Falcon proves it's America's toughest compact in the rugged Monte Carlo Rallye!

Four Falcons started from Oslo, four from Paris, on routes calculated to be equal in difficulty and length. Weather conditions varied from clear, bitter cold through freezing fog to blinding snow—and the time schedules made no provision for delays. Here a Falcon swirls through a sudden snow shower, testing traction in a practice run.

Falcon entered two classes in Europe's 2,700-mile winter ordeal—won them both and finished 2nd overall out of 299 cars. That's durability!

In the Rallye's five special Alpine sections, Falcon was first overall in four, tied for first in one. That's roadability!

In the Rallye's final test around the Monte Carlo racing course, Falcons were first and second. That's maneuverability!

MONTE CARLO—The 33rd Monte Carlo Rallye started with 299 cars. Some 2,700 miles and 3 1/2 days later, only 163 were still in the rally when the field struggled into Monaco—but they included all eight of the specially equipped Falcons that originally started! This eight-out-of-eight record was perhaps more remarkable than the fact that, despite a handicap formula that favored the smallest cars, a Falcon captured second place overall. One car can have luck... but eight have to have total performance. Because the Rallye samples every variety of weather and road conditions the continent can provide, and because it winds up on the most remote byways in the French Maritime Alps, it is a supreme test of all the car's abilities. Falcon steering had to be flawless on glare ice above a 1,000-foot drop. Those fabulous V-8's had to run like dynamos.

The final results in the Monte Carlo Rallye gave Falcon 2nd place overall, 1st in Class 8 of the Touring category, 1st and 2nd in Class 5 of the much tougher Grand Touring category, 1st and 2nd in the final three-lap test on the Monte Carlo circuit. The best finish by a Valiant was 88th overall. Falcon gained invaluable experience in how to build a car better, make it tougher, sharpen up its total performance. That's the real reason Ford is interested in open competition—and why Ford-built cars have got so much more to show drivers. Drive one and see; it won't have six lights, or a horn you can hear for four miles in stormy weather, or the other special rallye equipment—but it'll sure surprise you!

TRY TOTAL PERFORMANCE FOR A CHANGE!

Livestock Feeding To Grow

Industry To Expand, Says WTCC

Continued expansion of industry, more dollars from tourism, another 50 per cent increase in livestock feeding, and more acreage devoted to sugar beets were predicted for West Texas during the months ahead by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce staff in Abilene as it took a look at business and economic conditions in the area.

The WTCC staff also forecast a continued healthy atmosphere in the vast region for agriculture in general, and said it expected continued and earnest effort by all persons concerned in trying to solve West Texas' water problems, and oil and gas problems.

Reporting for the West Texas president, Jack G. Springer; George R. Jordan, manager of the industrial development and tourist development departments; and Loyal H. Walker, manager of the agriculture and livestock and water resources department.

ONE SEGMENT of the West Texas economy which has drawn considerable attention during the past few months is livestock feeding, especially of cattle. In December the West Texas Chamber released a survey which showed that West Texas now has a total annual feeding capacity of 1,302,444 head of cattle—a 50 per cent increase during the past two years.

Dr. W. L. Stangel of Lubbock, chairman of the Livestock Feeding Committee of the WTCC, said there were 493 livestock feeders in the 132-county West Texas Chamber area and that at any given time West Texas feedlots could accommodate 520,977 head of cattle.

Tarrant County had 22 livestock feeders, more than any other county in West Texas, but Lubbock County's feedlot capacity of 50,650 head at one time or 126,625 per year was ahead of other areas. Tarrant County feedlots can accommodate 21,975 head at any one time.

Stangel said, "We can not underestimate the economic value of livestock feeding to West Texas. It is becoming a big business for us." In the West Texas Chamber report, Walker said, "I fully expect West Texas' cattle feeding facilities to increase another 50 per cent during the next five years."

Despite difficulties with the cattle price structure during the past six months, Walker said the livestock feeding business offers much to West Texas' economy.

"You have cycles in cattle prices, and the real cattle feeding is in business to stay. He can't be in and out. It's a long range proposition, and West Texas has too much to offer for there to be any let-down. We raise our own grain for feeding purposes, we have our own cattle, and the wonderful thing about it is that new livestock feeding facilities create more allied industry, packing plants and the like."

He said a new plant now going in at Hereford would pack a great deal of meat for shipment all the way to the West Coast, for example.

WALKER NOTED the WTCC had conducted several tours into Iowa, Arizona and California, and into West Texas and eastern New Mexico areas during the past two or three years. "We want Texas people to see how livestock feeding and processing is handled in other areas, and we plan to continue our work in this field. We want our people to see how the other fellow does it, to realize the potential in West Texas, and then make their own decisions about the future of the business in our area."

Walker said there is a great potential for hog raising and processing in West Texas right now. "Nearly two thirds of the hogs processed in West Texas at present are shipped in from other areas," he said. Lamb feeding offers possibilities, too, he said.

Walker said 1964 would see approximately 26,000 acres in the Hereford and Dimmitt areas devoted to sugar beet production and also the completion at Hereford of a new $21,000,000 sugar beet processing plant next fall by the Holly Sugar Corporation. More acreage is in prospect, he said.

"I visualize that in the next five years we will have one other sugar beet refinery and perhaps two more operating in the West Texas area. Some sugar interests feel that West Texas could take care of four to five refineries. We are working on the national level, seeking additional sugar beet quotas, and we know that several farming sections in West Texas will be growing substantially more sugar beets when the acreage and processing facilities are available."

Sugar beets are a cash crop, one that will boost the economy of West Texas, and there is also an industrial angle to the business, Walker said.

"These sugar beet refineries offer potential employment to around 150 people the year around and 400 to 500 on a seasonal basis. These are new jobs for West Texas, and that is of real importance," Walker said. The feeding of beet tops and beet pulp means additional cash for growers and livestock feeders.

REGARDING WEST Texas cotton, Walker said the main problem is getting acreage released and reapportioned where it is now being planted.

"Texas during 1963 lost more than $100,000,000 in income because farmers failed to plant 600,000 acres of cotton allotted to them. West Texas farmers predominantly plant their acreage, and if farmers in other areas would release their unplanted acreage it could be reallocated to areas which would plant it," he stated.

Cotton remains West Texas' largest cash crop, bringing in an estimated $350,000,000 to $400,000,000 annually. West Texas produces more than half of the cotton grown in Texas. The West Texas Chamber kept a close watch on the cotton situation in Texas in its legislative program and had as its goal a free market for cotton, one that would allow it to move on a competitive basis worldwide.

Grain sorghum is West Texas' second largest cash crop, bringing in from $200,000,000 to $250,000,000 each year. West Texas farmers have tried to keep grain sorghum on a competitive basis with corn, especially in the livestock feeding market. "It is just as good as corn for livestock, and we do not have to take a back seat to corn in anybody's market," Walker said.

The head of Johnson & Johnson, a leading drug manufacturing concern says: "What the pharmaceutical industry has spent defending itself in Washington and other parts of the world the last four years, in terms of manpower and money, is staggering. What started out as differences of opinion between our industry and some government investigating committees has now become the source of distorted international propaganda — not so much anti-drug industry as it is anti-American."

After owning a 15-8 first period lead, the Mustangs found themselves on the losing end the rest of the way. In the Sands' win in the girls' contest, Bodine was the high scorer for the game as she pumped home 35 points for the Ponies. Haggard led Flower Grove with 22.

In the view of President Nelson of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the purchase and sale of votes through tax-paid federal subsidies threatens the integrity of national elections and the future of democratic government. He feels that "time is running out" for those who believe that the essence of free government consists in treating public offices as public trusts to be bestowed for the good of the nation rather than for the benefit of any one party, or of groups of individuals.

Somerset, Ky., Journal: "It may be difficult to predict the exact direction of the power hungry bureaucrats' next move but you can safely bet that it will involve expansion of the federal government's control over the affairs of states and communities. Just when you think that the limit has been reached, that the bureaucrats could not possibly find any new areas for encroachment, they spring up with a barrage of new regulatory moves."
