The members of the "Sidewalk Senate" took under consideration an extended discussion of the habits and features of the rattlesnake again this week. They are attempting to determine the shape of the poisonous reptile's rattlers. Are they round or square? We promised "Senators" BARNHILL and HARDIN we would do some more research, and report back later.

Stantonites were awakened early last Friday morning to the comforting sound of rain on the roof. The city measured approximately one inch of rainfall at nine a.m. We are writing this on Friday morning and it is dark and cloudy and the possibility for more moisture is favorable at this time. DOC BRISTOW measured nine-tenths of an inch in his gauge; BLOCKER OIL showed one inch; JOHN BURNESON caught 1.2 inches; STANTON REPORTER gauge measured one inch. ALBERT LOUDER got 1.2; and J. D. RENFRO reported only seven-tenths.

The good rain falling early Friday morning soaked local gardens. Our beans, beets, and turnips are ready and the blackeyed peas are making well. Our tomato plants have weathered one light hail storm and the small Porters and the Red Clouds are doing well. We might add truthfully that the weeds are also flourishing. We also have some sturdy sunflowers standing three feet high and already blooming. No doubt but what these volunteers found their way on our premises in some barnyard fertilizer bought earlier this year from our old friend OHMER KELLY. We have no objections to the sunflowers. The extra bonus added to the fertility of our garden and flower beds by use of the old faithful type of barnyard fertilizer is compensation enough.

DOUG MEADOR, writing in his MATADOR TRIBUNE said: "The end of school brings home to parents what teachers have known for nine months."

Today more people are taking to the water, but unfortunately they don't swim too well. A generation ago water sports consisted chiefly of leaping into the old swimming hole or rowing around the lake. Today, people go for skin diving, surfing, water skiing and high powered boating. Several hundred will drown this year in Texas, according to a projection of previous records. On a nation-wide scale, 6,000 persons are predicted to drown from a variety of water sports and activities.

LYNDON JOHNSON a sick man? We certainly hope not. After watching HHH on the boob tube Monday morning and hearing a college boy accuse him—the second man in the nation politically—of giving a glib-tongued answer like typical politicians often do, we awakened to the reality of who might be the top man on the Potomac someday. You "brass-ringers" better think about it too!

Apparently it has reached the point in Martin County where a person can't be good to his neighbor's dog without being accused of "alienation of the animal's affections." There's an axiom I like to remember: "A dog knows a white man when he sees one." And some dogs get smart enough to salute the Confederate flag—paws in the air—body erect—eyes right—and all that military stuff.

90-DAY ACCEPTANCE DECREED

Martin County and the City of Stanton have 90 days to accept or reject a condition of the Texas Highway Department to pay $5,146.00 for the construction of frontage roads north and south of the proposed IH 20. The stipulation was set forth in a letter to County Judge Jim McCoy and submitted to the Martin County Commissioners Court at their Monday meeting for consideration. The Texas Highway Commission in order number 56039 in regard to the requested construction of additional frontage roads on IH 20 around Stanton advised that the frontage roads could be constructed but that $5,146.00 would have to be paid. The Commission based their right to collect the money from the City and County because the "State's appraisers estimate that right-of-way damages in the amount of $5,146.00 could have been eliminated if continuous frontage roads were considered in the acquisition of property already purchased."

IH 20 Frontage Roads To Cost City, County $5,146

The programmed work included the construction of frontage roads only on short sections near the west interchange with U. S. Highway 80 because of Bureau of Public Road policy which eliminates the construction of continuous frontage roads. Recently, officials of Martin County and the City of Stanton requested the construction of additional frontage roads through and adjacent to the City of Stanton to provide for the proper circulation of traffic, connections with the local road network and the orderly development of the surrounding area. After considering the request the Texas Highway Department has granted the additional frontage provided payment of $5,146.00 is made. The department granted the request because "traffic requirements will be satisfied by the construction of continuous roads from U. S. Highway 80 west of Stanton, east to Highway 80 east of Stanton, a distance of 5.7 miles. Mrs. Lorena Hardin, Betty and Jerry Hardin, and Sandra Wilkes spent last week on a vacation trip to New Mexico, Arizona, and Mexico. Most of their time was spent in Tucson.

Another School Case

Looks like the tough test cases in school matters head up out here in an area where the issues are not really as intense as they are in other sectors.

It will be recalled that the basic question of integration in Texas schools came to a test in 118th District Court here. The specific issue was whether school electing to integrate in compliance with the U. S. Supreme Court edict against segregation could continue to receive aid from the state, whose laws forbade integration. The decision here in effect said state statutes would have to conform to the federal court ruling, and the state supreme court quickly upheld this view.

Now another test case has developed. A Negro couple, who taught in the Stanton elementary school for Negro children, has claimed in Federal District Court at Pecos that constitutional rights were violated when they were not rehired. Stanton school officials says that is not the case; their jobs simply played out when two schools were consolidated into the others for reasons of economy.

This test had to come sooner or later, for all over Texas and other states this problem will arise as more of the all-Negro schools are abandoned. Some Negro teachers have enjoyed a sanctuary in these schools. Now, cast upon the open field, they may find the competition substantially tougher. Some of them are excellent teachers; and some of them are not, and thus will lose out. Will it take a court case in each instance to settle the issue? We hope not.

Housing Credit Available To Many Senior Citizens

Elderly people, if they live in rural areas, need not give up the idea of building, buying or repairing their homes on credit.

This word comes from Delton M. Costlow, Farmers Home Administration county supervisor, serving Martin and Midland Counties.

Costlow said citizens who are 61 - years and over, living in a rural community of 2,500 or less, may be eligible for a 33-year loan bearing 4 percent interest to buy an older home or build a new one.

The FHA supervisor said elderly residents may also be eligible for smaller loans for home repairs.

He pointed out the increasing demand in small towns for rental units designed to meet the housing needs of older folks.

The Farmers Home Administration can loan direct funds to non-profit organizations for construction of senior citizen rental housing units designed for independent living.

Funds for construction of senior citizen rental housing units may also be provided by private investors with FHA guaranteeing repayment.

This fiscal year through April 30 Farmers Home Administration has advanced $5,586,877 to senior citizens for construction, buying and repairing of individual homes. The total loaned is up 17 percent over a similar period last fiscal year.

Over 1,200 elderly people in the 30 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands were able to get loans for new or improved housing through the senior citizen rural housing program of Farmers Home Administration. Another $1,248,510 was advanced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture agency for the construction of rental housing units for senior citizens during the same period, July 1, 1964 through April 30, 1965.

"Farmers Home Administration's senior citizen housing loan program offers citizens, 61 - years and older, an opportunity to have housing suited to their needs in the community in which they have spent their working years," Costlow said. "This program also stimulates the local economy by providing jobs for workers engaged in the construction industry and customers for local trades and services."

In 1962 Congress authorized Farmers Home Administration to make direct loans and insured loans of individuals and corporations to finance rental housing for the elderly.

FHA direct loans for senior citizen rental housing in rural communities bear 3.75 percent interest, with up to 50 years for repayment.

But loans insured by the agency for rental housing currently bear 5.75 percent interest. Borrowers have up to 40 years to repay.

Additional information about the senior citizen rural housing loan program is available at the Farmers Home Administration office, First National Bank Building, Stanton.

Stamford To Hold Annual Cowboy Event

The officials of the Texas Cowboy Reunion, held each year in Stamford for the past 36 years - have been bothered about the appearance of their two best known standbys - Scandalous John Selmon of the SMS ranches and bearded old Guff Lafoon of Jayton, Texas.

Scandalous John has recently been released from an attack of asthma at the Stamford Hospital - and Guff Lafoon has written in - "I'm a comin'ffen I haf-ta walk! Will try to get there a couple o days early to look for me a lady frien." Guff is 89 years old and an inmate of the nursing home at Jayton, Texas. He is remembered by thousands for his long white beard and his jovial laugh as he visits the stands of the Texas Cowboy Reunion each year.

Scandalous John said "I aim to lead the Grand Entry of the Cowboy Reunion as I have done every year - except the time Will Rogers led out."

The Cowboy Reunion is held this year on July 1, 2, and 3.

Bible Comment—

Tolerance Is A Vital Part Of Christianity

If one reads the earlier history of many churches, the impression spreads that there were individuals whose religion consisted chiefly in the delight that they took in disciplining others. In general it may be said that the Church has been far readier to adopt Paul's suggestions about discipline than it has been to put into practice Paul's much more important teaching concerning love as the greatest thing in the world.

A good cause is never well served in intolerant attitudes. There is such a thing as being intemperate, even in our advocacy of temperance.

At a temperance convention was heard the loud and raucous voice of a rather intolerant man who was haranguing the crowd. My friend, a total abstainer and strongly opposed to the liquor traffic, said to me, "I never hear that man advocate temperance without feeling like going out and having a drink."

If a man so thoroughly devoted to the cause could be reacted upon in that way, what must have been the effect upon others? The temperance cause has been served most ably by those who have first of all practiced temperance, and who in their total life and conduct have manifested the beauties and graces of Christian living.

In his letter to Titus, Paul sets forth the things which, as he puts it, "befit the sound doctrine." It is a plea for temperance, sobermindedness, love, and patience, for well-disciplined, noble living, the sort of thing that will never bring shame upon ourselves or disgrace upon the church. It is as we make all these constructive virtues evident in our lives that we exert the truest influence on others; while attaining what is best for ourselves.

Philosopher Admits His Roof Leaks But Points Out He has High-Toned Company

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw tries to explain away a leaky roof this week.)

Dear editor: The last time it rained out here, well not only the last time but every time before that for a long time now, my roof leaked.

It's not a bad leak, I mean, mostly in one spot and a man with any forethought can place his chair where he won't get splattered, and if he's not forethoughted he can move after the first few drops hit him on the head or stay there and get wet, that's his business, around this place, you've got to be not only smart enough to come in out of the rain but to move away from it after you're in.

Anyway, I've been getting some static about it, little hints from my friends like, "When in thunderation are you going to fix that leak?" but I don't let it bother.

"Look," I said, "you ever heard of the astrodome in Houston, Texas?" That's the air-conditioned football and baseball field covered with a plastic dome.

Constitutional Amendments

The Texas Legislature, always simmering and sometimes steaming over the fire of redistricting, has voted to submit 25 changes in the Texas Constitution to the voters for acceptance or rejection.

The constitutional amendment will be submitted to the electorate in three special elections. Spreading the issues up for public decision in this manner allows more time for consideration of the individual changes.

An indication of the heat generated by the redistricting issue is seen in the fact that the Legislature submitted to the voters an amendment to enlarge the Senate from 31 to 39 members, but did not set up the proposed districts to accomplish the plan if and when approved at the polls.

Instead the Legislature passed a redistricting bill based on a 31-member Senate.

The amendment to increase the size of the Senate will be submitted to public vote on Sept. 7. If it is approved in the special election, a special session of the Legislature would be necessary to again redistrict the state to put the plan into effect.

The other 24 constitutional amendments will be submitted to the voters in two elections—nine of them in November of this year, 15 in November of 1966.

An amendment to extend the terms of elected state-wide officials, including governor, to four-year terms from the present two-year terms will come before the electorate on November of this year.

Other constitutional changes to be voted on this November special election are:

Allowing the Legislature to set the annual salary and per diem allowance for the Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House and legislators.

Levying a 10c tax to each $100 valuation for building of state colleges.

Providing for an $85,000,000 student loan fund allowable at private and state supported schools, called the Texas "opportunity plan."

Requiring investments by the teacher retirement system to $500,000,000 in government and municipal bonds before the purchase of any corporate bonds.

Increasing bonds issued for the veterans land program to $400,000,000.

Exempting from local ad valorem taxes charitable organizations which spend $1,500,000 on free medical or hospital care for the indigent.

Providing for the automatic retirement for judges at age 75, and for the removal of judges found unable or unfit for duty. The retirement age may be adjusted down to 70 by the Legislature.

Allowing Texas to participate in the federal medical care for the aged and needy programs.

In November of 1966, the other 15 amendments will be up for a state vote. Included in this group is a proposal to repeal the poll tax requirement for voting in state and local elections. Texas citizens firmly rejected a similar proposal put before them last year.

The other 14 amendments submitted for public vote in the November election of 1966 are:

Authorizing the Legislature to set up a retirement system for county employes to be financed locally.

Adding $200,000,000 of state bonds for water development.

Increasing the elected members of the Court of Criminal Appeals from three judges to five.

Allowing counties to create airport authorities, subject to the approval of the Legislature.

Extending the terms of office for directors of conservation and reclamation districts from two to six years.

Authorizing public grants to private organizations for programs for the handicapped.

Providing that terms for members of the Legislature will begin in January, instead of the present rule where terms begin as soon as the election result is certified in November.

Authorizing the Legislature to repeal restrictions which keep a person from voting for state-wide offices and for President and Vice-President, if he moves from one county to another during the six months preceding an election.

Providing state assistance to widows and minor children of law enforcement officers killed in line of duty.

Allowing servicemen to vote when they meet the same residence requirements as civilians.

Authorizing the Legislature to provide a method for dissolving hospital districts.

Protecting validity of school taxes levied where district boundaries are changed.

Allowing for the consolidation of certain city, county functions in Harris County.

Providing that land designated for agricultural purposes be assessed as such, although in an area of real estate development.

Editorial comment upon the effect of and need for these changes in the Texas Constitution generally will be reserved until times closer to the election dates in which the several proposals will be on the ballot for public decision.

Negro Loss Of Teacher Jobs Cited

Dozens of negro teachers in Texas are losing jobs through desegregation, an official of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People said Monday.

Clarence A. Laws of Dallas, regional NAACP director, said at least 30 negro teachers, each employing two to 11 teachers, are being closed this year. He said the actual number of mergers of negro schools into white schools will be higher.

Laws estimated that 120 to 150 negro teachers have lost their jobs in the 30 districts. The state has an estimated 12,600 negro and 83,000 white classroom teachers.

In many instances, Laws said, small negro schools have been integrated with white schools, without any negro teachers being retained. He said several complaints have come from negroes over this, and that NAACP has been asked to support at least two lawsuits claiming violation of civil rights by displacement of negro teachers.

A meeting of NAACP leaders in Denver on June 22, he said, will determine the organization's future course in trying to protect jobs negroes are losing through school desegregation.

Laws said NAACP is not going to protest every job loss from school desegregation. "In any social progress, there are going to be casualties," Laws commented. "There will be some negro teacher casualties. But we are saying that employment should be based on merit, not race."

Laws said that all - negro schools which are being closed are almost without exception small units which were unable to offer good-quality education.

4th Headin' West Trail Ride Starts From Andrews

The fourth Headin' West Trail Ride will start this year from Andrews.

More than 100 miles of dry West Texas desert, with the promise of a scorching sun, face about a hundred members of the 4th annual Headin' West Trail Riders who are getting ready for a cross-country trip by horseback from Andrews to Pecos.

This year's journey gets underway on June 27 and winds up July 1. It will be the biggest challenge the trail riders have met since starting the journeys in 1962 to promote Pecos' West of the Pecos Rodeo, reputed to be the world's oldest.

The rodeo itself, which runs through July 1-4, is believed to have been established in 1880.

This year will be the first time the riders have ever attempted a cross-country feat, and it will be the second time the trip has originated in Andrews.

The ride originated in Stanton in 1963 and that year Mike Anderson won the top laurels for making the ride all the way to Pecos.

The fourth annual ride this year will span 114 miles, will be a stiff challenge for horses and riders alike as they brave the cumbersome sand dunes in the Monahans area and the threat of rattlesnakes near the Caprock. The riders expect to average 25 miles daily and will be on the trail four days.

The trip will take the riders through seven towns, including Andrews and Pecos.

Most of the riders, however, are qualified to make the trip.

Ray Briggs, executive trail boss and originator of the ride, said about 40 riders who have made previous trips have registered this year.

Only members of the Headin' West Trail Riders may make the journey and joining the riding club requires a $3 fee each year to cover eating expenses. Anyone may join, whether a veteran rider or tenderfoot. Riders may register for the trip as late as June 26.

The trip won't be all hard riding. Lots of entertainment is planned for the riders along the way. At all evening stops there will be campfire singing, and in Wickett a street dance will honor the riders.

And this year the Headin' West Trail Riders will have a new feature — a shiny, red-covered wagon, which has been in the making for the past seven months. The wagon, which sports the name of the organization in big red letters on each side of the cover, is a composition of parts from in and outside of the state. The frame itself was found frozen partially in the Colorado ground by Raymond Kingfield of Tarzan, and the double trees, to which the mules are harnessed, were found in East Texas by Briggs.

At the beginning of school the teachers will be informed of who have read at least 12 books or more and who have failed to read that number also.

The library will be closed at one p.m. Saturday, June 19, and will not be reopened until July 6 at one p.m. Everyone who wants to return their books and have some to read those two weeks, will need to get in this week.

He will speak on "America's Space Program."

But Cernan won't be the only person at the meeting who's abreast of the times. Aside from the 800 newspaper people on hand, there'll be these timely speakers: Ralph Callahan, president of the Alabama Press Association and executive vice president and general manager, Anniston (Ala.) Star, telling "The Alabama Story."

Robert W. Hefty, public relations manager, Ford Division, Ford Motor Company, talking on "The Year of the Horse."

"Where Press and Bar Collide" will be the subject of an NEA session. Felix R. McKnight, Dallas Times Herald, will be speaker and Walter Potter, Culpeper (Va.) Star-Exponent, chairman.

For those who arrive early, complimentary tickets for a tour of "Six Flags Over Texas" Wednesday afternoon or evening may be picked up at NEA/TPA registration desks. Convention activities will run the gamut from a garden party to a banquet, breakfast to barbecue. Entertainment will be just as varied: vocalist Libby Horne of Dallas, accompanied by Pete Dragon, Albion (N. Y.) Advertiser; Walter "Zaney" Blaney, Texas' Ambassador of Goodwill; the Chili Appreciation Society; and the Hungry 3 plus 1, a singing group from Huntsville in the company of Warden Jack Kyle.

A number of awards will be given at the meeting. Most anticipated will be the presentation of the newspaper contest awards. TPA winners will be announced at the Friday Awards Breakfast; NEA's at the Saturday Awards Banquet. Winning newspapers will be displayed through the remainder of the convention.

New officers of both organizations will be elected during the convention with TPA officials introduced at the Saturday luncheon and NEA's at the Saturday banquet. TPA Pres. Aubrey McAllister of the Bonham Daily Fave-

(Continued from page 1) arrangement could be worked out. In other action the school trustees also voted to have the Stanton Independent School District books audited. The board retained the services of Theodore Whitehead of Midland for this task. It is assumed that the audit, when completed, will be published in the official county newspaper. Such audits are generally published so all patrons of the district might have a personal knowledge of the manner in which the local district is operated.

Following the transaction of the business Monday evening the board adjourned to meet again on the evening of Monday, June 21, at 8 p.m. in the board room.

Pickett, Sheriff Saunders, and other officers, said they obtained statements from Vallas, as well as from witnesses. The dead youth was married and the father of two children. The TAERF, composed of 10 investor-owned electric power companies in Texas, including Texas Electric Service Company, is supporting a major research effort aimed at harnessing the thermonuclear (fusion) reaction — the source of power of the hydrogen bomb — for the eventual economical generation of electricity.

This research is being carried out in the laboratories of the General Atomic division of General Dynamics Corporation at San Diego, California, and at the University of Texas and Texas A&M University, where Texas scientists work in cooperation with General Atomic scientists in the long-range fusion effort.

Military Voting Due Decision

Military personnel will be "just like everybody else in Texas" if voters approve a constitutional amendment to be voted on November 2. Actually they will be anyway, under a U. S. Supreme Court decision, but Rep. V. E. (Red) Berry of San Antonio felt that the Constitution and the laws should be corrected to eliminate the old unconstitutional provisions which all but prevented men and women in the service from voting in Texas.

The House amended the bill after a hard fight, to say military personnel, living on the base, could not qualify to vote, and those living off the base could qualify only if they declared an intention to make their place of residence their permanent home, both during and after service.

Sen. Abraham Kazen of Laredo struck out the special military provisions in the Senate, saying he wanted military personnel to be treated "just like everybody else." Saturday, Rep. Berry asked the House to accept the Senate amendment and it was done unanimously.

Vegetables Rotting In Fields Because Of Wirtz Labor Policy

Will the United States market for strawberries and tomatoes be cut from under the growers because of the lack of stoop labor? Will the American housewife have to give up buying and serving tomatoes, strawberries, cucumbers, asparagus, and the like because of prohibitive prices?

These questions have arisen in the minds of many growers throughout the vegetable and cotton producing sections of the nation. Insufficient labor is the cause.

Secretary Willard Wirtz, with the apparent backing of President Johnson, is not giving much ground in the argument for or against bracero labor. He is determined to put the growers in the same bracket with union labor when he demands that the wage scale paid to field hands match those of men skilled in other trades. His attitude reflects the "to hell with the consumer—if he or she wants strawberries let them pay a dollar a pint — otherwise do without."

With the economic opportunity program trying to get off the ground backed by unlimited funds from the American taxpayer's till and that's where a 11 federal money comes from — very few of the young persons involved in the program will do stoop labor even at the established price scale of pay. Americans simply can't see field labor when they can hang around the corner from the pool hall and draw some sort of check for free.

It's harvest time now in the hot weather areas of California and Florida. The fruits and vegetables rotting in the fields have caused growers to shake fists at Wirtz.

The heart of the matter is Wirtz' decision to all but totally shut the door through which foreign laborers — the braceros — for years had entered the United States to work in the fields. As a result, the growers argue, their crops are rotting and prices housewives must pay will rise because not enough field hands can be found.

Sen. George Murphy of California said not long ago that the growers are "simply frantic." There is fear among them that not enough workers will be found in time to harvest the crops. Other sectional growers — the cotton producers — face the same problem this fall. Banks are hesitant to make loans for planting of new crops unless they have assurance that they can be picked and therefore sold and the loans repaid.

Many growers are worried that Mexico may get a larger share of markets. There already has been a trend toward this in the tomato, strawberry and cantaloupe markets.

Thus Wirtz' anti-bracero decision, taken on what he argues are humane as well as practical grounds, has aroused a storm. Since he obviously is operating with the tacit consent of President Johnson, it may be the grower who will have to totally surrender.

Wirtz says there is no reason for foreign laborers to be imported to harvest the crops when able-bodied Americans can do the same job and when the United States has an acute and growing unemployment problem.

The growers argue that Americans simply won't perform the stooping, hard and careful work required in the fields.

A spokesman for the California growers said: "You cannot depend on the Skid Row type of labor that would be available under Wirtz' plan. Those kind won't do field work in the harvest of perishables. In the first place, they may work a day, or maybe even a week. But many crops — strawberries and cucumbers for example — ripen every two or three days and they need attention.

"The Department of Labor has combed this country over at great expense to find workers. The workers have been transported many miles, across several state lines at great expense to the producers. Yet on arrival day only a few enter the fields and fewer will remain to finish the job."

Individual telegrams to President Johnson may help get the pressure being exerted on the growers by Wirtz relieved to some degree.

Instead of sending your father a telegram on his day coming up in June why not write dad a letter and fire a day or night message to LBJ. A lot of the cotton growing dads in this area are going to be forced to make dropouts of their children from a standpoint of education if their crop money is cut off because of lack of migrant labor.

Tax Man Sam Sez:

"When will I get my refund?" is the big question at Internal Revenue nowadays. They generally tell you to be patient and don't write unless you don't get your check before July 1. Of course, if you have moved it pays to send along your new address. If Internal Revenue selects your return for a pre-refund audit you won't get your refund until the audit is finished. They will advise you if this takes place. You can be sure that the good tax folks are working hard on getting your refund to you, but since there

Louis H. Nahum, M. D., writes in Connecticut Medicine: "Even in the absence of formal experimentation, every doctor who gives a drug, prescribes a procedure or diet for his patient is engaged in an experiment for he observes the result, modifies the dose or procedure as needed, each patient being a unique individual, whose responses will vary from every other patient. Not less research but more research is needed on the most important of all animals—man."

are quite a few thousand refunds to get out, it takes a little while. Your best bet is to be patient.

Rains Aid Game, Fish

Soaking rains in many Texas areas have been timely from an Animal Kingdom viewpoint, said P. B. Uzell, coordinator for wildlife of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

He said the new precipitation was particularly pertinent for ground nesting game birds, such as quail and wild turkeys, because moisture presence is needed for hatching.

Uzell observed that there doubtless had been some losses from excessive rains and turbulence in some areas but that birds affected would have time to re-nest. This definitely applies to the popular mourning dove which is vulnerable to wind because of its fragile nests.

The benefit to big game, he explained, comes in the fact that water sources have been replenished and a general boost given to summer forage.

For the angling trade, fisheries people said the new water is "all on the good side" since levels are raised and food conditions vastly improved.

Garden Blooms In Desert On West Texas Border

Dell City, Culberson County, and about 40,000 acres around it are a green garden in a desert. The desert is the salt flats and sand dunes just west of the Guadalupe Mountains near the New Mexico border. Up until just a few years ago this was terrible country in which men ventured only for salt.

Then some great subterranean lakes were tapped. Under irrigation, the land around Dell City has bloomed. There are lush alfalfa fields. Tomatoes grow as big as cantaloupes, and there are 1,000 acres of vineyards. When I visited there last week, 3,000 peach trees and 2,000 pecan trees had been planted where once only plants with thorns or spikes grew.

In Dell City there is a wonderful man named father John F. Casey. Like the Master, Father Casey is a carpenter.

He is also a mason, a plumber, an electrician, a furniture maker, a mechanic. He built most of his own beautiful little church with its dormitory for migratory workers and other buildings. Appropriately, it is called San Isidro for it. Isadore, the patron saint of farmers, day laborers, peasants.

John F. Casey is a muscular, cigar-smoking Bostonian, naturally of Irish descent and with a "John F. Kennedy accent," although the padre didn't go to Harvard. He went to Boston College, where he lettered in football.

On Main Street in Dell City there is a slot machine-style water fountain. Here you can buy drinking water. While the land there is flowing with water, it is now being drawn from table levels where there is much mineral content. It is fine for irrigation purposes but some think it has too much "gyp" for drinking purposes.

So water is brought down from the mountains and sold through the slot machine fountain. Father Casey isn't one of the slot machine's patrons. "I drink the water of this land. It is all right, once you get used to it," he said. "The pioneers drank it, and they came out all right. We are beginning to find sweeter waters at lower levels."

With his calloused hands, Father Casey is reminding of the padres who came with the Spanish conquistadors to this country in the 16th century. He is also very much a contemporary and even "a chamber of commerce type" priest.

He goes to California, Arizona, Illinois, and other states to interest farmers in coming to this garden of Hudson County. "We have more water, and our tables are holding up as well as they do in most places in California and Arizona," he preaches. And he says this a great grape country. He even foresees the time when there will be a winery.

The Dell City country, with its rows of tall wind-breaker trees and with its fields under spring plowing or pale green from early crop growth, is in an exotic setting.

To the east, about 10 miles away, are the 9,000-foot-high buff and yellow cliffs of the Guadalupe Mountains. Nearer to the east on the shore of a salt lake are high sand dunes, which Father Casey is trying to get made into a state park. Even in the level cultivated fields, there are a few rocky, V-shaped mesas, like Egyptian pyramids.

And to the west and the south and the north are other mountains, in weird configurations, Cerro Diablo, the Cornudas (or Horns), Sierra Tinaja Pinta, Sierra Prieta.

This is the setting for the work of Father John F. Casey, a 1965 edition of St. Isadore, the patron saint of farmers and day laborers and peasants.

Texas Aggie Baking Cakes For Research

A Texas Aggie has been baking angel food cakes in modified coffee cans as part of his graduate research work on radiation effects.

Hershel Ball, a 23-year-old graduate student from Burlington, Texas, is studying the effects of gamma radiation on the physical and functional properties of egg whites.

"Very little bacterial contamination occurs in fresh eggs," Ball explains. "However, when the egg is removed from the shell, chances for contamination increase several fold."

Eggs, either the whites, yolks, or blends, can be pasteurized by heat, similar to the process used to pasteurize milk. Scientists have recently discovered that gamma radiation can also be used effectively for pasteurization of eggs.

Gamma radiation is an energy, just like heat or light is an energy. Certain levels of gamma radiation will sterilize the exposed eggs.

The poultry science student is trying to determine the effects of radiation pasteurizing on egg white performance by baking miniature angel food cakes. He has baked over 200 of the coffee-cakes in his studies.

Ball checks the volume of foam when the radiated egg whites are whipped. The stability, viscosity, surface tension and other characteristics of the egg whites, radiated and non-radiated, are checked to determine the effects of radiation pasteurization on their functional ability. The volumes, height, and texture of each cake baked are measured.

The graduate student feels gamma radiation has a bright future in the field of pasteurization.

Highways signs that yield under impact are being installed on some Texas highways as part of the Texas Highway Department's continuing effort to make motoring safer.

The signs and their supports are designed to crack in the middle and arc away harmlessly when struck by a moving vehicle.

Dubbed "break-away signs," they were developed in a joint research effort of the Texas Highway Department and its research arm, the Texas Transportation Institute of Texas A&M University, in cooperation with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Although research is continuing to perfect a better sign structure for Texas highways, the transitional break-away sign already is being installed on highways over D. Stripling, W. A. Walker, and Owen Kelly, and guests Mrs. Eiland and Bob Deavenport.

70 Vacancies In Public Safety Dept.

The director of the Texas Department of Public Safety announced today there are 70 vacancies in the uniformed patrol services with increased salaries going into effect September 1 and another raise scheduled for one year later.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr. said that under the biennial appropriation bill salaries will range from $453 up to $484 per month, depending on branch of service. In addition, he pointed out, patrolmen receive longevity pay of $10 per month for each five years of service up to a maximum of $50 per month. Promotions are given on the basis of competitive examinations.

"Here is an opportunity for qualified young men to join the ranks of dedicated career officers in a proud organization whose purpose is to serve and protect the people of Texas," Garrison said. "It is also an opportunity for men to further their education while in training."

He pointed out that student patrolmen receive some 800 hours of study in 95 subjects, such as highway law, accident investigation, first aid, professional driving, care and use of firearms and many others.

While in training at the DPS Law Enforcement Academy in Austin, they receive $375 per month. The training course lasts 19 weeks, after which trainees become commissioned officers.

Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 35; not less than five feet, eight inches tall; not less than two pounds nor more than three pounds per inch of height; sound physical condition, 20-30 vision without corrective lenses; must not be color blind; must have a high school education or the equivalent; and must be a United States citizen and a resident of Texas for at least one year immediately prior to date of application.

Applications and full information can be obtained by contacting any DPS patrolman or the nearest DPS station. July 6 is the deadline for filing applications for the examination July 14 and 15 which will qualify 70 men for the next training school starting August 31.

Buick Special V-6 goes easy on gas.

Its low price goes hard on your resistance.

We put 6 big reasons to buy a Buick Special under the hood. And another small one on the price tag. The six are a set of the liveliest, thriest cylinders that ever zipped you merrily on your way. They're all arranged in neat, smooth V-fashion. They add up to 225 cubic inches and 155 horsepower, and make other arrangements of 6 cylinders seem primitive. That's not all. Special sports Buick comfort, Buick style and traditional Buick quality. The price tag? We saved the best for last.

Manufacturer's suggested retail price for Special V-6 2-dr. coupe. Price includes Federal Excise Tax and suggested dealer delivery and handling charge (transportation charges, accessories, other optional equipment, state and local taxes additional).

Wouldn't you really rather go first class?

THE HIGH ROAD

L. W. PRENTISS, Executive Vice President AMERICAN ROAD BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

The Slow-Moving Vehicle

Highway traffic is moving faster these days, thanks largely to better roads. Many of the hazards that used to force motorists to drive at a slow pace have been eliminated.

The safest driving speed, generally, is the speed of prevailing traffic. If you seem to be passing "everybody" on the road, you are probably driving too fast. On the other hand, if "everybody" is passing you, you are obstructing the free flow of traffic and are probably driving too slow.

As average traffic speeds increase, we are faced with increasing hazards resulting from the use of public highways by vehicles which are designed for or are naturally limited to travel at speeds of 25 miles per hour or less. These naturally slow-moving vehicles include farm tractors and other agricultural machines, highway maintenance and construction equipment, and horse-drawn vehicles.

The problem is primarily one of recognition. Studies conducted at The Ohio State University under the sponsorship of the Automotive Safety Foundation revealed that nearly nine out of ten collisions involving slow-moving vehicles occur during daylight hours, on good roads free of rain, snow or ice hazards. In many cases, it appeared that the driver of the fast-moving vehicle saw the slow-moving vehicle in time to stop but waited too long to start braking because he did not immediately realize that the vehicle ahead was moving at a slow speed.

The Ohio State research led to the design of an identifying emblem to be affixed to the rear end of slow-moving vehicles. The emblem consists of a fluorescent yellow-orange triangle with a dark red reflective border. The triangle is highly visible in daylight. The reflective border creates a hollow red triangle in the path of motor vehicle headlights at night.

The SMV emblem is not intended to replace the usual caution warnings such as flags, reflectors and red tail lights. It supplements them by warning an approaching driver that "this is a slow-moving vehicle."

In time, it will probably be desirable to enact State laws requiring the use of the SMV emblem on vehicles which, by their nature, move at speeds of 25 miles per hour or less. The immediate need, however, is to make the emblem and its meaning familiar to the motoring public.

LUNA SIX, the latest Soviet moon probe attempt, missed its target by 100,000 miles. Tass, official Russian news agency, admitted this failure. Luna Five also missed last month. We bring the spotlight on this failure of the Reds now because it might do some of the radicals in our community good to know that the United States of America is still the best country in the world to live in. The left-wing minority would stop at nothing to turn over American public opinion in their favor. The fact that the American pilot is the best in the world was forcefully emphasized last week when MAJOR McDIVITT, flying with nothing but know-how, brought his spacecraft back to a safe landing. Of course he had the aid and assistance of another great pilot — ED WHITE. But he did not have the benefit of the computer designed to pin-point his return from space. Incidentally, MAJOR WHITE took a gold cross, a star of David, and a St. Christophers medal up there with him. That's democracy in action!

DEMOCRATIC Mayor ROBERT F. WAGNER, New York City, will not run for a fourth term. His decision rocked the bigwigs from the White House to the U. S. Senate. His bowout heightened the possibility of the take over of youthful JOHN V. LINDSEY, a hard-hitting independent, of the city government in the country's largest metropolis. LYNDON, BOBBY KENNEDY, and those considered "top brass" in the party did not conceal their disappointment in WAGNER'S refusal to run again. With the New York mayor's past going to a spirited young man, and with ROCKEFELLER still in the saddle in the big state, and with the war getting bigger and bigger in Viet Nam, the popularity polls have already started reflecting the fall from favor of some of the top bigwigs who were battling about a thousand just two months ago. Things do change swiftly and a war-time casualty list helps create the new image.

If you really love Stanton and Martin County, my friends, there is no other newspaper, magazine, publication, or periodical that can replace THE STANTON REPORTER. This newspaper probably recorded your parents marriage—published your birth announcement—followed your career—and will be the only one publishing your obituary. We have never heard or read about a nationally circulated magazine printing the funeral rites of a hometown boy, child, girl, woman, or man. Think it over, neighbor.

A most regrettable incident in the lives of people is to have their family name sullied by an indictment of some member of a family who has managed to keep their "noses clean" up to the time of the disgrace.

WHILE grandpa is raking it in—he better remember that the sins of the fathers and the father's fathers are visited on the sons.

THE STANTON REPORTER has a list of more than 25 vacant houses and apartments for sale or rent.

I talked with the guy who lives across the street from me the other evening in my backyard, and learned something else about his life of many chapters. ERNEST PRICE was born in that corner of the U. S. A. where four states just about join up— Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Louisiana. PRICE left his native community in Red River County and took a job at a sawmill in Broken Bow, Oklahoma. He was 17 at the time. Oklahoma was Indian Territory then too. MR. E. worked first as a "blocksetter" and he learned that the job was pretty difficult and paid less than that of a saw sharpener. You guessed it—he made $10 a day sharpening saws and that was big money in those days. While working at the sawmill, our neighbor cut quiet a figure on the baseball diamond as a second baseman in the semi-pro league. Having good baseball talent led him to play with the sawmill entry and helped nail down his job as a saw sharpener. Then wanderlust took hold of the young Texan and he returned home to fulfill a burning desire for a job as a brakeman on the railroad. That braking job called for outside work in cold, sometimes icy weather. PRICE found an inside job as a depot agent and telegraph operator. The short stint as a brakeman found the now retired gentleman and bank director, making a run between Texarkana and Shreveport. After working in East Texas for a number of years, the vice president of Stanton's FIRST NATIONAL BANK, and his wife, moved to Stanton where served many years as agent for the T&P before retiring.

THE town of Littlefield is having every unsightly sign in the city limits removed. The West Texas city is getting a wide start on LADY BIRD JOHNSON'S beautify America program. A bill will be introduced in Congress making it illegal for signs of any kind, and unsightly junk yards to be seen from any highway unless located back off the traveled route 1,000 feet. and a man would need tri-focals to read a sign that far back.

WE had a nice letter from LT. CHALMER WREN, JR., the other day. He advised us that his paper needed changing to Big Spring, Texas, where his wife, KATHY and son, are now residing until he gets out of service. LT. WREN is due to get home from Ankara, Turkey in August and in September the WRENS will move to San Angelo. In closing his letter, CHALMER wrote: "Wait until you see my new car! See you in August."

WE received our Notary Public Commission from DORIS STEPHENSON, district clerk, this week. The appointment is for two years this time and expires on June 1, 1967. We have heard via the grapevine that commissions will be advanced in price in 1967 and the tenure of appointment time increased to four or five years instead of the customary two.

Tower Reports

This week, on Monday, I introduced in the Senate a measure that removes from the Secretary of Labor jurisdiction in determining when a state needs foreign agricultural workers. My bill would place that responsibility with the state agency having primary concern with agricultural policies. It our state this would be the State Commissioner of Agriculture.

The bracero program, under which Texas farmers, ranchers, and consumers benefited for many years, was not renewed this year. Last year more than 200,000 foreign workers, most of them from our good neighbor Mexico, entered the United States to help harvest crops. This year only about 1,500 have been allowed to enter. The results are well known. In California, for instance, valuable crops of strawberries were plowed under because of the labor shortage. Prices to consumers on many farm produce items have almost doubled, but the added money did not go to farmers. Rather, the added cost reflects, in many instances, additional labor costs. In 1950, of each $312 spent on food by the average American, our farmers received $132. In 1964, on the other hand, the spread had grown, according to the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, to such an extent that for every $417 spent on food by the average American, the farmer received only $133. And apparently the trend is continuing.

The Texas Employment Commission bulletin for the Brownsville, Harlingen, San Benito area, and for Starr and Hidalgo counties, indicates that "the possibility of a farm labor shortage exists for harvesting spring vegetables." As all Texans know this is a region of heavy agricultural production, and a farm labor shortage here will hurt consumers far and wide. I do not believe there is a single Texas farmer who would employ alien workers rather than domestic workers if those domestic workers were available for employment. But if they are not available, I do not believe we ought to allow crops to rot in the field with the resultant price increase to consumers, just because the wheels of the federal bureaucracy move so slowly.

In a recent exchange of letters, Secretary of Labor Wirtz assured me he is working with the Texas Employment Commission to "meet the labor needs of Texas growers." But time is running out. We must act and act quickly.
