Pointeau's effort called 'two fronts' as INS date nears

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

The Jack Pointeau family of Snyder, facing another deportation date Monday from the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), is working toward a second approach to remain in the U.S. while continuing to lobby for legislative changes which would make foreign investors like themselves "legal."

The Pointeaus, owners of the White Buffalo Motel here, have also gained additional support from U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Stamford), who filed a private bill on their behalf last year.

The head of the family, Jack Pointeau, says the effort is now on "two fronts," a struggle underway as the latest date for their ordered departure, June 26, is at hand.

Attorneys for the Pointeaus are now attempting to gain working visa status, called an H-1 card, for both Francoise Pointeau and her eldest daughter, Isabelle.

The field would be as French language instructors. The legal qualification which would work in favor of the Pointeaus is an employment stipulation that the instructor speak with a native accent.

On a second "front," the French family has received renewed support from Stenholm, whose private bill filed on their behalf last September failed to receive support from the members of the subcommittee which deals with immigration legislation.

Stenholm has now asked the subcommittee to again consider his See POINTEAUS, page 13A

Paving now set to start Clairemont Hwy. to take two years

A pre-construction hearing is scheduled Monday related to the $3.3 million project to repave and widen the Clairemont Highway in north Scurry County.

Work is to begin in July and the job is expected to take up to two years to complete.

Contract for the work has been awarded to Ajax Construction out of Lufkin. Total bid cost was $3,332,000.

A completion date within 230 working days is set once the project begins.

Upon completion, the highway will gain an 8 ft. paved shoulder on each side.

This will make the roadway a total of 40 ft. wide, 12 ft. for each of two vehicle lanes plus the two 8 ft. shoulders.

Passing lanes will be added also for several of the hills along the route.

The Ennis Creek bridge is to be rebuilt and widened also.

Entities set to receive franchise tax

Snyder-based taxing entities are to receive $115,164 from the state's bank franchise tax, according to the state comptroller's office.

The allocations come from franchise taxes paid by Snyder banks. Banks must file a report with the state comptroller by March 15 of each year.

A portion of the tax goes into the state's general revenue fund, but most of it is allocated to local tax jurisdictions.

The City of Snyder received $20,553; Snyder ISD, $63,997;

Western Texas College, $11,381; and Scurry County, $19,231.

Bank franchise tax refund liabilities were created as a result of state court cases centering on taxes collected in 1985, 1986 and 1987.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock sent checks totaling $34 million in bank franchise tax allocations to 2,023 Texas taxing entities.

"Bank franchise allocations have steadily declined from their peak of $72 million in 1986, due mainly to the continuing financial difficulties of Texas banks,"

Bullock said.

The bank franchise tax rate is the same as the state's corporate franchise tax rate — $6.70 per $1,000 of taxable capital and surplus, with a minimum tax of $150, according to Bullock.

House Bill 3032, passed by the legislature this session, states that beginning in 1990, banks can choose to take partial credit each year against their franchise tax, rather than pursuing immediate refund of the contested amounts.

The state legislature approved the bank tax in 1984.

SDN publisher will head statewide TPA

Roy McQueen, SDN publisher, was to be elected president of the Texas Press Association Saturday during the group's annual meeting held in Arlington.

McQueen succeeds Fred Lowe, publisher of the Lampasas Dispatch Record, who becomes chairman of the board.

Founded in 1880, the Texas Press Association includes 518 newspaper members. McQueen, a member of the TPA since 1968, has served as a director of the organization twice, as well as vice president.

McQueen, 44, has been in newspaper work for 30 years. He began his career as a sports reporter for the Andrews County News in 1959 when he was in the 8th grade. While in high school, he continued to work for the semi-weekly newspaper.

As a freshman, McQueen enrolled at North Texas State University. The following year, he commuted to Odessa College and worked full-time at the Andrews County News.

In 1965, he transferred to Texas Tech University and went to work for the Slaton Slatonite in both news and advertising.

In 1966, he worked for the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal's sports department.

Upon graduation from Texas Tech in 1968, McQueen became publisher of the weekly Seminole Sentinel.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "You can't take it with you, but what you leave behind will make somebody a heck of a garage sale."

Snyder Lions Clubs, like others in the district, use a lot of their charity funds to buy eye glasses and finance other sight conservation projects.

At least once a year, the Lions have a program on leader dogs for blind persons. This year the leader dog program was presented by a staffer who brought with him a seeing-eye dog for demonstration purposes.

Traveling around the country with the dog has resulted in a number of interesting and sometimes humorous experiences. One such true incident occurred recently in Austin.

The car is prominently marked as belonging to the "leader dog program designed to assist the blind." The trainer was wearing dark glasses and the dog was sitting up straight next to the driver when the vehicle entered the hotel parking garage.

The parking attendant took notice of the car and its marking and watched carefully as the vehicle pulled through and settled into a parking space.

The man with dark glasses exited the car with the dog on a leash. As they passed the curious parking lot attendant, the attendant seriously looked down at the dog and asked, "Did you have any trouble finding a parking space?"

In another city, the trainer and two blind men, along with their dogs, were searching for a particular TV station. Again, all three were wearing dark shades.

After several unsuccessful minutes of searching for the TV studio, the trainer pulled his car into a service station and asked for directions. He had driven within sight of the station, but had failed to see it.

"See that building right over there? Oh my," said the embarrassed attendant, "You can't see that can you?"

Oil spill threatens Rhode Island coast

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Crews worked Saturday to contain 1 million gallons of heating oil that spilled from a tanker off the Rhode Island coast, but oil began washing ashore as White House officials arrived.

A Providence-bound tanker World Prodigy, carrying 7.6 million gallons of heating oil, struck a rock at Brenton Reef in Rhode Island Sound about 4:30 p.m. Friday.

The spill occurred one mile south of Newport and by early today it was five miles long. Some oil was drifting ashore, but no harm to wildlife was immediately reported.

Friday's accident came three months after nearly 11 million gallons of heavy crude oil gushed into Alaskan waters from the tanker Exxon Valdez, causing the nation's worst oil spill.

The White House, criticized for its response to the Alaskan spill, reacted swiftly to the Rhode Island accident. President Bush dispatched Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan and William Reilly, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, to the scene.

"It's a big spill and in a very important place," Reilly said at a news conference about 2 a.m. after federal officials met with Gov. Edward DiPrete. "Narragansett Bay is one of the crown jewels of the country's ocean resources."

Richard Dreedan, a Bush assistant at the scene, said the president has determined to "do everything possible to respond to this situation," adding, "We've obviously learned something from that situation" in Alaska.

John Civic, who lives near Narragansett Bay, witnessed the accident.

"I'm looking and this guy was barreling along and boom; he just stopped dead in the water. He was moving pretty good, faster than most," he said.

Cleanup crews strung booms around the slick and later replaced them with booms with deeper skirts to pool the oil, said Vice Adm. Clyde T. Lusk Jr. of the Coast Guard. He said a team from Mobile, Ala., and special skimmer ships were brought in to combat the spill.

Officials said the magnitude was far less than the Valdez disaster in March. The amount was less, and No. 2 heating oil is lighter and easier to recover than the crude oil that poured into Prince William Sound.

"There still will be a mess on the beach, it still will have to be sucked up with absorbent pads, but at least it's not like Valdez, where you have to sandblast it, steam it off the rocks," said Stephen Morin, emergency response chief for Rhode Island's Department of Environmental Management.

The odor of the spilled oil wafted through this tiny seaside resort, where the shoreline is dotted with mansions.

"Boy, it's enough to knock you off your feet," said Rhode Island Secretary of State Kathleen S. Connell, who lives near the shore.

The ship's master was identified as Iakovas Georgudis by Chief Warrant Officer Jerry Alfred of the Coast Guard in Newport.

DiPrete said the skipper told him no pilot was aboard the tanker at the time of the crash. He said the captain also said he made a mistake in plotting the ship's course.

The governor said the state planned legal action, although he said it was too soon to talk about criminal charges.

Letter to Editor

To the editor,
Every time in the last several years that a television news team show us footage of a hot spot in the Middle East we are treated to a few seconds of viewing our flag burning at the hands of people who cannot and will not take a responsible hold on their government. Whether it is in Tehran or Beirut, it is enough to incense Americans watching.

Now we are being told by the Supreme Court, the watchdog of the Constitution, that it is really okay if we, as Americans, desecrate the banner that has stood as our symbol since the war for our independence.

I suppose if these justices were to encounter a radical group burning the flag in front of the Supreme Court building in Washington they would simply pat themselves on their individual backs for making this travesty possible.

What would our founding fathers think of the decision by five men with no backbone? or the men that fell in the War of 1812? or the Civil War? or any other international entanglement in which we've become involved?

I wonder how much longer until we begin seeing scenes here in the U.S. like the ones we see from Iran and North Korea.

I am ashamed!

Texas Batfans emerge for the opening of the movie

By The Associated Press

Movie-goers went batty waiting for the start of the Caped Crusader's new flick — some "Batman" patrons dressed as their favorite crime fighter and others chanted and cursed movie delays.

Police in Beaumont quickly quelled a disturbance at Gateway Cinema, where about 600 people waited to see "Batman" on Friday. The scheduled 10 p.m. showing was delayed about 30 minutes, prompting the patriot.

The 630-seat theater sold out the Friday night 10 p.m. showing but had to delay that show because the 400 ticketholders for the 7:30 p.m. show were still leaving the theater at 10:15 p.m.

"We asked them to move back (in the lobby), but they didn't want to, I guess," said theater manager Dorothy Roberts.

"Then they started chanting 'Call the cops' and shouting profanities. Now I just found out that someone went in the restroom and tore off the toilet paper dispensers."

Some tore display T-shirts off the walls, Ms. Roberts said.

A Beaumont police department spokesman said there were no arrests.

The theater experienced no problems Thursday night during a local premiere of the movie, she added.

The Beaumont incident followed a disturbance Thursday night at a special showing of "Batman" in Houston.

Angry ticketholders who had been left standing outside the movie theater surrounded a radio station's promotional van and rocked the vehicle and shouted obscenities, authorities said.

A spokeswoman for KLOL-FM said the skirmish began after the station inadvertently passed out too many free tickets to the screening, forcing the theater to close its doors to an overflow crowd.

"It was a pretty ticklish situation for a while," police Sgt. J.C. Mosier said Friday. The crowd dispersed when two patrol cars arrived at Houston's Woodlake Cinema, Mosier said.

"I understand it was a semi-riot, and apparently a bunch of people surrounded the KLOL van and started to rock it as if they were trying to turn it over," Mosier said.

Station spokeswoman Sig Izbrand confirmed police accounts, but described the conflict as "relatively benign."

Merchants complain about concerts' effect

DALLAS (AP) — Tenants in a downtown Dallas warehouse marketplace say free concerts designed to attract shoppers have become so successful that "punk" music fans are driving away families with money to spend.

About 60 tenants of the West End Marketplace met with management several days ago to express concerns about crowd problems associated with the popular Monday night concerts that usually feature rock headliners.

The Marketplace is a hodgepodge of small businesses, including several clothing stores, curio shops, a handful of booming nightclubs, a holography store and an arcade. It serves as the anchor for a downtown revival in Dallas' west end and is becoming the night focal point for residents and tourists alike.

"There was a lot of talk (at the meeting) of the marketplace becoming a hangout for kids," said Jana Hicks, owner of the Hot Potato eatery. "That's why some people feel business is down."

Mrs. Hicks said at least five of those who operate shops in the marketplace complained about what she called "punk" teens.

"They're driving away some families that would like to be here," she said.

Jim York, the general manager of Wild Bill's Dallas Western Store, said the Monday night concerts have become too popular in the eyes of some merchants.

Unusual happenings haunt Shakespeare play

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — There was the explosion. And the fire, the theft, the rain, the injury, the sound and light board failure and — ahem — the torn pants.

All that, and the Shakespeare in the Park production of Macbeth set caught fire during Tuesday's performance, he's taking no chances.

Producing director Michael Muller is not by nature a superstitious man. But after the Macbeth set caught fire during Tuesday's performance, he's taking no chances.

Before Saturday night's performance of Macbeth, he was planning to place four crystals on the stage in a manner recommended by a local witchcraft expert.

"The idea is to set up a shield of psychic energy," Muller told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "We were told to soak the crystals in salt water for 72 hours, which we have done. I hope it works."

According to legend, the curse stems from the witches' "double double" scene, in which they prophesy Scottish nobleman Macbeth's rise to the throne while chanting over a gurgling cauldron: Eye of newt, and toe of frog, Wool of bat, and tongue of dog Bruce R. Coleman, a Shakespeare in the Park company member, said it is rumored that Shakespeare borrowed some of his witches' words from ancient runes, and they have ill fortune associated with them.

"Starting with that first performance up to the present day, there has been a streak of bad luck associated with this particular play," Coleman said.

The bad luck linked to the Fort Worth production started in mid-May, when most of Shakespeare in the Park's sound equipment was stolen from a warehouse.

Then a cast member's eye was cut, causing her to miss the first rehearsal. Two more production meetings were canceled due to bad weather.

Then two people's family members died on the day of production meetings. And, during the final dress rehearsal, a tape machine blew up.

Next were the torrential rains that flooded North Texas in early June, washing out several rehearsals and delaying the opening of the Shakespeare in the Park season by a night.

Later, a sound board began to smoke, then expired during a performance. A lighting board stopped mysteriously just prior to another.

"All of this equipment had been used before with no problems," Muller said, adding that there have been no such problems associated with Shakespeare in the Park's other play, Much Ado About Nothing.

The most serious incident occurred Tuesday during the opening scene of Macbeth. A fake bramble bush, from which smoke was supposed to emerge, caught fire. The show was halted for 10 minutes, and a technician was hospitalized overnight.

"In England, actors take the Macbeth curse very seriously, while Americans tend to take it lightly," Muller said. "We're not taking any chances. We're not saying the word backstage."

The "word" is the name of the play. One of the oldest traditions in theater is that it is considered bad luck to speak the name of the play backstage.

Coleman is a reformed scoffer. After laughing at the curse, then experiencing it, he did some research and learned that the first mishap associated with the play occurred the very first opening night in 1606 and involved the actor playing Lady Macbeth.

"A young man played the role, because back then women weren't allowed on the stage," Coleman said. "After the opening night he went home with a stomach ache and died in his sleep. Shakespeare had to take on the role himself."

Coleman cited the time that Laurence Olivier, seated on a bench backstage during a performance of Macbeth, heard his cue and rose to go on stage.

"At that point, a huge stage weight came crashing down and completely obliterated the bench where he had been sitting," Coleman said.

"Another time, when Olivier was doing the big climactic sword fight between Macbeth and Macduff, the other actor's sword shattered. The tip went flying into the audience and passed right through an empty seat in the first row. It was one of the few empty seats in the house."

Coleman said he hasn't completely made up his mind about the superstition, but he's apparently leaning toward acceptance. When interviewed about the production, Coleman refers to the work only as "this play" or "the Scottish play."

"I just don't ever say it," he said. "I'm not going to ask for trouble."

One more thing: Some of the information in this article was obtained during a tape-recorded telephone interview. As the reporter squatted to plug in the tape machine before reviewing the tape, his trousers ripped from stem to stern.

It was the same electrical outlet the reporter always uses and, so far as can be recalled, his customary manner of squatting. The only difference is that the tape in the machine had multiple references to Macbeth.

Ooops. Better make that the Scottish play.

The first annual celebration of Navy Day took place in 1922.

Senate passes child care bill; House next

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate passage of an unprecedented child-care package sends the debate to the House, where Republicans and the Bush administration promise to fight anew for a plan without the billion-dollar subsidies being pushed by Democrats.

"We've made a significant step toward providing affordable, safe care for American children and equal economic opportunity for American women," Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said Friday just before the measure passed on a voice vote.

With $1.75 billion in direct subsidies for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 and more than $2 billion a year in tax credits, the Senate package represents the greatest government effort ever to address child-care needs of working parents and its first major effort since an emergency plan adopted during World War II.

Action on child care is expected to accelerate in the House next week, and Republicans vowed to fight for legislation far different from the Senate's plan.

"This is just a first step and a very short step," said Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas. "I'm going to encourage the administration not to view what happened in the Senate as final."

Miners union welcomes new plea for negotiations

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The United Mine Workers president accepted an invitation from the governor Friday to resume negotiations in the 12th week of a coal strike that has produced a violent 10-state sympathy walkout.

Gov. Gaston Caperton issued his invitation to the UMW and Pittston Coal Group Inc. in a speech to the National Coal Association's annual meeting at White Sulphur Springs, where Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan quickly endorsed it.

But the industry leaders faulted Caperton's request that legal action against the union be dropped and that no other coal companies agree to fulfill Pittston's contracts. The UMW has claimed Pittston made such arrangements, which Pittston has denied.

"Come to my office on Monday, stay in my home, the governor's mansion, and ... engage in continuous negotiations of differences until a settlement is reached," Caperton said. He said the strike could cost West Virginia $20 million a month.

Lujan said it's not essential that Caperton's conditions be met, only that the two sides begin talking again.

UMW President Richard Trumka issued a statement welcoming Caperton's offer, while Pittston did not immediately respond.

About 1,900 UMW workers in Virginia and West Virginia went on strike against Pittston on April 5 when the company imposed a contract after 14 months of fruitless negotiations. It requires overtime and Sunday work and cuts medical benefits to retirees.

Mine operators at the conference had a mixed reaction to four conditions Caperton attached to the negotiations. They praised him for calling on both sides to negotiate in good faith and on the UMW to end wildcat strikes, which the union has denied orchestrating. After a June 11 rally at the West Virginia Capitol, which Caperton attended, wildcat strikes began spreading through coal country, idling 44,000 workers in 10 states.

Owners plan to buy ship

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — The owners of the Pride of Mississippi say they plan to buy a 465-foot cruise ship, allowing them to operate out of Galveston, Texas, as well as Gulfport.

J.R. Carter, executive vice president of Pride Cruise Lines, and W.S. Redd made the announcement at a Friday afternoon news conference on the ship.

Redd said they could close on the deal within two weeks. They would neither identify the 1,200-passenger ship nor say where it is based.

Carter and Redd also said they haven't decided whether to base the new ship in Galveston or in Gulfport. They said they expect to begin operating out of Galveston in late September or early October.

Carter said that whichever ship stays in Gulfport will be named the Pride of Mississippi. The Galveston ship will be called the Pride of Texas.

"Pride Cruise Lines is based in Gulfport, and Pride Cruise Lines will stay here," Carter said.

Dallas area residents oppose new changes for cheerleaders

DALLAS (AP) — If new Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones really intends to change the Cowboys Cheerleaders uniforms, Texans say they are squarely opposed to his move.

More than 93 percent of those responding to a Dallas Times Herald survey say Jones has no business messing with the cheerleaders uniforms or allowing fraternization between the women and Cowboys players.

The newspaper conducted the poll after more than a third of the Cowboys Cheerleaders walked off the squad on Friday, saying Jones was threatening their wholesome image with tighter-fitting costumes and looser rules that would allow them to drink in uniform.

Jones called the 37 cheerleaders "the pick of the litter" and said at a news conference he wouldn't change their rules.

But he did concede that a change was being considered in the cheerleaders' familiar uniforms of white hot pants, go-go boots, blue shirts tied at the midriff and fringed vests.

Several cheerleaders said they had learned they might be required to wear Spandex cycling shorts and halter tops.

"I like the traditional way that we have looked. That is not to say that there might not be changes," Jones said. He added: "People don't wear their hair the same way in '89 as they did in '69. People don't wear the same boots. People don't have the same feeling about what is appealing or what is exciting to our fans."

Cheerleader director Debbie Bond resigned and 14 veterans said they would leave with her. The 23 rookie members have until Monday to decide whether to stay.

In response to the question "Should Jerry Jones change the cheerleaders' uniforms and make them fraternize with the team?" only 208 callers sided with the Cowboys owner. There were 2,808 who called in the unscientific survey to say he should leave America's most familiar sideline attraction alone.

"As far as the Cowboys Cheerleaders are concerned, they are the best in the United States and the rest are some of the cheapest," said Lee Daniels, 65, of Dallas. "I hope they keep the uniforms and morals up, and keep it just like it's been for years."

Cornell Hill, 37 of Dallas, was one who took exception to the Cowboys Cheerleaders' current look.

"The uniforms look like a private school, or something," he said.

Jones insisted that the furor is a misunderstanding and said he only had said that violations of the cheerleading squad policies that prohibit drinking in uniform and fraternizing with players would no longer result in automatic expulsion.

"Let's count on the judgment of these wonderful people," said the Arkansas oilman, who bought the team earlier this year. "Let's not depend on rules."

Several Cowboys Cheerleaders said conditions had become too lax since Jones bought the team in February, firing longtime coach Tom Landry the same day. Under former owner H.R. "Bum" Bright, squad members were not allowed to drink or even be photographed with someone holding a drink while in uniform.

Cheerleader Kelli McGonagill, 24, said that in March, Jones "came into our rehearsals with his buddies from Arkansas with beer, and I don't think that shows much respect."

Suzanne Mitchell, who directed the squad before leaving to work for former Cowboys president Tex Schramm last month, recalled the incident. "I said, 'Put the beer down. There's no alcohol allowed around cheerleaders ever.'"

Mitchell told the Times Herald that Jones complied.

Several Cowboys Cheerleaders seemed to be most concerned about the loosening of the fraternization rule. Asked if an incident had occurred and had gone unpunished, two of them simply replied, "No comment."

Officers' escort service said to fight prostitution

HOUSTON (AP) — Vice officers working undercover opened their own escort service and arrested more than 30 men on charges of trying to hire a prostitute, police said Friday.

The investigation, nicknamed "Operation Heartthrob," began about two weeks ago when Houston police officers took over two telephone numbers abandoned by a true escort service and then call-forwarded them to the vice division, Lt. Larry Smith said.

"We set up our own escort service," he said, adding it was the first such operation implemented by the Houston Police Department.

The sting resulted in the arrests of 35 men on charges of solicitation of prostitution, he said. In addition, three women were arrested for allegedly applying for jobs with the escort service.

Female police officers using such names as Misty, Heather and Amber responded to the telephone requests for escorts, most of which came from out-of-town businessmen staying at local hotels, Smith said.

EPA may bend 99th longitude on map

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency says it's willing to bend the 99th longitude, at least on its map of Texas, so that drivers won't have to pay more for their gas if they buy it an inch west of the line.

Under now government standards, gas sold at filling stations west of a line that bisects Texas would have to meet stricter volatility standards than gas sold east of the line after June 30.

Because most of the state's refineries are in East Texas, West Texas filling stations would have to go miles out of their way to get regulation gas, and that could run up gas prices in West Texas, state officials warned.

Running from the Wilbarger-Wichita county line on the Oklahoma border south to Falcon Dam in Zapata County, the line split the city of Brownwood.

Sen. Phil Gramm said the line was creating "absurd situations" in Texas and complained, along with several other congressmen, to the EPA.

The agency crafted the guidelines, designed to reduce smog by cutting down on the fumes that escape at the gas pump, along lines recommended by the automobile and oil industries, officials said. Because West Texas is hotter than East Texas, the agency reasoned, stricter volatility standards were needed on the west side of the 99th longitude.

"We didn't think we would have a problem because we did what the industry wanted," said Richard Wilson, director of the EPA's office of mobile sources.

Countered six Texas congressmen in a letter to EPA Administrator William K. Reilly: "This division will result in both increased costs for gasoline sold west of the line and potential shortages during the summer months.

"Additionally, the portion of Texas located west of the 99th meridian does not suffer from the clean air problems that the regulation attempts to address," said the letter signed by Reps. Albert Rustamante, Lamar Smith, Marvin Leath, Larry Combest, Kika de la Garza, and Ron Coleman.

On Friday, Wilson said the agency had decided to re-examine its regulations after learning that "a number of little problems were cropping up."

"We're looking at it and if we're convinced we ought to change it we will," Wilson said.

He said EPA would look at whether it should move the line or put Texas into a single category.

Gramm, a Republican who met recently with Wilson and other EPA officials, said the EPA is considering granting exceptions to the 99th longitude line "where economics or geography dictate an exception makes sense."

Gramm also requested the EPA put the state into a single volatility standard.

"They have indicated to me they will consider such proposals," Gramm said Friday. "It is good news that we now have a commitment from the EPA to conduct a review, including better geographic or economic changes in the dividing line where there is a clear case of hardship."

"In the case of Brownwood, it's crazy to have the city divided," Gramm said. "I'm delighted the EPA is willing to bring reason and responsibility into its decision making process. I'm convinced there will be cities and counties in Texas that can make a strong case that the dividing line should be altered."

One killed, six injured in drive-in shooting in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Late night drive-by shootings that may have stemmed from a romantic dispute over a 13-year-old girl ended with one man dead, two critically injured and four others wounded.

Police say a jealous youth angry at his former girlfriend may have fired the gunshots at a crowd of people near an apartment complex parking lot. All of the victims were bystanders, police said.

The gunfire sent people in the parking lot and socializing in the breezeways of the three-story building fleeing for cover behind parked cars and bushes, witnesses said. Police were looking for two girls early Saturday. They believe one of the girls may be at the center of the dispute.

The dead man was identified by his wife as Juan Mendoza, 38, a construction worker who was visiting friends at El Cielo apartments, where the shootings occurred. His wife, Margarita Mendoza, said they lived several blocks away.

A man shot in the chest was in surgery at Baylor Medical Center in critical condition. He went in shortly after midnight and was still in the operating room at 5:30 a.m., an emergency room spokeswoman said.

A second man with a chest wound was in guarded condition at the hospital. Four others were in fair to serious condition at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

A 21-year-old man shot in the leg was listed as fair and a 32-year-old shot in the chest also was in fair condition, said hospital spokeswoman Esther Bauer. A 23-year-old man shot in the buttocks and arm was in serious condition. A 25-year-old man shot in the hip and buttocks was in serious condition and scheduled for surgery, she said.

Someone reported the shooting to police at 11:15 p.m. Paramedics worked for nearly half an hour stabilizing the victims and transporting them to hospitals.

Witnesses gave varying accounts of what happened, but most said the gunman was a passenger in a white car who began shooting when he saw the crowd, as many as six times.

"I heard five or six shots, and I just hit the ground," said one witness who asked not to be named. "When I got back up I saw all these people screaming."

Witnesses said two girls who were in the crowd began running as the car approached. Police were investigating reports that one of the girls may have been the center of the dispute.

The shotgun blasts were fired into a crowd of people gathered around a Ford LTD parked near the apartment complex parking lot. The car was peppered with holes and the driver's window and left side tires were blown out.

Mendoza was lying on the ground near the passenger side of the car when police arrived. Paramedics found the six other victims spread around the car in the parking lot.

Dolly Parton talks about 'middle-of-road' direction

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Her latest release may be her first country album in a dozen years, but Dolly Parton said "I never sold out," when asked about the middle-of-the-road direction her career has taken.

"I think God gave me a talent (and) the kind of personality that can fit in all kinds of places, and I think it's up to me to develop that and make the most of it," the singer said in a recent interview.

"I'm the kind of person who would rather rock in my rocking chair when I'm old and regret a few things that I did than to sit there and regret that I never tried."

The new album features a twangy single called "Why'd you come in Here, Lookin' Like That."

Parton won the Country Music Association award as entertainer of the year, and twice won female vocalist of the year prior to 1976 before starring in such movies as "9 to 5" and "Rhinstone" and doing television variety shows.

Red Cross will stop housing C. Americans in South Texas

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — American Red Cross officials say because the flood of Central American asylum-seekers is easing in South Texas, the relief agency at the end of July will not renew its government contract to operate refugee shelters here.

A document soliciting other service agencies to take over the job of running the Red Cross' two shelters for Central Americans will appear Monday in the Federal Register, said Daryl Borquist, spokesman for the Community Relations Service of the U.S. Department of Justice.

David Townsend, director of midwestern operations for the American Red Cross, said the agency sought to end its involvement because the crisis stage is over.

"We believe there are other agencies or groups that can do what we're doing," Townsend told The Brownsville Herald.

The Community Relations Service awarded the contract to the Red Cross in February.

Red Cross officials signed the contract after having been involved in an emergency operation to shelter Central Americans who were being removed from makeshift homes and from a field outside Casa Oscar Romero, a shelter run by the Catholic Diocese of Brownsville.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service on Feb. 20 announced a new policy of no longer granting travel permission to asylum-seekers who made it to the INS' Harlingen office without being detected by the Border Patrol. The Red Cross then agreed to shelter families that had been detained.

At the Red Cross program's peak, there were more than 1,000 Central American detainees packed into a former U.S. Department of Agriculture laboratory complex near the main international bridge in Brownsville.

Thursday night, 286 people were housed at the Brownsville shelter, while another 220 stayed at a shelter in San Benito, 20 miles to the north.

Townsend said the Red Cross has spent between $200,000 and $250,000 monthly to run the two shelters.

The Community Relations Service also funds three shelters in South Texas for Central American juveniles traveling unaccompanied by their parents or guardians.

INS officials say the new get-tough policies have discouraged people from venturing north. Under the new procedures, asylum requests usually are decided in a day. Those refused are immediately detained and marked for deportation.

Immigration officials say most Central Americans come here for economic reasons and are not fleeing persecution, which is a requirement for obtaining political refugee status.

The predominantly Central American population at the INS' detention camp at Bayview for adults unaccompanied by families dropped from a high of about 2,500 in February to about 1,300 this week.

The number showing up to apply for political asylum in southern Texas has plunged from a high of more than 500 a day to fewer than 10.

Bomber critics shocked by cost figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders say newly declassified Pentagon figures on the cost of the B-2 stealth bomber bolster their argument against spending for the costly program.

"The Department of Defense has produced a B-2 program that won't fly financially," Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said Friday after the estimates were released.

"Members of Congress are balking at spending $41 billion this year for SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative)," he said.

"It is not realistic to think we can spend twice as much per year on a plane."

According to the Pentagon, the radar-evading plane will cost about $24 billion over a three-year peak spending period. The estimated cost for the bomber in fiscal 1990 is $4.7 billion, including $2 billion in research, development, testing and evaluation and $2.7 billion in production.

Estimated costs in fiscal 1991 total $5.3 billion with costs in peak years of fiscal 1992 at $7.8 billion, fiscal 1993 at $8.4 billion and fiscal 1994 at $7.7 billion.

Recent estimates have shown the aircraft will cost between $500 million and $650 million a copy. The figures released Friday showed the Pentagon has invested about $22.4 billion in the program and total cost to complete the project would be about $70 billion.

The Defense Department plans to purchase 132 of the planes, including three in fiscal 1990, five in fiscal 1991, 10 in fiscal 1992, 21 in fiscal 1993 and 24 in fiscal 1994.

Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., a member of the House panel who had called for the Pentagon to publicly release the cost figures

Running back denies report

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Running back Ickey Woods denied reports that he was involved in the cocaine relapse of Cincinnati Bengals teammate Stanley Wilson.

"I was not with him. I was with three other guys watching the Super Bowl special," Woods said Thursday at a juvenile home during a streetwise talk against drugs. "He's trying to insinuate that we were selling. It's put a lot of endorsements on hold. People don't know if I was with him."

Woods, who became an instant star last season with his "Ickey Shuffle" after he scored touchdowns, took Wilson's place as a Bengal starter last season before Wilson was kicked out of the National Football League for his drug relapse.

Woods said Wilson named him and other players in a yet-unpublished Penthouse magazine interview as a way of making money.

"He's got the top players on the team listed," Woods said. "Nothing I can do — just keep coming out and clearing my name."

Woods sidestepped a question from one of the youths whether he had ever sold drugs as a youth in Fresno, his hometown.

"I'm not going to incriminate myself and say I did or not," Woods said. "I was once in you guys' shoes."

Drugs are "not the way for any of you guys," Woods said. "I know where you come from. I grew up in a neighborhood where you had to be tough."

on the aircraft, said publication of the figures means will make Congress take an even closer look.

"I was shocked at the amount of money," Bennett said. "This early on we will look at it with more care and more scrutiny."

The full House Armed Services Committee meets Tuesday and will take up the 1990 National Defense Authorization Act.

Opposition to the aircraft has grown in Congress with lawmakers arguing that production should be suspended because the bomber has yet to undergo flight testing.

In an appeal to Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, a former astronaut and test pilot, said pursuing production of the bomber violates the rule "fly before buy."

"The bomber program has been 'buy it, and then we'll see how it flies,'" Glenn said in a letter to Cheney.

The defense secretary, at a hearing Thursday, indicated initial tests of the aircraft would be conducted by the end of the summer. In his fiscal 1990 budget, Cheney had proposed pushing back production of the B-2 a year to 1993.

In response to Glenn's criticism, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said this week that Cheney "thinks the B-2's long-range capabilities and its stealth capacities make it an important strategic asset to the United States."

"So, he plans to continue right on with that and he reaffirmed his strong support for the B-2 program," Williams said.

Midwestern states residents enjoy western art museum

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A 12-foot bronze sculpture of a Blackfoot Indian chief with outstretched arms welcomes visitors to the Eiteljorg Museum of American Indian and Western Art. He carries no weapon, only a feather in his right hand.

Harrison Eiteljorg would not have it any other way.

"In this museum you will not see one battle scene," said Eiteljorg, whose voluminous private collection becomes public when the museum opens today.

"The Indians had a beautiful art or religion, whatever you want to call it. They worshiped the sun, the rain, their crops and fields. They never killed except for their own needs. I wanted the museum to show that. It has a romantic feeling about the western Indians and their life."

The museum's collection of primarily 20th century paintings and bronzes chronicles the westward movement of American settlers and the Indians' way of life.

Eiteljorg's collection is among the best displays of Southwestern art in the nation, said Dean Krakel, former director of the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City.

"He bought early and he bought well, before the boom in prices," he said.

The best of the Eiteljorg collection centers on the Taos Ten, a colony of artists founded by Joseph Henry Sharp that settled in Taos, N.M.

From Sharp's colorful oil "Taos Indians" to Victor Higgins' "The Blue Shawl," each is a memento of Eiteljorg's many visits to Taos and the Southwest.

The collection also includes works by more well-known Western artists such as Charles M. Russell, Frederic S. Remington and Georgia O'Keeffe.

Other artists featured in the museum are Thomas Moran, whose watercolors were used to lobby Congress to create Yellowstone National Park, and Alfred Jacob Miller, the earliest known artist to paint the American fur traders during their heyday.

Eiteljorg, who studied art at Indiana University and whose German-born mother was an artist, married the daughter of a southern Indiana coal company owner and later took over the business.

The fortune he amassed in coal and real estate allowed him and his second wife, Sonja, to acquire their vast art holdings. It includes an impressive collection of African art and costumes, which will go on permanent display at the Indianapolis Museum of Art in 1990.

His Western art, however, was too significant to place within another museum's walls.

City and state leaders invited Eiteljorg four years ago to build a museum on the outskirts of White River State Park just west of downtown Indianapolis. A $12.5 million grant from Lilly Endowment and $1.5 million from Eiteljorg financed its development and construction.

The 25,000 square feet of gallery space house a rotating exhibit of Eiteljorg's 240 Western paintings, 149 bronzes and 740 Indian artifacts, mostly from the Southwest, Plains and the Northwest Coast Indian cultures.

Michael Duty, the museum's executive director, said his goals include developing the museum into a repository and research facility for Woodlands Indians, who once roamed Indiana and surrounding states.

Younger Bush not sure if he will make gubernatorial bid

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — George W. Bush, owner of the Texas Rangers, is as undecided about his political future as he is what to do with Arlington Stadium.

The President's eldest son told members of the Texas Press Association on Friday he has not decided whether he will make a gubernatorial bid for the 1990 election nor whether he will build a new stadium for the American League franchise he bought into earlier this year.

Bush said his mother, first lady Barbara Bush, already has been quoted as saying her son should not run for governor.

But Bush said, "I have been disregarding her advice since I was a teen-ager."

Bush said he would prefer that a Republican follow Gov. Bill Clements into the governor's mansion when his term expires in 1990. But having spent the past two years campaigning full-time for his father, George H.W. Bush, the younger Bush said he has not decided if he wants to compete with the likes of his former Midland oil colleague, Clayton Williams.

Williams, owner of Claydessa Communications and a longtime West Texas oil man, announced his candidacy Wednesday. Clements has said he will not seek another term.

As for Bush, "The ultimate answer will be what's best for my wife and my kids — period. I don't care what my Momma says."

Meanwhile, he said, he has yet to decide what to do about Arlington Stadium, where more than 16,300 of its 43,508 seats sell for general admission prices.

"We are not able to effectively compete in baseball with a third of our stadium at $4 a seat," Bush said. "We have to revamp our stadium or we have to build a new stadium. That's kind of exciting. We have a chance to put one of the most modern facilities ... ever put into an edifice somewhere in the Metroplex."

"But if we do decide to have a new stadium, that stadium will be built and located with our fans in mind because when our fans win, we all win," Bush said.

Bush, who moved to the Dallas-Fort Worth area after his father's campaign, said he is encouraged in both his political and team pursuits by an economic turnaround in Texas.

"There is no place better for economic investment than in the state of Texas," Bush told TPA members attending the 110th Summer Convention. "And the Texas Rangers is an investment."

"This is not a toy — not a rich man's game," Bush said. "It's kind of like the old cowboy that's all hat and no cattle; I'm all name and no money."

Bush said he plans to make the Rangers economically viable and a good entertainment choice for fans by having "cost control flexibility," such as utilizing more minor league players and making judicious trades.

"If we have a good team, the fans will come," Bush said.

He also said he wants the team to be a role model for the community — not only as a team, but also individually.

"We have a responsibility in our sport to keep our game as clean and wholesome as it can be," Bush said. When Barbara Bush was invited to throw out the ceremonial first pitch at a recent game, for instance, the team provided seats for children involved in the Reading Is Fundamental program — his mother's pet literacy program.

"We will continue to use the forum of baseball and our stadium for worthy causes in our community," Bush said. "And we constantly remind our players as role models to remain clean and drug-free. We in the Texas Rangers will not tolerate drug abuse amongst our players."

Likewise in the stadium, Bush pointed out the team officials have instituted "alcohol-free zones" for families and other fans who do not want to sit with drinkers.

"This is a family sport and we in the Texas Rangers will do everything we can to make this an acceptable place to bring families," Bush said.

The unemployment rate for Latin America in 1987 was 11.2 percent, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. The figures ranged from 3.7 percent in Brazil and 4.1 percent in Mexico, to 14 percent in Panama and 21.5 percent in Bolivia.

Western point guard signs

Keith Hawkins, assists leader in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference this past season, has signed with Hawaii Pacific College.

"I'm scared about going that far away, but I'm excited about it, too," admitted Hawkins, a 6-0 guard who hails from Morton.

Hawkins played in about 30 games last season. His exact numbers were not available from the Western Texas College athletic department this week but it was known that Hawkins had 199 assists in 27 games to lead the WJAC. The 199 assists through 27 games also tied the record of assists in a season set by former Juco All-American Paul Pressey in 1979-80. Hawkins also led the team in steals with 93 this season.

He is expected to play point-guard for Coach Tony Sulliva-

Sea Warriors, which were the District 21 NAIA champions in 1986-87 and 87-88.

The Warriors are not slated to play in Texas for the 1989-90 season but do have a schedule which includes Georgetown, Washington State, Brigham Young University and the University of Hawaii.

Hawkins is a business and physical education major.

Texas blanks Indians

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Mike Jeffcoat, a 29-year-old journeyman left-hander, knows he may be running out of chances to put together a significant major league career.

Friday night Jeffcoat took another step toward solidifying his place on the Texas Rangers pitching staff, throwing his second consecutive home shutout, a four-hitter for a 4-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

"I've been a guy who's had to battle," Jeffcoat said. "When I throw the ball the mitt doesn't pop real loud. Guys who don't throw hard, people say they don't have major league stuff."

Jeffcoat, 3-1, struck out three and walked two in throwing his second complete game of the season. Jeffcoat was without a shutout in five big-league seasons before blanking the California Angels on June 12.

Jeffcoat had additional incentive against the Indians, who traded him to the San Francisco Giants in 1985. At the time of the trade, Jeffcoat had a 2.79 ERA in nine appearances.

"It's an organization I felt I pitched well for," Jeffcoat said.

"They thought I was expendable. That definitely gave me more incentive tonight."

Jeffcoat's assortment of off-speed pitches had the Indians off-stride. Cleveland had 12 outs on balls hit in the air.

"He's making the best of his opportunity," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said. "He's changing speeds, throwing strikes, pitching inside. He's the kind of pitcher who can win in the American League."

Jeffcoat started slowly, allowing a leadoff double to Jerry Browne and a two-out walk. But he got Pete O'Brien to pop to third and from that point, Jeffcoat never allowed a runner past first.

He was promoted from the Rangers' Class AAA Oklahoma City farm team on May 31, replacing the injured Jamie Moyer in the Texas rotation.

Bio says Tyson hit wife

NEW YORK (AP) - Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson is quoted as saying the best punch he ever threw sent Robin Givens, his wife at the time, bouncing off the walls.

Tyson's description of the incident is contained in a new biography which portrays the fighter as a sadistic thug.

Tyson told biographer and one-time friend Jose Torres that he never hit an opponent as hard as he did Givens.

The biography, titled "Fire and Fear: The Inside Story of Mike Tyson," provides an insider's view of the volatile champion.

Excerpts of the book provided by its publisher, Warner Books, Inc., indicated Givens was not the only woman abused by Tyson.

"I like to hurt women when I make love to them. I like to hear them scream with pain, to see them bleed," Tyson says in the book, which will be excerpted in the August Playboy. Copies of the magazine will be available Monday.

The book also provides unflattering portraits of a gold-digging Givens and an anti-Semitic Don King.

Inmates recaptured

BRAZORIA, Texas (AP) — Two prison trustees escaped from the Clemens Unit early Friday morning but were recaptured about three hours later after being spotted walking along a highway, a prison spokesman said.

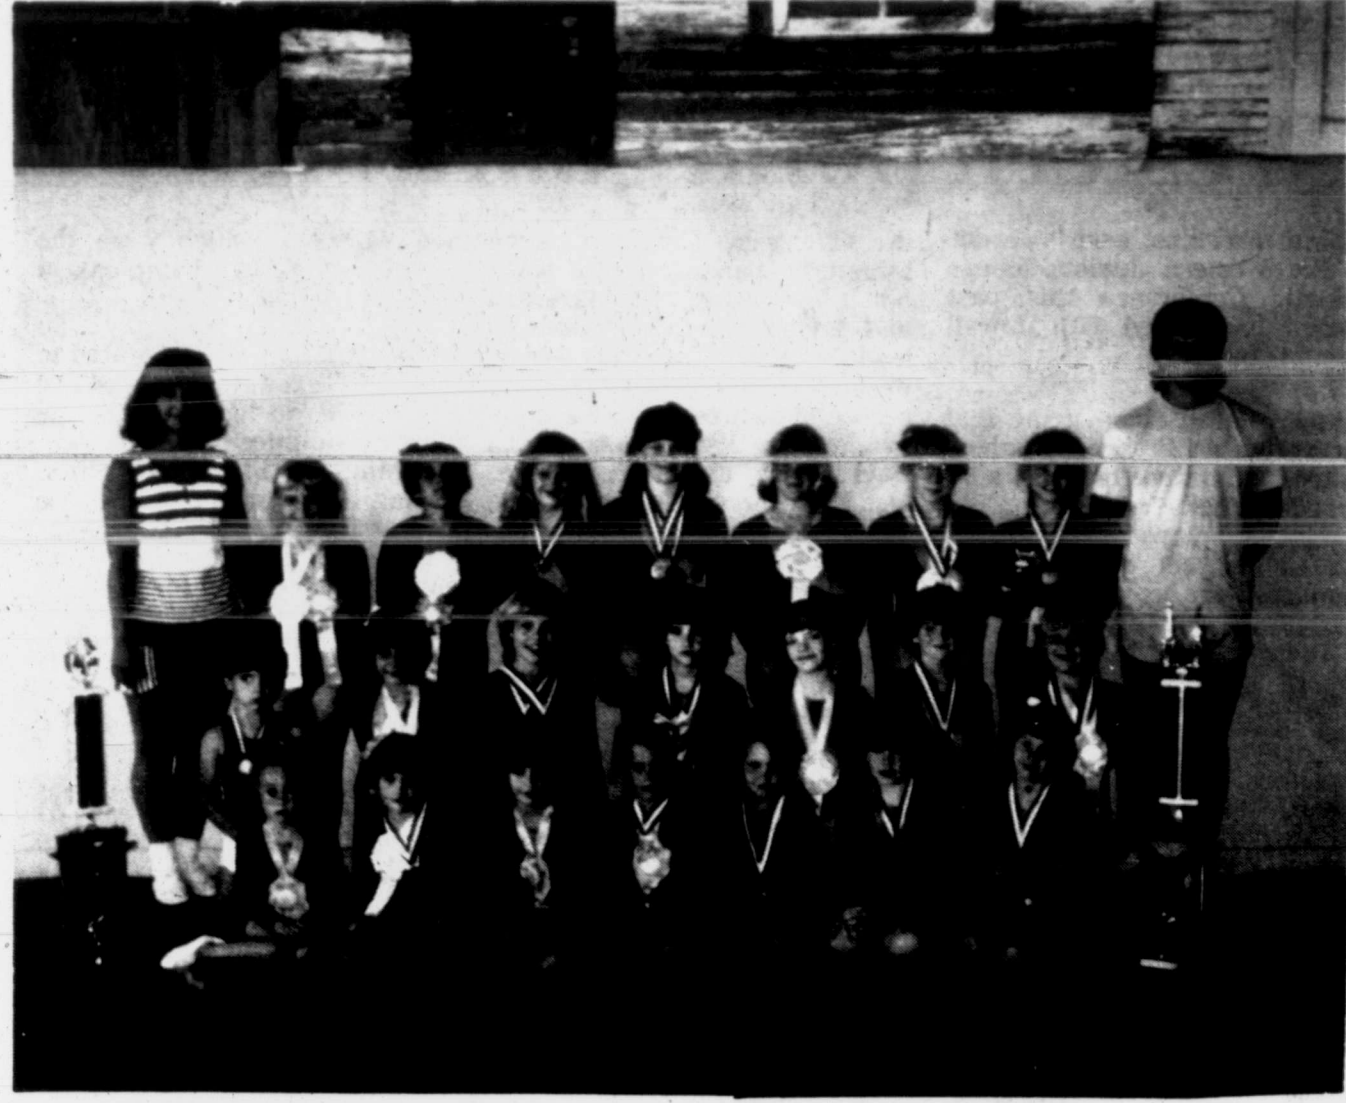

Theron Dale Humberson, 24, and Lester Dean McClain, 27, escaped from the prison unit at about 5:30 a.m. allegedly by stealing a prison employee's vehicle, said David Nunnelee, spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections.

After the vehicle got stuck in a muddy field on the prison grounds, the two inmates set out on foot. Prison officials looking for them found two pairs of pants and a shirt that apparently belonged to the inmates, Nunnelee said.

Both were recaptured about 8:30 a.m. at an intersection on State Highway 36 after an area resident spotted them and called authorities, he said. They were found wearing shorts and tennis shoes.

Humberson is serving a four-year sentence for forgery and auto theft out of Harris County, and McClain is serving 25 years for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Actress Sharon Tate and four other people were found brutally murdered in a Bel Air, Calif., mansion in 1969. Four people, including Charles Manson, were later convicted of the crime.

Tankers collide; spill oil

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An oil tanker and a barge pushing tug boat collided at the mouth of the Houston Ship Channel on Friday, spilling up to 4,000 barrels of oil near Galveston Bay, authorities said.

The vessels collided about 6:20 p.m. as a tugboat owned by Coastal Towing was heading into the mouth of the ship channel while the Panamanian-registered tanker Rachel-B was heading out into Galveston Bay, said Petty Officer Charles Jones of the U.S. Coast Guard.

Jones said the Coast Guard is supervising cleanup operations as a private contractor tries to contain the oil with booms.

"We have no idea who was at fault now," Jones said. "We'll have to wait until the reports are finished."

But Jones said the tugboat captain's quick action kept the spill from becoming much larger. He drove the leaking barge he was pushing aground after the collision, stemming the flow of oil and preventing more destruction.

"He may have saved the tugboat and other barges," Jones explained. "It was going to flip on him unless he let it out."

The tugboat captain's name was not immediately available, officials said. Jones hesitated to call the captain a hero for his action, saying he preferred to wait to see who was at fault for the collision.

Jones said the Coast Guard was monitoring the operation "and making sure they protect the environment."

The spill was minuscule in comparison with the Alaskan disaster that occurred March 24 when the Exxon Valdez rammed Bligh Reef, dumping almost 11 million gallons of heavy North Slope crude oil into Prince William Sound.

Former klansman gets life term

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A former Ku Klux Klansman was sentenced Friday to life in prison for the 1981 beating and hanging death of a black teen-ager who was abducted at random and tortured.

Circuit Judge Michael Zoghby imposed the maximum sentence on Benjamin Franklin Cox Jr. after an hourlong hearing. He called the hanging "a heinous, senseless killing," and said "the punishment should fit the crime."

Cox, 28, a truck driver from Mobile, was convicted of murder May 18 as an accomplice in the killing of Michael Donald, 19. Another Klan member was convicted of murder earlier and sentenced to death; a third pleaded guilty to federal civil rights charges and became a prosecution witness; and a fourth awaits trial.

A lawsuit stemming from Donald's death resulted in a landmark judgment that bankrupted one Klan organization, the United Klans of America. The $7 million judgment was assessed by a federal court jury in a lawsuit filed by Donald's mother, Beulah Mae Donald. She died last year.

Donald, 19, was chosen at random from a city street and slain in a KKK-revenge plot on March 21, 1981, according to testimony.

Cox was charged with providing the rope.

At Friday's hearing, defense attorneys presented 15 character witnesses, including the defendant's parents.

"I'll never believe he was involved in the death of Michael Donald," Cox's mother, Sarah Cox, said in an appeal for mercy.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is cod-liver oil good for arthritis treatment?

DEAR READER: Despite the claims of some health-food proponents, cod-liver oil has not been shown to be a particularly effective treatment for arthritis. Better treatment includes aspirin, ibuprofen and a variety of prescription drugs, such as Fel-dene, Voltaren, Naprosyn and others. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Managing Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you please give me some information about G6PD and thalassemia? I have hemolytic anemia and my doctor said these were the cause.

DEAR READER: Glucose-6-phosphate dehydrogenase (G6PD) deficiency and thalassemia are two types of inherited anemia.

G6PD deficiency is a genetic defect in the way the body manufactures hemoglobin — the red, oxygen-carrying blood pigment. It occurs primarily in blacks and in the Mediterranean races. The defect causes a peculiar brittleness of the red blood corpuscles. When they are exposed to certain compounds — such as aspirin, sulfa antibiotics or fava beans — they break open (hemolyze) and cease functioning. Therefore, when a G6PD patient takes certain medicines or eats fava beans or has an infection, the red blood cells are destroyed and anemia develops. When such patients steer clear of the anemia-producing compounds, they are otherwise healthy. There is no treatment other than avoidance of the substances that trigger hemolysis.

G6PD is an intriguing genetic abnormality. It is particularly common in New Orleans, where I trained, because of the large French-ancestry population in and around that city. Each spring, Louisiana doctors can bet on seeing several cases of G6PD anemia because fava beans, which are a seasonal dietary staple in that part of the country, initiate acute anemia in some of the rural residents who eat them.

Thalassemia, too, is a genetic defect that causes the body to manufacture an abnormal form of hemoglobin. Thalassemia can be either minor (mild) or major (severe), depending on the extent of the inherited genetic defect. Life expectancy is normal for people with thalassemia minor; they experience a chronic, low-grade anemia, with pallor, fatigue and enlarged spleens.

Thalassemia major is the cause of an untreatable, severe chronic anemia that can be quite disabling. Patients often experience profound fatigue, jaundice and leg ulcers; they have to make extensive modifications in their lifestyles (for example, careful medical supervision and no strenuous activity).

Thalassemics should not receive iron therapy or blood transfusions because they are particularly prone to iron-overload, a dangerous condition that can lead to heart and liver failure.

Both G6PD deficiency and thalassemia can be readily diagnosed by blood tests that analyze either enzyme deficiencies or the type of hemoglobin present in the red corpuscles.

To millions of Americans, looking young is better — and better means getting rid of wrinkles. Not surprisingly, the business of eliminating wrinkles has become a $3 billion bonanza for the cosmetic industry.

Some women prefer collagen injections. At $300 a pop, material derived from cowhides is injected into the deeper lines of the face, smoothing them out. Because body tissues destroy the foreign protein, the treatment lasts about a year, after which wrinkles re-appear. The rage this year is collagen injections into the upper lip; this gives a sensuous, pouty appearance much prized in urban corrals.

Of all the anti-wrinkle creams and ointments available today, however, the real gold mine is Retin-A, a born-again acne medicine distributed by Ortho Pharmaceutical. The selling of Retin-A, as described in Money magazine (April 1989), is one of the decade's great marketing triumphs. Due more to promotional hype than to product superiority, Retin-A sales jumped from about $13 million in 1985 to more than $62 million in 1988.

Extensively plugged as more than a pore-unpluggier, this derivative of viitamin A became an "anti-aging" compound almost overnight, capturing both the imagination and the pocket-books of men and women alike. In contrast to the glowing press releases, Retin-A has been shown to produce a youthful glow in only about 15 percent of users. In many patients, the cream causes such extensive skin irritation that cortisone treatment is necessary for relief.

It seems to me that people are paying too much attention to wrinkles. I, for one, want to go on record as favoring wrinkles. I am unabashedly pro-wrinkle. I think we ought to demand that Congress set aside a National Wrinkle Week. For the other 51 weeks, we should pledge to ignore wrinkles and other dermatological blemishes that accompany aging.

Do you know why advertising agencies hire 20-year-old models to promote anti-wrinkle beauty products in television ads? Older women won't do. June Leaman, a senior vice president at Estee Lauder, was recently quoted in The New York Times as saying: "I don't think we want to show someone older. Consumers say they want it, but when they see it, they don't love it."

Bull. I love it, and I think we ought to see it. (Neutrogena is doing this with some success.) We're being told that ads featuring older women using wrinkle-removers don't sell. In other words, if you want to publicize a product that smoothes the skin, you have to boost it with a model who already has smooth skin. We need a little verisimilitude here.

Instead of implying that a model in her 20s has beautiful skin because of a beauty cream, we should be allowed to make the judgment ourselves by seeing a "real woman" (advertising jargon for a non-model) who uses the product.

Of course, if this were the case, no one would buy wrinkle-removers. And this brings me back to my pro-wrinkle thesis.

Getting rid of wrinkles is a tough job. They don't go away by themselves. They are resistant to creams and gels. Collagen injections are expensive and short-lived. Surgical procedures, such as face-lifts, can cost from $7,000 to $10,000 each and usually do not produce dramatic benefits, according to Dr. Paula Moynahan, a plastic surgeon writing in The New York Times.

The advertising industry, built on youth and illusion, is struggling with the reality of an aging population made up of adults who would like to look 10 years or 15 years younger — but can't. The industry is struggling because we, the public, demand a major victory in the war against aging.

I'd like to see us surrender to the "enemy" and accept peace with honor

Singer performs at AIDS' benefits

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Folk singer Janis Ian said people must face up to the financial needs of AIDS organizations.

"I still meet a lot of people who think AIDS isn't affecting their lives," said the singer who is giving an AIDS benefit here Sunday. "They think they're not at risk. They are and they need to know that."

Ms. Ian will sing at a restaurant benefit for minimum $25 donations, following a $150-per-person reception at a cafe. Proceeds will go to four Nashville organizations working on behalf of victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Ms. Ian had a No. 1 hit in 1975 with "At Seventeen." She last recorded an album in 1981, but has recently emerged on the Nashville music scene.

in this conflict. There are more important issues than wrinkles. Skin cancer, for instance, and how we are going to deal with depletion of the ozone layer, which is going to make sun damage to our grandchildren's skins a pressing health problem in the future. Let's sing a paean to crow's-feet, lift a libation to laugh-lines and rejoice that beauty is more than a collection of sagging epithelial cells that are losing their elasticity.

Shoes eliminated from swimsuit competition

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Beauty contestants in the Miss Texas USA 1990 pageant are kicking off the high heels traditionally worn with swimsuits in an effort to look more wholesome.

Contenders in next weekend's pageant will shed their shoes and parade barefoot before judges in the swimsuit competition — but will pose on tiptoe when they reach the big Lone Star at the end of the runway.

Pageant organizers said wearing spike heels and rhinestone earrings with swimsuits doesn't make sense, despite pageant tradition.

"Un-classy ladies are the only ones I've seen in heels and swimsuits," said pageant official Richard Guy. "This is not Playboy or Penthouse."

The promoters now consider high heels an artificial aid to beauty, viewed in the same light as padded suits or adhesives used to keep swimsuits in place. Naturally beautiful women don't need them, they said.

Bolivia, after suffering the worst inflation rate in Latin America (11,000 percent in 1985), was able to bring it under control, according to the 1988 report on Economic and Social Progress in Latin America. In 1987, the country was ranked ninth best in the region, with a 14.6 percent increase in the consumer price index.

Flap stirred up over how man dresses

RICHWOOD, Texas (AP) — A pair of worn, faded overalls has caused a flap at city hall where the mayor wants at least one council member to pay more attention to his appearance.

After Councilman Andrew Jackson McKnight showed up recently at a city council workshop session in overalls, Mayor David Head issued a memo asking council members to dress properly when representing the city.

The memo mentions no names, but Head said it was directed at McKnight. His memo does not ban jeans but asks that they be clean and in good shape.

Head's memo stems from McKnight's decision to wear a faded pair of overalls to a city council workshop session in Richwood, a small town about 50 miles south of Houston.

"While I'm sure that faded overalls and T-shirts are comfortable, I feel that they have no place in the council chambers," Head wrote.

McKnight, 54, said he took the memo, folded it and flung it at Head.

"Hell will freeze over before I let anyone tell me how to dress," McKnight said, adding he now intends to wear his overalls to the July 11 council meeting.

"It's nobody's business how a person dresses," he said. "If someone wants to come down there in rags, that's his business."

McKnight said he has only worn overalls once since being elected in May, and that was because he didn't have time to change after taking care of some goats at his farm.

But Head said McKnight has shown up at City Hall wearing T-shirts with holes around the neck, and cares little about his appearance when representing the city.

McKnight lost an election to Head in 1988 but won a council post by a slim margin as a write-in candidate in May.

Financial Focus

Although there's strong justification for long-term investing, even the staunchest investors buckled under the stock market crash of October 1987 as investor confidence eroded. Despite the logic and evident rewards in long-term investing, there was still the nagging doubt, "Does it still make sense to own mutual funds?"

According to a Wall Street Journal study, during the first quarter of 1988 "money flowed out of stock funds sold by brokers." The lack of confidence appeared to be in the sales people who recommended the funds rather than the performance of the funds themselves. John Markese, research director for the American Association of Individual Investors, a Chicago-based nonprofit group, suggested the sales people just weren't available when needed.

The Wall Street Journal discovered that investors were pressing for more reliable guidance. One mutual fund group offered a worksheet to help investors set goals and received roughly 40,000 replies. Another mutual fund group received several thousand requests from concerned investors after advertising a free brochure on how to be your own portfolio manager.

The results of this study suggest that in the euphoria of a run-away bull market many investors purchased mutual funds with unrealistic expectations. Unfortunately, in many cases salespeople stressed the benefits of mutual funds without explaining the risks. When an inevitable market correction came, the salespeople who had painted this rosy picture were nowhere to be found.

Changing Times magazine ran a special report on mutual funds in February 1988 that showed how the stock market topped out Aug. 25, 1987. By December 1, the Dow Jones Industrial Average had fallen 32 percent.

How did the five basic groups of mutual funds compare to the overall market averages? The aggressive growth and sector funds lost about 32 percent as did the overall market indexes. Balanced funds, because their holders owned both stocks and bonds, fell only 17 percent. Income funds, invested in mostly bonds and few equities, suffered least with a 10 percent drop.

Keep in mind that these figures reflect the time from when the market peaked until just after the crash. This isn't a representative picture of overall long-term performance.

Since mutual funds are long-term investments, next week we'll examine how they weathered the entire year of 1987 and also what happened in 1988.

Finding out how you could make money won't cost you a cent.

I don't believe finding out about investing should take an investment itself—in time or money! That's why I want to give you a complete set of brochures that cover these important investment ideas: tax-free plans; equities; U.S. Government Securities; cash management accounts; mutual funds and IRA's. And they're absolutely free. Just drop by to pick up yours. Or call, and I'll put them in the mail. I'll even pay for the stamp.

Propaganda specialist takes over newspaper

BELJING (AP) — An army propaganda specialist has taken over as editor in chief at the official daily of the Communist Party in a reshuffling of the newspaper's management, authorities announced Saturday. The replacements at The People's Daily came as the party stepped up its propaganda campaign to defend the suppression of pro-democracy activists during a June 3-4 military operation in which hundreds, perhaps thousands, of people died.

a senior official at the Central Party School of the party Central Committee.

Both Qian and Tan resigned because of health reasons, the office said without elaborating.

The party has been increasing efforts to brand the activists as "counterrevolutionaries" and defend the recent arrests and executions.

More than 1,700 people have been arrested and 27 executed since the nationwide crackdown began almost three weeks ago.

Hundreds of journalists from all the major national dailies and broadcasting stations participated in the pro-democracy rallies that led to the crackdown. For a brief time in late May, the official press was more independent than it had ever been in history.

paganda after the military drive in Beijing to quash the democracy movement.

The Xinhua News Agency has said nearly 100 soldiers and police died and that thousands were injured in that violence, while about 100 civilians died and nearly 1,000 were injured. Chinese witnesses and Western intelligence sources said the death toll may have been as high as 3,000.

The press quickly reverted to acting as an unquestioning organ for government and party pro-bill, the first "private" legislation ever filed by the Stamford congressman. It seeks to grant permanent residence status to the family.

Failing this, Stenholm has also petitioned the committee to consider legislative changes which would better define the amount of investment required for investor's visas—the legal category which permitted the Pointeaus to enter the U.S.

The amount of investment required is currently not specified in the law, only that it be "substantial." Legislation has been proposed to make the cutoff at $500,000, a level which would still not benefit the local French family.

Stenholm has asked the committee to consider still a lower level, perhaps in the $250,000 range, and, failing this, to consider some sort of "amnesty" for investors allowed in the U.S. prior to the adoption of any new rules.

Such "amnesty" would be similar to that granted illegal aliens by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) two years ago.

The senior aide for Stenholm, Marc Lubin, noted that both the U.S. House and Senate are both currently considering reform measures related to U.S. immigration laws.

Jack Pointeau indicated of all the options now possible for the family, he believes the one involving working permits for his wife and daughter offers the most hope.

The legal option of amnesty is also the fairest, he said, commenting, "Give me the same rights as the illegals."

The Pointeaus are now being assisted by San Antonio-based attorneys in their effort to gain the worker permits.

Regarding their ordered departure date Monday, Pointeau said, "I think (the INS) will leave us in peace for now because they know we are working on a different way."

The public is welcome to come by the field day site starting at 1 p.m. Saturday to see how the world of amateur radio, or ham radio as it is sometimes known, works.

Amateur radio differs from CB radio since operators have to pass written and morse code tests in order to obtain a license from the Federal Communications Commission.

Clements' stance encourages senators

AUSTIN (AP) — Chairman Carl Parker of the Senate Education Committee said Friday Gov. Bill Clements did not seem dead set against Parker's proposal to spend more money on public education, which would require a tax increase.

Clements' approval is essential, because the governor controls the agenda for the 30-day special legislative session, which started Tuesday.

On Thursday, Sen. Parker, D-Port Arthur, and Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, head of the House Public Education Committee, urged the governor to open the session to school finance.

Lawmakers in the regular session appropriated $450 million for 1990-91 to bridge the gap between rich and poor school districts, but Parker and Ms. Glossbrenner on Thursday proposed raising an additional $378 million.

They suggested higher fees and taxes to fund the proposal, primarily a 10-cents-a-pack increase in the cigarette tax.

As part of a six-year plan, the lawmakers also proposed spending an additional $1 billion in each of the next two bienniums to achieve equity in public education, with the financing left up to the 1991 and 1993 legislatures.

Clements said Thursday the proposal was "much too complicated and too comprehensive" to be considered in the special session.

He also said he thought the Legislature should wait for a decision from the Texas Supreme Court, which agreed Wednesday to review whether the state's school financing system is constitutional.

On Friday, Parker was in Clements' office for about half an hour with a plea to add school financing to the special session.

"I think the message I got from him (Clements) is that if the people who are truly concerned about children being deprived of an education could buy some provisions to stop spending money on what he considers wasteful efforts in some districts, then he could possibly relent on putting more money into education," Parker said.

He said Clements has "some concerns about the politics of some districts that he believes to be poor by choice. There are districts that he believes are overloaded with non-educational programs with administrators, et cetera. And he doesn't feel that they ought to be rewarded under the guise of helping them out.

"We have agreed — and some of his concerns are valid. I way down deep believe that there is a level of wealth below which you shouldn't try to have a district," Parker said. "There's no God-given or constitutional guaranteed right to a local school district. Just like you don't have a right to get financing to build a condominium in the middle of the Sahara."

The state should "look at those districts that are poor by choice where they could be attached to wealthy adjacent districts and solve the problem," he said.

Parker said he and the governor had agreed to continue discussions on public school financing.

Austinite puts polish on 'Batman' movie

AUSTIN (AP) — As the new movie version of "Batman" hits screens around the nation, an Austin man's name will be high among the credits.

Warren Skaaren, one of the movie industry's hottest script doctors, started the Texas Film Commission in the early 1970s during the administration of Gov. Preston Smith.

Skaaren toiled for many years as an unrecognized screenwriter and documentary filmmaker until he was tapped by producers Don Simpson and Jerry Bruckheimer to rewrite the script for the 1986 blockbuster "Top Gun."

That was followed by similar assignments for "Beetlejuice" and "Beverly Hills Cop II," which had an original screenplay co-authored by another Austinite, Bud Shraake.

"Batman" director Tim Burton, who also directed "Beetlejuice," hired Skaaren again for final polishing of Sam Hamm's "Batman" script. Skaaren wrote the last 10 drafts for "Top Gun" and the last 11 drafts of "Batman."

"I like to do a lot of drafts because movies are such a collaborative process," Skaaren said.

"I don't mind it at all. I'll do a draft from one point of view, then another from another point of view," he said.

Skaaren described "Batman" as an especially challenging assignment because of the visual elements.

"This was a very complicated picture because it was so big; they practically had to build a whole world. A lot of the writing had to be done after the sets were built."

After leaving the Texas film agency to successor Diane Booker in 1971, Skaaren headed FPS Inc., a television and film production services company in Dallas. His company served the "Tender Mercies" production in Waxahachie in 1978.

His next project is a reunion with producers Simpson, Bruckheimer and "Top Gun" star Tom Cruise. "All I can say right now is that it's a racing picture. Auto racing is a love of Tom's, and I have subsequently become infected also."

As for the "Batman" production, whose people he came to know, the writer gives it high marks.

"It was a great experience, especially working with Jack Nicholson. He was the elder statesman on the picture and set the tone. He was a very generous and resourceful actor who kept all of us working for new characterizations and new ways of doing things," Skaaren said.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

When Clinton Matthews and his wife, Anita, leave Snyder this weekend they said they will "leave a part of our hearts here." The couple has lived in Snyder since 1984 and for the past five years he has served as an umpire for countless baseball games.

Matthews, who is 59, called his first ball game 31 years ago and he recently said that he "wouldn't take anything for that experience."

Matthews was newly settled in Snyder, following a transfer by Chevron, when word got around that he had umpired games in the past. Since it was then difficult for Little League to find people to call the games, he said they approached him and he said "yes."

Since then, Matthews has called countless games including the teenage league, freshman and junior varsity games and twice weekly regular season games which lasted from 4 to 4½ hours.

He also called playoffs in Snyder, Abilene and Lubbock, but he notes he was never able to call a state playoff game.

Matthews said that to him baseball is a lot like life. Some games are won, some are rained out and some are lost. He said he prides himself on the fact that all the players continued to like him even if he made a call that was not in their favor.

"I always called each game just like I saw them. I never tried to favor one team or player over the other. Consistency is the name of the game and the Snyder Little League is one of the greatest organizations I have ever called for," he said.

"Coaches put in a lot of effort just for the kids and Little League is worth it to keep it going," he said.

Matthews noted people sometimes lose sight of the fact that Little League is for the kids.

Matthews recently expressed his philosophy about baseball this way. "The umpire is baseball's only representative on the playing field and it is my job to see that play is by the rules."

He said calling for any hometown game can be tough. During the five years that Matthews lived in Snyder, he admitted he sometimes made calls that upset either the fans or the parents.

"I never objected to someone disagreeing with a call I had made as long as the dispute would be left at the ballpark. But that was not always the case as some people would stop and confront me on the street, still expressing their anger at my decision," Matthews said.

During a game he said that even though he was "relaxed," he always kept his eye on "everything that was going on." He said he also tried to help the nervous batters by calling a time out and pretending to dust off home plate or adjust his equipment, all the while encouraging the player to relax and do the best he could.

Snyder's Little League season lasts from April through June with playoffs to follow.

The sport has been around the past 50 years and Matthews said that when he relocates to southern Mississippi, he will no doubt end up calling games again—only this time for the children of players who played in past games he had called.

Anita said she also shares her husband's fascination with umpiring.

Both say that umpiring has filled a need in their lives. While they have no sons or players in the family, he said he does have three daughters or "cheerleaders."

Whenever Matthews called a game it became "a family affair." Both Matthews and his wife agree that they have made good friends in Snyder. And someday they said they plan to return.

"It's been a great experience," Matthews said. "It's such a blessing to see the kids improve the more they play."

Matthews was born in Alabama and raised in Mississippi. He has a bachelor's degree from the University of Georgia where he majored in English and minored in theology.

He umpired his first game in Macon, Ga. in 1958. Umpiring became the natural thing for him to do since he had always played in the grammar and high school league baseball games as a youth. Little League had not been organized then. He also played in "hamburger leagues," so christened because each player received $2 and a hamburger for playing in the game.

Matthews served as a catcher and second baseman.

In 1958, the 12-year-old Little League players in Macon didn't have anyone to call their games so when Matthews was approached he said yes.

Matthews remained in Georgia until 1962. He was transferred to Jackson County in southeast Mississippi, where he umpired the Little League, Dixie Youth League and high school games until 1976. During that time, Matthews was certified to umpire games in both Georgia and Mississippi and he officiated at Little League playoffs in both states as well as The Dixie Youth League World Series in 1968 and 1969.

In 1976, Matthews was transferred to New Jersey. Since he "was on a new job" he said that he didn't "do much calling then."

In all, Matthews is certified to umpire games in seven states including Georgia, Alabama, Wyoming, Texas, Mississippi, New Jersey and Florida.

In 1982, he was transferred to Evanston, Wyo. Two years later he was living in Snyder.

Matthews explained that anyone who wants to umpire a playoff or higher ranking baseball game has to be certified by the state in which the event is taking place.

In past years, he said he attended a six month umpire school in Sarasota, Fla. and numerous one day seminars. Certification is granted for a lifetime.

While umpires usually do earn money for each game they call, Matthews said he always did it "for the love of the game and the players," rather than for the money. "It is always a blessing for me to see how the kids improve."

Matthews has seen some changes in the rules and regulations of Little League games during the past 31 years. Umpires' clothes and equipment have also changed.

Umpires have to go by the Little League rule book and sometimes that changes. In addition, the way an umpire makes a call is sometimes changed. For instance, umpires used to be able to "thumb their nose" if a player was out. But now, they have to Butler, McCathern...

May promises unite couple

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED — Mr. and Mrs. Juan Rivas of Denver City announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Corina Rivas, to Gabriel Becerra, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Becerra of Snyder. The couple plans to exchange vows July 29 in the St. Williams Catholic Church of Denver City. (Private Photo)

According to American Why, there ain't nothing but one humorist Will Rogers: "What's word wrong with every one of us, the matter with the world today? and that's selfishness."

MT. PLEASANT — Sara Renee Butler became the bride of Levi G. McCathern II May 20 in the Trinity Baptist Church of Mt. Pleasant. Glenn McCathern, father of the groom, officiated the double-ring vows.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Butler of Mt. Pleasant and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McCathern of Snyder.

A 15-branch brass candelabrum filled with white tapers centered the aisle and a large basket of white and pink gladioli graced the base. Flanking the altar were seven-light and spiral candelabra forming a garden-gate look. Tall, brass fern stands holding hurricane globes added to the setting.

White and iridescent bows complemented two, satin-wrapped center hearts and marked the family pews. A family Bible signed by the couple during the ceremony stood on a stand at the right of the altar.

Ushers were Lynn Pryor and Steven Kellams of Snyder; Eugene Polasek of Odessa, uncle of the groom; and Shane and Shannon Butler of Mt. Pleasant, brothers of the bride.

Musical selections for the occasion were "As for Me and My House" and "We Are an Offering" sung by Kathryn Butler, sister-in-law of the bride, and Reggie McNeil, pastor of the church.

An original song, "My Gift to You," was written and sung for the couple by local artist Kinney Robinson. McNeil ended the ceremony with "The Lord's Prayer."

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza and Schiffla lace. The fitted satin Basque bodice was lavishly trimmed with lace encrusted in seed pearls and opalescent sequins. A scalloped Sabrina neckline was outlined in a waterfall of teardrop pearls. Short sleeves were poufed with multiple layers of organza ruffles and accented with satin sweetheart roses at the shoulders.

The voluminous full skirt of organza was trimmed with Schiffla lace medallions and edged in ruffling. A border of scalloped lace swept up into the skirt at intervals holding cascades of organza ruffles. Cascading ruffles also fell from a satin bow at the back of the waist and widened into a full, cathedral train.

To complement her gown, the bride wore a halo of iridescent leaves and pearls which held a two-tiered veil of misty, sparkle illusion. She carried an all-white, formal-length cascade bouquet of satin roses and iridescent lace surrounded by teardrop pearl clusters and pearl sprays. Streamers of satin and lace completed the arrangement.

Serving as flower girl was Lauren Lee, daughter of Brian and Judy Lee of Mt. Pleasant. She wore a white smocked batiste dress and carried a satin and lace pearl basket full of white and pink rose petals.

Dustin Butler, son of Brent and Ronda Butler of Siloam Springs, Ark., served as ring bearer. He wore a double-breasted tuxedo and carried an heirloom satin pillow encircled with lace, satin bows and streamers. The groom's great-grandmother, Mrs. Tommie Grant of Pampa, created the pillow originally.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Suzy Butler. Bridesmaids were Shonna Berka of Dangerfield, Rachel Couch of Mt. Pleasant and Beverly Bittick of Kilgore. Each wore a floor-length gown of teal satin. Sweetheart necklines were accented with short, butterfly sleeves with matching lace insets.

Low, V-shaped backs were enhanced with two-tiered bustles of lace and satin topped with candy-box bows. Matching satin slippers and pearl necklaces, bracelets and earrings complemented their attire. Each carried a bouquet of white satin full and miniature roses interspersed with pale pink satin sweetheart roses and pearl sprays. Streamers of teal satin, white lace and iridescent ribbon completed the arrangement.

The groom was attired in a black Christian Dior tuxedo with tails, white vest and bow tie. His boutonniere was of white sweetheart roses on iridescent leaves interspersed with pearl stamen.

The groom was attended by Stacy Kellams, Kinney Robinson and Brad Vincent of Snyder and James Hereford of Graham. They wore black tuxedos with black cummerbunds and bow ties accented by white and teal boutonnières.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Butler home. The bride's table was laid in white satin with an overlay of silver lace. An arrangement of fresh flowers topped a silver candelabrum as centerpiece. Fruit punch was served from a silver bowl atop a matching tray. Silver and crystal appointments finished the table.

The four-tiered bridal cake featured a sparkling fountain set in the lower square tier. Pale pink and white roses encircled the layer. The second tier was round and featured scalloped, ruffled icing. The third and top tiers were square and topped with a pair of swans encircled with tulling and pearls in front of a lace-trimmed heart. Pink iridescent flowers rested at the swans' base. The couple's names and wedding date were written in icing on the bottom layer.

Toasting goblets engraved in the couple's names and wedding date complemented the table and teal napkins inscribed in silver gave color accent.

The groom's table was overlaid in teal and centered with silver candelabra trimmed in greenery and flowers. A silver coffee service and silver appointments were featured. The chocolate cake was decorated in chocolate roses and held a white heart with the couple's names in chocolate. Fresh fruit in silver trays was also served.

Following a honeymoon trip to San Antonio, the couple makes their home in Waco where the groom is employed with the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation. He is also the pastor of Travis Baptist Church in Travis.

The bride and groom are attending Baylor University where the groom will enter law school in January.

Sterling, McMullen...

Nuptial vows are exchanged

IRA — Julie Alexis Sterling and Craig Marlin McMullen were joined in matrimony at 7:30 p.m. May 27 in the fellowship hall of the First Baptist Church of Ira. The Rev. G. Mark Millan performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy H. Sterling of Ira. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John McMullen of Kaufman and Clint Ferguson of Kingsville.

Vows were exchanged before a 15-branch votive candelabrum trimmed in greenery and flanked with white wicker floor baskets of fern with daisies and baby's-breath.

White bows accented with daisies, turquoise baby's-breath, turquoise ribbon and baskets of daisies marked the pews.

Ushers were Jared Elzner of Kaufman, brother of the groom, and Trey Wilson of Snyder.

Clint Ferguson, father of the groom, sang "Spirit Song," "You Gave Me Love" and "The Lord's Prayer." Kim Gorman, harpist, accompanied the ceremony with a medley of songs and the traditional wedding march and recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown she designed. It was created by Lana Galloway of Snyder. The tea-length style of white satin and lace featured a high neck with a lace yoke and wedding band collar. A Basque waistline and leg-ol-father, R.C. Howard, which was tied to the garter with ribbon. A diamond necklace was borrowed from her mother. The bridal gown was new and birth pennies were worn in the bride's satin shoes.

Kara Sterling, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a tea-length gown of white eyelet and carried a nosegay of white daisies and fern accented with turquoise baby's-breath and ribbon.

Lindsey Josey, cousin of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a white lace dress and carried a white wicker basket trimmed in turquoise ribbon and daisies. Ring bearer was Seth Sterling, brother of the bride. He was dressed in white and carried a lace pillow trimmed with turquoise ribbon and daisies.

The groom was attired in a grey suit. He was attended by Rodney Josey, his uncle, who also wore grey.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall. The wedding table was covered in white lace gathered at the corners with white bows accented with daisies, baby's-breath and turquoise ribbon.

The white bridal cake was topped with a porcelain bride and groom miniature and was accented with fresh white daisies, stephanotis, turquoise baby's-breath and ribbon.

White milk glass appointments featured a milk glass punch bowl and candle holders belonging to the bride's late grandmother, Eva Mae Howard. They were also used at the bride's parents' wedding.

Fruit punch contained an ice ring of strawberries and pineapple. Daisy mints, created by the bride, and nuts were served by Dee Dee Dunn and Pat Sterling.

An hors d'oeuvre table featured assorted meats, cheese, fruits and dips with crackers and coffee. A five-cup votive candelabrum accented with daisies and greenery centered the table.

A basket of turquoise held rose rice bags made by the bride's great-aunt, Ilene Kruse. Brianna McMillan gave them to guests.

The couple is at home in Ira.

CONSUMER'S TASTES ARE CHANGING

Today's fast foods may not be fast enough for busy people who eat on the run, at the office, or order take out to eat at home.

Lack of leisure time is a concern for many people today with busy lifestyles.

People don't want to spend a lot of their leisure time waiting for table service. For some people, fast-food restaurants are not fast enough today and this trend apparently is going to have greater impact in the future.

Many people prefer to use their free time for activities other than eating, often crowding in exercise workouts, nature walks and even various special classes.

With the growth in home delivery service and in "special diet meals," many two-income families will be using home delivery service for nutritious, low calorie, low sodium, high fiber, polyunsaturated meals.

Recognizing the trend of people on the go, a number of marketing experts are working with industry leaders to meet the consumer trends.

It is predicted that microwave ovens and microwave cooking will increase dramatically by the year 2001.

As the new century begins, 90 percent of American homes will have one microwave oven, compared to 70 percent now having one; 50 percent of the homes will have two; and 25 percent of our cars will come equipped with a small microwave oven.

Fewer people will eat breakfast in the next decade, settling for coffee.

For those who want something more substantial, there will be "one-handed food," easy to open and prepare in the car microwave, and easy to eat with one hand while driving.

Already, 25 percent of American workers eat breakfast in the car. Breakfast tacos and other poultry products are among favorite breakfast finger foods.

These foods will be sold at convenience stores and will be "shelf stable," requiring no refrigeration.

Quality-oriented quick lunch restaurants will increase, posing new requirements for food processing and packaging to meet these consumer demands.

By the year 2001, irradiation will have gained widespread acceptance in the U.S. as well as the remainder of the world. Now used in some 30 countries, it has not yet had a significant impact here.

As a result of these consumer trends, food preparation behavior—already sharply different between weekdays and weekends—will have an even wider gap. Recreational cooking will not be a major weekend activity.

Another trend on the horizon is office delivery of individual meals at 4 p.m., packed in easy-to-carry and prepare containers for the trip home.

This marketing venture probably will be best addressed by smaller, localized food preparation firms with emphasis on personal service and menus that can be easily tailored to particular tastes.

mutton sleeves completed the bodice.

The full skirt had a gathered peplum trimmed in lace and accented in back with a soft, draped bow. Lace cut work and edging embellished the skirt.

The bride wore a garland of stephanotis, satin bows and baby's-breath in her hair and carried a cascading bouquet of white bridal roses, stephanotis, Frenched carnations, baby's-breath and white satin ribbons.

Following tradition, the bride wore a garter created by Galloway fashioned of lace and satin from the bridal gown. Accented with white roses and bows, the garter was trimmed in turquoise ribbon. Something old was a gold wedding band belonging to the bride's late grand-

300 cookies are all in a day's work for this home baker

QUINTER, Kan. (AP) — Carolyn Emig says she finds it difficult to bake only for her family of four.
"I don't even like to make one pie crust, so I mix 40 or 60," she says.
Or she might make a hundred dozen or more fried cinnamon rolls or up to 300 dozen cookies.

She likes to bake. But her efforts in the kitchen aren't just for pleasure. They help her and her husband, Walt, pay for their farm.
For more than 10 years, Emig has baked bread, pastries and cookies to help make ends meet. It all began in her basement but has since moved to a sun-filled, converted mobile home, its walls painted glossy white.

"I didn't want a job that would mean leaving my family," she says. "Here I can help out and be at home, too. But I try not to take so many orders that they crowd into my family life."
Every Tuesday, she makes fried cinnamon rolls that she delivers to convenience stores in Quinter and Hays. On other days, she bakes special orders, such as 52 dozen dinner rolls for a wedding. And about once a month, she bakes up to 300 dozen cookies that will be frozen and later thawed to fill orders from local businesses or homemakers.
"She says she will bake almost anything, but she draws a line at decorating cakes. "They take too much time. I'd rather go by volume."
Her kitchen, which takes up most of the mobile home, becomes an assembly line when she hires several neighbors to help with her monthly cookie bake-in.

My mower has a side discharge. What can I do about the unsightly rows of clippings left on my lawn when I remove the bag attachment?
—If you leave a side discharge chute open, the grass clippings will blow out in small rows. When you close the chute, the clippings will be cut in smaller pieces by the mower blade and spread evenly beneath the mower.
Rear discharge mowers have an automatic trap door that closes when the bag attachment is removed. Most side discharge mowers have a trap door that can be lowered or attached manually. If your mower lacks a trap door, ask a lawn equipment service dealer to install one.

A checklist of questions

When it comes to card-guessing, ask yourself three important questions. First, how many tricks do you need to make? Second, have the opponents done any bidding that will help you to locate cards, remembering that their failure to bid may also be revealing? Third, can you play the hand so that losing a trick to a specific card will guarantee the favorable location of another key card? If all of this has your head spinning, perhaps the application of these principles to a particular deal will help.
After three passes, South opened one spade and the bidding quietly proceeded to the three-level while the opponents remained silent. West led K-A of diamonds. Declarer ruffed the second round and led the jack of spades for a finesse. East won the king and returned a low heart. Declarer erred by

'DON'T BAG IT' LAWN CARE QUESTIONS

For best results, the "Don't Bag It" Lawn Care Plan recommends moving every five to six days instead of once a week or longer. Isn't that more work?
—Not really. Cutting grass before it's overgrown is easier and faster. Plus, you save the time and effort it takes to bag grass clippings and to put the bags out for garbage pickup. Previous "Don't Bag It" lawn demonstrators reported less trouble overall. And don't forget, yardwork is good exercise!
Will grass clippings cause thatch if left on the lawn?
—No. Thatch is a layer of organic material composed of plant parts that include roots, rhizomes, crowns and stolons — not the grass leaf or blade that you cut when you mow. The parts that cause thatch have a high lignin content, a substance very

Top sour cream cheesecake with variety of fruit sauces

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

This cheesecake recipe gets my vote as the best we've ever published. It's rich and creamy, yet light and fluffy. Top it with strawberries as we suggest, or use your favorite fruit or sauce. My husband likes it best with fresh raspberries; my son prefers cherry sauce.

To test the cheesecake for doneness, gently shake the side of the pan. The center should appear nearly set. It will set as the cheesecake cools. Loosen the pan sides after baking to keep the cheesecake edges from cracking. Sometimes the top will crack; that's normal.

REGAL CHEESECAKE

One 6-ounce package zwieback
4 tablespoons margarine or butter, melted

2 tablespoons sugar
Two 8-ounce packages cream cheese
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
3 egg yolks
Two 8-ounce cartons dairy sour cream
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 egg whites
6 to 8 whole strawberries, hulled and halved
½ cup currant jelly

Finely crush zwieback; stir in margarine and 2 tablespoons sugar. Press onto bottom and 1½ inches up sides of a greased 9-inch springform pan. Set aside.

In a large mixer bowl beat cream cheese until smooth. Add 1 cup sugar; beat until fluffy. Add whole eggs and egg yolks; beat on low speed just until mixed. Stir in sour cream, lemon juice and vanilla. Transfer sour cream mixture to another large bowl. Thoroughly wash the large mixer bowl and beaters.

In the large mixer bowl beat egg whites until stiff peaks form (tips stand straight). Fold beaten whites into sour cream mixture. Turn into prepared pan. (Filling is higher than crust.) Bake in 350-degree F oven 60 to 65 minutes or until center is almost set. Cool on wire rack 5 to 10 minutes. Using a thin metal spatula, loosen cheesecake from sides of pan. Cool 30 minutes more; remove sides of pan. Cool completely. Cover and chill for several hours or overnight.

About 1 hour before serving, arrange halved strawberries in a circle on top of cheesecake. In a small saucepan heat jelly over low heat just until melted; spoon over strawberries and center of cheesecake. Chill 30 to 60 minutes or until jelly sets. Cut into wedges to serve. Makes 16 servings.

Homemade bran muffins add fiber, low saturated fat

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Not all bran muffins are created equal. Many commercially baked muffins contain high amounts of saturated fat and cholesterol, erasing the benefits of the fiber in the bran.

These muffins have no cholesterol and little saturated fat. You get the benefits of both insoluble fiber from bran flakes and soluble fiber from the apples.

You can have a muffin for breakfast any morning by baking a batch ahead and freezing them. To defrost muffins in the microwave, cook one muffin, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 30 to 45 seconds, 2 muffins for 45 seconds to one minute.

APPLE-BRAN STREUSEL MUFFINS

1½ cups all-purpose flour
1 cup bran flakes
½ cup packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon ground allspice
¼ teaspoon salt
2 slightly beaten egg whites
½ cup skim milk
½ cup cooking oil
1½ cups chopped peeled tart apples

Streusel Topping (recipe follows)

In a large bowl combine flour, cereal, sugar, baking powder, allspice and salt. In a small bowl combine egg whites, milk and oil. Add to flour mixture and stir just until moistened. Fold in apples. Spoon into 12 greased muffin cups. Sprinkle with Streusel Topping. Bake in 400-degree F oven about 20 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 12 muffins.

Streusel Topping: In a small bowl combine ½ cup bran flakes, lightly crushed, and 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Drizzle 1 tablespoon cooking oil over mixture; stir with fork until crumbly.

INDEPENDENCE
Each year, as we grow older, we will lose about 1% of muscle mass, unless we exercise to prevent it. Walking at 3 mph is the limit of endurance for most 70 to 75 year olds. At 80, most can hardly rise from a sitting position. However, if we exercise regularly, we can strengthen our thigh muscles by 10% and postpone the loss of our independence by 10 to 20 years. A daily 3-mile walk and a workout of 30 minutes, 3 times a week should do the trick.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Romantic prospects look extremely encouraging in the year ahead for unattached Cancers who are celebrating their birthday today. Several romances are likely, although marriage may not be in the offing this year.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Think before you speak today or else you might unintentionally say something that could upset a sensitive friend. Once your remark is aired, it will be difficult to retract or amend. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be willing to share equally in a joint venture today, because your behavior will inspire your counterpart to do likewise and both will then come out winners.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be more comfortable today with companions who are a trifle reserved and gentle. Aggressive or erratic types could make you feel very uneasy and you won't enjoy your time together.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Things will go smoothly for you today, provided you do everything in accordance with your highest ideals and standards. If you are lax about expressing these qualities, disappointments are likely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your personality will be endowed with extra pizzazz today, but your commercial aptitudes might not be too nifty. Be cautious in situations that have financial expenditures.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A delicate balance must be maintained in family relationships today or else there is a possibility that friction will move in and shove harmony out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not take the kindness or generosity of others for granted today. If you fail to reciprocate or acknowledge their gestures, they might not be around the next time you need them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be careful how you behave today if you are involved with someone who is less fortunate materially than you are. Don't make this person feel that worth is based upon wealth.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Others will find you even more appealing than usual today, particularly members of the opposite gender. Don't be surprised if this causes one of your peers to be a trifle jealous.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not totally ignore your hunches today, but, by the same token monitor them carefully so that they don't impulsively impel you to do something that's not too bright.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can have a good time today without it costing you an arm and a leg. Your extravagance will be influenced by the company you keep and if pals are big spenders, you're apt to follow suit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's admirable to want to be independent and maintain your own identification, but don't go to exorbitant links today to prove your point.

June 26, 1989

Your material prospects should brighten considerably in the year ahead. People who are sincerely interested in your well being will do what they can to open doors for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Major objectives are achievable today, provided you act in the first person. Associates or companions may not be in harmony with your aims and could drag their feet and slow you down. Major changes are ahead for Cancer in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may have some difficulties today in keeping your priorities in proper order. You might be more easily motivated to do non-essential things than you will be productive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Things that affect your self-interests will be managed rather efficiently today, but you may not be as equally adept at masterminding procedures for others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Where family finances are concerned today you may be a tad more astute than your mate. You should talk money matters over before making any expenditures.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your social friends will enjoy your repartee today, but the same is not likely to be true of your co-workers. They'll appreciate a little less wind and a little more work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Involvements with friends today could turn out to be a trifle expensive if you fail to spell out in advance who is supposed to pay what. If you're indifferent, you may get the heavy end of the tab.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful today that you don't show more favoritism to outsiders than you do to members of your own family. Friends come and go, but family is forever.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's important today that you have faith in your own ideas, because they are likely to be challenged by others. If you lack the fortitude to stand up to them, they'll not be defended properly.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Trying to mix business and pleasure today could be an unrewarding procedure. Either do one or the other, but don't attempt to do both simultaneously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Challenging developments aren't apt to bring out the best in you today. You'll have the capacity to meet and overcome obstacles, but you might not do it effectively.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's a possibility that you might place a trifle too much importance on winning the approval of others today. Do not discount your own self-worth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In matters that are meaningful to you financially or commercially, it's best to keep outsiders out of your affairs today. The aspects indicate their input isn't apt to be constructive.

Midland crack dealers and L. A. street gangs are linked MIDLAND, Texas (AP) - Deadly Los Angeles street gangs have been linked to the sale of crack, the potent rock candy of cocaine users, in Midland, law enforcement authorities say.

"We have a lot of crack activity," Midland police Sgt. Larry Bledsoe, who heads the department's four-officer narcotics unit, said Thursday. "And we feel this is a direct link to the gangs of Los Angeles. We have established the link. The gangs have connections with the local people."

Narcotics officers have made 17 crack-related arrests since the first of the year, Bledsoe said, adding that this does not include arrests made by patrol officers.

At least two of the cases involved Los Angeles, and at least two arrests have been made at Midland International Airport shortly after commercial flights that originated in the Los Angeles area landed in Midland, he said.

"Crack in the Midland area has become a major problem," Bledsoe said. "It (crack) is cheaper out there. They are importing it in L.A. because of the cheapness and availability. Then they are flying it here, bringing it in and selling it for a substantial price increase. That's just good business."

Several crack-related arrests were made recently when officers made a sweep through an apartment complex, Bledsoe said.

"They had a pretty good toehold there, but we feel we broke it up," he said. "But we understand they have moved to other complexes, and we are working there now. They tend to like the apartments that are cheap to live in."

Crack is made from powder cocaine that is cooked into a concentrated, rock-like form. When smoked, it produces a "high" which is quick and intense. Some users also lace marijuana cigarettes with it.

Officers said crack is more highly addictive than powder cocaine that is snorted.

Bledsoe said that crack is being sold in pebble-size quantities on Midland streets and in apartment complexes for $20. The typical users are described as black men and women between the ages of 16 and 24, but authorities say some young white men are now using it.

Art Van Dorn, former commander of the Permian Basin Drug Task Force, worked for years as a narcotics agent in Beaumont, still a state stronghold for crack dealers, says he knows the signs of a crack epidemic.

"It is starting to move in," said Van Dorn, who now heads a Fort Worth-based narcotics task force. "And there does seem to be more in Midland. I can assure you, in the next year or so you are going to have a real problem with crack."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Good Bedside Manners Include Following the Hospital's Rules

DEAR ABBY: I desperately need your help with this problem. A family member was recently hospitalized. She had a heart attack and two strokes the same day, and was placed in the intensive care unit with a "No Visitors" sign prominently displayed on her door.

Abby, that sign might as well not have been there. Friends and relatives opened the door to her room, tiptoed over to her bed, pulled up a chair, and sat by her bedside wanting to hold her hand and spend a few minutes with her. Don't they realize how much energy it takes for a critically ill person to acknowledge their presence and thank them for coming?

Please print this. We are exhausted trying to keep visitors away and the nurses are too busy to act as watchdogs. Thank you.

WORN OUT

DEAR WORN OUT: Your problem is one that family members and hospital personnel struggle with constantly. But just on the off chance that someone will read this and take it to heart, here's your letter.

Now, here's a message from a registered nurse in Adams, Mass.:

DEAR ABBY: Please do us nurses a big favor and print the following words of advice for folks who visit patients in hospitals:

1. Beds are for patients — not for visitors to sit or lie on. I have had to change entire beds because visitors sprawled out on an empty bed and got it dirty and messed up. Ask for a chair. The nurse will be happy to find one for you.

2. Please observe visiting hours. Do not come early and stay late. Our patients need their rest.

3. Please respect the hospital's smoking regulations. Smoke only where smoking is permissible.

4. Please respect patients' prescribed routine and diet. Sneaking in food, alcohol, cigarettes, medicine, etc. could sabotage their recovery. Never give a patient anything to eat or drink without clearing it with the nurse.

5. Please do not ask the nurse to take your blood pressure. Nurses are paid to take care of the patients.

MASSACHUSETTS NURSE

DEAR ABBY: As newlyweds, one of the first questions my husband and I are asked is, "When are you planning to have children?"

Our reply is that we are not planning to have any children. Some typical responses:

1. A shocked "Why not?" as though we hate children. We do not hate children — we simply do not want any of our own.

2. An implication that I am less of a woman because I don't want children. This offends me. It does not necessarily follow that every woman aspires to be a mother.

3. The smug suggestion that we will change our minds when we get "older." (We are 28 and 31 years old.) We have both felt this way, long before we met each other. We reached this conclusion independently of each other after much soul-searching. Otherwise, we would not have gone through the expense and discomfort of a sterilization procedure.

We realize that we are in the minority, and we are also aware that there are countless people who would give their right eye to have children but are unable to, but we are not two of them. We did not make this decision lightly, and it hurts us to be judged so negatively by others with another point of view. We don't criticize others for having children, so please don't criticize us for not having them.

A HAPPY FAMILY OF TWO,
COLUMBUS, GA.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LOOKING FOR MR. WONDERFUL IN ST. PAUL": Don't place so much emphasis on age. If a man looks young, he's probably young. If he looks old, he's probably old. If he looks interesting — smile.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 55-year-old widow who met a fascinating 65-year-old widower through a high-class dating agency. He's a very refined professional man whose background is similar to mine. First we talked on the phone, and I found him charming and easy to talk to.

We met for the first time last Saturday. He took me to a lovely place for lunch, but all he wanted to talk about was sex. After lunch, his hands were all over me. He asked me how I'd like to go to his apartment and spend the weekend with him! I refused, saying that I did not jump into bed with a man on the first meeting.

I was drawn to this man because of his good manners and professional status, and I must admit that I crave companionship, and yes, possibly a husband to share my life with. I have strong sexual feelings, but I need to be respected, too.

Right now, I'm dying to call him, but I don't want him to think I'm a pushover. What should I do?

SMITTEN IN THE BAY AREA

DEAR SMITTEN: This fascinating gentleman strikes me as a very aggressive and impatient man with only one thing on his mind — and his approach is about as subtle as a meat ax.

Your objectives are miles apart. You're looking for companionship and perhaps a husband. He wants a bed partner — now.

If you don't want him to think you're a pushover, don't call him, because that is probably what you will be. This "refined professional man" should skip the dating agency and find a call girl.

DEAR ABBY: Two months ago, my daughter's fiance died. "Connie" is still devastated. She and "Matthew" had gone together for five years and were very much in love.

Last Christmas, Connie gave Matthew a $1,200 Rolex wristwatch. (It took her many months to pay it off.) She had the watch engraved on the back with her name and his.

After Matthew died, Connie asked Matthew's mother if she could have that watch as a keepsake. Matthew's mother said, "I will let you have it — for $600."

I tried to talk Connie out of buying that watch, but she wanted it so much, she borrowed the money and now she has the watch.

Abby, have you or any of your readers ever heard of anything as ridiculous?

CONNIE'S MOTHER

DEAR MOM: If you're asking if I think your daughter was ridiculous for a) wanting the watch as a keepsake, b) paying $600 for it or c) borrowing the money to buy it, my answer would be "no" to all three questions.

P.S. I'm glad you didn't ask me what I thought of Matthew's mother because my response would have been unprintable.

CONFIDENTIAL TO FEELING GUILTY IN SACRAMENTO: Take comfort in the words of James Russell Lowell: "Console yourself, dear man and brother, whatever you may be sure of, be sure at least of this: You are dreadfully like other people. Human nature has a much greater genius for sameness than for originality."

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage is included).

During World War II, the United States dropped a second atomic bomb on Japan on Aug. 9, 1945. It destroyed part of the city of Nagasaki. An estimated 74,000 people died from the blast or its aftereffects. Nagasaki was not the original target. Heavy clouds had prevented the bombing of Kokura in northern Kyushu.
