VARIETY

By NEAL ESTES

We pass along an interesting letter from MARTIN LE-ROY (RED) GIBSON, former Stanton High honor student and outstanding basketball player of one of our greatest local teams. RED is the son of JUDGE and MRS. MARTIN GIBSON, this city. RED, his wife, NANCY, and their very alert and good looking son, MARTIN III, now reside in Houston.

Dear Neal,
Here is a check for another year of The Stanton Reporter.

The best news in the paper this year was about the basketball team. Everyone who ever spent a night in Stanton was proud of the team, just as we were disappointed that the final game ended the wrong way.

The scores you put in the paper were hard to believe. That 90-84 game with Crane must have been a good one. It takes a lot to score that many points in a game. The 1951 team, which you mentioned as the last to win the district, made 66 and 67 points two or three times, but that was as high as it went.

Of course, this year's team couldn't compare with the 1951 team. Oh, these boys likely could have beaten the socks off our bunch, but we have had 13 years. And in 13 years the victories get greater and the shots all get longer and all the scoring averages go up.

I suppose I made four or five points a game in those days, but in 13 years that has come up considerably. In five more years my average for the 1951 season will surely be 20 points a game.

It is the same way in football. You can add five yards to a touchdown run every other year. A blocker who got one man in 1951 got two men with that same block in 1955, knocked down three in 1960, and by 1965 will remember the block as the time he knocked down 4 men, recovered a fumble and ran 98 yards for the winning score.

But to return to things that are actually in the record books, it was 1947 that Stanton had its best year (or was it 48?) They won 30 straight that year before losing in the regional tournament.

Our 1950 team won 26 straight, then didn't even get out of district. The 1951 record was 29 and 3, unless I forget, with losses to Big Spring, Midland, and state champion Cayuga.

Those things are past now, and in a few years this season will be fading. Nevertheless, I'm glad our team didn't have to play this year's team. I am more glad that this year's team won the title, and I will be happier still next year when they do even better.

Yours,
RED.

The Department of Public Safety is deeply concerned over the increase of accidents in 1964. A total of 310 fatal accidents have been reported with 380 deaths on Texas highways to date. In 1963 the death toll reached 2,725 and this broke the previous record of 2,611 set in 1956.

The announcement made by BEEMAN FISHER, president of TEXAS ELECTRIC SERVICE COMPANY, that his company would make a thirty million dollar addition to the generating facilities owned by TESCO near Colorado City emphasizes the fact that Martin County is in the approximate center of the area of one of the largest power generating plants in the nation. The titanic investment in the company's facilities also

Texas Electric Company To Build $30,000,000 Plant

Texas Electric Service Company will build a 500,000 kilowatt electric generating unit as an addition to its Morgan Creek Power Plant near Colorado City. Beeman Fisher, president of the company announced Saturday.

The big new unit, which will cost approximately $30,000,000, will make the Morgan Creek Plant one of the largest electric generating plants in the Southwest. When this unit is completed, the plant will have a total generating capability of 833,000 kilowatts, two and one-half times its present size.

Orders for equipment will be placed immediately. The plant is to be completed and tested for operation in early 1967.

Fisher said rapid and continuing growth of the area served by the company, as well as forecasts of continued growth prompted the decision some months ago to build the new unit, but that the location was not decided on until studies were completed.

"Many factors had to be considered in selecting a site," he said. "Chief of these factors involved an adequate water supply and technical matters in the efficient operation of the entire company power system which extends from the Fort Worth area to beyond the Pecos River on West Texas."

The company has ample water here to supply cooling for the big steam condensers of the plant. It owns Lake Colorado City as well as the adjacent Champion Creek Lake. The lakes are connected by pipe line. Colorado City purchases its municipal water supply from the lakes.

Natural gas to fire the big boiler of the new power generating unit, as well as the boilers of the five existing units, will be supplied by a pipe line being completed by the Odessa Natural Gasoline Company from near Crane to the Morgan Creek Plant, and by Lone Star Gas Company system.

The huge boiler of the new unit will be 202,000 cubic feet in size, compared with the 104,000 cubic foot boiler of the largest unit now at the plant, and will consume almost 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas an hour under full load. The new steel tower transmission line recently completed between Odessa and Fort Worth, which ties into the Morgan Creek Plant and other plants of the company, is a vital part of TESCO's orderly development of its strong power system, Fisher said.

This "backbone" line, now operating at 138,000 volts, is capable of transmitting large blocks of power. A double conductor of "bundled" second circuit now is being added to this line between the Morgan Creek Plant and Odessa. This work will be completed this Spring, and the second circuit will be added to the line between Fort Worth and the company power plant near Graham, with completion scheduled next year.

The "backbone" line between Odessa and Fort Worth will be converted to a 345,000-volt operation in 1967 when the new unit at Morgan Creek Plant goes into operation.

At the end of February the system had 2,425 miles of line energized, a gain of eight for the month and 54 for the year. Health And Safety Tips

From The American Medical Association

How good are your eyes? If you're a gambler, you would win money betting that the other guy has defective vision. On the basis of statistics, the chances are slightly more than one in two that something is wrong with your eyes.

Close to 80 million Americans wear glasses. There are at least two million who have inadequate vision even with glasses, and about one million are blind. Every year another 30,000 Americans become blind.

There are many popular misconceptions and myths about vision. Some of them are discussed in Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

Ophthalmologists (physicians who specialize in eye care) usually agree that there is no such thing as eye strain. Those pains and discomforts that sometimes follow long hours of watching a jumpy television screen actually are due to eye fatigue. Your eyes need to rest, too.

Children do not outgrow crossed eyes, and this condition should be treated as early as possible. Otherwise some loss of sight could result.

Good vision is important to safe driving of an auto, but perfect vision is by no means required. The driver who has a few drinks under his belt is much more dangerous than the nearsighted driver whose defect is reasonably well corrected with glasses.

Carrots do not improve the vision. Carrots contain vitamin A, but only a very small amount of it is needed and it is found in many of the foods we eat, as well as carrots.

The most common of the serious eye diseases, glaucoma, cannot be cured, but it usually can be arrested by treatment, and further loss of vision can be prevented. Regular checkups for glaucoma are most important, particularly to those past 40.

Cataracts, a lens disorder occurring most often in older people, can usually be corrected by surgical treatment. Loss of vision from a forming cataract can be slow and sometimes isn't noticed by the patient at first.

Children should have their first medical eye examination at the age of three or four, and should be re-examined each year. The small child may have grossly defective vision and not know it. This can wreak havoc with his schooling, in that he may not be able to read his textbooks, or to see the blackboard. Many a child labeled stupid by teachers and parents was later found to be nearsighted.

What can you do to protect your vision? The most important thing is to have regular eye examinations, preferably once a year. And make certain that everyone in your family gets a regular checkup, particularly the children. Any noticeable change in vision also is a clear tip-off that something is happening to your sight and that an examination is needed.

Questions And Answers

Q—A friend of mine takes "War Orphans Education" courses and her mother is living. How can she qualify as an orphan?

A—The War Orphans Education Program (which now also includes children of peace-time veterans under certain conditions) was set up for children whose veteran-parent died because of service-connected disabilities. For the purpose of the program, such children are considered orphans even though the other parent still lives.

Q—Are there VA hospitals in Alaska and Hawaii?

A—These are the only two states that do not have a VA hospital within their borders.

Q—Are plans under way to honor survivors of the Spanish-American War? There are only a few of them left.

A—This may happen in the future. At present there are still 20,000 of these Spanish-American War veterans alive.

Bible Comment—

True Life In Christ Is Best Life

"Except a grain of wheat fall into the ground and die," said Jesus, "it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit." And Jesus laid down as a law of the spiritual world that "whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it."

Is the Christian life, then, only a life of martyrdom? And are we, who are situated in areas where there is little danger of our dying for our faith, excluded from the life that is found through sacrifice?

The answer is "no." Jesus' words have a deeper and more general application to Christian living. Saint Paul suggested this when he wrote, in Corinthians, that "I die daily."

What Paul meant by that is brought out in Galatians where he says: "I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life that I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave Himself for me."

Perhaps the mistake that most of us make is in failing to share all the experiences of the Christ as Paul did. We walk with Jesus in the fields; we listen as He talks in the villages with the common people; we watch as He blesses the little children.

But we shrink from following to the Cross, even as Mary, His mother, did.

Yet the secret of the fullness of life is in going all the way in our acceptance of Jesus.

"He that loseth his life shall find it."

Philosopher Has A Novel Plan For Testing Result Of Proposed Cut In Foreign Aid

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw considers foreign aid from a different angle, his letter this week reveals.)

Dear editor: I have never fully or even half-way understood the foreign aid program, except that I notice that whatever candidate is running for President against the man already in is generally in favor of cutting it, until he gets in. Then he's persuaded by somebody, or maybe by the facts, that the future of the free world depends on foreign aid.

At any rate, I noticed in the paper the other day that Washington is now considering dropping foreign aid to 12 countries, and I've been thinking.

Here's a golden opportunity to find out something.

What the United States ought to do is hire the Gallup Poll people or some such outfit and station them not only in the 12 countries being cut off from foreign aid but also in 12 other countries still on the aid list.

Their mission would be to find out which countries are the maddest at the United States — those being cut off or those still getting help.

It's a funny thing, but the more you help some people the madder they get at you for not helping still more, and as far as I can tell, if two at us, there's not much difference whether they're mad for countries are going to be mad getting no help or not enough, except that the former is cheaper. If I was a banker, I man mad at me because I wouldn't let him have any money as one who was mad at me because I wouldn't let him but renew his old note and make out a new one for still more.

On the other hand, there may be more to foreign aid than I understand. It's possible. There's more to nearly anything I can think of than I can understand.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

...and just the place to enjoy it

Find out for yourself what this Chevy II can really do. If there are hills nearby, let it give them a good going-over. Then see it give slow-moving trucks the run-around. With its new extra-cost V8 you need but give the accelerator an inch, and this Super Sport will take a mile. And this great highway performer looks the part it plays so well. A glance at its all-vinyl interior and door-to-door carpeting will tell you that. There's your choice of either the floor-mounted Powerglide or Four-Speed Synchro-Mesh transmission. Both are optional at extra cost, along with a Positraction rear axle, AM-FM radio, and many other accessories. And for all its new power, Chevy II rides so softly it seems to glide along the highway. That's because it has high-mounted independent coil springs in the front and Mono-Plate single-leaf springs in the rear. With everything Chevy II Super Sport has going for it, it's no surprise your Chevrolet dealer is anxious to show you its price tag. Because that's the only thing about it that isn't super.

Outdoors In Texas

It isn't uncommon to hear some Texan say that he caught a "smallmouth bass." In the true sense of the word, he hasn't caught a smallmouth although the fish is different from the largemouth bass which is most commonly found in our streams and lakes.

Actually what he caught is a spotted bass.

Smallmouth bass are not native to Texas waters. Perhaps the nearest spot where they are found in any numbers is Bull Shoals Lake in Arkansas. Small mouths were introduced into the cool waters of the Llano River headwaters, but the transplant didn't meet with much success.

Spotted bass are quite common in some of our streams. Particularly in this true of fast-running rivers like the Guadalupe and Llano of Central Texas. A spotted bass never grows too large. But what it lacks in size, it makes up for with spirit. On sporting tackle, a pound-sized spot fights like a fish twice that size.

Although the spotted bass is primarily a stream fish, some showed up in the lakes of Central Texas when streams were impounded. It isn't unusual to take a spot from any of the Highland Lakes. In this lake environment, one sometimes grows to three pounds or larger. But this is very rare. When you catch a two-pounder, you've got a good one.

The spotted bass is sort of an in-between fish. It isn't a largemouth nor is it a smallmouth. Water-wise, it more closely resembles the largemouth since it prefers the warmer habitat. Appearance-wise, it looks more like the smallmouth.

It really is sort of a Johnny-come-lately to the angling scene. For many years it was confused with the other two species. It wasn't until 1927 that it was recognized as a distinct and separate species.

When the old Texas Game and Fish Commission transplanted some smallmouth bass into the headwaters of the Llano near the town of Junction, some years back, it encouraged fishermen to report if any of the alien fish were caught.

Right away, they heard anglers tell of catching the smallmouths. But in every instance, when the report was checked for authenticity, it was found that instead of a smallmouth the angler had in fact taken a spotted bass.

Sometimes it is very easy to confuse the spot with the more abundant largemouth bass. Especially in turbid waters which cause the color to be a milky instead of a vivid green.

But there is one surefire way to distinguish between the two. Run an imaginary line vertically down the bass' jaw, just at the rear of the eye. If this line bisects the back of the mouth, you've got a spot; on a largemouth the mouth goes beyond the line.

Also, the spot has a red eye while the largemouth does not. Spots prefer running water and you're most likely to catch one out in the fast-moving channels of a river.

On the Llano, for instance, you'll take largemouths in the quiet water along shore. But get out in the current and you'll most always catch a spot.

Almost, without exception you'll take spots on underwater lures, since they feed almost entirely on underwater food. Two of their favorites are the minnow and the crawfish. The minnow is No. 1 on its diet.

The two favorite baits of sport fishermen seeking the spots are small spinner lures, either yellow or white in color, and silver spoons. Stream spots seldom grow larger than a pound in size. A typical one measures about eight inches in length.

Some of the best sport is to be had by the fly-rod fishermen who works tiny spinner baits through the swift channels. Even an eight-inch spot, caught on this delicate tackle, will cut all sorts of capers before being subdued.

Our only regret is that the spot doesn't grow larger. It is a great sport fish although not as flashy as the largemouth since it isn't inclined to jump. But one will go deep to fight grudgingly in tight circles. The only thing it lacks is the weight to put authority in its argument.

PERHAPS many of us have a tendency to read what we can find on various virus infections while "laid up" with a chesty cold. The question has been brought up if you already have a cold does it make any difference if you go near someone else with a cold? The answer is yes, the other person's cold might be due to a different virus which you could catch and too, you could infect the other person with your virus.

WE have all been following developments in the JACK RUBY trial in Dallas. Last Friday a dramatic jail break was pulled off by seven prisoners and on their attempt to gain freedom they passed by the courtroom where the RUBY case was going on. One of the seven men held a woman hostage at the point of a gun made of soap but the spectators crowded in the hallway didn't know the gun was not the real item. Old pro, MELVIN BELL, chief defense lawyer for RUBY commented after hearing about the spectacular break — "Some ham convict tried to upstage me by breaking out of jail. BELL has been the leading attraction in Dallas for several days.

TALK about a tv commercial being loaded with plain corn—the soap company trying to sell one of the sorry products in this ever-widening field — sure had a humdinger on the other day. The announcer claimed the lady trying his product in the community laundry "didn't know she was on camera because he claimed they had installed the camera behind a wall." In a small town everything, everybody and even the local pets would know when a crew necessary for installation purposes rolled into town to install a live tv camera. The artificial statements "put in the dumb blondes mouth was disgusting." "Nuff said. Soap is soap—suds are suds—there is no magic in washing clothes. But if you must make a choice of soaps for dirty duds why not hide a camera in the henhouse and shoot a shot of the housewife using old-fashioned lye soap made in a black pot in the backyard. Now friends, that lye, coupled with some hard rubbing, would make the dirt fly.

Board Of Education Sets New Standards

The State Board of Education laid down new educational standards recently for school administrators and for graduate study by teachers.

W. W. Jackson of San Antonio, board chairman, described the action as "one of the most significant things the board has done in some time."

The board also adopted a set of figures on which to base local contributions to the foundation school program in 1964-65. The board estimated localities will be assigned $111,000 of the total cost. The amount is one-fifth of the program's estimated current annual cost.

Local school districts pay a portion of the estimated $111,000 based on the number of school-age children and on economic conditions in each county.

The new educational standards put stricter requirements on colleges approved by the board to offer master's degrees for which teachers get higher pay. They also change course requirements for master's degrees obtained as a qualification for the professional certificate for teachers.

The main revisions were these: Master's programs: To be eligible for higher pay because of a master's degree, under the minimum foundation school program, a teacher must get the degree from a school in which master's degrees are offered in at least three fields. Present requirements allow study at schools offering a master's degree in just one subject.

Professional certificate: a teacher must take at least 12 graduate semester hours (usually four courses) in the academic subject in which she majored for her bachelor's degree.

Administrator certificate: The new program calls for a master's degree and a professional teacher's certificate, as well as three year's teaching experience. The previous standard allowed an educator with only a bachelor's degree to obtain the administrator certificate, with sufficient additional post-graduate courses.

Effective dates are September 1, 1965, for the standard for colleges offering master's work and September 1, 1966, for the new professional and administrator certificate standards.

St. Clair, Mo., Chronicle: "It is amazing that there are still millions of Americans who are proud of working, proud of a job well done, proud of using their intelligence and who spurn the welfare graft. Indeed, those under 30 years old can remember nothing but the welfare state."

THE HIGH ROAD

L.W. PRENTISS

Handsome Highways

Modern highways are designed to be efficient, long-lasting . . . and handsome. Highway engineers nowadays definitely have an eye for beauty.

Of course, the design engineer must also be cost conscious. He is sure to be criticized if his highway design calls for "frills." Fortunately, beauty and frugality in highway design are not incompatible. The engineer often uses his ingenuity to design a highway that is handsome at no extra cost.

For instance, the modern practice is to take advantage of the natural terrain to design long, easy curves that blend pleasingly into the landscape without sacrificing the motorist's clear view of the road ahead. Such a road is not necessarily more expensive to build than one that is constructed in long, straight slashes, and it is likely to pay dividends in safety because it is less fatiguing to drive on.

A small stand of trees in the median strip of a multilane highway not only is attractive but also shields motorists from the headlight glare of opposing traffic. The same safety advantage is gained when side-hill topography makes it possible to build the two halves of a divided highway at different elevations. Sometimes a small stream flows between the two roadways of a valley highway.

Because highway engineers now have stronger materials to work with, new bridges and overpass structures are likely to have the lightness and openness associated with modern architecture. Structures are simpler, more graceful.

By working with nature instead of against nature, designers beautify roadside slopes and at the same time minimize drainage and snow control problems, thus holding down maintenance costs.

No doubt there are many beauty aids for highways that are still undiscovered. The whole science of roadbuilding has advanced tremendously in the last ten years, and new engineering developments are coming thick and fast. There is a growing recognition that the design features that tend to reduce drivers' tension are important in accident prevention. In other words, good-looking highways are likely to be safer highways!

As highway construction technology continues to advance, we can look forward to safer driving on more and more good roads that look good.

Prof Arrested By Reds Slated For ACC Speech

The Yale professor who was arrested by the Soviet Union and imprisoned for alleged spying in November, Dr. Frederick C. Barghorn, will speak March 13 at a history conference at Abilene Christian College.

Dr. Barghorn, professor of political science and chairman of Yale's council on Russian and East European studies, will speak on "History as It Is Being Written Behind the Iron Curtain."

On the same program Dr. Charles C. Griffin, specialist in Latin American history from Vassar College, will speak on "History as It Is Being Written in Latin America."

The two doctors will attend an informal luncheon March 13.

Dr. Barghorn has written four books on the Soviet Union and communism. He worked for the State Department and has served as consultant to the U. S. Information Agency, the U. S. Army War College and the Rand Corporation.

Dr. Barghorn's arrest and harassment at Russian hands was closely watched in the United States and for a time resulted in close scrutiny and apprehension of the cultural exchange program.

Patriotic Punch Due In New History Texts

Plans to put more patriotic punch into history study in Texas elementary schools were revealed Monday by Dr. J. W. Edgar, state commissioner of education.

"The fifth grade is a good time to emphasize patriotism, the early history of our country," Edgar told the State Board of Education in asking a 2-year extension of present fifth-grade history books.

After that, Edgar said, he hopes publishers will have new books containing the approach which he desires for Texas schools. The present texts deal mainly with geography and the fifth grade, plus a "survey type" treatment of U. S. history. The subject is taught in greater detail later.

Edgar estimated that textbook costs will rise sharply in the next few years, partly from adoption to books supporting new methods of learning but also from increasing number and prices of books. The board, largest book buyer in world, has budgeted $10,518,668 for purchases in the coming school year and $14,987,394 the following year.

Cost for furnishing books to individual students averages $4.17 this year but will rise to $6.06 in 1965, Edgar estimated.

Commissioner Edgar announced that teachers of English next fall can receive inservice training from specialists in six to eight centers, following a pattern already put into effect for teachers of mathematics, science and foreign language.

Miss Dorothy Davidson, agency consultant in English, said one purpose will be to improve writing ability.

"We really don't know very much about how you learn to write," she told the board. "We're trying to find out."

New Rules Aid Park Visitors

Consideration for the pleasure of millions patronizing Texas state parks has prompted several changes in park regulations effective March 1, it was announced by J. Weldon Watson, executive director of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

A modified curfew has been installed for all 58 state parks, banning recorded music, musical instruments and radio usage after 10 p.m. Heretofore, some of the larger and more popular parks allowing patio dancing, have had a later curfew.

Water skiing has been abandoned at Huntsville, Tyler, Bonham, Daingerfield, Meridian and Cleburne state parks because the lakes contain less than the 225 surface acres prescribed as the minimum.

Camping and shelter occupancy will be restricted to a maximum of ten days. There is no limit now and some visitors stay for long periods at

'Wait And See,' Fisher Declares

The only thing to do is to wait and see what the federal district court in Houston does, Rep. O. C. Fisher of San Angelo declared recently following the U. S. Supreme Court's Texas redistricting ruling.

Another West Texas Rep., Omar Burleson, of Anson, was less cautiously optimistic than Fisher.

"We were all expecting this decision," Fisher said. "And our hope, of course, is that the three-judge court in Houston does not create a chaotic situation by putting the decision into effect in the middle of the election process. That's never been done before in history in any state." Burleson said he thinks the situation is still serious. He said the legislature couldn't possibly do anything this year in time to avoid throwing the election machinery into confusion.

He even talked of alternatives, such as nomination by convention instead of primary, and nomination of candidates by numbered place rather than districts if the order goes into effect.

choice locations while others remain all summer.

Minors will not be permitted to stay overnight in a park unless chaperoned and accompanied by adults. Policing the parks sometimes has been complicated by problems arising from unrestrained youngsters.

Only authorized traffic will be permitted in state parks after 10 p.m. The limited parks staff frequently are compelled to stay on duty until very late hours to reduce situations developing from promiscuous late-hour car travel.

Latest figures show that 8,700 farm persons were killed in accidents last year, and 800,000 suffered disabling injuries.

Newspaper ads. Magazine ads. Catalogs and brochures. This is where sales get started. This is where people turn to ferret out the facts which allow an intelligent buying decision.

People can linger with a printed page: two minutes, five minutes, ten. They can come back to it again and again. They can compare one product with another. They can study styles, features,

Tips For Outdoorsmen

By VERN SANFORD
 Many boaters, particularly fishermen, take their outboard motors from the water at the first real cold snap and don't put them back again until the warming weather of early spring. For several months the motors are inactive. Usually they are put away with no thought as to maintenance.

As smoothly as they did when they were retired for the winter. Probably the most common mistake is to store a gas tank half full of fuel. Over the inactive time, this fuel goes bad. It still will run, mind you, but the old fuel causes a varnish-like substance to form inside the tank, and the old fuel will clog fuel pumps and carburetors. With a little pre-storage care, the motor will run as good as new come spring. This maintenance doesn't take long, but it might save you many dollars in unnecessary repairs.

When you get ready to take your motor out for the winter, first warm it up in water, while still on the boat, and remove the cowl. Put the motor in neutral and disconnect the fuel line. Then, while the engine is idling inject storage seal (available at your outboard motor dealer) into the carburetor air intake. As the carburetor starts to run dry, apply an extra liberal dose. This method will effectively distribute the seal throughout the crankcase.

Now remove the motor from the transom, being careful to keep it upright until all water has drained from the drive-shaft housing. Flush the cooling system with fresh water according to manufacturer's instructions.

Make sure all water drain holes in the gear housing are open and free, and the flushing plug is removed so that all water will drain out. This is very important. Trapped water may freeze and expand, thus cracking the gear housing and water pump housing.

Remove the spark plugs and inject a small quantity of storage seal into each spark plug hole. Re-install the plugs and operate the manual starter to distribute the storage seal. Then lubricate swivel pin and all linkages as directed by your owner's guide.

Remove the air vent screw and grease filler plug with their accompanying washers. Insert a tube of the lubricant recommended for your outboard's lower unit into the grease filler hole and inject new grease until old grease starts to flow out of the air vent hole, indicating the housing is filled. Next, replace the vent screw, filler screw and washers.

Spray the entire powerhead with a coating of corrosion preventative to protect the finish of all parts beneath the cowl. The exterior of the motor also can be sprayed to protect the finish.

Remove the propeller and clean the shaft with steel wool; then apply graphite grease and re-install the propeller.

If you plan on leaving the motor on your boat, perhaps leaving the entire rig on a parked trailer, disconnect the battery terminals. Clean the battery, paying particular attention to the removal of corrosion around terminal posts. Apply exterior corrosion and rust preventative. Check elec-

West Texas Chamber Advocates Cutting Johnsons Budget More

The National Affairs Committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce this week outlined areas in President Johnson's 1965 budget where as much as $8 billion can be cut from appropriations and $4 billion more from expenditures.

Dr. Joe T. Nelson of Weatherford, chairman of the committee, said the cuts were proposed as a means of preserving the economic benefits that will flow from tax reduction against their erosion by inflation.

The proposed cuts were based on recommendations developed by West Texas businessmen and representatives of state chambers on the Federal Finance Committee of the Council of State Chambers of Commerce. The West Texas Chamber is active in the council.

On the basis of this business study, the West Texas Chamber committee called for the rejection of six proposed new spending programs which would save approximately $1.5 billion in appropriations and $515 million in expenditures.

These programs include (1) omnibus Federal aid to education, (2) mass transportation, (3) youth employment and training, (4) community work and training, (5) domestic peace corps, and (6) attack on poverty.

The West Texas Chamber would advise the holding of foreign aid expenditures to $2.5 billion, which is $850 million less than the budget estimate. It would cut the appropriation from $3.4 billion to $2 billion. The reduction in foreign aid was seen as a means of improving our balance of payments position as well as reducing the budget deficit.

The Federal Finance Committee proposed a slow-down in three large-scale civilian research agencies. In urging a halt to further growth in spending by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Institute of Health, and the National Science Foundation, the Federal Finance Committee would cut $1.6 billion in appropriations and $678 million in expenditures. The committee commented that these agencies have been "growing at too fast a rate for efficient utilization of available resources of money and personnel."

Finding "no justification for further government-wide salary increases following the latest increase last month," the Finance Committee urged that the $544 million appropriation for another raise this year be eliminated.

Savings from reductions in outlays for certain Federal grand-in-aid program could, in the Finance Committee's opinion, amount to $711 million in appropriations and $372 million in expenditures.

Senior 4H Club Met At Courthouse

These would come from grants to schools in Federal-impact areas, area redevelopment (public facility grants), college facilities construction and manpower development and training.

Other areas where substantial savings might be effected include cutting back planned public works construction, $438 million in appropriations and $381 million in expenditures; curtailing Federal lending, $325 million in appropriations and $134 million in expenditures; and reductions in Defense Department requests for civil defense, family housing, military construction and major military programs totaling $1 billion in appropriations and $500 million in expenditures.

Warning that the appearance of spending restraint in the 1965 budget is "no more than transitory," the Finance Committee cited three significant factors that indicate an early resumption of multi-billion dollar annual expenditure increases. These include the $103.8 billion request for new obligational authority, budget plans to incur obligations of $105.3 billion in 1965, and the proposed initiation of several costly new spending programs.

About five percent of the nation's gross national product and employment originates in timber-based activities. Timber increases in value nearly 25 times between the stump and delivery of the finished products to the consumer.

According to an item in Parade magazine, Japanese manufacturers are moving into the U. S. home appliance market. They are preparing to offer numerous items here, running the gamut from toasters to automatic defrosting refrigerators.

The Senior 4-H Club met recently in the office of the county agent in the courthouse at 7:00 p.m.

Cindy Britton led the pledge to the flag, and gave the opening prayer.

The program was given by Smitty Smith and Tim Bristow, who showed "How to Present a Method Demonstration."

Refreshments of ice cream floats and sandwiches were served by Smitty Smith and Tim Bristow to those who attended.

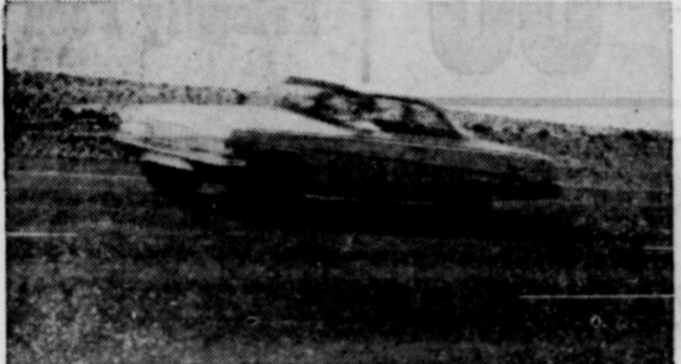

A Texas Independence Day theme was carried out in the decorations.

Members present were: Beverly Clements, Cindy Britton, Tim Bristow, Smitty Smith, Cindy Pickett, Judy Doshier, Glenda Heffington, Butch Robnett, and Larry White.

County Agent Bob Johnson, and County Extension Agent, Mrs. Mildred Eiland, were also present for the meeting.

The next meeting will be at 7:00 p.m. in the county courthouse, March 16.

COMPANY PRESIDENT TESTS TIRES AT 140 MPH

Laredo, Texas — United States Rubber Co. formally opened its new multi-million-dollar U. S. Royal Tire Proving Ground with a preview for a group of more than 150 representatives of the press, industry leaders and civic officials from all parts of the country.

The group was shown how scientists of the company put tires through their paces with jarring rides over cobblestone roadways, slippery trips across highly polished, wet concrete skid slabs, noisy runs on gravel roads and a 100-mile-per-hour circuit of the proving ground's four-lane, five-mile high speed track.

A high point of the day was a demonstration of a new experimental set of tires made with a new kind of rubber called Royalone or ethylene-propylene rubber. A "hot rod" with a 400-horsepower engine was equipped with the new tires and driven at 140 miles per hour—the maximum designed speed of the track—by George R. Vila, president and chief executive officer of United States Rubber Co.

The new Royalone tires, Harold N. Barrett, divisional president for tires forecast, will be in volume production in about three years.

They hold out the promise of superior high speed performance because they run cooler than present types of tires and are about 100 times more weather resistant. In addition, Royalone is potentially a low cost synthetic rubber which will mean that the motorist can get better value for his tire dollar, Mr. Barrett said.

President Vila acclaimed the new Laredo proving ground as the latest step in a 200-million-dollar world-wide expansion and modernization program of U. S. Rubber's facilities for the production, testing and distribution of tires.

Located on a site of more than 6,900 acres, the Laredo proving ground employs more than 100 people, operates a fleet of 80 test vehicles and logs more than 25,000,000 tire test miles annually.

Soil Short Course To Be Held March 12

A three-part soil fertilizer short course for all interested Martin County farmers will begin at 7:30 p.m. March 12 in the Valley View Community Center in Midland County, it was announced by County Agent Bob Johnson. Subsequent sessions of the short course will be held at the same time and place on March 19 and March 26.

This will differ from soil fertility meetings previously sponsored by the Extension Service in that the subject matter will be handled in more detail. Nitrogen will be the subject of the first meeting. Phosphorous and potassium will be discussed during the second meeting. The final program will include presentations on soil testing and fertilizer use in soil management.

The short course will be sponsored jointly by the Texas A&M Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Plant Food Educational Society. Certificates will be awarded to persons completing the course, Johnson stated.

Dr. C. D. Welch, extension soil chemist, and Harry O'Neal, extension agricultural engineer, will discuss soil testing and recommendation and fertilizer equipment and machinery, respectively, during one session.

Alex Pope, Best Fertilizer Co. agronomist, will discuss phases of nitrogen fertilizer while Billy C. Gunter, area extension agronomist, will discuss phosphorus placement.

Fertilizer economics will be discussed by Area Farm Management Specialist Charlie Taylor, while Dr. Don Longenecker of the Ysleta Experiment Station will discuss soil and water salinity problems during the short course.

Mrs. Jimmy Stallings and Mrs. Pat Gilliar flew to Los Angeles, California, last week where they attended to business in connection with the recent death of Mrs. Gilliar's father.
