By PEGGYE SORLEY

This week is Public School Week in Texas, and parents and interested people are urged to visit the schools and see the various methods of teaching and displays. Tonight from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m., the elementary, junior high, and high schools will all hold a program of some sort to acquaint you with the various teachers, and methods at the schools. Elementary school will hold an open house, with teachers being in their rooms to answer questions concerning the education program being presented. Junior High will also hold an open house, with parents and interested people invited to attend, and observe the works that will be on display. At the High School, teachers and students will hold a "Mock School Day," which will be interesting to parents. Everyone should attend all three of the schools tonight, and acquaint yourself with the teachers, and see the work your child is doing.

She had been a resident of Martin County since 1924.

Injunction Is Sought Against The County

CORRECTION
In last week's Reporter story on the proceedings of the County Commissioners meeting it was erroneously reported that the commissioners had voted unanimously to condemn the Tate land.

County commissioner Eldon Welch abstained from all discussion on the matter, and further abstained when the vote was taken.

An injunction will be sought in District Court today preventing Martin County from taking land from Jessie and A.

H. Tate. The county has filed condemnation proceedings against the Tates for the right of way of a strip of their land adjoining Farm Road 1212 and the Tates are fighting this condemnation.

Roger Brown, attorney for the Tates, indicated that he will seek the injunction in Big Spring on the grounds of "abuse of discretion" on the part of the County Commissioners.

In response to an article appearing in last week's Reporter, the Tates issued the following statements:

"We would like to make this further information available to the public in the dispute between ourselves and the Martin County Commissioners concerning Farm Market Road 1212." Tate's statement said.

"The Commissioners already have the amount of right-of-way required by the state without acquiring more land or moving the road. All they need to do is to clear the present right-of-way of obstructions.

"—These obstructions consist of five water wells.

"—Of these five wells, two obtained easements when right-of-way was acquired, and could be moved west by negotiation.

"—Of the three which have no easements, two wells were drilled as trespassers after right-of-way was acquired.

"—We contend that the present adequate right-of-way should be utilized by disposal of trespass wells, and negotiation for removal of the two wells covered by easements."

The county maintains that to move the wells in question, and to guarantee the same water flow could not economically be done.

Farm Market Road 1212 is a jointly maintained road by the county and the state. The State Highway Department has agreed to take over the portion now under the county, and to rebuild and maintain the road, if the necessary right-of-ways can be secured.

Judge Yater To Participate In Mental Program

County Judge Carroll Yater is one of 60 Texas County Judges invited to participate in a regional, state, and federal government institute on the Role and Responsibility of the County Judge in Promoting and Supporting Local Programs for the Mentally Retarded. He will attend a two-day workshop to be held in Austin, March 11-12.

Mental retardation is a significant program since it affects 350,000 Texans. Unless the mentally retarded person can be taught to be self-supporting, the cost to the community can be very great. Texas has, over the years, led the nation in programs aimed at the rehabilitation of the retarded.

Judge Yater will join with 59 other county judges, and a group of key state and national authorities in this field. Also attending will be Dr. David Wade, Texas Commissioner of Mental Health and Mental Retardation; Dr. Phil Roos, executive director, National Association for Retarded Children, and Vernon McGee, formerly of the Governor's staff.

For New School Year—

Stanton Schools Ready Drug Abuse Program

What is the number one factor contributing to drug abuse? What is a narcotic? How well informed are you concerning the drug scene?

These and many more questions similar will be the subject of much discussion in public schools across Texas beginning with the next school year.

Stanton schools are presently busy working on the basic curriculum that must be taught in the public school system to conform with House Bill No. 467 passed last year by the Texas legislature.

This bill requires that the Central Education Agency shall develop curricula and teaching materials for units of study on the dangers of crime and narcotics. The units of study shall be required for all social economic levels and in cities, suburbs, and rural areas. Crime and drug abuse can and do occur anywhere, regardless of education, race, religion, economic, or social level. It was generally felt, by the State Task Force on Crime and Narcotics that education is the best method of preventing drug problems, and that the schools are the best place for this education.

Last year, Jim Connors, Another workshop was held

John Anastasio, and student Susan Vest, attended a Drug Lab Workshop, sponsored by the West Texas Education Center, in Midland. At the workshop the new law was discussed, and ways and means of implementing the program.

Upon returning from the workshop a drug-lab was set up in Stanton. This drug-lab lasted one full school day, and was for the purpose of finding out what local students knew or did not know about drugs. The students were divided into small groups of about fifteen, each group with a teacher and a student group leader.

A main part of the day's program was the viewing of the film, "The People Next Door." This was a three part film, and after viewing the first two parts, the students were handed questionnaires concerning the film. After filling out the questions, they then viewed the third and final part of the film to see how the problem actually was handled.

This was the first step in the formation of a curriculum on drugs to be taught in Stanton.

In Monahans, this one for two days, and dealing mainly with curriculum problems. Attending from Stanton were Jim Connors, John Anastasio, and students Chipper Coggins, and Susan Vest. At the workshop the group went over the answers received from the drug-lab, and materials were handed out to assist in the formation of a drug curriculum.

There has been no major drug problem in the Stanton schools in the past, and it was felt that the new state directive will help in keeping it that way.

The overall objective of the new program is the minimization of the incidence of crime and drug abuse among the youth of the community. Such a program is complex, and must have total community planning and implementation. The primary role of the schools is one of leadership to involve home and community resources, and it must meet the needs of a particular district. It will present the truth, and will deal only in facts.

Even though Stanton is relatively free of a drug problem, it is felt that the students can only benefit from an awareness of drug use, how the pushers operate, and

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON ASSOCIATION, INC.

A new regulation concerning set-aside requirements under the 1971 farm program has come down from Washington which, according to Donald Johnson, executive vice president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., "is grossly inequitable and will be impossible for County Committees to administer."

The new rule, as given to PCG from the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office at College Station, reads: "Irrigable land within the farm's irrigation system (emphasis added) shall be designated for set-aside when the established yield for the allotments or feed grain base from which set-aside is determined is irrigated. If an acreage is designated which cannot be irrigated the payment for the allotment or base shall be made on the basis of 'dry land yield.' The county committees shall establish a yield for the crop which is representative of dryland production for the farm."

Johnson said, "Many of our farmers have already put down herbicides and fertilizers on acreage intended for crop production this year, and it is totally unfair for USDA to issue new rules at this date which would require changes." He further pointed out that the new ruling is incompatible with farming efficiency, and the administration's stated desire to increase cotton production in 1971.

Attempting to administer the regulation to the letter as written could create a nightmare for County ASCS Committees, Johnson continued. "Without sending a qualified crew of water engineers to every farm in the country, how can a County Committee determine if an acreage cannot be irrigated? And how in the world is the County Committee going to establish a yield which is representative of dryland production for the farm?"

As one example of the difficulty that would be encountered in determining whether an acreage can be irrigated, Johnson cited the case of a farmer with an irrigation system which waters the land in a circle, leaving the corners dry, and asks the question, "Would these corners be considered non-irrigable 'within the farm's irrigation system?' If so the farmer would be required to buy additional irrigation pipe, which he would have no intention of using, just to show the ASCS

Texas Cotton Farmers Have Chance To Cash In On 1971 Crop

Cotton the old standby in Texas, and one of the state's leading industries has a chance to make the economy of the state really hum.

An optimistic outlook for cotton appears. Demand outstripped production in 1970, and is carrying on during this year. Buyers and merchants are in the country now contracting for this year's crop, not yet planted.

Philosopher Says The Government Needs A Better System For Announcing Alerts

(Editor's note: The Martin County Philosopher on his grass farm on Mustang Draw discusses the false national emergency alert this week, we think.)

Dear editor:

I wasn't listening to the radio at the time so wasn't aware of the "national emergency alert" that went out over the country when somebody fed the wrong tape into the networks, but according to the newspaper account I read a lot of people got pretty excited, and more would have if more radio stations had believed what they were being inaccurately told.

I'm afraid the government's going to have to get a different system, because like it is nobody believes much of anything anybody says anymore.

It seems to be a national trend. No matter what a law says, practically any politician in violation of one can explain how he didn't violate it, taking so long to do it by the time he's through you've forgotten what the question was.

This seems to work for politicians, and what I object to is that it won't work in other areas.

For example, if my banker says, "Your note was overdue last Tuesday," I'd like to be able to say, "Now look, it was a year ago I promised to pay that note by last Tuesday, and I'm a man of my word, the record shows that, but the world doesn't stand still. What's true today is not necessarily true tomorrow. Life is vast and complex. I made that promise in the light of what was happening twelve months ago,

Have you figured out your 1970 income tax return?

Have you even read your instructions?

You have six weeks left to file, but more than a week ago you used up more than half the time given you under law to file your tax return. Yes, the new law and the new forms make it a tough job this year, but April 15, is closer than you think.

After Joan of Arc was burned at the stake, the final insult by the English was to refuse to bury the saint's ashes. They were gathered up and thrown into the Seine River.

and in that time as we all know the Indo-China situation has changed, we've had an earthquake in California, the cost of living has gone up, man has walked once more upon the moon, the world's biggest railroad, and Rolls-Royce both have gone broke, and the airlines are losing money, not to mention the pollution problem, and while it's technically true that note was overdue last Tuesday, you've got to remember for the 12 months prior to that it was under-due. You've got to look at this from the over-all viewpoint. On balance, the note was under-due 12 months, and is now over-due by only six days. That's not such a bad record, is it?"

You try this, and judging by what the banker will say, you'll figure somebody has fed the wrong tape into him.

Yours faithfully,

'Look 'Em Over'

This week schools throughout the state are celebrating Texas Public School Week. Schools are hoping that this year will be an all-time high in visitations to the schools in the state.

But the real importance of your visit is not just to set a new attendance record, but to enable visitors to get better acquainted with your schools and the teachers. This is an exceptional way of let your school children know that you are interested in what they do at school.

These are your schools, built with your tax dollars to serve the needs of your children. We believe we have good schools in the Stanton area, and this is one way to start finding out if we do or do not.

Stanton School Superintendent Russell McMeans, and School Board members urge all those interested to come out to the schools and look them over. Many programs are planned that should be of interest to everyone. If you haven't been out to the schools yet this week please do so, for only by having an informed and interested public can the quality of education our youngsters receive be kept high. And again, only by the peoples interest can something be done if the quality that students and parents are entitled to in education is lacking.

Tollison Outlines April Plans For County Cancer Crusade

Crusade chairman Don Tollison outlined plans for the April Cancer Crusade when the Martin County Unit of the American Cancer Society met Monday, March 1, in the Martin County Library.

Tollison told of the different groups and organizations, and various phases of the crusade to be conducted on April 27, in Martin County. Final plans for the drive will be made at the next meeting on April 5.

Mrs. Marvin Standefer presided, and educational chairman, Mrs. Jimmy Sawyer, reported on an educational film that had been shown to the ACS group with 14 present. She also told that on February 15, at the Grady Lions Club Ladies Night, an educational film was also shown to an audience of 60, with the same film being viewed by the Grady Junior High, at an assembly on February 16.

Mrs. Sawyer announced that Dr. Matraha Madsen of Midland, would be in Stanton on March 22, at 9:30 a.m., to present a film and talk to the high school girls, with all interested ladies urged to attend.

Charles Miller, District II Field Representative from Midland, announced that the Cancer Society in Midland would soon move to a larger location, and that all service items could be obtained from the service store house there. Miller stated that on March 18, a team of doctors from San Antonio, specializing in leukemia would be in Midland to present a forum and all-day meeting. The meeting will be
