Stanton Man, 21, Killed In Midland Auto Mishap

Abelardo Martinez Salgado, 21, recently discharged from the Army, became Midland's first traffic fatality of the year late Thursday night in a spectacular crash that injured a companion.

Salgado died instantly in the one-car accident. The mishap occurred in the city limits of Midland on North Big Spring Street. Time of the accident was set at 11 p.m. by investigating officers.

A passenger with Salgado, Lucio Rodriguez Villa, also 21, was thrown from the car as it overturned six or seven times, officers said.

Officers said Salgado was apparently traveling at a high rate of speed when his vehicle failed to make a turn and careened about 1,700 feet on the road shoulder.

Question-And-Answer

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q — What kind of records should I keep for my income tax return, that I might have to produce if I'm audited?

A — Keep whatever you need to substantiate the income and deductions on your return. Cancelled checks, paid bills, Forms W-2 and 1099, bank books and similar records will be helpful.

Q — Why is my wife's Social Security number so important on a joint tax return? Most of the income comes from my salary.

A — According to the law, your wife should show her account number on your joint return if she had: 1) separate gross income of $600 or more, to $1200 or more if she was 65 or more before the end of the taxable year, or 2) self-employment income, or 3) separate income, such as wages, dividends, or interest, paid to her which the payer is required to report on a return or statement of information.

If the necessary account numbers are not on a return the matching can not be done, necessitating correspondence with the taxpayer. Failure to include your wife's number will delay the processing of your return and any refund due.

Q — I am retired and have no taxable income. Can I still file a joint return with my wife who is still working?

A — Yes. The fact that either the husband or the wife had no income does not prevent them from filing a joint return.

Q — I paid up the mortgage on my home early but was charged a pre-payment penalty. Is that deductible?

A — Yes it is deductible as interest if you itemize your deductions.

Q — When can I start excluding sick pay?

A — There are two rules governing when and how sick pay may be excluded from income for federal tax purposes.

First, if the amount you receive as sick pay is more than 75 per cent of your weekly rate of pay, there is a 30 day waiting period before you are entitled to a sick-pay exclusion.

If the amount you receive is 75 per cent or less, the waiting period is 7 days unless you are hospitalized for at least one day during your absence from work. In that event, there is no waiting period. The exclusion is limited to $75.00 per week for the part of the first 30-day period in which you are entitled to the exclusion. After that, it becomes $100.00 per week.

Q — My husband and I have separated. Who is entitled to claim the children as dependents?

A — The children may be claimed as dependents by the person who provides more than half their support during the taxable year. Whether this person is you or your husband depends on the financial arrangements worked out between you.

Q — I have inherited $2,000 from my father's estate. Will I have to report this on my return?

A — No, inheritances are not taxable income.

Q — How much can I deduct for state gas tax this year?

A — On page 9 of the 1040 instruction booklet you will find the amount that may be deducted for gasoline tax on a state-by-state basis.

Q — What's the law on estimated tax? Who has to file a declaration?

A — In general terms, taxpayers are required to file a Declaration of Estimated Income Tax, Form 1040ES, and make quarterly payments of estimated tax when their tax liability is expected to exceed their withholding by $40 or more. See page 6 of the 1040 instructions for further information.

Q — My income last year was just over $6,000 with about $200 of it coming from dividends and interest. My wife earned nearly $1,000 doing survey work and a little commission selling. What would be best for us — a joint return or separate ones?

A — This sort of question usually can't be answered on the basis of income information alone. The amount of your deductible expenses has to be considered.

Generally, a joint return is most advantageous for married couples. However, you should figure your tax both ways and then file the way that results in the lower tax.

Q — I got a letter from your office asking me to come in for an audit of last year's return. My neighbor, who helped me prepare it, says he is not permitted to appear with me. What should I do?

A — Anyone who helped prepare your return or who has knowledge of the facts reported in it can appear with you when your return is audited.

However, if the audit leads to a proposed change in your tax liability and you disagree with this finding then anyone who acts as an advocate in your behalf must be enrolled to practice, or if he is a CPA or a lawyer, file the required certificate.

Q — Are Social Security taxes deductible?

A — No, they are not deductible by the employee. The employer may deduct his share as a business expense, however.

Q — I am entitled to alimony. Do I have to pay tax on it?

A — Yes, you do. Alimony is taxable income to the recipient and a deductible item for the payer. Child support payments, however, are neither taxable nor deductible.

Q — Are the dividends I received on my G.I. insurance taxable?

A — No, there are exempt from taxation. Any interest earned on these dividends left on deposits with the V.A. is taxable.

Q — Is it true that if you have a capital loss you can carry it over as long as you want? In other words, if I don't use it this year will I lose it?

A — Previous to the Revenue Act of 1964, capital losses could only be carried over 5 years. The 1964 law changed that and capital losses can be carried over indefinitely until absorbed. These losses retain their original character to that a short term loss remains a short term loss and a long term loss remains a long term loss.

The answer to your question, therefore, is yes. You may carry over a loss without losing it until it is used up.

Library Lines

MRS. RALPH CAFFEY, Librarian

Library hours: Monday, 1 - 8 p.m.; Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, 1 - 5 p.m.; Saturday 10 a.m. - 3 p.m.

Today we shall go on a tour through the religion section of the library. The many devotional type books are not used as much as they should be.

Here's an intriguing title, "Saints in Aprons and Overall," many heroic deeds remain forever unsung, and many heroes and heroines never get their names in newspapers or in the history books.

William Barker finds some of these heroes and heroines among the friends of Paul in the New Testament. Moving along we find, "Hand in Hand; Mother, Child and God." In this book is an intimate view of those very special hours that children sometimes share with their parents. In it are written the problems and fears of these children; their hopes and little victories; their fierce little battles and their quiet trust in those they love.

The child hungers for wisdom; the mother finds a growing need for help to meet that hunger; and they go "hand in hand" in search of God. "The Upward Calling," gives us meditations on the Christian life, being a distillation of the teachings of Jesus and Paul on the kind of committed life that is worthy of Paul's words, "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God, in Christ Jesus."

This book of ten chapters brings the reader a practical lesson in Truth to be applied to his own life and affairs, and is appropriately entitled, "Lovingly in the Hands of the Father." Ralph W. Sockman has written a timely book entitled, "How to Believe," which answers the questions that challenge man's faith.

To be continued next week.

The National Cotton Council's move to increase funds available for cotton research and promotion through a national marketing order has taken definite shape.

H. R. 12322, a bill which would enable the Secretary of Agriculture to hold a grower referendum to determine if cotton producers favor a $1 a bale "check-off," was introduced this week in the House of Representatives by Congressman Harold Cooley. It was immediately referred to the House Agriculture Committee of which Cooley is Chairman.

Purpose of the bill is stated as: "A bill to enable cotton growers to establish, finance and carry out a coordinated program of research and promotion to improve the competitive position of, and to expand markets for, cotton." Leaders of the National Cotton Council have expressed the hope that the enabling legislation can get through Congress and the referendum held in time to make the marketing order effective with the 1966 crop.

A copy of the bill as introduced was received this week in the office of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. If passed, it would give the Secretary authority to issue marketing orders assessing producers $1 per bale, providing means for collection of the money, and for administering the program.

Approval in the referendum could come about in two ways, by a two-thirds majority vote of producers voting in the referendum or by a "yes" vote "by cotton producers voting in the referendum who . . . have produced at least two-thirds of the volume of the cotton produced."

While this language of the bill does not make it clear, members of the NCC committee responsible for writing the bill explain that this latter method is intended to mean a favorable vote from producers who produced two-thirds of the cotton produced "by producers voting in the referendum," not two-thirds of total production.

If producers approved the "check-off" procedure, funds collected would be administered by a Cotton Board selected by the Secretary from nominees submitted by eligible producer organizations within a state. Eligibility of any given organization to participate would be subject to certification by the Secretary.

Primary consideration in determining the eligibility of an organization, according to the act as now written, would be whether its cotton-farmer membership produced a relatively significant volume of cotton to warrant participation.

Producers who did not wish to support the research and promotion program would have the right to demand and receive from the Cotton Board a refund of the $1 assessments. Each refund would have to be requested within thirty days from date on which the assessment was collected.

Once approved by producers, the marketing order or orders could be suspended or terminated in a subsequent grower referendum which could be called by the Secretary at any time, or called on request of 10 percent or more of the number of cotton producers voting in the referendum which approved the original order. Termination or suspension by referendum would require a simple majority of voting producers who produced more than 50 percent of the cotton produced by those voting in the referendum.

One provision in the act stipulates that: "No producer requesting a refund shall be eligible to vote in any subsequent referendum until all amounts refunded to him have been repaid to the Cotton Board unless the Cotton Board in accordance with regulations issued under the order waives such repayment."

There has been more than a little comment on the provision, and many are of the opinion that denying the right to vote to those who oppose the marketing order is not exactly in line with democratic principles.

Orders issued by the Secretary under the bill could provide for (a) the establishment and administration of appropriate plans or projects for the advertising and sales promotion of cotton and its products; (b) establishing and carrying on research and development projects and studies on production, ginning, processing, distribution or utilization of cotton and its products; and (c) providing that handlers of cotton maintain and make available for inspection whatever books and records might be required by the order and deemed necessary and appropriate by the Secretary.

Simply put, the program would work like this. The Secretary would establish and select a Cotton Board from nominees submitted by approved area and state producer organizations. The Cotton Board would develop and submit to the Secretary for his approval advertising, sales promotion or research and development plans, with no such plan or project becoming effective without the Secretary's approval. An annual budget for carrying out the approved projects would also be submitted to the Secretary for approval.

The point of collection is not specified in the bill except to state that "each handler of cotton, as prescribed by the order, shall collect from the producer . . . and shall pay to the Cotton Board an assessment prescribed by the order."

With the money thus made available the Cotton Board, with the approval of the Secretary, would enter into contracts or agreements for carrying out the research and promotion plans with an organization governed by cotton producers selected by area and state producer organizations certified by the Secretary. The act specifies that the producers of each cotton producing state will, to the extent practicable, have representation on the governing body of the contracting organization in proportion to the monetary contribution of producers in that state.

The only beltwide organization now in existence which fits this description is the Cotton Producers Institute which up to now has operated on voluntary $1 per bale contributions. It is not spelled out in the bill itself, but the National Cotton Council has previously said its staff would be available to service the program, without overhead, as it has serviced CPI in the past.

Any change in the amount of the initial $1 assessment could only come about by amendment of the order, recommended by the Cotton Board, approved by the Secretary and adopted by two-thirds of the cotton producers in a referendum or producing two-thirds of the cotton.
