Gas decontrol act has Texans hoping for added drilling

AUSTIN (AP) — President Bush's signing of the Natural Gas Decontrol Act will result in increased drilling activity in Texas, two Texas Railroad Commission members said.

Bush, declaring Wednesday that the best way to deal with energy problems is to let our market economy work, signed the legislation to end the last vestiges of price controls on natural gas.

"The bottom line is, a strong domestic drilling and producing business is essential for the national security of the United States of America," Bush said in Washington.

Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance, a Republican, said the measure represents "the first step in the energy policy of the Bush administration."

"Long term it will create more drilling activity and more jobs for Texas," Hance said.

"The future of energy in Texas is in the development of natural gas markets," he said.

Railroad Commissioner John Sharp, a Democrat, said the bill represents a compromise between various interests that is good for all.

Doc recruitment support due profile

The July meeting of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board will see Administrator Tom Hochwalt profile the number of "resolutions of support" he has gained in the past weeks related to physician recruitment efforts.

The meeting will include also an update on these efforts. Currently, the board has contracted with two firms to seek out a general practitioner, surgeon, internist and an obstetrics-gynecologist.

Thursday's meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. with an evening meal.

Regarding the resolutions of support, Hochwalt has been meeting with various public entities asking for an endorsement of the physician recruiting effort.

Among these have been the city council, college board and school board.

Also listed as an agenda item is a proposed change in the hospital employee health benefit plan.

This will be in addition to such monthly reports as the medical staff report, quality assurance report and the financial report.

Scurry big tree effort near final date

Tuesday is the deadline to submit entries to find Scurry County's biggest trees.

The project is directed by the Scurry County Historical Commission with Billy Bob McMullan as chairman.

He noted the biggest trees entered to date are a mulberry with a trunk circumference of 22 ft. 6 in.; a live oak at 9 ft. 6 in.; a sycamore at 8 ft.; a mesquite at 10 ft. 7 in.; a hackberry at 7 ft.; and a cottonwood at 18 ft. 4 in.

The historical commission will choose the largest of five species of trees to issue to the Texas A&M University Forestry Extension, the ultimate sponsor of the project.

The objectives of the project are to make the public aware of the importance of trees, promote Arbor Day, initiate community forestry programs, find the "big trees" in Texas and promote Tree City USA.

Additional entries will be accepted until Tuesday. For nomination forms and more information, contact McMullan at 573-9729.

WTC adds 4th final seminar for freshmen

A fourth Success Seminar on Aug. 15 has been added to the schedule at Western Texas College, Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services, has announced.

The third seminar scheduled on Aug. 1 was to have been the final one, but since it has reached capacity the fourth session has been added.

All full-time entering freshmen are required to attend one of the seminars which serve as an orientation to the campus and allow students to pre-register for the fall semester starting Aug. 30.

A fee of $15 is charged for students attending a seminar. This covers lunch on campus for the student and two parents as well as the fee for the ASSET test if it is required.

Students wishing to attend the Aug. 15 seminar are to pre-register by contacting the admissions office in the WTC Administration Building. The seminar will begin at 9 a.m.

UNOCAL to make changes

A reorganization of Union Oil of California in West Texas will result in the loss of five positions in Snyder, but the local office will remain open.

According to Keith Spradlin, district operations manager in Midland, the Snyder office will see four persons in the Snyder office transferred and one secretary position eliminated.

The change is expected to take place sometime in September, Spradlin said. Gary Dupriest, current superintendent, will be transferred to Michigan. Also affected are two petroleum engineers and a clerk.

The UNOCAL work force in Snyder currently totals about 30 persons.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Man doesn't live by bread alone—he needs to be buttered up once in awhile."

Another good thing about living in a small town is mail and telephone calls eventually get to you.

We received a letter from a firm in Lubbock postmarked just three days prior to its delivery to our post office box in Snyder.

The newspaper's address was given as 603 S. Sam Rayburn Freeway. The city was correct but the zip code wasn't even close.

It reminds us of the story about the two women who had cultivated a warm friendship when they lived in a town about the size of Snyder.

One woman moved to a larger city when her husband was promoted and transferred by his oil company. The woman in the city remembered a tasty dish that her friend Maggie Jones often made for covered-dish dinners at church, and she decided to call and ask for the recipe.

When she dialed for her friend, she got a wrong number. While explaining to the stranger in the tiny community that she was trying to get in touch with Maggie Jones so she could copy down her delicious recipe, the woman replied she could give to her—everybody here knows about Maggie Jones' casserole.

Politics in small towns can be interesting. We remember a newspaper editor who got into a tangle with the town council and in a scathing editorial remarked, "half of the town council are crooks."

City fathers were furious. They demanded a special meeting with the editor and insisted that he print a retraction. The editor agreed, and the following week his editorial concluded with the statement: "half of the town council are not crooks."

Korean air crash kills 78

ROME (AP) — A Korean Air DC-10 with 199 people aboard crashed in heavy fog today three miles short of Tripoli airport in Libya, hitting homes and cars and bursting into flames. At least 78 people were killed, including four on the ground, news reports said.

Libya's official JANA news agency said the crash, the second in eight days of a DC-10, occurred at 7:30 a.m. (1:30 a.m. EDT). The cause was not immediately known.

The Korean Broadcasting System quoted South Korea's consul in Tripoli, Chang Kyung-soo, as saying the plane attempted a belly landing, indicating a problem with the landing gear. It crashed into an orchard, broke into two pieces, and caught fire, officials said.

The pilot was quoted as saying visibility was poor. About an hour earlier, a Soviet jetliner rerouted to Malta rather than land in the fog.

"Early reports from Tripoli indicate that weather may have been a contributing factor," said James Reed, a spokesman in Washington for McDonnell Douglas Corp., which manufactures DC-10s.

The Korean Broadcasting System earlier said the pilot reported engine trouble, but the airline did not confirm this.

On July 19, a United Air Lines DC-10 crashed in Sioux City, Iowa, killing 111 people, after the tail engine blew apart and cut off the flow of hydraulic fluid needed to steer the plane.

JANA said at least 78 people were killed in today's crash. It said at least four died on the ground when the jet slammed into two houses.

Tripoli hospitals were reportedly treating 30 crash victims with unspecified injuries, 17 with burns and 66 who were in "good condition" and would be released within hours. Eight people were treated and released, the agency reported. It said 14 of the 18 crew members survived.

Airline officials in Seoul confirmed only 35 deaths among the passengers. It said 189 of the 199 aboard were South Koreans. The rest were Japanese and Libyans.

Government officials in Seoul said there were no signs the jet was the target of terrorism, as was a Korean Air flight that crashed in 1987.

Italian television showed the plane's tail sticking up from the rubble of a house. Hundreds of rescue workers carried away bodies as firefighters hosed down the smoldering wreckage.

TDC item before board

Incentives to the Texas Department of Corrections to obtain a second 1,000-man unit for Snyder head the list of business items on a 6:30 p.m. Thursday city council meeting agenda.

What the city and county are offering the TDC has been kept confidential because of the competitive bidding process against other municipalities. The agenda lists the item to be voted on Thursday as "utility incentives."

A budgetary work session will follow the meeting, which will also include consideration of bids for city employees' medical and life insurance and bids for 1988-89 auditing services.

In Brief

Flag Burning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee today overwhelmingly approved a bill to ban flag burning after Democrats elbowed aside Republican demands for a constitutional amendment.

The committee approved the criminal statute 28-6. Chairman Jack Brooks, D-Texas, promised to back a constitutional amendment if the legislation failed to overcome a Supreme Court ruling that flag burning was a protected form of free speech.

The Democratic leadership intends to rush the bill to the House floor next week in hopes of further calming demands for amending the Constitution and of defusing an issue Democrats fear.

The statute provides penalties of up to a year in jail plus a fine, the amount of which is not specified, for anyone who burns or otherwise physically desecrates a flag.

Workers' comp

AUSTIN (AP) — State politicians who come court-ting labor better have their workers' compensation papers in order, a top Texas labor official said.

Joe Gunn, secretary-treasurer of the Texas AFL-CIO, said Wednesday state office seekers who want labor's endorsement are going to be asked to support labor's efforts in workers' comp at the next special legislative session.

Gunn, who is expected to be elected president of the 220,000 member union Saturday, described the business-backed reforms adopted by the House as a "devastating bill" that would have created the "employer protection agency."

Kelly AFB fire

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Eyewitnesses say firefighters responding to a fatal fire that destroyed a B-52 bomber had to wait as much as 10 minutes for a gate to be unlocked before they could battle the aircraft blaze.

The San Antonio Express-News reported today that eyewitnesses, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said the Air Force firefighters in six fire trucks had to wait until someone unlocked the gate at Kelly Air Force Base.

Completed sentences...

Cuban inmates continue hunger strike

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — More than half the 124 Cuban inmates at a South Texas detention center are on hunger strike to protest a government policy allowing them to be imprisoned indefinitely after finishing their sentences.

The 76 inmates at Webb County Law Enforcement Center, all arrivals on the Mariel Boatlift of the early 1980s, said they will continue their week-old hunger strike until the INS releases them.

"We're fighting for human rights. The United States accuses Cuba of being the worst violator of human rights and it is just as bad. Unless they release us all, we're not going to eat. We'd rather die than live this way," Cuban inmate Rolando Sanchez Guerra said Tuesday.

All the prisoners have completed sentences for various crimes and were transferred to the jail in Laredo. There, the INS keeps them on "immigration hold," meaning they can be detained until they are deported to Cuba. The trouble is that Cuba is not accepting deportees, so the inmates are jailed indefinitely while INS officials ponder their fates.

The protesting inmates say they should be released to their families or halfway houses, just as other Cuban convicts have been released.

"We've served our time and we want our liberty," Sanchez said. "It's an injustice.... They told us that if we showed good conduct, they would release us, but they haven't."

Eighty-one of the detainees in the center stopped eating last Thursday, INS spokesman Mario Ortiz said Wednesday from Dallas. Five have eaten since the hunger strike began, he said. None have been hospitalized. Ortiz said the INS doesn't plan to change any policies because of the hunger strike.

The Cubans, also called "Marielitos," have been kept in jail for various reasons, said Emilio Saenz, supervisor of the INS deportation office in Laredo.

The main reasons have to do with the severity of their crimes, the threat of recidivism and overcrowding of halfway houses.

Sanchez and Cuban inmates Ramiro Garcia Larrondo and Carlos Bravo said county jail of-officials have written letters saying their conduct has been good and without incident. But Saenz said the two-person INS review panel takes more into account than letters of recommendation.

"Some inmates have a high probability of going back into society and committing the same crimes or worse," he said, adding that narcotics traffickers often are considered as dangerous as violent criminals.

"We don't want to put these guys out in the streets where they will be pushing drugs to our kids," Saenz said.

Sanchez said jailers have treated the inmates well, and that prisoners' complaints are against the INS.

Juan Gutierrez, the chief sheriff's deputy, said the striking inmates are in good shape. "These individuals have been very disciplined," Gutierrez said. "They don't give us any problems. All they're trying to do is bring attention to their plight. They've always been model prisoners with us."

Sanchez said he was imprisoned in New York, then was transferred to the Webb County jail in 1986 and has been on immigration hold since.

Garcia said he has been in immigration hold for two years after completing a four-year sentence for burglary. He said he received a letter 16 months ago saying he would be released, but the day has never come.

It is unlikely all the inmates will be released to halfway houses or their families soon, Saenz said.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 52-year-old daughter is in the hospital for hyperthyroidism. I understand she will be given a radioactive capsule that might make her nervous for a while

What are your comments?
DEAR READER: Hyperthyroidism (an overactive thyroid gland) means that too much thyroid hormone is present in the body, causing weight loss, nervousness and rapid pulse, among other symptoms. There are three treatments:

- Several medicines reduce the thyroid gland's production of excess hormone. These pills must be taken for months and can then be stopped; nonetheless, hyperthyroidism may recur, necessitating further therapy. People can develop allergies to them and may have to consider other forms of treatment.

- Surgery, to remove part of the thyroid gland, is useful in controlling symptoms if the gland is large or if there are discrete areas (nodules) in the tissue that are overproducing.

- Radioactive iodine is administered in a capsule. The iodine is trapped by the thyroid gland, and the radioactive energy destroys the hormone-producing tissue. This is safe, effective therapy and rarely has to be repeated. RAI treatment may ultimately lead to an underactive thyroid state, requiring chronic thyroid-hormone replacement.

In order for RAI to be appropriately trapped in the gland, it must be given while the tissue is active, i.e. before other treatment is used. The sudden rush of iodine to an already overactive gland can cause a temporary increase in symptoms. This is usually not a problem because these symptoms (jitters and palpitations) can be easily controlled with beta-blocking drugs, while the RAI is working.

If your daughter's doctors believe she is a suitable candidate for RAI and if she has been told of the potential side effects (initial nervousness, followed by possible thyroid underactivity), I believe this treatment is indicated.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can you tell me about a Baker's cyst? Is there anything I can do for the pain that grows worse each day?

DEAR READER: A Baker's cyst (named after William Baker, a 19th century British surgeon) is a swelling behind the knee, caused by a leakage of joint fluid. The fluid becomes trapped in the tissues outside the joint, producing what is called a synovial cyst that can be quite painful. The most satisfactory treatment for a Baker's cyst is surgical removal by an orthopedic surgeon. Until then, try over-the-counter pain medicine, such as acetaminophen or ibuprofen, or ask your doctor for a prescription pain reliever.

Giraffe or zebra?

MAMBASA, Zaire (AP) — Okapi look like a cross between a giraffe and a zebra and live only in the forests of northeastern Zaire.

Their existence was first noted in 1900 in a report by British explorer Sir Harvey Johnston. This finding of a short-necked giraffe living in the middle of a rain forest astonished the zoologists of the day, as it was then presumed all the world's large mammals had already been discovered.

'Vacuum cleaners' for space litter

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Kumar Ramohalli imagines a fleet of giant "vacuum cleaners" orbiting the Earth — half-ton robots that grow larger and more powerful as they clean up space-age litter.

But a Ramohalli vacuum cleaner wouldn't look like a typical Hoover upright.

The plastic hoses, disposable paper bags and tangled cords would be replaced by gold-coated mirrors, square plastic lenses and a beam of light that could cut metal like a blowtorch.

"We envision a fleet of about 10 or 12 of these 'vacuum cleaners,'" the University of Arizona aerospace engineer said recently as he showed off his Autonomous Space Processor of Orbital Debris — also known as the space-junk collector.

Ramohalli and his aerospace and mechanical engineering students recently completed a working model of the junk collector.

In June, they demonstrated the machine for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which supplies about $22,000 a year for project development.

Now, the machine's solar-powered torch cuts through soda cans on a laboratory table. By the mid-1990s, one of these roving robots could be tracking and consuming space debris 300 to 400 miles above Earth.

"Our job is to show that it can be done, proving the technology beyond a doubt," said Ramohalli.

More than 19,000 objects have been sent into orbit since Sputnik was launched by the Soviet Union in 1957.

Diamonds found in India 3,000 years ago

NEW YORK (AP) — The diamond was discovered in India more than 3,000 years ago and was described as a breath of eternity. Thus diamonds have long been symbolic of lasting love.

Just be sure that the diamond engagement or wedding ring you choose is of a style that is timeless — and of a quality that makes it a good investment.

"No two diamonds are alike," says Lloyd Jaffe, chairman of the American Diamond Industry Association, "and of course as with any commodity, the rarer the diamond, the more expensive the stone."

The price of a diamond is equally dependent on four factors, says Jaffe — Shape (cut), color, weight (carat) and degree of perfection (clarity).

CUT: The shape of the diamond — round, oval, emerald cut, heart, marquise, pear-shape — is a matter of personal taste. A fully cut diamond has 58 facets which, when properly proportioned, will maximize the 'fire' in the stone. Round stones traditionally are the most popular.

CARAT: The larger the size, the rarer the stone and the greater its value. A carat is roughly equivalent to one-fifth of a gram.

CLARITY: The number and location of imperfections in a stone determine its clarity grade. A diamond with fewer flaws is rarer and therefore more valuable.

COLOR: Diamonds come in a variety of colors ranging from colorless (blue-white) to deep yellows. Those closest to colorless are more desirable.

In the end, says Jaffe, "... appearance, the element which helps reflect individual taste, should be the primary factor for the buyer to consider."

Summer reading program to end

The Scurry County Library would like to remind their young readers there are less than three weeks remaining for the Summer Reading Program. Those children who have not completed reading 10 and 15 books are urged by library personnel to do so by the morning of Aug. 11.

For reading 10 books, children receive a reading certificate, and for reading 15 books, they have a chance to enter the drawing for a bicycle donated by McDonald's. Library personnel suggest that readers continue reading even though they may have received all the prizes.

Every group of 15 books earns another chance to enter the drawing for the bicycle.

Attorneys celebrate

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Lawyers for Central Americans celebrated a federal judge's ruling that the Immigration and Naturalization Service improperly dismissed Salvadorans' political asylum cases as frivolous, but INS officials say it hasn't changed anything.

Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler said the Immigration and Naturalization Service wrongly denied work permits to asylum applicants because examiners found them "unconvincing" in interviews, without considering the conditions they alleged on their applications.

Asylum-seekers who are denied work permits often are forced to abandon their cases for economic reasons, the judge said.

The INS does not plan to alter its work authorization procedures because the case now affects only seven plaintiffs, said INS spokeswoman Virginia Kice, in Harlingen.

Justice on Friday ordered the INS to readjudicate the cases of six Salvadorans who were denied work authorization while applying for asylum. The INS must reconsider the case of a seventh Salvadoran whose work request was not adjudicated within the required 60-day period.

"From the evidence adduced to date, it appears that the (INS) misapplies its interpretation of the term frivolous with respect to its review of both the factual allegations and legal theories underlying claims for asylum," Justice wrote.

The Salvadorans' attorneys are seeking certification of the case as a class-action applying to all asylum-seekers in Texas.

Thousands of Central Americans have been detained in South Texas since the INS in February began a one-day adjudication process to discourage a flood of asylum claims. Most Central Americans' claims are frivolous, INS officials say, because the applicants come to the United States for economic reasons, not to escape persecution.

"If the applicants appear to have a good case for political asylum, we are inclined to give them work authorization," Ms. Kice said. "But most of the cases we get in the Harlingen District are from people here to look for work."

Those denied asylum in the get-tough procedure are immediately detained pending deportation.

Robert Rubin, an attorney for the Salvadorans, said the judge's criticism of how the INS applies its "frivolous" standard undermines the detention policy.

"It would certainly be our position that there is no basis for detaining that person," Rubin said. "The whole justification for the detention policy is that the claims were considered frivolous and the people would abscond unless detained."

Rubin, who works for the National Refugee Rights Project of the San Francisco Lawyers Committee for Urban Affairs, was interviewed by telephone.

Rubin said the judge's ruling is particularly important because "the INS sees the denial of work authorizations as a means to discourage persons from pursuing their asylum claims."

Three-year-old Rachael Eubank, with her 5-year-old brother, Joshua, a passenger in the Buick, was taken by her father to Cogdell Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released.

The DPS also reported a 2:27 p.m. Monday accident in which a 1984 Ford F-150 pickup driven by

Tick-borne ailment rare

COPPELL, Texas (AP) — Every article Nancy Clayton reads about Lyme disease seems to end with the same phrase: "But it's primarily confined to the Northeast."

For Mrs. Clayton, diagnosed as having Lyme disease, the words offer no consolation. They don't pump energy into her always-tired body or erase the ever-present rash on her legs.

She lies on her bed — "my comfort zone," she calls it — most of the day. From there, she can reach her telephone and a box of graham crackers. When her sensitive eyes aren't covered, she can look at the dozens of get-well cards that hang from her draperies.

"The highlight of my day is the mailman coming," she says. "For a while, though, I was too weak to even walk to the mailbox. I'd have to wait for my husband to come home at noon."

Mrs. Clayton wants to complete the journalism degree she started several years ago and to reopen her crafts business. She doesn't want Lyme disease to consume her life.

But right now, that's exactly what it's doing. She can hardly think of anything but the disease. She constantly receives phone calls from people who share her symptoms. She collects information about it, much of which she sends to doctors around Texas.

"The problem is that articles say, 'See your doctor,' and we do," Mrs. Clayton says. "But doctors are not aware."

She talks about one young man who went to nine doctors before his Lyme was diagnosed. She was luckier — she saw three doctors before receiving an accurate diagnosis.

The test for Lyme disease, however, isn't totally accurate, say health care professionals. It detects a person's exposure to the organism, but does not necessarily determine if the disease is present, says Karen Herndon of the Dallas County Health Department.

"Lyme disease can mimic many other illnesses," says Mrs. Herndon, who is the department's nurse coordinator for communicable diseases. "The symptoms are symptoms of anything or nothing. It's a diagnostic dilemma for physicians."

Mrs. Herndon acknowledges that Lyme is present in Texas, but downplays its frequency.

"Lyme is an epidemic of the media," she says. "On a usual day, we get three or four calls. After there's something in the media, we get eight to 10 calls. People think, 'I got bitten by a tick one time and I must have it.'"

Still, at the State Department of Health in Austin, microbiologist Julie Rawlings says the disease is more common than reported. Last year, 25 cases were diagnosed in Texas. As of several weeks ago, 13 cases already had been reported this year. She estimates that there are really five to 10 times that many.

"We're still hearing from physicians that the disease doesn't exist in Texas, but it does," she says. "We're trying to make people aware — we're not trying to scare them."

She recommends seeing a doctor if a rash results from a tick bite. At an early stage, Lyme disease is easily treated, she says.

Mrs. Clayton's condition is considered treatable, but not curable. She takes antibiotics and tries to be optimistic. She hasn't felt well since December 1987, after a weekend in Salado, Texas. During the trip, she was bitten by a tick. It probably came into the house on her dog or on her husband's clothing — she had rarely gone outside during the weekend, preferring to stay inside and read.

A month later, she developed what seemed like an extreme case of the flu. Her head pounded, her stomach was upset, she had a fever and hallucinations. Every muscle was sore.

"Even my hair hurt," she says. "At first I was afraid I was going to die. Then I was so afraid I wouldn't die."

She spent a week in the hospital, where she underwent numerous tests, including a CAT scan of her brain. Her blood count was low; otherwise her test results were normal. The first two doctors she consulted gave her painkillers, but the third prescribed an antibiotic. He also sent a blood sample to Austin, where the Texas Department of Health diagnosed her condition as Lyme disease.

She started feeling better and was off medication for 15 months. Then, gradually, her troubles returned. She couldn't pick up a coffee cup. Even holding a pen hurt. When she walked from her car to her journalism classes, her chest burned and her heart pumped wildly. But it was the mental problems that frightened her most.

The disease has affected her family life, too. Her husband started cooking and doing chores that previously were Mrs. Clayton's domain.

Julio Franco drives in three in Rangers' win Wednesday

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Kevin Brown marvels at the accomplishments of California Angels rookie pitcher Jim Abbott.

"You have to admire what he's done," the Texas Rangers rookie right-hander said Wednesday night after he scattered seven hits over eight innings to lead the Rangers to an 11-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

"He's an inspiration to anyone who has to overcome adversity. I hope he has a great year," Brown said.

But while Abbott has drawn national attention, Brown has quietly placed himself solidly in contention among American League Rookie-of-the-Year pitching candidates.

While Brown provided the pitching, Julio Franco drove in three runs to give him the American League RBI leadership with 73.

What's at hand is the Rangers' pursuit of American League West leader California, still 5 1/2 games ahead of Texas.

But if Brown continues to pitch as he has been all season, Brown and Nolan Ryan will give the Rangers at least two solid starters for the pennant drive.

In winning his last two starts, Brown has allowed two runs in 17 innings to lower his ERA to 2.90. Wednesday night Brown struck out four and didn't walk a batter for the first time in 20 starts this season.

Brown is rapidly becoming a complete pitcher.

"I'm trying to make myself realize I don't have to throw every pitch by them," said the 24-year-old Brown. "If I can throw the ball like I'm capable, I can keep us close and give us a chance to win."

"We've talked about it. Instead of grind, grind, grind, fastball, fastball, fastball, I'll take something off it. I don't have to overpower everybody."

Ranger pitching coach Tom House said Brown deserves serious Rookie-of-the-Year consideration among pitchers along with Abbott and Kansas City's Tom Gordon.

plays, and rightfully so," said House. "He's overcome things that most athletes have never even had to think about."

"But if Kevin Brown does what he's capable of, and we're competitive, I'm willing to bet he'll have better numbers. Now what that means as far as the media is concerned is anybody's guess."

The Rangers gave Brown a 2-0 lead in the fourth on RBI singles by Franco and Steve Buechele off Blue Jays starter Mike Flanagan, 6-7.

Flanagan lost for the first time since June 27.

The Blue Jays finished the Texas segment of the current 11-game road trip by taking two of three from the Rangers and climb back into contention in the American League East.

With division-leading Baltimore's loss to Minnesota

Wednesday night, the Blue Jays remained in second place, tied with Cleveland 4 1-2 games behind.

"It seemed like we were a little flat," Flanagan said. "We've been on the road for quite a while. We've covered a lot of miles but we took two of three in a place where it isn't easy to play."

Texas broke the game open with a five-run sixth keyed by Franco's two-run double.

Sierra and Pete Incaviglia also provided RBI singles in the inning and another run scored on reliever Frank Wills' wild pitch.

Eighth inning homers by Rafael Palmeiro and Buechele completed the Rangers' 16-hit attack.

The double elimination format of the event gives the Snyder team a definite advantage.

The winner of the District 5 crown will battle the District 6 champions in a best two-out-of-three series. District 6 is comprised of the teams competing in the Wichita Falls area.

The Texas State Little League Tournament will begin Aug. 7 in Waco and the Regional tourney is slated to start Aug. 14 in St. Petersburg, Fla. Winners in the regional competition will advance to the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa.

Dear Abby

Woman Feels Guilty Despite Medical Decision for Abortion

By Abigail Van Buren

© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have one child who is 4 years old. I have tried three times to carry a baby to term, but I had all kinds of trouble and lost them.

The last time, I started to hemorrhage badly, so the doctor had to do an emergency D and C to save me. Knowing that I had done everything I could to prevent this miscarriage, I did not feel guilty, but when I received my bill from the doctor, I felt like I had committed murder! The bill stated abortion!

I called the doctor's office and asked that they remove the word "abortion" from my record and replace it with "miscarriage." I was told that "miscarriage" is not a medical term, and they couldn't do it.

Abby, I would not have let the doctor perform a D and C on me if I had known that it would go on my record as having had an abortion. What can I do? Please save me and others like me from this distress.

PRO-LIFE MOM

DEAR PRO-LIFE MOM: You need not feel as though you committed murder; you did not. The medical term for "miscarriage" is "spontaneous abortion," which means that your body aborted the baby — you did not intentionally terminate the pregnancy.

Ask your doctor personally to mark your record "miscarriage." God knows that you did not order a D and C to terminate your pregnancy. The doctor performed that procedure to save your life, so please don't feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: I received a very disturbing call from my son. He wanted to know if I was leaving him anything in my will, or if I was planning to leave everything to my other child. He made it very clear to me that he felt it was his right to know.

Please understand, Abby, this son is very successful financially — that's why I was truly shocked that he would demand to know what was in my will. I told him that I did not feel comfortable disclosing what was in my will. He again stated that it was his "right" to know.

I am not exactly senile (I am 62) and would like to hear your thoughts on the matter. Also, have other parents been asked this question, and how did they handle it?

DISTRAUGHT IN CHICAGO

DEAR DISTRAUGHT: You were correct to tell your son that you did not feel comfortable disclosing the contents of your will. You are under no obligation to discuss this very personal matter with your son or anyone else. It is not his "right" to know. On the contrary — it is your right to preserve your privacy.

DEAR ABBY: How can I get a message across to some very close friends of mine without hurting anyone's feelings? These people are always late. When they say they will be over at 6 p.m., they show up at 7 p.m. When they tell me they will pick me up at 12 noon, they don't get here until 12:45.

I have asked them to please be on time because I am always prompt and make it my business never to keep anybody waiting.

Is it too late to train them?

FRUSTRATED IN PHOENIX

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Yes; they have already trained you. If you want to be on time, don't depend on them for transportation. And if you want them at your home at 6 p.m., invite them for 5 p.m.

TIME TO FEED — Shawna Conatser readies her horse, Crow Bait, to gather up cattle at feed time. Conatser feeds at 7 a.m. and after she gets off work at Pioneer Furniture, the family business.

Conatser prefers grit of ranch life to glitz

The glitz and glamour of the big city wasn't enough for Shawna Conatser, 23, now a five-month resident of the Snyder area. The grit of the ranch life interests her more.

After her grandmother's death, Conatser found herself in Snyder living with her uncle, Rev. John Fenton, and her grandfather, Myron Fenton, on a ranch east of town.

Conatser moved to Snyder from Tulsa, Okla., where she was a representative for Sebastian Hair Products. She managed the Tulsa office for 1 1/2 years and was involved in field sales for 2 1/2 years.

Her job had her doing hair shows — sometimes modeling — to promote the products, Conatser said.

She now works at the family business, Pioneer Furniture, and helps out on the Fenton land.

Her duties on the ranch include feeding, plowing, fence repair and other things as needed.

She says she likes the country life much better than the rat-race of the city.

Conatser says her plans to remain in Snyder are "pretty permanent."

Whitman victim wants to buy gun

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin funeral home owner says he wants to buy the rifle that Charles Whitman used to wound him 23 years ago during a shooting rampage from the University of Texas tower that left 14 people dead and 31 others wounded.

Morris Hohmann said Wednesday he wants to buy the 6mm rifle that was among seven guns Whitman took to the top of the tower in a footlocker before he began his sniping rampage. Earlier, he had killed his wife and mother.

Whitman was shot to death by an Austin police officer after the officer and a civilian managed to reach the top of the tower and confronted Whitman as he continued to fire at random targets on August 1, 1966.

The guns were offered for sale last month for $7,500 by a Dallas-area gun dealer.

Hohmann was an ambulance attendant for Hyltin-Manor Funeral Chapel when he was shot in the leg and wounded. He now owns the funeral home and wants to buy the gun that put him in Brackenridge Hospital for 21 days.

"I'll always carry some of the lead particles (left in his body from the slug), and I've got some of the cartridges. Why not have the rifle that did it?" Hohmann said Wednesday.

Another man who talked to Whitman that day during a chance encounter says he wants to buy one of the weapons.

After killing his mother and wife, police said, Whitman went to his garage to saw off the barrel and stock of a 12-gauge shotgun so it would fit into the footlocker.

A postal carrier and former state trooper named Chester Arrington stopped to chat after leaving the Whitman family mail at the house.

Arrington, now a gun dealer and still an Austin resident, said Wednesday he is trying to buy the shotgun.

"He had the gun in a vise, and I talked to him while he sawed off the barrel and the stock," Arrington said.

The body of Whitman's wife, a bayonet in her heart, still lay inside the house.

"It was approximately an hour and 45 minutes before the killings. He was real calm. Very, very, very, calm," Arrington recalled.

Arrington said he had talked to the seller of the gun several times, and had made an offer for the shotgun and the rifle.

First city fires executive

HOUSTON (AP) — First City Bancorp. of Texas fired its general counsel and said it will give federal regulators information concerning more than $18,000 in funds missing from the Houston-based bank holding company.

Glen G. Magnuson Jr., 46, an executive vice president with the company for the past two years, was dismissed Wednesday after an internal audit turned up embezzlement and other questionable practices, First City spokesman James E. Day said.

In confirmation fight...

Lucas wins undecided Senator Specter

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Lucas understands civil rights issues "in his gut" rather than in strict legal terms, says a senator who now backs the controversial nominee to be the Bush administration's chief civil rights enforcer.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., gave Lucas a boost Wednesday when he announced his support in a speech on the Senate floor. The Senate Judiciary Committee could vote on the nomination today.

Specter had been the only GOP senator on the committee whose vote was in doubt.

Civil rights groups have criticized Lucas, a black Michigan Republican, as lacking qualifications for the job.

"It's more important to have someone who understands Supreme Court decisions from personal experience, knows it so to speak in his gut, as opposed to someone who knows where to put all the commas and semicolons," Specter said.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., is leaning toward voting in favor of Lucas but his position is not final. Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., who has not taken a position, is the biggest question mark among committee members.

If Heflin joined DeConcini and the six Republicans in supporting Lucas, the nomination would go to the Senate with a favorable recommendation.

However, the nomination could still go to the full Senate without any recommendation from the panel, or an unfavorable recommendation if Heflin votes against confirmation.

Lucas, 61, a lifelong Democrat who joined the GOP in 1985, was sheriff and later chief executive of Wayne County, which includes Detroit. He ran unsuccessfully for Michigan governor as a Republican in 1986.

EPA says air dirtier in '88

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's skies became more polluted in 1988, with up to 30 million more Americans now living in communities with unhealthy air, the Environmental Protection Agency said today.

New EPA data shows that 101 geographical areas now violate standards for ozone, the chief ingredient of smog, and 44 have unhealthy carbon monoxide levels.

But in addition to identifying polluted areas under current law, the data has major implications for the future if Congress approves new clean air legislation this session.

Any new law would be expected to use the information to establish new deadlines for pollution cleanup, and could determine the severity of measures each area must adopt in order to make steady progress.

The newly compiled figures, when applied to President Bush's clean air proposal, would bump the Chicago-Gary, Ind., area into the top category for ozone pollution, allowing a 20-year cleanup in return for adopting tough, anti-pollution measures.

President Bush previously identified New York, northern New Jersey, Houston and Los Angeles as cities that would be in the two-decade "severe" category.

Another 27 cities under the administration plan would be listed in the "serious" ozone category, and have 10 years to clear their air while undertaking similar measures. A list compiled by The Associated Press on July 19, using slightly older data, identified 19 cities in the "serious" category.

The most polluted areas for carbon monoxide, under the Bush bill, would be New York-northern New Jersey; Steubenville Ohio-Weirton, W.Va.; Winnebago County, Wis.; Los Angeles; and Spokane, Wash. They would have a 10-year cleanup period, during which a change in motor vehicle fuels and tighter vehicle emissions standards would be used to improve air quality. Another 39 areas would be under a lesser category in a two-tiered system, and be expected to meet the standards in five years through the vehicle emission reductions.

The EPA blamed the hot, dry summer of 1988 for pushing the number of ozone violators past the century mark, an increase of 37 smoggy areas from a year ago. Not a single geographical area improved air quality enough to cross the line from violation to compliance.

The worsening situation for ozone was tempered somewhat by a net decrease in areas failing to comply with the carbon monoxide standard. EPA officials credited tighter motor vehicle standards, established under the 12-year-old current law, for the improvement.

The 44 areas in violation represent a decrease of eight following the deletion of 12 non-compliance areas and the addition of four.

But it is the combined impact of both pollutants that demonstrates how the air pollution problem is getting worse.
