavoidable" in food.

Under FDA standards, for example, 3.5 ounces of tomato sauce can have up to 30 fly eggs, 11 ounces of wheat flour can have up to 450 insect fragments and a half pound of canned or frozen spinach can have as many as 100 aphids, and a pound of cocoa beans can contain up to 10 milligrams of rodent feces.

These limits are in the FDA's manual of "food defect action levels."

According to the manual, the levels "are set because it is not possible, and never has been possible, to grow in open fields, harvest and process crops that are totally free of natural defects."

The alternative — using more chemicals to control insects, rodents and other natural contaminants — "is not satisfactory because of the very real danger of exposing consumers to potential hazards from residues of these chemicals," the agency says.

In its manual, the FDA lists a range of products from apple butter to nutmeg, from popcorn to pizza sauce. For each, it also lists the level of allowed "defect" — including insects, maggots, rodent filth, fly eggs, mold, rot and mammalian excreta.

"During harvesting and processing, a great deal of this is removed, but there could be a few pieces of insects or insect bodies that get through," Paris Brickey, chief of the microanalytical branch at the FDA, said Thursday.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL

April 23, 1989

Keep the channels open in the year ahead so that people for whom you've done favors in the past will be able to find ways to reciprocate. Your biggest opportunities could come through people you've helped.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't let emotions overrule your financial judgment today. If your extravagant impulses are not held in check, there's a chance you may do something foolish with your budget. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your opinions might not be as popular with companions as you lead yourself to believe today. This could become evident if you try to force your views on your audience.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't put too high a value on the services or favors you render for others today. What looks like a big deal in your eyes might not appear that awesome to a recipient.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're likely to feel more comfortable socially today being involved with a small, cozy group rather than a large crowd. Keep this in mind if you have to make a choice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Individuals who try to impress you with their importance or material worth will turn you off today. Let them play their big-shot roles to a more appreciative audience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your focus on details could obliterate the big picture for you today. Stand back a few paces so that you will be able to take in the entire view in its proper perspective.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Others can't be expected to help you out of tight spots today, especially financial ones. Try to take care of things yourself or wait until another day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let a close companion whose judgment is questionable make important decisions for you today. This person's intentions will be good, but the conclusions could be faulty.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Make this a day of rest and try not to worry about things you can't take care of until the business week begins. You could waste a pleasant day fretting about maybes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guard against tendencies today to treat others in an indifferent fashion. If your behavior is thoughtless, you might make a bad impression on someone who likes you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to achieve desirable end results today, don't leave the final phase up to chance. You'll have to be as attentive at the close as you are at the opening.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's admirable to be optimistic, provided your assumptions are based upon a realistic premise. Today be sure your rose-colored outlook is anchored in practicality.

Your chart indicates you should be able to do well financially in the year ahead through creative projects, especially if you're associated with someone who is equally as imaginative and industrious as yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Being helpful to another today might not pay you the immediate dividends you're hoping for, but everything will be adjusted a little further down the line. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The right type of companion will help placate your restless urges today. Select a perky partner who shares similar interests and would also like to escape today's routine.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're likely to do your best work today if you're involved in some type of creative endeavor. Try to find things to do that are both useful and stimulate your imagination.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're a rather charismatic person to begin with and these enviable qualities will be accentuated today. Wherever you go you are not apt to be overlooked.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions that contribute to your domestic security are beginning to firm up more at this time. However, what's occurring may not be totally visible for a while.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to involve yourself today in activities you could find too restrictive either mentally or physically. You'll operate much more effectively as a free spirit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Important financial arrangements are likely to work out better for you today than they will tomorrow. See if you can schedule things accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Personal ambitions can be advanced today, provided you do not let peripheral developments slow you down. Don't let distractions cause you to take your eye off your targets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're likely to fare better today if you maintain a low profile and stay in the background a bit. Keep in touch with events, but don't attempt to lead them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You should function extremely well today where your group involvements are concerned. Something beneficial could result through people who are sincerely interested in your current affairs.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Two or more important objectives can be achieved today if you apply your efforts properly. See if you can figure out a way to make them dovetail.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Usually you're the one who comes up with the brightest and most novel suggestions, but today, if you'll listen closely to others, they might have ideas that you'll find useful.

Open records request due hearing soon

HOUSTON (AP) — A court hearing was set for next week to consider whether Houston School Superintendent Joan Raymond should be ordered to release the college transcripts of high-ranking school administrators.

State District Judge Don Downey set the April 28 hearing on the request from the Houston Chronicle. The action is the latest in a series of lawsuits and legal opinions since the newspaper sought access to the records last summer.

An assistant state attorney general, Jennifer Riggs, said Thursday the state will join the Chronicle in the lawsuit, labeling the school district one of the worst offenders for violating the Texas Open Records Act.

The request was made amid reports that as many as 25 high-ranking school administrators have advanced degrees from an unaccredited, mail order university in California.

Organs transplanted in 2 patients

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 36-year-old mother and a 49-year-old police dispatcher were the recipients of a rare domino transplant that took a 35-member team seven hours to perform.

A new heart and set of lungs were transplanted into Mary Newby of Anchorage, Alaska, and her healthy heart was transplanted into the chest of Roger Kelley of Leander during the operation at Humana Hospital-San Antonio.

The procedure was completed about 5 a.m. Thursday by a team led by Dr. Charles Moore.

It was the first time a domino transplant has been performed in South Texas and one of about a dozen nationwide, said hospital spokesman Ross McLerran.

Mrs. Newby, a mother of nine, suffers from an inherited form of emphysema that results in destruction of the lungs, which eventually causes damage of the heart, but her heart was still healthy, officials said.

Kelley had long-term coronary artery disease which weakened his heart muscle.

Officials said transplanting a heart and lungs is much less complicated than transplanting the lungs alone.

A heart-lungs donor became available Wednesday and the local team harvested the organs and flew back to San Antonio about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, McLerran said, declining to name the donor or city.

Moore and Dr. Charles Christian removed Mrs. Newby's organs and implanted the donor ones.

By Donny Brown

Whenever we consider organizing our life, we think of Trey Chamberlain and his three sock drawers. Trey, quite simply, had solved the problem. He had three drawers set aside for socks. Into one drawer, his wife was directed to place only brown socks; into a second, only dark blue socks; and, into a third, only black socks. When one color started showing signs of wear, he pitched the entire drawer. There was no decision-making involved as to which would stay and which would go. For the entire drawer, it was "go." When replacement was necessary, he purchased socks of the same color, the same brand and the same style. In this way, every brown sock, for example, was identical to every other brown sock in that particular drawer and of the same age. Regarding the amount of wear, the assumption was random chance would take care of that. To aggravate him, we once asked him why he didn't use six drawers, further dividing his socks of a certain color into both "left" and "right" categories. His reply was unprintable. In truth, any grief we offered him because of his sock collection was nothing more than thinly veiled jealousy. Here was a guy who had neatly side-stepped what is, for most of us, the first aggravation of the day. In the process, he avoided also one of the longest running arguments in most marriages, the almost rhetorical question, "What have you done with my socks?" We understand that doing laundry is a hated job and the fact that it falls almost exclusively to women is no doubt male hypocrisy at its worst. If it's any consolation, we would remind that menfolk are similarly charged with "loading the car" for all out-of-town trips; keeping the yard's grass level at an appropriate height; and being the designated member of the household to challenge anyone who (A.) climbs through a bedroom window after dark or (B.) decides to cut in front of the family at a long movie line. Such trade-offs must continue to weigh in women's favor because, as statistics show, as a gender they live longer. But, we digress. Regarding's Trey's three sock drawers, we've been stewing over his system for more than a decade and, from time to time, have even considered adopting his plan. In the end, however, good intentions are probably as far as we'll get and color-coded sock drawers will remain only an acknowledged good idea. We consider it a notion to be tossed onto the same scrap heap as other "expert" advice, such as: —Buy paper goods only in bulk. —Never buy a "new" new car since its greatest depreciation occurs the moment you drive it off the lot. —Never finance that same automobile for more than three years. If you can't pay for it in three years, you can't afford it. —Every December 26, take all of the Christmas money provided by relatives and apply it toward the principal balance on your house note to effectively lower your interest rate. Good advice, but... The more we think about it, having to appropriate two more drawers for socks, then training and coercing a second individual into following a new system, quite frankly, only makes us tired.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

On April 13 while packing the kids' school lunches, I glanced at the calendar and shouted, "Oh, no!" To which Kent replied, in the manner of all husbands when such things occur in the morning, "What?" I exclaimed that it was our anniversary, that in all of these 15 years I had never once forgotten, that I couldn't believe I had forgotten it. He soothed me, saying, "You've been very busy." That's when it occurred to me that he had forgotten, too. During the day we managed to snatch some time to buy cards for one another and promised to go out and celebrate "sometime." But that wasn't good enough for me. Oh no. I had to ask the question nine out of 10 husbands dread the most from their wives. You know the one. It goes something like, "Why do you love me?" Imagine the look on his face. "Why?" "Yes. Why. Why did you fall in love with me in the first place? Why did you marry me? I just want to know." "I don't know." "You don't know? You DON'T KNOW? The most important question of your life and YOU DON'T KNOW?" He could see he wasn't going to get out of it, so he thought a moment and finally said, "Because you're a nice person." "A nice person? A NICE PERSON? Do you realize how many NICE PERSONS there are in this world? You could have married any of them." "But I didn't. I married you." "Yeah, and I wanna know WHY." He sighed. The world-weary sigh of husbands when asked to get emotional. "Because you're pretty." "Pretty? PRETTY? Do you realize how many pretty girls there are in the world? Plenty. I know, because the older I get, the more I see. I want to know what made me special." I cuddled up to him the way wives do when they want something. He squirmed. "Because...you're smart." Sly move. It's not that feminists don't like to be told they are pretty, but they REALLY like being told they are smart. He figured he was covered. I could tell. "OK...let's get this straight. You married me because I was a nice, smart, pretty person." "That's right."

"You really go for the generic brand, don't you?" He grinned. "You always were a cheap date." It was hopeless. Romance, Aggie style. Then I got to wondering about what it takes for a man and a woman to "click" together for a lifetime. What makes it good? My in-laws have been married 50 years, but they regard it in much the same manner as someone who might have survived that same amount of time in a prison camp. It's not the same. Over time, a shared history builds momentum for a couple that carries them over rough spots in the road. It is that history that defines a marriage and pronounces it "bad" or "good." Some of the memories are so powerful they can stand alone; others must be strung together, like a lustrous strand of old pearls. Some are pivotal and serve to point your lives in a whole new direction. When my first child was born, the first contraction brought me to my knees and was followed in quick succession by searing pains three minutes apart, then two. The hospital staff fluttered around, certain it would all be over quickly. Fourteen hours of agony later, tortured by the knowledge that something was very, very wrong, the shock of "fetal stress" cut through my blur of exhaustion and pain. All hell broke loose. Kent — who had never once left my side — was shoved aside, acrid gas formed over my face, and the child was literally torn from my body, where he lay, his battered little body blue and, for all practical purposes, dead in the doctor's hands. When I came to, the first thing I saw was Kent standing nearby in green surgical garb, tears streaming down his face and soaking his mask. The first thing I heard was, at long blessed last, the indignant screams of our son. He's a sturdy and strong 11-year-old now, but that day doesn't seem so very long ago. No. It seems like yesterday. Yet...just last week, we were standing outside one raw, cold morning, and my tall husband positioned his body so that it would block the wind for me and I would be sheltered. That is what it's all about. In the long run, I don't guess it really matters "why."

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY April 16
Two seventh grade classes in Plainview—reading of the plight of the Jack Pouteau family in a nationally-distributed AP wire feature story—have joined the family's effort to stay in the U.S., it was reported Sunday. The classes, comprised of gifted and talented students at Plainview's Coronado Junior High, have written letters to Texas' two U.S. Senators and President George Bush in support of the family. In addition, the two classes have issued a challenge to other students across Texas to join the fight. The four-day construction period for a church sanctuary to serve the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses was detailed Sunday. In all, an estimated 500 workers were to be involved in the project at various times, led by area Jehovah's Witnesses who specialize in the group's tradition of building churches in two days. The extended period of four days was required since part of the work required the "gutting" of the existing Kingdom Hall to allow for its expansion and renovation. The building itself grew from 2,200 to 3,400 sq. ft.

MONDAY April 17
Longtime chief deputy county treasurer Rita Staton Monday morning was appointed to succeed the retiring Billy Wayne Thompson as county treasurer. Staton, 51, a Dunn native, has worked in the office for the past 11 years. She was appointed to fill out Thompson's unexpired term over nine other applicants. For the first time this summer, Western Texas College will participate in a federal program called "Mainstream" which will provide it some $84,000 in educational income while allowing 25 area high school age students to earn six hours of college credit, it was reported Monday. Funding for the program will be through the Job Training Partnership Act administered in this area through the West Central Texas Council of Governments in Abilene. Plans were apparently placed on hold Monday to convert a portion of the Scurry County Coliseum annex into office space for local offices of the Texas Department of Human Services. The proposed renovation of the front office area came in over budget and department representatives rejected all bids, saying they will seek other office space. The low bid of $78,000 by Waldrop Construction Co. of Lubbock was $28,000 over the department's budget, a representative of the architectural firm employed for the project, Hampton Associates of Sweetwater, told members of the county commissioners court.

TUESDAY April 18
Julie Roewe and Chawn Cummings were introduced as Miss WTC and Mr. WTC at the annual Western Texas College spring formal Tuesday night. The new Miss WTC is a sophomore physical therapy major from Haskell and Cummings is a sophomore psychology major from Richardson.

THURSDAY April 20
Snyder High School senior Michael Riggins has accepted a 10-month full scholarship to attend the Naval Academy Preparatory School which serves as a training ground for admission to the Coast Guard Academy, it was reported Thursday. Some 350 volunteers were honored Thursday night during the 10th annual Volunteer Recognition Banquet held at the Senior Citizens Center, including the top 15 volunteers as tabulated according to hours worked for the past year.

Look Back

By Lilith McArthur

FIVE YEARS AGO
The SHS Black and Gold Symphonic Band won the Sweepstakes Award in UIL Regional Concert and Sightreading competition. The musicians won superior ratings in both phases to claim the award. J.W. Everts, retiring City of Snyder water meter foreman, was honored with a reception following over 20 years with the department. Then mayor Rod Waller presented him with a gold watch. Kay Lyn Hammack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hammack, was a finalist in the West Texas National Teenager Pageant. Tigers won five first places in the District 2-4A Boy's Track and Field Meet with three qualifying for regional competition. Chad Peterson won first place medals in 100, 200 and long jump. Ricky Vaughn took first in the discus and Kyle Freeman won the shot put title. Mrs. Sam Davis Hays, "Fannie" to her friends, celebrated her 100th birthday with a reception hosted by her seven children. She also had 15 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren. Construction on the new Anthony's Department Store had begun with steel outside walls being erected. Outstanding male and female students at WTC were Billy Kelly of Roscoe and Jana Harris of Ozona.

10 YEARS AGO
Jo Beth Stephens and Angela Brumley were named outstanding Distributive Education students at an employer-employee banquet. Mike Morris caught a 15-pound catfish in a stock tank north of town. It was almost as long as his 4-year-old son was tall.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor, I would like to thank the wonderful people who attended the banquet held in my honor. The praise given to me was highly flattering, but now I wish to do the thanking. In 1980 I was living in Bedford and John Paxton contacted that I go to college. John suggested that I go to college. John contacted Bob Doty, and I came out and visited Snyder and WTC. I liked the college and looked upon going to college as a great opportunity to get a better education and possibly a trade on which I could fall back if I wasn't able to succeed in my quest to make it in professional rodeo. In essence, it was a second chance that very few people get the privilege to have. This was the beginning of what I will remember as probably the best two years ever spent. I will be eternally grateful to the people I came in contact with during this time, as you gave me a chance for an education to hone my skills in the rodeo arena. But most of all, you gave me the guidance and the wisdom to follow your examples to become a better human being. This is the greatest trait that the people of West Texas possess. Your honesty, integrity, and willingness to help one another and, in my case a foreigner, is remembered long after the classroom books have been closed or the last bronc has been bucked. To Jess and Jean and the Everett family, you took me in and gave me a job, a good meal, as well as parental advice, not to mention the love and support you gave then and have continued to give since. To Bob Doty, Sam Walker, Dr. Newbury, Red Jackson, Charlie Henderson, and many; many others who have supported me from the start, I tip my hat to you all. However, it is

Fugitive female impersonator arrested

BASTROP, Texas (AP) — A female impersonator who had been sought since he failed to show up for sentencing on a fraud charge in 1980 has been arrested and is in the Bastrop County Jail awaiting extradition to California, authorities say.

Michael, 61, was featured earlier this month on the NBC television show "Unsolved Mysteries" and tips generated by the April 5 show are being credited for the arrest.

Authorities said Michael was living as Katherine Elizabeth Johnson in Bastrop County for the past several months before he was arrested late Wednesday.

Michael was convicted in California on fraud charges connected with the promotion in the mid-1970s of an automobile he claimed could go 70 mph and get 70 miles per gallon, according to Robert Youngdahl, a deputy district attorney in Los Angeles.

As Geraldine Elizabeth Carmichael, he got people to invest in the non-existent car.

Youngdahl said the three-wheel car was marketed in California, Texas and to foreign investors. The sale of dealerships and car orders brought in an estimated $6 million, but a product was never delivered, he said.

Michael, then Carmichael, had combined a Ford Pinto car body with parts from a postal vehicle and duped investors into believing it could crash into a brick wall at 50 mph and bounce off, the prosecutor said.

"What it was was a piece of junk with a plastic skin," Youngdahl said.

"It was a new, modern miracle of a car," Youngdahl said. "The news media was duped. It was worse than a child's toy."

Michael, president of Twentieth Century Motorcar Corp., and seven of his sales personnel were convicted of 31 counts of grand theft, corporate security violations and other fraud charges in January 1977.

He was out on bail pending appeal when he did not show up for sentencing in December 1980.

The story is known as The Dale Case. Michael sold his car idea as The Dale, a name taken from an inventor who was working on a three-wheeled vehicle project.

Michael named the car the Dale. Ironically, he was arrested at a home in Bastrop County about 10 miles northwest of the community of Dale, where he lived.

"I think Carmichael had a little bit of humor and was living in the community of Dale on purpose," Youngdahl said.

Bill Hall, investigator with the California Department of Motor Vehicles, said hundreds of phone calls about the case were received after the NBC broadcast.

Youngdahl said callers from Austin talked about a person who looked like the female actor in the "Mysteries" segment and was running a flower-sales business here, Youngdahl said. Information about the flower sales was not in the NBC segment.

"Some of the callers from Austin were saying there was this woman buying flowers wholesale and then, through kids, selling them retail," Youngdahl said. "That set off a bell in everybody's head."

The prosecutor said Michael had done the same thing in the Los Angeles area while his case went through the appeals process.

Pickens takes on Japan, corporate business world

TOKYO (AP) — Corporate takeover artist T. Boone Pickens has raided Japan, leaving business leaders suspicious and wondering whether Americans like him want to buy their companies just as the Japanese have done in the United States.

However, the difficulties the Texas oilman has encountered with the subtleties and intricacies of Japanese business suggest Pickens himself is far from being a threat to Japan's leading companies.

Pickens has purchased shares worth about $1 billion in Koito Manufacturing Co., a major auto parts maker, surpassing Toyota Motor to become the largest shareholder. But despite owning 20.2 percent of Koito, its management politely turned down Pickens' request this week for a seat on the board of directors.

"It is necessary to build a trusting relationship first. In Japan, it is not possible to just say, 'I'm a major shareholder' and get a seat on the board right away," Koito director Tamotsu Aoyama told a news conference Thursday.

Pickens, in his first visit to Tokyo, challenged what analysts consider two central tenets of Japanese business culture: that a company belongs to its employees, not its shareholders; and that the Japanese market is for Japanese, not foreigners, to enjoy.

Pickens argued in a speech that protecting shareholders' rights by using corporate buyouts to oust incompetent management helped resuscitate the U.S. economy over the last nine years.

"What happened in the U.S. in the 1980s will find its way to the Japanese business community in the 1990s," he predicted.

But many Japanese businessmen hope that will not happen. These businessmen believe the American emphasis on return to shareholders has caused U.S. companies to lose competitiveness to Japanese companies.

"Japanese companies don't generally have to answer to shareholders with short-term profits. They can focus on longer-term growth," said Keith Donaldson, an analyst at James Capel Pacific, Ltd. "Just look at these two economies to see which approach has been more successful."

But even if Japan doesn't like Pickens' advice, it can't afford to ignore him because he tied his shareholders' crusade to trade issues.

Pickens told reporters that "people in Washington are watching carefully" whether he is able to invest in Japan. He said he was "concerned that American investors don't have the same access in Japan as Japanese have in the U.S."

By Donny Brown

Whenever we consider organizing our life, we think of Trey Chamberlain and his three sock drawers.

Trey, quite simply, had solved the problem. He had three drawers set aside for socks. Into one drawer, his wife was directed to place only brown socks; into a second, only dark blue socks; and, into a third, only black socks.

When one color started showing signs of wear, he pitched the entire drawer. There was no decision-making involved as to which would stay and which would go. For the entire drawer, it was "go."

When replacement was necessary, he purchased socks of the same color, the same brand and the same style. In this way, every brown sock, for example, was identical to every other brown sock in that particular drawer and of the same age.

Regarding the amount of wear, the assumption was random chance would take care of that.

To aggravate him, we once asked him why he didn't use six drawers, further dividing his socks of a certain color into both "left" and "right" categories. His reply was unprintable.

In truth, any grief we offered him because of his sock collection was nothing more than thinly veiled jealousy.

Here was a guy who had neatly side-stepped what is, for most of us, the first aggravation of the day.

In the process, he avoided also one of the longest running arguments in most marriages, the almost rhetorical question, "What have you done with my socks?"

We understand that doing laundry is a hated job and the fact that it falls almost exclusively to women is no doubt male hypocrisy at its worst.

If it's any consolation, we would remind that menfolk are similarly charged with "loading the car" for all out-of-town trips; keeping the yard's grass level at an appropriate height; and being the designated member of the household to challenge anyone who (A.) climbs through a bedroom window after dark or (B.) decides to cut in front of the family at a long movie line.

Such trade-offs must continue to weigh in women's favor because, as statistics show, as a gender they live longer.

But, we digress.

Regarding's Trey's three sock drawers, we've been stewing over his system for more than a decade and, from time to time, have even considered adopting his plan.

In the end, however, good intentions are probably as far as we'll get and color-coded sock drawers will remain only an acknowledged good idea.

We consider it a notion to be tossed onto the same scrap heap as other "expert" advice, such as:

- Buy paper goods only in bulk.
- Never buy a "new" new car since its greatest depreciation occurs the moment you drive it off the lot.
- Never finance that same automobile for more than three years. If you can't pay for it in three years, you can't afford it.
- Every December 26, take all of the Christmas money provided by relatives and apply it toward the principal balance on your house note to effectively lower your interest rate.

Good advice, but... The more we think about it, having to appropriate two more drawers for socks, then training and coercing a second individual into following a new system, quite frankly, only makes us tired.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

On April 13 while packing the kids' school lunches, I glanced at the calendar and shouted, "Oh, no!" To which Kent replied, in the manner of all husbands when such things occur in the morning, "What?"

I exclaimed that it was our anniversary, that in all of these 15 years I had never once forgotten, that I couldn't believe I had forgotten it. He soothed me, saying, "You've been very busy." That's when it occurred to me that he had forgotten, too.

During the day we managed to snatch some time to buy cards for one another and promised to go out and celebrate "sometime." But that wasn't good enough for me. Oh no. I had to ask the question nine out of 10 husbands dread the most from their wives. You know the one. It goes something like, "Why do you love me?"

Imagine the look on his face. "WHY?"

"Yes. Why. Why did you fall in love with me in the first place? Why did you marry me? I just want to know."

"I don't know."

"You don't know? You DON'T KNOW? The most important question of your life and YOU DON'T KNOW?"

He could see he wasn't going to get out of it, so he thought a moment and finally said, "Because you're a nice person."

"A nice person? A NICE PERSON? Do you realize how many NICE PERSONS there are in this world? You could have married any of them."

"But I didn't. I married you."

"Yeah, and I wanna know WHY."

He sighed. The world weary sigh of husbands when asked to get emotional. Then said, "Because you're pretty."

"Pretty? PRETTY? Do you realize how many pretty girls there are in the world? Plenty. I know, because the older I get, the more I see. I want to know what made me special." I cuddled up to him the way wives do when they want something.

He squirmed.

"Because...you're smart."

"Sly move. It's not that feminists don't like to be told they are pretty, but they REALLY like being told they are smart. He figured he was covered. I could tell."

"OK...let's get this straight. You married me because I was a nice, smart, pretty person."

"That's right."

"You really go for the generic brand, don't you?"

He grinned. "You always were a cheap date."

It was hopeless. Romance, Aggie style.

Then I got to wondering about what it takes for a man and a woman to "click" together for a lifetime. What makes it good? My in-laws have been married 50 years, but they regard it in much the same manner as someone who might have survived that same amount of time in a prison camp.

It's not the same.

Over time, a shared history builds momentum for a couple that carries them over rough spots in the road. It is that history that defines a marriage and pronounces it "bad" or "good." Some of the memories are so powerful they can stand alone; others must be strung together, like a lustrous strand of old pearls. Some are pivotal and serve to point your lives in a whole new direction.

When my first child was born, the first contraction brought me to my knees and was followed in quick succession by searing pains three minutes apart, then two. The hospital staff fluttered around, certain it would be over quickly. Fourteen hours of agony later, tortured by the knowledge that something was very, very wrong, the shock of "fetal stress" cut through my blur of exhaustion and pain. All hell broke loose. Kent — who had never once left my side — was shoved aside, acrid gas formed over my face, and the child was literally torn from my body, where he lay, his battered little body blue and, for all practical purposes, dead in the doctor's hands.

When I came to, the first thing I saw was Kent standing nearby in green surgical garb, tears streaming down his face and soaking his mask. The first thing I heard was, at long blessed last, the indignant screams of our son. He's a sturdy and strong 11-year-old now, but that day doesn't seem so very long ago. No. It seems like yesterday.

Yet...just last week, we were standing outside one raw, cold morning, and my tall husband positioned his body so that it would block the wind for me and I would be sheltered.

That is what it's all about. In the long run, I don't guess it really matters "why."

SUNDAY

April 16

Two seventh grade classes in Plainview—reading of the plight of the Jack Pointeau family in a nationally-distributed AP wire feature story—have joined the family's effort to stay in the U.S., it was reported Sunday.

The classes, comprised of gifted and talented students at Plainview's Coronado Junior High, have written letters to Texas' two U.S. Senators and President George Bush in support of the family.

In addition, the two classes have issued a challenge to other students across Texas to join the fight.

The four-day construction period for a church sanctuary to serve the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses was detailed Sunday.

In all, an estimated 500 workers were to be involved in the project at various times, led by area Jehovah's Witnesses who specialize in the group's tradition of building churches in two days.

The extended period of four days was required since part of the work required the "gutting" of the existing Kingdom Hall to allow for its expansion and renovation.

The building itself grew from 2,200 to 3,400 sq. ft.

MONDAY

Longtime chief deputy county treasurer Rita Staton Monday morning was appointed to succeed the retiring Billy Wayne Thompson as county treasurer.

Staton, 51, a Dunn native, has worked in the office for the past 11 years. She was appointed to fill out Thompson's unexpired term over nine other applicants.

For the first time this summer, Western Texas College will participate in a federal program called "Mainstream" which will provide it some $84,000 in educational income while allowing 25 area high school age students to earn six hours of college credit, it was reported Monday.

Funding for the program will be through the Job Training Partnership Act administered in this area through the West Central Texas Council of Governments in Abilene.

Plans were apparently placed on hold Monday to convert a portion of the Scurry County Coliseum annex into office space for local offices of the Texas Department of Human Services.

The proposed renovation of the front office area came in over budget and department representatives rejected all bids, saying they will seek other office space.

The low bid of $78,000 by Waldrop Construction Co. of Lubbock was $28,000 over the department's budget, a representative of the architectural firm employed for the project, Hampton Associates of Sweetwater, told members of the county commissioners court.

J.W. Everts, retiring City of Snyder water meter foreman, was honored with a reception following over 20 years with the department. Then mayor Rod Waller presented him with a gold watch.

Kay Lyn Hammack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hammack, was a finalist in the West Texas National Teenager Pageant.

Tigers won five first places in the District 2-4A Boy's Track and Field Meet with three qualifying for regional competition. Chad Peterson won first place medals in 100, 200 and long jump. Ricky Vaughn took first in the discus and Kyle Freeman won the shot put title.

Mrs. Sam Davis Hays, "Fannie" to her friends, celebrated her 100th birthday with a reception hosted by her seven children. She also had 15 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren.

Construction on the new Anthony's Department Store had begun with steel outside walls being erected.

Outstanding male and female students at WTC were Billy Kelly of Roscoe and Jana Harris of Ozona.

10 YEARS AGO

Jo Beth Stephens and Angela Brumley were named outstanding Distributive Education students at an employer-employee banquet.

Mike Morris caught a 15-pound catfish in a stock tank north of town. It was almost as long as his 4-year-old son was tall.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor, I would like to thank the wonderful people who attended the banquet held in my honor. The praise given to me was highly flattering, but now I wish to do the thanking.

In 1980 I was living in Bedford and John Paxton suggested that I go to college. John contacted Bob Doty, and I came out and visited Snyder and WTC. I liked the college and looked upon going to college as a great opportunity to get a better education and possibly a trade on which I could fall back if I wasn't able to succeed in my quest to make it in professional rodeo. In essence, it was a second chance that very few people get the privilege to have.

This was the beginning of what I will remember as probably the best two years ever spent. I will be eternally grateful to the people I came in contact with during this time, as you gave me a chance for an education to hone my skills in the rodeo arena.

But most of all, you gave me the guidance and the wisdom to follow your examples to become a better human being. This is the greatest trait that the people of West Texas possess. Your honesty, integrity, and willingness to help one another and, in my case a foreigner, is remembered long after the classroom books have been closed or the last bronc has been bucked.

To Jess and Jean and the Everett family, you took me in and gave me a job, a good meal, as well as parental advice, not to mention the love and support you gave then and have continued to give since. To Bob Doty, Sam Walker, Dr. Newbury, Red Jackson, Charlie Henderson, and many, many others who have supported me from the start, I tip my hat to you all. However, it is

Fugitive female impersonator arrested

BASTROP, Texas (AP) — A female impersonator who had been sought since he failed to show up for sentencing on a fraud charge in 1980 has been arrested and is in the Bastrop County Jail awaiting extradition to California, authorities say.

The case of Jerry Dean

Michael, 61, was featured earlier this month on the NBC television show "Unsolved Mysteries" and tips generated by the April 5 show are being credited for the arrest.

Authorities said Michael was living as Katherine Elizabeth Johnson in Bastrop County for the past several months before he was arrested late Wednesday.

Michael was convicted in California on fraud charges connected with the promotion in the mid-1970s of an automobile he claimed could go 70 mph and get 70 miles per gallon, according to Robert Youngdahl, a deputy district attorney in Los Angeles.

As Geraldine Elizabeth Carmichael, he got people to invest in the non-existent car.

Youngdahl said the three-wheel car was marketed in California, Texas and to foreign investors. The sale of dealerships and car orders brought in an estimated $6 million, but a product was never delivered, he said.

Michael, then Carmichael, had combined a Ford Pinto car body with parts from a postal vehicle and duped investors into believing it could crash into a brick wall at 50 mph and bounce off, the prosecutor said.

"What it was was a piece of junk with a plastic skin," Youngdahl said.

"It was a new, modern miracle of a car," Youngdahl said. "The news media was duped. It was worse than a child's toy."

Michael, president of Twentieth Century Motorcar Corp., and seven of his sales personnel were convicted of 31 counts of grand theft, corporate security violations and other fraud charges in January 1977.

He was out on bail pending appeal when he did not show up for sentencing in December 1980.

The story is known as The Dale Case. Michael sold his car idea as The Dale, a name taken from an inventor who was working on a three-wheeled vehicle project.

Michael named the car the Dale. Ironically, he was arrested at a home in Bastrop County about 10 miles northwest of the community of Dale, where he lived.

"I think Carmichael had a little bit of humor and was living in the community of Dale on purpose," Youngdahl said.

Bill Hall, investigator with the California Department of Motor Vehicles, said hundreds of phone calls about the case were received after the NBC broadcast.

Youngdahl said callers from Austin talked about a person who looked like the female actor in the "Mysteries" segment and was running a flower-sales business here, Youngdahl said. Information about the flower sales was not in the NBC segment.

"Some of the callers from Austin were saying there was this woman buying flowers wholesale and then, through kids, selling them retail," Youngdahl said. "That set off a bell in everybody's head."

The prosecutor said Michael had done the same thing in the Los Angeles area while his case went through the appeals process.

Pickens takes on Japan, corporate business world

TOKYO (AP) — Corporate takeover artist T. Boone Pickens has raided Japan, leaving business leaders suspicious and wondering whether Americans like him want to buy their companies just as the Japanese have done in the United States.

However, the difficulties the Texas oilman has encountered with the subtleties and intricacies of Japanese business suggest Pickens himself is far from being a threat to Japan's leading companies.

Pickens has purchased shares worth about $1 billion in Koito Manufacturing Co., a major auto parts maker, surpassing Toyota Motor to become the largest shareholder. But despite owning 20.2 percent of Koito, its management politely turned down Pickens' request this week for a seat on the board of directors.

"It is necessary to build a trusting relationship first. In Japan, it is not possible to just say, 'I'm a major shareholder' and get a seat on the board right away," Koito director Tamotsu Aoyama told a news conference Thursday.

Pickens, in his first visit to Tokyo, challenged what analysts consider two central tenets of Japanese business culture: that a company belongs to its employees, not its shareholders; and that the Japanese market is for Japanese, not foreigners, to enjoy.

Pickens argued in a speech that protecting shareholders' rights by using corporate buyouts to oust incompetent management helped resuscitate the U.S. economy over the last nine years.

"What happened in the U.S. in the 1980s will find its way to the Japanese business community in the 1990s," he predicted.

But many Japanese businessmen hope that will not happen. These businessmen believe the American emphasis on return to shareholders has caused U.S. companies to lose competitiveness to Japanese companies.

"Japanese companies don't generally have to answer to shareholders with short-term profits. They can focus on longer-term growth," said Keith Donaldson, an analyst at James Capel Pacific, Ltd. "Just look at these two economies to see which approach has been more successful."

But even if Japan doesn't like Pickens' advice, it can't afford to ignore him because he tied his shareholders' crusade to trade issues.

Pickens told reporters that "people in Washington are watching carefully" whether he is able to invest in Japan. He said he was "concerned that American investors don't have the same access in Japan as Japanese have in the U.S."

Betty Wright earned her salary businessman says

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Betty Wright earned her money as an employee of an investment partnership that is a focus of an ethics investigation of House Speaker Jim Wright, a Fort Worth businessman says.

"She earned her money," said George Mallick, chief partner in Mallightco Inc. The partnership's payment of $145,000 to Mrs. Wright, in the form of an $18,000 salary over four years plus use of a car and other benefits, is part of the House ethics committee's probe of her husband.

"She was a bona-fide employee," he told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in an exclusive interview.

The speaker had no knowledge of a lucrative 1988 gas well investment in which the partnership, Mallightco Inc., turned a quick $340,880 profit, the Fort Worth developer also told the newspaper. He said Wright had put his holdings in a blind trust in 1987.

The transaction greatly enhanced the Wrights' stake in Mallightco shortly before the investment partnership bought out the Wrights for $350,000, Mallick said.

The ethics committee is probing whether Mallick's relationship with Wright was designed to influence the speaker on legislative matters that could benefit the developer. Part of that examination involves Mrs. Wright's work.

"I've never asked the speaker, in the 30 years I've known him, to vote one way or another on a piece of legislation," he said.

Mallick said Mrs. Wright was "an integral part of the decision-making" when Mallightco was considering investments, and, in one instance, on her advice, he changed his mind.

To the editor,

Regarding the fuss over the tiger being kept as a pet in Snyder; zoos, public and private institutions all over the country keep all manner of exotic animals without endangering the public.

On the other hand, 24 people in the United States were killed by their own dogs last year.

An ordinance banning any "exotic" or "dangerous" pet is a knee-jerk reaction to a simple problem.

Perhaps a more sensible ordinance would have provisions to insure that anyone desiring to keep any pet does so in a knowledgeable, safe and humane manner.

Parents Late to Day Care Deserve a Good Spanking

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you wrote about how "no-shows" hurt hairdressers. Would you please put in a similar pitch for home day-care providers?

Abby, I agree to work a 10-hour day, from 6:45 a.m. until 4:45 p.m. I am paid $1.25 per hour per child. This covers meals, toys, discipline, trips to the park and hugs. Do you blame me for being upset when a parent drops off her child at 6:30 a.m. and doesn't pick him up until 6 or 6:30 p.m.? I have tried penalties, but the parents just take their child to some other underpaid fool who will put up with it.

I love my job, but I hate the way some of my clients treat me. I have spoken to other day-care professionals, and they all say the same thing happens to them. Any suggestions?

TIRED IN TACOMA

DEAR TIRED: My first thought was, deliver the child to his home. But a parent who would be so irresponsible as to pick up her child an hour to an hour and a half late would probably not be home when you delivered the child.

How about posting a sign at your home that states that parents who leave their children more than 15 minutes past the agreed-upon pickup time will be charged for one full extra hour? Then telephone the other "underpaid fools" within a 10-mile radius and suggest the solution to them, too. If you all stick together and refuse to put up with irresponsible behavior, you'll all be winners.

DEAR ABBY: You have made some good suggestions for conserving water — shut the faucet off when brushing your teeth and shaving, etc.

I have another suggestion that could save thousands — maybe millions — of gallons of water a week. Every first-class hotel I've stayed in changes its sheets and pillow cases EVERY DAY! This is unnecessary. When people are home they don't change their bed linen every day. They put fresh sheets on their beds once a week — twice a week, if they're really fussy.

What do you think, Abby?
CONSERVATIVE IN PHILADELPHIA

DEAR CONSERVATIVE: While a daily change of bed linen may seem extravagant, it's a well-established policy for which hotel guests pay handsomely. It also ensures the ultimate in cleanliness, which all travelers appreciate. (If it ain't broke, don't fix it.)

DEAR ABBY: After a recent divorce, I find it rather awkward introducing my ex-husband to people. We are still good friends and not very well known in this community.

How shall I introduce him to others? "This is my ex-husband" sounds rather degrading. "This is my friend" does not sound right after having been married to him. Any ideas?

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: It isn't necessary to inform people who are meeting your ex-husband for the first time that you and he were married to each other. Introduce him by his name — and leave the details of your relationship for another time.

DEAR ABBY: I read your column every day, but I never thought I'd be writing to you. I just want to comment on the subject of underage drinking that is supervised by adults.

Abby, you must be nuts if you think teens aren't going to find some way to drink. Which would you rather have: An underage kid driving drunk after a beer bash and ending up dead? Or that same kid drinking at home under adult supervision, and not being allowed to leave until sober?

The answer should be very clear. BETTER SAFE THAN SORRY

DEAR BETTER SAFE: Must I choose between two evils? I'll pass. I would not "supervise" underage drinking at home or anywhere else because I do not approve of underage drinking. And if kids are going to "find some way" to drink, they will have to do it without my help.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to respond to those scurrilous attacks on us older folks sent in by some younger readers. What do those kids know about hard times? They weren't even born in 1929 when the stock market crashed, the banks closed, and millions of us were wiped out overnight.

"Christine" says her research indicates that there are more poor people in her age group (24-35) than in the senior group. Where did she do her research? In Palm Springs, Palm Beach and on Park Avenue? Why didn't she check the millions of us who live in mobile home parks? I've yet to see a Lincoln Town Car or a Cadillac there. What idiot would believe we'd live in these tin homes if we were rich?

"Statistics" say our per capita income is higher than the average American's. Well, since I retired in 1968, my expenses have gone up 500 percent — but my income is fixed!

If these young folks are so poor, who is spending billions of dollars on rock concerts, drugs, designer clothes and other non-essentials? Certainly not the senior citizens.

This is probably too long for your column, but I just wanted you to know that it's tough enough getting old without having to defend still being alive at 85.

FRANK C. BURKHARD
IN FLORIDA

DEAR FRANK: Your letter was well worth the space. Read on — there's more from justifiably irate seniors:

DEAR ABBY: I have a bone to pick with one of your readers who said that the seniors are the wealthiest people in the country. That line about how we spend our golden years really got to me. So we do nothing but travel and take cruises? I'm 72, and the only cruise I ever took was the one that began in San Diego and went to Hawaii, Okinawa, Guam, Midway and Iwo Jima.

SCOTTY McD.,
U.S. NAVY (RETIRED)

DEAR ABBY: I am a senior citizen, age 73. My husband is 71. The younger generation has no idea of what we went through to get where we are today. When we were first married, we lived in one room. We didn't own a car, had no help from our families and didn't expect it. We did without things we couldn't afford.

I had to wash diapers in the bathtub and hung them outside to dry no matter what the weather was (no washing machines or dryers). We were thrilled when McDonald's opened up and hamburgers were 15 cents and we could "go out for dinner" on special occasions.

We're retired now and barely getting by. If it weren't for Social Security, I don't know what we'd do. And by the way, it's not exactly a welfare handout. We paid into that fund since it began in the '30s, and we're just getting back what we put in.

JIMMY AND PAT
IN WYOMING

DEAR ABBY: In reading that letter from "Christine," who complained about senior citizens getting discounts, she said there are more poor people in her age group (24-35) than there are in the senior group. Then she quoted some statistics to prove her point.

I was reminded of Mark Twain's famous quote: "There are three types of lies: lies, damn lies, and statistics." KEITH E. GATLINE, SYRACUSE, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: As a 75-year-old senior citizen, let me set the young ones straight. I earned my way since 1931. Like a lot of other guys during the Depression, I sent money home to my parents as soon as I could support myself. I married during the war, served at sea for six years, raised three children and sent them to college. We bought a home and paid off the mortgage in 35 years. We've never owned a BMW, a Mercedes or a Jaguar. That's why we no longer have mortgage payments.

Border senators seek help for escalating drug crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three grisly, drug-related mass slayings along the U.S.-Mexico border during the past month, including the cult killings of at least 15 people near Matamoros, Mexico, exhibit the dire need for federal agents and dollars in the Southwest, border-state senators said.

The group of senators want national drug czar William J. Bennett to declare the U.S.-Mexico border a "high-intensity drug trafficking area."

They say the recent slayings are a "brutal reminder that drug cartels have expanded and moved west."

Such a designation would allow the temporary reassignment of federal personnel to the region and would funnel assistance to state and local agencies.

"Law enforcement officials in Arizona and Texas who have been involved in the (murder) investigations say the situation is reminiscent of south Florida in the late '70s and early '80s," according to the letter Thursday from the border-state senators.

The letter is signed by Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, Phil Gramm, R-Texas, Pete Wilson, R-Calif., Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., John McCain, R-Ariz., Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M.

The eight senators argue the 2,000-mile stretch of border qualifies as a center of illegal drug production, manufacturing, importation and distribution, a prerequisite to receiving the emergency drug designation.

They point to the fact that Mexico is the primary producer of marijuana and heroin entering the United States, that California is one of the largest domestic producers of marijuana, and that California, New Mexico and Texas are three of the largest U.S. producers of methamphetamine.

The Border Patrol has seized more cocaine and marijuana in the first six months of fiscal 1989 than in all of fiscal 1988, and the Customs Service reports cocaine seizures are up 425 percent in the past three years, the senators said.

In Los Angeles alone, the Drug Enforcement Administration said 15 tons of cocaine were seized in 1988.

The senators also say Federal Reserve figures show Los Angeles as the new center for collection of drug profits. The city's Federal Reserve Bank has a $3.8 billion cash surplus — a 2,200 percent jump since 1985. During the same time, Miami's Federal Reserve cash surplus declined by $1.2 billion.

Although state and local agencies have committed dramatically increased assets and personnel to drug enforcement, they are being overwhelmed by drug-related crime, said the senators from California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

The senators also argue drug-related activity on the border is having a harmful impact on other parts of the country. They point to crack operations set up in 50 major cities around the country by two violent Los Angeles gangs, the Crips and the Bloods.

Presidential support sought for nat'l crime declaration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Phil Gramm, saying the public perceives the war on drugs as phony, sought President Bush's support to declare a national crime emergency.

Such a move would curb prison overcrowding by housing inmates in tents or on military installations.

Gramm, a Texas Republican, was one of four lawmakers who met with Bush at the White House Thursday to discuss drafting a sweeping drug and crime bill.

"We have crime without punishment in America and it has got to stop," Gramm said. "We have got to act now or we're going to lose control of places like the nation's capital."

Under the national crime emergency declaration, the legislation would remove the cap on the number of inmates a prison can hold if it is limited under a federal court order, Gramm said, allowing the doubling up of inmates in certain cells.

The declaration would also allow temporary detention facilities to be established on closed military bases and even active duty installations if necessary.

The inmates could be housed in tents or other temporary shelters, he said.

"It would put prisoners back to work building prisons and engaged in public works — street repairs and infrastructure repairs," Gramm said.

Gramm also wants to begin a program this summer using National Guard engineers to build detention centers.

Jackie Mason won't appear in person

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Comedian Jackie Mason won't be appearing in person next month, but a videotaped deposition in a $20 million libel suit against Clarion Castle Hotel owner Abe Hirschfeld will get top billing.

Both parties received a copy of the deposition in which Mason curses repeatedly and mocks Hirschfeld's Eastern European accent. The hotel owner is thrilled about the upcoming showing on giant television screens.

"You'll see the real Jackie Mason. We are going to feature it like we do the big fights," Hirschfeld said Thursday.

Mason, who did the one-man Broadway show called "The World According to Me," is suing Hirschfeld over the hotelier's claims that he set the comedian's career back on track and should get up to 30 percent of his earnings.

"You had nothing to do with my career," Mason shouts at Hirschfeld on the videotape, calling him a liar.

Case becomes book subject

HARLAN, Ky. (AP) — Dan Davidson had begun thinking about retirement from the Kentucky State Police when his most memorable case began unfolding in Oldham County almost five years ago.

Now, the case is the subject of "Bitter Blood," a book written by North Carolina newspaper columnist Jerry Bledsoe that recently topped The New York Times best-sellers list.

Negotiations are under way to turn the story into a motion picture in which Davidson will serve as a consultant.

After being assigned the investigation of two of the nine slayings the book covers, all thoughts of retiring left Davidson's mind. He became obsessed with finding the killer.

But after 30 years of service, Davidson retired May 31, 1987, from the Kentucky State Police. He said that after that case, it seemed "everything was downhill. Nothing interested me anymore."

James Brown wants to sing Gospel music

STATE PARK, S.C. (AP) — Soul singer James Brown, after four months in prison, said during an interview at the State Park Health Center that he'd like to return to gospel singing.

Brown, 55, serving a six-year sentence on a charge of aggravated assault and failing to stop for police during a chase, is working on kitchen detail in the mornings. But in the evenings, Brown whose gold records include "Papa's Got a Brand New Bag" is conducting the prison choir.

"I'd like to go back to gospel," Brown told The Boston Globe in an interview from jail. "Really I never left. Or it never left me. The public may not know it, but the Sex Machine first did it to death for the Lord."

Actress shares memories with New York pupils

NEW YORK (AP) — Audrey Hepburn told Manhattan schoolchildren that her own tough childhood helped inspire her to become a UNICEF goodwill ambassador.

"I lived through the second World War in Europe," she said at a convocation at St. Catherine of Siena School on Thursday. "Right after the war, I was a rather hungry child and my health was very much impaired. Immediately after our liberation, UNICEF came in with food and medication."

The actress told the kids, ages 6 to 14, about her travels last week in the civil war-ravaged Sudan.
