

AJRA Rodeo returns to Snyder on Aug. 7 for 14th straight year

For the 14th consecutive year Snyder shines its boots and dusts off its cowboy hats, string up the familiar red, white and blue banners and opens its doors for perhaps the top youth rodeo event across the nation.

The AJRA National Finals Rodeo is back, scheduled Aug. 8-12 in Scurry County Coliseum and under local sponsorship of the chamber of commerce and Board of County Development.

Top cowboys and cowgirls from throughout the region will mix with well-known professionals for the event, the finals of which will be telecast.

Rodeo action actually gets underway as early as Sunday, Aug. 6, when the youngest of the youngsters - 8-and-under age boys and girls - compete in the Corky Ogden Memorial World Champion Barrel Race at 1 p.m. On Monday, Aug. 7, at 10 a.m., the AJRA team roping finals takes place in the coliseum. Racing slack will be held each morning starting Tuesday, Aug. 8 at 9 p.m.

There is no admission fee for the champion barrel race, the team roping finals or slack performances.

Rodeo performances begin Tuesday and run nightly at 8 p.m. through Saturday. Tickets may be purchased in advanced at the chamber of commerce. Box seats are $6 and general admission $4 for adults and $2 for children under age 12.

Among the top rodeo professionals and celebrities returning for the rodeo will be Bob Tallman of Baker, Oregon, who serves as announcer for the ninth consecutive year. Co-announcer will be Curt Robinson of Eugene, Oregon. Rodeo clowns and bullfighters Rick Chatman and Leon Coffee return to provide extra entertainment and protect the young bullriders. Pam Menick will also be back for her fourth year to assist Tallman with the telecast. Zoli Vajda, who has produced and directed the PRCA National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas the past three years, will again be in charge of the telecast.

Mitch and Mark Terrell of Anson, T-n-T Rodeo Company, are the stock producers.

National sponsors of the AJRA National Finals Rodeo and telecast this year are Wrangler, Wall's Industries, Phillips 66 Co. and Barq's Root Beer.

"Miss AJRA" will be crowned on Friday, Aug. 11, by Kalyann Key of Gail, reigning Miss AJRA.

Other activities will be a meeting of the Cowboy's Fellowship of Christian Athletes at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 9, in the coliseum. Special speaker will be Paul Luchsinger of Atoka, Okla. His wife, Susie Luchsinger, will provide special music, along with New Creations of Lamesa.

Country disco dances will be held in the coliseum annex building nightly Monday through Saturday. The public is invited each night except Thursday, which will be the AJRA party night for members and their families only. Disco will be furnished by Hi-Fi Mobile Music Service of Lubbock. Video of rodeo performances each night can be viewed on a large screen at the dances.

Championship awards presentations to all the Junior World Champions will be held in the coliseum Saturday morning, Aug. 12, at 10 o'clock. The public is invited to attend the awards

Q. — When will the local teachers making Career Ladder III be announced?

A. — School officials are still sorting through changes in the state law, but the current indication is that the addition of requirements for Level III placement may postpone ultimate selection until next June. If this occurs, however, the teachers would be paid a lump sum which would have the same effect as receiving monthly payments beginning this September.

For success

A third freshman success seminar is slated Tuesday at Western Texas College.

All full-time entering freshmen are required to attend one of the seminars which serve as an orientation to the campus and allow students to pre-register for the fall semester starting Aug. 30.

A fee of $15 is charged, which covers lunch on campus for the student and his parents as well as the fee for the ASSET test if it is required.

New students

The counselor's office at Snyder High School will be open from 8 a.m. until 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Students new to the public school system may come by the office to arrange schedules for the 1989-90 school year. School officials note that students will need to bring a copy of their transcript from their previous school and their social security number.

A day of registration is scheduled for Aug. 8 but students are encouraged to register before if possible. Also, an orientation for freshmen and new students is planned before the beginning of school. The date and time are to be announced.

Commissioners

Scurry County commissioners Monday will consider signing a minute order that would authorize the state highway department to proceed with the landfill road paving project east of Snyder.

Area highway department right-of-way acquisition representative Billy Jackson appeared before the court earlier this month to say that a minute order would be required soon for the project to proceed.

The department has agreed to make the two-mile landfill road, south of the Texas Department of Corrections' Price Daniel Unit, part of a farm-to-market road that will include the county paved road along the west side of the prison and Camp Springs Rd. from northwest of the prison to U.S. 84 in northern Snyder.

Other business in the 10 a.m. meeting will include setting a date for a public hearing on the county's proposed 1990 budget and hearing County Treasurer Rita Staton's quarterly report.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Friday, 93 degrees; low, 69 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Saturday, 70 degrees; no rain; total precipitation for 1989 to date, 6.74 inches.

Area Forecast: Sunday, partly cloudy with isolated late afternoon thunderstorms. High in the mid 90s with south wind 10 to 20 mph and gusty. Rain chance less than 20 percent.

Second prison bid off to Huntsville

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Snyder's second bid for a 1,000-bed state prison—10 bound book folders comprised of 145 pages each—was boarded on a plane Friday morning and flown to Huntsville.

The deadline to submit is Monday, and as many as 150 Texas communities are projected to be potential applicants.

For local project organizers, the second bid process was familiar ground, a fact recognized ed by what coordinator Roy Baze calls "the competition."

Since Snyder proved a successful bidder with the first round of prison construction, announced on Nov. 9, 1987, Baze said it seemed only reasonable that other applicants might seek out information during the second phase.

In expectation of this, those associated with bid specifications here were gathered together early on.

In response to any inquiries from other communities, Baze said he advised a simple reply. "I told them to say this is a competitive bid process," a "polite" way of telling them to seek advice elsewhere.

This prediction for inquiries proved true, he noted, as city, county and utility officials sought out their local counterparts.

Officials with a nearby city went so far as to contact Baze earlier this year. "I told them 'I'm sorry, but we're competitors,'" he recalls.

The bid specifications—technically called the "request for proposal" or "RFP"—were sent out by the Texas Department of Corrections on May 19.

Initially, communities seeking state prison projects were to have their bid proposals completed by June 30. The state later extended this to July 31, a fact which Baze commented, "didn't help us."

The complexity of the bid process was increased for the second round of bidding, he noted. "They wanted much more details this time," adding the state also required a greater accountability from cities submitting bids.

Regarding this, he said the state added a performance bond requirement, making communities pledge 5 percent of whatever they estimate the total value of their proposal.

If a prison was awarded and the bidder failed to deliver on their proposal within the specified time frame, they stand to lose this bond amount.

Another addition to the bid process may prove to be Snyder's (see Bid, page 9A)

Tax rolls note drop

Certified tax rolls have now been provided to the six taxing entities in Scurry County, figures which reflect a maximum one-year drop in value equaling near 11 percent.

The declines place all local values below the $1 billion mark for the second year in a row. At its height, Scurry County had a taxable value in excess of $2.2 billion.

Snyder ISD suffered the greatest value drop—in excess of $89 million or 10.9 percent of the value it counted last year.

Scurry County as a taxing entity had the second largest percentage decline, a 9.7 percent loss equaling in excess of $91 million.

While its loss was a lower percentage, the college district formed to create Western Texas College lost almost $94 million from its tax rolls. This equaled a 9.4 percent loss when compared to last year.

The only other Snyder-based taxing entity, the City of Snyder, had a 3.5 percent loss in value which equaled just over $9 million.

For the two rural school districts, Ira, still by far the richer district, had a 4.4 percent decline while Hermleigh ISD had an increase of less than a percentage point.

Ira's loss totaled some $4.5 million and Hermleigh's gain was approximately $251,000.

The following lists the certified tax roll for each entity:

—Snyder ISD, a tax value of $722,146,390 compared to $811,163,509 last year. This equals a loss in value of $89,017,119 or 10.9 percent.

—Scurry County, a tax value of $855,066,056 compared to $946,566,859 last year. This equals a loss in value of $91,494,803 or 9.7 percent.

—Western Texas College, a tax value of $900,398,168 compared to $994,345,977 last year. This equals a loss in value of $93,947,809 or 9.4 percent.

—City of Snyder, a tax value of $247,556,830 compared to $256,616,653 last year. This equals a loss in value of $9,059,823 or 3.5 percent.

—Ira ISD, a tax value of $96,256,044 compared to $102,806,959 last year. This equals a loss in value of $4,550,895 or 4.4 percent.

—Hermleigh ISD, a tax value of $34,886,245 compared to $34,634,182 last year. This equals an increase in value of $251,335 or .72 of a percent.

Texaco plans restructuring

A spokesman for Texaco Friday confirmed that the Snyder sub-area office would be impacted by the company's nationwide restructuring of the production and exploration division.

Charlie Rentz, public affairs staffer in Midland, said Texaco is nearing completion of its company-wide reorganization.

The Snyder sub-area office, which operates the Cogdell-Canyon Reef unit, currently has about 35 employees. "We will continue to have an office in Snyder and do the same thing, but we will be taking a different approach and people are being moved around," Rentz said.

The process, according to Rentz, includes bumping by seniority and bidding for available jobs. He said the process is starting to wind down and could not say how many positions would remain in the Snyder area.

Local minister, wife witness contrasts during foreign visit

By JANA HARRINGTON
SDN Staff Writer

From the compassionate caring of Sweden to the stark oppression of Russia, a Snyder minister and his wife were able to experience the two cultures first hand this summer.

Rev. Miller Robinson and his wife, Sandra, recently returned from a trip to Europe with the American Summer Institute's study program for ministers.

In addition to Russia and Sweden, the Robinsons were part of a program which took them to Finland as well.

The theme of this year's study was "The Church East and West," contrasting the churches in Eastern Europe to those of the Western Hemisphere including the U.S.

The Greek Orthodox Church gained special attention since it is the largest denomination in Russia. After a week of study, the class traveled to Russia to tour some of the churches.

On their way to the learning seminar beginning in Sweden, the Robinsons stopped in Zurich in northern Switzerland and visited the Black Forests of Germany.

Their study of European churches took them to Sweden first, then to Finland and on to Russia. The order was reversed coming back, said Robinson.

In Sweden, Stockholm and Upsala, they found a high standard of living and a country that took care of their people "before they are born until death," Mrs. Robinson said. There were no slums.

Pine trees, fields of grain and red barns decorated the countryside. Mrs. Robinson said there were no row crops because of the short growing season.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A sharp tongue and a dull mind are often found in the same head."

Speaking of minds, a major personnel recruitment firm has completed a study that proves what we have often suspected—busy people are the most dependable.

People involved in civic endeavors, according to the study, also make the best employees. The study concluded that a person who sticks his head in the sand in his community will likely have the same head-in-the-sand attitude on the job.

It was concluded that service in civic and community groups is a good sign of character and willingness to be a team player.

It has often been said that a job that has to be done should be given to an already busy person. The new research indicates that the old theory may be correct.

Some of us would have more time if we were better organized. In another study of office efficiency—or lack of it—six out of 10 professionals are said to handle the same piece of paper on their desk as many as 21 times.

Back-to-school sales are beginning, even though the hot weather reminds us of anything but fall and the beginning of classes.

There has been concern about the discipline in public schools. We read about a high school in Colorado whose faculty decided to ban kissing and necking in the hallways.

The school adopted a "daylight" rule to put some distance between students. The American Civil Liberties Union has responded that it will become involved as soon as the school begins to administer punishment for violation of the rules.

It seems to us that the ACLU is the one needing the discipline out behind the woodshed.

Chinese dissidents attend first congress of students

CHICAGO (AP) — The "Goddess of Democracy" will stand again in Beijing's Tiananmen Square, pledged Chinese dissidents attending the first Congress of Chinese Students in the United States.

"Some say China has no hope for democracy, but I say the hope is just beginning," Wu'er Kaixi, a leader of the pro-democracy movement in Beijing, said Friday at the opening ceremony of the conference.

"I believe the Chinese can be united and will erect a Goddess of Democracy in Tiananmen Square one day," Wu'er told about 400 people at an auditorium at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

Delegates from 130 universities are attending the organization's founding conference, which will wind up Sunday. Thousands of Chinese students who were studying abroad when the government crushed the student democracy movement in Beijing and other cities have decided not to return home.

Wu'er, 21, who fled China after the military crackdown there in June, told the crowd to continue the battle for democracy. "We can't rely on begging or wait for a next time," he said. "We must try now!"

Behind him, a plaster replica of the Goddess of Democracy erected by Chinese protesters in Beijing overlooked the crowd, which cheered and stamped their feet as Wu'er shouted pro-democracy slogans.

The original Goddess, fashioned after the Statue of Liberty, was torn down by the Chinese government after the military crushed the student democracy movement that had occupied Tiananmen Square.

The students dismissed the Communist Party's announcement Friday that it was reining in corruption and nepotism. The party shut down two state-owned conglomerates, including one linked to senior leader Deng Xiaoping's son, and ordered an end to many of the special privileges enjoyed by high officials.

"Why are they doing it now? Because they have committed crimes, killed people demonstrating for basic human rights. Now they are trying to console people's anguish," said Jie Hu, a Northwestern University student.

Wu'er was one of six dissident leaders who attended the opening ceremony. All fled China and later surfaced in Paris, where they have been trying to rally worldwide support for the pro-democracy movement in their homeland.

In 1862, Union volunteers led by James J. Andrews stole a Confederate train near Marietta, Ga., but were later caught. This episode inspired the Buster Keaton movie "The General."

Rape...

Former Houston officer convicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A former city policeman was convicted of kidnapping a drunken woman at a nightclub under the guise of an arrest, then raping her in a park.

A jury will decide on James Cebula's punishment Monday in State District Judge Mike McSpadden's court. Cebula could face life in prison. His lawyers are arguing for probation.

Cebula was convicted on one count each of kidnapping and sexual assault in the May 2, 1988 abduction of a 24-year-old woman from The Play Club in Houston.

Cebula and security guard Keith Ferguson, 22, rode together in Cebula's patrol car to check on a report of a screaming woman.

Cebula acted like he arrested the woman, but drove her to a park, when she was raped, allegedly by both men. Ferguson has been charged with rape and is awaiting trial.

The state's case against Cebula rested on a secret tape recording of a May 19, 1988, conversation between Cebula and Ferguson. Police had Ferguson wear a radio transmitter during the dialogue.

In the recording, Cebula boastfully said he had purged the rape scene and police car of evidence and no one could make a criminal case against them.

Defense lawyer Dick DeGuerin contended the recording was illegal, and jurors were given the option of ignoring it if they chose. It was uncertain if they did.

DeGuerin had 13 witnesses, including Cebula's mother, testify during the trial, which has lasted three weeks.

The portrait that emerged from their testimony was of a New York-born, college graduate from a good family, and a dedicated, religious father of three boys.

"This crime, as bad as it is, is an aberration," DeGuerin argued. "It's something that's never happened before and will never happen again. Do you believe Jim Cebula is without redemption? Do you believe Jim Cebula is a lost soul? If you do, send him to prison; if you do not, send him to me."

DeGuerin repeatedly referred to the rape victim's former common-law husband and one of her companions the night she was kidnapped. Both now are in prison.

Ex-HUD official accused of 'cashing in' on program

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former HUD official says he made recommendations that "ultimately benefited" people with whom he now works, and a congressman is calling for a Justice Department investigation.

Joseph Monticciolo, former New York regional administrator for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, was grilled Friday by members of a House subcommittee investigating allegations of wrongdoing at HUD.

He denied any wrongdoing during his seven-year HUD tenure, but was harshly questioned by Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., about a 1984 memo in which Monticciolo had made recommendations about a company he later joined.

"I made recommendations to Washington that ultimately benefited people who are now partners of mine," Monticciolo said, adding that the final decision came from Washington.

"I'm going to have people look at what you've done because there was a quid pro quo," Shays said. "I'm hopeful and I would expect that the attorney general's office will look into what you've done because you've cashed in."

Monticciolo is chief executive of Eagle Capital Group, a real estate development company with contracts in Rockland County, N.Y., Puerto Rico and New Jersey.

Some of the partners were involved in a controversial 1983 deal in which they bought seven HUD properties in New York and Connecticut valued at $10.5 million price but put up only $550,000.

The developers later sold the property, making a reported $17 million profit.

Monticciolo said he had made recommendations to HUD that benefited the developers, who later hired him for a $125,000-a-year job and made him a 15 percent partner for no up-front cash.

At one point, Monticciolo told the panel that HUD's Section 8 moderate rehabilitation program was "50 percent political," with half the money going to developers who were GOP contributors or well-connected to the administration. Monticciolo also said he had never recommended a project for that program, which has been suspended.

But when Shays confronted him with a HUD memo about several such projects in New York and Puerto Rico — Monticciolo's region — the former administrator admitted having discussed the projects with the public housing authorities.

"We can't rely on a thing you said," Rep. Bruce Morrison, D-Conn., said. "You say one thing when you don't have the document and when the document is in front of you, you say something diametrically opposed."

PETER GOTT, M.D.

Quitting cigarettes aids breathing

DEAR DR. GOTT: Three months ago, I was diagnosed with emphysema. This came after 35 years of smoking. Now that I've quit, I feel better. I don't cough, have more energy and regret the smoking pattern. Is it true my lungs won't get any worse as long as I abstain from cigarettes? What limits do I have?

DEAR READER: Each lung is normally composed of tiny, feathery air sacs with extremely thin walls; so thin in fact, that molecules of air can travel through them. At this microscopic level, the oxygen we breathe is absorbed into the bloodstream and waste carbon dioxide is released back into the air to be exhaled. It's a marvelous system because the billions of air sacs provide an enormous surface area for exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide. If stretched out in a sheet, this surface area would be measured in square yards. Yet, nature has provided a highly efficient method that fits into a relatively confined area.

In emphysema, the air sacs break down and coalesce into larger, less efficient spaces. This anatomical change results in more "dead air," as less oxygen-rich air is able to diffuse into the blood. Therefore, emphysema reduces breathing efficiency. For technical reasons, it also causes a buildup of stale air in the lungs, which is difficult to expel.

The end result is shortness of breath (dyspnea). As a person exercises, the body calls for more oxygen for muscle metabolism. The emphysematous patient's lungs cannot meet the increased demand, and he must increase his respiratory rate to compensate.

The degree of breathlessness corresponds to the severity of emphysema: Mild disease produces dyspnea only during strenuous exertion; advanced emphysema causes dyspnea at rest. In such extreme cases, patients are literally suffocating because the mechanics of breathing are so compromised.

Emphysema is a natural consequence of the aging process, and almost every person over the age of 70 has it to some degree. However, the disease can be monumentally accelerated by air pollutants that damage lung tissue and destroy the normal, delicate air sacs. Tobacco smoke is the best-known pollutant. But other compounds in the air — such as hydrocarbons, ash, mineral fibers and industrial vapors — can do it, too. Chronic bronchitis (infection of bronchial breathing passageways) can lead to emphysema, as can asthma.

Tobacco smoke has an additional consequence: By irritating lung tissue, it increases mucus secretion in the respiratory tree. This mucus not only blocks airways (causing the typical "smoker's cough"), it also provides a moist, nutritious environment for bacteria to grow.

I've given this roundabout answer to explain why smokers experience significant improvement in breathing when they give up cigarettes. Because there is less mucus blockage, breathing efficiency may increase 20 to 30 percent. The emphysema, however, remains; the abnormal architecture of the lungs is permanent and will not heal or return to normal. In cases such as yours, the emphysema is said to be "arrested"; it won't get any worse unless you are chronically exposed to further pollutants in the air you breathe.

Any limits in your activity will be dictated by the degree of your emphysema. You may be as active as you can — or want to be. In addition, follow your doctor's advice about obtaining treatment for allergies, colds and lung infections.

Brush fires continue

By The Associated Press

Brush fires in California torched houses and forced the evacuation of several communities, and Idaho's governor declared a state of extreme emergency to handle the blazes consuming thousands of acres of forest.

A fast-moving fire roared through a windy tinderbox of dry grass and brush in the Sierra Nevada foothills today, and Sheriff's Lt. Greg Burton of Fresno County, Calif., said up to five homes had been destroyed, with 1,500 firefighters unable to control the fire.

At least 3,500 residents were evacuated from the communities of New Auberry, Meadow Lakes, Alder Springs, Bald Mountain and Jose Basin, said Bob Kutz, spokesman for the California Department of Forestry. About 150 nursing home patients were among those taken to a local high school in the area 190 miles east of San Francisco.

One of the evacuees, Fred Burnham, had moved to the highland area from low-lying Fresno just a day before the fire.

Smoking ban permanent under new bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ban on smoking aboard airline flights of two hours or less would become permanent under a bill sent to the House floor, but anti-smoking forces say they expect tougher restrictions in the final bill.

Tobacco industry lobbyists ended up pushing for the permanent ban Friday after a 25-25 vote on a ban that would have covered all domestic flights indicated growing congressional support for proposals to broaden the airline smoking ban.

The tie vote defeated the wider ban, but it was the closest a congressional vote has come to outlawing all smoking on airliners.

The bill, passed on a voice vote by the House Public Works and Transportation Committee, is one of several proposals to extend or expand the 1987 temporary smoking ban on flights of two hours or less. That ban expires in April.

Opponents made tongue-in-cheek suggestions that liquor, cheap cologne and crying babies could also be banned because they offend some people.

Rep. William Clinger, R-Pa., who supported the permanent ban but opposed all proposals that would affect flights over two hours, joked that the committee might vote to "install cheap cologne detectors and put crying babies in the hold."

Rep. James Oberstar, D-Minn., who pushed for a total smoking ban, said the committee's defeat of attempts to apply the ban to longer flights reflects strong lobbying by the tobacco industry.

Oberstar said a more far-reaching ban would likely pass the House but he declined to predict what the Senate might do.

One of the measures to extend the smoking ban is in the form of an amendment to an appropriations bill. The House is expected to take that up next week.

Oberstar described Friday's vote as a "short-term gain" for the tobacco industry, which at first opposed making the two-hour ban permanent. However, several tobacco lobbyists switched strategies as the committee was voting.

In the end, pro-smoking forces supported a permanent ban while anti-smoking committee members voted for a four-year extension of the temporary ban in the hope of ensuring that Congress again would have to consider a total ban.

Anti-smoking groups have said they will continue to fight against smoking on any airliner.

"The two-hour ban is far from a perfect piece of legislation and very far from the solution needed to protect all airline passengers and all flight crews from the serious hazards created by tobacco smoke in the airline cabin," said Ahron Leichtman, president of Citizens Against Tobacco Smoke.

Rep. Gus Savage, D-Ill., who said his wife of 34 years died from cancer, called in-flight smoking a life-and-death issue.

Bush set firm on defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, facing battles with Congress on several fronts, says he's standing firm on his military spending plan but is willing to compromise on his proposal to cut the capital gains tax.

Bush insisted Friday that he will be able to have his way with the Senate on his defense package even after the House this week shredded it, slashing key components such as Star Wars, the stealth bomber, mobile MX missile and Midgetman missile.

"I am disappointed that the House did what they did," Bush told a news conference, noting that the chamber restored money for some programs he wants to cut.

"Yesterday was not the House's most memorable moment, but we're going to keep fighting on for what we believe in."

But Bush said he's willing to look at alternatives on his proposal to cut the 33 percent maximum capital-gains rate to 15 percent.

"If there's some compromise that can spur investment, spur jobs, increase employment — the cause of new jobs starting up — I'd be interested in it," Bush said.

"I don't think I should ever say it's got to be done just this way in terms of the bills up there in the House Ways and Means Committee right now."

On another topic, Bush decried news leaks in the espionage investigation of U.S. diplomat Felix S. Bloch.

"I don't want to go into it while it is under investigation," Bush said when asked about specifics.

"I am very concerned about premature discussion."

Soviet charged in gallery theft

HOUSTON (AP) — A Soviet citizen is being held in Los Angeles in connection with the theft of more than 100 Russian icons from a Houston art gallery, but authorities say it could be at least a month before he can be extradited to Texas.

Karapet Guyumdzhyan, 28, was arrested by Los Angeles police and FBI agents on Tuesday at his apartment.

According to the Houston Chronicle, police were led to Guyumdzhyan by a tip from an anonymous caller who reported seeing a suspicious car near the gallery on the day it was robbed three weeks ago. The car was traced to Guyumdzhyan and he was later identified as the robber from a photograph by Lowell Collins, the gallery owner, police said.

Houston police Sgt. Darrell DeFee said a second suspect also is being sought.

None of the icons, African art or pre-Columbian jewelry taken from the Lowell Collins Gallery has been recovered, police said. The items were valued at $500,000.

Collins told police he believed the two well-dressed men who robbed him at gunpoint on July 8 may have been Soviet. He was robbed, then gagged and bound.

DeFee said investigators believe Guyumdzhyan was hired by someone else to steal the 16th and 19th century icons. But Guyumdzhyan has denied involvement in the robbery although he acknowledged he was in Houston when it occurred.

"He admitted being in Houston at that time — for three days," said Houston police Sgt. Glenn Smart. "He said he drove the car here and drove it back. He was looking for work. But he also said that he didn't talk to anyone and made no applications (for employment)."

Hance hires Clements aide

AUSTIN (AP) — Reggie Bashur, press secretary for Gov. Bill Clements since 1985, is quitting to join Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance's likely bid for the Republican nomination for governor in 1990.

Bashur, who will start with Hance on Tuesday, will be replaced on Clements' staff by Rossanna Salazar, deputy press secretary and chief speech writer.

Bashur, 37, also served as deputy director of the Texas George Bush for President campaign in 1988, and previously worked in U.S. Senate races in New Hampshire and Ohio.

Ms. Salazar, 29, has been on the governor's staff since January 1987.

She was political writer for the San Antonio Light, and previously covered local government for the San Antonio Express and general assignments for the Kilgore News Herald.

She is a native of Tucson, and received a journalism degree from the University of Arizona.

Mom addicts place babies at high risk

DALLAS (AP) — A researcher says about one in five babies born at Parkland Memorial Hospital here has a mother who admits to abusing alcohol or illegal drugs while pregnant.

About half of those mothers report abusing cocaine, said Dr. Bert Little of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center.

The drug use leaves a legacy of newborns either premature, underweight or with birth defects. They will likely experience learning difficulties as they get older, said Little, an assistant of obstetrics and Babies sick enough are admitted to the intensive care nursery at Parkland, Dallas County's public hospital. Others are placed in a special room for observation and treatment of withdrawal systems.

Unlike at least two other urban public hospitals in Texas, Parkland does not conduct drug tests on newborns. Because babies' digestive systems aren't fully functioning at birth, such tests may not be able to find evidence of mothers' drug use, Little told The Dallas Morning News.

Little based his drug use estimates on interviews with women in 1987 and early 1988 at Parkland.

"I think that things are pretty much at a plateau right now," Little said. "There was an increase until the press started exposing the topic."

Still, the problem is so pervasive that John Peter Smith Hospital, a public facility in Fort Worth, performs drug tests on all babies admitted to its intensive care nursery.

At John Peter Smith, Tarrant County's public hospital, 25 percent to 40 percent of the 600 babies admitted annually to the intensive care nursery test positive for drugs, said Dr. W.V. Kageler, an internist who serves as president of the medical staff.

The rate is much lower at Lyndon B. Johnson General Hospital, Harris County's new public hospital in Houston. Only four to six of the 100 babies admitted to the hospital's intensive care nursery each month test positive for illegal drugs, said Dr. Joe Garcia-Prats, chief newborn specialist.

Unlike John Peter Smith, the Houston hospital tests only babies who exhibit symptoms or whose mothers admitted using drugs while pregnant, Garcia-Prats said. The rate might be higher if every baby in the intensive care nursery were tested for drugs, he said.

Parkland and Jefferson Davis Hospital, Lyndon B. Johnson's predecessor in Houston, were among 36 hospitals in a survey last year by the National Association for Perinatal Addiction Research and Education. The survey found that about one in nine U.S. newborns — or about 375,000 babies a year — were born to women who said they had used drugs while pregnant.

Threatening these women with criminal charges will scare them off, not motivate them to stop using drugs, Little said.

"We do not believe in criminalization," said Pat O'Keefe, a spokeswoman for the perinatal addiction association.

Little League All-Stars beat Abilene Dixie for loop title

The Snyder Little League All-Stars claimed the title in District 5 as they defeated a tough Abilene Dixie team 6-4 in Coleman Friday.

Pitcher Curt Rinehart took the win, going the distance and offensive punch was supplied through homers by Lionel Aviles and Rinehart.

The win advances Snyder to a best of three playoff with Graham in Breckenridge Monday at 7:30 p.m. Graham is the champion of District 6.

Snyder started out strong, both on offense and defense, shutting out Abilene in the top of the first and scoring four runs in their half of the opening inning.

Reagan Key and Chris Mitchell put runners on first and second and Jeremy Wells loaded the bases with a single to bring up Lionel Aviles. Aviles took a 1-0 pitch from Abilene's John Patton over the right field fence for his second grand slam in as many days.

Dixie got one of the runs back in the second as Mike Noordsy scored following his single, a double by Kyle Warehouse and a single from Andrew Cole.

The locals stranded three base runners in the bottom of the second. Wells hit, as did Marc Sparlin and Jeremy House, but no runs came as a result.

Abilene tied the contest in the top half of the third inning at four as Rinehart was touched for three hits and a walk.

The score was still knotted as the teams entered the fifth inning. The unit from Abilene was put down on three strikeouts from Rinehart as he began getting stronger as the game progressed.

Aviles led off the bottom of the fifth and was hit by a pitch and sent to first base bringing up Rinehart. Rinehart pounded the 0-2 pitch over the wall in the deepest part of the Coleman park to give Snyder a lead they never gave up. The lead was protected by sparkling defensive play from Aviles and left fielder Kyle Lewis as the Dixie squad went down in order in the top of the sixth.

"Any time you beat Abilene Dixie, you've accomplished something," said All-Stars coach Ronnie Lewis after the game. "Dixie has a well coached... just a good baseball team," he added. "Our boys played a heck of a defensive game," he said. "Those Dixie guys hit the ball hard."

The winner of the Graham-Snyder contests will go on to the state Little League tournament in Waco.

GRAND SLAM! — Inside this mass of Little Leaguers is slugger Lionel Aviles. Aviles pounded his second grand slam homer in two nights to help Snyder defeat Abilene Dixie, 6-4. Snyder will play

Graham in Breckenridge at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the next step towards the state tourney. (SDN Staff Photo)

Cowboys' Johnson has more jobs than most NFL coaches

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Jerry Jones may be the new owner of the Dallas Cowboys, but there's another JJ running this franchise in Thousand Oaks.

This training camp runs on Jimmy Johnson time. From the first 9 a.m. practice until the last 10 p.m. meeting, things are done one way — Johnson's way. It's helmets and pads and intensity. It's the daily middle drill, meat-grinding seven-on-seven contact.

"Get the job done," he shouts. "Show me what you've got." The Cowboys don't play an NFL regular season game until Sept. 10, but it might as well be tomorrow. Johnson's players couldn't work any harder.

Johnson is on top of everything. He's on the telephone to Jones, telling him who to sign and for how much.

He knows who's offering what for Steve Walsh and Steve Pelluer while he's running two-a-day drills.

Johnson is a man possessed. "What makes me run is a fear of disappointment," he says. "I've been disappointed in the past, and I don't like the way it feels."

Johnson is up at 6 a.m., running up a nearby mountain with his coaches. Their last meeting of the day ends at midnight.

Besides replacing Tom Landry, a legendary figure in the game, Johnson wants to prove that his theories learned in the laboratory of collegiate football can be applied successfully in the NFL.

Ask Johnson how important it is for his team to taste early success in scrimmages and preseason games, and his eyes take on the competitive glare of a Jack Nicklaus staring down a tournament-winning putt.

"It (a good start) would be nice for the players' sake," he says. "Of course, early success would be good for the coaches, too. We'll be doing things differently than other clubs in the league."

"We know what it looks like in college football, but the true evaluation is yet to come in the NFL. We want to see what happens when we go up against the Los Angeles Raiders and teams like that. As quick as we can, we want to win over the players to believe in us."

Johnson is aware of the remarks of Philadelphia coach Buddy Ryan. Asked about Johnson, Ryan said the best formula for hiring a head coach in the NFL is to take an assistant from the pros — not someone from the college ranks who made a name beating less-talented teams.

It's no secret the Cowboys need success in the early scrimmages and exhibition games.

Jones already has put Johnson on the spot by predicting the Cowboys will win more games in the first third of the season than they did all last year (3-13).

Walsh ends holdout, signs $4.1 million four year pact

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys came to terms with holdout quarterback Steve Walsh on Friday for a total package of $4.1 million spread over four years, coach Jimmy Johnson said.

Walsh, who decided to pass up his senior year at the University of Miami to enter the NFL's supplemental draft, will fly to the Cowboys' camp on Saturday to sign his contract and begin workouts.

The Cowboys already have Troy Aikman, the No. 1 overall pick in the regular draft, in camp, and published reports have indicated that Walsh could be traded.

But Johnson said the Cowboys' plans include Walsh.

"We're not considering a trade for Steve at this time," Johnson said. "We plan for him to be here and competing for the job. We're not looking for any more offers for Steve. We plan for him to play for the Cowboys."

Johnson said he will decide between Walsh, Troy Aikman,

Scott Secules and Babe Laufenberg shortly before the regular season begins.

"I believe the competition will make both Troy and Steve better," Johnson said.

A substantial bonus was included in Walsh's contract but it wasn't disclosed. According to the contract, Walsh could be traded to any other NFL team in 1989. After 1989, he will give Johnson a list of four teams he doesn't wish to be traded to.

Sr. Teens thrash HSU

The Snyder Senior Teenage League All-Stars played a Hardin-Simmons University team in a warm-up for the state tournament next week in Mt. Pleasant and won by a score of 20-7.

Snyder fell behind early by a 5-0 margin, but came back in the third inning with three runs of their own as Joe Sanchez walk, singles by John Wright and Ronnie Pruitt, and a double to right center off the bat of Gilbert Hernandez.

The local squad broke the game open in the fifth inning, scoring seven runs. Highlights included a triple from Hernandez, a double by Randy Morris and a Bert Merritt single.

"We played good defense," coach Ron Pruitt said. "We played some good team ball."

Robbie Smith was the winning pitcher for Snyder.

Pacing the offensive attack were Morris with a pair of doubles, Hernandez with a single, a double, and a triple, Tim Walsh's contract was "70 to 75 percent" of Aikman's, who got $11.037 million for six years.

"The difference is that Troy was the number-one pick in the regular draft and Steve was the number-one pick in the supplemental," Jones said. "We had to go to the do-right rule in that situation."

"We'll be a much better team because of having Steve on the team. He'll make us better. We're thrilled to have him."

Holsey with a single and a triple, and Ronnie Pruitt with a single and a double.

Also contributing in the hit column for Snyder were Wright, Merritt and Jeff Block with singles.

Cowboys lose lineman for rest of season

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Defensive lineman Jeff Hurd, a free agent from Kansas State, will be lost to the Dallas Cowboys for the season after suffering an injury to his right knee, the team said Friday.

Hurd, who spent all of last season on injured reserve, suffered ligament damage in a Wednesday morning scrimmage. He will undergo surgery next week in Dallas.

In other camp news Friday, offensive guard Nate Newton was fined $200 after weighing in four pounds over his prescribed weight.

Newton also forfeited a $35,000 bonus because he failed to meet the weight requirement.

Sutton leads Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Hal Sutton learned the hard way that there's nothing great about the tag of greatness.

Sutton, whose golfing career held such bright promise at the start of this decade, has seen that promise broken time and again.

But the dry spells never broke Sutton and Saturday he was tied for the lead at 9-under-par 135 with Doug Tewell heading into the third round of the $1 million Buick Open.

Sutton had rounds of 67-68, Tewell 69-66.

"The game is fun again," Sutton said. "It was not fun for a long time. I did not make it fun for myself and didn't nobody cut me any slack, either."

"But all this year, I've seen signs of it coming back. I've worked hard. I can't tell you how hard I've worked."

Sutton, who won the 1980 U.S. Amateur championship following a brilliant college career, has won seven times on the PGA Tour, including both the Tournament Players Championship and the PGA title in 1983. But he hasn't won since 1986 and some people turned on him.

"It was like people were mad at me," Sutton said. "They just expected me to make it look easy and it wasn't easy at all. I wanted to do better. It was disappointing to me, too."

Barrel racing set for Aug. 6

Milwaukee combined 15 hits, four walks and three batters hit by pitches to win for the seventh time in nine games. Greg Brock had a two-run homer for the Brewers.

Molitor tripled and singled during a six-run fifth inning that made it 9-0. Yount contributed a double and Mike Felder hit a two-run single as Milwaukee pounded Mike Jeffcoat, 5-3, and reliever Paul Wilmet for six hits.

Israeli commandos kidnap clergyman

JIBCHIT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli commandos on Friday kidnapped a Shiite Moslem clergyman reputed to be a leader of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah and allegedly linked to the kidnapping of a U.S. Marine held hostage in Lebanon.

Security sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, suggested Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid may have been kidnapped in a swap for the American, Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, or for three Israeli soldiers captured in south Lebanon more than three years ago.

President Bush said he did not know if the incident would help Higgins or the other eight American hostages but added, "I don't think kidnapping and violence help the cause of peace" in the Middle East.

The Israeli army confirmed the incident and accused Obeid, 33, of instigating attacks on Israel and of being a major Hezbollah figure.

An Israel army spokesman, Col. Raanan Gissin, indicated a swap was possible. "Clearly when you capture one of their (Hezbollah's) top leaders, it can deter terrorism and you also have a certain amount of leverage in your hands," he said.

Gissin said Obeid and two "assistants" seized with him were "safely in Israeli hands and undergoing questioning."

Killed in the overnight raid was at least one resident of the village of Jibchit, about 20 miles from the Israeli border and 35 miles south of Beirut.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the United States was not consulted about or involved in the abduction.

Lebanese police said the commandos entered Jibchit about 1:30 a.m. after landing in a helicopter outside town.

A police official, speaking on condition of anonymity in line with standing regulations, said about 12 commandos with silencer-equipped pistols surrounded Obeid's building, then knocked on the door of his apartment and forced their way in.

They fled with Obeid; his cousin, Ahmed Obeid; and a friend, Majid Fahs, the spokesman said.

Obeid's wife, Mona, was locked in a room with her hands tied and her mouth taped shut, the spokesman said.

Mrs. Obeid, interviewed later, said one of the attackers spoke Arabic. "He told me he would kill me if I yelled," she said.

The Israeli military refused to give details of the raid, but Israel television reported the commandos blew off the front door of Obeid's apartment with plastic explosives and whisked the three men away in a helicopter in less than a half-hour.

Lebanese police said a neighbor, Hussein Abu Zeid, opened the door of his apartment to find out what was happening and was shot to death. Israel radio said the man killed was a bodyguard for Obeid.

Another neighbor, Fayed Shokor, who lives across the street from Obeid, said three helicopters were involved in the operation.

4,000 soldiers leave Sri Lanka

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — The government said thousands of Indian troops would begin leaving today, the second anniversary of an accord that brought them to Sri Lanka to quell a rebellion but instead fueled more violence.

India agreed on Friday to resume withdrawing its 45,000 peacekeeping troops, averting a showdown with Sri Lanka President Ranasinghe Premadasa who had called the continued troop presence a threat to his country's independence.

The government said 3,000 to 4,000 troops would begin leaving today.

"The Indo-Sri Lanka problem to a great extent has been resolved," Foreign Minister Ranjan Wijeratne said before he and a six-member delegation left for New Delhi to discuss a timetable for the withdrawal of the rest of the Indian troops.

"India's decision to recommence the withdrawal process has further consolidated the 2,500-year-old friendship between the two countries," he said.

Premadasa originally sought the departure of all Indian troops by today, but India maintained that an immediate withdrawal would worsen ethnic violence in Sri Lanka.

The two-year Indian military presence has fueled Sri Lanka's ethnic violence among the Tamil guerrillas that the Indians were supposed to disarm and Sinhalese extremists who denounced the Indian presence as a violation of Sri Lankan sovereignty.

Party resumes Polish debate

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Party officials gathered Saturday to resume debate on the party's future and decide on a possible successor to party chief Wojciech Jaruzelski.

The party has been struggling to chart its future after it was embarrassed by the Solidarity-led opposition during legislative elections in June, the first balloting in Poland in four decades.

Deliberations at the two-day plenum, which began Friday, resumed this morning and were expected to focus on issues of personnel and leadership.

Jaruzelski hinted Friday that he would not hold the party leadership much longer and said a full congress of the 2-million-member party should be held soon.

Financial Focus

Part of the fun of writing this column is the unpredictability of what research uncovers. For example, it didn't take much study of the entertainment industry to discover how country music contributes to bottom-line profits. Americans like country music, but to see how simple moonshine humor ferments into multimillion-dollar bonanzas was an eye-opener.

It was so much fun, you might enjoy sharing some of the actual lyrics from the hits that made country music so popular. A big thanks goes to researchers Larry Sons and Doug Todd for bringing these golden oldies to our attention.

Some of the biggest hits in country music wail about the worthlessness of the protagonist. Like, "There's no use running if you're on the wrong road" or, "When I'm alone, I'm in bad company."

Don't overlook the female lead either. She doesn't always get out of the country (pardon the pun) clean. "She took everything but the blame" suggests either a pure heart or a good lawyer. You can understand why the jilted lover promised, "I wouldn't take you to a dogfight even if I thought you could win." That's hard-ball loving, country style.

Others accept rejection with more poise, hoping they will be remembered. "When the phone don't ring, you'll know it's me."

Then, there are those country hits that reek of pent-up hostility - "She stepped on my heart and stomped the sucker flat." That must have been the woman he had in mind when he sang, "If you want to keep the beer real cold, put it next to my ex-wife's heart."

Did you ever notice how a lot of country misery leads to drastic solutions? "I'd rather have a bottle in front of me than a frontal lobotomy." Sports can be an alternative to suffering. "I don't know whether to kill myself or go bowling."

Of course, when all else fails, country music turns to religion. "Drop-kick me, Jesus, through the goal posts of life," or, "Thank God and Greyhound, you're gone."

If you're wondering what this has to do with investing, remember it all started by looking for a good entertainment stock.

Keep an open mind and tune your radio to the best in country music. Strange words sometimes translate into big profits. But, guess wrong, and you could join in singing, "I'm going to put a bar in my car and drive myself to drink."

greatest asset, he noted. This involves a requirement that bidders have "permanent" utilities such as water and sewer lines to the prison site within 176 days of the bids being awarded.
Snyder's existing site with the Price Daniel Unit has water and utility lines already in place with sufficient space to accommodate the 300 acres required by the state.
The bids this time also required soil coring samples and stipulated that all dirt work at any of the sites must meet TDC standards.
Baze speculated that dirt work problems at some of the new prison sites likely prompted TDC to place these requirements into the new proposal.

How many communities will ultimately bid for a state prison will not be known until after Monday's deadline. Baze speculated, however, that many will be eliminated almost immediately since they will not be able to meet the strict bid requirements.
The process for selection, as outlined by TDC, will see the state agency's staff analyze the bid documents during August and September.

A "short list" of approximately 28 finalists is to be decided through this process. These finalists will be further investigated by two committees to be formed from the membership of the newly seated Texas Department of Criminal Justice (TDCJ) board.

The plan is to further reduce the finalists to 14. These 14 are expected to receive on-site visits similar to the one conducted here by TDC board members in October of 1987.

The final prison site selections are now expected to be made at the November meeting of the TDCJ, the newly formed board which will replace the existing Texas Department of Corrections.

If an announcement is made in November, it will be almost two years to the day from the first round of prison site selections.

The best information at this time, Baze said, is that the state will build three 2,250-bed units and three 1,000-bed units. There is a possibility that two additional 2,250-bed prisons will be authorized also.

Regarding this, Baze said his

Disturbance leads to pair of arrests

Two men were arrested at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the 1800 Block of 21st St. after reportedly causing a disturbance 15 minutes earlier at a home in the 900 Block of 30th St.

A police sergeant arrested the 19-year-old driver for DWI and his 27-year-old passenger for public intoxication and unlawfully carrying a weapon, a large club.

A woman had told police the men had left the 30th St. residence in a 1979 gray and black Ford Thunderbird after displaying a weapon that she

Local is arrested on assault charge

A 20-year-old Snyder man was arrested for sexual assault early Saturday in connection with a reported earlier assault on a 19-year-old woman with whom he had gone on a date.

Justin Eugene Casey of Rt. 3 was taken into custody by a county sheriff's deputy at 2:30 a.m. at his residence after the victim went to the police station to report the incident.

The sheriff's office was notified after city officers determined that the alleged offense had taken place outside the city limits.

District Judge Gene Dulaney set Casey's bond at $10,000, and the suspect made bond and was released early Saturday.

Probation is revoked

A 20-year-old Snyder man's five-year probated sentence was revoked last week in 132nd District Court and he was ordered to begin serving his sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Jimmy Guerrero of 3205 Ave. H was on probation for a June 16, 1986, burglary of a building of fence.

In revoking probation, District Judge Gene Dulaney said Guerrero was arrested for resisting arrest on June 24, 1988, for theft on Nov. 23, 1988, for assault on April 8 and for public intoxication on May 20 and June 24.

opinion is that the bigger prisons will be awarded to the bigger cities in the competition.

As for Snyder's offer, details are being kept secret until the competitive bid process is concluded.

Baze noted that there was a fund raising effort in conjunction with the incentives, but that this was handled solely among the city's financial institutions.

He said no public solicitation of funds is planned with the second bid.

Regarding Snyder's chances, Baze said the strongest factor in the city's favor is its track record with the first prison construction phase. "We have absolutely done it," he said.

WORLD TRAVELERS — Rev. Miller and Sandra Robinson, of Colonial Baptist Church, review their recent trip to Finland in a souvenir book. The American Summer Institute program trip also took them to Sweden and Russia. (SDN Staff Photo) tries defining the eastern and western cultures, offered everything bilingually. The signs were in Swedish and Finnish.

The country appeared patriotic and honored their war heroes highly, said Mrs. Robinson, noting that one out of every four Finnish men serving in World War II was killed. The Robinsons told of ceremonies where the senior citizens of the country meet at Helsinki and walk to a military cemetery to lay roses at the foot of a cross dedicated to the memory of Finland's dead soldiers.

Deputies check mailbox damage

Sheriff's deputies are investigating a series of incidents in which mailboxes were damaged along the Colorado City Hwy. south of Snyder.

R.C. Reed told officers Friday that mailboxes belonging to him, Cone Merritt, Robert Miller and W.C. Hart had been damaged, possibly by culprits driving south and wielding a pipe.

Cliff Thomas of Sweetwater told deputies at 5:30 p.m. Friday that a Colt .38-caliber pistol with a two-inch barrel had been stolen from his pickup truck while he was in Snyder.

The report did not say where the theft took place.

Thought was a shotgun

A 54-year-old man was arrested for PI at 12:30 a.m. Saturday at a residence in the 1400 Block of Ave. M.

Russia was in major contrast to Sweden, said the Robinsons. In the Soviet Union, the poverty and the oppression of the people was apparent.

According to Mrs. Robinson, Russia's buildings and scenery were "kind of like Communism. It looks good, but when you get into it, it just doesn't work." Everything was pretty from a distance, she said.

Their schedule was pre-planned and they had to gain special permission to attend a Baptist Church and a Russian circus. A government guide was assigned to the group.

On their visit to the large church, with 400-500 members, the Robinsons only saw one car in front. Cars are scarce and cost about three years of salary. Bibles cost about two months' salary (other books are comparatively cheaper).

Before returning to the states they stayed a week in London for vacation.

Although their trip was enjoyable, the couple said they were glad to be home in America.

A previous trip in 1985 with the American Summer Institute took them to St. Andrews, Scotland.

The Robinsons have become world travelers with the American Summer Institute trips. Other treks have included to Korea and Japan to do revivals in 1974. They have also traveled to Tanzania, Africa, where the reverend taught at a seminary and they attended revivals in the bush country in 1983.

Banks to lower prime rate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bank of America lowered its prime lending rate to 10.5 percent from 11 percent, only the second money center bank to follow the lead of Chase Manhattan, which cut the benchmark interest rate on July 10.

Analysts said Friday other major banks may soon lower their prime rates because their own cost of borrowing money has fallen sharply over the past few days. The federal funds rate, which is the interest banks charge each other for short-term loans, finished below 9 percent Friday.

Sam Houston State has new president

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Dr. Martin J. Anisman, vice president for academic affairs and dean of the faculty at Springfield College, will take over as president of Sam Houston State University on Sept. 1, the school announced.

Anisman, 48, was named Thursday as the replacement for the retiring Dr. Elliott T. Bowers, who has served 21 years as president of the southeast Texas school.

Bowers has spent 52 years at Sam Houston as a student, faculty member and administrator. He will turn 70 in August, his last month as president.

"We are convinced that Dr. Anisman has the vision, experience and leadership qualities to help Sam Houston achieve its potential as a great, comprehensive university," said Norman D. Elder, chairman of the Texas State University System regents.

Elder also recognized Anisman's involvement in professional and civic activities while at the Massachusetts college, including service on library and bank boards.

Anisman was one of four finalists brought to the campus for interviews with the regents Thursday and was chosen in a subsequent vote by the board which also oversees Angelo State University, Sul Ross State University and Southwest Texas State University.

Before joining the faculty at Springfield College in 1986, Anisman was at Southern Connecticut State College where he taught English and was chairman of the Department of English. He also served as acting dean of the School of Business Economics and was dean of the School of Arts and Sciences for eight years.

Anisman received his bachelor's degree at Syracuse University in 1963, his master's at New York University in 1964 and his doctorate at New York University in 1970.

Other finalists for the Sam Houston presidency included Dr. Otto F. Bauer, vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of Nebraska at Omaha; Dr. Samuel Curl, dean of the college of agricultural sciences at Texas Tech University; and Dr. Kala M. Stroup, president of Murray State University in Murray, Ky.

Los Angeles Herald Examiner up for sale

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Hearst Corp. has put the Los Angeles Herald Examiner up for sale, one of the newspaper's editors said. The announcement, which ac-ording to features editor Andrea Herman was made to employees on Friday, followed months of reports the owners were holding discussions with potential buyers of the money-losing paper.

The reason was not publicly announced, but a statement to newspaper employees said the decision was a result of intense pressure from competitors of the afternoon paper.

"For a number of years, the Herald Examiner has been in an extremely challenging situation," said the statement by Robert J. Danzig, vice president and general manager of Herald Newspapers.

"We have weighed these considerations carefully and have reached a conclusion that continuing our ownership of the Herald Examiner is not compatible with the strategic direction of our newspaper company," Danzig said.

The Hearst Corp., a privately held company, has acknowledged the paper loses money, but won't disclose figures.

In recent years the newspaper has lost readers to the rival Los Angeles Times as well as to growing suburban newspapers. But with a circulation of 238,392 daily and 183,122 on Sunday, the Herald Examiner still is the 42nd largest newspaper in the country, Ms. Herman said.

Daily circulation peaked at 729,000 in 1967, when the Herald Examiner was the nation's largest afternoon daily.

The beginning of the circulation decline coincided with the start of a 10-year strike by the Newspaper Guild. Afternoon newspapers across the country have been hurt by the growth of suburbs because delivery is hampered by traffic.

Still, the Herald Examiner has earned a reputation as a scrappy newspaper that provides vigorous coverage of the nation's second-largest city.

The newspaper was the first to delve into the financial dealings of Mayor Tom Bradley, and its queries into the five-term mayor's ties with a commercial bank prompted this week's City Council hearings into a controversial deposit of $2 million in city funds with the bank.

Hearst hired the investment banking firm of Lazard Freres & Co. of New York to handle sale negotiations, according to the announcement given to newspaper employees.

The newspaper has 760 editorial and administrative employees, Ms. Herman said.

Cambodia...

U.S. may withhold support

PARIS (AP) — The Bush administration is threatening to withhold U.S. aid to Cambodia if the Khmer Rouge is given a dominant role in a new transitional government.

But the policy paper distributed to reporters today as Secretary of State James A. Baker III arrived here for a 20-nation conference acknowledged that Prince Norodom Sihanouk might include the group whose leaders are accused of murdering more than a million Cambodians more than a decade ago.

"The U.S. would continue to support him," the paper said. "It offered the same assurance if Sihanouk also gave a role to members of pro-Vietnam Prime Minister Hun Sen's government.

Sihanouk is recognized by all Cambodian factions as the logical head of an interim government to be formed after the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops in late September.

The Khmer Rouge, backed by China, is one of three factions seeking to overthrow the government in Pnom Penh.

Baker, in an airborne news conference, said the Bush administration would be willing to make "a major effort at mobilizing the international community in support of a solution to the tragic problem of Cambodia."

He said that would include exerting influence on international banks to help the country's rehabilitation after 10 years of civil war.

Baker said the United States also would be prepared to end its support to anti-communist forces in the event of a settlement.

The United States currently is supplying about $3 million to $5 million a year in non-lethal aid to the guerrillas.

"If we could achieve a cessation of external assistance, that would include external assistance from all sources, including any external assistance from the United States," Baker said.

Iraan presidential race...

Rafsanjani captures high percentage of votes tallied

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, whose election to the presidency was a foregone conclusion, captured more than 91 percent of the vote based on partial returns, official Iranian media said today.

The Islamic Republic News Agency also said that an initial count indicated that 97 percent of the voters approved constitutional amendments that call for giving the president greater powers.

Rafsanjani, 54, received 4,175,005 of the 4,567,495 votes counted by 8:30 a.m. (1 a.m. EDT), the Islamic Republic

News Agency reported. It did not say how many votes remained to be counted.

The breakdown would give Rafsanjani about 91.4 percent of the vote. The Iranian news agency said the partial totals did not include returns from Tehran, the largest Iranian city, with about 6 million people.

Rafsanjani's only opponent was Abass Sheibani, a member of parliament and former agriculture minister. He was a student activist against the monarchy in the 1940s, spent 13 years in prison and was a candidate for president in 1981.

Sheibani, 58, has no national political base and was generally considered a token opponent.

"Iranians overwhelmingly vote for Rafsanjani," read the headline of the Islamic Republic News Agency's urgent dispatch on the early results.

Its English-language dispatch said that although Rafsanjani had been expected to win, "this massive victory will give greater confidence to his administration."

Nearly all voters questioned by reporters in Tehran during Friday's balloting said they supported Rafsanjani because they believed he would put the economy before revolutionary ideology.

Mental patient fatally stabs girl

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — As thousands of people milled through a sun-splashed street fair, a mental patient on an eight-hour pass suddenly attacked a 9-year-old girl and stabbed her to death in front of her mother.

Jessica Short was pronounced dead about a half hour after the 2:20 p.m. attack Friday, a hospital spokesman said.

"A young life was wasted and I want to know why," Mayor Sebastian J. Garafalo said at a news conference. "I keep asking, 'Why?' It's so senseless."

David Peterson, 37, a patient at Connecticut Valley Hospital, was charged with murder in what police Chief George R. Aylward called a "random act of violence."

Peterson had been ordered confined at the hospital for 15 years in May 1988 after being found innocent by reason of insanity on assault and burglary charges, said Martha Lewis, executive director of the state Psychiatric Security Review Board, which oversees his confinement.

Lewis was unsure of his exact diagnosis, but said "he suffers from a major mental illness."

Hospital Superintendent Carl Cappello referred all questions to Lewis, who said the hospital didn't have the authority to issue Peterson a pass to leave the hospital grounds.

The stabbing took place on the city's Main Street, which was closed to traffic.

Peterson grabbed Short from behind after she walked out of an F.W. Woolworth Co. store and was apparently walking toward her mother. He flailed at her head and chest with a large, black-handled hunting knife, witnesses said, until two police officers and a passerby pulled him off the girl.

"Nobody was helping her," said a woman who would not give her name. "People were screaming and running. He cut her on the arm and then just stood there and started stabbing her in the chest."

Lewis said Peterson was allowed to leave the hospital to have Christmas dinner with his family last year, but she said that was the only time the review board has allowed him to leave the hospital grounds.

"It definitely calls for a review to look into what happened."

SCS Notes

As many of you probably already know by now, the Conservation Reserve Program sign up that began July 17 and ends on August 4, may be the last one.

The House Agriculture Committee has passed a budget reconciliation measure that is placing a suspension on future Conservation Reserve Program contracts. This means the CRP program would be at a standstill until the program can be evaluated along with the 1990 Farm Bill.

Originally, there was to be an additional sign-up period in the spring, but if all this holds true then this sign-up may be the last.

The Senate Ag. Committee will probably be making up budget reconciliation legislation early next week. The National Association of Conservation Districts has delivered a letter to committee members urging them to oppose the proposed moratorium.

If a producer has been thinking of participating in the CRP program, now may be the last opportunity.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

Bill J. Hood, superintendent for Snyder ISD for 17 years, had his dream of retirement shattered only months after it had begun.

While en route to Abilene in October of 1984, a one-car accident would leave both he and his wife, Carolyn, with life-threatening injuries.

Hood, who served as superintendent here from 1967 to 1984, says he still has no memories of the accident. His only recollection is that it was raining.

The couple was enroute to a Kenny Rogers concert, and Hood, who turned 65 earlier this month, is sure of one thing. "I didn't want to go to the concert in the first place."

He says the only "good" thing about the wreck was that no other vehicle was involved.

He suffered internal injuries as well as knee and leg injuries.

He was also in a coma for some time and when he did wake up he said it was a long time before he was able to get his memory back. To this day, he remembers no details of the accident.

Hood was hospitalized from that October in 1984 to January of 1985 at Baylor Medical Center in Dallas. His wife was placed in Hendricks Hospital in Abilene.

On the very day that Hood was due to be released from the hospital in Dallas, his wife was involved in another accident while on her way to Wichita Falls. This proved a much more serious wreck for her and she was hospitalized in Wichita Falls. Hood said she never really recovered from the second accident. She died last December.

Hood was in a wheelchair when he was first released from the hospital. Gradually, through therapy and the support of his family and friends, Hood said that he began to recover and to walk again, first on crutches and later with the aid of a cane which he still uses today.

Though Hood has essentially recovered from his accident, it still has left its mark on him. He walks slowly, wears a leg brace on his right leg and still uses his cane.

He said he still likes to fish and hunt, but says he needs someone with him because he can't go after the birds he shoots.

Hood has heartfelt praise for the way his sons helped both he and his wife after their accidents.

Bill Hood, the oldest son, and his fiancée were married after his parents' wreck. They essentially took care of the injured man for about a year, Hood said, remarking that it "wasn't much of a honeymoon for them."

Bill Hood lives in Iraan where he teaches elementary science.

Bruce Hood is an electrician and lives with his family in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Steve Hood, the youngest son, remained with his father for about a year after the wreck. During the recuperation period, Hood said that his youngest son met a nurse in the intensive care division whom he later married.

Jeff Mason, a therapist at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, also gets high marks for his efforts in Hood's recovery. Hood said Mason came to his home about three times a week for a long time after he was released from the hospital and even though the sessions were painful, he said he knows that they aided in his recovery.

Hood said that Mason also worked with his wife after her second accident.

Hood moved to Snyder in mid-summer of 1967. As for an educational philosophy, he said he always tried to handle each situation on an individual basis.

When asked to pick out some notable events during his 22-year tenure as superintendent, Hood recalled the controversy which followed his and the school board's decision to shift all teachers to new assignments.

"We thought that it would give the teachers a new perspective, but in hindsight I realize that it would probably have been easier to just shift the principals. All the teachers complained."

Another controversy involved the concept of placing one elementary grade per school campus. The exception would have been the kindergarten classes. He said the idea was conceived to save the school district money and that it would have benefited Snyder in the long run. He said he felt that the students would also have gotten a better education. However, so many parents resisted that he said they decided to drop the idea.

Hood recalls another incident which also sparked a lot of concern in Snyder—the combining of Lamar and Travis Junior High into one campus, Snyder Junior High School.

Another controversy was created some time ago when the journalism department decided to rename the school newspaper, the "Tiger's Tale." He said all he had to do was to talk to the parties involved and explain to them that that decision was not theirs to make. The name was changed back to its original title and the issue was settled.

Throughout his life here, Hood has received many honors.

While he was in the hospital following his wreck, Hood was notified that he received the Bill Vestal Mayor's Award, bestowed annually by the city at the chamber banquet.

He was named an FFA honorary chapter farmer and received recognition from the DE program. He served as president of the Lions Club from 1972-73. He was named a life member of the Texas Congress of the PTA. Another time the PTA also named him "superintendent."

He also received a plaque for serving as the chairman of the Lone Buffalo District in Scouting.

He served on the state executive committee of the Texas Association of School Administrators from 1972-76 and from 1979-1984.

He served on the Western Texas College steering committee which planned the local college and was named a life member of the Texas Association of School Administrators.

In addition, he was a member of the state Christian Education committee of the Baptist General Convention from 1969-1974.

Hood was born in Brownwood and later moved to Memphis where he graduated high school. His grandfather—Judge Greenleaf Fisk—is considered to See SCURRY, Page 2B

REFLECTIONS—Recently Bill Hood, who served as the superintendent for Snyder Schools from 1967-1984, shared memories of his career in education and the near fatal accident which landed him in a hospital for several months. Today he manages to get around with the aid of a cane. (SDN Staff Photo) be the "Father of Brownwood." He earned a bachelor's degree (with English and journalism as his fields of interest) from Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. When the Gilmer-Aiken Bill (which increased teachers' pay to $2,400) was passed in 1949, Hood said he went back to school and earned both a masters degree and a teaching certificate. He later studied administrative courses at Sul Ross.

He and his wife married in 1950.

Hood's first assignment brought him to Sterling City where he taught high school English for two years. He taught seven years in all.

After earning certification as a principal, he said he served as the principal at Rankin until 1963. He later earned his superintendent's certification.

Hood says he landed his jobs in the education field "by being in the right place and the right time and having the necessary experience."

When asked which job in the education field he liked the most, Hood said that perhaps it was teaching, but that since he had a family to support, he felt it was necessary for him to climb as far up the administrative ladder as he could.

4-H IS FOR PARENTS, TOO

Did you know that 93 percent of American families fit patterns other than an employed father, homemaker mother, and two or more children living at home?

The U.S. has changed a great deal from the days when the family farm was a way of life and the family was the source of strength and support for all its members. Today, many parents, and children do not see each other all day because of job demands and activities of the children.

What does all this have to do with 4-H, an action program for youths age nine (third grade) to 19?

4-H offers many opportunities for the 4-H'er and his parents to join together in working toward a common goal. In 4-H, parents and youth can learn and grow together through a sharing of experiences, communication and work. That's why 4-H is an activity for parents, too.

Because of working together in 4-H, lines of communication are open between parents and youth.

4-H encompasses many different projects, and there is something for everyone's interest and lifestyle. Regardless of the project chosen, one of the most important benefits derived is that of strengthening the bond between parents and their children through communication, through experiences and through work.

4-H offers parents, as well as youth, an opportunity to grow, to develop and to learn. So 4-H is for parents, too.

For more details on what the 4-H program has to offer both youth and parents, contact the county Extension office.

Place yourself in the South position. You have landed in three clubs after today's competitive auction. Blot out the East-West cards from your mind if you want to take a little declarer test. East wins the ace of hearts and returns a diamond. West wins the K-A, East shedding a spade on the second diamond, and East ruffs the third diamond. Back comes a heart and you win the king. What next? If you played A-K of clubs, expecting the queen to now drop, give yourself a failing grade. You should have logically inferred that East started with four clubs. Here's why.

It is apparent that East responded with a four-card heart suit. When West raised to two hearts, he must have had three-card support. But East would not respond with one heart if he held five spades. (It's standard to respond in your longer major suit at the one-level.) If West had five spades and five diamonds, he would have opened one spade. So East must hold exactly four spades. Knowing that East is 4-4-1-4 makes it easy for declarer to take the remaining tricks. He should play a club to dummy's king, just in case West holds the singleton queen, and then finesse against the club queen in the East hand. That will work, and declarer will make nine tricks for his contract.

The bidding holds the key

Yesterday's deal was concerned with declarer's drawing logical inferences from the bidding to make the right play. Often these inferences concern abnormal distribution. Here is an example.

Furniture tips...

Strong wood still proves vulnerable

By READER'S DIGEST

For AP Newsfeatures
Chances are that much of your furniture is made of wood. While attractive and durable, wood is vulnerable to scrapes, scratches and stains.

Here are some tips to help keep your wood furniture looking its best.

CLEANING

— If you dust wood furniture often with a slightly dampened lint-free cloth containing a small amount of furniture polish, you won't have to polish as frequently.

— Choose a polish that matches your furniture's finish rather than its wood. Liquid polish, oil finish and paste wax produce high luster; cream polish and spray wax provide moderate luster. No matter which type of polish you choose, apply it sparingly. The real secret to a good shine is more rubbing, not more polish.

— Avoid switching back and forth from a polish containing oil to one containing wax. Applying both kinds to the same surface could cause blotches or smudges.

— To remove wax buildup, wipe the surface with a soft cloth dampened with synthetic turpentine or mineral spirits. Or use a liquid polish.

REMOVING STAINS

— To remove water stains from wood, place a heavy, thick blotter over the spot, then press with a warm iron until the stain disappears. If the stain persists, rub it with lemon oil and let it set overnight. Wipe away the excess oil the following morning.

— Alcohol spills from drinks, medicines and cosmetics can dissolve wood finishes. Wipe up spills immediately, then rub the area with a cloth moistened with lemon oil.

— Milk spills can also damage wood finishes. Wipe the spill up, rub affected area with a damp cloth that has been dipped in ammonia and rub dry with a clean cloth. Or rub with small amount of silver polish or wet cigarette ashes, then wipe dry.

— Remove glass rings on table tops by rubbing them with a mixture of mayonnaise and white toothpaste. Wipe the area dry, then polish the entire surface.

SCRAPES AND SCRATCHES

— Scratches can easily be treated with touch-up sticks. They come in numerous colors and shades and are available at paint shops.

— Hide scratches on mahogany or dark cherry by rubbing them with a cotton swab dipped in iodine. For unshellacked maple and cherry, dilute the iodine by 50 percent with denatured alcohol. To darken a scratch, rub it gently with the meat of a walnut. Rub the kernel of the nut directly into the scratch, not into the surround-ding wood.

— For scratches in oil finishes, rub with fine steel wool and lightweight mineral oil or boiled linseed oil. Let the oil soak in, then wipe dry.

— Remove light burns with a thin paste made by mixing rottenstone or finely powdered pumice (available from wood-working suppliers) with linseed oil. Rub the paste in the direction of the grain with a soft cloth. Continue until the burn disappears.

— Repairing deep burns is a bit more involved.

1. Gently sand or scrape away the blackened wood with a single-edge razor or utility knife.

2. Select a wax or shellac stick that matches the lightest grain of the wood. Heat the blade of a curved grapefruit knife by holding it over the sootless flame of a spirit lamp or over an electric stove burner.

3. Hold the stick against the heated blade and let the wax melt into the depression in the wood's surface. Melt enough wax so the hole is filled slightly above the wood surface.

4. Let the wax cool. Then scrape off the excess with a razor blade.

5. To match the grain, use a fine-tipped artist's brush to paint dark streaks.

6. Seal the patch with clear polyurethane or an acrylic varnish spray.

Spouse selected vacation mate

NEW YORK (AP) — Both men and women list a spouse, a significant other and a friend as 1-2-3 among the people with whom they would most enjoy sharing a vacation.

But there the similarities end, according to an American Express World Travel News survey of 1000 adults nationwide.

Women chose their children as ideal travel mates more frequently than did men, while men more often chose to travel alone.

FIGHT PLAQUE

Brushing and flossing the teeth is the best way to scrub away gum-decaying plaque, but 1/2 minute won't do it. It takes at least 5 minutes of toothbrushing to defeat plaque, according to a U. of Iowa study. Rather than several short brushings a day, do one thorough brushing and flossing at night, when plaque-producing bacteria are most active.

Exxon to pursue cleanup efforts in Alaskan spill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Exxon Corp. promised to pursue the cleanup of oil-contaminated beaches in Alaska into 1990 if directed by the U.S. Coast Guard, saying it would go along with any "reasonable request."

W.D. Stevens, president of Exxon Co. USA, told a House subcommittee the oil company stands behind earlier pledges to return to the contaminated shoreline next spring "to reinspect the area to assure the job has been properly done, and if not, to put it right."

Stevens said "we intend to more than achieve" cleanup objectives by mid-September and the company intends to go ahead with plans to demobilize most of its operation then for the winter.

Coast Guard Vice Admiral Clyde Lusk said the contaminated areas would be surveyed in the spring and if additional work needs to be conducted Exxon would be told to resume cleanup efforts. But Lusk suggested if Exxon disagrees, the government's only option is to federalize the effort and assume responsibility.

Lusk said he had "no doubt" that during the spring survey there will be "disagreements on what should be done."

When pressed by Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., on what Exxon would do if the Coast Guard demanded additional cleanup actions, Stevens stopped short of committing the company to complying with any Coast Guard directive.

"We will follow through on any reasonable request that is made," said the Exxon executive. He said he could not make "an unequivocal commitment" and told the hearing he "would be naive to do that" in light of expected disagreements within the scientific community on what should constitute a clean shoreline.

Concern about Exxon's cleanup plans arose this week after disclosure of an internal company memorandum that implied Exxon will not commit itself to further cleanup efforts next spring.

The memo said current activity to clean oil from an estimated 700 miles of shoreline along southern Alaska resulting from the Exxon Valdez spill will stop Sept. 15 because of oncoming cold weather.

Stevens said the wording of the memo "was unfortunate" and under questioning from subcommittee chairman Miller, said it was not meant to suggest Exxon was pulling out of cleanup effort after September.

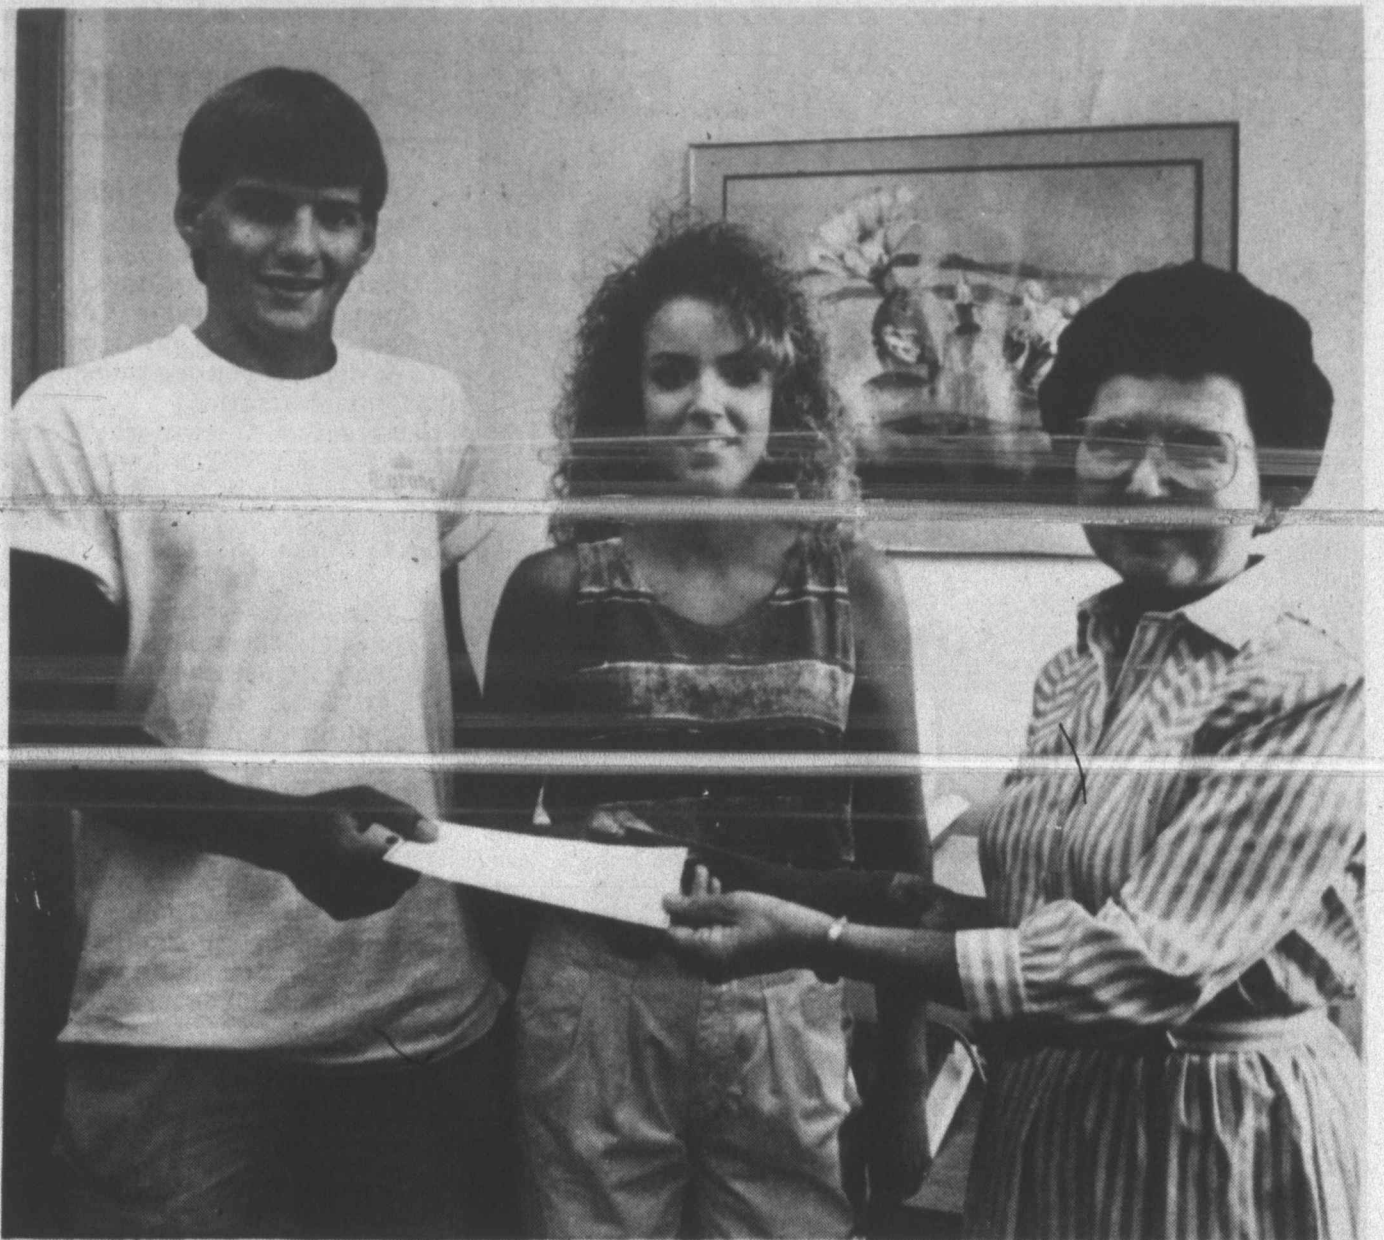

Miller said the focus of the hearing before the House Interior subcommittee on water power and offshore energy resources was aimed at determining Exxon's future cleanup plans and what actions the U.S. Coast Guard intends to take should Exxon not pursue a cleanup.

In separate testimony, Dennis Kelso, Alaska's commissioner of environmental conservation, criticized Exxon's decision to pull its heavy equipment back to Anchorage for the winter, saying there would be no way to launch emergency response efforts should new oil slicks threaten key fishing areas.

"Anchorage by road is about six hours from Valdez across two mountain ranges," said Kelso.

The Coast Guard has overall federal authority over the cleanup effort and subcommittee members are looking for an assurance that it will force Exxon to pursue the cleanup into 1990 if necessary.

Most environmentalists believe the cleanup will be far from completed by mid-September, although Exxon officials have said they continue to expect to "stabilize" the contaminated areas by that time.

Passenger association calls for grounding of all DC-10s

DALLAS (AP) — In the wake of a fiery DC-10 crash in Iowa, an airline passengers association is calling for the grounding of all such McDonnell Douglas aircraft and says it is ready to take legal action to get the jets out of service.

The International Airline Passengers Association said Thursday it wants the planes grounded until structural deficiencies are corrected. But federal regulators and the aircraft manufacturer rejected that call.

The passengers group wants the Federal Aviation Administration to order the planes out of use in light of the July 19 crash of a United Airlines DC-10 in Sioux City, Iowa, that killed 111, said spokesman Daniel Smith.

It is evident that the aircraft's dual hydraulic systems, necessary for flight control, do not work and need to be separate, Smith said.

In a letter delivered Thursday to FAA chief James Busey in Washington, IAPA said it wants to "first, find out what's wrong with the aircraft; and secondly, get it fixed."

Although IAPA has not ruled out court action, the group said it hopes the plane will be grounded without having to resort to legal means.

"We believe it is far better for you to act independently, free of any imposed direction from outside the FAA," the group's letter said.

After a DC-10 crash in Chicago in 1979, the IAPA won a federal court order grounding the DC-10 fleet for more than a month while inspections were performed on some parts of the aircraft.

IAPA then had asked the FAA to separate the hydraulic systems of the aircraft.

In addition to the hydraulic problems, Smith also claimed there are other design deficiencies in the planes, which entered commercial fleets in 1971.

At least 17, or 3.8 percent, of the 445 DC-10s built have been wrecked because of their problems, Smith said. By comparison, 1.2 percent of the Lockheed L-1011's have been wrecked, and 1.5 percent of the Boeing 747s have crashed, he said.

FAA spokesman Jay Leyden dismissed the passenger group's claim.

"There's nothing that's come out of the Sioux City accident indicating a basic design flaw that would warrant such an action," Leyden said.

In another DC-10 accident, a Korean Air DC-10 crashed short of a fogbound airport Thursday in Tripoli, Libya, killing at least 82 people. But a spokesman for the South Korean embassy there said no mechanical problem was reported before the crash.

McDonnell Douglas, maker of the DC-10, countered the IAPA statements Thursday in its own news conference at the Long Beach headquarters of Douglas Aircraft.

"I find it difficult to believe that a rational public, a rational FAA and even a rational Congress will put very much credence in the statements of the IAPA," said Dale Warren, a McDonnell Douglas vice president.

Above the Fold

By Donny Brown

We occasionally find ourselves considering those million-to-one shots. And we're not talking about good luck.

In part, it comes from having worked in a business where such occurrences are big news.

The classic example being the little old lady, sitting at her dining room table, 10:55 a.m. on a Tuesday morning. She has just brewed a cup of tea and pulled a package of Dolly Madison "little white doughnuts" from the refrigerator for her lunch.

"The Price is Right" is winding down and she is looking forward to "The Young and the Restless" at 11 o'clock.

About this time, a Boeing 707, its engines failed because of a wayward cluster of Canadian geese, falls in the approximate vicinity of her front bedroom.

"A million-to-one air crash claimed a Lower Sandusky resident shortly before 11 a.m. today," the evening newspapers will read.

We mentioned the news business. It is occasionally no fun at all to be in a profession where you realize that the impossible does indeed happen.

But, forget the impossible for a moment. More unsettling is the realization that the highly unlikely occurs on the average of about four to six times a year in your typical West Texas town.

SDN Opinion Page

Columns-Cartoons-Look Back-Letters-Quotables

All of us have examples. One that sticks in our mind was several newspapers and at least two cities back.

The basic facts began with a carefully arranged cluster of ornamental rocks, the center piece of a well maintained front yard on a residential street designed for slow traffic. The kind of setting where the loudest sound you normally hear is the lawn sprinkler.

Some 20 ft. away was a patch of loose gravel, a small example of excess left behind at the exact center of the intersection. It was waiting for the shovel and the five seconds it would take to clear it away.

Five blocks away was a fellow with the afternoon off and a friend with a new motorcycle. He had been invited over to inspect it and, once approved, to drive it.

That's what happened that summer afternoon. He got on the motorcycle, twisted the hand accelerator to juice it up and headed down the street, too fast and too late to miss the cluster of loose gravel which waited five blocks away.

The cycle spun out of control, its driver was thrown and those ornamental rocks we described earlier took the force of his fall.

We were called in to take the after-accident photos, and there we had become essentially routine at that phase in our so-called professional life. But, the unlikely setting of that particular fatality has stayed with us long afterward.

This is not to get undue mileage out of someone else's tragedy. But, it has illustrated over the years what a cynical old coot of a newsman once told us. That we're all only a half-step away from disaster.

In print, that may sound like a solemn pronouncement. It was not, in fact, the way it was delivered. Rather, he lofted it out like a drop kick, striking a perfect arc across a blue, October sky.

In this sense, we have come to view it as a hopeful statement.

Only the foolish, he was saying, believe they are immune to disaster. But, knowing this, understanding the game is only a pointless exercise if you then refuse to play it.

What was it Sgt. Phil Esterhase used to say? "Just remember. Let's be careful out there."

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

I just read a book which not only gave me chillbumps as I read it but actually caused nightmares. The book was "The Stranger Beside Me" by Ann Rule. This is the remarkable story of a close friendship Ann struck up with a handsome young law student even as she began to distinguish herself as a crime writer in the Seattle area. When beautiful young women began to disappear there, she eventually contracted to write a book chronicling the search for the serial killer. Her friend encouraged her in this enterprise.

A couple of years later, this friend, Ted Bundy, was convicted in Colorado of the attempted kidnapping of a college student who strikingly resembled the missing women of Washington state and Oregon. Rule, filled with expected ambivalence, continued to write Bundy in prison until his escape. A week later she read of four sorority sisters from Florida State University who were bludgeoned and raped in their beds. Two died. When Bundy was arrested in Florida, she then had to face the truth: her handsome, funny, charming, intelligent friend was a cold-blooded savager of young women. (Ted Bundy was put to death in Florida earlier this year.)

I think the book hit me so hard because, at the same time Bundy stalked college campuses looking for victims, I was a coed, wearing my brown hair long and parted in the middle—like every one of the women he murdered. And I took chances.

I'd leave the dorm in the middle of the night and take long walks alone to sort out problems. Later, while living in, yes, Florida, I'd take my car out—again late at night—and drive the A1A highway down the coast for hours, stopping frequently to enjoy the moonlight on a solitary beach. I remember one afternoon as I sat on a lonely beach, thinking and praying, as I often did, I was approached by a police officer who made me leave. "It's just too dangerous for a woman alone," he said.

That was the early seventies. Since then, rape statistics have doubled. According to numbers quoted in "Newsweek" (who took their statistics from the U.S. Department of Justice), 38 percent of all rapes take place in streets, parks and parking lots. The highest number of rape victims are between 16 and 19 years old. Over 63 percent of all rapes are committed by strangers. Victims are distributed evenly among whites and minorities. Even more chilling, the spread of AIDS now makes rape a life-threatening assault. I couldn't find statistics on the number of rapists who murder their victims in order not to leave a witness.

Our comfortable little town is going to be sending a lot of beautiful women away to university campuses this fall. With that in mind, I'd like to give them a few pointers to take with them, so that they might avoid winding up a statistic. I urge parents to send copies of this article away to daughters who have already left home.

NEVER walk across campus alone at night. Always use the "buddy system." If that can't be done, consider calling campus security to escort you, and make sure they are attired in proper uniform and carry legitimate ID before leaving with them. If you MUST walk alone at night, Ann Rule offers these suggestions: "Look alert. Be aware of your surroundings and walk briskly. You will be safer if you know where you are going and if anyone who observes you senses that." Most of the victims Bundy abducted off of campuses were distracted by personal problems, not alert.

TRUST your instincts. For every victim Bundy grabbed, there were three out of four who didn't feel "right" about him. Some literally ran. Don't be "nice." Get away fast.

NEVER, NEVER get into a car with someone you don't know, no matter how nice he may seem. Bundy relied on his youth, good looks, charm and other devices such as an arm sling or crutches to lure helpful, young women into his snare. They thought he was another student. At times, he WAS. But he was still a killer. Don't accept rides home from class, or impromptu dates with someone you just met. Rely on friends to get you together, or meet him a couple of times first in public places for a hamburger or movie.

NEVER trust anyone who flashes a badge, claims to be a cop, and urges you to leave with him. Real officers don't work that way with innocent, law-abiding citizens.

NEVER accept a random job offer at a place like a mall, or a pitch from someone claiming to represent a beauty pageant, or to be a photographer looking for models. I guarantee you it is not a legitimate offer. Run, don't walk,

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY July 23

A front page photo in Sunday's SDN featured the ribbon cutting for the first Texas Department of Corrections prison completed in West Texas—Snyder's Price Daniel Unit. Charles Terrell, chairman of the TDC board, did the honors in the Saturday morning ceremony. He was joined by fellow board members Allan Polunsky, Ben Gallant and Mamie Moore Proctor.

A "first" in health care for a Texas Department of Corrections prison—a "capitated" plan which includes a set annual fee to be paid by TDC per prisoner—has been approved by the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board, it was reported Sunday.

MONDAY July 24

Two Scurry County men ages 19 and 18 have been arrested and charged with four felonies and a misdemeanor in connection with extensive vandalism damage caused Friday night at the Hermleigh and Pyron cemeteries, a Friday night break-in at Hermleigh School and the theft two months ago of two tombstones from Hermleigh Cemetery.

Citing budgetary constraints, county commissioners Monday turned down a request from the Snyder Park Club for $3,900 to help expand the group's Winston Park headquarters building.

A majority of Snyder city council members agreed Monday night that municipal employees should get a 2 percent pay increase with the new budget, along with a 2 percent merit raise for the 17 employees who have been recommended.

The city administration had suggested a 5 percent across-the-board pay raise and a 3 percent merit raise.

WEDNESDAY July 26

Seven Boy Scouts and an assistant Scout master from Snyder's Troop 27 were to leave Wednesday for the National Scout Jamboree slated Aug. 2-8 in Fort A.P. Hill, Va. The locals will also spend several days touring Washington, D.C.

Those Jamboree-bound from Snyder include Scouts Jason Cooper, senior patrol leader, Brian Earles, Patrick Earles, Robert Patterson, Robert Kimmel, Shane Terry, Dane Farley and Leon Earles, assistant Scout master for Troop 27.

Charles Anderson, a Snyder educator the past 32 years to include service as the principal at two elementary and, most recently, Snyder Junior High, announced his retirement Wednesday.

In a letter to school officials, he noted that although the question of his leaving education has been on his mind for some time, his actual decision was not made until this past week and the end of summer school, which Anderson was overseeing.

Firemen and police are investigating a possible arson case in which two 1989-model automobiles were heavily damaged by fire early Wednesday in the 1200 Block of 28th St.

THURSDAY July 27

A new junior high principal was employed Thursday by the Snyder school board, Gary Patterson, 35, a 1972 graduate of Snyder High School who currently serves as the junior high principal at Ferris, a AAA district near Dallas.

The action came within a week of the announced retirement of principal Charles Anderson. School officials noted they were aware of Patterson since he had interviewed with them the previous week for the top administrative position at the high school.

Faced by what is perceived as a "substantial subsidy" of medical benefits for its personnel and their dependents, Cogdell Memorial Hospital board members Thursday approved policy changes which will see employees assume a greater burden of their own health costs.

The changes were recommended by administrator Tom Hochwalt, who noted currently the hospital is paying an average $90 for claim expense for every $10 paid in by the staff in the form of premiums.

City councilmen discussed medical and life insurance for municipal employees for three hours Thursday night and then decided on a form of self-insurance.

Council members Joe Coronado, Paul Zeck, Ralph Williamson and Jack Greene Jr. voted for the plan, with Vernest Tippens and Mike Thornton voting "no," they said, because they would have preferred "straight insurance," rather than a self-insurance plan.

SDN Letters to the Editor

This is an open letter to our commissioner, Ted Billingsley, his road crew and bridge crew and all those wonderful volunteers who showed up Tuesday morning to help restore Pyron Cemetery.

I think I can speak for all of us who have loved ones buried there, when I say we appreciate you, we thank you and you have our heart-felt gratitude.

I also want to commend the Scurry County Sheriff's Department for their quick action in apprehending two suspects in this wanton vandalism. Desecration of our cemetery made all of us feel we had personally been violated, and it is good to know our officers are there and responsive when we need them.

Texas, New Mexico dispute continuing

DENVER (AP) — A second week of testimony wound up today at a special hearing on a dispute between New Mexico and Texas over Pecos River water.

This week's testimony has been devoted to New Mexico's rebuttal of Texas' damage claim. Texas claims New Mexico improperly took water out of the river that inflicted $51 million worth of damage.

On Thursday, a Washington State University agriculture economics professor testified that the Pecos River water shortfalls suffered by Texas from 1952 to 1986 should not be blamed for the entire west Texas economic problems.

DATE RAPE statistics have reached alarming proportions. If you should ever be assaulted on a date, report it to the police IMMEDIATELY. You can see that if he attacked you, he has and will attack others.

LOCK your door and windows at night, EVEN IN THE DORM. Many coeds are assaulted in their own beds by men who gain entrance to the dorm disguised as janitors.

IT CAN HAPPEN TO YOU. When I was in college, I knew that it was dangerous to wander around in the dark, but I did it anyway. That's the thing about youth. You feel invincible. Much better to be accused of being paranoid than to go to your grave innocent and trusting.

Finally, and most importantly, BE RESPONSIBLE for yourself. In the final analysis, when a man grabs you in a dark and lonely place and puts a knife to your throat, there won't be anybody around to remind you that a woman alone must always, always be careful.

Norman Whittlesey, testifying on behalf of New Mexico during a special hearing on the Pecos River dispute, said the Texas economy lost $7.8 million because of the short deliveries.

Whittlesey said other factors that contributed to the economic conditions in Texas were bad weather, rising energy costs, and declining farm productivity and profitability.

Special Master Monte Pascoe is presiding over hearings to determine the method of reimbursement for water that New Mexico used from the Pecos River in violation of a compact with Texas.

In 1987, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled New Mexico used 340,100 acre-feet of water during the 1950s that it was not entitled to under the 1949 Pecos River Compact.

New Mexico has offered to repay Texas for its loss in cash, but Texas wants water.

Whittlesey testified that his studies showed New Mexico would lose $85.8 million and Texas would reap a $2.5 million benefit if restitution was made in water.

He said the benefit-loss figures were based on New Mexico repaying 34,000 acre-feet of water a year to Texas for 10 years. He said the study took into account acreage retirement in the Roswell, N.M., Irrigation District and the economic loss from crop production. For Texas' figures he used future water supplies, crop yields, production costs and market prices, he said.

"It's quite apparent we're tearing down a rather stable and viable agriculture to deliver that water to Texas," he said.

"That stable and viable agriculture was built with our water," said Texas special assistant Attorney General Renea Hicks.

Hicks also said Whittlesey's figures are inaccurate.

Modern Dentistry Can Take The Bite Out of Gum Disease

By Abigail Van Buren
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a dental hygienist who has used one of your columns for years to educate my patients. I clipped it out of Newsday about eight or nine years ago (maybe longer).

I see people in my office every day who think they are taking good care of their teeth, but end up with gingivitis — gum disease.

Please run that column again.
ZITA MANSON, R.D.H., HICKSVILLE, N.Y.

DEAR RITA: At the risk of other readers complaining about "rerunitis," here it is:

DEAR READERS: If you have dentures, skip this column. But if you still have your own teeth and want to keep them, you may be glad you read it.

DEAR ABBY: I am sitting here after work, emotionally drained and physically exhausted, but I must write this letter because so many people need to be educated. I am a dental hygienist who is currently seeing a flock of new patients because two elderly dentists in this community are no longer practicing. (One retired and the other died.)

These patients had complete faith in their dentists only to come to us and find that it was in vain. They are victims of dentists who did not keep up with current dentistry.

Most of these patients saw their dentist regularly, twice a year for checkups and cleaning — some for 20 to 30 years! They loved their dentists and they can't believe it when they learn that they now have advanced periodontal (gum) disease! They can't understand why they were never told this before. I could tell them, but I don't want to be black-balled in this community should they decide to take legal action. So I hope that you tell them:

These dentists were trained in an era of dentistry that did not understand periodontal disease, and they haven't learned anything since.

Dentures were something that were expected by most older people in the 1920s through the 1950s.

Today we know that gum disease is a bacterial infection caused by plaque — the same bacteria that cause decay. The plaque hardens into calculus (tartar) if it is not removed. The usual place of calculus formation is at the gum line, and it eventually extends beneath the gum, if not removed. It is beneath the gum that calculus does the most damage, for here it attacks the bone that supports the teeth. The bone slowly "dissolves" itself to get away from the irritating calculus. It takes years before the teeth will loosen — and eventually be lost.

More often than not, the patients I see have no calculus visible when looking in their mouths. Their former dentist removed what he could see, but left the calculus under the gums, allowing the disease to continue. He either was unaware that it was there because he failed to keep up with modern dental education, or he was unwilling to change and felt that curing periodontal disease is "modern hogwash." Consequently, the majority of his patients are suffering from advanced gum disease.

Periodontal disease is usually not painful until the final stages. However, there are warning signs. There are several stages — and all are curable until one reaches the most advanced stage.

Only a competent dentist is able to tell you what stage you are in and what treatment is needed. Usually all that is needed in the beginning stages is a thorough cleaning and a good home-care program.

The symptoms to look for are: red and swollen gums; bleeding when one brushes (healthy gums never bleed); a bad taste or odor from the mouth.

In the advanced stages, the bleeding stops because the gums have formed a type of scar tissue around the tooth. (If you've had bleeding for years, and then it stops, it doesn't necessarily mean the problem has gone away.)

Abby, I know this is very long, but the public needs to know the whole story. Let me say that not all older dentists are uninformed, but the vast majority have not kept up with the times, and their unsuspecting patients pay a terrible price.

Fitzgerald selected hall of fame

CHICAGO (AP) — Singer Ella Fitzgerald is among the six musicians chosen as the first inductees to the new Jazz-Blues-Gospel Hall of Fame.

"Chicago has been the seat of gospel music for a long time," said Charles Colbert, the hall's president. "Blues — Muddy Waters, Willie Dixon and many others are from here."

"This is naturally the place where it should be," Colbert said at a ceremony Thursday honoring the hall.

Although similar memorials to each of the three kinds of music exist, the new Hall of Fame is the first single institution honoring all of them, he said.

The initial inductees for jazz are Ms. Fitzgerald and the late trumpeter Louis Armstrong; Waters, the late singer and slide guitarist, and bass player Dixon for blues; and composer Thomas Dorsey, called "the father of gospel music," and the late singer Mahalia Jackson for gospel.

Experts deny poor trapped in poverty

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report on black Americans attacks the belief that poor people are locked into a self-perpetuating "culture of poverty" that sets them apart from society and saps them of the will to work or sacrifice.

Many of the nation's poor "are hard-working people who save when they can, endure numerous deprivations, worry about the future and urge their children to do well in school and on the job," experts said after a four-year study.

The conclusion was a central finding in "A Common Destiny: Blacks and American Society," issued Thursday by a panel of the National Research Council, an arm of the National Academy of Sciences and Engineering.

Yale economist Gerald Jaynes directed the study, participated in by nearly 100 academic experts. Foundations paid most of the $2.7 million cost.

The report was described as the most comprehensive study ever undertaken of the condition of blacks in America. Its chief finding was that while discrimination still holds blacks back, economic stagnation that took hold in the mid-1970s is the chief factor in a widening gap between American whites and blacks.

Whites have changed their attitudes but not their behavior, and that's another cause of the gap between equal opportunity for blacks and its actual attainment, Jaynes said.

"Whites desire equal treatment for blacks in society, but many are reluctant to put this desire into practice in their personal life," he told a news conference.

"This is a great improvement over 45 years ago, when majorities of whites openly supported segregation or discriminatory treatment of blacks, but the divergence between principle and practice frequently means that social institutions do not produce the equal opportunity that Americans desire," he said.

As for the "culture of poverty," the report disputed the assumption that poverty is perpetuated from generation to generation as children learn self-indulgence, have low aspirations in school and lose any ability to sacrifice for the future — qualities that lock them in poverty.

Most poor families move in and out of poverty several times over a lifetime, which would not happen if such a condition existed, the report said; the chronically poor are only a minority of all poor people.

Letters to the Editor

After I heard about the Pyron Cemetery vandalism, my wife and I went there on Sunday. I have people buried there dating back to 1907. My grandparents, the Crosses and Moores, many aunts and uncles, my parents and a brother are all buried there.

When I saw what had been done, it hurt me deeply. I could not understand why anyone would push over tombstones, breaking some. I wondered how the stones could be fixed.

I talked to Rex and Juanita Glass and he said we would get the word to the people and fix the monuments.

Commissioner Ted Billingsley was contacted by Rex, and he said he would send the road and bridge crew. Word was out that they would be there Tuesday at 8 a.m.

Loretta Hallmon started getting the word out for the women to bring dinner. So many people helped, but I can't name all of them. There were enough men to get all the tombstones repaired and put back in place by dinner.

A very special thanks to Fred Foy of the Texas Monument Co. of Abilene for bringing material to fix the stones. He helped at no charge.

They came to Inadale Community Center, which is not far from Pyron Cemetery. Dinner was ready — what a dinner! If anyone wasn't full, it was their fault.

It is wonderful to see people get together and work without any thought of reward.

We of the Pyron Cemetery Assn. cannot find the words to properly say our thanks. May God bless everyone who had a part. It has helped take away the hurt that was so deep.

I won't remember your names, I may remember your face for awhile, but I will never forget what you did.

Top Olney S&L execs are ousted

OLNEY (AP) — Three top executives of Olney Savings Association have been ousted from their jobs, employees were told.

In a Thursday afternoon employee meeting, workers were told executives Alan D. Myers, David Ickert and Wade Fikes had been fired, the Wichita Falls Times Record News reported.

Matt Landry, president of the institution, did not immediately return a phone call today from The Associated Press. Myers, Ickert and Fikes could not be reached Thursday night.

Sources who requested anonymity said the action came at the request of federal regulators, but involved "no foul play" or allegations of wrongdoing against the executives, the Times Record News reported.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board declared Olney Savings Association and 10 other North and West Texas thrifts insolvent on Oct. 14, 1988, because of economic problems and questionable lending practices. At the time, the FHLBB expressed confidence in Myers and his team of executives.

Don Adam, owner of the Adam Corp. Group of Bryan, Texas, invested $80 million to buy the 11 thrifts with their more than 100 offices, which became branches of Olney Savings.

Myers, an employee at the thrift since 1959, had been chairman of the board of Olney Savings Association. In 1987, Myers was selected by the Federal Home Loan Bank of Dallas to serve on the newly established national FSLIC Industry Advisory Committee as the only member from the Southwest. He also served as president of the Texas savings and loan industry trade group.

Ickert, who was executive vice president, had been with Olney Savings since 1976. Fikes, also executive vice president, was a more than 25-year veteran of the institution. He served as president until the insolvency and bailout by Adam.

Pay hike to top state ballot

AUSTIN (AP) — State legislators' bid to triple their salaries will be the first of 21 propositions placed before voters in the November constitutional amendment election after a drawing for ballot positions Friday by Secretary of State George Bayoud.

Drawing numbered cards at random from a gray cowboy hat, Bayoud chose the top ballot slot for the proposal to pay lawmakers one-fourth the governor's salary.

That proposal also would remove the current constitutional requirement that demands voter approval of all legislative pay hikes by tying lawmakers' salaries to the governor's pay, which they set.

Under the plan, lawmakers would see their pay jump from $7,200 a year now to $23,358 beginning in 1991. The salaries of the House speaker and lieutenant governor would go to half that of the governor, or $46,716 initially.

Rep. David Hudson, D-Tyler, authored the proposed constitutional amendment, which if approved by voters would raise lawmakers' pay for the first time since 1975.

A companion proposal would boost expense money paid to members of the Legislature from the current $33 per day to the maximum $81 daily allowed by the Internal Revenue Service. That proposition will be No. 11 on the ballot.

Under the drawings by Bayoud, the other propositions before voters will be:

— No. 2: To authorize issuance of $500 million in additional Texas water development bonds.

— No. 3: To permit state financing of development and production of Texas products and businesses.

— No. 4: To allow exemption of property of nonprofit veterans' organizations from ad valorem taxes.

— No. 5: The "freeport" amendment to allow, on a local option basis, exemption from property taxes of certain personal property in Texas only temporarily for assembly, storage, manufacturing, processing or fabrication.

— No. 6: To permit members of a hospital district governing board to serve four-year terms.

— No. 7: To require elected or appointed state officials to sign a written oath stating that they didn't engage in bribery to obtain the office.

— No. 8: To issue general obligation bonds for correctional institutions, youth corrections institutions and mental health institutions.

— No. 9: To allow the Legislature to combine various state criminal justice agencies.

— No. 10: To permit courts to inform juries about the effects of good conduct time and eligibility for parole on the prison sentences imposed.

— No. 11: To use the Permanent School Fund and its income to guarantee state bonds issued to aid school districts.

— No. 13: A crime victims' bill of rights.

— No. 14: To require a district attorney serving in Fort Bend County to be elected and serve a term in the manner provided by general law for criminal district attorneys.

— No. 15: To let the Legislature regulate charity raffles conducted by certain non-profit organizations.

— No. 16: To allow voters to decide whether to create and maintain hospital districts independent of the Legislature.

— No. 17: To permit state scholarships, grants, loans and other financial aid to local fire departments and other public fire-fighting organizations.

— No. 18: To eliminate certain time limitations on issuance of Texas agricultural water conservation bonds.

— No. 19: To authorize local governments to invest funds as provided by law.

— No. 20: To abolish office of county surveyor in Cass, Ector, Garza, Smith, Bexar, Harris and Webb counties.

— No. 21: To issue general obligation bonds as college savings bonds to provide educational loans to students.

On super collider...

Work could begin in fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements is predicting construction of the super collider could begin as early as November, and backers say the high-energy physics project will bring "immediate jobs for hard pressed Texans."

The Senate agreed late Thursday to spend $225 million to begin building the particle accelerator at a site south of Dallas, while the House has voted to spend $200 million on the project in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

"Investments in basic research pay rich dividends and the Senate today made a big investment in the future of America," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas. "It's a good feeling to be over that last big hurdle, to be assured that construction will start on the SSC sometime this fall."

Clements, who met with Energy Secretary James A. Watkins for nearly an hour Thursday, said they discussed "getting construction under way. We're going to do it."

"I wouldn't be surprised if we didn't get something under way in November," Clements said. "Time is running out on us in this regard. We need to get some tangible effort out there on the site."

State of Texas lobbyist Henry Gandy said Clements is concerned there be substantial evidence that progress on the project is "well under way by next fiscal year," when debate begins on fiscal 1991 funding for the high-energy physics project.

Funds for the collider were included in an $18.4 billion energy and water appropriations package that passed the Senate by voice vote.

"This was a major investment in America's future, that creates immediate jobs for hard pressed Texans and the research that comes from it will create jobs for America's future, increase our productivity, and help restore our technological leadership. And I'm exuberant," Bentsen said after the vote.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, called the project "a daring project of almost unimaginable scope."

Demo chairman says Bentsen good candidate

AUSTIN (AP) — While saying he's not taking sides, Democratic national Chairman Ron Brown says Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen could make an appealing presidential candidate in 1992.

"I have tremendously high regard for Sen. Bentsen. He is clearly one of the leaders of our party," Brown said Thursday, midway through a three-day tour of the state.

Brown lauded Bentsen's performance in 1988 as the party's vice presidential candidate for Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Asked if Bentsen could lure moderate and conservative Democrats back into the national party fold, Brown said, "Many Democrats would welcome him." But the party chairman said he remains neutral in any presidential jockeying.

"Running for president is a decision the individual himself has to make," Brown said.

Brown, who visited Houston on Wednesday and heads for Dallas on Friday, said the trip indicates how much importance the national party places on Texas. No Democrat has been elected president without carrying Texas, he noted.

"Clearly and unequivocally, Texas is absolutely critical to the Democratic Party," he said. "We have got to recapture (the governor's office) here. We've got to have both (U.S.) senators as Democrats."

Texas Democrats are poised to win back the governor's office since Gov. Bill Clements, the only Republican to hold it in the 20th century, is retiring next year, Brown insisted. Both state Treasurer Ann Richards and Attorney General Jim Mattox want the job.

"We've got formidable candidates seeking the Democratic nomination ... We've got to have a Democratic governor in the state of Texas," he said.

On another issue, Brown said he sees no reason for the party to shift from its pro-choice stance on abortion.

With polls showing majorities favoring abortion and in light of the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling that gave state legislatures more authority to regulate them, Brown said, "We now see Republicans scampering around looking for new positions" on the issue.

Drummer guilty

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bobby Daniels, a former drummer for singer Kenny Rogers, was found guilty of murder in the shooting death of Daniels' ex-wife last year.

The Criminal Court jury deliberated about seven hours over two days before reaching its decision Thursday.

Daniels, 41, testified Wednesday that all he remembers is seeing Sylvia Coakley's lifeless body on the floor of her Nashville home last August. Ms. Coakley, 35, who was a real estate agent, was shot five times through a closed storm door.

Your Birthday

July 30, 1989

Three new meaningful relationships could be established in the year ahead. Instead of any of them being of a fleeting nature, they will all be durable and enrich your life for years to come.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It looks like you might be rewarded at this time for something you've done in the past that was never properly acknowledged. Though delayed, the compensation will be just as sweet. Leo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A solution may be found today for a vexing social problem you've been unable to resolve. The intervention of a wise and loving friend will be very helpful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll be motivated to be helpful to others today by your compassion and sense of duty. Even though you'll not harbor thoughts for personal gratification, your deeds will bring you benefits anyway.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone who is extremely fond of you will be working on your behalf today to help you attain something for which you've been hoping. This person will know how to get the job done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something you should be able to do better than the people you'll be involved with today is to take small opportunities and expand them into something much more worthwhile.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your wisdom, as well as your reliability as a friend, will be at the disposal of a pal today who'll be in need of your help. Your thoughtfulness will not be readily forgotten.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You can conduct your affairs more effectively today if you operate in ways that do not call attention to yourself or your aims. The whole world does not have to know your business.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Teaming up with a reliable ally today in order to further a mutual interest looks like it will bear fruitful results. Don't do on your own what can be done more effectively with a partner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An ambitious objective can be fulfilled today if you have the motivation to do so. Your chances for success will be accentuated if you use methods with which you are familiar.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your greatest asset today is your ability to mingle comfortably and constructively with people whose cooperation is essential to your present aims. Something good could result.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Triumphs should come easily for you today in involvements of a domestic nature, be they a party, picnic, cookout or artistic changes in your home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is a strong possibility you will have a meeting of the minds today with a person who is seldom in accord with your ideas or thinking. This could begin a new era in your relationship.

July 31, 1989

Through your own initiative and ambition, it looks like you will find ways to enhance your financial base in the year ahead. Don't be reluctant to prospect in fields you've never previously explored.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're a person who is usually generous to a fault when dealing with others, but today these easily expressed characteristics may desert you and you could hold back something you should share. Major changes are ahead for Leo in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll function best in situations where you can express your initiative and originality. Today you're destined to be a leader and not a person who has to lean on others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Self-doubts rather than outside influences could be your biggest deterrent today. Don't be unrealistically optimistic, but do at least appreciate your talents and abilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This could be a very restless and unfulfilled day for you if you are not involved in some type of endeavor you feel is truly worthy and meaningful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions in general are favorable today for achieving important objectives. When you put your game plan together, make sure it consists of significant or special targets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Being overly analytical today could prove to be counterproductive and throw you off schedule. Proceed at an orderly pace, without getting too absorbed in tangents.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's best you don't probe too deeply into the confidential affairs of a close friend today unless you are fully prepared to assume some of the responsibilities.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Too much weighing and balancing will cause you to be indecisive as well as ineffective today. In order to move ahead, you mustn't alter decisions once they are thought through.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Stifle impulses today to be caustically critical of others, even if you feel what you have to say is justified. Your remarks could create ill will.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's important today that you do not take yourself or others too seriously. Let your sense of humor prevail, even if it means jokes or laughter at your expense.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Instead of launching new projects today, it might prove wiser to complete what you have already begun, particularly if it's a task your mate has been urging you to finish.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Companions may have a greater influence over your attitude today than usual. If you associate with up-beat types, you'll be positive and optimistic.

Suspicious rising on Bloch's freedom

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is now six weeks since Felix Bloch was ordered to surrender his pass to the State Department on the suspicion the veteran diplomat was engaged in espionage for the Soviet Union.

But the suspended bureaucrat, still collecting his pay, is free to travel to visit relatives in New York's Westchester County — trailed by FBI agents, themselves reportedly trailed by Soviet agents. He also is evidently free to leave the country.

It could be that the FBI and other investigators simply do not have the evidence to arrest the 54-year-old Bloch and are hoping the Soviets will try to make contact with him.

To a reporter who knew him casually, Bloch is a most unlikely spy. Courteously and pleasant, he was engaged in the European Bureau in the driest of jobs.

Bloch headed the Office of Regional Political-Economic Affairs, which has nothing to do with the NATO military alliance and conventional and nuclear weapons issues.

Instead, he was concerned with trade and development — and with two Western groups headquartered in Paris: the Organization for Economic Development and the Coordinating Committee on Strategic Materials.

The first is devoted to joint development efforts both in the wealthy West and in the impoverished Third World. The second seeks to restrict the sale of security-sensitive material to the Soviet Union and the Eastern bloc.

The job took Bloch to Paris where he was videotaped handing a briefcase — contents not revealed — to a Soviet agent.

If Bloch was under suspicion of spying for the Soviets, why was he allowed to roam around this country and Western Europe?

If he is a spy, why hasn't he been swapped quietly for an American agent or some other prize in Soviet hands?
