Health And Safety Tips

From The American Medical Association

It is well and good to encourage your children to emulate George Washington, but not where dental health is concerned. Our first president had a long history of troubles with his teeth, and later with his dentures.

Your children's teeth should last their entire lifetime. Of course, this is true provided today's youngster have been started on the way to good dental health at a young age.

National Children's Dental Health Week, which begins Feb. 5, is an annual reminder to parents that dental health habits must be learned in childhood. In fact, youngsters should have their first dental examination at the age of two and one-half to three years—when all their primary teeth have erupted.

Those first teeth are important to future dental health. One basic function of primary teeth is to preserve proper space for permanent teeth, and if they are lost too soon—through decay, for example—the permanent development of teeth is often crooked. Poorly aligned teeth can affect appearance, eating habits and speech. Frequently, misshapen dentition can only be corrected by orthodontic treatment, which may be lengthy and costly. And, if a child's appearance is seriously affected by unsightly teeth, emotional problems may result.

On the initial dental visit, the dentist will check for any signs of beginning decay and other dental problems. He will also give your child—and you—an instruction for proper home care. Usually the first appointment is a "get acquainted" period and is designed to make the child receptive to treatment at regular intervals.

Parents sometimes make the mistake of threatening or bribing a child when preparing him for a first visit. As a result, the child becomes apprehensive and might develop fear of dental treatment. Modern dental treatment is nearly painless, and, if the child has regular dental care, it is unlikely that he will develop a seriously painful dental problem.

On the other hand, parents should not avoid discussing the child's first dental examination. In simple terms, let him know what to expect in the dental office, and you may be pleasantly surprised to find that he will enjoy his new experience.

One more suggestion: Make that first dental appointment for early in the day. Your child will be well-rested then and more cooperative.

To start your child on a lifetime of good dental health at home, make certain he always brushes his teeth properly after meals and after snacks. If he's in the habit of eating a lot of sweets, cut down on them; sweets are a major cause of decay. And, he should be drinking fluoridated water to help prevent decay. If your community's water is

How America's red-white-and-blue collar workers help keep America strong.

In May 1941, top representatives of America's labor unions met with Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, and pledged their support of the Payroll Savings Plan for U.S. Savings Bonds.

Today, organized labor still endorses and actively supports the program. And the Payroll Savings Plan, just an experiment in 1941, now proudly boasts 8 million members, mostly union people, sharing a personal interest in their future and their country's.

With the Payroll Savings Plan, saving for the future is downright easy—and painless. How can you spend money you don't even see?

When you sign up, a small part of your money is tucked away every day. Automatically. And starts earning you interest of 4.15% on every Bond you buy and hold to maturity.

Bonds grow quickly. So when you need the money for important, personal things, the money is right there—ready to help pay for them.

Important things like a new home, education, that dream vacation—or your retirement. Most important, Bonds are helping our men in Vietnam.

Buy Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work and you'll find yourself in pretty good company.

And dollars ahead.

Big Spring Kennel Club To Hold A&OA Match Feb. 12

The Big Spring Kennel Club will hold an American Kennel Club sanctioned Plan A&OA Match on February 12 at the Big Spring Skateland on Highway 80 West. This match will be open to any purebred dog registered by AKC and over six months of age, providing it has not won a three point major win in regular competition, or an utility degree in obedience, if it is competing in obedience at this match. The holding of Plan A&OA Matches are one of the requirements for a club seeking licensed "point" shows, and area support for this match is expected to draw a large entry of purebred dogs.

Entries will be accepted on the day of the show and a fee of one dollar per dog, per class, will be charged. Trophies will be offered for every breed, and for variety group firsts, and best in Match. In obedience, trophies will be offered for first through fourth. In Novice A, first and second in Novice B, first in Open A and B, and high scoring dog in match. Ribbons will be offered first through fourth in all classes.

Judges for the event will be Chip Atkins of San Antonio, and Jack Potts of Abilene, in conformation, and Mrs. Geraldine O'Conner of Odessa, for obedience.

President of the Big Spring Kennel Club is Roy O. Linn. Billy Rock is show committee chairman. Any one needing additional information, should write the match secretary, Mrs. Bill W. Tubb, Box 586, Big Spring, Texas.

Admission to the viewing public is free, and the building will be available at 9:00 a.m. on the morning of the match. Judging will begin at 1:00 p.m.

Bible Comment—

St. Paul's Sermon On Love Is Finest

If we omit the sermons in the great parable of Jesus, perhaps the greatest of all Christian sermons is Saint Paul's discourse about love in the Thirteenth Chapter of I Corinthians.

It is a supreme example of brevity, preciseness, and simplicity in the presentation of a sublime subject. The subject undoubtedly inspired in Paul the quality of his utterance; but if it were considered only for its style apart from its theme, this chapter would be remarkable.

Although foreign writings often suffer in translation, the English translation of the original Greek has a balance and rhyme; a music that one can feel as he reads it aloud.

Concerning the matter of translation, it definitely does enter into consideration of this wonderful sermon. Perhaps a majority of today's Biblical authorities admit that for the "charity" of the Authorized King James Version, we should substitute the word "love," as in the latest Revised Standard Version.

On the other side of the question, some authorities make much of the various and confusing means of the word "love," while maintaining that "charity" has a simple and clear reference.

However, to one who wants sincerely to put Paul's great sermon into his life, the choice of words won't matter.

Philosopher Says Farmers Ought To Wait Until Rest Of The World Catches Up

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw interprets the agricultural situation in his own way in his letter this week.)

Dear editor:

I was sitting at home out here on this Martin County grass farm the other afternoon reading a newspaper which was explaining how China is in turmoil and if one side doesn't win the other one will, unless there's a stalemate, an energetic friend of mine from town drove up.

"Reading a newspaper in the middle of the afternoon?" he asked. "No wonder you're always behind with your work."

"On the contrary," I said. "I'm just waiting for the rest of the world to catch up with me."

He didn't take time to digest that, said he was in a hurry, only wanted to borrow a grubbing hoe, which I would have lent him if I could have remembered where I put it last summer, or was it the summer before, and he left. Had he stayed I would have explained about farmers waiting for the rest of the world to catch up.

According to an article in the paper I was reading, a hundred years ago it took 4 million farmers to feed the people in the United States. Today, about 3 million are doing it, despite the fact the population has jumped a few million to nearly 200 million. One time it took 70 per cent of the people to run the farms, now it takes only about 8 per cent, despite the fact a hun-

Farm & Ranch Review

Federal Crop Insurance — This all-risk crop insurance is now available in 64 Texas counties covering cotton, wheat and grain sorghums. It provides protection to approximately 10,000 farmers who voluntarily insure in excess of 300,000 acres of cropland and more than $17 million in farm investments, reports Ben A. Jordan, Jr., state director for the program. He says several important changes have been made in the program for 1967 and advises interested producers to check with their local FCIC offices for details.

Odessa To Host 1967 State 4-H Horse Show — The 1967 State 4-H Horse Show will be held in the Ector County Coliseum at Odessa, August 10-12. B. F. Yeates, extension service animal husbandman, says more than 10,000 Texas 4-H Club members are now enrolled in the horse program, that about 240 will participate in the state show. County and district shows are held earlier in the year to determine the participants in the state show. It is sponsored this year by the Odessa Chamber of Commerce, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation.

Deferred Rotation Grazing — In tests on Texas A&M University's Experimental Ranch located near Throckmorton, both the 2-pasture and 4-pasture system of deferred-rotation grazing have produced more and heavier calves than continuous grazing at the same stocking rates. The 4-pasture system has added about $11 to the income per cow over continuous grazing. The 4-pasture system allows each pasture to be grazed 12 months, then rested 4 months. It was developed by Range Scientist Leo Merrill at the Ranch Experiment Station, Sonora. Dr. Wm. (Dub) Waldrip is in charge of the Experimental Ranch at Throckmorton.

January Ends Big Hunt Fete

The soft melody "It's All Over Now" could play a swinging finale for the greatest wildlife harvest in the memory of many Texans!

Because, as the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department notes, January 31 terminates further field forays by the upland game forces seeking something to fire at on the wing.

That will close the quail season everywhere except, of course, at the privately operated shooting preserves that continue on through March.

The department suggested the formal finish was timely since some redoubtable Texas sportsmen have been touring the boon docks since way back on September 1 when the first phase of the successful mourning dove season opened.

Since then it has been waterfowl, deer, turkey and such in tremendous proportions.

Now, the dyed-in-the-wool squirrel and rabbit hunters may carry on but the former are cautioned by the department to know their Hunting Guides because shooting the bushy tails will not be legal again in many areas until May.

Numerous counties in North and East Texas have no closed season. Actually, in some areas there is no bag limit but they comprise mostly non-squirrel zones.

No restriction whatever exists on rabbit hunting for those having a place or getting permission to hunt.

Field men report a surprising interest in rabbit hunting, apparently stimulated by the influence of the older sportsmen who are fully appreciative of the culinary qualities of a properly prepared cottontail, or even a jack rabbit.

Meanwhile, wildlife biologists are completing studies of the amazing harvest and hoping conditions again will favor hunter and target come fall.

Veterans Administration

(Editor's Note: Veterans are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.)

Q—Are veterans whose only service was after January 31, 1955, eligible for admission to a Veterans Administration Hospital?

A—Yes, on the same basis as veterans with war-time service.

Q—A person who has no veteran status, but is in the service now, is he able to take training under the new G. I. Bill?

A—Yes. Any person on active duty in the Armed Forces of the United States who has served on active duty for at least two years and continues on active duty is eligible to apply for educational benefits under the new G. I. Bill.

Q—Under the new G. I. Bill, can training on-the-job be approved?

A—No. Apprenticeship, or other on-the-job, or institutional on-farm training, may not be approved.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Document Detectives

After a wealthy widow died, several checks turned up with what appeared to be her signature. Even though she had been blind for the final 20 years of her life, she had been able to write her name. And the signatures on the checks had the wobbly, halting character of her handwriting.

Yet there was something peculiar about the signatures. Invariably, the dots over the 'i's were placed squarely above the letter. How a blind person, having come to the end of a word, go back and find exactly the right place to put the dot?

This telltale clue led to the discovery that the signatures on the checks were forgeries. The forger had been clever, but not clever enough to fool an expert.

More and more, the law is relying on a new breed of specialists known as "examiners of questioned documents" to detect forgeries. Using modern scientific apparatus, these document detectives deal not only with the curlicues of penmanship but also with the chemistry of ink and the composition of paper.

As one judge put it: "Handwriting is always in some degree the reflex of the nervous organization of the writer, which unconsciously cause him to stamp his individuality in his writing."

Odessa College Site Of Exams On Deferment

Three Selective Service student deferment examinations have been scheduled by the state selective service headquarters to be held at Odessa College on March 11 and 31 and April 8.

According to Col. Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director, students must apply for permission to take the test by Friday, Feb. 10. Application blanks and information pamphlets are available at the college or through the local draft board.

Col. Schwartz pointed out that taking the test is entirely optional with the student. He said that in order to be eligible, the applicant must be registered with a draft board, intend to request occupational deferment as a student, and have not previously taken the test.

The examination is to be given at 23 colleges and universities in the state. Col. Schwartz noted that approximately 7,000 men took the test in November and about 30,000 did so the previous May and June.

Every year an estimated 500 million people suffer from disabling diseases associated with unsafe water supplies, according to the World Health Organization.

Oscar Fanning

Oscar (Cotton) Fanning, 41, Advertising and Public Relations Director of the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., since March of 1963, has been named Executive Assistant of the 23-county organization.

Donald A. Johnson, Executive Vice President of the Lubbock-based PCG, said Fanning will assume more responsibility in helping to direct the PCG's overall program of research, promotion and service for High Plains cotton.

"He already has been serving in an executive capacity in many respects," Johnson said. "However, his new title better reflects these duties and the added responsibility he now will assume."

Fanning will continue to direct the PCG's advertising and public relations programs and will be in charge of the office here in Johnson's absence.

A native of Earth, where he was reared on a cotton and grain sorghum farm, Fanning was graduated from Texas Tech in 1949 and spent three years in Mexico working for the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the U. S. Department of Labor.

Fanning later managed the Basin Growers Association at Stanton, an organization which primarily was concerned with the contracting of farm workers from Mexico under the old bracero program, for eight years.

Johnson also announced that arrangements have been completed for the PCG's cotton spinning and fiber testing work to be continued at Texas Tech on a consultant basis with Harry Arthur, Acting Associated Director of Tech's Textile Research Laboratories.

Arthur worked closely with Jim Parker, who directed the PCG's spinning and fiber testing work at the TRL until he resigned last month to join the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, Inc., at Charlotte, N. C.

"We plan to continue this work mostly on a consultant or contract basis in the immediate future," Johnson said, "although we may again employ a full-time textile engineer at some later date."

The PCG uses TRL facilities to conduct free spinning tests on High Plains cotton for domestic and foreign mills in an effort to show how they can begin using or expand the consumption of cotton grown in this area.

Fiber properties and spinning performances of different cotton varieties, along with experimental lines and breeding material, also are tested by the PCG in the Tech textile plant as part of quality improvement and market development efforts.

Ed Dean, PCG's Director of Field Services, will continue to head the 25,000-member organization's coordination of the High Plains diapause boll weevil control program.

"We expect in ensuing months to place more emphasis on direct contacts with growers and ginners in conjunction with our efforts to improve the quality of the High Plains cotton crop," Johnson said, "and this will increase Ed's responsibility."

Dean also will continue as chief of the PCG's work on farm labor problems, and these are due to become more intense with the advent of the new minimum agricultural wage which will cover some High Plains farmers beginning February 1.

Average household consumption of saltine crackers is more than eight pounds a year.

Agriculture Research Board Suggested By Farm Bureau

The president of the Texas Farm Bureau recommended Wednesday a new board to direct state agricultural research, and also said higher wages for farm workers would only force them out of their jobs.

C. H. DeVaney spoke to a legislative conference sponsored by the bureau. DeVaney said his proposed "coordinating board for agriculture" could help close the widening gap between Texas and such states as California in the amount of money being spent on research.

The board, he added, "should define problem areas, establish priorities, and recommend a course of action to the governor and to the Texas Legislature."

Speaker Ben Barnes already has recommended such a board.

DeVaney said the passage of the federal minimum wage for agriculture "is creating a chaotic condition for farmers and ranchers. It is forcing complete mechanization of agriculture. This will result in higher costs to farmers. It will mean the elimination of more farm workers."

"The passage of a state minimum wage would only aggravate this situation and result in higher food costs."

He told legislators another area of concern to Farm Bureau members is regulation of seed, insecticide and herbicide law.

The state water plan for the next 50 years does not sufficiently cover water for agricultural use, he said.

DeVaney called for continuation of sales tax exemptions on medicines and agricultural farm equipment, veterinary production items.

Continuation of the present farm-to-market road program was urged.

"We are still a long way from reaching our original goal of getting farmers and rancher out of the mud," DeVaney said.

The Farm Bureau supports legislation to increase penalties for persons convicted of committing crimes with firearms, DeVaney said.

DeVaney said Texas A&M would be the logical place for an animal health laboratory because the college of veterinary medicine there "would complement and strengthen"
