Bible Comment—
 Blessedness Of Work Is Told

Work is more than just a task, more than a drudgery. Saint Paul says, "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

The spirit in which one's work is performed is important. One may take great satisfaction in performing his part in the fabrication of finished, marvelous products.

Also, there is a great compensation in the fact that every monotonous routine has been offset by shorter hours of labor, which leaves the worker more time for family and the real business of living.

Nevertheless, the old debate remains as to whether work is a curse or a blessing. The original conception of Genesis suggests that it is something of a curse: — "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread" —. But in the Old Testament that conception received another interpretation. To extract from the soil abundance and prosperity became a national and social ideal. A glory was attached to work, and to achievement of craftsmanship.

The blessedness of work, too, became more emphasized and vindicated in all that Jesus said "... My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." — Work was what Jesus called His "Father's business." It was Christian work, and as such Paul commended it by precept and example.

And St. Paul had a message as a tent-maker as well as in the role of an Apostle and Christian leader.

Understanding

A better understanding is needed, among American citizens as well as among the people of the newer nations of the world. The Wall Street Journal recently put it this way:

"In this country, profits have eliminated much poverty, created better working conditions, made possible the vast company insurance and pension programs, supported the government and, for icing, produced the good works of philanthropy. It is a pity, for the sake of the emerging nations and our own, that these facts are not well understood."

In 1963 alone, business paid an average of $1,431 for fringe benefits for each employe, including payments for vacations, holidays, sick leave, rest periods, social security and unemployment compensation taxes, workman's compensation, employee pension and insurance premiums, and other benefits — all of which must come out of profits.

U. S. Judge Sees Pretrial Sessions As Fund-Savers

When U. S. Dist. Judge Joe Ewing Estes finishes the spring term of federal court in San Angelo next week it will mark the end of his 10th year as presiding judge of the San Angelo court.

During the time he has spent on the bench here hundreds of attorneys have argued thousands of cases before him, but his enthusiasm for seeing justice done, swiftly and inexpensively, has continued to grow.

Judge Estes, now 61, has seen a lot of changes made in the structure and personnel of the Northern District of Texas since he succeeded Judge William Hawley 10 years ago, but are Dee Ann Donaham of Odessa, Kay Phillips of Brownfield, Shirley Moore, Appaloosa Horse Club of Midland, Alice May Zant, Andrews County Sheriff Posse, and Becky Saunders of Stanton.

two of the things that impressed him most soon after he took the bench here have become even more dear to him during his tenure — the federal court procedure and the atmosphere in San Angelo.

Always a strong advocate of pretrial conferences and the federal court system of full disclosure of evidence, Judge Estes has seen the economics of the system provided time and time again.

His current term of federal court here is a classic example of the economy of such a procedure. Since the term began Monday all jury cases that were set for trial have been resolved in pretrial conference without the necessity of calling a jury.

"All motions were argued, all witnesses listed, the general nature of the testimony presented, and all documents to be introduced were exchanged by the attorneys," Judge

Estes said.

"All the facts not in genuine dispute were stipulated and the remaining issues of fact and law to be tried were stated. This placed the attorneys in a position to intelligently evaluate the settlement and made it possible for the court to enter summary judgments in the cases where there was no genuine issue of fact," he added.

Judge Estes figured that settling the cases out of the courtroom saved the taxpayers at least $500 per day, since it costs between $15 and $20 per day to call in a juror. Thirty-five jurors had been subpoenaed for the term of court.

Jurors in federal court receive $7 per day plus 10 cents per mile for travel expenses. Some jurors come from as far away as Goldthwaite.

In all cases the attorneys for both sides have taken all the needed depositions and made discovery of all facts pertaining to the case before the pretrial conferences were held.

"The result of these pretrial proceedings provided for in the federal rules for civil procedure was that all the cases were disposed of by just compromise and settlement at a great saving of time and expense for the litigants, witnesses, jurors, the court and the public," Judge Estes said.

In addition to the savings in time and money, Judge Estes said the pretrial proceedings also provide both sides in a suit a more equitable application of the law.

"The law is far too complex and uncertain to be quickly and fairly applied in the heat of a trial," he said.

His first impression of San Angelo — a contrast to his home district in Dallas — has continued through his 10-year tenure.

When two new U. S. judgeships were formed in the district, it left each judge with his home district and one district away from home.

It was left up to Judge Estes, as chief justice of the district, to assign the away-from-home districts to the five federal judges. He assigned himself San Angelo.

"This is the real west," Judge Estes said. "It's ranching country and an extreme change from Dallas. Even the cases are different. Some of the suits we get in Dallas get involved with property that has changed hands all across the nation with banks and insurance companies from Chicago to Dallas involved," he added.

So the judge's second home is not only a change of scenery but a variation of his work.

When Judge Estes is not sitting in judgment on a case he is taking an active part in keeping procedures up to date and keeping members of the legal profession informed. He is a member of the committee on trial technique of the Judicial Conference of the United States, and after closing the term of court here he will participate in a seminar for new federal judges in Denver, Colo. the week of June 28.

During the seminar he will conduct a discussion on "conducting civil jury trials."

Recently appointed by the Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court to a committee on uniform rules of evidence, Judge Estes is one of five federal judges in the nation who have been asked to formulate the rules of evidence for federal courts.

Five judges, five lawyers and five authors — professors from the committee undertaking the job.

Spray new Caparol after cotton is 6 inches high to control weeds.

Control most annual broadleaf weeds and grasses in cotton with new Caparol® herbicide. Simply apply as a directed spray to the base of your cotton when it is six inches or higher.

You'll get good knockdown of weeds and grasses that are less than two inches high... plus some killing action through the roots of later-germinating weeds.

The cost of this treatment, when Caparol is applied in a 10 inch band, can be as little as 85 cents per acre. Compare this with the $2-3 per acre it would cost you for hoe hands.

Later on in the season, you can go in and make a layby application of new Caparol to control weeds until the cotton is high enough to shade them out.

With new Caparol, you'll have no reason to worry about soil residue carryover to harm next year's spring-seeded crops.

Ask your supplier for new Caparol.

Former Martin County Demo Agent Aiding In Cereal Test

(Editor's Note: Miss Joellene Vannoy, who is mentioned in the accompanying article, was the second home demonstration agent in Martin County, serving here in the early 1930's. She is currently in Hong Kong working as a nutritionist. The write-up about Miss Vannoy is from a Hong Kong newspaper. Miss Vannoy lived at the home of Mrs. Charles Ebbesol while in Stanton.)

Since the beginning of the year Hong Kong has been the testing ground for a new revolutionary cereal. World Wheat, which has been developed specially for countries in the Far East.

The new cereal has a greater nutritional value than rice, Miss Joellene Vannoy, a nutritionist representing two American wheat bodies, Wheat Associates and Bulgar Associates, said yesterday.

However, she said, the new grain is not intended to replace rice, but is to give more variety.

The new cereal, she said, was developed by the United States Department of Agriculture for Oriental countries.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Sadler of Portland, Oregon, are visiting his sisters, Mrs. Cecil Bridges and Mrs. Jim Tom.

Prototype quantities of the grain have been shipped here since she arrived on Jan. 11. It was distributed through nine welfare organizations, to rooftop schools, orphanages, hospitals, street kitchens, nurseries and day care centers to test its palatability here, she said.

Market
Miss Vannoy has also been working with the cooks of these organizations showing them how to use the new cereal and demonstrating its applications in cooking.

The test was to see if the cereal was liked enough to be produced for the commercial market, she said.

Results so far have shown that local people like the cereal, she said. It was now only a matter of finding a cheap enough process to produce it at a realistic commercial level, she added.

Miss Vannoy has also been promoting the use of another type of cereal, Bulgar wheat, in Hong Kong.

Both types are identical in properties except that in cooking, World wheat retains its grain shape while Bulgar wheat becomes "mushy," she said.

Generators On Farms In Emergencies

Storms can bring electric power failure to the farm and home. And with farm operations becoming more and more electrified, farsighted farmers are preparing for this emergency by installing stand-by generators.

W. S. Allen, agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says electric power suppliers are constantly improving their systems and power failures are becoming less frequent. But nature's catastrophes cannot be predicted and still cause interruptions in service.

Farmers may select generators driven by completely automatic engines or by farm tractors. Tractor driven types, being less expensive, are most popular, since farmers have less money invested in a piece of equipment that will be used only occasionally. These types may be belt or power-take-off driven.

Generator size can be determined by estimating the amount of power needed to run full-time equipment. It is usually not practical, the engineer points out, to install a generator that will handle

Slayton: On Wink, this is one of the very first projects that came across my desk after I became Commissioner. I was told this was done prior to my being Commissioner, that this was examined very, very carefully and there was great concern whether this was going to be the proper thing to do, but after thorough examination it was decided it had some economic basis.

Thomas: You were cautioned, not once but at least three times about this. Your judgment has not turned out to be too good on Wink, Mr. Slayton.

Slayton: It has come along. Thomas: You are spending the money.

Slayton: It has produced new structures as it was supposed to do.

Thomas: How many? What are they?

Slayton: Twenty-five new residential structures.

Thomas: $10,000 a house. That is $250,000. How much tax revenue is that going to produce?

Slayton: I do not have the figures here.

Thomas: This would not pay out in a hundred years by any stretch of the imagination.

Slayton: We have rehabilitated 19, plus 11 new commercial structures.

Thomas: What is the value? Slayton: I do not have the value.

Thomas: What is a commercial structure? Slayton: Small stores.

House-Passed Redistricting Plan Before State Senators

The job of rearranging Texas' congressional districts moved to the Senate and a probable joint conference committee this week.

House members passed on voice vote Wednesday a committee-drawn plan to redistribute the state's 23 seats in the House, giving populous Dallas and Harris counties one more congressman each.

Eighteen attempts to amend the bill failed by top-heavy votes. House sentiment was reflected in a 118-24 record vote on tentative approval.

Strategy Cited

Leadership strategy reportedly was to send the measure to the Senate with a big vote to strengthen the House bargaining position in the expected conference committee talks.

The measure will go to conference if the Senate passes it in a different form and the House rejects the changes.

Texas faces an August 1 deadline, set by a federal court in Houston, to draw new districts of substantially equal population. Districts of equal size would have 416,508 people.

Rep. Gus Mutscher of Brenham, chairman of the House Redistricting Committee, said the biggest deviation in the bill from average population is 6 per cent.

East Texas

Re-election campaigns between incumbent congressmen could be forced by the bill in two East Texas districts.

Congressmen John Dowdy of Athens and Lindley Beckworth, Gladewater would go in one district, Reps. Wright Patman of Texarkana and Ray Roberts of McKinney in another.

Major attempts to revise the bill were aimed at meeting objections to its treatment of Tarrant, Bexar, Ector and Midland counties. Other defeated amendments would have shifted counties in the Rio Grande Valley, parts of East Texas and the South Plains cotton counties.

Bitter Debate

Most bitter debate came when Rep. Frank Cahoon of Midland, the legislature's only Republican, tried to substitute a bill drawn by a GOP committee. The substitute met Cahoon's objection to separation of Midland and Ector (Odessa) counties.

"This entire hassle was brought on by a Republican-filed lawsuit. Now they demand we pass this bill and accuse us of gerrymandering if we don't take their bill hook, line and sinker. Its sole purpose is to elect Republicans," asserted Rep. Gene Hendryx of Alpine.

Cahoon's amendment was tabled 124-18.

The bill gives a congressman to the major part of Tarrant

County. A northern slice with 59,000 people is joined with a North Texas district including Wichita Falls, Denton and Sherman-Denison.

Southern Tarrant County, with 63,000, joins South Dallas County's 59,000 people in a mainly rural district extending southward to the northern boundary of Harris County.

Central Bexar County would receive one congressman. But North Bexar County's 125,000 people would be in a giant district running west and including Ector County. The rest of the county, 145,886 people, would be in a Southwest Texas district including Maverick County on the Rio Grande.

Rep. Jake Johnson of San Antonio failed to change the bill to preserve all but a thin eastern section of Bexar County intact in one district.

"All they've left San Antonio is the Alamo," mourned Johnson, who said all of its military installations except Ft. Sam Houston would be taken from Congressman Henry Gonzalez' Central San Antonio district.

Nation's Unemployment Up After Rash Of Job Hunting

An unexpected increase in teen-agers seeking jobs boosted the nation's unemployment rate to 4.9 per cent in April, foreshadowing a critical jobless youth problem when schools let out for the summer.

The April jobless rate was two-tenths of one per cent over the March figure of 4.7 per cent, the lowest in seven years.

Despite the boost in teenage unemployment, the actual number of jobless persons fell 200,000 to a total of 3,552,000. Total civilian unemployment rose nearly a million to 71 million in April.

The rise in the jobless rate was due to an increase of about 700,000 in the civilian labor force.

Asst. Commissioner Harold Goldstein of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the rise in youth unemployment was largely due to the fact that the monthly survey was taken during the Easter vacation week when many school-age youngsters are seeking temporary jobs.

The teen-age jobless rate jumped from 13.9 per cent to 15.2 per cent, which Goldstein described as a statistically significant change.

However, the rate for married men, regarded as an important indicator of the gravity of unemployment, was unchanged at 2.4 per cent. The rate of adult women was also unchanged at 4.6 per cent.

Serious Situation

Goldstein said the overall employment situation, which has been steadily improving for the past year, was basically unchanged.

But he warned of the serious youth unemployment situation this summer which is expected to hit a peak total of some two million by June. The steadily worsening jobless problem among teenagers and young adults is due to the rapidly growing population, particularly among the post-World War II babies now approaching maturity.

The unemployment rate of 4.9 per cent includes an adjustment to reflect expected seasonal trends in the labor force. Without the seasonal adjustment, the April rate was 4.8 per cent. A bureau spokesman said the pure jobless rate is higher than the adjusted rate in some months, and lower in others.

Philosopher Doubts World-Wide Television Will Bring Universal Understanding To Man

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw has found out about the new television satellite, his letter this week in-ates.)

Dear editor:

While I've never figured out how television pictures can be sent through the air even ten miles, I understand now they've got a satellite up called Early Bird which enables live pictures to be sent to practically any spot in the world.

Under this system, Hullabaloo and Hazel can be seen in Europe the same night they're seen here, although what we'd get in exchange hasn't been indicated and there's no way of telling who'd get the worst of the deal. It's hard to see though how we could come out the losers.

But what interested me about this was a comment I read in a paper in snatches last night during commercials that the Early Bird television satellite, by bringing instantaneous news from the rest of the world to this country and the same from this country to the rest of the world, will "help mutual understanding more than anything that has gone on heretofore."

I have thought this statement over and I'm not sure about it. What I mean is, we've had direct, live television from Washington, New York, Alabama and other places to this Martin County grass farm for several years, but still there are lots of times when I doubt if we understand each other. Also, I'm not sure a live television picture from Vietnam will tell us what's going on other there, especially when the people living on the scene right there in that country don't know what's going on.

There are some members of Congress, right there in Washington where they can see live without any television, who don't know what happened on the floor yesterday.

In fact, it's hard for me to believe that the reason the world's in the uncertain state it is today is that we haven't seen enough of each other's television programs, live or shipped over on film.

I'm not undermining television, I like it, it beats plowing any day, but is anybody is counting on it to bring understanding and peace among nations, he's been getting some different channels from the ones I get out here.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Losers, Weepers

Many Americans, who now carry a wallet stuffed with credit cards instead of cash, are warned that they had better keep a close eye on those little pieces of plastic or metal and treat them as carefully as if they were money.

Cards has become a flourishing illegal business in the United States. In a precedent-setting decision, a New York Supreme Court last year found a man liable for bills of several hundred dollars run upon the credit card which he had lost.

This situation has led the editor of the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) Oak Ridger to offer these simple rules to avoid misuse of your credit card:

If you receive unsolicited cards in the mail, destroy or return them. . . . When you use a card, make sure you get it back. . . . Don't lend your card, unless you are prepared to assume full responsibility. . . . Save receipts and compare them with your month-end statements. . . . Report a theft or loss of card immediately in writing to the issuing company.

Finders, keepers! Losers, weepers — unless you notify the company quickly so the card can be canceled.

Credit cards, rightly used, are as good as cash. They should be carefully guarded.

The American Petroleum Institute reports that U. S. reliance on oil as a primary source of energy resulted in total domestic consumption of more than 4 billion barrels of petroleum products during 1964. This is the equivalent of almost 900 gallons for every American man, woman and child.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH
MARTIN-HOWARD-MIDLAND SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT
Jack Buchanan, Bob Cox, Bernard Houston, Larry Shaw,
J. D. Crawford.

Water, our most important resource is abused more severely than any of our other natural resources. Only nature makes water and there will be no more than exists today. This fact alone makes the conservation of water resources. But this is rapidly changing. Increased use by industry, recreation and urban users is demanding a higher share of this resource. Some time in the near future, agriculture could be called upon to justify its use of water. In some areas, a higher priority than agriculture may direct water to other uses.

As our population increases so does the demand for water. The daily consumption of water per person now is about 1,300 gallons per day. By 1980, it is estimated this will rise to 2,300 gallons per day.

The what that goes into one loaf of bread requires 115 gallons of water to grow. One gallon of gasoline requires 7-10 gallons of water in the refining process. These examples show the tremendous need for water. To supply all industries now and in the future will require careful planning.

What about agriculture? Each cutting of alfalfa hay requires some 325,000 gallons of water per acre to grow it. One acre of cotton requires some 800,000 gallons to mature 1 crop. Some citrus and vegetable crops require a million or more gallons of water per acre per season. Brush and weeds on our grasslands in Texas waste about 146 million acre feet of water annually. This is 40 percent of the state's total use. Irrigation uses account for the greatest use of water today.

What can we do? A lot. The Martin - Howard Soil Conservation District is actively fighting the problems of water conservation. The supervisors are conscious of the fact that water sustains life and that our future generations are dependent upon our wise use and planning of this great resource.

One of the most effective practices of water conservation on cropland is the use of parallel or standard terraces. Terraces hold rainfall upon the slopes and spreads the water evenly over the field. Contour farming with the terraces further helps to distribute the water between terraces.

Another practice that is saving millions of gallons of water annually is controlling undesirable brush on our grasslands. Brush control and followup grazing management allows the better grasses to become established and productive. A good grass cover is very effective in reducing runoff of water.

A properly designed and operating irrigation system is important to any water conservation project. Irrigation water waste is widespread. Too often too little or too much water is applied resulting in poor water efficiency. Timely applications with the right amount of water applied each time is needed with each irrigation system. The district's objective is to have a conservation irrigation system on each farm where there is irrigation.

A special project to get more conservation education taught in our local schools is now being pushed. The supervisors want each boy and girl to receive training in the importance of our resources. This training early in life will shape their thinking and attitudes for the future.

Conservation of our water resources is at a critical point. No longer is it just a farmer's or rancher's problem. It now belongs to all — rural and urban. Remember, you can live longer without food than water.

Masons Slate Area Workshop

A workshop has been scheduled for officers and members of Masonic Lodges in this area at 7:30 p.m. May 17. The meeting will be held at Staked Plains Lodge 598 in Big Spring. Officers of Stanton, Coahoma, Garden City, and both Big Spring lodges are especially invited.

The workshop is part of a statewide, semi-annual program authorized by the Grand Master of Masons in Texas, J. Carroll Hinsley of Austin. The program is conducted for nearly 1,000 Texas Masonic lodges with a membership of 250,000 men. The Masonic Order is the state's largest fraternal organization.

The purpose of the workshop is to enable Masons to study common problems of Masonic lodges and their operations. The workshop will be conducted by M. George Lane, an Odessa merchant and chairman of a Masonic Workshop area which includes 11 counties.

Grand Master Hinsley stressed the importance of attendance by all lodge officers and emphasized that other Masons are welcome.

The cotton plant occurs in five distinct species, some of them perennial.

The War On Crime

It just won't do to attribute the rapid rise in crime to "public apathy," and the President rightly has observed that it is time our public officials shouldered their rightful responsibilities.

The figures on crime tell a horrible story to the statistically minded, but little to the average person. To get a new view of how serious the situation is, let's use the figures in a new way.

Last year, enough people were violently attacked in the streets and in their homes to populate the entire city of Shreveport, La.

The number of people robbed equalled the entire adult population of a city the size of Bridgeport, Conn.

The number of women forcibly raped equalled the adult female population of a city like Fort Smith, Ark.

And if all the murders had occurred in one place, a town bigger than Gettysburg, Pa., would be completely depopulated.

Certain aspects of the crime problem may be alleviated by the federal actions the President proposes. He does not pretend that they will wipe out crime.

It will also be necessary for local communities to beef up their police forces, and equip them with modern weapons and knowledge. It will be necessary for judges and juries to sympathize more with the law abiding and worry less about the criminal's welfare.

It will require cooperation from citizens in looking after their personal safety, locking their doors and securing their automobiles and other property.

Perhaps in time, someone will learn how to identify potential criminals and to turn them from crime in time. Meanwhile, the law-abiding must have protection.

Maintaining public order is the first responsibility of government. A government that can't do that is hardly trustworthy with any other task. Nor is it long for this world.

The Launching Pad

By NEAL ESTES

THE other day a guy named BERNSTEIN wrote a book, "American Democracy In Theory and Action." He and co-author mentioned that SEN. CARL HAYDEN of Arizona had died in 1962. HAYDEN, like the late MARK TWAIN figured that the report of his death was greatly exaggerated. He sent the authors some up-to-date information. SENATOR HAYDEN, 87, was re-elected to the U. S. Senate in 1962, the supposed year of his demise, and is now president pro tempore of the U. S. Senate. If the other facts in brother BERNSTEIN'S book as are inaccurate as his report of SEN. HAYDEN it will be of little informational value.

STANTON lost a good man last week when death claimed LUKE CATHEY. MR. CATHEY, a Baptist by profession of faith and a member of the FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH in the city, was one of the first men we met when coming to Martin County ten years ago. He was nearly always down town early and our conversations with him in the postoffice and here in the paper office were cordial and friendly. We gained an early understanding for his love, devotion, and deep feeling for his family and fellowmen. One time MR. CATHEY assisted us in putting together a surprise story about his grandson SMITTY SMITH, who had won an honor while a student in the local school system. He was proud of his family. He served his neighbors in a courteous manner and was dedicated to doing his part in the Lord's plan. His family and friends will remember him with cherished thoughts through the years.

IT'S almost graduation time again. We had an invitation from LARRY NEILL, Tornillo senior Tuesday. LARRY is the son of SUPT. and MRS. BILL NEILL and the grandson of MRS. FLORA MORRIS of Stanton. It seems like just yesterday that LARRY visited here wearing short trousers. He used to come down to the office with us and watch the machinery run. We send him our personal congratulations and wish him good luck in the college career he has planned for in the future. I understand he is presently favoring A&M.

YOUR editor ordered a rain for SHEEP HENSON last week and we managed to see two-tenths of an inch fall Sunday morning early, but I'm afraid we had little to do with the rain. We have always followed the belief that the man upstairs sends our rain, sunshine, and generally makes the rules we mortals live by on earth. We almost had a good shower Monday but the clouds rolled by and while other sections of Texas were being flooded Martin County was passed by. The forecasters are promising more moisture this week end and perhaps this time the lands will be peppered with moisture.

DR. J. M. SHY is home from San Antonio where he served in the House of Delegates for the Texas State Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons. The delegates make the policy for the association. DOC reported a good rain in Bexar County while attending the meeting.

NEAL'S NUGGET: Found — HUBERT HUMP-HREY! He was located at the baseball game Saturday in Washington. He assisted the announcers. We had began to think LBJ might have had him staked out on the ranch in Texas. Not so—he has him near the bull pen in Washington.

ON MEXICAN LABORERS

Senator From California Assails "Czar Wirtz" Ban

Senator George Murphy of California charges that Labor Secretary Willard W. Wirtz is endangering the "entire economy of California by acting like a one-man czar."

The famed personality, an actor-turned Senator says that vast fields of strawberries and asparagus are rotting while Wirtz arbitrarily bars Mexican braceros from their customary agricultural role.

"My telephone rings all hours of the day and night with calls from farmers who are being wiped out because of Wirtz," the solon complains. "These hundreds of little farmers are under contract to packng houses but have no one to pick their strawberries or plant tomatoes."

"I have received only politely noncommittal letters from President Johnson's aides in reply."

Unless the President or Secretary Wirtz acts promptly, according to the California Senator, the new poverty program will be swamped, "because our bigger farmers are moving to Mexico and creating unemployment in their wake."

"The bracero program was the most successful international economic agreement we ever had," Senator Murphy laments.
