VARIETY Farm Bureau Meet Set For Saturday

By NEAL ESTES

Emergency ambulance runs halted in Big Spring at midnight Friday. The mayor has announced use of fire and police personnel to handle the more drastic cases until some agreement can be worked out with the Big Spring Ambulance Service. The funeral homes in Howard County ceased emergency ambulance runs when a government edict or order from Washington caused the funeral directors to either take an extra taxation or quit business. The departure from traditional American ambulance service as this country has enjoyed for generations is just another piece of the socialistic bunk finding it's way on the law books these days.

U. S. District Judge W. M. Taylor, Jr., Dallas, has ruled that students have no rights when it comes to policy making where public funds are expended for education. We hail his decision. The case was brought before the Court by three long-haired student-musicians from Big D. The Dallas trio tried to force the administration to allow them to attend classes with Beatle-type hair styles. JUDGE TAYLOR said: "The conditions or terms upon which a public free education are granted in the high schools of Texas cannot be fixed or determined by the pupils themselves." This ruling would also apply to dress of students. Under this decision, if school authorities want to ban sweat shirts with beer ads across the front they can. Perhaps this federal judge's decision will result in the return of sanity in styles. At least, he has handed down a courageous decision.

Vandals are playing havoc in Denver City if the news stories on page one of the paper there are to be used as a gauge of violent activity. The blinker lights on a construction project between Denver City and Seminole were smashed. The lights were installed for safety. A rifle shot was blamed for blacking out a wide area of DC and Yoakum County up there last Friday. Someone shot an insulator on a 12,000-volt power line about a mile from the Little League Park. When the Stanton Bisons go to Denver City to play the Mustangs we sure hope our friend BARNEY THOMPSON, capable editor of THE DENVER CITY PRESS, manages to keep the light on — or else — makes some other suitable arrangements conducive to saving the nerves when the lights are out.

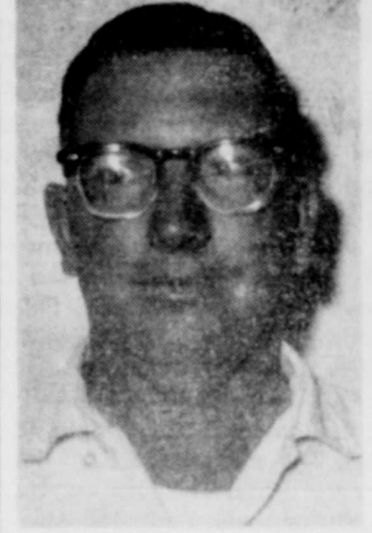

A 4-H Club sponsored Progress Show will be held this Saturday, Oct. 8 at the county barn in Stanton. COUNTY AGENT BILLY REAGOR has extended an invitation to all interested parties to be on hand for the exposition. Several nice animals will be ready for viewing.

An account of the death of CLAUDE WELLS of Memphis, Texas, appears elsewhere in this issue of the paper. We met WELLS a few years ago while attending a press convention with the late EDITOR JIM KELLY of this publication. MR. KELLY and J. CLAUDE WELLS were warm friends. As a matter-of-fact, they went to the World's Fair in St. Louis together. Both had just married and they took their wives up to the Fair for honeymoons. Remember the old song: "Meet Me In St. Louis." That was composed the year the big exposition was held in the Missouri city.

recently at an affair held in Midland. Dowden, a native of Overton, Rusk County, has spent all of his tenure of service with the company in West Texas. He has lived in Stanton for the past four and one-half years. Dowden is married and the father of three children. Before coming to Stanton, the Dowdens resided in Midland. The Dowdens are active in all phases of community life.

Livestock Progress Show Slated

County Agent Billy Reagor has announced a livestock progress show for Saturday, October 8. The show will get started early Saturday at the county barn and will continue through most of the day. Animals to be exhibited will be brought to the barn Saturday morning and the idea of the show is to give the people an opportunity to get a preview of the animals to be exhibited later when the Junior Livestock Show is held. If tradition is followed, the Junior Stock Show will be held sometime in January, 1967. Agent Reagor says the 4-H clubbers will be glad to welcome interested spectators Saturday. He also stated that tickets were now being sold to raise premium money for the regular junior exposition early next year.

Colorado City Hospital Due For Closing

Root Memorial Hospital, Colorado City, Mitchell County, will close its doors October 15. Owner Charles Root announced closing plans. He said a little more than half its customers were medicare patients treated on a costs basis and revenue has dropped sharply since July 1 start of the medicare program. Root said the 30-bed Colorado City hospital incurred expenses in making plant improving and adding and staffing a records section to qualify for medicare. The modern, well equipped facility was established by the owner's late father, Dr. C. L. Root, Sr.

HOME GROWN MELON—John Priddy and J. O. Stuard are shown with a 98-pound watermelon grown by Stuard on the Priddy farm in Martin County. The melon was produced on irrigated land and measured 39 inches long and 40 inches around. Martin County soil has long been known as fertile ground for melon and cantaloupe growing. The only thing the Pecos cantaloupes and Weatherford watermelons have on the Martin County variety is just more advertising.

No. 1-F Jones Planned As Devonian Operation

By JAMES C. WATSON

Cities Service Oil Co. plans No. 1-F Jones as a 13,500-foot Devonian operation, 11½ miles north of Lenorah in Martin County. The wildcat is 650 feet from north and 4,200 feet from east lines of league 252, Ward County School Land, and is five miles southeast of the Breedlove (Devonian) area, 1½ mile southeast of the Wolfcreek (Wolfcamp) pool. Pan American Petroleum Corp. is testing a second pay zone at No. 1-B Elma L. Slaughter, 12 miles north of Lenorah in Martin. The project is a mile northwest offset to the firm's No. 1 Slaughter, opener and lone producer in the Sulphur Draw (Dean - Wolfcamp) field. From perforations between 3,829 and 9,458 feet, which were injected with 10,000 gallons of mud acid and fractured with 70,000 gallons, the Dean flowed 272 barrels of new oil in 24 hours. Yield came through a 12-64-inch choke with surface pressure of 720 pounds. Earlier, the operation flowed 43 barrels of new oil in 24 hours from the Wolfcamp through a 10-64-inch choke and from perforations at 10,125-138 feet. That horizon was acidized with 6,000 gallons and fractured with 20,000 gallons of fluid. Location is 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 80, block B, Bauer & Cokrell survey. Russell Maguire of Dallas has staked locations for two 3,740-foot outposts to the Ackery (Dean) pool, four miles (Continued on back page)

Cold Front Drops Mercury In Area

The initial fall cold front blew into West Texas Friday, dropping temperatures drastically and kicking up dust. The streets of Stanton got a good sweeping as the northern raced across this area. Weathermen said the cold snap was caused by a high pressure cold front. The mercury began dropping in Martin County about 9:30 a.m. Friday. The cold blows possibly will be continuing to come to this area but the high temperatures causing Indian Summer weather are definitely a thing of the past.

Martin Bond Sales $4,286 In August

James Jones, chairman of the Martin County Savings Bonds Committee, has announced that Savings Bond sales in Martin County totaled $4,286 during August. Series E and H Bond sales in Texas during August totaled $12,803,089 which is an increase of 8 per cent over the same period last year. Texas sales for the first eight months to 1966 totaled $103,042,978 which is 70 per cent of the state's goal of $147.5 million. Texas Savings Bond volunteers and the Treasury Department extend their thanks to all media for their fine cooperation during the past 25 years.

Mark Bentley High Scorer On Merit Test

A letter of commendation honoring high performance on the 1966 National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMQST) has been awarded to one student at Stanton High School, Principal M. R. Milam has announced. The commended student is

Mark Bentley

Mark Bentley, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bentley, 702 Broadway, Stanton. He is among 39,000 students in the United States who scored in the upper two percent of those who will graduate from high school in 1967. The commended students rank just below the 14,000 semifinalist announced earlier this month by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). John M. Stalnaker, president of NMSC, said: "The outstanding record made by these students in a national competition deserves public recognition. Their significant academic attainment gives promise of continued success in college. The commended students should be encouraged to pursue their education as their intellectual talent represents an important and much needed natural resource. Our nation will benefit from their continuing educational development."

Only the highest-scoring students in each state, the semifinalists, remain eligible to be considered for Merit Scholarships. Although students receiving letters of commendation advance no further in the merit program, their names are reported to other scholarship granting agencies and to the colleges they named as their first and second (Continued on back page)

Dan Saunders Exonerated By Grand Jury

The Martin County Grand Jury refused to return an indictment against Sheriff Dan Saunders after considering the facts in a recent slaying of a Mexican American in Stanton by the sheriff. Sheriff Saunders requested the grand jury make a complete investigation of the case. He insisted that the jurors had a right and duty to perform in looking into the killing which was clearly a case of self-defense. Saunders, a man who has served in law enforcement for years, and seldom wears a gun, drew in defense of his life on a recent Sunday morning when called to investigate a family disturbance on Stanton's southside. In other action, the grand jury investigated cases concerning forgery and passing and three persons charged with DWI second offense.

Four Voting Delegates To Be Selected

The annual county convention of Martin County Farm Bureau will be held Saturday, October 8, beginning at 6:00 p.m. at the Willie Wirehand room of Cap Rock Electric Co-Op in Stanton. A very interesting program has been planned and all members and their families are urged to attend.

Screwworms On Increase Reagor Says

Billy Reagor, county agent, has recently had word from the Screwworm Eradication officials that there has been a very noticeable increase in the number of confirmed screwworm cases in Texas. Reagor says that for the week of September 18 there were 48 confirmed cases reported in Texas from 22 different counties. This is more confirmed cases for a one-week period than has been reported since the last week in November, 1963. All livestock producers are urged to be especially watchful of possible screwworm cases and collect specimen worm samples and mail to the Screwworm Eradication Laboratory in Mission, Texas. The county agent, says vials for submitting specimens to the Mission Laboratory can be obtained at his office in the courthouse. Weather conditions over much of the state have been a contributing factor in the recent screwworm buildup.

An educational discussion of the Research and Promotion Cotton referendum on which farmers will be voting in the near future, is to be discussed. As an added attraction, the agriculture committee of the Martin County Chamber of Commerce will be present to hold a drawing for one-half beef, which they have been selling tickets on to raise money to conduct the junior livestock show. Martin County Farm Bureau has over 350 members.

Segregationist Lester Maddox Scores Big Georgia Upset

Lester G. Maddox, an ardent segregationist running a shoeing campaign, has captured the Democratic nomination for governor — upsetting a moderate candidate and Georgia's middle-road racial course. Maddox, a furniture merchant who quit the cafeteria business rather than serve Negroes, decisively defeated Ellis G. Arnall, a former governor, in Wednesday's primary runoff. Arnall had led a six-man race two weeks ago. "God and the people are my campaign manager," exulted Maddox, 50, after pulling off a major upset without big-money backers or the support of high-ranking politicians. With 1,742 of 1,908 precincts reported: Maddox 419,557, Arnall 356,078. A fiery opponent of the federal government, President Lyndon B. Johnson, liberalism, socialism and communism, Maddox says he shares the racial views of Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace. Arnall, 59, who scored a major upset two decades ago to win the governorship over the popular Eugene Talmadge, had charged in the runoff fight that Maddox was radical and extremist, a man whose symbols were ax handles and pistols. Maddox, in resisting integration in 1964 and 1965, once waved a pistol to chase Negroes from his place and provided ax handles for White patrons. When ordered by a court to serve Negroes, Maddox quit the cafeteria business. Arnall met Maddox to concede personally. Some followers of Arnall said Republicans (Continued on back page)

Bible Comment—

Jesus Inspired His Followers To Great Things

If we were to disregard the things about Jesus which make Him the unusual figure that He is, we would still find that He stood as a remarkable figure in the pageant of history.

Other men have become famous for the books they have written, the power which they have won, organizations they have founded, or codes and laws which they have created.

But Jesus wrote nothing, organized only teachers and established no codes. He did not even organize His teachings in codified form.

There was something casual about His life, yet this apparent casualness seems to have been part of God's purpose. The Christian religion, like the Master Himself, was not to become a circumscribed thing, but was to take a free course.

Perhaps it was essential of the future well-being of Christianity that such an attitude as this remained with the early church. The problems to come were many. If there had been no room to adjust to changing conditions, the church would have lacked much of its early vitality.

In this way we see the general pattern of His effective influence. The Master, who did not write a book, inspired what was to become the greatest book of our time. He had no formal organization of His own, He so inspired the disciples that they carried on after Him and became Christian leaders.

Their church became so well organized, it spread out across the world, finding bases for operation in many countries. Later it went still further to reach every part of the globe.

These things are being done today. With the strength and inspiration found in the New Testament, Jesus twentieth century disciples are still working and building the structure based on His teachings.

It is our privilege, as friends of Jesus, to carry on.

Philosopher Comes Up With Novel Idea For People Needing To Get Across Big City

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw tackles another problem this week.)

Dear editor:

Sitting out here on this Martin County grass farm, sometimes you can get a better view of a problem than the people afflicted by it.

For example, take a city problem. I read in an article in a newspaper I borrowed from a neighbor yesterday that city people are having more and more trouble getting from one place in the city to another, it takes them longer to get from the airport to town than the flight took, even in the slack hours.

And at rush hours, when everybody is going to work in the morning or returning in the afternoon, traffic is stacked up so you inch along about half a mile an hour, slower than you could walk.

Of course, I don't guess it ever occurred to them to follow my practice — I don't have a rush hour out here — so I have been giving the problem some thought and I've hit on an idea.

Say a man in New York for example needs to get from one side of the town to the other. If there's an airport on both sides, he'd save time if he went the other way around. Get in one of those high-speed jets, fly around the world, and come in on the other side.

I don't know why city people haven't thought of this, but you know how people are. They get habit-bound, they get submerged in their problems, and can't see a way out, consequently they continue to bog down.

Eventually, if air planes keep getting faster and faster, distance is going to be almost eliminated, and finally we'll reach the point where you're not over 15 minutes from any other place on earth, or to put it another way, a man can fly around the world in the same time it takes me right now to sit here and do nothing, and no telling how many gallons of gas I save and I can do it in any kind of weather.

When progress reaches the point where a man can sit still in the same time it takes another man to fly around the world, maybe people will settle down.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Notwithstanding its size, the sail-finned killifish is a proud creature. Only about three inches long, the male spreads his exquisitely colored dorsal fin in the presence of females, much in the same manner as a peacock. The female's dorsal fin is smaller and less colorful.

TPA Schedules News Clinic For November 19 In Austin

Texas Press Association will hold its Second Annual News Clinic in Austin on November 19.

In announcing the reportorial workshop, TPA President Jim Barnhill, Hillsboro Daily Mirror publisher, predicted attendance would include more than 200 writers — reporters, editors, columnists and feature writers, as well as press photographers.

Co-sponsor of the workshop will be the University of Texas Department of Journalism, headed by Dr. Norris Davis.

Headquarters for the one-day meeting will be the Stephen F. Austin Hotel.

President Barnhill selected John Taylor, publisher of the Seguin Gazette, to head the planning group. Committee met immediately and drafted its plans. Serving with Taylor on the Planning Committee are Paul Barham, Texas Mesquite; Rick Taylor, DeSoto Star; J. A. Newborn, Jr., League City Suburban Journal; Frank Luecke, Cameron Herald; Max Thomas, Kerrville Times; and Dr. Davis and Prof. Olin Hinkle, UT Department of Journalism.

Taylor reports that the clinic will feature several state and nationally known newsmen as guest speakers. In addition, three panels on various aspects of the news field have been scheduled along with questions - and - answers sessions.

Topics will cover such realms in news reporting as crime and court coverage, and the legal aspects of news writing, including libel laws. Other subjects pertain to make-up, cutlines, publicity and how to handle it, local news columns for both small town and metropolitan newspapers, feature writing and photojournalism.

This is one of five specialized meetings sponsored annually by the Texas Press Association, explained President Barnhill.

Cap Rock Pays Credit Refund

Cap Rock Electric Cooperative made its annual refund to member-owners of the organization on Monday, October 3. Checks totaling $234,056 were placed in the mail. They went to 2,730 members who were receiving electric service from the Cooperative during 1959.

The payment was the 10th consecutive capital credit refund to members, this one to members of 1959, and was in the amount of $234,056. This equaled 27 per cent on the gross revenue of 1959.

Starting in 1957, Cap Rock has refunded to its members over a million and a quarter dollars, $1,278,463 to be exact.

The 1959 refund was to 2,730 members and averaged $85.73, although the amounts varied from a dollar to several thousand dollars depending upon the amount of power used the member had consumed in that year.

The payments are comparable to dividends in a regular business. Cap Rock pays the credit annually, but it stays about half a dozen years off the current year in order to have a reserve for emergencies.

Texas PTA Members To Mark 57th Birthday

PTA's across Texas this month will observe in various ways the founding of the state association 57 years ago in Dallas, during the State Fair.

Mrs. Ella Caruthers Porter, state organizer, called a conference of mothers which met for three days, beginning October 19, 1909, in Dallas' First Methodist Church. Assisted in her efforts by the Dallas council of Mothers, Mrs. Porter was elected first president of the new organization.

Texas mayors had been requested to send representatives who, together with delegates from mothers' clubs from over the state, leading educators, and other interested men and women, made up the nucleus of the Texas Congress of Mothers, now the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers. State Fair Association officials and The Dallas Morning News lent active support.

The primary purpose of the organization remains still to promote the welfare of children and youth in home, school, church, and community.

Today, as living tribute to Mrs. Porter and the other pioneers, there are more than 2,500 local PTA units in Texas. The state membership is 798,340, second largest state PTA branch in the nation.

October 13 has been designated PTA Day at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas, an annual custom, and Texas PTA's 57th annual State Convention will be held November 16-18 in Austin. Governor John Connally has proclaimed October as Parent-Teacher Membership Enrollment Period in Texas.

Health And Safety Tips

From The American Medical Association

The cold pack, or ice bag, often is a useful tool in first aid. When and how can you use it?

In many cases application of cold helps to minimize swelling, inhibit bleeding, reduce excessively high body temperature and relieve pain, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

Cold applications, especially ice, have an anesthetic effect. They may be helpful in cases of nosebleed, bleeding from minor cuts such as razor blade nicks, sprains, bites and stings of insects, minor burns and heat prostration.

Cold application tend to inhibit bleeding by constricting the small blood vessels in nosebleeds and persistently oozing minor cuts.

Applications of ice water alleviate discomfort from insect sting and bites, and may delay the chemical action and circulation of poison injected by the pest.

Immediate application of cold compresses to sprains lessens swelling. Such applications should be continued for at least half an hour before the sprained limb is bandaged or otherwise supported.

In case of high body temperature associated with heat prostration, the entire body should be sponged freely with cool water until temperature returns to tolerable level.

Immediate immersion into ice water of a body part that has sustained a minor burn controls pain and possibly reduces tissue damage.

Spell Quiz

Correct Answer is:

Cantaloupe

As population increases the greater grows our pollution problem.

This is true of our outdoor areas, as well as our municipalities. There was a time when we gave little thought to pollution around a lake. We built septic tanks with not too much caution. But then our nearest neighbor lived miles away.

Today that condition has changed. Around most of our lakes today we have large communities. Sewage disposal is one of the biggest problems. Many communities are located in rocky country, where the run-off is not too good. The refuse finds its way into the lake.

Texas has no long, consistently flowing rivers or streams. There are times of the year when some of them are powder dry at many points. When these streams are down we have an opportunity to observe the type of pollution that takes place.

During a recent dry spell we had occasion to observe the condition of several stream beds. Old automobiles, refrigerators, worn out tires and many other kinds of debris were in the river beds and along the banks. These were dumped there by thoughtless citizens who wanted to rid their premises of the cluttering mess.

Most municipalities can put a stop to this type of pollution with existing ordinances. Unfortunately the higher courts are badly crippled by our state laws governing pollution and many of these laws are practically useless.

Apparently that won't be the case much longer. Now there is federal legislation which will permit the government to step in where local authorities fail to act.

The fight against pollution is basic. It affects all of us, not just those who hunt or fish, but every living person is within its sphere

Selective Service Eyes Men In 26-34 Age Group

The Selective Service has ordered immediate physical examinations for approximately 70,000 men in the 26-through-34 age bracket who are still liable for military service, a spokesman said.

Those affected are single men and married men without children who had been deferred to age 26 and then had their eligibility extended to age 35.

The Selective Service spokesman said that at the end of August, there were 69,933 men in this category. They are already classified I-A but so far it has not been necessary to draft any.

He said instructions were sent to state Selective Service of influence. When our streams pour contaminated water into the Gulf of Mexico it is harmful to our marine resources and costs us millions annually in loss of marine life. When our cities pour overflow of their sewer system into the streams, they are harming every person who is affected by that stream.

For the most part heavy industry is attempting to solve its pollution problems. Our paper mills, big refineries and others are taking precautionary action wherever possible to prevent polluted substance from getting into our lakes and streams.

Some of our smaller industries, however, are not so interested in the health and welfare to the people. A glaring example of that is within sight of the capitol dome in Austin. Here sand dredging companies run their wash water back into the Colorado.

Much of the time, the Colorado river water is the color of sand from Austin almost to the Gulf. Many downstream cities must use this water... and fish need oxygen to survive.

Our State Health Department and our Parks and Wildlife Commission work together to stop pollution in many places. Game wardens take numerous samples of water from many streams and the health department makes the analysis.

But the courts continue to be the stumbling block in many cases because the laws do not have enough teeth. And the legislature continues to bypass proposed bills that could rectify this problem.

This is a project local sportsmen's clubs and Chambers of Commerce might well promote. With enough local clean-up projects, the program could spread statewide and we could eliminate a great deal of the pollution that is harmful to every living thing.

Not For Public

The Bank of Canada does not make loans to or accept deposits from the public. Its clients are the dominion government, provincial governments and other banks.

Under the order of call, first drafted are young men who have failed to follow draft procedures and are classified as delinquents. Next are those who volunteer for induction.

Next as men in the 19-25 group who are single or were married after Aug. 26, 1965. In this group, the oldest are called first.

Fourth are non-fathers in the 19-25 group who were married on or before Aug. 26, 1965. Fifth in the order of call, and so far not called, are the men now to be examined. The youngest would be called first. Last are the 18 1/2 to 19 year olds.

Pitchfork Kid's Grave Found In Amarillo--Marker Is Goal

A cowboy's cowboy was the Pitchfork Kid, an excellent rider and the most skillful rop-er in West Texas.

He was found a lonely orphan wandering through the streets of Kansas City and he died alone at the age of 47 on his half-section of land south of Nara Visa, N. M.

Even in death he was lonely, in an unmarked grave in Llano Cemetery in Amarillo from the time of his death in 1919 until two years ago.

Old cowboys who worked for the famed Matador Ranch around the turn of the century remember Partlow as a pipe-smoking gentleman who shaved whenever he could and always requested a healthy insertion of onions in every plate of food.

He used a big saddle with long pockets and prided himself on the aged pale yellow color of his meerschaum pipe. His wide, black mustache was a familiar sight on the Matador Ranch lands along the Croton breaks below the Caprock.

From 1919 until 1954, the Pitchfork Kid was only a memory transformed into a legend in the minds of old Matador ranch hands who reminisced of days long past.

But while others talked of the Kid's legendary existence, Fred Hale of Amarillo searched for some material memory. Hale, now 70, worked with the Kid on the Matador between 1906 and 1909 and was a close friend.

He remembered the Kid was killed when he fell from a load of hay and struck his head against a rock. No one witnessed the accident, and several old cowboys doubted whether his death was an accident.

At any rate, Hale centered his search for the Kid's grave in the Glenrio and Nara Visa areas without any luck. After much futile questioning of old timers in that New Mexico area, "on a hunch" Hale made a trip to Llano Cemetery and dug through old records in 1954.

He found the unmarked grave and two years later had a caretaker mark it with a small white brick bearing the inscription, "W. E. Partlow," the Kid's real name.

When Hale casually mentioned several weeks ago to editor Douglas Meador of The Matador Tribune that he had found the grave, Meador printed the story. Retired cowboys from all over the Panhandle responded with surprise to Hale's discovery, although most admitted they had lost contact with the Kid after he filed claim on the New Mexico land about 1917.

Meador, an authority on Panhandle cowboy lore describes his only meeting with the Kid as "talking with the most true representation of what a cowboy should be."

The Pitchfork Kid saw his first Texas ranch lands in 1884 when he was brought to the Pitch Fork Ranch west of Guthrie by Uncle Ridge Great-house, a poisoner of predatory animals. Uncle Ridge found the 12-year-old Kansas City waif a fearful boy with a strong desire to be a cowboy and deposited him in custody of D. B. Gardner, ranch manager.

According to legend, the Kid was an orphan and had lived in Kansas City with two uncles. The uncles were killed for cattle rustling and because the boy imagined he was involved in their crime, he eagerly accepted Uncle Ridge's offer to come to West Texas.

He pleaded with Gardner to let him ride with other cowhands, but the manager refused to let him stray from the immediate area of the ranch house. Gardner, who loved children and who also had taken in at least one other stray boy about the same age, tried to give the youngster some education, but without much success.

Doe Burleson of Wichita Falls, a cowboy who knew the Kid well, says, young Partlow lived for about a year in the 1880's on a ranch owned by Mr. and Mrs. M. T. George. Mrs. George, a school teacher, encouraged the Kid to read. The Georges had no children and wanted to adopt him.

But the George ranch was only about 30,000 acres, and the Kid wanted to roam, so he went back to the Pitch Fork Ranch and got his first chance to ride the range in 1889 at the age of 17.

After only a few years at the Pitch Fork, he joined the Matador Ranch hands, who roamed over about a million acres in Motley, Dickens and Cottle counties, herding and branding about 25,000 calves a year. The Kid at first did odd jobs and later became a horse wrangler.

It was soon after he joined the Matador Ranch that he discovered his real name. He had been calling himself

Early Alarm Clocks

First alarm clocks were invented in the Middle Ages for use in monasteries; priests used them to wake themselves up for nightly prayers.

"Billy Parks," but he made a trip back to Kansas City and learned that he was really William E. Partlow.

In 1892, while working with a Matador wagon on Pitch Fork range, the Kid was critically injured. George Martin, who was with the wagon, saddled a horse and asked the Kid to "top him off" ride the wildness out of the animal. The Kid mounted and the horse threw him as it raced toward a fence.

The Kid was thought to be dead as he slumped to the ground, unconscious with a severe head injury. Fellow cowboys rushed him to ranch headquarters and he was taken by train to a hospital at Trinidad, Colo., where he remained unconscious for 19 days.

He regained consciousness after doctors operated on his brain.

Hale tells of one incident in 1907 when the Kid quit the Matadors and decided to go into business for himself. He didn't succeed, and when he tried to rejoin the Matadors, the foreman refused to take him back.

Famed Newsman Dies In Memphis

A newspaperman considered the dean of his fellows in the Panhandle, J. Claude Wells, was given final tribute Saturday.

Wells died Thursday in Amarillo at the age of 87. He had been ill several months.

He had been in the newspaper business since 1904 and had acquired land and gas well interests.

Businessmen closed their stores at 3 p.m. for an hour in tribute to Wells.

Wells was still writing a column for the Memphis Democrat at the time of his death. He had been with newspapers in Amarillo, Wellington, Hollis and Memphis, Texas, and in New Mexico.

He is survived by a brother, sister, and several nieces and nephews.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Koonce have been in El Paso visiting with their son, Mr. and Mrs. Thadd Koonce, who is stationed at Ft. Bliss.

Cattle Company for 47 years met the Kid in the city of Matador, jobless and dejected, and asked him what had happened.

When McKenzie learned about the Kid's plight, Hale said, he wrote out a letter beginning with "To whom it may concern." Whit that letter the Kid went back to his ranch foreman and began his second stretch of service with the Matador Ranch.

Farm And Ranch Review

The fifth in a series of area studies designed to discover income producing opportunities in Texas agricultural and related fields has been launched, according to Dr. R. E. Patterson, dean of agriculture at Texas A&M University. The new study, headed by Norman Brints, covers an area beginning with the northern Cross Timbers and extending westward to include most of the Rolling Plains.

Brints will interview agricultural leaders throughout the area, including farmers, ranchers, businessmen and industry, banking and agency representatives. Findings will be presented to an area committee which will determine whether the program is needed and the exact area to be included.

Judging from successes of earlier studies which grew into full-fledged income producing programs, we are on the right track with the area approach to solving problems, Patterson said. He cited the Blackland Income Growth (BIG) and Build East Texas (BET) programs, though only a few years old, as already adding millions of dollars annually to farm income in the Blacklands and the 40 East Texas counties involved.

Two other studies, one covering the Panhandle and the other the South Plains, are nearing completion. Target date for completing the Rolling Plains study is mid-1967.

A mechanical pecan harvester has been developed at Texas A&M University. Researchers consider it an important breakthrough. The designer, William H. Alred, said the rig could probably be mass produced to sell for about $3,000. He said there is presently no economically priced mass produced mechanical harvester that harvests native Texas pecans well.

Last year, he said, several million pounds of native Texas pecans rotted on the ground because there was no hand labor to pick them up.

Tax Man Sam Sez:

Every year the Internal Revenue Service calls in thousands of taxpayers for tax audits. A large part of these taxpayers get into a discussion of their tax affairs with Internal Revenue through their failure to keep good records. Keeping good records is not an easy task but it is an important family chore that is profitable. You can prepare a much better tax return and you may save yourself a lot of tax dollars if you take the trouble to keep a simple set of records. You will find that your records are not only helpful for preparing your tax return, but they may also solve a lot of other problems for you.

Humphrey Holding Title To Johnson's Loyal Yes-Man

Johnson and Humphrey both hit the official ground in Washington in a dead run and Hubert hasn't slowed up any yet.

He has parroted the preachments of LBJ all over the country and to this date in their administration both appear to be running down hill according to the polls.

Humphrey is at a disadvantage in public opinion.

In describing his presidential seal as different from the President's, he said his own eagle has its wings down. He said: "You are the kind of vice president the President wants you to be."

And Johnson is in a position to shout the commands. He wants HHH to be a Little Sir Echo and Hubert responds like a trained seal.

Humphrey can only hope that Johnson will reward his devotion and endless efforts for the presidency and his party by wanting him as his running mate in 1968. But that's by no means a cinch.

It puts HHH in a lonely and uncertain spot, but there has always been a lonely look about him. His sensitive, bird-like expression and his endless Boy Scout cliches about America the beautiful, give an impression of trying to please.

Being a yes-man isn't the monkey on Humphrey's back. Only three vice presidents have been elected president on their own. Humphrey's wagon is so closely hitched to Johnson's, he is so closely identified with the President, that if the voters by 1968 decide they don't want Johnson any more, they won't want Humphrey either.

Southwestern Bell

Indications are that cotton producers on the High Plains and elsewhere will get considerably higher prices for cottonseed this year than they've gotten in many, many years.

It's the result of an old law almost forgotten in High Plains cotton circles—the law of supply and demand.

The estimated national 1966 crop of just less than 11 million bales—about 30 per cent below 1965 production—has brought on a proportionate reduction in the prospective supply of cotton seed for crushing. The demand for cottonseed and cottonseed products has not seen a similar drop. Unlike lint, there's no surplus from which to fill the gap.

On the Plains cottonseed at the gin has opened at about $70 per ton, basis quality index of 100, as compared to from $42 to $50 per ton paid in recent years. How this price will hold through the season is anybody's guess, but most observers see little chance of a decline back to $50 a ton or less.

There's about 800 to 850 pounds of seed per bale, worth $28.00 at $70 per ton. Ginning charges, including bagging and ties, average from $18 to $20 per bale. So farmers as of now can expect to realize from $8 to $10 per bale above ginning.

Certainly there's no assurance that this price will hold for the year. But the current price would bring farmers from 160 to 200 points net over loan value for their cotton.

And percentage-wise this factor takes on added importance in view of declining loan values—from 32 cents basis middling inch in 1963 to 29 cents in 1965. Loan price for 1966 is 21 cents, basis middling inch, but the value of both diversion and price support payments but also be taken into consideration this year, with each individual farmer calculating his own price.

Last year cottonseed was credited with accounting for about 11 per cent of the total values of the crop, and this percentage figure is sure to be higher in 1966.

There is the feeling in some circles that the value of the seed in each year's crop may become progressively more significant on the Plains.

And lending credence to this belief is the research efforts being put into development of glandless, gossypol-free seed.

The National Cottonseed Products Association evasions a vast increase in markets for cottonseed product once gossypol glands are eliminated. Gossypol is well known to be responsible for the troublesome dark color of cottonseed oil. It either eliminates or reduces the usefulness of the oil as a protein feed for poultry, swine, other non-ruminant animals and humans.

Without gossypol, the competitive position of cottonseed oil with other oilseed crops would be greatly improved. And this is especially true in view of the government's "Food for Freedom" program to develop vegetable protein foods from cotton and soybeans for human consumption.

Donald A. Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., emphasizes that the production of glandless seed is not a matter of introducing new varieties, but rather a matter of incorporating the glandless factor into existing varieties without loss of yield and lineality characteristics.

Gregg 25-V, a variety which produces glandless seed, is already being produced commercially on the Plains. It is estimated that approximately 135 tons of this planting seed were sold in 1966, and the National Cottonseed Products Association and area oil mills are seeking the cooperation of producers and ginners toward harvesting every seed of 25-V so it may be crushed separately. The resulting glandless cottonseed oil will then be made available for research purposes.

In order for this research to be effective, glandless seed must not be contaminated with other seeds. Gins and oil mills in the areas where 25-V has been planted have arranged to gin and crush the seed separately, and the only problem remaining is that of grower cooperation—getting growers to harvest this cotton separately.

To see that 25-V arrives at the gin unmixed with any other but rather a matter of incorporating the glandless factor variety. He says "Because of the current economic difficulties being encountered by cotton lint as a market commodity on the Plains, the income from cottonseed is tremendously important to cotton as a major cash crop in the area. And we should do all we can to enhance seed value."

Neither PCG nor the NCPA is recommending this or any other variety. They point out that with the current value ratio between lint and seed, farmers can afford to plant glandless cottonseed only if it is equal to the best glanded varieties in yield and quality of lint.

"However, it is important that the opportunity for additional research into uses for glandless seed products, provided by the current year's production of 25-V, not be missed," Johnson said.

Cotton Fanning, Advertising and Public Relations director for Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., tells this touching story from an experience at the South Plains-Panhandle Fair.

While attending PCG's 60-foot exhibit of all-cotton products at the fair, a small boy approached and timidly asked "Could you tell me where the 'lost and found' is?" Not sure what the boy had in mind, Fanning asked if he

On The Square

By RED GIBSON

Coach Bryan Boyd would have drooled.

For there on the stage in Dallas was perhaps the biggest collection of muscles ever seen in Texas.

If Coach Boyd could choose from that bunch, Stanton High School's football team would be five deep in 200-pounders at every position.

The occasion was the recent national powerlifting championships, featuring the strongest men in the country. Although these men and boys are not football players, they are athletes. Good athletes. Dedicated athletes. And they are recognized as athletes.

Such was not always the case, for the sport of weightlifting has only lately escaped the pale. Not long ago, and even yet in some quarters, weightlifters were thought to be muscleheads well on their way to being musclebound jerks.

Now, more and more coaches are coming to depend on the weight training they once criticized. (I haven't talked to Coach Boyd about a weight program for Stanton High athletes, so this piece cannot be considered an endorsement by him.)

Some coaches want their athletes to get bigger and stronger: size and strength can be found in the weight room. Shortly before he broke the 70-foot mark in the shot put last year, Randy Matson said he felt that he wouldn't have topped "the high 61-foot area or possibly 62 feet" if he hadn't started lifting weights at Texas A&M.

Some coaches don't want their athletes to gain 60 pounds, as Matson did. They want speedsters — track men. Bob Hayers, the world's fastest human, trained with weights. Abilene Christian College's track team, always one of the best around, uses weights extensively. So does Frank Costello of Maryland, one of America's best high jumpers. He has topped seven feet—which should take care of the musclebound theory.

So where does that leave us? I mean, where does that leave the tired businessman, the early-rising farmer, the sedentary desk worker and the housewife discussed in last week's article on running? Most of us aren't going to try to high jump three feet, much less seven. I like to root for Randy Matson, but I don't plan to even pick up a 16-pound shot, much less throw it.

In other words, few of us are competitive athletes any more. Should we consequently discard progressive resistance training? The answer has to be no if our aim is to be anything like physical fitness. There are some things that running can't do, primarily in the upper body. Weight training can firm those arm, chest and back muscles! Usually it increases the size (or, if they are fat, takes off unnecessary size).

Weight work is also helpful in trimming the old bread basket, which is where most of us look when we check someone's physical fitness.

Weight training, like running, pumps blood through your heart and oxygen through your lungs, especially if you keep at it.

The important thing to remember is that you can benefit from light weight training no matter how old you are. Just because you work out with progressive resistance doesn't mean that you have to enter the Mr. America contest. A 30-minute workout three times a week will skin off some of the blubber and firm up sagging muscles. That's the real goal.

My bulging beltline reminds me that I shouldn't make too many rash statements about the value of exercise. However, all I can say is that no matter how out of shape I look, I feel better now than I have in 15 years. My confining my exercise to the evening, when television is at its peak, I manage to miss most of the new crop of shows. That may had lost something.

"I mean like somebody was lost," the boy explained.

When asked who was lost, he looked self consciously at the floor and said "Me."

Question-And-Answer

(This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.)

Q — A friend of mine is still liable for his federal taxes even though he went bankrupt. Why does he still owe for taxes and not for anything else?

A — The law provides that although commercial debts of a legally declared bankrupt are dissolved, federal taxes remain a legally collectible debt.

Q — My husband is with the army in Viet Nam and I don't know how to answer the letter I just got regarding our tax return. What should I do?

A — Contact your local IRS office and they will give you all the help they can.

Q — I just got married. Is there any change I should make in my withholding?

A — A married taxpayer's withholding is at lower rates than a single taxpayer's, assuming other things are equal. Therefore, by notifying your employer of the change in your marital status, with the filing of a new Form W-4, your withholding may be reduced.

You also may want to take an exemption for your wife. This will reduce the amount withheld from your paycheck. However, if your wife works and claims her own exemption, then you may not claim her exemption too.

Q — I lost my refund check. What can I do?

A — Report the loss to your local IRS office. They will explain the procedure for making a claim for a duplicate check.

Q — The deductions that were disallowed when my return was audited were put in by the fellow I paid to prepare my return. Actually, I wasn't aware of them until your agent pointed them out to me. Is there anything I can do to get back at the fly-by-night who prepared my return?

What is making me feel so good.

turn?
A — The taxpayer is legally responsible for all of the information on his return no matter who helped him prepare it. Your experience proves the value of using only reputable and trustworthy advisors for help on a tax return. Q — Are gardeners considered household employees for Social Security purposes?

A — If you pay a gardener $50 or more cash wages during a calendar quarter, and an employer-employee relationship exists, then you are required to report the wages and pay the Social Security tax on them. Form 942 is used for this purpose. A gardener working for you as an independent contractor is not your employee.

Corvallis, Ore., Gazette-Times: "Since all other measures have failed to straighten out Britain's economy, maybe they should go back to capitalism and free enterprise. That worked quite well for hundreds of years and still seems to be doing rather well in West Germany and Japan. Who knows, it might even work in this country."

The Launching Pad

By NEAL ESTES

A few weeks back we used a story on the late outlaw, JESSE JAMES. A lot of subscribers said they liked the feature for the historical significance of same. So, this week, we are printing a feature on a pioneer West Texas cowboy—PITCHFORK KID. The story appeared in the recently 75th anniversary edition of THE MATADOR TRIBUNE. If you happen to have an old newspaper saved back with an interesting story on some early day character contact us and we'll pass a reprint along. We want stories about the good guys who wore the silver belly Stetsons as well as the black beaver boys. Any good story on early day life in West Texas will be welcomed.

I heard about a Big Spring lady who makes jelly from beans from a Mesquite tree and I have been attempting to find out more about her project. A friend of mine advised me the other day that there really was a Mesquite Bean Jelly. She said it is made by boiling the beans, adding gelatin, sugar, and a flavoring. Then you let it jell. Just the bean juice is used of course. If any of you readers know where I can buy a sample jar of this jelly please advise me. I have been reading some history lately of the early inhabitants of this area and I learned that the Indians had several uses for mesquite beans. Ground up, the dry ones could be used as a flour, and the green beans, after some kind of fermentation process could be made in kind of a beer. I'm not interested in anything but the jelly. My friend further informed me that the Mesquite Bean Jelly has a sweet tartness and that's the kind of jelly I like best.

REP. THEODORE R. KUPFERMAN asked Congress this week to conduct its own investigation into the adequacy of the WARREN report on PRESIDENT KENNEDY'S assassination. Citing recent books and articles critical of the report, the New Yorker called for a 10-man joint Senate-House committee to review the WARREN COMMISSION'S work. It has long been the opinion of many people that all the facts were not developed by the Commission. In view of the facts brought out in such recent books as "Who Killed Kennedy?" by THOMAS BUCHANAN, and "Whitewash," by HAROLD WEISBERG, the New York congressman's idea is a good one.

PTA To Hold 57th Convention In Austin

Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers' 57th annual State Convention will be held November 16-18 in Austin. Approximately 3,000 delegates are expected to attend. Mrs. L. L. Ledger of Copperas Cove, state PTA president, will preside.

"Increasing Educational Opportunities," is the theme of convention, which will meet in Municipal Auditorium on the shore of Town Lake. The Driskill in downtown Austin is headquarters hotel. Speakers will include Ben Barnes, speaker of the Texas House of Representatives; Dr. Thomas J. Pullen, Jr., president of the University of Baltimore; and Dr. Elizabeth M. Drews, professor of education at Portland (Ore.) State College. Mrs. Leon S. Price of Dallas, secretary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and a past president of the Texas PTA, will be National PTA's representative to the convention. Special features will include a local unit presidents' luncheon, a life membership recipients' luncheon, a men's breakfast, luncheons for council and district presidents, workshops and conferences, special music, magazine and membership awards, exhibits, and a reception honoring the National PTA representative and the state president. Four PTA state vice-presidents will be elected during the convention. Nominees are Mrs. Robert Halton of Fort Worth, for Region I state vice-president; Mrs. L. L. Swartzkopf of San Antonio, for Region II; Mrs. Vern Spiva of Fredericksburg, for Region III; and Mrs. V. F. Herbster of Seabrook, for Region IV. The annual state convention serves as governing body for the Texas PTA. Membership now is 798,340, ranking Texas second largest state PTA branch in the nation.

changing staff but the batting power of Baltimore must be reckoned with. Baltimore is playing in the city's first World Series. But the Orioles, playing back before the turn of the century when JOHN MCGRAW was a third baseman on the team, paired with HUGHIE JENNINGS, a shortstop, to introduce the following things to baseball: the hit-and-run play, the bunt, the sacrifice, the stolen base, the squeeze play and the chop. The Baltimore Chop is still well known in baseball. Today's best expert on the chop is MAURY WILLS of the Dodgers. He hit down on the ball and races to first before the fielder can handle the inordinately high bounce. One of the fabled Orioles heroes of the yesterdays was WEE WILLIE KEELER, an artist with a bat. His explanation of the reason for his success with a bat has since become a baseball classic. "I hit 'em where they ain't," he said. The odds in the current series favor the Dodgers but I'm stringin' along with Baltimore this time.

STANTON'S football team travels to Wink this Friday night to take on the lads from Winkler County. The game should be extremely close and with weather permitting, we have been advised that a sizeable caravan from this city will attend the contest in an effort to help the team in its quest for a first triumph of the season.

EVERYTIME the people get a chance to vote in Deep South they are changing the political picture. MRS. WALLACE won in Alabama, MADDOX in Georgia, and they chased MORRISON out of the Louisiana House delegation last week at the ballot box. A dyed-in-the-wool segregationist defeated the long long-time Congressman. We might add that LEANDER PEREZ is still king-pin in lower Louisiana, and I can see why he will possibly remain in power. He has threatened outside trouble makers with imprisonment in a jail supposed to be located in a swamp where man-eating alligators and poisonous reptiles creep through the bayous.

National Fire Prevention To Be Held October 9-15

Observance of National Fire Prevention Week, October 9-15, in Martin County is being urged by both rural and city fire prevention leaders.

Stanton Fire Chief C. W. Brumley and Owen Kelly, president of the Martin County Farm Bureau, urge citizens of Martin County to pay special heed to the observance this year by taking steps to prevent costly fires. "We urge everyone to develop good fire safety habits which include such things, as care with matches and smoking, good housekeeping to get rid of rubbish, proper use of electrical fuses, appliances, and extension cords, and a constant general awareness of the ways fires start and how to avoid them," the local fire chief said. He added that fires killed about 12,000 people and cost exceeded $1.76 billion in the United States last year. The local Farm Bureau president said the fall and winter months are the most vulnerable times of the year for rural fires. "When fire occurs on farm or rural property, damage is three to six times greater than in the average city fire," Owen Kelly said that Farm Bureau has two programs designed to help curtail fire losses. The local organization, in cooperation with the Texas Farm Bureau, sponsors the attendance of local volunteer firemen at the annual Firemen's Training School each July in College Station. The state and local Farm Bureau organizations also pay $75 to local fire departments for each call made in rural areas involving fires of Farm Bureau insured property.
