Century II leadership signup set

Applications are being accepted for the seventh Century II Leadership Scurry County class, a leadership program sponsored by the chamber of commerce and Western Texas College.

The program is designed to acquaint community leaders and potential leaders with the area's continuing needs and problems, offer alternate ways of dealing with these needs and problems, and to motivate potential leaders to be involved in Scurry County's future.

Tuition is $225, which covers all materials and program expenses. The class begins Sept. 14 and applications will be taken until that time.

The class size will be from 15 to 17 people. Anyone may apply or nominate someone. A selection committee will choose individuals from all segments of the community to participate.

The 16 class sessions will be on Thursday afternoons and are expected to begin at 2:30 p.m. Tentative class dates are Sept. 14 and 28, Oct. 12 and 26, Nov. 9, Dec. 7, Jan. 11 and 25 of 1990, Feb. 8 and 22, March 8 and 29, April 12 and 26, and April 26. Graduation is set for May 21, 1990.

Dr. Jim Palmer, division chairman of Social Sciences Division at WTC, will be heading the class.

The program seeks to develop community knowledge and leadership skills. Included are programs on the local economy, government, education, health care and quality of life. Program resources will come from citizen leaders and specialists in various fields. The sessions will combine lectures, dialogue among speakers, onsite visits and audience interaction.

Official Century II Leadership Scurry County application forms must be used and may be obtained from the chamber of commerce. For further information, contact the chamber or Dr. Palmer.

County commissioners hearing...

Budget proposal draws fire

County commissioners encountered some opposition to its proposed 11½-cent property tax increase Tuesday afternoon as 120 people attended a public hearing on its 1990 budget in the 132nd

District courtroom. The majority attending were county employees, and six persons voiced opposition to the budget proposal. County Judge Bobby Goodwin opened the 80-minute session by relating the commissioners' budget deliberations of the past two weeks and saying there was little choice but to raise the tax rate from 29.66 to 41.05 cents per $100 valuation. The court is scheduled to set the rate at 10 a.m. Friday.

Leland McCarty, who lives southwest of Snyder, started the questions by asking Judge Goodwin if the court had used prudent judgment in preparing the budget. McCarty questioned the hospital's contract with the TDC, the county's practice of trash collections in rural communities, providing street lights for the same towns, and paying for fire protection in rural areas.

Goodwin said these and other county services were demanded (see COUNTY, page 11)

Company works toward resolving problem concerning unpaid wages

A representative of an Abilene painting contractor terminated from its work at the Price Daniel unit in Snyder said Tuesday that his company is working toward a swift resolution of the unpaid wages problem.

Wes Ronemus, a spokesman for G&S Painting and Sandblasting, was in Snyder Tuesday assisting affected workers to complete affidavits concerning the unpaid wages.

Admitting his company had encountered financial problems, he said the situation of unpaid wages is the fault of the general contractor, Argee Corp. of Denver, for failing to live up to an agreement to assist G&S with meeting its payroll.

"Obviously, we had some financial problems," Ronemus said, "that's why we had to have the agreement with Argee."

Contradicting an earlier report that only one week's wages is in limbo, Ronemus said one worker has not been paid for five weeks. He did confirm that the total pending is approximately $20,000. He said 60 to 65 workers are impacted by the non-payment for various types and amounts of work. Ronemus said no wages have been paid since July 17. The hourly wage rate of the affected workers is $5 to $12 depending on the type work done.

One affected worker, Paula Henderson of Snyder, said she is owed about $1,100. "I'm a single parent with two children, and I need it." The Henderson home Tuesday was being used by Ronemus to assist workers in completing the affidavits.

The company representative said the affidavits that certify the time worked and the amount due will be sent to Argee; Johnson and Higgins, Argee's bonding company; to the labor board; and to the Texas Department of Corrections.

Ronemus said neither his company nor the workers intended to point blame at either the Texas Department of Corrections or any Snyder group. "The problem is Argee not living up to its agreement."

Workers have sought assistance from the state, from the state attorney general's office and from the labor board. (see BACK WAGES, page 11)

Two suffer injuries in separate mishaps

Two Scurry County men were injured in separate accidents that happened within minutes of each other early Tuesday afternoon, including an 87-year-old Hermleigh man who suffered a broken right leg when he was hit by a pickup truck in the 2400 Block of College Ave.

Olin S. Johnson of Rt. 2, Hermleigh, was listed in stable condition in the cardiac care unit of Cogdell Memorial Hospital Wednesday morning.

Police said Johnson was crossing the street from east to west at 1:33 p.m. Tuesday when he was hit by a northbound 1988 Ford F-150 driven by Patricia G. Rasco of Clairemont Rt.

The vehicle was passing a northbound 1985 Plymouth driven by Sharon D. Bowlin of 4400 Ave. U, No. 4C-4, that investigators listed as a non-contact vehicle in the accident.

Johnson, suffering a broken right leg and lacerations on the bridge of his nose and forehead, was taken to the hospital by Snyder EMS.

In the other mishap, a 30-year-old Halliburton Services mechanic was burned in a flash fire in the company shop off the Lubbock Hwy. in northern Snyder.

With burns to his right hand and forearm, Steve Hertel of 319 33rd St. was brought at 1:45 p.m. to the Cogdell emergency room, where he was treated before leaving by private vehicle for Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene.

A spokesman for the Abilene hospital said Hertel was listed in stable condition there Wednesday.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The hardest job in the world is finding an easier one."

Some bankers just don't have a sense of humor. Not only do some bankers frown on people robbing their institutions—they expect repayment.

Late last year, a guy in Ottawa pleaded guilty to robbing a branch of a bank where he had an account as well as nine other banks in the area. After the court hearing, unamused bankers decided to treat him just like any other past-due borrower. The bank deducted 1,500 Canadian dollars, said to be about $1,246 in U.S. currency, from a savings account he had with the bank.

The bank said it took action to recover funds from a banking law known as "right to offset," which allows banks to deduct money from accounts when the borrower has become delinquent on loan payments.

It was the first time the rule has been used to recover funds from a heist, however. The case got wide publicity in Canada, and the robber was invited to appear on a TV talk show.

He revealed that he had been consulting an attorney to see if his rights had been violated by the bank's action. "I don't feel the bank has the right to do that. I won't stand for it."

The bank stands firm, saying a debt is a debt, and just because the robber got a jail sentence doesn't mean the debt was forgiven.

Although most bank robbers don't have bank accounts, the convicted took matters into his own hands. He closed his savings account to prevent the bank from taking more funds.

But in typical fashion, the robber left a loan on the books—which incidentally the bank claims has never been paid due.

We guess the guy shouldn't complain—the bank just wanted the principal back—they didn't charge him interest.

Lunar eclipse

WASHINGTON (AP) — The moon plunges into the Earth's shadow tonight, creating the first total lunar eclipse visible in North America since 1982, and thousands of telescopes are awaiting a celestial show of light and color.

The eclipse will start at 8:23 p.m. EDT when the Earth's shadow appears to take its first nip from the full moon, and will end about 5½ hours later.

The last full lunar eclipse visible over North America was in December 1982, and the next one will not occur until December 1992.

If the skies are clear, East Coast residents will get the best view. The moon will be overhead with twilight ending just as the eclipse begins.

In time zones farther west, the eclipse will start before sunset and moonrise, cheating some Americans out of seeing the full lunar show. None of the eclipse will be visible in Alaska.

Moonrise in Chicago, for example, will be at 7:43 p.m. CDT, half an hour after the eclipse has started.

Trail of popcorn leads policemen to young vandals

CACTUS, Texas (AP) - A trail of popcorn led authorities to four youthful vandals who broke into an elementary school and trashed several rooms and stole all of the school's paddles.

Moore County Sheriff Ted Montgomery said authorities discovered last week that someone had broken a window and entered Cactus Elementary School to vandalize some rooms and steal the paddles.

Montgomery said Tuesday that the vandals tore up a large bean bag chair and scattered its contents about the floor and opened bottles of bleach, vinegar and cooking oil to pour on the floor. They also poured some unpopped popcorn on the floor and that was their undoing, the sheriff said.

Finger paint was splattered around a classroom in the building, Montgomery said.

Montgomery said he was told by school authorities that a boy had inquired the day before the burglary if the school planned to use paddles for punishment during the upcoming school year.

"One of the boys asked if there was going to be corporal punishment the next year," Montgomery said. "He was told yes, there would be. Part of the things that were missing were all of the paddles in the school."

Some of the paddles were later located underneath the building, he said.

But authorities found some popcorn kernels outside the school and around the home of the boy who had popped the corporal punishment question.

When Montgomery entered the home, he saw popcorn kernels in the carpet.

"The house was clean except for the popcorn," Montgomery said.

Dear Abby

Acknowledging Wedding Gifts Is a Job for the Happy Couple

By Abigail Van Buren

© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: As a devoted fan, I have admired your wisdom and solid horse sense. I am also greatly impressed with your gracious willingness to accept criticism when you goof. Well, you goofed.

An embarrassed mother wanted to know how to handle her friends who ask if her son and his bride had received their wedding gift after nearly a year had passed. You said the friends were putting the "blameless" parents on the spot — that the parents should give the friends their children's telephone number so they could ask directly. You missed the point, Abby.

The parents are not blameless! The people who sent the gift are friends of the parents — not the freeloading children. (They may even be unknown to the newlyweds.)

Wedding invitations are issued by the parents, who are responsible for the good or bad manners of their children.

You should have advised the parents to write a formal letter of apology to the friends whose wedding gift had not been acknowledged — and send a copy to their son, along with a zinger, telling him to get his bride off the dime and acknowledge their wedding presents!

PASADENA GRANDPA

DEAR GRANDPA: I'll take my lumps when I goof, but I stand by that answer. I hold that the parents of children who are old enough to marry are not responsible for their children's bad manners. I venture to say that most children have been taught to say "thank you" when they receive a gift, and if they are negligent or lazy, you can't blame their parents.

Also, you suggest that the parents should tell their son to get his bride "off the dime" and acknowledge their wedding presents!

I submit that the wedding presents are his as well as hers, and although the bride usually writes the thank-you notes, the responsibility is not necessarily hers entirely. Today, with the majority of brides working outside the home, acknowledging wedding gifts should be a shared responsibility.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing my will and must make some decisions.

I have two large albums filled with family pictures that go back three generations. I have six children and many grandchildren.

How shall I distribute these albums? I want to be fair.

PUZZLED
IN THE AUTUMN OF MY LIFE

DEAR PUZZLED: Please don't make the mistake most parents make and leave everything to the eldest, or only to the daughters.

Invite each one of your children — and grandchildren — to review the albums and make notes of the pictures they want. With today's technology, excellent duplicates — as good as or better than the originals — can be made. If money is a consideration, perhaps the heirs will pay for the cost of reproducing the originals.

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding people who object to being called by their first name or other familiar greetings by new acquaintances. Please publish this so that none of those people come to this area in the Deep South. Hardly anyone is ever addressed by their full names, and "Mr." and "Mrs." is out of the question down here. They are most likely to be called "Honey," "Darling," "Sugar," "Sweetheart," "Luv," and so on.

Those stiff and formal icebergs who are offended when they are called by their first names would have apoplexy down here!

As for relatives, distant cousins and in-laws, it makes no difference — if they don't greet you with a hug and a kiss the second time you visit, watch out; they probably don't like you!

Believe me, Abby, I am not kidding.

COLLEEN DOUNETTE,
SULPHUR, LA.

DEAR COLLEEN: I believe you.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.99 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

'Night Stalker' jurors to receive second jolt today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jurors who grieved over news of the death of a colleague who sat beside them in the "Night Stalker" trial for the past year may face questions on whether they can continue deliberations.

Another jolt awaits them today: Officials plan to tell jurors that the boyfriend of 30-year-old Phyllis Singletary — the juror found dead Monday — fatally shot himself Tuesday and admitted in a note that he had killed her.

Superior Court Judge Michael Tynan said he would rule today on a request by defense lawyer Ray Clark that jurors be individually quizzed about whether they feel emotionally able to resume deliberations in the case of Richard Ramirez, the 29-year-old Texas drifter charged in the "Night Stalker" slayings.

Daniel V. Hernandez, the chief lawyer for Ramirez, also said he may ask for a mistrial. He said jurors' objectivity may be tainted because one of their colleagues died in a similar manner to those slain by the "Night Stalker." Ms. Singletary was shot and beaten.

Ramirez is charged with 13 counts of murder and 30 other felonies. Prosecutors allege that Ramirez is the devil-worshipping "Night Stalker" who raped, robbed and killed victims in a 1985 rampage that terrorized Southern California.

Some jurors wept Tuesday when they were told about the death of Ms. Singletary.

Tynan sent them home. After they left, word came that Ms. Singletary's live-in boyfriend, James Cecil Melton, 51, had taken his own life.

"They must be told about it," said P. Philip Halpin, deputy district attorney.

He suggested that the disturbing news might necessitate another recess after the planned court session. Jurors also may learn of Melton's suicide and confession from news reports before today's session.

Authorities said Melton left a note admitting he had killed Ms. Singletary in a domestic dispute at the home they shared in Carson.

Sheriff's deputies received an anonymous tip Tuesday that Melton was at the Comfort Inn Motel in Carson. When they arrived, he was dead.

"He came out of his room onto the balcony, put a fully loaded unidentified caliber handgun to his head, and shot himself," said Sheriff's Deputy Bill Wehner.

Autopsies were scheduled to be conducted on the two bodies to see if the same weapon was used, he said.

The murder-suicide came only three days after another juror had been replaced by an alternate for sleeping during deliberations. That meant the jurors who had been deliberating for 13 days had to start their talks all over again. Now they will have to start for a third time.

The alternate who was chosen to replace Ms. Singletary appeared upset when her name was called and sat trembling in her chair rather than moving into the jury box.

Tynan said he understood the jury's emotions: "I think we have all been, terribly affected."

But he said the killing was unrelated to the Ramirez case and expressed the hope that panelists could complete their job.

Different candies prevail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember all that talk about pork rinds during last year's campaign? Forget it. About the only place you can find them in the White House is in a vending machine in the press area.

White House aides say the president rarely munches on pork rinds while working in the Oval Office. In fact, his favorite snack appears to be popcorn.

And, while jelly beans used to reign supreme in the Reagan White House, these are days of candy wars in the top corridors of power at the White House.

Chief of Staff John Sununu keeps a full bowl of licorice outside his office. It serves as the same social gathering point for staff members as water coolers do in other offices.

A rival bowl of confections — candy-coated chocolate M&Ms — sits outside the Oval Office and has its own flock of devotees.

Last week, a minor rebellion erupted after some unidentified — but health-conscious — staffer replaced the M&Ms outside the president's office with what may have looked like pork rinds at first glance, but that turned out to be oat bran cereal.

The oat bran went nearly untouched. The crowd grew bigger at Sununu's licorice bowl.

After a few days of protest, the dietary experiment was halted. The M&Ms are back.

Meanwhile, pork rinds, while scarce at the White House, are regularly put out in Bush's cabin aboard Air Force One.

The president and the staff that emulates him by jogging, playing tennis and horseshoes and riding exercise bikes apparently devotes more time to exercise than nutrition.

Sununu, meanwhile, is one who hasn't been caught up in the recent exercise binge. His idea of exercise, claim staff members, is playing computer games — particularly mathematical ones.

Asked why he hadn't been swept up in the fitness craze, the stocky Sununu told a reporter: "Hey, listen, I wish I had more time, and I should probably have more discipline."

"I've been playing a little basketball with the kids at home," he added.

But he made it clear that you won't see him jogging alongside the president during Bush's three-week vacation in Kennebunkport, Maine, which begins today.

"I think it's great" that the president can engage in such activities, said his chief of staff. "I think it adds to his capacity."

Attorney with 'American' theme faces Republican

MIAMI (AP) — In an ethnically tense battle to succeed the late Rep. Claude Pepper, a lawyer won the Democratic nomination using a theme that he's running for "an American seat."

His Cuban-born Republican opponent called his victory ominous.

Gerald Richman, a 47-year-old former Florida Bar Association president making his first run for office, won a heavy majority of the diverse district's white non-Hispanic votes Tuesday for a 61-39 percent victory over Rosario Kennedy.

Richman moves on to an Aug. 29 special election against state Sen. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, Cuban-born as is Ms. Kennedy, for the seat left vacant by Pepper's death May 30 at age 88.

"It is this community's victory," Richman said. "Now is the time for Democratic unity ... I cannot understand how being an American can possibly be divisive."

He said he will represent "all the people," not any one ethnic group.

With all of 146 precincts reporting unofficial returns, Richman had 14,411 votes to 9,226 votes for Ms. Kennedy.

Ms. Ros-Lehtinen, a seven-year state legislator, flew to Washington late Tuesday and planned to fly back to Miami today aboard Air Force One with President Bush. The president will lead a fund-raising luncheon for her today.

"I think the victory sends an ominous message that there are some voters who respond to an ethnically divisive campaign," Ms. Ros-Lehtinen said. Republicans believe they have a strong shot at adding to their 10-8 majority in Florida's congressional delegation by winning the seat Pepper held for Democrats since its inception 27 years ago.

Ms. Kennedy, 44, in her concession speech, called on Richman "to stop this divisive campaign" and warned that an ethnic campaign "can have Claude Pepper's seat in jeopardy."

She said she would meet with Richman today to discuss the general election campaign.

Richman said, though, that he can defeat Ms. Ros-Lehtinen on issues such as abortion — she's anti-abortion, he's for abortion rights — and that he can unify the community.

"She is in the right-wing, extreme element of the Republican Party," said Richman.

"We're going to campaign by going to the people. This is a grass-roots campaign," said Richman, who overcame Ms. Kennedy's support by party leaders, the AFL-CIO and The Miami Herald.

Richman said his theme was meant to unify Miami and to rebut Republican national Chairman Lee Atwater's statement that it's time to elect the first Cuban-American to Congress.

"He thinks that Lee Atwater is his opponent," Ms. Ros-Lehtinen said. "I condemned those words the moment they were uttered."

Countering a trump stack

By James Jacoby

With only 11 high-card points and shortness in spades, South passed originally — a conservative decision. But after partner opened and supported hearts, South quickly bid game. Expert play and some good guessing were required to bring the contract home.

Declarer won dummy's spade ace, played a heart to his queen and another back to dummy's king. When West showed out of trumps, good luck was needed. First, where was the diamond jack? Declarer led the 10 from dummy. When East played low, declarer rose with the king and played a diamond back to the eight-spot. That forced the ace. East returned a spade, ruffed by declarer. Now a diamond to dummy's queen brought the good news that diamonds were splitting. But South still had to find the club king with East. A low club was led from dummy, and East rose with the king and played still another spade. South ruffed, but still had to tread carefully. If he played his high trump, East would later ruff in and cash a spade. So declarer cashed his fourth diamond, throwing a club from dummy. East was helpless. If he ruffed and led a club, South would win the queen and pick up his trump. If he ruffed and led a spade, declarer would ruff in dummy, come to his hand with the club queen and pick up the last trump as before.

Correct trump management saved the day. Declarer could not afford to draw trumps until he had set up his minor-suit winners. Even though one defender had a trump stack, it was to no avail when South kept a small trump in dummy.

Firm's president has second thoughts about sale to Soviets

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The U.S. government has approved the sale of $90 million worth of highly sophisticated computer technology to the Soviet Union by an El Paso firm, but the company's president is having second thoughts.

Rodger Lovrenich, founder and president of Septor Electronics, said Tuesday he has doubts about whether the United States should let the deal go through because the technology is so advanced, it could be put to use in missiles.

"We want to be very open about this," Lovrenich said. "Artificial intelligence systems, computers that 'think' by themselves, to run factory assembly lines are made by Septor. But they could also help missiles find their targets, the company president said.

"Suppose we ship to the Soviet Union," Lovrenich said, "and they (U.S. officials) accuse us of being a collaborator with the enemy or some damn thing."

"I want to make it clear that we're doing what's correct based on the actions of the government," he added.

Septor has received permission from the U.S. Department of Commerce to sell its artificial intelligence system for use in Soviet car assembly plants.

The joint venture with the Soviets was announced Tuesday.

The U.S. government generally prohibits exports to the Soviet Union of advanced technology that could have military applications so Lovrenich said he was surprised when the license was approved.

Saying he filled out the forms as honestly as possible, Lovrenich said his case underscores deficiencies in the way the Commerce Department examines potential strategic uses of new technology.

"Who do you think looks at these applications? Clerks do, not Einstein," he said.

Lovrenich said he hoped to sell the system to the U.S. military, but the military has shown no interest.

Septor expects to ship the first equipment to the Soviet Union in about a year.

Lovrenich indicated that he would like the Commerce Department to step in, but said he would not voluntarily stop shipments.

Commerce Department spokesman John Thomas told the El Paso Times Tuesday that he was prohibited from discussing a specific company. He said he was not immediately able to elaborate on the application process.

Companies that want to export technology to the Eastern bloc match their product with a list of similar technological applications that are either approved or not approved for export to those countries, Lovrenich said. The process works for existing technology, but breaks down when something new comes along, he said.

If Penry is not retried, Gov. Bill Clements may commute his sentence to life in prison. Penry has said he fears a new trial would result in his returning to death row.

The Supreme Court earlier voted 5-4 to vacate Penry's death sentence because the trial judge refused a defense attorney's request for further instructions to Penry's jury concerning his mental illness.

Aug. 17, 1989

Many opportunities for financial growth will be available for you in the year ahead. However, they are promising only as long as you believe in your abilities and not let any minor disturbances dissuade you from your goals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An involvement you've spent considerable time working on should not be abandoned today if it begins to look unprofitable on paper. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Strive to be part of the group today by making cooperation your by-word. If you are cool or indifferent, you could make others feel as uncomfortable as you do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A change of routine today could be just what you need to refurbish your outlook, however, plan something strictly social and not obligatory as it might exhaust instead of energize you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone could attempt to make you feel as though you are the selfish one because you wish to spend time on your own interests. Actually the reverse is true, the other person is the real culprit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be attentive should someone try to give you some well-meaning advice today, but judge it by your own standards to determine its worth, then proceed as you see fit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) When it comes to making money, you're the best today. However, this is only true of situations where you earn your rewards, not with gambles or get-rich-quick schemes.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Select your companions with care today and you should have a picture-perfect day. Remember, it only takes one bad brush stroke to smear and distort the scene.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) All should go smoothly in your dealings today if you quietly orchestrate your intentions from behind the scenes. When overexposed, you run the risk of being confused by outside influences.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't sell your ideas short today even if a negative associate gives you a million reasons why they won't work. Implement them if your experience and expertise tells you they will work.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You possess all the necessary skills to maneuver around any obstacle that comes between you and your objectives today. Although you might think so, you actually won't need help.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should it prove necessary to change or alter your plans somewhat to accommodate an unexpected development. Don't panic or get upset. Even a major shift won't spoil a thing.

U. S. officials say...

Poland's problems are 'internal affair'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration is engaging the Kremlin in a mild war of words over attempts by Poland's Solidarity trade union to form a non-communist government in that Soviet bloc country.

"Questions involving the government of Poland are properly an internal affair," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Tuesday. He was using a diplomatic formula that

Savers' benefit pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration, seeking ways to boost the U.S. savings rate to cure a variety of economic ills, appears to be inching closer to recommending increased tax incentives for thrifty Americans.

U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills added her support to the idea Tuesday, saying that expanding Individual Retirement Accounts would make her job of reducing America's huge trade deficits easier.

Millions of American savers could benefit through expanded IRAs, which enjoyed great popularity earlier in the decade, but it could cost the U.S. Treasury billions of dollars in lost tax revenue.

Hills, in an interview with reporters, stressed that she was not signaling an imminent administration announcement on IRAs. However, other officials said a proposed increase in tax incentives for IRAs is high on the list of options being studied by the administration.

Americans' personal savings rate — savings as a percentage of after-tax income — fell to a 40-year low of 3.2 percent in 1987 and increased only slightly to 4.2 percent last year.

By contrast, Japan, the country with the world's largest trade surplus, had a savings rate of 16.5 percent in 1987.

Administration officials said they are planning a fall campaign, to be led by Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, focusing on the country's chronic low savings rate and proposing ways to correct the problem.

The huge cost of IRAs was one reason they were greatly scaled back by the 1986 Tax Reform Act.

recalled the flavor but not the intensity of 1980-81, when Solidarity last challenged the Polish Communist Party, leading to martial law.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist Party daily Pravda warned that efforts by Solidarity leader Lech Walesa to form a non-communist government were "against the principles of parliamentary democracy" and "could lead to a prolonged political crisis."

"The opposition has changed its strategy and has taken the course of an immediate seizure of power," Pravda said. The commentary noted that fixing the Polish economy required a coalition of political forces, including the communists.

The commentary contrasted with recent Soviet media reports on Poland. Soviet television recently broadcast neutral coverage of such Solidarity leaders as Walesa and Bronislaw Geremek, and highlighted a visit last month by filmmaker Andrzej Wajda, a Solidarity supporter and member of parliament who served as a judge in the Moscow Film Festival.

An independent Washington-based analyst, Janusz Bugajski, said the Soviet commentary "means that they are trying to send a message to the government and to Solidarity that things have gone far enough."

"The Soviets have given the countries of Eastern Europe a free hand over the past few years, but they may be reassessing that policy," said Bugajski, a scholar at the Center for Strategic and International Studies and author of the book, "Eastern European Fault Lines."

Poland's communists, he said, "would like to lure Solidarity into a coalition" to share blame for the deteriorating economy and soaring prices, but do not want to surrender power, especially of military and security forces.

Solidarity leaders, on the other hand, are coming under pressure from rank-and-file supporters to take advantage of elections this year that shattered the communists' hold on parliament.

But Solidarity is wary of sharing power with the communists and taking the fall for continuing economic and political problems, said Bugajski.

Soviet leaders worry that Poland ultimately may leave the Warsaw Pact defense alliance, but know that a 1981-style military crackdown would jeopardize the efforts of Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to improve relations with the West and reform the Soviet system.

In Warsaw, Walesa continued to jockey with communist authorities over who should lead the government.

Walesa said he was willing to serve as prime minister "if society wants it." And Polish President Wojciech Jaruzelski called for a joint meeting soon of the country's major political leaders to find a "rational solution" for the deepening governmental crisis.

State Department spokesman Bocher declined to comment directly on the Pravda article, but said U.S. officials "note that Poland faces a difficult period of transition from a state dominated by one party to a more pluralistic and democratic system."

"This process must be managed within Poland itself. The formation of a new Polish government is an internal matter for the Polish people to decide. We hope that a new government will be formed as soon as possible," he said.

Sixth in a series...

Wacker, Frogs eager for '89

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — During those champagne days of 1984, delirious Texas Christian football fans frolicked with Jim Wacker and his Horned Frogs through a classic turnaround season. "Cinderella's a Frog!" they cried.

"Unbelievable!" they laughed en route to an improbable 8-4 campaign and a Bluebonnet Bowl bid. The school song was "That Old Black Magic" and the battle cry was "Purple Power."

Then, overnight, an alumni slush fund scandal turned the cheers to tears and sent TCU's football fortunes plunging into the black hole of NCAA probation.

Now, four years later, those sanctions have been lifted, the scandal is gone if not forgotten and both Frogs and fans are ready for a fresh start.

"The good news is that's all behind us now," says the perpetually upbeat Wacker, 52, who is starting his seventh season in the roller coaster world of TCU football. "We don't have to worry about it anymore."

If that's the good news, the bad news is that Wacker and his coaching staff need a bit of black magic if they're to romance Cinderella and revive any hope of a winning season.

NCAA penalties left the Horned Frogs with a reduced number of scholarship players and a team ravaged by graduation losses, including a pot full of blue chip-pers.

A crack kicking duo is gone. Worse yet, spring training injuries took a monstrous toll, including key offensive linemen Rob Adams and Jeff Hopkins.

TCU's fortunes ride this fall largely on the psychological intangibles of a fresh start, a new spirit of team camaraderie, the leadership qualities of a few veterans and the ability of several newcomers to fill critical gaps on both offense and defense.

All that plus a new offense, one similar to the splashy, wide open, run-and-shoot attack used last year by Southwest Conference rival Houston.

"We've got a lot to overcome," Wacker admits. "And nobody said it would be easy. But I really feel better right now because our problems are behind us and we've got some pretty good talent coming back."

Wacker is optimistic about his new offense, labeled the "Triple Shoot."

It features veteran Tony Dardhard at setback and a flock of wide ranging targets for quarterback Ron Jiles. Jiles throws well and has the mandatory quick release.

"I think it's a good offense for him," Wacker maintains. "It scatters people all over the field, and it gives a throwing quarterback a chance. And Ron's been waiting in the wings a long time."

Says Jiles: "It's very explosive when everybody gets it down. It can't be stopped if the quarterback and receivers learn to communicate and know how to find the open spots."

One of the keys is richly talented receiver Kelly Blackwell, who sounds a little like a member of the lightly regarded 1984 dream team.

"No one is expecting us to do well at all," he told a sports magazine. "This would be the perfect year to surprise some people."

Defensive tackle Fred Washington, the Frogs' potential superstar, couldn't agree more. He says that despite the loss of some 32 scholarship seniors the team will have better overall speed and no shortage of dedication. "We've had enough suffering in the past," he growled. "We want to go to a bowl game."

Wistfully recalling that Cinderella 1984 season, Wacker said:

"We were picked dead last that year. ... Our guys now are more blue collar than blue chip, and they know it's going to take a lot of work to make it happen. It's not going to be easy...but it's not impossible."

Hough tosses 1-hitter, loses to Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — Pity poor Charlie Hough and the Texas Rangers.

They deserved a better fate against the Seattle Mariners in the Kingdome Tuesday night. They didn't get it.

"One of the strangest games I've been in," Seattle manager Jim Lefebvre said.

"I've never seen anything like that," added Bobby Valentine, the Rangers manager.

Hough, 41, pitched a one-hitter and was backed by a 13-hit attack but he lost to the Mariners 2-0. as Brian Holman and Mike Schooler combined to shut out the Rangers.

Hough had a no-hitter for five innings. He lost his no-hitter and the game in the sixth.

Harold Reynolds led off with a line drive single to right center-field and advanced to second on a balk. Alvin Davis was walked intentionally. Hough wild pitched the runners to third and second. Jeffrey Leonard then hit a sacrifice fly.

"Our guys swing the bat well, play hard, Charlie throws a terrific game and we lose 2-0," said Valentine. "Figure it out."

The Rangers lost their third straight game and for the ninth time in their last 13 starts. Hough lost his second career one-hitter and dropped to 7-12 this season, including 0-3 against the Mariners. He struck out three and walked five.

The unflappable Hough accepted the loss without a complaint.

"... I didn't help myself, with the wild pitch," admitted Hough. "I had a chance to get out of it, but I threw a knuckleball that

Melon Bowl set for Saturday

The Snyder Tigers are gearing up for the second annual Watermelon Bowl Saturday at 8:30 a.m.

Track coach seeks runners

Any high school student interested in competing in cross country track should contact coach Joe Granato.

Granato may be reached at 573-6301. Interested runners may want to stop by the high school or the athletic field house.

The coach reminds all athletes that a current physical examination is necessary for track, as in other sports.

The Varsity will scrimmage the JV and the JV will turn around and play the freshman squad.

Watermelon will be served to fans who come to get a preseason glimpse of the Tigers.

The Snyder varsity and junior varsity will travel to Plainview Aug. 24 for a scrimmage and will return to Snyder for a practice game vs. Colorado City Sept. 1.

The regular season starts for the Black and Gold on Sept. 8 as Lubbock Coronado comes here to tangle with the Tigers.

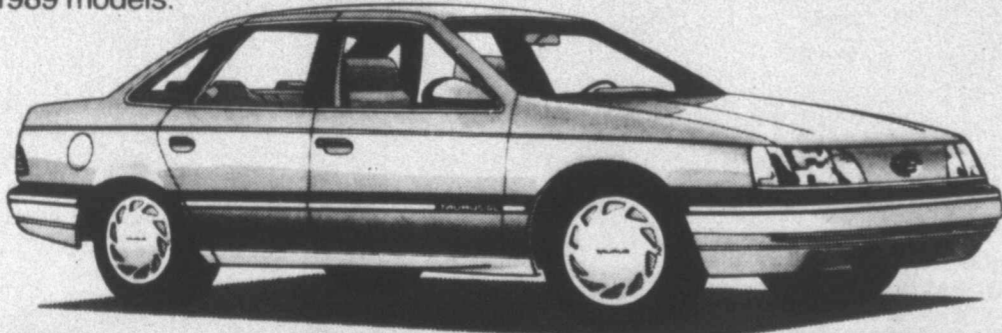

The district schedule commences Oct. 6 when Snyder goes to San Angelo to play Lakeview.

Snyder team goes to state

The men's softball team competing under the name Snyder Iron and Metal recently took part in the state softball tournament in Ft. Worth, coming away with an invitation to the division tourney in Euless.

Over 40 teams were battling for position in the event with the top 10 being offered spots in the Euless tournament, according to team spokesman Chris Maxfield.

The division tournament will take place Sept. 2-4 with the top 10 finishers advancing to the national tourney.

Ryan seeks historic 'K'

SEATTLE (AP) — Nolan Ryan is in town, which means the Seattle Mariners are flirting with another piece of baseball history.

In 1986, Roger Clemens struck out a record 20 Mariners in a 9-inning game. Today, Ryan starts for the Texas Rangers against the Mariners needing 14 strikeouts to reach 5,000 for his career.

Seattle's manager is Jim Lefebvre, one of the 1,061 major-league batters to strike out against Ryan.

"It was so long ago I don't remember facing him," Lefebvre said. "Whatever I did against him was uneventful. I'm just one of the many little guys that will put him in the Hall of Fame."

Ryan, 13-7, has 211 strikeouts in 168 1-3 innings this season, running his 23-year total to 4,986.

"I'd like to reach 5,000 but it was never a goal of mine," the 42-year-old right-hander said. "Every player would like to reach a number like this at home, but I will approach this game like any other."

His next scheduled start will be Tuesday against Oakland at Arlington Stadium.

Mavs and White make progress in pact talks

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks have come up with something they hope keeps their top draft pick from boarding a plane to check out what Europe has to offer.

A 2½-hour session Tuesday between Norm Sonju, Mavericks general manager, and Randy White's agent resulted in a 5-year guaranteed contract offer, The Dallas Morning News reported in today's editions.

Details of the offer were unknown, but it was believed to be in the $4 million range.

The offer removes all incentives that had become the major haggling point between the Mavericks and Bill Blakeley, White's Dallas-based agent, The Morning News reported. Sonju also urged White not to travel to Greece with a delegation from the Paok team. "I see zero value in him stepping on that plane," he said.

When officials from the team in Salonika, Greece, flew into Dallas to meet with White over the weekend, he obtained a passport to get ready for a trip, beginning today.

White said he would not go to Greece if it appeared progress was being made in the negotiations.

Blakeley said he would meet with Sonju today and, depending on the outcome of those talks, may recommend White stay put. "We don't know if he'll be on the plane until after I talk to the Mavs," Blakeley told The Associated Press late Tuesday.

White, a 6-7 power forward from Louisiana Tech, was the eighth player taken in the NBA June draft.

The two sides appeared closer to a contract Tuesday.

"The way Bill and I left it is that we would sleep on this proposal and that either one of us has the right to withdraw it ...," Sonju said. "If either one of us decides we don't want those numbers, fine, let's wait till September."

White, a Dallas native, has said all along that he does not wish to play in Europe, as some other NBA picks have done. He characterized the Paok offer as just "another option" if he were not offered an acceptable deal from the Mavericks.

Two players — Los Angeles Clippers' No. 1 pick Danny Ferry and Boston Celtics guard Brian Shaw — already have turned down the NBA this season to sign with European teams.

Sources on both sides of the negotiations said talks stalled earlier when the Mavericks offered White a 5-year deal worth $3.3 million that could increase to

Oilers RB White not liking bench

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Houston Oiler running back Lorenzo White has learned about NFL linebackers but he hasn't learned to like sitting on the bench.

White, a workhorse runner at Michigan State two years ago, suddenly found himself a spectator last season after becoming the Oilers' No. 1 draft pick.

He's currently getting more repetitions because starter Mike Rozier is a contract holdout.

But if Rozier gets the 5-year contract he's seeking, White's impatience could return.

"Some people tell me to sit back and wait and take my money but that's not the most important thing for me," White said. "I'm not that type of player. It hurts to be watching from the sidelines."

White provided most of Michigan State's offense his senior year. Now he's trying to adjust to the thought of Rozier's return.

Club to host youth events

The Snyder Country Club will be hosting their annual Junior Club championship and Parent-Child championship this week at the country club golf course.

The junior club event will begin Thursday morning at a time to be announced. Any age child may participate.

The Parent-Child championship will be played on Saturday. There will be different divisions for the competitors based on ages and number of entries.

A point system will determine the winner in the Parent-Child affair.

For more information contact the golf shop at the Country club at 573-7101.

SPORTS

Noonan to play vs Raiders in Saturday exhibition tilt

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys starting defensive tackle Danny Noonan could return from a groin injury in time to play against the Los Angeles Raiders Saturday.

But for Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson, Noonan's return can't be soon enough.

Johnson said Tuesday he was disappointed in the play of Noonan's replacements — free agents Dan Sileo and Willie Broughton and rookie third-round draft pick Rhondy Weston.

"I thought they did an adequate job," Johnson said. "But they were a little soft at times and they ran around some blocks."

"We were not as efficient at that position as we would have been if Danny was in the ballgame."

Noonan has missed the last several days of practice with the injury and did not play in the Cowboys' preseason opener at San Diego Sunday. Noonan, a former first-round draft pick in 1987, is entering his second year as a starter after taking over for Randy White last season.

Sileo, a second-year free agent who played for Johnson at the University of Texas, took the place of Noonan and did not have a good game, according to Johnson.

"He busted a few defenses," Johnson said. "And he had some mental errors. But he gave a good effort."

Broughton, a free-agent who also played college ball under Johnson, was also not impressive. And Weston, a third-round draft pick, sprained his ankle in the first half and is still out.

Johnson said none of the three players, who are vying for the backup tackle spot behind Noonan and fellow starter Mark Johnson, have done enough to make themselves noticed.

"Right now, it's up for grabs," Johnson said. "I wouldn't say anybody has the edge. No one has looked like they are playing at 100 percent."

The Cowboys also made a roster move Tuesday, releasing linebacker Eric Naposki, a second-year man from Connecticut. Naposki was one of the team's Plan B free-agent acquisitions during the offseason.

Johnson said wide receiver Tyrone Thurman — who, at 5-foot-3, is the shortest player in the NFL — will see more action at returning punts. Thurman had a 21-yard return against San Diego that set up the Cowboys' first score.

Golf tourney slated Friday

WTC's golf course will host the annual Day and Night Scholarship golf tournament Friday.

The entry fee of $35 will get participants 18 holes of golf, dinner, one "night ball" and stick.

Nine holes will be played in the light of day, with tee time set for 6 p.m., and nine holes will be played after dark as play resumes at 9:30 p.m.

A barbecue dinner, provided by Beta Sigma Phi sorority, will be served at 8 p.m.

Proceeds from the tournament will go to the scholarship fund at Western Texas College.

Rose and ump shove each other after Cincinnati loss

CINCINNATI — Pete Rose, already under threat of a lifetime ban for alleged gambling on baseball, could be in trouble again.

Sixteen months after his 30-day suspension for shoving umpire Dave Pallone, Rose was involved in another bumping incident Tuesday night after Cincinnati's 5-2 loss in 12 innings to the Chicago Cubs.

The Cincinnati manager and umpire Joe West shoved each other after Rose came to the defense of Reds second baseman Ron Oester, who also exchanged bumps with West.

Rose was suspended for 30 days last season by then-NL President A. Bartlett Giamatti for bumping Pallone twice and inciting the crowd.

"You saw what they did when I pushed Pallone last year," Rose said, referring to the $10,000 fine and suspension. "Let's see what happens now."

The argument started with a call on a 2-2 pitch to Mark Grace in the top of the 12th, which plate umpire Bill Hohn called a ball. Grace walked and scored on Andre Dawson's game-winning, three-run homer.

"It started on the call on the pitch to Grace," Rose said. "Hohn warned the Reds dugout and West came over and joined in. Oester said to West, 'Just do your job.'"

In the bottom of the 12th, Oester took a 3-2 pitch and was called out by Hohn, ending the game. Shouting followed between Oester and Hohn, and again West joined in.

Words were exchanged and West pushed Oester.

Cubs manager Don Zimmer, who was on the field to congratulate his players, said, "For what reason does West have to shove Oester, not once but twice?"

Oester was restrained by teammates as he attempted to get back at West, who was leaving the field and heading toward the tunnel behind home plate.

Rose also intervened and argued with West, pushing him several times.

"We have no comment, nothing to say," crew chief Jerry Crawford said. "We will discuss it before the game tomorrow."

Rose currently is under investigation by Giamatti, now baseball commissioner, for allegedly betting on Reds' games, an offense that, if proven, carries a lifetime ban. A federal court order prevents Giamatti from conducting a hearing on the charges.

Becker beats Leach at ATP

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Boris Becker has reached the stage in his career that he can afford to daydream in some first-round matches.

Becker had one set under his belt and was serving for the match Tuesday night against Rick Leach in the first round of the ATP Championship when his mind began to wander.

"I was thinking already about when I could go to sleep tonight," Becker said.

Leach took care of Becker's daydream, breaking the No. 1 seed's service and forcing a tiebreaker before falling 6-3, 7-6 (7-4).

"Maybe that caught me off guard," Becker said of his mental lapse. "Then during the tiebreaker I played three very good shots to win."

A free pass to the second round

Shriver advances in Bank Classic

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — There was time a couple of months ago when Pam Shriver wasn't sure whether she wanted to continue playing competitive tennis.

The 27-year-old had been on the women's tour since she was a teen-ager and the zest to play just wasn't there, and she said so.

With the U.S. Open now two weeks away, Shriver is again tennis hungry and she gave evidence of it on Tuesday in defeating Louise Allen 6-2, 6-2 in the opening round of the United Jersey Bank Classic.

"I'm working myself back into condition playing matches and that is the tough way to do it," said Shriver, who is seeded second in this event behind Steffi Graf. "I had been thinking of cutting back on singles but now I realize that there is a lot more competitiveness still left in me."

Shriver still is working out some of the kinks and she did not have as easy a time as the score indicated. The world's No. 9 woman was forced to deuce in six of her eight service games and had to fight off seven break points.

"I've worked harder and I'm not ready to hang it up," she said. "I'm working back into shape in my matches."

The 6-footer from Baltimore closed out the first set with a forehand cross-court pass on the run for a break in the eighth game. Shriver broke in the fourth game of the second set and later closed out the match with a reflex forehand half-volley lob that caught Allen out of position.

wasn't what Becker wanted. He said his rhythm was still off following a three-week layoff after his victory at Wimbledon.

"These kind of matches are very good for me since I haven't played in a while," Becker said. "I don't need a 6-2, 6-1 match."

After breaking on top 4-0 in the first set, Becker watched as Leach pulled to 5-3 before falling. It was a comeback Leach would duplicate in the second set.

Becker, the No. 2-ranked player in the world, said it wasn't surprising that he had so much difficulty with Leach.

"It was 4-love, but not an easy 4-love," Becker said. "I guess I relaxed a little bit and he had nothing to lose anymore. He's a good serve-and-volley player, so the key for me was to try to break him as early as possible. And I wasn't able to, so he stayed in and played good shots."

Becker, who won the ATP in 1985, was one of three former ATP singles champions to advance Tuesday.

Mats Wilander, with titles in 1983, 1984, 1986 and 1988, and Stefan Edberg, who won in 1987 and lost to Wilander in the finals last year, each had little difficulty in advancing. Wilander defeated Byron Talbot of South Africa 6-3, 6-2 and Edberg beat Barry Moir of South Africa 6-3, 6-2.

Wilander, ranked fourth in the world, is seeded No. 3. Edberg is third in the world and the No. 2 seed.

Spikers start '89 campaign

The Lady Tigers volleyball squad will host a three way scrimmage Monday at 1 p.m. against Denver City and Lamesa in the girls' gym to prepare for the upcoming season.

Snyder will begin the regular season Tuesday at 4 p.m. in Brownfield. The freshmen, junior varsity and varsity squads will all compete there.

After the Brownfield match, Snyder will face Colorado City here Aug. 24 before traveling to Monahans for a tournament Aug. 25-26.

Abilene Cooper comes to Snyder Aug. 31 and then the team hits the road again as the varsity travels to Pecos and the JV heads to Denver City for tournaments Sept. 1-2.

The preseason ends for the spikers with a trip to Plains for all three teams on Sept. 5.

The Lady Tigers begin district play Sept. 9 in Pecos.

Grand jury indicts man in Treaty Oak case

AUSTIN (AP) — A man indicted for felony criminal mischief in connection with the poisoning of the historic Treaty Oak would get a fair trial in Travis County, said an assistant district attorney.

"I think Travis County is known for fair juries, for fair-minded people, and I think we could indeed have as fair a trial in this county as in any other county in Texas," Kent Anschutz, assistant district attorney, said after Paul Stedman Cullen of Elroy was indicted Tuesday by the Travis County Grand Jury.

Cullen's attorney has said he would consider seeking a change of venue from Travis County because of publicity surrounding the case.

"The folks in Travis County are very fair-minded," said Dallas lawyer Richard C. Jenkins. However, he added last week, "The real trial's already been held in the press."

Jenkins did not immediately return a telephone call Tuesday from The Associated Press.

Cullen, 45, faces up to life in prison if found guilty of the charge, Anschutz said. Cullen has been jailed in lieu of $20,000 bail since he was arrested June 29 and charged by police.

The possible maximum punishment for the felony, which normally would be 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine, is increased to life in prison because the indictment also alleges that Cullen had a previous felony conviction for usually is reserved for a kidnaper or murderer.

"By golly, we've got our own Salem witchcraft trial in Austin, Texas," he said.

Anschutz said the bond is "certainly within the realm of the usual bond set for cases like this, especially with a person who has spent time previously in prison for a prior offense."

It is likely the district attorney's office would fight an effort to move the trial from Travis County, he said.

There was an outpouring of public support for the tree after the poisoning was discovered. Visitors to the oak have left get-well messages, flowers, cans of chicken soup and rock crystals, which some believe have healing powers.

An $11,000 reward also was offered for information leading to the conviction of the poisoner, with $10,000 being put up by Du Pont, which manufactures Velpar. The other $1,000 came from the Texas Forestry Association.

Legend has it that Stephen F. Austin, the father of Texas, signed a treaty with the Indians under the oak's branches. However, the Handbook of Texas says there is little foundation for the tale.

burglary in Travis County, Anschutz said.

It is too early to determine what punishment the district attorney would call for in the case, Anschutz said.

Asked whether he considers Cullen to be dangerous, he said, "He's proven himself to be, I suppose, a danger to the community or to certain venerated objects in the community, but beyond that I really don't have a comment."

Police have alleged that Cullen may have poisoned the centuries-old tree as part of a ritual. But the indictment does not list a motive in charging that Cullen caused more than $20,000 worth of damage to the oak tree.

More than that amount has been spent on efforts to help the tree recover from the poisoning by the potent herbicide Velpar, which was poured on the soil around the oak's base, Anschutz said. He said whether the tree dies should not affect the case.

Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot has offered financial assistance and experts have been called in to try to save the tree, which has dropped several sets of leaves since it was poisoned.

Although the assistant district attorney said it is "anyone's guess" how long it will take for the case to reach trial, he added that a delay of several months is common.

Jenkins, Cullen's attorney, has scoffed at allegations that the poisoning was a ritual action. He said the amount of Cullen's bond

Organizer says Elvis vigil will go on

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Elvis Presley faithful marking the 12th anniversary of the singer's death filed quietly past his grave in a candlelight procession early today.

The ritual, an organizer says, will be repeated each August for years to come.

"One reason for a fan club is to pass the torch, to keep the candle burning," said Georganna Reynolds, president of Elvis Country Fan Club.

The club, which has sponsored the graveside vigil for 11 years, has more than 1,200 members worldwide, many of whom are too young to have been Presley fans when he was alive, Ms. Reynolds said.

"We're passing the torch now to the younger people in the club," she said.

The candlelight vigil began at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday and police estimated it drew from 3,000-4,000 participants through the night. The affair is the largest single event of a nine-day lineup of concerts, memorials and fan get-togethers making Elvis International Tribute Week.

The 7-year-old Tribute Week is organized and promoted by managers of Presley's former residence, Graceland, which draws 650,000 visitors a year, including some 40,000 over the anniversary celebration.

Participants in the candlelight vigil marched single file up the quarter-mile drive at Graceland carrying candles lighted from a torch fired from an eternal flame at Presley's graveside.

Presley, who died of heart disease on Aug. 16, 1977, is buried beside Graceland's swimming pool.

Small groups of vigil participants began lining up at the front gates of Graceland five to six hours before the procession began. By the time it got under way, the highway in front of the residence was filled with Elvis fans, more than a few of whom sported large, metallic sunglasses, bespangled belts or jet-black hairdos copied after their idol.

Paul Campione, 6, of Brooklyn, N.Y., wore a green jumpsuit with a white cape as he posed for snapshots with passers-by and struck karate poses similar to those used by Presley at his concerts.

"I love Elvis. He was kind and generous and I like his music," the youngster said.

His mother, Angela Campione, said her son was entered in an Elvis impersonator contest at a nightclub near Graceland.

Hance says party switch no problem

By The Associated Press

Democrat-turned-Republican Kent Hance says his party switch will present no problems in his second bid for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

"I have great party support. We just don't think that will be an issue, not at all," he said Tuesday after formally launching his latest campaign.

Following a decade-long career in the Texas Senate and U.S. House as a Democrat, Hance changed parties after losing the 1984 Democratic U.S. Senate primary.

In 1986, he vied for the GOP gubernatorial nomination but lost the primary election to Gov. Bill Clements, who defeated both Hance and former congressman Tom Loeffler without a runoff. Appointed by Clements to the Railroad Commission in 1987, Hance became the only Republican ever elected to that panel last year.

Hance said the 1986 governor's race demonstrated that he enjoys some strength among GOP regulars. "I led the ticket in 87 counties last time," he said.

In campaign stops Tuesday at Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Dallas and his hometown of Lubbock, Hance pledged to try to ban state income taxes, increase local control of schools and make the state education commissioner's job an elected one.

Borrowing a campaign line from President Bush, Hance said, "To the liberal, special interests of this state — read my lips, no state income tax in Texas."

Hance joined two other declared Republican gubernatorial candidates — Clayton Williams and Jack Rains — in calling for tougher action against drug dealers.

He proposed creating around-the-clock drug courts in Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Austin and El Paso to hasten processing of drug cases and urged a constitutional amendment to prohibit bail for accused drug dealers.

"There must be no mercy for them. We must get tough, stay tough and be relentless in our prosecution of drug dealers," he said.

Hance described himself as anti-abortion, saying he hopes the Legislature will require parental consent for women under 18 and "protecting the taxpayers who feel that their money should not be spent on abortions."

He predicted lawmakers would pass such laws, adding, "My personal belief certainly is to be able to go further. I would sign a bill that would go further. My position is I am opposed to abortion. The only exception would be the life of the mother."

Few get jobless benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly half a million jobless Texans did without unemployment benefits last year, according to an independent study by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities.

The center also found that less than one-fifth of jobless Texans were covered by unemployment insurance during an average month in 1988. Only New Hampshire, Virginia, Oklahoma and Florida had a smaller percentage of unemployed workers receiving benefits.

The liberal non-profit organization also found unemployment coverage most limited among jobless Hispanics, with just one in seven receiving benefits last year. Only one in five jobless black workers was paid jobless benefits.

The center said 19.4 percent of jobless Texans collected unemployment benefits in an average month last year. Nationally, 31.5 percent of jobless workers were covered by unemployment insurance.

The study also said 488,100 Texans, more than in any other state, did without unemployment insurance in 1988.

William Grossenbacher, administrator of the Texas Employment Commission, said a number of factors contribute to the state's low percentage of covered workers. He did not dispute the center's findings, which were based on U.S. Labor Department figures and its own calculations.

One factor is the growing number of two-income families, he said. When one wage earner is laid off, the jobless person may not apply for unemployment benefits because there is still another income coming in.

Another factor is the state's strong work ethic, and that the unemployed may simply seek another job rather than file for jobless benefits.

Also, the state does not have as many unions making sure unemployed workers know how to apply for jobless benefits, compared with states with a strong union base.

Grossenbacher said the state's fast-growing service economy also appears to be able to absorb laid off workers much more quickly than highly specialized workers such as highly skilled tool and die makers. That means many unemployed may not file for benefits because they know they can get another job.

Texas also does not pay unemployment benefits for workers fired for misconduct or who quit for personal reasons.

Since 1979, the percentage of jobless Texans covered by jobless benefits has dropped 4.6 percent, from 24 percent to the 19.4 percent last year.

The state's unemployment rate last year of 7.3 percent, well above the national average, and its large population helped account for the nearly half-million people doing without benefits, the center said.

Nationally, only 2.1 million of the 6.7 million workers unemployed in an average month in 1988 received benefits, the study said. That was the same percentage as in 1987, and the sixth straight year that the proportion receiving assistance has not improved.

Ireland 'stable'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Jill Ireland, whose battle with cancer was described in two best-selling books, is "pretty much stable, looking good and feeling good," her publicist said.

"The cancer has not recurred in her neck and shoulder," publicist Lori Jonas said Tuesday. "She is undergoing chemotherapy and still has the catheter in her chest. But she is doing very well."

The English-born actress, wife of movie star Charles Bronson, first underwent surgery for removal of a cancerous right breast and eight lymph nodes under her arm in 1984. She wrote about the ordeal in "Life Wish."

In April 1988, Miss Ireland began feeling pain in her shoulder and was diagnosed with cancer that had spread to her lungs, hip, femur and thyroid.

Town agonizes over fate of soldier missing in Lebanon

ROSH HAAYIN, Israel (AP) — The Lebanese hostage crisis has increased anxieties in this community, where residents pray for one of their own — a soldier who according to news accounts may have died more than three years ago.

Rachamim Alsheikh, 23, was captured on Feb. 17, 1986, when Shiite Moslem extremists ambushed an Israeli convoy.

Since then, there has been no word from Alsheikh or Yossi Fink, also 23, who was taken in the same attack.

Recent reports have said they died of wounds shortly after their capture by the radical militia Hezbollah, or Party of God.

A neighbor said the Alsheikhs suffer "in total silence, seldom making their anguish public." The family declined to be interviewed.

"The Alsheikh family's pain is felt by the entire community," said the neighbor, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "They are never alone, there is always someone from the family or the neighborhood with them."

Rosh Haayin is a small town on the outskirts of Tel Aviv. Like the Alsheikh family, most of its residents are Jewish immigrants from Yemen.

The community never forgot Alsheikh's capture, but anxiety over it was heightened on July 28 when Israeli commandos abducted a Shiite Moslem cleric reputed to be a leader of Hezbollah in a raid in southern Lebanon.

Israel has offered to swap the cleric, Sheikh Abdul Karim Obeid, and hundreds of Shiite prisoners for an Israeli navigator shot down over Lebanon in 1986, Alsheikh and Fink and the 16 Western hostages. Longest-held is Terry A. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The AP, abducted 4½ years ago.

The Sunday Times of London said in a report last weekend, however, that Obeid's interrogators concluded the two infantrymen died of wounds shortly after the ambush. The newspaper quoted unidentified senior sources in the Israeli government.

Israeli officials, in an effort to reassure the families of the missing men, said they assume the soldiers are alive unless there is conclusive proof to the contrary.

At a public prayer session Monday in Rosh Haayin's synagogue, Rachamim Alsheikh's father, Shlomo, tearfully recited Psalms and prayers for his son and other missing Israeli soldiers.

Workers' comp...

Debate renewed as insurance industry seeks 34.9% increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Insurance industry critics said a proposed 34.9 percent increase in workers' compensation rates was too much and amounted to blackmail.

State Sen. Kent Caperton, who spearheaded Senate efforts to change the workers' comp system, said Tuesday the insurance industry was trying to pressure lawmakers to change the system in favor of insurers.

"I would think Texans would be sick and tired of the insurance industry playing games and threatening," said Caperton, D-Bryan.

Kay Doughty, public counsel for the Consumer Protection Division of the State Board of Insurance, said many businesses would not be able to afford a 34.9 percent increase, on top of increases that have averaged 148 percent since 1985.

"Once again the ratepayers in the state of Texas are being asked to take it on the chin and to pay for a system that is broke," Ms. Doughty said.

In announcing the recommended rate increase of 34.9 percent, Robert Hilton, senior vice president of the National Council on Compensation Insurance, said rising workers' comp insurance losses have "become intolerable" and are driving insurers away from Texas.

"If something isn't done to balance cost and price ... then the system is going to collapse. Insurance companies are not going to write the product," said Hilton, of Boca Raton, Fla.

The House and Senate failed to resolve differing proposals on reforming the workers' comp system after a 140-day regular legislative session and 30-day special session.

Gov. Bill Clements has said he will call the Legislature into a fall special session on workers' comp.

State Rep. Richard Smith, R-Bryan, who led House efforts on proposed changes, said the insurance industry was not making a threat, but stating the facts.

"Insurance providers are suffering along with everyone else. To say they are simply crying wolf belies the facts. That's just a bit of demagoguery," he said.

Both Ms. Doughty's division and the Insurance Board staff will present alternative rate recommendations later. The Insurance Board will hold a worker's comp rate hearing Oct.

County budget discussed

by citizens of the county.

Elton Beck asked why the county airport requires a $100,000 budget when it has just been extensively renovated and if a five-percent raise for county employees, as is proposed in the budget, could be justified in the same year as a tax increase.

"I have questions on whether the county can afford these kinds of expenses or not," Beck said.

Goodwin said the airport operation is aided considerably by its annual revenues of about $50,000 from fuel sales and hangar rents. He also said county employees have gone several years without a raise and the proposed increase is therefore relatively small, from their viewpoint.

Local health care unit accredited

Cogdell Hospital Home Health Services has received notification of accreditation by the Joint Commission of Health Care Organizations.

It is one of the first home care organizations to achieve this accreditation.

"Achieving accreditation demonstrates Cogdell Hospital Home Health's commitment to provide quality care," noted Barbara McCann, director of the Joint Commission's Home Care Accreditation program.

The growing use of home care services has raised questions about the quality of care delivered in what is a largely unregulated area of healthcare. Evaluating quality of care remains difficult because few reliable indicators exist to assess the care provided by home care organizations.

"Accreditation is such an indicator," said McCann.

Sandra Galyean, R.N., director of Cogdell Hospital Home Health Services, said, "We sought joint commission accreditation because we want to provide quality care. We view it as another step toward excellence. I believe achieving accreditation shows our patients and the community that we have faith in our service."

The accreditation, presented after an on-site survey, indicates compliance with Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare (JCAH) national standards. Formed in 1951, JCAH is dedicated to improving the quality of the nation's healthcare through voluntary accreditation.

Back wages

Workers said they had word that labor board representatives were due in Snyder late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

Henderson said Monday that several workers had been in contact with State Sen. Temple Dickson of Sweetwater who also is seeking a solution.

Argee put the Abilene company on 72-hour notice last Friday and has taken over completion of the painting job. Argee said many of the affected workers are now on their payroll.

David Ritter, construction consultant for TDC, said last week, "It's a situation where the subcontractor is strapped for cash and there is a lack of payment from the general contractor because of a lack of performance."

Feld files lawsuit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kitty Kelley, the biographer whose unauthorized life stories of Jackie Onassis and Frank Sinatra set their subjects seething, is a target of a $50 million lawsuit from syndicated gossip columnist Karen Feld.

In the suit filed Tuesday in District of Columbia Superior Court, Feld alleged that Kelley and Time Inc. photographer Stanley Tretick tried to drive her out of business by threatening to file a lawsuit of their own.

Identification of remains of Leland party has begun

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Military forensic experts today began identifying the remains of U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland and 15 others who were killed when their plane crashed into a cliff in southwestern Ethiopia.

The bodies arrived in Ethiopia's capital Tuesday evening. Helicopters were used to remove them from the wreckage of their light plane, a Twin Otter, on the steep slopes of mile-high Tam mountain.

Seven Ethiopians and nine Americans — including Leland, a Texas Democrat who chaired the House Select Committee on Hunger — died in the crash Aug. 7 en route to a refugee camp near the Sudan border. The plane crashed about 100 miles short of its destination.

"Ethiopian and U.S. authorities declare that all bodies have been recovered," Marine Lt. Col. David Titus said later in a statement read to reporters.

Additional medical personnel were to arrive in Addis Ababa today to help the forensic experts already on hand identify the bodies before the Americans are returned to the United States for burial.

Titus said the task of identifying the dead probably would take five to seven days. The work was being done at a clinic at Addis Ababa's international airport.

Members of an investigating team from the United States and Canada flew to the crash site this morning to examine the wreckage for the cause of the accident.

They included members of the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board and representatives of the Boeing and Pratt and Whitney companies, which made the airplane and engines of the Canadian-built Twin Otter.

The Ethiopian Civil Aviation Authority is coordinating the investigation.

Leland, 44, and his party were heading to the Fugnido refugee camp about 480 miles southwest of this capital when the accident occurred.

Heavy clouds, rain and low visibility were believed to have led to the crash.

After a six-day search, rescuers Sunday found the wreckage and bodies strewn over about a quarter-mile wide region of the 5,500-foot mountain.

The Fugnido camp is one of four in southwestern Ethiopia run by the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees. They house more than 300,000 Sudanese who have fled war and famine in their neighboring country.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please address the problem of bone spurs in seniors. Orthopedic surgeons do not recommend operation. Sponges in my shoes don't stop the pain. What are the chances of a 70-year-old getting back on the golf course?

DEAR READER: Little outcroppings of bone can occur in people of any age; however, they are more common in elderly patients and tend to affect the feet. Bone spurs can be particularly painful because they feel like stones in the shoe, pressing against ligaments, muscles and other sensitive structures. Orthotic devices — pads and such — when worn in shoes will often relieve some of the discomfort. Also, injections of cortisone, to relieve inflammation in the soft tissues around bone spurs, will usually reduce pain. As a final resort, surgery may be necessary to remove the offending irritant.

I don't know why your orthopedic surgeons refuse to operate. If you are active and enjoy golf, I would suggest surgery as a possibility. Ask your doctors to refer you to foot specialists at a teaching hospital for another opinion.

Although I'm going to take flak from my colleagues by suggesting this, you might want to be examined by a podiatrist. I've found that podiatrists are often successful in treating bone spurs on which M.D.s have stubbed their toes.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife eats every two hours or else gets very nervous and almost faints. Somehow she never gains weight. What can be done to determine her problem?

DEAR READER: It sounds to me as though she might have high metabolism; everything she eats is used for energy. Depending on her age, may not reflect disease. Active young women, especially those with preschool-age children, often burn up a lot of calories in their everyday work. They stay slim, despite a sizable intake of food.

On the other hand, if your wife is middle-aged or older, particularly if she is relatively sedentary, her eating pattern and symptoms suggest hyperthyroidism, an overactive thyroid gland. This can be easily diagnosed with a blood test. I believe she should be examined by a doctor, if there is no apparent reason for her symptoms.

Of course, the doctor may choose to check her for hypoglycemia, a condition characterized by weakness and faintness two to four hours after a meal. Although hypoglycemia has been a "fad" illness in the past, it does exist in some people. It is due to a food-induced overproduction of insulin that causes the blood sugar to drop to dangerous levels.

A blood sugar value of 45 milligrams per decileter or lower (in association with symptoms of nervousness, lightheadedness and hunger) suggests the diagnosis. This can be substantiated by a four-hour glucose-tolerance test, during which serial blood samples are obtained after the person drinks a sugary beverage. The test may precipitate symptoms, which are correlated with blood glucose values.

Your wife's physician may also wish to test for other, more uncommon causes of food-related nervousness and fainting, such as allergies. In any case, the place to start is in the doctor's office.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hypoglycemia." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Hundreds gather in Lubbock still seeking miracle

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Fatima, Lourdes, Medjugorje — Lubbock?

Lubbock Bishop Michael Sheehan has said he doesn't believe Lubbock belongs in the company of the first three places — all European towns where people have reported seeing miraculous visions. The Roman Catholic Church has taken those reports seriously.

But Lubbock could be in the beginning stages of becoming a shrine, just like the other towns, because of visions that pilgrims report seeing there. During Tuesday's evening Mass of the Feast of the Assumption, scores of people — most of them out-of-towners — reported seeing religious visions at St. John's for the second year in a row.

During the 1988 Assumption Mass, many of the 12,000 faithful gathered outside the underground church in west Lubbock reported seeing apparitions of Jesus and Mary in the clouds. Others said the sun danced in the sky and that their silver rosaries turned a golden hue.

About 1,000 people crammed inside the church to celebrate Tuesday's Mass and another 400 gathered on the lawn outside to watch for miracles. Most weren't disappointed, though few if any said they saw Jesus and Mary together.

"Do you see the sun dancing?" Maria Ramos asked a reporter who said he did not. "It's dancing. Pink is coming out of it, coming up and down. It's marvelous."

Many others reported seeing the sun spinning, pulsating and "dancing," and most said they saw flashes of yellow, orange and red coming from it.

$80,000 donated to AIDS project

AUSTIN (AP) — AIDS is a legal crisis as well as a public health crisis, said a representative of a nonprofit foundation that plans to use $80,000 in grant money to continue providing legal services to Texans affected by the disease.

"Individuals diagnosed with AIDS often find themselves faced with a barrage of problems for which they need legal assistance, primarily because AIDS is the subject of much misunderstanding and fear," said Houston attorney David A. Bryan, legal director for the Texas Human Rights Foundation.

Legal problems related to acquired immune deficiency syndrome, Bryan said Tuesday, include discrimination in employment and insurance; breach of confidentiality of medical records; and the need for estate planning.

AIDS is a disease in which a virus attacks the body's immune system, leaving it vulnerable to many infections and cancers.

The foundation in July 1988 started a toll-free telephone number providing free legal counseling and attorney referrals for problems related to AIDS.

In the number's first year of operation, the foundation said it provided such services to more than 425 Texans. The toll-free number is 1-800-828-6417.
