Poverty In 'Paradise'

In 1959 when Red revolutionary Fidel Castro "liberated" Cuba, he promised to make it a "worker's paradise" in the best traditions of Communism, which is sometime called "the people's socialism."

In the year before Castro seized power, Cuban per capita income was in excess of $374 per year and ranked fourth among all Caribbean and Latin American nations, and fifth among all nations of the world in the percentage of national income paid to workers.

But today there is poverty and starvation in Castro's Community "paradise." Per capita income has dropped to $185 per year, and a "liberated" Cuban worker gets about $3.50 per week in wages—if they can find a job, and if they can curry enough favor to hold it.

In the Cuban "worker's paradise," where two-thirds of national income formerly went to those who worked, there now is heavy unemployment. For those who can find any kind of work, the pay is low, the hours long, and there is no overtime, no sick pay, no pay for holidays or Christmas bonus; and workers can be fired without cause or hearing, and can be and often are forced to work in the sugar cane fields without pay.

A sharp contrast is presented in nearby Puerto Rico — which Castro also has sworn to "liberate." Per capita income in Puerto Rico has risen steadily over the past 20 years, now exceeds $600 per year, or more than three times as high as it is in Castro's "worker's paradise."

Puerto Rico in 10 years increased its annual net income from $225 million to $638 million, and today it exceeds $1,750,000,000 a year. Twice as many families have incomes exceeding $3,000 as was the case a decade ago.

Why such great contrast in two lush, tropical islands? Puerto Rico enjoys private enterprise and individual freedom.

Cuba suffers under the galling yoke of Communist dictatorship.

It's the difference between private capitalism and public socialism.

Is 'B' Good Enough?

As all lawyers and most other people know, smart lawyers can get rich while incompetent ones can spend their days staring out unwashed windows of their shabby offices waiting for clients who don't show up.

This seems unjust to the social reformers who dream of the day when men will not only be created equal in ability and capacity, but also will be kept equal—by force if necessary.

The day seems a little nearer in the light of a decision by the faculty at Columbia University's law school. Hereafter, class rankings there will not be released to prospective employers.

The school, instead, now will merely issue a list of all those law students who earned a "B" average or better, and the employer can puzzle out for himself which prospects are best qualified.

This action follows a trend, as Harvard already issues only a list of the top 20 per cent of the class—presumably in alphabetical, not scholastic, order.

Columbia's decision to make a "B" as good as an "A," so far as worth to the gradeholder is concerned, in reality gives the indifferent student something at the expense of the diligent one. No one ever deprived the "B" student of what he has earned in the past, but the "A" student is to be denied recognition of his own industry.

Beyond that, there may be fewer "A" students. Grades are a great spur to achievement, especially when they can be converted into improved employment opportunity. Girls' parties and bull sessions are great competitors with study for students' time in those salad days, and self-discipline is hard. Published grades were a spur to study.

Young lawyers will enter a highly competitive world, and they may as well learn in school what kind of world it is. To deprive them of the experience is to delay their maturity. And this plan could result, as well, in poorly prepared lawyers at a time when laws and their importance are increasing.

If all this can rightly be termed a trend to mediocrity in education and preparation for life, it is regrettable for it does not represent the best of which we Americans are capable. A nation's standards of achievement are not advanced by pulling "A" performers down to a "B" average, but rather by challenging "B" performers to "come up higher" and by maintaining the incentives and recognition which call forth the best that industry and intelligence can achieve.

THE GRAHAM REPORTER: "Lake Graham, 'hottest fishing hole in West Texas' will be the site of a one-lure fishing tournament for the public on April 12, under the sponsorship of the Fort Worth Anglers Club."

DENVER CITY PRESS: "Fantasticly, Denver City, Yookum County, and Chamber of Commerce officials, goaded by an indicated growth, are mapping a fabulous comprehensive Master Plan for Growth and Development of Denver City and Yookum County, it was learned today. The master plan calls for community development and improvement to accommodate by 1969 a population of 75,000 persons, whose economy will be based upon a gigantic payroll from new chemical and petro-chemical industries slated for establishment in Denver City."

STAMFORD AMERICAN: "A loud explosion shattered the stillness of a pleasant afternoon Sunday and claimed the life of Mrs. Jesse Day, 74, at 310 East Campbell Street. Fire Chief Rowland and Peace Justice Roscoe Hood conducted an extensive investigation into the tragedy. Monday morning they announced that the explosion apparently resulted from an accumulation of natural gas, ignited by the pilot light on the water heater."

MATADOR TRIBUNE: "Prize money for the 24th annual Matador County Junior Livestock Show is ready for the county 4-H Club boys and girls and FFA boys who enter projects Saturday at the Matador school FFA building. Amount of money for prizes will be in the neighborhood of $682."

ANDREWS COUNTY NEWS: "A barbecue on the front lawn of the LBJ Ranch will be open to Andrews residents here Thursday and Friday nights, for $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. The menu, rather than barbecue and beans, will be music, slap-stick comedy, and entertainment served up by local teachers on the stage of the old high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m. both nights."

THE WINK BULLETIN: "Operation Teenager" is coming to Wink, either during the first part of May or else early in the fall. "Operation Teenager" consists of an appearance by four prisoners from Texas State Penitentiary at Huntsville, whose sentences total 741 years. They are continually on tour of the Lone Star State to tell public groups how they became involved in crime."

THE MUNDAY TIMES: "Surprised, as well as honored, were Rev. and Mrs. Rex L. Mauldin last Monday night, when they received the 'Citizens of the year' award at the annual Munday Chamber of Commerce banquet."

THE FORT STOCKTON PIONEER: "More than two hundred delegates are expected in Fort Stockton Friday for the ninth annual conference of the Seventeenth District of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers."

Health And Safety Tips

From The American Medical Association

Don't set fire to your clothing. You might get burned. Foolish and unnecessary admonition? Sounds that way. And yet, each year thousands of people are severely burned, some fatally, when their clothing catches fire.

If little girls wore trousers instead of skirts, the safety record would be better. Flimsy, flaring skirts of light, readily inflammable material, are easily ignited by brushing across a space heater or backyard grill.

Older folks often fall asleep sitting in a chair while smoking. The cigarette drops into the lap and—poof! Small boys are often fascinated by matches or mechanical lighters. They will even hide in the clothes closet to strike matches, if they can get hold of a packet.

The problem of the fire hazards of fabrics is so widespread and serious that it received consideration by the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association at a recent meeting. The AMA leaders agreed that an education program to create public awareness of fire hazards of clothing is needed.

Safety leaders offer a few pointers for minimizing the dangers around your home—

- Never take a chance with fire, no matter what kind of clothing is being worn.
- Be especially careful when wearing full, flowing, fluffy garments of sheer material, chiffon, voile, tulle, net or those with a long nap such as brushed rayon.
- Dress small children for play in clothes of slow burning material such as denim, or of fabrics treated to become fire resistant, and of rather plain design. Watch them carefully when dressed in lighter, flimsier garments so they will not be exposed to a possible source of ignition such as stoves, unprotected heaters, fires in unscreened fireplaces and outdoor open fires.
- Watch elderly people with infirmities of poor eyesight, shaky hands, poor balance, tendency to fall asleep in chairs while smoking. They should never smoke in bed. In fact, no one, whatever the age, should smoke in bed.

• Caution babysitters regarding the protection of children to keep their clothing from becoming ignited.

• Instruct all members of the family what to do if clothing should catch fire. Do not run. Drop to the floor and roll. Roll up in a rug, heavy coat, anything that will smother the flames. If outdoors, roll on the ground. Falling prone keeps the flames from mounting up to the face.

There are simple formulas for making clothing fire resistant. One consists of dipping the garment in a solution of 7 ounces of borax and 3 ounces of boric acid in two quarts of water. This makes the garment somewhat stiff, but it's safe from flames. Flame-proofing the flimsy costumes that children wear on Halloween, to parties or in school or church plays is an important safety move.

AMA Finds Soap's Good As Anything

The American Medical Association has stated that "... there does not appear to be any reason for avoiding regular soap and water washing of the face."

To further emphasize approval, an AMA bulletin called Comments on Cosmetics, explains: "Cleansing removes oil secretion, sweat, epithelial debris, soil from the environment, cosmetics, and a certain number of bacteria. It can be most effectively carried out by means of water plus a mild soap or detergent."

It might be added that suds are not only quick and effective, but are also the most inexpensive beauty aids known to woman!

Bible Comment—

We Should Remember God's All-Seeing Eye

Nothing stands out more strongly from the Hebrew Scriptures of the Old Testament than the fact of God's all-seeing Eye.

The Eye is symbolic of the presence and judgments of God as He observes the actions of men and discerns between right and wrong.

The Psalmist expressed it in "Whither shall I go from Thy spirit? Or whither shall I flee from Thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, Thou art there; if I make my bed in hell; behold, Thou art there. The darkness and light are both alike to Thee."

The consciousness of that presence filled, and should fill today, thoughtful men with awe. That inexorable Eye upon them quickened a sense of fear. "The fear of the Lord," one wrote, "is the beginning of wisdom." There is much in the Old Testament concerning the fear of God.

Thus, they prayed, "Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me and know my thoughts; and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."

It takes courage, as well as knowledge and faith, to make a prayer like that. But the judgments of God have a meaning and significance beyond individual character and conduct. A world without judgment would be a world without moral sanctions.

To whatever heights man may aspire, he can have no higher aspiration than to reach that spiritual peak upon which he may stand and say: "Judge me, O God."

THE DEPENDABLES: SUCCESS CARS OF '64

We have designs to get you in our power

Our engineers are a wily group of guys who spend most of their time dreaming up ways to win your approval. Take the Dodge Polara 500. You'd be hard-pressed to find a car that's got more going for you. Deeply-padded, contour-formed bucket seats. All-vinyl upholstery. Silt-to-silt carpeting. Padded dash. Center console. And lots of other trimmings. But that's only the half of it.

Perhaps our approach to power will further illustrate the point.

With the Polara 500 you aren't baked in on a certain engine. You can choose from a standard 318 cu. in. V8 up to a street-version of our wallowing, all-out 426 cu. in. Ramcharger V8. Compromise? Nope. We just feel that a freedom of choice is the surest road to your approval. That's our way of doing business—giving you lots of car and lots of satisfaction at a price that's hard to quarrel with.

Your Dodge Dealer will be glad to demonstrate the point.

Tomato Plants Ideal For Novice Gardener

Every garden should have at least three or four tomato plants. They are easy to grow, can be trained against a fence or trellis, or will grow in the bed with flowers. Some of the hybrids yield large fruit, including Burpee's Big Early. Rutgers and Mar-globe are old tried and true varieties. Best of all for the amateur gardener is the hardy Porter, with its small round fruit with a delicious flavor. Buy a few plants from the nurseryman and set them out early. Provide hotcaps or berry-carts with which to cover the tender plants in case of a sudden cold spell. Tomato plants require fertilizing, feeding with superphosphate if they tend to shed blooms, and plenty of water and sunshine. Cared for adequately they bear fruit through a long season, giving the gardener home-ripened tomatoes for table and canning.

Cow Country Novel To Be Published

If the honest-to-goodness West Texas cowboy has a sparse crop of grass on his land, he might comment, "There is not enough grass to wad a smooth bore single-barrel shotgun."

In a seasonable year, however, the cowboy's description would be that "the grass is belly deep to a camel."

In a new book, "If I Can Do It Horseback: A Cow-Country Sketchbook," published March 16 by The University of Texas Press, John Hendrix discusses the language of the range.

"As the men of the sea have a jargon almost unintelligible to the landlubber, so has the cowboy of West Texas a language of words and phrases to describe his physical condition or the condition of the cattle, horses, grass and men of the outfit that he works for," Hendrix says.

The author notes that "when two men of the range meet along the fence line, the conversation flows smoothly and freely."

After the meeting each man "goes his way with a complete knowledge of the other's affairs and the condition of the outfit—a knowledge that has been arrived at without waste of words," Hendrix writes.

Range language is only one of the many aspects of West Texas ranch life and the cattle industry which Hendrix discusses in his new book. He examines economic influences and technological changes as well as the personal aspects of range life.

He tells about the operation of the cow camp; the activities of the men, their duties and entertainments, their clothes, food and horses. He describes the rise of some of the "cattle kings," including the Waggoners and the Bur-netts, and the development of such towns as Quanah and Colorado City. He discusses

Outdoors In Texas

It has been said that a black bass by any other name would still be a heckuva fighter.

No doubt this is true. And surprisingly, you don't find black bass by many other names. Just plain bass seems to satisfy most everyone.

But in this respect, the black bass is in a select class. Other fish are burdened with aliases and nicknames. A man not familiar with local jargon might be catching one of his hometown favorites and never realize it.

For example, in the High-land Lakes of Central Texas he might take himself a mess of crappie. But over in East Texas he'll be catching white perch, although it is one and the same fish.

In North Texas, anglers take an astronomical number of sand bass. But in Central Texas it is the white bass, and in parts of East Texas the striper.

The bullhead catfish seldom goes by its true moniker. Rather it is called either a mud cat or a pollywog.

King mackerel are better known as kingfish and Spanish mackerel as simply mackerel.

Spotted weakfish are called spotted trout and channel bass are redfish.

The bowfin in East Texas is known as a grindle, and the pickerel as a jack or pike.

Flathead catfish are more commonly known as yellow cat, and channel cat frequently are called forktails.

Even though a fish may sometimes go by the same spelled name, pronunciation will vary with different areas. Crappie are called "crap-pie" the geography of West Texas cattle country and the development, problems and achievements of typical ranches.

The book is a compilation of articles which originally appeared in the Cattleman magazine.

Hendrix, who died in Sweet-water in 1952, was a West Texas writer, rancher and promoter. Born in Gainesville, he grew up in Quanah and attended the old Goodnight and Clarendon Colleges at Clarendon.

in some places and "crop-pie" in others.

This is bad enough just within the boundaries of Texas. But get outside the state and the misinterpretation is compounded.

On the Texas coast, for instance, we catch a catfish-like creature which we call the ling. But over in Mississippi, natives refer to it as the lemonfish. In Florida it goes by its true handle, cobia.

Aliases for the common crappie are endless, being different with almost every area and state. Parts of Texas are among the few places where it goes by its true name.

The more a person travels, the more he meets this confusing overlapping of nick-names.

In the Far West, a man might catch a Mackinaw. But in Canada he will be taking a lake trout. That's its true name.

The redfish of the Texas coast often is called the red drum along the Atlantic seaboard. And the Texas' skip-jack is better known by its true name, the ladyfish, in other parts of the United States.

Over in Florida, people call it the mudfish, although its real name is bowfin. And there the crappie are called speckled perch.

In Texas the common sunfish is better known as perch or brim, while in other areas it probably will be called a bream.

The spotted bass which is found in plentiful numbers in Central Texas, particularly in streams like the Llano and Guadalupe, frequently is referred to as the smallmouth bass. But it certainly isn't a true smallmouth bass. Actually it's a distinct specie of its own.

In some areas the bigmouth black bass might be called a trout or green trout, but generally just the handle "bass" will suffice.

There is one fish, however, that seems to carry just one name no matter where you might find it. That's the carp. Fishermen everywhere have called the carp many impolite names which can't be repeated here, but when it gets right

Auto Industry Sees Tax Cut As Trigger To Sales

Many car industry leaders are convinced that the recently signed federal tax cut bill will trigger the biggest spring spending boom in automotive history. They said new car sales for calendar 1964 passed the 1,000,000 mark February 24—well in advance of signing of the tax cut bill. Some of the crystal ball gazers, who had predicted a third straight 7,000,000 sales year for the car industry, have raised their prediction since passage of the tax cut. Production men taking their cue from the optimistic sales projections, have kept assembly lines busy. February production of an estimated 677,000 cars and 130,000 trucks set new highs for any February. The previous car high was 675,495, set in 1955, while the previous truck high of 127,907 dated back to 1960.

Physical Fitness Tops 4-H Youths' Health Goals

The National 4-H Health program this year aims to improve personal fitness and community health, announces the National 4-H Service Committee.

Representing the fourth H in the club's four-leaf clover emblem, health activities or projects are expected to be completed by some 670,000 boys and girls from coast to coast. Best efforts will be rewarded through the program's sponsor, Eli Lilly and Company.

Health medals, trips to the National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago, and $500 college ing 4-H'ers. Last year more than 5,000 members earned scholarships await hard-working 4-H'ers. Last year more than 5,000 members earned the gold-filled health medal, according to the 4-H Service Committee. This was an increase of about 300 winners over 1962.

With emphasis on fitness, members and local club leaders as well plan to take periodic inventory of health habits as outlined in the 1964 health bulletin published by the 4-H Service Committee.

The idea-packed bulletin down to facts, the fisherman probably will admit that he's just caught himself a carp.

Same can be said for the gar. It goes by the simple handle of gar just about anywhere you find it. But the carp and gar are in the minority. Most of our gamefish are showered with nicknames and aliases.

Still, it is as the man said, a black bass by any other name . . . still remains the black bass.

reminds club members that "health is first an individual affair and next a family affair." And, "because we cannot isolate ourselves from society, we have a responsibility to our neighbors to make our communities safe and healthful."

That is the sum and substance of the health program. Individual club members are urged to have an annual physical examination, visit a dentist regularly, have eyes tested and take other preventive measures to insure good health.

The importance of nutrition to over-all health is another area for study and one in which the entire family should be involved.

Among club projects suggested are: tours to hospitals, waterworks, sewage disposal plants; participation in health campaigns such as tuberculosis x-rays, mental health education, summer camps and first aid.

As a result of early experience in health care, scores of former 4-H girls have entered the nursing or home economics professions. Many boys have found careers in medicine or dentistry, in veterinary medicine or health re-

Negro Group Votes To Back Yarborough

The Texas Council of Voters, an all-negro political group, refused Saturday to endorse a negro candidate for governor and chose to support Don Yarborough in the race.

The action came during the group's 4th annual convention. More than 200 negroes from throughout the state attended.

The negro candidate rejected was M. T. Banks, a retired minister from Beaumont.

"They asked me not to run for governor," Banks said after the official backing for Yarborough had been taken. "I told them I have filed and paid my $1,000 fee and that my name would be on the May 2 ballot."

The Cooperative Extension Service puts the program into action, and invites inquiries and enrollment. Copies of the 1964 National 4-H Health bulletin can be obtained free from the county extension office.

Veronal, a sleep-producing drug, was named for Verona, the sleepest city the discoverer knew.

A HUNDRED years ago, after the war between the states was over, an intolerant majority in Congress disregarded the Constitution, took away seats from duly elected members of the House and Senate, and sent troops to certain Southern states to compel the legislatures, at bayonet point, to "ratify" the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution. A "civil rights act" was subsequently passed, but the Supreme Court later declared it unconstitutional. Today, nearly a century later, a frightened if not terrorized majority of nincompoths in the U. S. House—stampeded by brick-throwing, laying-down, illegal "demonstrations" has passed a so-called "civil rights" bill which actually takes away some of the rights of all people. The bill they passed is nothing more than a civil wrongs bill. If the U. S. Senate should now pass the same bill, a federal POLICE FORCE will be authorized to enter any kind of business—not just hotels or restaurants—and investigate whether its hiring or promotion of employees is conducted on the basis of racial or religious "discrimination." The legislation, if enacted, makes a mockery of the Constitution. TO YIELD TO PRESSURE FOR AN UNCONSTITUTIONAL LAW because of sympathy for social injustice is to say that the end justifies the mean. We suggest YOU wire RALPH YARBOROUGH today and demand to know whether he is going along with the true TEXAS TRADITION or join the camp of the WILDEYES who never stopped to give a moment's thought to DAVID CROCKETT, WILLIAM BARRETT TRAVIS, JIM BOWIE, or the other great sons of America who died in the Alamo. RALPH needs to tell Texas. We demand to know if he is running around with MARTIN LUTHER KING or JAMES STEPHEN HOGG?

THE other day I heard about an incident that literally shook me. It could be classified as trivial I suppose, but it needs publicity, this incident. A lady sent a cake to a neighbor on one of her lovely plates while in a sharing mood. Now, the plate graces her neighbor's china cabinet. She has it standing up there right out in the open. Obviously, the neighbor doesn't realize where the plate came from in the first place. She possibly just doesn't remember. It is the custom in this community to be generous, friendly, and neighborly, but for crying out loud—take the plate back. That reminds your writer to gather up not one but two plates and rush them back over to MRS. FLORA MORRIS. She presented us with a cake for Easter, made from my late mother's recipe and before that a delicious upside down pineapple cake made from her own recipe. Folks living in glass houses ought not to write paragraphs like this.

WE read recently where a Farm Bureau down in East Texas planned to sponsor an old-time political rally. We still like the idea of getting every candidate for public office on record just WHY he wants to serve, for what purpose. We've always regretted the passing of the old time, all-day political meetings. Candidates would all be invited to some big gathering at a park or country church, have dinner on the grounds with the crowd that had gathered to see and hear them, and then, with their stomachs filled and bodies strengthened by such delicacies as fried chicken, steak, country sausage, ham, roast, potatoes, salads and pies of all kinds, many vegetables, biscuits, hot rolls, golden brown cornbread, cobbler, cakes, iced tea, (they never served coffee in the summer) the candidates would mount the rostrum and work it off by tearing into each other with a ferocity unknown to today's politicians. The leaves on the trees would tremble, dust would rise from the ground, and sleeping hound dogs would slink from those terrible voices which would thunder as long as the candidates could hold out. And then everybody would go home, vote as they pleased on election day and be happy with the memory of a pleasant day spent.
