Council Ponders $325,000 Bond Issue

Commissioners Ask For Hospital District

Another angle was added to Stanton's controversial hospital situation today, with the announcement by Martin County Commissioners' Court of plans to create a hospital district here.

In a public notice the Commissioners said they will have a bill introduced into the Texas legislature creating a special district comprising all of Martin County. The district would assume all outstanding indebtedness of Martin County incurred for hospital purposes and would also assume full responsibility for medical and hospital care for all county residents.

The bill will be filed in accordance with Article IX of the Texas Constitution and final creation of the district will require formal approval of a majority of Stanton voters in a special election.

County Attorney Roy Pickett said that although the legislative petition is the first step to creating a hospital district, County Commissioners may wait as long as deemed desirable to call the special election.

"If the legislature agrees to set up a hospital district here," Pickett said, "the Commissioners' Court may call the election at any time it desires — or they may never call for one at all."

Pickett said, however, that the election can be called if the court is presented a voters' petition asking that it be held.

If created, the district would have the power to levy a hospital tax not exceeding 75 cents per $100 valuation. The county would no longer be allowed to appropriate money for the hospital's operation or upkeep. Under Texas law, the hospital would be administered by a Board of Hospital Managers.

Councilmen Talk CRMWD Contact At Special Session

A $325,000 bond issue to finance a 30-year water contract with the Colorado River Municipal Water District is likely to be called for here sometime this summer, Stanton Mayor Stanley Wheeler revealed today.

The contract, which Wheeler terms "still in the talking stage," calls for the CRMWD to deliver approximately 300,000 gallons of water per day for a 30 year period.

The 30-year contract was selected as most feasible by the city council during a special call meeting held Friday. Specific terms of the contract, however, will be subject to the approval of Texas Attorney General Crawford Martin.

Wheeler said the council met Friday with O. H. Ivie, general manager of the CRMWD, of Big Spring, to iron out tentative details.

He said the council hopes to have the Attorney General's approval and recommendations by this summer so a special bond election can be called. The issue will come in the form of revenue of tax bonds, he said.

Wheeler said that contract tentatively calls for a 30-year service with the city being given an option for renewal at the end of the period. He said the contract would deliver 300,000 gallons of water per day which could be increased at any time at the city's option.

"We don't want to get ourselves hooked up to too much contract if we can help it," he said.

Previous reports from C. R. Crim, consulting engineer for the city, stated that average daily requirements for Stanton would be 310,000 gallons from 1968-1970; 360,000 gallons per day from 1970-1975; 410,000 gallons per day from 1975-1980; 450,000 gallons per day from 1980-1985; and 510,000 gallons per day from 1985-1990.

If those estimated requirements are realized, the contract would allow the city to increase its daily water purchase, Wheeler reported.

Wheeler said the Attorney General would be consulted to determine what restrictions, if any, would be placed upon the sale of city bonds. The dollar amount of bonds issued under Texas law is figured in direct relation to tax powers and income of a city.

The contract, if approved, would bring water into Stanton from pipe lines located six miles north of town. The water would be brought in a 12-inch pipeline, to be built by Stanton, to a treatment plant within the city limits.

Wheeler said the city council plans to go ahead with the (Continued on page 4)

A car-truck traffic crash in northwest Martin County Tuesday morning left three men dead and two others seriously injured.

Dead are S. M. Clanton, 41, of Plainview, driver of the car, and two passengers in the Clanton vehicle, William Lee Cross, 60, and Frank Helm, 66, both of Plainview.

Cross and Helm were pronounced dead at the scene by Martin County Justice of the Peace Martin Gibson, and their bodies were brought to Gilbreath Funeral Home here pending further arrangements. Clanton was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, where he died at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Clanton's body was taken to the Newbie W. Ellis Chapel in Midland.

Still in critical condition in Midland Memorial Hospital, are Johnnie Helm, 44, of Halfway, and Clarence Kayler, 57, of Hale Center. Both men were passengers in the Clanton car.

The accident occurred at 11:05 a.m. Tuesday at the intersection of Highways 349 and 176, 20 miles north of Stanton.

Department of Public Safety Patrolman K. B. Blanchard of Midland, said the Clanton car was headed south on 349 when it struck the truck, which was in the process of turning off 349 onto 176. The truck was going north.

The impact caused heavy damage to the truck's cab and totally demolished the auto.

Driver of the truck, Ernest Andy Brooks of Midland, was uninjured.

Funeral services for all three victims will be held in Plainview.

Uh, Would You Believe? Snow In Stanton Area

The first snowfall of the season gave Martin County farmers some much needed moisture here Tuesday, but it was a case of "too little, too late."

Jake Hodges, Stanton office of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, said the two-inch snowfall provided the city with less than a one-quarter inch of actual moisture.

"We had about three or four inches of snow on the ground just north of Stanton, (Continued on page 4)

From The American Medical Association

Glaucoma is an increasingly serious eye disease which occurs most frequently in persons over the age of 30 and affects at least two per cent of people over 40.

A recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association points out that there are 54,000 men and women blind from glaucoma and that an additional 185,000 people are blind in one eye from this disease. In the United States, says the JAMA article, there are about 12 million people with undiagnosed glaucoma and this disease is responsible for 3,500 new cases of blindness each year.

One type of glaucoma, called chronic glaucoma, causes no symptoms until severe damage has been done, says Today's Health Guide, the manual of health information for the American family. Chronic glaucoma can be detected only by the medical eye physician (ophthalmologist) who uses an instrument to measure the degree of pressure in the eye and another instrument to measure the size of the visual field, or side vision. Every adult over 40 should have a test for eye pressure as well as a test for visual fields when he goes for an eyeglass check.

The second type of glaucoma which affects people over 40 is called acute glaucoma. In this ailment the pressure suddenly rises to a very high level and the attack is accompanied by severe pain, redness and markedly blurred vision. Most often the patient must be placed in a hospital immediately and undergo surgery to relieve the pressure. This is successful in most cases, but prompt treatment is very necessary.

The major problem physicians face in dealing with glaucoma is to detect the disease early enough to begin treatment before serious eye damage is done. Many of the people who have glaucoma don't know it.

It is highly important for persons past 40 to have an annual medical checkup for their eyes, even if they don't wear glasses and have no apparent visual problems.

In a nationwide poll just completed, a cross-section of the American public favored a cut in federal spending to fight inflation. The survey showed 77 per cent of those questioned voted for a slash in spending rather than an increase in taxes as a means of bringing inflation under control. The poll, made for the National Association of Manufacturers by Opinion Research Corporation, revealed increasing public conviction that government spending is the culprit in inflation.

John Quincy Adams declined nomination to the Supreme Court in 1811 before becoming the country's sixth President in 1825.

Love Is Supreme Law For The World

When we consider law and liberty, we must recognize that all law does not make for liberty. People often speak, or write, of obedience as if it were in itself a virtuous and desirable thing. It depends entirely upon what one obeys.

Obedience to tyrants, and the laws of tyrants, has brought horror and suffering upon the world too often in times past and is much too evident in the world of today. Laws have often been promulgated and designed to establish tyranny, rather than to promote liberty.

Law tends toward liberty only when it is not contrary to the laws of God, and of God's world. And the highest law of all, the only law obedience to which can bring fullness of liberty and welfare to man, is the law of love.

The two great commandments of Love — to love God with all the heart, and soul and mind, and strength, and to love one's neighbor as one's self — are not inventions of Christianity or peculiarly Christian.

They are a part of that great heritage from Judaism that Jesus said He had not come to destroy, but to fulfill.

They are the great commandments that Jesus heard as a boy as He attended worship in the synagogue. They occupy a place in the ritual from Sabbath to Sabbath of similar importance to the Lord's prayer in the worship of Christian churches.

Well, might we make these commandments, also, a part or our regular Christian worship.

In this manner may we hope to discipline ourselves that we will approach the goal of making them effective in daily life and conduct.

Philosopher Says Maybe China Red Guards Flock To Town To Keep From Plowing

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm of Mustang Draw reviews the China situation this week, more or less.)

Dear editor: According to a copy of a newspaper which I found on my front porch — don't know how it got there but it's like a government check that turns up unexpectedly in your mail box, don't ask questions, cash it — a China watcher has explained that the reason millions of young Chinese youths known as the Red Guards are flocking to the cities of China to riot is that they have been stirred to revolutionary fervor by master propagandists.

This may be true, but judging by how hard it is to keep a young man on a farm in the United States, despite all the modern tractors, three - point hook - ups for equipment, mechanical harvesting machinery, etc., there may be another explanation.

It shouldn't take much of a propagandist to get a young man in China to unhook himself from the plow he's been pulling and head for the bright lights. After you've harvested rice all week with a hand sythe and threshed it on your back to the government warehouse, any excuse to get to town is welcome.

Of course what they do when they get there is another matter, and is something the China watchers are having trouble figuring out.

Speaking of China watchers, I may take up the job myself, which I figure I can do from this Martin County grass farm as well as from any place. Any time one China watcher assures you Mao is losing, and another assures you he's winning, I figure one man's report is about as sound as another's, and I'd like to get on that payroll.

Watching China from the outside is about like having a Frenchman who doesn't speak English and has never seen a game standing outside a football stadium trying to tell you what's going on inside just by the sound of the noise. Watching it from the inside is probably worse.

What China ought to do is rebuild the Chinese wall, but this time get it a lot higher.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Comic Gave Town Its Name

TARZAN — This Tarzan doesn't have a Jane. "We used to have a Janie," said Fritz Spencer, the jolly operator of the only grocery store in this farming village in the lower red South Plains. "Whatever happened to Janie, Uncle Tom?"

Spencer was talking to Uncle Tom Brown, a wiry little man who was sitting on the ice cream box in Spencer's store.

Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Yeager of Raymondville, visited his mother, Mrs. Allie Sprawls, last week. Mrs. Sprawls is a patient in Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring.

"Don't know, Fritz," said Uncle Tom.

The two men, both pioneers of Tarzan, recalled that Janie moved away. They didn't remember where.

Both agreed the town needs a Jane just because of its name.

"We don't have any apes, either," said Uncle Tom, sending Fritz Spencer into a rib-splitting giggle.

The two men recalled that Tant Lindsey, the first merchant in the town, named it from a Tarzan comic book.

"Tant was a comical sort of fellow," said Spencer. "He was postmaster and he'd submitted just about every name there was for the town and the post office department had turned down every one of them."

"The story is that he finally gave up when he got one of the names back one day. He'd been reading a Tarzan comic book and just decided as a joke to submit that name. He did and the Post Office Department approved it without any trouble."

Spencer came here in 1928, shortly after a land company bought 12½ sections of land and started selling it for $12.50 an acre.

"Bob Cook at Big Spring told me about it," said Spencer. "He was selling the land

More Aggies Needed For Agricultural Careers

Are you a high school senior or college freshman still trying to decide on a career? There's a wide open field waiting for you, if you're willing to be "different." Would you believe "agriculture?"

According to Dr. Kenneth L. Bader, assistant dean of Ohio State University's school of agriculture, the young man could do worse than enter this field. He would be different, because not many students are thinking about agriculture in this nuclear - space age, but for that very reason he would have an excellent chance of landing a good-paying job on graduation.

Question-And-Answer

(This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.)

Q—Are you going to put out a table showing what my 1966 tax should be when the 6 percent surcharge is added in?

A—The 6 percent tax surcharge proposed by the President does not affect 1966 income tax returns. Thereafter, the tax tables and schedules in the 1040 instructions need not be changed for this year's returns.

Q—I'm over 65 and I've heard that starting this year my medical expenses will not be fully deductible. Does that affect my 1966 return?

A—The program was closed with a hymn sing for the entire group, which was led by Mrs. Jack Woodrow, accompanied by Dr. Sue Fisher. All hymns were traditional and well-known, and as "The Little Brown Church in the Wildwood," from our tremendous heritage of American Music. Approximately 40 members, children and guests, were present.

A—No, it does not. Allowable medical expenses for taxpayer 65 and over will be fully deductible on 1966 returns. The change will come next year when you file a return on 1967 income. Then the medical expenses of older taxpayers will be treated the same as those of taxpayers under 65.

Q—My wife is visiting her mother for a few weeks. Can I file our return without her signature as most of our income is from my salary?

A—No, your wife's signature is required as well as yours on a joint return. Failure to have her sign the return will hold up processing and any refund due.

Q—I was off the job for about 2 months last year because of illness. Doesn't some of the pay I received during this period qualify for the sick pay exclusion?

A—Yes, it very well might. There are two rules governing when and how much sick pay may be excluded from income for federal tax purposes.

First, if the amount you received as sick pay is more than 75 percent of your weekly rate of pay, there is a 30 day waiting period before you are entitled to sick-pay exclusion.

If the amount you receive is 75 percent or less, the waiting period is 7 days unless you are hospitalized for at least one day during your absence from work. In that event, there is no waiting period.

The exclusion under both rules is limited to $75.00 per week for the part of the first 30-day period in which you are entitled to the exclusion. After that, it becomes $100.00 per week.

Q—Where should I list the alimony income I receive?

A—Use line 7 on page 2 or Form 1040. Prizes and awards, state tax refunds and other miscellaneous items should be entered here.

Q—My wife and I are filing a joint return and the Social Security withheld from both our salaries exceeds the maximum. Can we take credit for this?

A—The maximum applies to the Social Security tax withheld from each taxpayer. Only the amounts in excess of $277.20 withheld from your salary, or your wife's may be claimed as a credit against income tax liability.

Q—I just completed my return and sent it in. What records should I keep in case I'm audited?

A—Keep whatever you need to substantiate the income and deductions on your return. Cancelled checks, paid bills, Forms W-2 and 1099, bank books and similar records will be helpful.

Q—My salary was about $6,000 last year and my wife earned about $1,500 doing part-time office work. Which return would be the best for us to file—a joint return or separate returns?

A—Based on income alone, your question is impossible to answer. The deductible expenses each of you have are the determining factors.

Generally joint returns are more advantageous for married couples. Compute your tax both ways and then file the return that results in the lower tax.

Q—Can I use my 1966 income as the basis for a declaration of estimated tax?

A—Yes, this is one of the methods that may be used in filing a declaration of estimated tax. You may also use your 1966 tax or an actual estimate of 1967 income as the basis for filing estimated tax declarations.

Q—How do I figure my state gas tax deduction?

A—Page 9 of the 1040 instruction booklet contains a table that may be used to figure this deduction.

Q—I had a capital loss in 1966. Can I carry it over to next year if I don't use all of it this year?

A—Yes. Capital losses can be carried over indefinitely until they are absorbed. The loss when carried over retains its original character so that if it was a long term loss it remains a long term loss while a short term loss remains a short term loss.

Q—I have GI insurance. Are the yearly dividends taxable?

A—No, veterans insurance dividends are not taxable.

WEDDING SLATED—Mr. and Mrs. Jim Franklin of Stanton announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda Sue, to James Haley of Happy. Miss Franklin is a student at West Texas State University, where her fiancé also is a student. The couple plans to be married at 7 p.m. March 24 in the First Baptist Church of Stanton. No formal announcements will be sent and all friends are cordially invited to attend.

Seven Counties Hit 10,000 In Deer Bag

Seven Texas counties each reported a fall deer harvest in excess of 10,000 head, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department that set the estimated 1966 take at 271,599.

This is approximately 60,000 more than in 1965.

The survey by game wardens shows that 208 of the state's 254 counties yielded one deer or more and that the kill exceeded 4,000 deer in 18 counties.

It was a scant shoot in some places since 15 counties were credited with a season's bag of from one to five head.

The overall take in seven counties went into five figures.

Llano County, kingpin of the famed Hill Country big game range, again led all others with an estimated harvest of 20,000 deer.

The bucks' breakdown was not available but the substantial shoot of antlerless deer was reflected in figures provided on two heavily populated counties.

They were San Saba reporting an antlerless kill of 5,500 and nearby Menard reporting 3,500.

The turkey harvest was set at 18,410, up slightly from 1965, with 43 counties represented.

Here's the way the top flight counties were recorded in order, showing a broad statewide representation:

Llano, 20,000; Mason, 15,000; Medina, 14,500; Gillespie, 14,500; San Saba, 12,500; Kimble, 10,500; Sutton, 10,000; Bexar, 8,400; Blanco, 7,560;

Red's Corner

By RED GIBSON

Lew Alcindor will have to look somewhere else if he wants any advice. I have an opinion, a definite opinion, about what Brother Lew should do if the Harlem Globetrotters offer him a million or so dollars to play basketball for a few years.

For among the many mistakes made from this corner, one that I best remember was when I offered Wilt Chamberlain some advice. I suggested, in a newspaper piece in Galveston 10 or 11 years ago, that Bro. Wilt should resist the temptation to sign with the Globetrotters for a year — at $100,000 — and stay for his senior year of college.

I implied that as a dropout he could look forward to a bleak future in the breadlines, more or less.

Reports from qualified judges lead me to believe that Wilt Chamberlain is the best basketball player ever seen. He earns thousands and thousands of dollars each month for demonstrating his ability. He owns some apartment houses, a long, shiny car, and maybe some polo ponies. To put it mildly, he is not yet a candidate for the breadlines.

Moreover, unless he is better at throwing money away than he is at throwing a ball through a hoop, he will not be a candidate for the breadlines anytime this side of the year 2000.

As noted above, this corner supplied some bum advice.

The nit-pickers among us will argue that since I was in Galveston and Chamberlain was in Kansas, there is a slight chance that he reached his decision without being aware of my suggestions. It's possible. Even so, I gave the advice and the advice was wrong.

And that's why Lew Alcindor can fend for himself, as far as I'm concerned.

It appears that he is a good fender. There was one story last week that said Alcindor had been offered a million to leave UCLA and play for the Globetrotters. After that came the denial. UCLA's coach said it was a publicity stunt. The Globetrotters said they hadn't made the offer. Alcindor didn't say much.

Alcindor is a journalism major at UCLA. Although I strongly prefer the business of journalism to the business of basketball, I fear that the economics involved would indicate that Alcindor might find the latter considerably more profitable. Admittedly, salaries are higher in California and some other places than they are in Texas. But by my calculations Alcindor will need approximately 100 years as a reporter to make a million dollars.

He should live so long. Assuming that Alcindor has journalistic talents as advanced as his athletic talents, he can expect to make it in only 50 years. It he eases over into the executive end of things, where they talk about stock options and such animals, he might make his million in only 30 or 35 years.

I do not know how many years the Globetrotters wanted Alcindor to play, but I suspect that they weren't thinking about a 50-year-old basketball player. I suspect that they had a five-year contract in mind, even if it was just a publicity stunt.

Any offer like that would be tempting, especially to a college sophomore, like Alcindor. It's a pity. I hate to see him standing there alone, even if there is 7 feet 1 and 3/4 inches of him. But it's best for all that I cut him off my advice list. Good luck, Brother Lew.

In the quest of success, just remember that there is no substitute for character or service.

There are those who deny the greatness of the Bible but they have yet to produce a greater book.
