Some called it the "simmering summer of 1966." Ever what it was — the riots, marches and demonstrations was given full blame this week as the United States Senate formally buried the administration's civil rights bill for the session. This was the first time the JOHNSON demand for more civil rights legislation was not accepted. We have the possibility of seeing more civil disobedience next summer if we consider the right's threats following defeat of the bill Monday. It's too bad Congress don't put some laws on the books curtailing the flagrant disregard for the rights of all persons and protect the public from the coming riots.

A story out of Livingston, N. J. says seventy-six married couples tried "Operation Match" — a computerized dating service used by collegians and only two husbands wound up with their wives. A spokesman for Operation Match said the results of the experiment did not necessarily reflect on the marriages of the couples. The suburban couples taking the test were all past college age. The two husbands accepted by the machine as well married had this comment: "Why did it have to happen to us?"

The DRAGONS are playing excellent winning football at Flower Grove this season. The team journeyed to Barstow and won 34-0 over the Barstow Bears Friday. We predict the fellows from the Grove will have another fine season — it looks real good now.

JAMES H. MOYERS, 39, assistant to President JOHNSON, and brother of BILL MOYERS, White House press secretary, died Saturday after taking an over-dose of prescription medicine. MOYERS, a native of Marshall, Texas, was married and the father of two children. He had worked on the staff for LBJ about a year after having worked for a sulphur concern. It was revealed Wednesday that MOYERS was diagnosed as a cancer sufferer last summer.

The nation was shocked again early Sunday when the murder of VALERIE PERCY, member of a prominent Chicago family, was discovered. Police appear to be without leads at this writing. MISS PERCY was the daughter of CHARLES PERCY, candidate for the U. S. Senate from Illinois. The murder took place on the second floor of the 17-room home. One sensational crime after another has been occurring in the country. Crime is definitely on the increase and our light laws on investigations, arrests and confessions can only cause lawbreakers to try it. It's really hard to believe that the recent rulings of the Supreme Court on criminals, on prayer, and on Communism, could happen in this great nation without such a public outcry that all nine of the judges on the Supreme Court would resign. Then too, the Texas Legislature at the last session in Austin practically abolished the death penalty and made convictions hard to get because the rights of the criminal come before the rights of the criminal's victim. All of this Austin legislation was passed under the CONNALLY administration. It is interesting to note that JOHN is now calling for some modifications of the laws. He wants to rewrite the entire state Constitution now or so he has said. The people of Texas want to be at the writing. Why all this monkeying with laws that have been good enough for this nation to grow and prosper under for more than

DOG PACKS DANGEROUS

Citizens Complaining About Dogs Running Loose On Stanton Streets

Irate citizens, their rest and peace of mind disturbed by constantly loose running dogs in the city limits of Stanton, have requested the newspaper to suggest a plan to rid the town of the untamed and non-immunized canine packs. Five ladies telephoned the news office for any possible publicity obtainable to cast the eye and mind on those charged with keeping the city free from such wandering animals. One lady stated that she was afraid to leave her house to go shopping for fear of being bitten or attacked by a pack of dogs in the School Street vicinity. Another telephone complainant said dogs had completely took over her premises. Another lady advised that her flower beds had been ruined and expensive bulbs dug from the

Mike Springer Guest Speaker At Lions Meet

Stanton Lions met Tuesday noon at Belvue Motel Restaurant, Lion John Wood presiding.

Mike Springer, guest speaker, introduced by Ohmer Kelly. Springer, in his talk, revealed by comparison what freedom means to the American citizen, and what the Communist citizen must accept as freedom. The American has obtained and enjoyed his freedom under God, and by this same power, he has been able to be a part of the governing power of this nation. The Communist citizen looks no higher than a federal agency for his freedom and is dominated by this agency in his every movement. The Communist agency wipes a supreme being from the minds of their subjects, compels them to accept the man of the federal choice as their lord and master.

Bufs Looking For First '66 Triumph Friday

By BOB DEAVENPORT And JIMMY STALLINGS

Coach Bryan Boyd's Buffaloes return to the home field for their third game of the football season this Friday night. The Stanton team will be playing host to the Seagrave Eagles in the 8 p.m. encounter.

Last week Seagraves downed Frenship, of the Buffs own district, by the score of 35-12. Seagraves opened their season two weeks ago with a victory over Eunice, New Mexico. Seagraves is the top rated Class A team in the South Plains area.

Farm Bureau Backing No. 1 Amendment

Texas voters will decide how agricultural land of our state will be taxed by voting either for or against the first constitutional amendment in the November 8 election, Owen Kelly, president of Martin County Farm Bureau, said Tuesday, September 19.

The amendment will read: "For the constitutional Amendment to provide that all land owned by natural persons designated for agricultural use shall be assessed for all tax purposes on consideration of only those factors relative to such agricultural use."

"Against the Constitutional Amendment to provide that all land owned by natural persons designated for agricultural use shall be assessed for all tax purposes on the consideration of only those factors relative to such agricultural use."

Should the amendment pass, owners of agricultural land will be taxed according to the productive value of the land. "Passage of this amendment will save Texas farmers and rancher 86 million dollars annually," said C. H. DeVaney, Texas Farm Bureau president.

The Buffs will be trying to bring their season record back to an even keel after dropping their opener to Roscoe, and settling for a tie with Iraan last Friday night.

The Buffs will be without their regular quarterback, Buddy Shanks, who suffered a badly bruised knee late in the Iraan game. However, many local fans feel that senior Larry White was the potential to help the Buffalo offense keep moving. Coach Boyd advises that White has looked real good in practice this week.

Other than the injury to Shanks the squad should be in its best physical condition of the season. Terry Carr, who has played in only limited action, is expected to be ready to go. Carr is expected to replace Shanks on defense.

Coach Boyd feels that the squad has been looking very good in practice sessions. Even though Seagraves is rated very highly, the game could be a real thriller. Last year the two teams played one of the best football games in area football with Stanton falling 8 to 6.

The expected line-up for the Friday night game is as follows:

TESCO To Aid Foreign Market Development

A program to assist manufacturers in this area in the development of foreign markets for their products was announced Saturday by Burl Hulse Jr., president and general manager of Texas Electric Service Company.

Texas Electric is cooperating in the program, which is national in scope, along with other investor-owned electric utilities in the United States in an effort to promote sale of American-made products abroad, Hulse said.

Associated with the electric utilities in developing the program are the American Express Company and the World Trade Information Center, the firm which provides "U. S. Products of Export Catalog Files" for the activity.

"We feel this program offers an opportunity to the manufacturer of exportable products in this area," Hulse said, "particularly those who are not able to have their own representatives abroad and are not in a position to handle the complicated transactions necessary to complete sales in foreign countries." Hulse said that Texas Electric's Area Development De-

Bufs Gain 14-14 Draw With Iraan Friday Night

Stanton's Buffaloes came from behind Friday night in Iraan to gain a 14-14 tie with their non-district opponents. Both teams hoped to break into the victory column but neither club made it. In the statistical department the first downs were also very close, thirteen for Iraan and 11 for Stanton.

Iraan stacked up a fourteen point lead in the first half and all of the Bison points were put on the scoreboard in the third period. Neither club could manage a tally in the final frame.

Quarterback Pat Gladden was the big wheel for the Braves. He scored the first touchdown for Iraan from 30 yards out and a pass from

Paul Was Founder Of First Church At Philippi

The name "Philippi" may mean little to the casual 20th century observer, but it was in that ancient city that Christianity was founded. From there the new religion was introduced into Europe. From thence it spread to our Western world.

Answering the Macedonian call, Paul crossed the sea from Asia to Europe. He had seen a vision of a Macedonian man standing beside his bed saying "Come over into Macedonia and help us." The vision may have been an expression of Paul's waking thoughts for he must have felt even then, that he wanted to preach the Gospel to the ends of the earth.

Paul was an imperialist and the empire he sought to build was the empire of Christ. In this empire the lives of men would be ruled by the constraining love of Christ. But it was to be an empire nevertheless, worldwide in its sweep and ruling every destiny of man.

No earthly empire builder was ever inspired with a greater vision than that seen by Paul. And certainly, none ever served his purpose with greater intensity; and courage than Paul. As Christ began His empire among lowly fishermen and others from every walk of humble life, so the first Christian church in Europe began among the group of women meeting for prayer by a river outside the city of Philippi. The fact that Paul had strong ideas in society did not prevent his supreme appreciation of their value in the work and life of the church.

Philosopher Gets Mad At Neighbor For Expecting His Tractor To Start On Time

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw seems to be a little hot under the collar about something this week.)

Dear editor: The other morning I had some important work to do and got up real early to get at it, but when I pushed the starter button the tractor wouldn't start.

"My neighbor, who had agreed to come over and help me, was put out.

"Why didn't you check that tractor out yesterday?" he wanted to know. "I can't stand around here all morning."

"Now just a minute," I said. "Look at this." I pulled a copy of a newspaper out of pocket and showed him an article about how much trouble the astronauts had getting off on their latest flight into space.

"Look," I bore down, "if those fellows, with 50 million dollars in expense money, all the brains you can hire, the best mechanics on earth, and all the scientific equipment there is, can turn up with a leak in the fuel line and have to postpone a flight, what's so outrageous about this tractor's not starting?"

The more I thought about it the madder I got and I told him to go on home and I'd do the work some other time. As he left he tripped over a loose board on the back step and flung back over his shoulder, "You ought to fix those steps, too."

"Fix em yourself," I muttered to myself.

The trouble with some people is they don't read enough. Hasn't he been keeping up with the condition of the United States Capitol building on Washington? One whole side is about to fall down and they've got it propped up and boards put up overhead to keep bricks from falling on people going in from that side.

What sort of a neighbor have I got that expects me to have a better tractor than the Gemini Rocket and a better house than the United States Capitol, the seat of government of the richest nation on earth?

A man can do just so much, and people who are always expecting perfection would do well to look around and find out how little there is.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Lubbock Nurse Blasts Hospitals At Hearing

Gale Davis of the Methodist Hospital, Lubbock, a registered nurse charged at a hearing in Amarillo that hospital administrators are to blame for a shortage of private duty nurses in some cities.

She said hospital management had tried to regiment nurses and suggested that in the future administrators "mind their own business and allow us (the nurses) to mind ours."

Another nurse said doctors and administrators refused to recognize the professional status of nurses.

The women testified at a hearing held in Amarillo by a Texas Senate committee looking into statewide nursing shortages.

The committee was headed by Senator Chris Cole of Houston. Other committee members present were Senator Franklin Spears of San Antonio and Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon.

Miss Davis said: "We are not considered to have the same professional standing as teachers, lawyers or doctors. Doctors and administrators do not wish nurses to have professional status."

Miss Davis said the lack of contracts for tenure agreement such as enjoyed by teachers put the nurses in a difficult situation.

"We can be fired on the spot," she said. "And many nurses have been over misundestandings."

She also labeled as degrading the hospital practice of having nurses punch time clocks.

"The nature of a nurse's responsibilities doesn't lend itself to an eight-hour factory day," said said. "Our work is not such that we can walk off the job when the five o'clock whistle blows."

Senator Tower's Column

September 16 marked the 156th anniversary of Mexican independence. On September 15, at midnight, President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz greeted a crowd of 100,000 or so from the balcony of the brilliantly lit national palace.

150 miles to the northwest of Mexico City lies a town with the beautiful name of Dolores Hidalgo. In Dolores Hidalgo the church bells will peal a little longer than usual on September 16 but otherwise its rural quiet will remain undisturbed.

Yet it was in Dolores Hidalgo that the struggle for Mexican independence began. From the steps of the church of the pueblo then known as Dolores the parish priest, Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla gave voice to the cry that roused Mexico to revolution against Spain.

Hidalgo had been involved in a revolutionary plot with the area militia leader, but plans were discovered and several arrests were made on September 13 in Queretaro, 50 miles to the southeast of Dolores. When this news was brought to Hidalgo, he called for immediate revolt against Spain.

Hidalgo's Indian peasant forces captured Alhondigo de Granaditas on September 28 and had swept on to the outskirts of Mexico City by late October.

There Hidalgo's undisciplined forces were defeated, and Hidalgo was finally captured near Saltillo on February 21, 1811. He died before a firing squad at Chihuahua on July 31, less than 11 months after the "Grito" of Dolores.

Although his uprising failed and another decade was to pass before Mexico became independent, the obscure but courageous parish priest is hailed as the fateer of his country.

The place where it all began, now officially named Dolores Hidalgo, rates as a national shrine. It is called "La Cuna de la Independencia," the cradle of the independence and liberty which the Mexican people treasure so fervently.

All Texans and all Americans join in good wishes to our neighboring Republic on this occasion of its national holiday.

A&M Service Says Texas Moisture Best In Years

The best in years for this season summarizes the present soil moisture situation in Texas. In fact, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service said in its weekly report Sunday, a period of hot, dry weather would be welcomed by the state's farmers.

It's needed to dry out fields, to mature crops, especially in western and northwestern sections, and to complete crop harvesting in other sections.

Ranges and pastures continued to improve and livestock are making rapid gains with the abundance of grazing now available, the service said. Small grain planting is being rushed as conditions permit and grazing prospects from this source are good. Stock tanks have been filled and the overall picture for stockmen is good, the service said.

Some Cotton Delayed
On the other hand, cotton harvesting has been delayed and quality lowered in the Central Texas and Upper Gulf Coast areas, the service reported.

South Plains farmers are concerned because of the excessive moisture and cool nights and would like to see a lot of hot and dry weather to mature cotton, dry up fields for grain sorghum harvesting and wheat planting.

Wheat planting in the Panhandle is making good progress with 70 per cent of the crop seeded in the northern counties of the area. Seeding is also progressing in the Rolling Plains but wet fields have kept the pace slow, the service said.

Plains Soybeans Look Good
High Plains soybeans and castorbeans continue to look very good. Tomatoes, pepper and black eye peas are being harvested on the South Plains. Vegetable planting is continuing in the southern areas of the state.

The continuing rains have created problems for cotton farmers trying to get their fields defoliated for harvesting. Delays caused by the rains have caused plants to resume growth and a lowering of cotton quality.

Goat and sheep shearing have also been slowed by the rains and some goat losses have been reported in Central Texas due to chilling, the service said.

Veterans Responsible For GI Loans
Texas veterans who have received GI loans for the purchase of homes were reminded today that they remain personally liable on their note and mortgage when they sell their homes if the new buyer merely continues the payment on the GI loan.

Jack Coker, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office advised veterans that liability continues until the loan is paid in full or until veterans are personally released by the VA on the obligation.

"The VA has guaranteed and approved many home loans in the area under our jurisdiction," Coker said. "We have experienced cases where veterans have sold their properties and were led to believe they had no further responsibility for the mortgage debt."

He warned veterans who may be behind in their payments due on GI loans to be very careful before agreeing to offers by strangers to make up their back payments if the veteran will sign contracts.

Coker said it is such a proposition is made, veterans should ask the holder of their mortgages or the Loan Guaranty Division of the VA Regional Office for advice on the validity of the offer.

He stressed that the veteran remains personally liable for the payment of his GI loan if it is not paid by someone else. Even though the buyer takes over the mortgage and agrees to make the payments, until the VA provides a written release from liability, the veteran is held responsible.

Kennedy Is Acclaimed In Wisconsin

Make no mistake about it — Bobby Kennedy is standing in the wings and ready to walk on stage if Lyndon Johnson lets his guard down a moment. And that guard can drop suddenly.

Democrats everywhere know of Bobby's ambitions. And he appears to be on his way too.

In Kenosha, Wisconsin, a pushing, hand-shaking, autograph seeking crowd jammed a college fieldhouse recently to see, hear and touch Robert Kennedy. Kennedy was in Humphrey territory but he was no stranger. It was in Wisconsin that the late President John Kennedy won overwhelmingly in a pre-convention presidential primary, Kennedy went to take West Virginia and capture the Democratic nomination, over three Democratic giants, Lyndon Johnson, Hubert Humphrey and the late Adlai Stevenson.

Kennedy went into Wisconsin to campaign for his friend, Rep. Lynn Staubaum.

But the spectators proved their hearts were with Kennedy.

"We love you, Bobby," some shouted repeatedly.

"RFK for President," read signs which appeared by the score.

Kennedy was accompanied by Staubaum; Lt. Gov. Patrick Lucey, the Democratic nominee for governor and a long-time Kennedy backer; Atty. Gen. Bronson C. La Follette, who seeks re-election, and a host of local Democratic officeholders as he pushed his way into the modernistic Carthage College fieldhouse.

The standing room only audience was estimated at anywhere from 4,200 to 7,000. Hundreds jammed the parking lot outside.

Wedding Bells Sound Offener

If you have the feeling you gave lots more wedding presents last year than in previous years, you're right. You did. According to statisticians at the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, wedding bells sounded for 801,760 American couples and 145,519 Canadians in 1965, increases of more than 120,000 and almost 8,000 respectively.

Romance aside, why did so many more American choose to marry in 1965? "In the United States, the increasing concern about the growing involvement in the conflict in Viet Nam contributed to the upswing," the report notes. As a consequence, almost eight percent more marriages occurred in the second half of 1965 than in the correspond-

SUPPORTING YOUR TOWN

"No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his home town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns. This does not mean you should have a whole, half or even a quarter page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned, if you do not use more than a two-line space.

"A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertising. The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own, is not a valuable addition to any town. The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business man."

Chances are that this year, or sometime in the near future, you'll go camping. It is the latest fad. And the army of family campers is growing with leaps and bounds with each passing year.
When you head for the outdoors to spend the night, you'll need some sort of shelter. Elementary, Mr. Watson? Not today!
While the time-honored tent still is the most popular, there has been a major trend toward self-contained units like pickup campers, small mobile homes and folding camp-trailers.

Of the three, the trailer, which is not much larger than an ordinary utility trailer when folded, probably has the most to offer the average camper. It is easy to carry about, it is compact and lightweight, and it is priced within the average family budget.
But this is just part of the story.
Recently a neighboring family spent three days on a Texas lake, camping out in a trailer. They do not own one, so they leased a trailer from a rental agency. Most cities now have such facilities.
So if you don't intend to use a trailer often, rent one. But if you enjoy camping out weekends, as well as during your vacation, you might as well invest in one suited to your particular needs.

A camp trailer has several advantages over the tent. Because of its compact size and low-slung profile, one can be towed by the family automobile. There is no need for the big rear-view mirrors, special brakes or complex hitches. All equipment is portaged in the trailer, thus leaving more room in the auto.
The camper permits sleeping off the ground. Thus no leveling is necessary if the trailer is parked on a flat area and no ditching is required in rainy weather. One person can erect or take down a camp-trailer in a few minutes.

But there are disadvantages. A trailer costs more than a tent (about $300 to $800) and more maintenance is needed, such as tires and accessories. Furthermore, there's a matter of storage when the unit is not in use.
A trailer is more difficult to maneuver, particularly in heavy traffic. And a trailer must be licensed.
But for the family that camps frequently, the price is justified. A trailer, if stored and maintained properly, will last indefinitely. One almost pays for itself after a couple of short vacations, with weekend trips thrown in "for free." And for comfort and convenience, the trailer definitely has it over the tent.

A typical trailer has a metal or fiberglass body with a canvas canopy top mounted on a collapsible metal frame. Some models have gas or electric lights, screened doors, built-in lockers and awnings. Also racks for carrying small portable boats.
The average trailer sleeps four persons comfortably (we're speaking of the ordinary folding trailer, not the expandable type).
If you're shopping around for a trailer, don't be hasty. Compare models. Consider your specific needs.
Stay within your budget. But if for a few dollars you can get a larger trailer with more time-saving accessories, think hard and long before trying to save. This is a long-range investment and it may be a false economy to try to cut corners. You get just what you pay for. That extra room and added convenience will be a blessing. In a camp your greatest luxury is comfort.

Girl Scout Meetings In Full Swing

With autumn in the air, Girl Scout meetings are once again in full swing, and if she isn't already a girl in green, your daughter may arrive home asking for permission to join a troop. What will your permission give her?
First of all, it will give her a unity of purpose with three million other girls throughout the country. And if Girl Scout purpose is achieved, it will give her an adulthood enriched with the highest ideals of character, conduct and citizenship.

Whether Brownie, Junior, Cadette or Senior, each level of Scouting offers unique opportunities and gives something of value for girls seven through seventeen.
The simple word "Yes" is small — the returns are immeasurable.

about your condition. She is ethically bound not to discuss medical finding with patients. If you have questions, ask your doctor.
* Fill in insurance forms correctly and completely before handing them to the doctor. Most forms are to be filled in partially by the patient. Save your doctor as much time as possible by reading the forms carefully beforehand and filling in as much as you can in advance.
* Take your medicine just as the doctor prescribes. Don't alter his timetable or dosage, and don't neglect to take medicine altogether. The medicine is ordered to help you get well, but it won't work unless it is properly used.
* Be business-like in financial arrangements. Don't hesitate to ask about the doctor's fee, and to discuss anything you don't understand. Also, your doctor has many business expenses to meet, and your prompt payment will help him maintain an efficient practice.

Health And Safety Tips

From The American Medical Association

How are your medical manners?
Many patients unwittingly break the code of "medical conduct" which their doctors expect of them and, in so doing, delay diagnosis, hinder correct treatment and often cost themselves more money than they would normally pay, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.
Here are a few of these unwritten laws most often broken—
* Keep your appointment (or notify the doctor's office when you know you can't be there. Even a few hours notice that you can't make it may be enough to allow another patient to take your place.
* Be prompt, but be prepared to wait. Unfair? Not at all.

Diagnosis and treatment cannot be scheduled on an exact timetable. Some patients take longer than others. Emergencies arise that upset the doctor's schedule.
* Be cooperative in giving your medical history. Illness or injuries in your past have a direct bearing on your present condition, on your reaction to tests and on how you respond to surgery or medical treatment.
* Don't ask the receptionist or nurse for information

Alsop-Nowlin Introduces 1967 Chevy Truck Line

The most significant cab and sheet metal styling change in Chevrolet history, featuring clean, angular lines with a functional character, leads a long list of improvements in the 1967 Chevrolet truck line. Other highlight features include:

- Addition of longer, larger capacity models with 1/2 and 3/4-ton rating to the Chevy-Van and Sportvan series;
- Diesel models in the 3/4- and 1-ton city-delivery Step-Van and forward-control chassis line;
- Completely redesigned low-silhouette 4-wheel drive series;
- V8 power for Chevy-Vans;
- Expansion of the model lineup to 406 models on 37 wheelbases;
- A Custom Sport Truck option for light-duty conventional cab models, including such luxury items as full carpeting and bucket seats.

The new styling is enhanced by lower overall height which gives a longer, lower, more trim look. The graceful inner slant above the belt line adds a sleek note, but also functional by helping to protect windows from mud splash and gravel blasting. Visibility is improved by the larger windshield and door glass and narrow corner pillars.

A Custom Sport Truck option is offered for light-duty cab models. In addition to full carpeting, vinyl trimmed bucket seats, and a padded center armrest which swings up to form a backrest for the padded middle passenger seat, many bright metal exterior trim and luxury interior items are included.

Another important benefit of the new design is improved forward visibility for medium- and heavy-duty models, resulting from the shorter sloping hood. The angle of vision is improved so that the driver can see the road up to 5 1/2 feet closer than with previous conventional cab models.

Medium- and heavy-duty models carry shorter front metal to give a bumper-to-back-of-cab dimension of 96 inches. The cab axle dimension remains the same, however, to accommodate the same size bodies or fifth wheel settings as on 1966 models.

Front end sheet metal on the 1967 truck line features greatly improved protection against corrosion. Smooth-surfaced, undercoated, full fender skirts protect fenders and other sheet metal from mud, water, and salt. Minimal use of coach joints and liberal use of spot weld sealers also offer additional corrosion resistance.

Although the new cabs are lower, interior space is virtually unchanged. A lower seat height, together with the narrower width at the cap roof, affords easier cab entry. Also, the lower seat and revised toe-board design result in a more comfortable accelerator pedal position.

The Chevy-Van line carries extensive front end styling changes for 1967. A more rounded configuration, including a curved windshield, results in reduced wind resistance for improved fuel economy and a lower noise level.

Also new this year is the addition of 108 in. wheelbase models in the Chevy-Van and Sportvan series with bodies 18 inches longer than the current 90 in. wheelbase models, which are continued.

The longer vans are built on a new chassis specially designed to accommodate the longer body. It not only provides proper weight distribution with no excessive rear overhang, but greatly improves handling qualities.

Another significant improvement is addition of 12 models with V8 power in the Chevy-Van and Sportvan. The 283 cu. in. engine develops 175 hp. On six-cylinder models, the 194 cu. in. 120 hp engine is replaced by the Chevrolet 230 cu. in. 140 hp. six as standard equipment.

In the light-duty delivery field, Chevrolet also is keeping abreast of a developing

Many Improvements In Restyled 1967 Chevrolet Truck Line

Clean, trim practical styling that gives a low, fleet look to this Fleetside pickup is only one of many advances in the 1967 Chevrolet truck line. Vision, cab comfort, and corrosion-resistance are improved. Other new features in the line include longer bodies and more power for Chevy-Vans, a redesigned, lower four-wheel-drive series, and diesels in forward-control delivery vans. In some larger models, a new shorter cab and front sheet metal design give a shorter wheelbase for improved maneuverability with no loss in load space.

trend toward use of diesels for city multi-stop operations involving high mileage and/or idling time. In 1967, it will offer an economical 82 hp., 3-cylinder diesel engine in 3/4- and 1-ton Step-Van and forward-control chassis models.

It is a modified version of the proved Detroit Diesel 3-53N engine, with smaller injectors for improved fuel economy, and offers excellent reliability and low maintenance costs.

The 1967 Chevrolet truck line also includes many other improvements and refinements. All-steel Fleetside pickup truck boxes are completely restyled to complement the new cabs and front sheet metal.

To increase corrosion resistance exterior side panels are 1 piece with wrap around ends to virtually eliminate coach joints. The 1967 pickup with 8-foot body has only one foot of coach joints in the box and front sheet metal, compared with 37 feet in the 1966 model.

Highlights and Sidelights State CAPITOL

Far-flung operations of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department have been placed under new administrative leadership.

Commissioners have named J. R. (Bob) Singleton as executive director. He replaces J. Weldon Watson who resigned last June.

Single had been serving as director of Region IV with headquarters in La Porte.

He picked Robert G. Mauermann, Region V director at Rockport, as his chief deputy. In his first press conference, Singleton said he is considering recommending a change in the commission's controversial policy on shell dredging.

He did not disclose exactly what he has in mind but said any such proposal would be "in the field of broad policy." His own observation of dredging operations, he added, have convinced him that the commission's 1963 and 1964 orders permitting shell dredging up to 300 feet of live reefs under close department supervision result in "extremely insignificant" oyster kill.

This issue has been heatedly debated between dredgers on one hand and fishermen and conservationists on the other since the old 1,500-foot-minimum - distance - from-reef policy was abolished.

A statewide tour of department facilities, particularly the parks, is planned by Singleton in order to familiarize himself first-hand with problems and needs.

Singleton declined to explain.

ONE of the soap opera commercials on television deals with the "built-in bleach." We witnessed a young colored lad and his parents displaying the powers of the suds as an ad on the boob tube the other evening. The thought just occurred to me if that soap is so good and really will do a bleach job, why that young fellow didn't jump in the suds for a quick rinse.

STANTON'S Buffaloes will be looking for their first victory on the gridiron come this Friday night. The Bisons would like to crash the winner's circle against the Seagraves Eagles following their 14-14 tie with Iraan last week. The Bisons lost the opener this year to Roscoe by a 27-8 count. Let's all try and turn out to see the Thundering Herd clip the Eagle feathers.

MRS. ARTHUR WILSON is home from a Big Spring hospital where she was recently treated for a badly injured hip. We are glad MARIE is back among friends and neighbors and reportedly on the mend. She recently fell at the family residence on St. Peter Street in Stanton and surgery was required to correct the injury suffered at the time of the mishap.

RED GIBSON is seeking a better name for his column. We agree his contribution to the paper needs a better title. RED'S "On the Square" heading reminds me a lot of a sports reporter we knew once who wrote under the heading of "One Over Lightly." We never understood the reason for that one. So, if you have a title suggestion for brother GIBSON send it in. I thought about suggesting a caption running something like this — "Red's Roses, Rockets and Remembrances." Or he could consider: "Redeye Gravy, Grits, and Gossip." A column is hard to write. Doing it every week is a chore and putting an entire newspaper on top of two columns is rugged. Likewise, a good column title is difficult to select. Try your luck in sending in an appropriate name for RED'S column.

GIL JONES is one of the state's outstanding attorneys. He certainly presented an intelligent argument in Big Spring the other day against taking off two remaining passenger trains currently scheduled to run between Ft. Worth and El Paso, and of course, passing through Stanton. It appeared to the writer that the T&P request to discontinue service was about wrapped up and in the bag until GIL JONES got the assignment to put the facts in the record at a hearing held in Big Spring recently. He marshalled a lot of legal truth and bingo, gained the right to examine the figures on Texas & Pacific's estimated losses before the Texas Railroad Commission finally rules on the merits of the application to discontinue the last two passenger trains. I don't remember who employed GIL but think it was the Chamber of Commerce of Big Spring. If the Chamber did secure the services of GIL JONES at the counsel table they surely did a big favor for us all. I know a lot of lawyers in West Texas and most of them know my brother who holds U. S. Court in San Angelo two or three times a year. I don't think I would be letting the cat out of the bag to say here that GIL JONES has a very high rating among the judges as well as among members of the Texas Bar Association. If some bum or bird ever hails me in court in West Texas I sure want GIL JONES in my corner and if I know the man, he'll be there.

DELEGATES of the 28th State Senatorial District meeting in San Antonio with other Republican delegates elected a new man to replace BILL KLATENHOFF as district committeeman Tuesday in the Alamo City. The new committeeman and member of the State Republican Executive Committee is SYD MOORE of Lubbock. MOORE received a majority of votes cast in the unusual secret balloting. The successor to KLATENHOFF actively campaigned for the place and his brother party members apparently felt he would make a good committeeman.

THE Democratic Party Convention was held in Austin this week and as usual a dogfight developed and the big delegation from Harris County, (Houston) walked out, marched one mile down to the state capital grounds and there held a rump session under the shade of the trees. As they marched from convention hall to the capital grounds they shouted: "To Hell With John Connally and his crowd." Strange as it may seem, one of the liberal Democrats carried a sign reading: "Why bump a leaning Tower with John Connally's used Ca-rr." Another sign read: "Some Democratic liberals will go fishing election day—some will vote for John Tower."

DO you remember reading CHARLES DICKENS when a lad? Well, we have not yet reached the point where British subjects walked the streets of England at night with torch bearers and body guards, but many city streets are unsafe in America today. Just as England broke the grip of the 18th century criminals, so the United States must find a way to reverse the crime statistics and restore safety and peace in our major communities. Perhaps it is time to start choosing men by election and appointment to public offices dedicated to cleaning up both the political and personal underworlds now evident in this country.

SPEAKING of criminals taking over the many communities, we might add that the dogs of Stanton have already moved in on the citizenship in full and vicious battle formation. Laws exist that will take care of this situation. With the mad-dog season approaching, with untold numbers of daring dogs running loose in Stanton streets, untagged, unvaccinated and unwanted, something must be done and to use the phrase or favorite word of one of the local politicians—PRONTO!

NEAL'S NUGGET: Perhaps Texans could come out better if they changed Connally instead of the Constitution.

(Editor's Note: Lucille Moore is a very able West Texas newspaper personality. Her column appears regularly in The Denver City Press. We like the way she assembles her facts and gets right to the heart of any situation she feels needs some plain talking about. Regardless of your opinion after you read this column written by her, one must admit it would be difficult to write a rebuttal.)

WE TAKE OUR PICK

I have been reading and listening with great interest to what John Tower and Waggoner Carr and their supporters are saying in the current senatorial campaign. And I hope that everyone in Texas is as interested as I am, for it will be up to us, as individual citizens, to decide which of these two men will come closest to reflecting the views and opinions of the majority of Texans in the senate of the United States.

So far, my own conclusions are: (1) That Carr is running against Tower, and that Tower is running for the senate. (2) That Carr is running as a representative of the Democrat party, and that Tower is running as a representative of the people. (3) That Carr is promising more and larger federal handouts for Texas, and that Tower is advocating a return to federal fiscal responsibility and a balance budget.

While making an issue of the fact that Tower was a Goldwater supporter in the last presidential campaign (trying to make it sound as if supporting Goldwater was the unforgivable sin of the century), Carr is loudly demanding, "It's time we cracked down and got 'tough' with hoodlums and thugs," which is exactly what Goldwater kept telling the people in his campaign speeches.

In that same connection, Tower supporters, as well as conservatives everywhere, remember only too well that measures Goldwater stressed as being necessary for the war effort in Viet Nam, (and which the liberal news media promptly pounced upon to label Goldwater "a trigger happy war monger") are now being used by his Democrat opponent, Lyndon Johnson, to turn the tide of the war in favor of the United States.

Carr is making much of the fact that, as a Democrat, he will be part of the team; that as a Democrat Senator he would be heard by Democrats in the administration. But thoughtful Texans know all too well other members of the "team" of which Carr would become a member. After all, Texas already has its Ralph Yarborough and its President Lyndon Johnson and it is extremely doubtful if Carr would have a great deal of influence on either of those politicians, or that he could get more federal money for Texas than those two have already funneled into the state.

And thoughtful Texans will also take note of Tower's remark that "Loyalty should not be to a party, but to convictions and ideas." They will also remember that "Tower wears no man's collar." He says, "I place principle above political party . . . convictions above political expediency." Tower says he is immune to political pressure no matter how powerful that pressure might be, and says "If anyone owns me, it is the people of the great state of Texas, and it's going to stay that way."

So far in the campaign, although it is barely begun, Carr seems to be running mostly on promises, while Tower is running on his record as a Senator.

Regardless of which candidate Texas voters prefer at the moment, careful attention should be paid to what each candidate has to say during the remainder of the campaign. Each voter should take time to sift fact from fiction, acts from promises, realism from oratory. Campaign promises aren't worth the paper they are written on, and no matter how marvelous those promises sound before an election we would do well to consider whether or not they are practical or possible after an election.

How a senator votes on issues AFTER he is elected is the important thing to think about. At present, Texans know how John Tower has voted as a senator. Anyone who does not know should make it a point to check his voting record and determine whether or not that record meets with their approval. So far, Waggoner Carr's voting record as a senator is an unknown quantity, and all a voter has to go on is what he says he will do BEFORE he is elected.

CAKE VERSUS BREAD

Well, Well . . . LBJ has decided to do something about inflation, so he begins, naturally, with business. No longer can business get tax relief for money spent on expansion and new equipment.

Now, what I want to know is, what the heck that has to do with the price of a loaf of bread, a quart of milk, or a pound of hamburger meat? The answer to that one is . . . you guessed it . . . nothing. The measure only gives the federal government so much, point something, billion dollars more to spend as they see fit. And spending the taxpayer's money as the federal government sees fit is what got us into this inflationary mess in the first place. Whether the president's proposal would go toward decreasing the national debt, supporting the war effort in Viet Nam, or to finance great society measures remains to be seen.

Whether to raise, or not to raise, federal income taxes is being bounced around like a basketball. But consensus of opinion agrees that there will be no federal tax increase to speak of until "after the elections." If that isn't playing politics with the dangerous financial state of the nation I don't know what else it could be.

LBJ was not a financial wizard, but none could say that he is not a political wizard. And although he may not always do what is best for the United States, you can bet your bottom dollar that he will always do what is best for the Democrat party and its candidates. Especially around election time.

So it would seem that although voters may have a hard time supplying their families with bread during the coming months, the ears are going to be stuffed with oral cake from now until elections are over.

SIGN NOW . . . PAY LATER

I see by the paper where a consulting engineer from Muleshoe has proposed to city officials that they sign up for federal grants at low interest rates just in case they might need them sometimes within the next twenty years.

Last year a Midland architect tried to convince city officials to take advantage of federal program for low cost housing that would cost the city practically nothing.

There is one thing that strikes me as being very odd about both these proposals. Why would a Midland architect and a Muleshoe consulting engineer be trying to give federal money and assistance away? It is just something that anyone can do? Could I go down to Crane and offer that city's

Farm & Ranch Review

More than 1,000 persons attending Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service Biennial Conference this week heard Gov. John Connally defend farmers and ranchers against charges that they cause inflation and high food prices.

"Some economists have suggested that the basic cause of our present apparent inflation is the price asked for their goods by those who raise food and fiber. I strongly disagree," the governor said. "Although retail food prices have risen since 1951, prices obtained for products they leave the farm have declined 25 percent."

He said if the farmer had received the same share of the food dollar in 1965 that he received in 1947, American consumers would have spent another $15 billion for food last year.

"In my judgment, those who work the land have acted against inflation, instead of being one of the causes of inflation," the governor emphasized.

Theme of the Aug. 29-Sept. 2 conference was "Mobilizing Our Potentials in a Changing World."

Connally said farmers and ranchers have not received adequate returns for doing their jobs better.

"Efficiency should result in lower prices, but a lower income should not be the reward for those who make this increased efficiency possible," he added.

Connally asked the extension workers to study merits and possibilities of the Texas Water Plan, which he said is not a cure-all but is flexible enough to be a big help.

Studies, he showed, he said, that water can be channeled from East Texas and the Lower Missouri and Mississippi Rivers for use in South Texas. And perhaps water can be brought from the Upper Missouri and Mississippi Rivers and the Columbia River to supply irrigation for the Texas Plains.

Housewives should be conscious of other considerations when buying beef than price and cost per serving, according to Frank A. Orts, extension meat specialist, Texas A&M University.

These factors are very important when doing budget buying, but in order to be satisfied with a particular cut of beef, it must be juicy, flavorful and tender.

Three factors which are present in a cut of beef and are indicative of eating quality are marbling, color and texture.

Marbling is the intermingling of small flakes of fat within an individual muscle. The large seams of fat lying between muscle should never be classed as marbling. Marbling is an indication of juiciness, flavor, and to a small degree, tenderness.

The color of the lean meat, which is an indication of youthfulness, relates to tenderness because usually the younger the animal, the more tender the meat. A light cherry red color is considered to be from young beef while the darker the red, the older the animal.

The texture of the meat is usually a good indication of tenderness, says Orts. Fibers, which can be seen on close examination of muscle bundles, are an indication of tender meat if they are small and fine.

If the cut of meat possesses marbling, a light color, and a fine texture to the lean, then, with proper preparation, it should be juicy, tender and flavorful.

Carving a cooked roast will also influence the overall tenderness of a cut. Roast should always be sliced across the grain of the meat rather than with the grain. By cutting across the grain, shorter fibers are chewed, Orts said.

Total plantings of 241,900 acres for 15 major winter-crop vegetables have been suggested by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in its acreage-the guides advised planting 22,000 acres of winter potatoes for 1967, according to John Larsen, extension horticulturist, Texas A&M University.

Larsen said the guides are used by growers in planning their production to help balance supplies with consumer needs.

The overall recommendation for those commodities to be harvested during early 1967 is one percent more than the acreage planted for the 1966 season.

Specific recommendations for each commodity, however, range from larger acreages for snap beans, broccoli, cabbage, and sweet corn, to smaller acreages for escarole and green peppers. The guides advise winter acreages equal to 1966 for beets, carrots, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, kale, lettuce, spinach and tomatoes.

For winter potatoes, the guides suggest a planted acreage 15 percent less than in 1966. With average yields, the production of potatoes from this acreage would be substantially less than the 1966 crop. Consumer and Marketing Service marketing officials said current prospects indicate that storage holdings of potatoes will be ample this winter.

administrations a few federal grants?

As far as I am concerned, (and we have been paying taxes in Denver City since 1940), Denver City has been doing right well in paying for its own water, gas, and sewerage system without asking every other taxpayer in the nation to do it for us.

As a Denver City taxpayer, I don't mind paying city taxes for city facilities. But I dang sure don't think my federal taxes should be used to finance a few new facilities for Crane.

"Getting our share" of federal aid is not only responsible for the highest taxes on record, it is also responsible for our nation's unprecedented debt. And if every city, town and hamlet in the United States demanded "their share" of federal (taxpayer's) money, it wouldn't be long until everyone's share would simply be a microscopic per cent of nothing.
