Bert L. Reinke of Austin, Texas, state winner in the 4-H Tractor Program, receives a plaque symbolizing his achievements from Miss Teenage America, Stephanie Crane of St. Louis, Mo., in a ceremony at the 46th National 4-H Club Congress. As the Texas tractor champion, Bert won a free trip to Chicago as the guest of Humble Oil & Refining Company, award honor for the organization in six Southwestern and Western States.

Whom the devil cannot destroy with the deeper and dirtier sins, he will seek to destroy with discouragement and distrust. This was true in the life of David and is seen in the eleventh Psalm.

He was in danger. Saul was determined to destroy him. Everything was against him. David had no help or hope. Some said, "Flee as a bird to your mountain!" But he who has faith does not flee. Faith knows how to conquer, not to be conquered.

He declared, "In the Lord put I my trust." In times of inward trouble and outward temptation, some will say, "Flee as a bird to your mountain. Run away from home. Turn to drink and drugs. Find relief in tranquilizers and thrills." But they lift only to lower, and the habit is worse than the help.

But that is not true of trusting in the Lord. He is more than a stimulus. He is the Saviour. He does not bind. He looses. He does more than erase the old life. He gives the lead to write a new life.

Are you in trouble? Trust in the Lord. There is no prayer too hard for Him to answer, one problem too deep for Him to solve, no passion too strong for Him to subdue, no pain too extreme for Him to soothe. He is a great Saviour for great sinners.

Veterans Must Report Total Income

More than two million veterans and widows receiving pensions from the Veterans Administration are being mailed cards on which to report their annual income. Jack Coker, manager of the VA Regional Office in Waco, said today.

The check-sized income report cards, enclosed with the November pension checks, must be filled out and returned to the VA by January 31, or payment of the pension will be stopped, Coker reminded. The law requires that payments be stopped if income is not reported.

The forms have been simplified this year, and designed for faster processing in automatic accounting machines. It is important that the cards not be folded, torn or mutilated.

The income questionnaires are going to all veterans and widows on VA's non-service-connected pension rolls, and to parents of deceased veterans who are receiving dependency and indemnity payments.

Vegetable Acreage To Remain Same

It will take 296,600 acres planted to the 13 principal spring vegetables to supply the commercial market needs of these crops, points out John Larson of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

This is the same acreage as was grown last year, he says, as he calls attention to the acreage-marketing guides just released by the Consumer and Marketing Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Texas and Louisiana are among the states that produce most of the spring vegetables. If growing conditions are normal in 1968, the recommended acreage will provide 3 percent less of these vegetables than in 1967 but 2 percent more than in 1966.

In addition, it is recommended that cantaloups be grown on 36,699 acres, about 5 percent more than last year. This acreage would provide a crop just slightly smaller than in 1967 but well above 1966. Output of late-spring watermelons on the recommended 63,800 acres would be 13 percent greater than in 1967 and above average.

C&MS market analysts said that if spring vegetable and melon crops are in line with the guide, and if harvest timing is normal, supplies should be adequate for anticipated needs.

The guide call for 5 percent fewer acres planted to broccoli, celery and late-spring onions; 10 percent fewer acres in carrots, and 5 percent more in both early- and late-spring sweet corn. No change is indicated for other spring vegetables: snap beans, cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers, lettuce, early-spring onions, green peppers, spinach and tomatoes.

County extension agents in spring-vegetable growing areas have additional information on the guides, Larsen said.

Bible Comment—

Jesus Taught The True Worth Of Giving

When Paul was leaving Milus after having called the elders of the Christian Church of Ephesus to hear his words of farewell, he bade these Christians to remember the words of the Lord Jesus: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

No words could express more accurately the spirit of all that Jesus had said and exemplified in His life and death. Nor could any words express more pointedly the challenge of Jesus and His teaching to the ideas and action of what He called "the world."

Getting and receiving is such a normal process of life and is so natural to happiness and welfare that we might well ask whether Jesus was right in declaring that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

We may ask but there is only one answer. And the answer is found not only in some spiritual blessedness that compensates for the giving or renunciation of some material possession or treasured thing. Jesus offered men rest: "Come unto me — and I will give you rest."

Yet rest is the thing that men, rich, poor, old, young, sick or well, cannot do without. That offer of rest by the Master was supreme in its insight into human need.

So in this matter of the blessedness of giving in any assertion that it is more blessed to give than to receive, is true in normal living. The giving of parents to their children, the giving to loved ones the innumerable acts of graciousness and self-sacrifice in which men and women find supreme satisfaction, bear witness to the testimony of Jesus.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

MARTIN-HOWARD-MIDLAND SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT

Jack Buchanan, Bob Cox, Bernard Houston, Larry Shaw, J. D. Crawford.

Contour cultivation effectively conserves moisture when it is used with other good farming practices, says Jake Hodges, local S. C. S. technician, assisting the Martin-Howard Soil and Water Conservation District.

Farming on the contour reduces the velocity of runoff water show that on the same slopes, if the land were cultivated up and down, ridges and trenches resulting from planting and cultivation of crops forms a series of small basins for what that would otherwise runoff the field.

"In dry areas such as ours, where conservation of moisture is so vital, contour cultivation should be used in most circumstances, said Hodges. Although the problem of all available moisture for use by crops is less acute in the higher rainfall areas, contour cultivation has wide spread application as an aid to the orderly disposal of surplus water during wet periods, and to the conservation of moisture during the drier periods in the growing season. Considerable as to higher yields of crops on contoured fields than on fields up and down the hill. At Spur, Texas, results of C. E. Fisher and Earl Burnett, bear on the value of contouring in growing cotton continuously since 1927 on land with a slope of five per cent. An annual average, contouring reduced runoff from 2.75 inches for up and - down farming to 1.95, and increased the yield of cotton 29 pounds an acre.

The water saved by contour cultivation often is relatively insignificant in terms of increments of additional water at the critical stage during the growing season, however, often give substantial increases in crop yields, according to Hodges.

Assistance in planning contour cultivation and laying out the contour rows, is available through the Soil Conservation Service assisting the Martin - Howard Soil and Water Conservation District in Stanton.

Midland Gets Unitarian Conference

A conference of Unitarians will be meeting in Midland, on December 8, 9, and 10. Unitarians and religious liberals from all over West Texas and eastern New Mexico will be convening and anyone interested in learning more about liberal religion is cordially invited to attend.

The emphasis of the conference will be on fellowship and churchmanship. It will begin Friday evening with an informal reception in the home of Mrs. J. P. Wilkinson. The Saturday program will be in the Midland church and will deal with practical matters. A dinner and dance at the Plaza del Sol restaurant will climax the day.

The Sunday service will include a 10:00 a.m. Forum Program, "Six Characters in Search of a Scapegoat," presented by members of the El Paso Unitarian Fellowship. The 11:00 a.m. service will be "A Church Made for Man," by Rev. Bill Nichols, minister of the Midland Unitarian Church. Since Sunday, December 10, is Human Rights Sunday, the sermon will explore the possibilities of the Unitarian Church having the prior commitment of man over metaphysical speculation.

Unitarianism is not widely known in the southwest but has a long history in the eastern portions of our nation. Unitarians believe in freedom of belief rather than adherence to traditional dogmas, the unrestricted use of reason in arriving at religious truth and generous tolerance for all who disagree.

a national soil conservation program, according to the newest publication of the Soil Conservation Service, "Our American Land."

Stopping sediment that is filling our streams and reservoirs, planning for orderly urban expansion and community development, and providing new outdoor recreational facilities, are other objectives.

The booklet points out that America's farmers are producing food more efficiently than any other place in the world, and because of this, we have the highest standard of living anywhere. Quite a bit of our high production comes at a high cost in tons of soil washed from the land. Much soil and water conservation work is still needed on the nation's farm and ranch lands. And that which is already in effect needs constant care and flexibility to adapt to changing needs and technology.

Copies of this publication may be obtained from the Soil Conservation Service in Stanton, who provides professional and technical help to local land owners and operators in the Martin - Howard Soil and Water Conservation District.

The Texas Section of the American Society of Range Management, will hold its annual meeting at the Inn of the Golden West Hotel in Odessa, on Dec. 8-9. This meeting will be of interest to ranchers and other people associated with the ranching industry. Some topics to be discussed at the meeting will be: Practical experience with rotation - deferred grazing systems (a panel discussion by ranchers using a rotation-deferred grazing system); Grassland Restoration, Effect on Water Supply and Yield; The Challenge of Arid Lands in Relation to Range; Broomweed and its Control, and Economic Units for Ranching.

The Society of Range Management is made up of ranchers, professional workers in professors and researchers,

Good Venison Is Easily Prepared

With very little effort venison becomes a delight even to the most discriminating, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Many people would not eat choice beef if the meat was processed like some people process deer. No housewife would purchase a piece of meat from a fat beef if she knew it had been hauled over a hundred miles tied to top of a car fender, exposed to road dust and heat from the sun and automobile motor. This is common practice for deer.

The department suggests that deer be field dressed and skinned as soon as possible after it is harvested. This will result in the meat draining and cooling faster and losing the wild taste.

The carcass should be placed in a good game bag to ward off insects and to permit it to cool as quickly as possible.

If the meat is to remain in camp, hang it in a well ventilated shady place. If the weather is hot, refrigeration may be necessary. Let the meat hang until it is well drained and the body heat is gone before hauling it home. Then, wrap it in something which will retain as much low temperature as possible and pack on the inside of the vehicle

The department cautions that evidence of sex must be retained on each carcass. Leaving the head attached is the best way.
