VARIETY

By NEAL ESTES

One of the fifty remaining whooping cranes in the world died in Hurricane Betsy this week. The bird was one of eight in captivity in New Orleans. A noble veteran in the fight to keep her species alive, Josephine had given birth to four birds at the Audubon Zoo. Her mate, Crip, survives, along with three females and one male offspring.

BELL TELEPHONE reported 204,000 telephones out of order in the New Orleans area following Hurricane Betsy. More than fifty percent of the unharvested cotton and soybean crops in South Louisiana were destroyed by the fury of the hurricane.

Wonder what HUBERT HORATIO HUMPHREY is doing these days? He has apparently been placed on a shelf somewhat like a number two can of tomatoes.

On January 1 Texas officers will be placed at a great disadvantage in the traditional game of "Cops and Robbers." The new criminal code of procedure practically make a confession inadmissible as evidence in a trial. The new code comes out at a time when the crime rate is increasing daily. Lawlessness and violence is sweeping the nation. The new protective procedures, leaning heavily in favor of the felon, gained impetus from recent U. S. Supreme Court decisions. How can an individual expect better law enforcement when the legal teeth of arresting officers have been extracted? We need men in the Texas Legislature who will get busy undoing some of the strange legislation passed down there in Austin during the last session.

Princess Grace, Prince Applaud Midlanders

Princess Grace, the former Hollywood movie star Grace Kelly, and her husband, Prince Ranier of Monaco, joined in warm applause for the troupe of the Midland Community Theatre of Midland, Texas.

The Texans were participating in the third International Festival of Amateur Theatres on the Monte Carlo stage in presenting "The American Dream" by Edward Albee.

Repeated applause went to Rita Buckley, William Adam, Mary Lou Cassidy, Elizabeth Pennybacker, and Martin Buckley for their portrayals in the Albee drama. Prince Ranier and Princess Grace went back stage to congratulate the performers after the play.

Stantonites Due Bonus SS Checks

Sometime during the last two weeks of September, Stanton resident who get monthly social security benefits will receive an extra special envelope in the mail, according to Erven Fisher, social security district manager in Big Spring.

This envelope will contain a special social security benefit check, representing a seven percent increase in cash benefits for the month of January 1965 through August. This monthly benefit increase is part of the 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act, which recently became law, Fisher continued.

Early in October, beneficiaries will receive their first regular check at the increased rate. This will be the social security benefit for September. Each month thereafter, the check will be in the same amount.

Mr. Fisher stressed that there is no need for a beneficiary to get in touch with the district office when the special check arrives. The amount of the check will be for the difference between the old and new rate for the period January through August, and will not be in the same amount as their regular monthly check.

At the elementary school the first grade has a record 110 students; second grade, 84; third, 74; fourth, 83, fifth, 78; sixth, 77; seventh, 74, and eighth grade, 56.

The purpose of the workshop is to enable Masons to study common problems of Masonic Lodges and their operations. The workshop will be conducted by M. George Lane, an Odessa merchant and chairman of Masonic Workshop Area F-6.

Grand Master Hinsley stressed the importance of attendance by all lodge officers and emphasized that other Masons are welcome.

Stanton Reporter
Stanton, Texas
Dear Friend:

You do not know me very well but I do you as I have a visit with you every week when I receive The Stanton Reporter. I have lots of friends in Stanton but most of them are like I am about writing. Just too lazy to write. So I depend on The Reporter to keep me informed about them and where else can you get a bargain like you get from the Reporter. If you did have a friend to write to you every week the price of the stamps on the letter would be almost the price of the paper to say nothing of the trouble, envelopes and paper. So keep The Reporter coming. I don't always agree with The Launching Pad (but generally do) but I read it and enjoy it every week.

Your friend,
Sam H. Stamps

(Editor's Note: We are very pleased to have a letter from Sam H. Stamps and it is an honor to have a man of his views on our mailing list. Certainly, it appears that he is an individualistic thinker. He has the right idea about editors too — no need to agree with a column writer all the time — but because you sometimes disagree there is no need to cancel your subscription either.)

Stanton sent three teams to Wink Tuesday afternoon to play three games of football and the local lads returned home with two victories out of the three games played.

The Junior High 7th graders hammered out a 6-0 win and the 8th graders won by 20-0. The Junior Varsity team lost by 19-6.

Steve Robnett scored the lone touchdown in the 6-0 triumph. Steve Stallings scored a brace of touchdowns in the eighth grade victory and Mike Madison raked up a third touchdown after a spectacular 82 yard run from the 12 yard line.

Charles Lewis got the Junior Varsity's touchdown in the 19-6 loss.

Coach Milam said he was proud of the three teams spirit and effort.

Guy Story Brown Starts Academic Year At NMMI

Along with 449 classmates, Cadet Guy Story Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn L. Brown, Box 621, Stanton, began his first academic year on September 8 at New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, New Mexico.

Cadet Brown enrolled at Institute August 31 and completed an intensive week of orientation prior to the opening of the academic year. His basic training included military customs and courtesies, cadet traditions, foot drill, and manual of arms with rifle. This strenuous military introduction was topped off with a lively dance at the Institute campus when Cadet Brown and his classmates played host to young ladies of the Roswell area.

Cadet Brown attended Stanton High School.

Coahoma has a fast, experienced team and a man named Butler who is their backfield expert.

Stanton will take the field the underdog due to the multiple injuries team players are nursing. Coach Bill Milam has pinpointed five men who will either definitely play only part time or not at all.

Those on the injured list include: Randy Huckaby, starting center, who broke a thumb in the Big Lake contest last week; Buddy Shanks, badly bruised arm muscle; Larry White, alternate quarterback, injured in a week-end car accident; Allen Springer, still out with a broken bone in his foot; and Karl Herzog, suffering with an ankle injury.

Coach Milam says the attitude of the team is good. In fact, he says, about the best he has ever seen. The boys have plenty of desire and the will to win.

The Stanton squad is made up mostly of sophomores. It is light but fast and their potential will grow as the season progresses. (Continued on page 8)

Three Cars Pile Up Sunday Night Injuring 3 Persons

Stanton was embraced with lots of accident activity here Sunday night and when all wrecks and pile ups had been investigated, injured persons removed, and cars towed in, only one individual, was reported seriously injured according to investigating officers.

Steve Milam, son of Coach and Mrs. Bill Milam, a passenger in a station wagon driven by Larry White, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton White, was admitted to the local hospital suffering from possible internal injuries. The White car was involved in the second accident. All accidents occurred in a space of 45 minutes on highway 80, and the three-car pile up happened in front of the Tri-City Dr. Pepper Bottling plant.

The first two car mishap occurred according to Deputy G. B. Tharwhanger who investigated, at the intersection of Highway 80 and Lamesa Road. The second three-car crash took place when a car put out of service as a result of a flat tire was struck from behind by a second vehicle and then a third car plowed into the wreckage. All three vehicles caught fire, and one was completely destroyed. The other two automobiles were slightly burned but suffered heavy collision damage.

Mrs. Barbara S. Williams, 26, Midland, was eastbound in the south lane of US 80 when she had a flat tire. Two men pushed her car to the edge of the street opposite the Dr. Pepper plant and took her to get help, according to investigating officer G. B. Tharwhanger and C. S. Bevers, maintenance foreman of the highway department, arrived in time to see William Lloyd Murphv, 40, Big Spring, collide with the parked car. Then the station wagon, driven by young White, (Continued on page 8)

Labor Department Sues Daisy Air Rifle Makers

The Daisy Manufacturing Co., arms maker to American boys for more than half a century, is accused by the government of paying its women employees less than men.

The Labor Department has filed suit against Daisy in the first court test of the Fair Labor Standards Act requiring equal pay for women for work demanding similar skills.

and oldest manufacturer of nonpowder guns and ammunition.

The suit charges specifically that Daisy has violated the act's equal pay provisions since June 14, 1964, by paying its women employees less than its men for doing work that requires equal skill, effort and responsibility and which is performed under similar working conditions.

Daisy counters that the government has failed, in a series of meetings, to outline specifically when the firm is not meeting requirements of the act.

"We are as confused as anyone else, because no one knows," said Robert Bachman, director of industrial relations for Daisy. "They're taking a shotgun approach to this section."

Daisy, most widely known for its BB air rifles, describes itself as the "world's largest

Adolescent Complexion Constant Care

It's a smart mother who knows that a girl's appearance has an effect on the grades she brings home from high school, says Mrs. Lynn Parks Stiles, Texas A&M University Extension Service consumer education specialist.

These are the years, of course, when daughters are likely to have complexion troubles, known as adolescent skin. Anxieties about facial blemishes can actually destroy self-confidence. This, in turn, can affect ability to concentrate on studies.

The best thing a mother can do is to add another subject, beauty care, to her daughter's schedule. It should not be a sophisticated routine, but a simple soap and water program that medical authorities recommend for difficult skin.

Mothers can teach daughters to apply dense, warm suds to the face like a mask. Let this mask dry, then rinse it off and apply a second coating of suds. Next, rinse the skin thoroughly.

Such a simple treatment helps draw oil from the skin and flush out dirt that otherwise would cause blemishes. The treatment is better, some beauty experts say, than hard scrubbing which can injure youthful skin, adds Mrs. Stiles.

Flying Mule-Skinners At Work In Viet Nam

The old Army mule train is long gone, but flying mule-skinners in Air Force blue haul everything from pigs and chickens to ammunition and fighting men in the rugged war in Viet Nam.

"Styron's Stallions" is the nickname given more than 100 men of the 310th Commando Squadron operating out of Nha Trang under the command of Lt. Col. Woodlawn M. Styron of New Bern, North Carolina.

Why the name? "Because my boys are like young stallions," Styron laughs. "Full of energy, fire and ready to go anytime. You name it, we haul it."

The vital air service — dubbed TWA (Teenie Wenie Airline) by military wags — has lately devoted much of its time to supplying isolated American special forces camps in the hills of central Viet Nam.

They dropped ammo and other supplies to the embattled Dak Sut special forces camp.

"We've been shot at many times," said Styron. "But we don't think of it. Many times we don't realize we have been hit until we land and look over the planes."

The planes fly in to dump supplies about 400 feet high. Supplies are kicked off over targets when a signal from the ground forces wave the supply pilots and crews out of the area. Red smoke on the ground means get out quick — green smoke would mean it was alright to proceed with the drop.

A loadmaster rides in the rear of the plane and when the "green light" signal comes on, the back door is opened and four men put the first load out. Safety cords around their waists keep the men from tumbling out with the load.

Pick's World Currency Report lists per capita income of the five leading nations (excluding oil-rich little Kuwait which is a unique and extraordinary case) as follows: The United States, $3,221; Canada, $2,284; Switzerland, $2,213; Sweden, $2,162; and Norway, 1,830. Russia placed 15th in the standings with $1,253.

Bible Comment—

Bible Tells Us Just What Man Is

The Bible asks, in Psalms and Hebrews, "What is man?" And it then gives the answer with a completeness unequalled anywhere else in literature. Its answers are unsurpassed even in the delvings of modern psychology.

In the Bible, man is revealed in all the heights of depths, aberrations and variations of his acts and character, with nothing withheld.

In the early record man appears as an unbrotherly murderer. Cain becoming the symbol of the unbrotherly murderers of all time, including our own.

Man is a liar, even in the lapse of the good Abraham; a cheat in the weak but the ultimately better Jacob; an adulterer in the strong and great David; an oppressor in the glorious builder, Solomon.

In these and many other characters is expressed what man has been and is in, lust and cruelty; in ruthless ambition and misuse of power; in slackness and weakness in petty and major sins and transgressions.

It is all there — the Bible's answer to the question, "What is man?" But the uniqueness of the Bible is this: with all the realism concerning man's degradation of himself and his fellows, it also reveals man in all the heights of his possibilities an attainments.

In contrast to its Ahabs and Jezebels are the Johns, Josephs and Simeons, the Anns and the Marys. In contrast with all the depths are the pinnacles of man's aspirations and glories.

Nor is this all. For man in the depths there is the favor and grace of God. The Bible is the Book of the Gospel, of faith and hope, of restoration and uplift, of a new life.

Philosopher Claims Small Towns Will Outlast Cities Because Of Rusting Water Pipes

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw is optimistic about small towns, his letter this week indicates.)

Dear editor:

Every once in a while there's a move on in this country to do something to "save the small towns," and while I doubt there's anything that can be done to keep a town from going under if it's being abandoned anyway, I have looked around in a very limited way and can't find any that are disappearing.

I'll admit some towns aren't what they used to be, but a lot of them never were in the first place. On the other hand, most of them are better off today than they were 25 years ago, but if they're themselves and let the cities keep on growing and multiplying their problem.

As a matter of fact, the more I read of the problems of big cities the more I doubt they'll outlast the towns. Just because a man is growing fat doesn't mean he's going to live longer.

Take just one aspect of big city life you don't hear mentioned much: plumbing. I never have seen a water pipe that'd last forever, at least one won't around this Martin County grass farm, and have you ever stopped to think what the cities are going to be faced with 50 or 100 years from now when the time comes to rip out all the water pipes and put in new ones? You ever tried to put new pipes in a 40-story building? How many miles of city streets

Pomona, Calif., Progress-Bulletin: "The Ohio State Medical Association is slamming a directive from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare requiring doctors to sign a pledge that they will comply with the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and not practice discrimination among welfare patients. Such a requirement, complains the association, is making 'second-class citizens' of Ohio physicians, about 4,900 of whom have signed the oath and are now having second thoughts. . . . The self-imposed ethics of the medical profession apparently carry little weight with the bureaucrats."

Editorials - - - Texas Master Key Law

A brief, two-paragraph bill enacted into law by the 1965 Texas Legislature may have far-reaching effects on automobile theft, the state's costliest crime against property.

This law forbids the sale in Texas of automobile master ignition keys, which have been advertised nationally as "guaranteed to fit" all cars. Under the new law, a person who sells or offers for sale "any key which fits the ignition switch on more than one motor vehicle" is subject to fines of $200.

Law enforcement officials across the country recently have become disturbed by the ready availability and low cost of master ignition keys. Texas, however, appears to be the first and only state to date to specifically outlaw the sale of such master keys, according to C. C. Benson, manager of the Texas Division, National Automobile Theft Bureau.

Mr. Benson points out that there are no accurate statistics to show how many of the 20,000 cars stolen annually in Texas were taken with so-called master keys.

"We know the number has been sizeable," he said. "The professional car thief and the joy riding juvenile isn't going to risk using hot wires and jumper cables when he can buy a $3 key that operates nearly all cars of a particular make."

The International Association of Auto Theft Investigators recently passed a resolution against the indiscriminate sale of such master keys.

Auto theft problems do not belong to Texas alone, of course. There is a theft every 60 seconds somewhere in the country. This year more than a half million car thefts will occur, representing stolen property with a value of more than $450,000,000.

Outlawing master ignition keys is one more important step toward holding the line on a growing theft rate, but Mr. Benson says "a tremendously more important impact would be felt on the auto theft crime rate if each and every motorist religiously removed ignition keys and kept his auto locked."

The new Texas law forbidding sale of master ignition keys, House Bill 1060, was introduced by Rep. Howard Green of Fort Worth. Public prosecutors should be vigilant in seeking to enforce it.

Topeka, Kan., Oswego Independent: "... states are finding it more and more necessary and perhaps financially helpful to see and to anticipate federal grants. It just could be, as situations continue as presently indicated ... popular and vote getting governors will be those who can anticipate and secure the most and biggest federal grants for their respective states. More and more federal government and dependence, is that what we really want?"

FHA Activities For Fiscal Year Reported

Over 39,766 families of farmers, ranchers and rural residents in Texas benefitted from Farmers Home Administration loan services during 1965. This is an all-time high according to L. J. Cappelman state director for the agency.

Loans made or insured by Farmers Home Administration in Texas during the fiscal year ended June 30 totaled a record $88,289,230.

State Director Cappelman said that the Farmers Home Administration preserved its long-standing record for keeping its various lending programs in a sound position during fiscal 1965. Repayments of principal and interest by borrowers totaled the largest volume collected in the agency's 30-year history.

This good credit record signifies the initiative and integrity displayed by the people of rural Texas in their vast self-help effort which the loans represent, Cappelman stated.

Included in the number of Texas rural people benefitting from these programs are the members of 28,245 families forming rural groups that use Farmers Home Administration credit. Most of these groups borrowed funds to develop rural community water systems.

State Director Cappelman emphasized that loans to strengthen family farms and build new rural homes continued as the agency's largest

Museum Offers Reward for Peanut Butter Relics

The American Museum of Peanut Butter History has been established in Chicago.

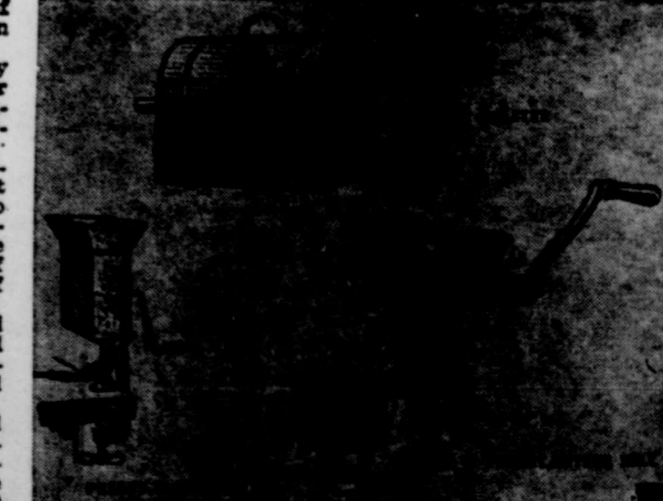

Although the project may seem a little nutty, the Peter Pan Co. plans to make the museum a mecca for people interested in peanut butter lore.

The museum will house artifacts connected with peanut butter history from 1890 to 1925, including the various devices used by women to make their own primitive form of peanut butter at the turn of the century.

In those days, housewives had mills to grind the peanuts, small ovens to roast them, and blanchers to remove the red skins—all operated by hand cranking.

The Peter Pan Co. will sell out a year's free supply of peanut butter to every family donating an authentic relic. The average family eats about 50 pounds of peanut butter per year.

Peanut butter was invented by a St. Louis physician in 1890 as a high protein health food for his patients. By 1896, it was being served regularly to patients at the Battle Creek, Mich., Sanitarium.

In the early years of this century, women made peanut butter in their own kitchens with crude devices such as stove-top ovens for roasting peanuts, blanchers for removing the red skins, and mills for grinding the nuts.

Fifteen years later, country store-keepers were making peanut butter with somewhat larger equipment in much the same way, and selling it by the paddle-full from wooden tubs.

These methods prevailed until after World War I, when the industrial manufacture of the product began.

Crime And The Welfare State

Is there a distinct and recognizable connection between the soaring crime rate and the development of a welfare state?

If that seems a queer and idle question, a paragraph written by Keats A. Pullen Jr., that appeared in The Baltimore Sun may cause you to do a bit of thinking. He says: "It is easy to understand why crime rises precipitously in a socialist welfare state. Under socialism the state, in accord with its own arbitrary standards, rewards individuals for alleviation of poverty. Under crime the individual, in accord with his own standards, attempts to reward himself for similar purpose. In both instances, old-fashioned standards of morality are buried in a morass of gimme."

This is a harsh judgment but there is much evidence to substantiate it. The welfare state whatever else one may think of it, cannot help but undermine and even destroy the ancient values which have sustained civilization — independence, a sense of personal responsibility, individual pride, honesty, and a determination to take care of oneself and one's family.

Crime — like all the other immoralities, to use that word in the broadest sense — will flourish when these values are degraded.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vera Sanford

BB Loading Trick
Kids have a hard time reloading their air rifles with BB's. They can make the operation easier by saving Dad's cilling cans and filling them with BB shot.

Then they need only insert the nozzle of the can into the loading magazine to pour in the shot.

Another Coffee Can Use
Campers have discovered that an empty coffee can — the kind with a plastic lid — makes an excellent container in which to store a roll of toilet tissue. Keeps the paper handy and dry.

Protecting Boots From Snow

If you hunt and fish in the snow belt of Texas you have trouble with snow creeping in over your boot tops and wetting your feet.

Seal off this space by running a strip of masking tape over the junction where trousers meet boots. This will hold pants' bottom and boot tops together.

Fishing With An Active Cork

One of the drawbacks to fishing with a cane pool and cork float is that your cork usually stays in one spot.

You can make your cork and the travel every — which way by sticking a couple of six-inch-long feathers in the top of the cork.

Do this and your float will range over a wide area, in keeping with the breeze, carrying the bait in a very life-like manner.

Deer Hunter Tip

Most deer hunters check out the area they intend to hunt before hunting season opens.

When you find a deer run and want to know if it is used often, sink a forked stick in the ground on each side of

THE HIGH ROAD

L. W. PRENTISS, Executive Vice President AMERICAN ROAD BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

The Beauty of Highways
The highways attractive to the eye.

Aesthetic highway design is particularly noticeable in areas where the terrain is hilly or rolling, and where there is sufficient available land to permit median strips of generous and varying widths. In such areas, the two roadways of multilane highways are often separated by natural park-like areas, with groves of trees and other indigenous growth, outcroppings of rock and even small streams.

This kind of highway design is not only appealing to the eye but, also often proves to be the most economical design since a roadway which conforms to the natural contours of the land usually can be built with a minimum of excavation.

In some States, the highway departments, working with the conservation authorities, have built highways which, as a secondary function, dam small streams. The resulting ponds and lakes have contributed to the attractiveness of the landscape.

The provision of eye-appealing highways is an important factor in reducing the nervous strain of driving. It has been found that drivers who are tense or tired are especially accident-prone. Hence, there is a very practical reason — improve safety — for the interest which highway authorities are showing in making highways and roadsides as attractive as possible.

Within the limits of the right-of-way, of course, the highway departments already have a great deal of authority with regard to the design of highways, and much has been done to make

The American Medical Association says that the level of immunity against smallpox in his country has been shrinking steadily for years as more and more people neglect to get boosters. Health authorities estimate that at least three fourths of the population is inadequately protected against this disease.

Library Lines

MRS. RALPH CAFFEY,
Librarian

Library Hours: Monday 1-8 p.m., Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday 1-5 p.m., Saturday 10:00 a.m. - 3 p.m.

The Midland Public Library has been most helpful to us, they have let the students borrow books from their library without charge and in the past numbers of months, they have given the library a total of 180 books. These books were ones that had been given to them and they already had sufficient copies on their shelves. Of the 180, 63 copies were duplicates, but you can readily see that we still have profited greatly by their generosity. If you have occasion to be in the Midland Library, please remember to say a word of appreciation to them for their interest and help.

The Big Spring Library is always most cooperative in letting me borrow books if they have them for patrons that request certain subjects. The initial fee of $1.50 secures a library card from the Big Spring Library for Martin County patrons. Both libraries have been most helpful and sympathetic to our library so let's say "thank you." Dr. Albert Schweitzer is a name that most everyone recognizes. After his death recently, I checked our shelves to see what material we had on him. We have two books on his life, both brief and most exciting, because Dr. Schweitzer had an interesting life; we can also draw much inspiration from the stories of the great man's complete selflessness. Resolve now to read more for enjoyment, inspiration and information.

Texas Highway Week To Be Observed

"Building Highways for Tomorrow" will be the theme of National Highway Week in Texas which will be observed this year September 19-25.

The week was designated by Gov. John Connally who said the 60,000-mile Texas Highway System vitally related to the state's economy and the welfare and pleasure of all Texans.

In the proclamation designating Highway Week, Gov. Connally said the system is "debt-free" with its design and construction based on the needs of the next generation of Texans.

Highway Week is sponsored by the Texas Good Roads Association, a non-profit, non-political organization which works for better highways in Texas.

Tarzan Man Attends Clinic Held In Lamesa

Clarence Airhart of Tarzan Marketing Association, attended the Smith - Douglass Basic Agronomy School at Lamesa on Sept. 9.

The Smith - Douglass Agronomy School objective is to help prepare the dealer to aid in counseling and advising his customers in the correct use and application of fertilizers as is practical in the area, thereby enabling the farmer to cope with average farm situations.

Areas of instruction were soil testing, nitrogen, phosphorus, trace elements, fertilizer placement, and business management.

The economy of this area is very dependent upon agriculture and with the proper and adequate use of fertilizer, the increased gross income is similar to the community obtaining a new industry.

Editorial . . . Criminal Justice Drags On And On

"The administration of justice in the United States is in trouble."

This quotation is not "taken out of context" because it is simply the opening sentence in the final report of this year's Columbia University American Assembly. It is also the simplest way to express the gist of speeches and program themes which dominate current bench and bar meetings.

Two unrelated events in Texas last week serve to illustrate the delays and frustrations which continue to plague the process of criminal justice just as they do civil court proceedings.

In Dallas, the presumably valuable time of a district court and its visiting judge, Louis T. Holland of Montague, was wasted on a motion by attorneys for Jack Ruby that Judge Joe B. Brown be disqualified as judge in the original Ruby murder trial.

The excuse for the request was that the judge and a ghost writer have since written a book about the trial. Since Judge Brown's book is a post trial literary effort, and since he has already disqualified himself from further participation in the appeals phases of the case, it is a bit difficult to see why more than a moment's consideration would be necessary before dismissing the motion. Judge Holland, of course, refused to set aside Ruby's conviction for killing Lee Harvey Oswald.

At Wharton, Dist. Judge Thurman Gup-ton, as a way out of legal entanglements, ordered the long-delayed murder trial of accused sex slayer Leslie Douglas Ashley moved from there to Galesville. Many moons ago it had been moved from Houston to Wharton.

The judge's reason was that the case "has gotten heavy publicity in the Wharton area." The idea persists, of course, that people somehow ought to be kept from hearing about brutal crimes committed in their communities.

The victim of the alleged murder has now been buried for more than four years, while the guilt or innocence of the defendant is still far from decided.

There is no wonder that the subject of the tightening-up of unwieldy judicial processes keeps cropping up.

Lyndon Locks Negotiations In For Johnson 'Treatment'

Some Washington authorities are saying "I told you so" this week, following the settling of the steel strike prospect of the past week.

They are chuckling up their sleeves, these astute stattle watchers.

Here's the way they figure the play. The steel fellows and the labor leaders play it cozy — they know the longer they argue and dealock on their discussions the more money they are going to get and the more benefits too. So, they wait for Lyndon to make a dramatic entrance as supreme compromiser.

Last week the steel negotiators got the full Johnson "treatment." To make the talks more intimate — Lyndon brought them right into the White House. This has been done so many times in the past, it was used again. He arranged to have meals sent into the bargainers so they could keep in session.

LBJ visited the men and persuaded them to stay for lunch. They had fine food sent in again. He then asked them to continue the talks through dinner. Naturally, with anticipation of another fine meal from the White House kitchen, they agreed.

In effect, Johnson placed the talks on a seige - like "lock-in" footing.

LBJ then turned on the "treatment." He reminded them that Labor Day was coming up and it would be mighty nice if they could finish in time to spend the holidays with their families.

Throughout his get-together with union and management spokesmen, Johnson emphasized the damage the steel strike would do to the economy of the country. Nothing was mentioned, or reported, concerning their patriotic duty to the sons of other men who were fighting and dying in Viet Nam.

Sure, let the story end as we all expected it to do. Management and labor got what they wanted. Johnson got the credit he loves so well. The public got what they generally get—a foot in the mouth.

Representative Cederberg of Michigan says: "The theme now seems to be: Ask what your country can do for you — not what you can do for your country. The federal government of course has responsibilities to its citizens and we are all aware that many of our citizens, through no fault of their own, need assistance. This assistance should be and will be provided, but it must be done in a manner that will not in any way lessen an individual's personal initiative and make him forever dependent upon his government."

Retirement Attitudes Important

Attitudes affect the change from employment to retirement, but early planning can provide for both money income and satisfactory emotional attitudes, suggests Mrs. Eisie P. Short, Texas A&M University Extension Service home management specialist.

It is just as important for retired people to plan some way to use their time as it is to plan for a comfortable place to live and money for the necessities of life. Hobbies enjoyed before retirement may still be enjoyed afterwards.

Those who like to work with others and have developed an interest in helping family, friends, neighbors and the community will find plenty to do, Mrs. Short says.

Right now is not too early to plan for a retirement containing financial independence, social, mental and physical satisfactions, according to Mrs. Short. Then it will be easier to make the transition from an active business life to a life of satisfactory retirement.

An editorial in the New York State Journal of Medicine says: "Some may remember sired dogs mushing lifesaving serum to Nome (Alaska), but few will remember that the material was furnished free to meet a public emergency. All drug manufacturers have drugs which are of use only to a limited few. There is more involved here than the loss-leader technique or a bid for prestige. Whatever the cynics may say, we believe that what is really involved is responsibility. . . . The companies feel it is their duty to serve the public and the medical profession in this way."

Veterans Administration

A — All veterans or dependents of veterans coming on VA pension rolls on or after July 1, 1960, must receive their pension under the current law.

Q — How many veterans hospitals does the VA operate in Europe?

A — All VA hospitals are in continental United States except one in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, a U. S. possession.

Q — How does a veteran go about establishing service-connection for a disability?

A — Make application to the nearest VA regional office (at least one in every state) and submit proof that Texas' 87,000 4-H Club members will join other 4-H'ers throughout the nation in the observance of National 4-H Week, Sept. 25 - Oct. 2, reports R. L. Hunt, Jr., assistant state 4-H leader, Texas A&M University.

Hunt notes that some 2,250,000 boys and girls in the 50 states and Puerto Rico are 4-H members; that they range in age from 10 to 19 years of age; that they live in both rural and urban areas and that each conducts one or more projects involving personal responsibilities and "learning to do by doing." Along with their project or demonstration work, 4-H training also emphasizes the development of leadership and citizenship talents.

Theme for the upcoming week will be "Learning for Living" The 4-H members will be joined in the observance by their junior and adult 4-H leaders, their friends and extension workers. The "head-heart-hands-health" organization is supervised in the counties by the county extension agents and is the junior phase of the Cooperative Extension Service's educational programs.

U. S. Department of Agriculture acreage - marketing guides for 16 major vegetables, including potatoes, will be available in October to producers.

The guides, which apply to vegetables that will be marketed in fresh form mainly during the first three months of 1966, can be obtained at county agricultural agents' offices in winter vegetable production areas. They are titled "1966 Acreage - Marketing Guides, Winter Vegetable and Winter Potatoes."

The information is designed to help growers plan production in Texas and other warm-winter states.

According to the USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service, if production matches the guides for the coming season, and if harvests follow the usual time patterns, supplies should balance with demand.

Briefly, the guides recommend that growers plant acreage equal to last winter for most commodities. Changes suggested are larger snap bean planting and smaller lettuce and carrot acreages.

Beef is one of the most popular foods on the market today, says Mrs. Gwen Clyatt, Texas A&M University Extension consumer marketing specialist.

Cost per serving is the most realistic guide to economy when buying meat. Beef cuts vary in the amount of bone, fat and other waste; these factors will turn affect the amount of servings per pound of beef.

Cuts such as the blade or round bone chuck, the rump, reel of the sirloin and the bottom round steak are less-tender cuts of beef and usually cost less than tender steaks and rib roasts. The less-tender cuts also vary in amount of waste and cost per serving. Those carrying the cheapest price tags are not always the most economical.

To recognize quality beef, look for fine texture of lean, bright red color, soft porous red bone and flecks of fat well distributed throughout the lean. Grades of beef, indicating the quality of meats, most commonly found in retail stores are U. S. Choice and Good. Some meat packers use their own grades to indicate quality.

Inspection, whether it is federal, state or local, is based on sanitation and wholesomeness of the product. All meat that is shipped interstate must be federally inspected. If meat is pre-packaged, the label generally shows name of cut, total price, weight, grade and price per pound.

Fryers, turkeys and chicken hens are in good supply and economically priced.

Pears are available for preserving and eating fresh. New crop apple supplies and watermelons are good fruit choices.

A wide variety of flavorful cheeses are good teammates for the fruits and melons now on the market. Mrs. Clyatt suggests blending fresh juicy fruits with cottage cheese in a salad or serving wedges of cheddar, gouda, or other varieties of cheese with fresh fruits for a dessert.

Vegetable choices include blackeye peas, purple hull and crowder peas, eggplant, okra, squash, corn and sweet potatoes. Russet and red potatoes are down in price. Values may be down in price. Values may vary, head lettuce and dry yellow onions.

not excused merely because he was afraid of losing his job.

Second, besides the intensity of the pressure, the law will consider how serious was the misconduct you were ordered to commit. Running a red light is not so horrendous a deed that the law cannot afford to overlook it.

But suppose you had been ordered not only to go through red lights not so horrendous down a luckless pedestrian who happened to be in the path of your car.

That would be a different story. On theory, a few states do accept coercion as an excuse even for homicide. But in fact, such an excuse is rarely accepted in court. At the very least, the law would expect you to take every reasonable chance to avoid the killing of an innocent person.

In one case, for instance, a man on trial for murder protested that he had been commanded to fire the fatal shot. But the court rejected this excuse, saying that instead of firing at the victim he should have turned the gun on his own threatener.

Said the judge: "He could not elect a course absolutely safe to himself and slay an innocent man rather than take some risk."

U. S. Tomato Men Flock To Mexico

California and Texas growers and packers are stepping up their activities in Mexico since the agreement permitting Mexican farmhands (braceros) to harvest U. S. crops ended last Dec. 31.

California's Tri-Valley Growers Association, of San Francisco, announced in July it will set up a plant in Mexico to process and can tomatoes and asparagus for sale in the United States. It is to start production in 1967.

"The move was necessary," said Tri-Valley's William E.

Elleweit, "because of the tremendous losses we have been incurring because of lack of skilled farm labor."

Tri-Valley present does about 50 million dollars worth of business a year. It operates in 17 California counties and specializes in 14 different types of vegetables.

Subsidiaries of other U. S. firms that already pack tomatoes and tomato paste, have been ordered by parent companies in the United States to increase production to the maximum in Mexico.

"Because of labor shortages," one was told, "tomato production is down in the United States. We will be able to sell all we can get from Mexico."

Economists in Mexico expect many more U. S. growers to set up plants or buy into farms there to offset loss of the braceros, who have provided skilled, low cost harvest help for U. S. growers for 20 years.

Many U. S. farmers and packers already operate huge farms in Mexico, usually in dummy Mexican corporations or in partnership with Mexican farmers.

California companies tend to be affiliated with Mexicans (or operate on their own) in Mexico's northwest, in the states of Chihuahua, Coahuila and Nuevo Leon. Frequently they grew fruit and vegetables on this side of the border and sell them to their own distributing companies in Texas for sale in the big markets of the United States.

No one knows precisely how much Americans have invested in agricultural activities in Mexico but experts guess it runs into tens of millions of dollars.

In the next five years, as U. S. farmers adjust to the ban on braceros (by developing U. S. labor and improving mechanical harvesters), U. S. investments will likely increase by millions of dollars.

Growers expect little relief from the U. S. Department of Labor, which, now that the bracero agreement has ended, controls the number of foreign laborers admitted to the United States.

Recently, California tomato growers asked for 23,000 Mexican braceros because they could find no U. S. labor but Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz authorized only 8,000.

Mexico had viewed the bracero ban as a serious setback—first, because it would leave about 3000,000 baceros jobless, and second, because it would mean Mexico would lose between 30 and 50 million dollars a year income from the braceros' wages.

Last year, Mexico exported fruits and vegetables worth 70 million dollars to the United States and imported simillar products worth 15.5 million.

If, as is expected, more U. S. growers decide to come south of the border to buy farms or lease land, and set up processing plants to meet the demand of U. S. markets, Mexico's exports to the United States will increase dramatically.

As you pause at a red traffic light, a stranger leaps into the back seat of your car, presses a gun against your head and snarls:

"Get going!"
If you do get going, are you — aside from your other troubles — guilty of a traffic violation for going through a red light?

Obviously not. Although you wen through the physical motions of breaking the law, you had no real choice in the matter. You were a toy of circumstance, acting under harsh and overwhelming coercion.

When is coercion an excuse for what would otherwise be a crime?

First, the law will consider how intense was the pressure to which you were subjected. It must be severe.

For example, a man who took part in a holdup was excused because he acted under a direct threat of being shot by his companion. But a man who delivered bootleg whiskey was
