

Site evaluation group to arrive early in week

A three-member site evaluation team will be in Snyder Tuesday or Wednesday in the Texas Department of Corrections' review process of 46 towns seeking state prison facilities. The team was originally scheduled to be here last week, but economic development team members were notified Thursday of the delay. Towns scheduled for visits this week are Snyder, Big Spring and Sweetwater.

The team leader will be Larry Kyle, director of prison industries. He was the team leader in 1987 when Snyder was selected as the site for a 1,000-bed facility. Other team members are Bart Ewald of the agriculture division and Ron Howell of the facilities division.

Roy Baze, chairman of the economic development, said he expected to receive notification Monday of the team's exact schedule.

All reports of the seven teams visiting across the state are due in Huntsville by Thursday of this week. The teams are taking video tapes as part of their reports. Last week the same team visited in Abilene, Eastland, Stamford and Breckenridge.

A total of 46 proposals have been submitted for the construction of at least three 2,250-bed facilities and three 1,000 bed units.

July 31 was the deadline for submission of proposals, and Snyder's application is for the 1,000-bed facility which is proposed on the 579-acre site donated to the TDC in December, 1987.

The process for selection outlined earlier by the TDC calls for a short-list of 28 towns based on the site visits by the TDC staff.

Towns on the "short-list" will be further investigated by two committees to be formed from the new Town Council. The Board named last week by Gov. Bili Clements.

Midwest Electric plans yearly meeting Sept. 7

The annual membership meeting of Midwest Electric Cooperative has been set for Thursday, Sept. 7, at Scurry County Coliseum.

Activities for the evening will begin with registration at 6 p.m. Prairie Fire, a local country swing band, will be entertaining prior to and during a barbecue meal, to be served at 7 p.m.

Midwest Electric, the area rural electric cooperative, will be celebrating its 51st year of service since being formed in 1938.

With headquarters in Roby and its district office at 2100 College Ave. locally, Midwest serves a nine-county area from east of Anson to the edge of Gail and from Sweetwater to Post.

The meal will be followed by a business meeting, with reports from cooperative officials and the election of three directors to the board.

All members are urged to attend and participate as a "member owner" of their electric cooperative.

Local, WTC cowboys shine at AJRA rodeo

The third annual Western Texas College AJRA sanctioned rodeo ended Sunday with local cowboys and cowgirls taking their share of glory in the various events.

Five young men from this area finished at the top of the list in the bareback event. Troy Cottoor, a WTC student from Nephi, Utah, took first place with a score of 73 followed by Tim Ryan, a Ft. Worth native also attending WTC, who had a score of 64.

Third place in the event went to Clyde's Shawn Moreland. Moreland, who also attends WTC, scored a 57.

Snyder riders Lance Wilson and Sid Franklin finished fourth and fifth, respectively, with 57 and 50 point rides.

Shawn Quinn of WTC, via New York City, was third in the boy's 16-19 division of the tiedown roping with a time of 10.66 while a pair of WTC women scored well in the same age group of the breakaway roping.

Milsap native Jackie Parker roped her calf in 2.50 seconds to finish second in the event as Las Vegas, Nev. cowgirl, Jennifer Lee took fifth place with a time of 2.78. Both girls are WTC team members.

Cole Sterling of Snyder hauled in sixth place honors in the boy's age 13-15 section of the breakaway roping with a speedy 3.38 time.

In the boy's ribbon roping, Russell Riggan of Snyder took second place with a time of 13.68 seconds in the 12-and-under category.

Stoni Riggan was the winner in the eight-and-under barrel racing. The Snyder girl ran the route in 17.713 seconds. Amanda Johnson, also from Snyder, took fifth in the event as she was timed at 18.534.

Terra Bynum, another Snyder product, ripped through the 12-and-under barrels with a scorching 16.873 time.

Roby's Lorissa Edmondson won the girl's 16-19 barrel racing event by posting a 16.792 run.

Snyderite Tucker Collier was a winner, too, as he scored 72 points in the boy's 12-and-under steer riding.

Krista Moore of Colorado City captured sixth place in the (see RODEO, page 9)

Borden Tour set Thursday

The 1989 Borden County Field Crops Tour will be held Thursday, Sept. 7, at the Plains Community Center in the northwest portion of the county.

Those interested in the annual event will meet at the courthouse in Gail from 8:15-8:30 a.m. and travel by bus to the community center. The bus should arrive at the community center by 9 a.m. for registration, donuts and coffee.

Following the tour of herbicide, cotton variety and Pima irrigated cotton tests, the group will return to the community center by 11:30 a.m. for a barbecue meal. The meal will be sponsored by the Upper Colorado Soil & Water Conservation District.

Drs. James Supak and Wayne Keeling will share their knowledge of practical decision-making tasks that challenge cotton producers each day.

Students to greet new principals...

School year begins Tuesday

Snyder public schools open for the 1989-90 year Tuesday, as Labor Day marks the end of summer holidays for hundreds of children and teenagers.

Classes begin at 8:25 a.m. Many of Snyder's youth will be greeted by some new faces. The district has four new or reassigned principals and a number of other new instructors.

Rueben Gillespie takes over as principal at Snyder High School, replacing Ray Courtney, who received a re-assignment as principal at North Elementary.

Gary Patterson was hired in July as the principal at Snyder Junior High School. Also new in an administrative role as principal is Jim Rosson, at Central Elementary.

Other local elementary school principals are Jim Erwin at East, Wayne Kennedy at Northeast, Bob Travis at Stanfield and Geraldine Parker at West.

Tuesday begins the 175-day school year, which comes to a close on June 1 of 1990. There are 17 days of holiday, to include Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, Spring Break and Easter. In addition, there are two days of in-service and three days of open house.

Dates for open house are Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 18 and 19, and Sept. 25.

The first six-weeks period ends Oct. 13, the second Nov. 22, and the first semester on Jan. 18, 1990. During the second semester, the first six-weeks period ends March 2, the second April 20 and the third on June 1.

Holidays for the school year include Thanksgiving on Nov. 24,

Christmas from Dec. 20 through Dec. 29, New Year's on Jan. 1, spring break from March 19 through March 23 and Easter on April 13.

In-service days are Jan. 19 and March 9. Teachers also have a staff work day on June 2.

The district has designated two "bad-weather days" for April 21 and May 12. These days are to be utilized as make-up days if adverse weather causes schools to be closed at anytime during the regular year.

Daniel unit 'coach,' O'Keefe, organizes prisoner recreation

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

The Price Daniel Unit's recreation director is a former New Mexico State University offensive tackle who wanted to play professionally before a back injury re-directed his path into penology.

Michael A. "Mike" O'Keefe suffered a herniated disc in a game in his senior year, practiced all the next week and played in another game before he tried to get up one morning and found that he could not get out of bed. He underwent surgery and was in traction for three weeks.

The 27-year-old Pasadena native, then a 310-pounder, still took part in two minicamps with the Houston Oilers but decided to put football behind him and complete his education.

At Pasadena High School, he had been an all-district and honorable mention all-state tackle, winning the team trophy as his school's best offensive lineman after his senior year.

He was a line coach for New Mexico State the year after he was hurt and was head equipment manager for a year while finishing his bachelor's degree in physical education at the Las Cruces school.

He worked for a Houston landscaping company and then joined the New Mexico Department of Corrections as a correctional officer at the department's 567-man unit in Las Cruces, where he was soon promoted to recreation director.

He joined the Texas Department of Corrections in July, and this is his first TDC assignment.

O'Keefe was already being addressed as "coach" as newly arrived inmates were being processed into the unit while others played handball and basketball outside Tuesday afternoon.

He is organizing teams in volleyball, handball, basketball and power-lifting, and he plans to compete against other TDC inmate teams from downstate and possibly to play Western Texas College in

Airline hub

HOUSTON (AP) — Business representatives are trying to encourage at least one carrier to establish a hub at Houston Intercontinental Airport.

While bringing more competition to Houston-based Continental Airlines, another hub also would benefit the Houston economy. When one carrier dominates air traffic, the city's economy suffers, business representatives said.

"Most big airports have at least two carriers hubbing," said Jim Royer, chairman of the aviation committee of the Greater Houston Chamber of Commerce.

Economic development officials cited lack of air service as one of the reasons that the American Cancer Society and Sears, Roebuck and Co. didn't relocate to the city.

Blood drive

In response to an emergency blood alert issued by United Blood Services of Lubbock, there will be a blood drive Tuesday from 11 a.m. until 8 p.m. at Towle Park Barn.

United Blood Services of Lubbock supplies blood or blood products for Cogdell Memorial Hospital as well as many other area hospitals.

Blood donors will receive a variety of coupons redeemable at local businesses.

Commissioners

Scurry County Commissioner's Court will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m. due to the fact that Monday is Labor Day and the courthouse will be closed.

Mark Zeck will meet with commissioners to discuss the operation of the airport.

The other item on the agenda is discussion on Scurry County/Cogdell Memorial Hospital self-insurance with Alta Health Services.

Ira Boosters

Ira Booster Club will elect officers Tuesday evening in the school cafeteria.

All members and anyone interested in Ira athletics is encouraged to attend the 8 p.m. meeting.

Appraisal

The Scurry County Appraisal District Board of Directors will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the appraisal district offices located at 2612 College Ave., for their regular monthly meeting.

MCorp to forgive millions loaned to senior executives

DALLAS (AP) — MCorp, whose collapse in March led to the second costliest federal bank bailout ever, has agreed to forgive $8.8 million in personal loans made to its top executives, according to a published report.

3 towns lay claim to fame

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — It's been nearly a year since Ellis County was awarded the superconducting super collider project, sending its three biggest towns on a super collision course over bragging rights to the giant atom smasher.

All three — Waxahachie, Ennis and Midlothian — want people to think of their town first when they think of the super collider.

So far, Waxahachie has smashed the competition, even though the 53-mile collider ring won't touch the town.

Shortly after the U.S. Energy Department announced last November that Ellis County would be the site of the collider, the Waxahachie Chamber of Commerce printed hundreds of bumper stickers proclaiming, "Waxahachie, Texas, The Center of Attention, Home of the super collider."

The town of 18,150 also rented space on a billboard off Interstate 35 to carry the same message.

Waxahachie captured and kept the spotlight of the national news media, which seldom mentions the super collider without mentioning Waxahachie.

That was enough to make officials in Ennis and Midlothian stomp in protest.

Ennis, a town of about 14,150 people east of Waxahachie, countered with a proclamation of its own. A billboard on Interstate 45 says: "Ennis, Texas, Super Collider Country."

"The only thing Waxahachie has is its name," said Kipp Burnett, executive vice president of the Ennis Chamber of Commerce. "It sticks. Even though it's hard to say, you don't forget it."

Bob Sokoll, Waxahachie city manager, scoffs at such talk.

"We are not going to let one peon city to the east like Ennis think they are the home of the super collider," Sokoll said. "The only thing Ennis does better than us is play football."

now oversees MCorp's operations, The Dallas Morning News reported in a copyright story Sunday.

Some creditors last week said they plan to raise the issue in the Houston bankruptcy court, the newspaper said.

An MCorp spokesman said there was nothing improper about the loans, which were part of a benefits package.

"If there is anyone hinting that MCorp executives have enriched themselves at the expense of the company, it simply is not true," said MCorp spokesman Joseph Stroop.

He noted that chairman Gene H. Bishop and other top executives had declined to accept pay raises arranged in their employment contracts as the company's troubles mounted.

Bishop could not be reached for comment, the newspaper reported.

MCorp, whose failure will cost the government $2 billion, said in a recent corporate filing that it believed the debts should be waived. A percentage of each loan would be forgiven each year over a period of five to 10 years until the debts were wiped out.

On March 29, federal supervisors seized 20 of MCorp's 25 subsidiary banks and declared them insolvent. The company filed for protection from creditors under the federal bankruptcy code a few days later and continues to operate five banks.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. later sold the 20 failed banks to Banc One Corp. of Columbus, Ohio, as part of a $2 billion bailout.

MCorp started the below-market loan program in 1984 as part of an executive-compensation package. The company designed the loans to enable officers to "accumulate net worth in their personal investment portfolios," according to corporate filings.

The loans ranged from $25,000 to $300,000 per executive and accrued interest at a beneficial rate set by the company's directors, typically 6 percent.

MCorp's plans to have the debts forgiven should the company experience a change of control are revealed in public documents dating to 1987.

In the spring or summer of 1988, MCorp directors agreed to forgive some of the personal loans, amounting to $2.5 million. The move came after the bank holding company, realizing it could not survive, opened talks with government officials for financial assistance, according to MCorp documents.

The debts eligible for the special payment waiver included $300,000 each owed by Bishop, MCorp president John T. Cater and group chairman James B. Gardner.

Bishop and Cater recently announced their resignations from MCorp. The impact of their pending departure on the loans is unclear, although the officers negotiated an overall financial compensation settlement with the company's creditors.

But MCorp's compensation program already included a provision to excuse the executive loans in installments over a decade if the company's ownership changed. That provision covers all the $8.8 million in personal loans to executives.

That control provision, added in late 1986 as the company's fortunes began to crumble, also called for restructuring $17.9 million in fixed-rate mortgages given top executives. The mortgages typically carried a rate of 8 percent.

In its corporate filing, MCorp acknowledged its bankruptcy filing could force the near-immediate repayment of the personal and mortgage loans.

The affected executives have hired a Phoenix law firm, Snell & Wilmer, to argue the loans should be forgiven.

Several MCorp creditors said they probably would ask the bankruptcy court to force repayment of at least some of the executive loans.

"Creditors will argue that any discretionary loan forgiveness is a fraudulent transfer of company assets," said William Fagan, a Minneapolis investor who controls MCorp bonds.

MCorp's executive loan program apparently carried no restrictions on the use of the cash.

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Several months ago, my 10-year-old was prescribed dicyclomine to be taken three to four times daily for constant stomachaches. X-rays have been negative. Her doctor tells me I'm stressing her and causing her intestines to have spasms. Can you explain the medication and his reasoning?

DEAR READER: Dicyclomine (Bentyl) is an anti-spasmodic drug used to treat irritable-bowel syndrome. This affliction is attributed to excessive nervousness and stress, resulting in chronic diarrhea, bloating and gas. Your daughter's doctor evidently believed that the emotional pressure you are putting on your child is contributing to bowel spasm. To counteract the spasm, the physician prescribed an anti-spasmodic.

I don't agree with this approach. First of all, dicyclomine has many side effects, including nervousness, drowsiness, dizziness, dry mouth, headache, nausea, insomnia, blurred vision and allergic reactions. Therefore, like any medicine, its use should be carefully monitored and its risk/benefit ratio clearly understood.

Second, I would hesitate giving this medicine to a child because these potential dangers are likely to be exaggerated in a youngster.

Third, I am uncomfortable with the philosophy that states there is a pill for every ailment. This is not the kind of message I want to give to young people, who are basically healthy and, in my opinion, need to be encouraged to avoid taking substances that are not absolutely necessary for good health.

Fourth, if your daughter's problem results from her interaction with you, her mother — and I'm not at all sure it does — I think this interaction ought to be addressed. It seems to me the doctor has identified your relationship with your child as a problem, but has chosen to virtually ignore them, preferring instead to push pills as an antidote for her symptoms.

I suggest you ask for a referral to a gastroenterologist. Such a specialist will examine your daughter, review her tests and advise you whether dicyclomine is appropriate therapy for her. Also, you might consider going with your daughter to a family counselor to see if, in fact, you may be contributing to the problem. I'd be interested in the outcome; let me know what happens.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband accidentally shot himself in the abdomen 32 years ago. I'm afraid that some day the bullet will dislodge and do more damage.

DEAR READER: Foreign objects, such as bullets, can change position in the body and, sometimes, cause problems, such as bleeding or perforations. However, a doctor can investigate such a possibility by using X-rays or ultrasound examinations. Share your concerns with your husband's physician. If follow-up is necessary, the doctor can advise you what symptoms to watch for and which tests would be necessary.

Texas Town Reaches Out To Spread Community Spirit

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1989 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Please help us find a community to honor with the Midland Community Spirit Award.

After the rescue of Jessica McClure from an abandoned well, the citizens of Midland, Texas, want to recognize another community that has worked together to accomplish a goal.

Soften our attention is focused only on negatives. But as shown in the rescue of Jessica, when people work together, miraculous results are accomplished. We know there must be many large and small victories occurring in communities every day. We hope that by recognizing another community, we can share the good will we have received and encourage other communities to tackle difficult problems they may face.

We have asked President Bush to present the Midland Community Spirit Award at a White House ceremony next month.

Abby, please publish this, and invite proud citizens to nominate their communities now. The deadline for nominations is Oct. 1, 1989. For a simple nomination form, write to: Community Spirit Award Nomination Form, P.O. Box 1152, Midland, Texas 79702-1152. Or phone (915) 685-7411 for applications. CARROLL M. THOMAS, MAYOR, MIDLAND, TEXAS in line to donate blood. I'm sure there are many other communities where citizens rose to the occasion when tragedy struck. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: It's been almost nine months since my husband and I got married, and here's my problem. Although my husband is busy with school and a job, we agreed to share the duty of sending out thank-you notes for our wedding gifts.

I went through all our gifts and made a list. I also addressed all the envelopes. Then I did my half of the notes, and my husband was supposed to do the other half — which he told me he had done.

Well, yesterday I found most of his half of the thank-you notes in a box in our spare room. I couldn't believe my eyes!

What should I do now? I know I still need to send them out, but how do I apologize for getting them out so late? Everyone who hasn't received a thank-you note yet must think we are absolutely awful! Please help. EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Judging from your husband's track record, in order to avoid further delay, you'd better write the balance of the thank-you notes yourself. Although your husband doesn't deserve to be protected, resist the temptation to "explain" why your acknowledgment is so late. How disappointing for you to learn that your husband is not only irresponsible, he's less than honest.

Abby's favorite recipes are going like hotcakes! Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Abby's Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Child care, minimum wage remain at front of Congress's agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Areas of social concern — child care, minimum wage, parental leave and greater opportunities for the disabled — will be among the issues facing Congress when it returns this week, but no one is predicting quick action.

Child care legislation, the issue that became a focus of the 1988 presidential campaign, has passed the Senate. The bill calls for direct grants to child care providers and would establish non-binding federal guidelines.

But in the House, a companion bill is embroiled in a dispute between two committees with jurisdiction over it.

Besides that, House Republicans are pushing the White House plan — tax credits for lower- and middle-income parents of children under age 4 regardless of whether both parents actually work and pay for outside child care.

Whether child care legislation passes the House before it recesses for the year sometime in November is anyone's guess, but legislative staffers believe if the House does agree on a bill, it will be one that will be acceptable to the Senate and the White House.

The child care issue has been kicking around since 1971 when Richard Nixon vetoed legislation similar to that under consideration now, calling it anti-family. Another bill was considered by Congress in 1975, but never made it to the president.

It remains a hot issue, with six of 10 Americans surveyed this summer in a Washington Post-ABC News Poll saying they think the federal government should provide child-care assistance to low- and middle-income families.

The main disagreement now is between the House Education and Labor Committee and Ways and Means Committee.

As for minimum wage, Congress must reach a compromise with the White House if there is to be final action.

After the first attempt at raising the minimum wage fell to a presidential veto, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., reintroduced the very same measure.

It has been voted out of committee and awaits a full Senate vote, but staff members say talks are going on with the administration to determine how it might be changed on the floor in a compromise with the White House.

Meanwhile, Rep. Austin J. Murphy, D-Pa., introduced a bill in the House that would raise the minimum wage from $3.35 to $4.25 by 1991, the maximum amount acceptable to President Bush.

But it does not contain a provision demanded by the White House that would allow employers to pay new workers a less-than-minimum wage for up to six months.

The issue of family leave has gained the attention of Congress and awaits debate on the floor of both the House and the Senate. The measures would require employers to provide up to 10 weeks of unpaid leave for family emergencies.

Will Rogers is credited with saying, "You know, I truly believe that our public men in high office want to do something worthwhile for us, but they just can't think of anything to do."

Blacks march on white-only areas in South Africa

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Thousands of blacks marched, picketed and waded at a "whites-only" beach Sunday. Police made 58 arrests, but waited more than two hours before breaking up the protest. The crowd, estimated at 5,000 to 10,000, stretched for more than a mile along the shore, the biggest beach protest ever in South Africa. Organizers claimed a victory over segregation and vowed further acts of protest during a nationwide defiance campaign. Several dozen whites, some carrying whips and wearing "whites only" T-shirts, yelled abuse as the throng paraded along the segregated sections of South Africa's most heavily used beachfront. Other sections of the hotel-lined shore have been opened to all races in recent years. One angry white man barged into the crowd, yelling and pushing, but police said they could control the situation on their own. Some whites yelled to the officers, "Shoot them dead." At one point, police arrested about 10 black youths who unfurled a flag of the outlawed African National Congress guerrilla movement. They remained in custody late Sunday, but police said the other 48 people arrested during the course of the protest were released after a few hours. The police contingent of several hundred officers was equipped with shot guns and a water cannon, but they made no efforts to stop the protesters from moving onto segregated Addington Beach. In contrast, police used clubs and whips and arrested 500 people Saturday in Cape Town while breaking up a planned protest march to Parliament. White lifeguards remained at their posts during the beach protest and white surfers continued to paddle off the shore while black children splashed nearby.

AUSTIN (AP) — If elected governor, Republican Kent Hance plans to seek sweeping reforms of state ethics laws that would require lobbyists to make detailed reports on gifts made to lawmakers and other top officials.

The legislators and officials who accept such gifts — which have included lobbyist-paid vacations — also should be required to report, he said.

"The perception of the public is that the tail is starting to wag the dog," Hance said in an interview with The Associated Press. "It is an issue, and it should be a concern to everyone."

Reports filed with the secretary of state's office show that lobbyists spent more than $1.86 million on entertainment and gifts for members of the Texas Legislature during its 140-day regular session this year.

That spending — at a pace topping $13,000 a day — purchased meals, drinks, golf games at exclusive private clubs, hunting and fishing outings, and trips to destinations such as Mexico, ski resorts and a championship boxing match in Las Vegas, Nev.

But state law doesn't require a lobbyist to report which legislators received his gifts.

As a former state lawmaker and U.S. House member, Hance said he wants to see the state's ethics rules more closely parallel the tougher federal standards which require recipients to report on gifts they receive.

"Reporting is important so the public can get the facts. Then they (the politicians involved) can debate the issue of whether it was right or wrong," Hance said.

"That's one of the things we'll push through. It will be a high priority."

Hance, one of three Republicans in the governor's race, said he will offer a detailed package of reform proposals later this month. He said the ethics rules should apply to all elected officials, the executive directors of state agencies and members of the governor's staff.

"I think that every trip that anyone takes should be reported. The lobbyist should report the specific trip, who went, and more importantly the representatives and senators (who take the trips) should report. And if it's taken within 90 days of an election, it has to be reported within 10 days," Hance said.

While many legislators say they aren't swayed by the vacations and other gifts from lobbyists, critics charge that such gifts may be influential.

Current state laws "are too loose," Hance said. "I think there's some people probably that could take the trips and they'd never be influenced. But there are others that would be influenced."

He said such gifts also create a real problem with the public's perception of its government.

"A guy back home's going to read about somebody taking a lawmaker to Acapulco for a week or something, and he's going to say, 'How could that guy vote against his (a lobbyist's) bill?'" Hance said.

Texas jails housing out-of-state inmates

PEARSALL, Texas (AP) — The nation's capital had too many prisoners and some jailers in Texas had too many cells.

The solution: 551 prisoners from Washington D.C.'s Department of Corrections were transported to Texas jails earlier this year. It was a short-term solution for Washington's prison crowding woes and a profitable venture for five Texas counties with excess jail space.

"We needed prisoners to pay for this facility," said Frio County Sheriff Gabriel del Toro of his year-old, 168-bed jail in Pearsall. "I was willing to hold anyone who needed the bed space. It was first-come, first-served."

Frio County charged $40 per day for each of the 126 prisoners and expects an annual profit of $300,000, said assistant jail administrator Noel Perez. Other inmates were sent to Johnson, Guadalupe, Zabala and La Salle counties.

The counties welcome the money, but neither county nor prisoner will concede it's been easy. Johnson County commissioners found the problems so difficult, they decided to abandon the venture.

At first, there was culture shock — most of the prisoners are blacks from the poor inner-city neighborhoods of Washington, many of them transported to the rural starkness of largely Hispanic South Texas. And there was resentment. The prisoners don't like being so far from home, with little chance of visits from their families.

"I know we have to pay for our crimes, but we're being tortured, in a sense," inmate Joseph Watkins told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. He was sent to the Johnson County Law Enforcement Center in Cleburne.

Watkins was one of 80 prisoners taken to Johnson County.

When inmates' frustrations there escalated into disturbances that caused thousands of dollars in damages to the jail, officials decided the money wasn't worth the trouble. The prisoners were shipped to Moore County in the Panhandle last week.

There have been minor disturbances in the other four counties, but jail officials say they have made changes to better accommodate the prisoners.

Frio County changed its menu from serving Mexican food daily to only twice a week after Washington inmates who weren't used to the spicy food complained of heartburn. Guadalupe County added more exercise and recreational equipment and spent $8,000 for District of Columbia lawbooks.

The counties housing the inmates all boast new jails with bed space that local inmates likely won't fill until 2000, if then.

New battles in an old war

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Bush announces his strategy to combat illegal drugs Tuesday, he'll be striding down a path similar to one trod 20 years ago by Richard Nixon. And by many presidents before him.

In the marijuana smoke-filled days of anti-Vietnam War protests when "turn-on, tune-in and drop-out" were the watchwords for much of a generation, Nixon launched an aggressive law enforcement attack on drugs.

He wasn't the first. Cocaine and heroin were outlawed by the Harrison Narcotic Act in 1914.

Marijuana was outlawed in 1937.

The nation became hysterical over heroin again in the 1950s, two decades after Prohibition was repealed, and two different versions of the Boggs Act, passed in 1952 and 1954, called for severe sentences for drug traffickers.

John F. Kennedy convened a White House Conference on Drug Abuse in 1963.

In the past two decades, hundreds of thousands of people have been arrested on drug charges, billions of dollars worth of illegal drugs have been seized, rock 'n' roll stars and famous athletes have died of overdoses, and some inner cities have added deadly drug-related gunfights to existing problems of poverty, unemployment, discrimination and alcohol and heroin abuse.

Billions of dollars have been spent on law enforcement, less for treatment and prevention.

From fiscal 1981 through 1989, the federal government spent $16.5 billion for law enforcement, $2.4 billion for drug abuse prevention and $2.4 billion for treatment for a total expenditure of $21.3 billion, according to the General Accounting Office, an arm of Congress. Most of that — $13.6 billion — was spent in the past three years.

Meanwhile, cocaine is pouring over the nation's borders, domestic growers produce 25 percent of the nation's marijuana supply, and the heroin problem is growing. The price of the three drugs is going down and the purity is going up.

Your Birthday
Sept. 5, 1989

Your greatest successes in the year ahead are likely to come from situations you personally direct. These endeavors might start out small in both size and significance, but they could grow to real importance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, if you find yourself in a meaningful involvement that appears to have no commanding officer, don't be hesitant to step in and take charge of matters yourself. You'll do a good job. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep a low profile today, because you'll be able to function more effectively by handling situations from behind the scenes. If you step out in the open, you might get scolded.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your restless spirit will be happier around outgoing, gregarious people today, so try not to get involved with people who take themselves or life too seriously.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your possibilities for fulfilling your ambitious objectives today look better than usual, even if the goals you establish are more difficult than usual.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have the faculty for accurately sizing up the qualities in others today. Additionally, you're also a good learner and you'll later effectively use the positive things you saw in them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There will be some important shifts in conditions taking place today initiated by outside influences. Regardless of whom or what authors them, you're apt to be the one who gains the most.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your luck will be greatly enhanced if you keep everything in proper balance today. Be neither overly aggressive nor unduly complacent, your winning route is down the middle of the road.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Co-workers will mirror your moods today if you show them you're industrious and ambitious. Once you get on a roll, they'll automatically fall in step with your pace.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In situations where you find yourself in a managerial role today, bend over backwards to be just and fair. Your actions will win you loyal supporters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Give household and domestic matters top priority today, especially if you feel there is something major that needs attention which you can put back in proper order.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In addition to your other assets, your diplomacy and tact can effectively be used to your advantage today. When you turn on the charm, all will start purring.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're still under favorable financial aspects and benefits can be derived today through some type of partnership arrangement. Associate with money makers.

Greg Norman snatches victory in Open event

FRANKLIN, Wis. (AP) — Greg Norman blew a four-stroke lead, then recovered with three birdies on the final seven holes Sunday for a three-shot victory in the Greater Milwaukee Open.

Norman was at 1-over for the day before his late surge carried him to a final-round 2-under-par 70 and a 72-hole score of 19-under 269 at the Tuckaway Country Club.

Early starter Andy Bean, with a final-round 66, finished three shots back at 16-under 272. Wayne Levi, who had three birdies and an eagle on the front nine to pull even with Norman, faltered with three bogeys on the back nine and finished with a 71 for a 274.

Mark Lye and Ted Schulz tied for third at 273.

Norman dropped into a tie with Levi and Bean after a bogey on No. 11, then put his tee shot on the par-5 12th hole into a trap. But he rebounded and birdied the hole to regain the lead.

He rolled in a long birdie putt on the par-4 13th to take a two-stroke lead and padded his edge on the 16th hole, another par-5, when he birdied after putting his second shot into a trap.

Bean, playing nine groups in front of Norman, started the day at 10-under and finished the round with six birdies. He missed a 35-foot birdie putt on No. 18 that would have given him the lead at the time.

Norman, with a tournament-record 17-under 199 after three rounds, was in trouble immediately Sunday when he hit his first tee shot left and off the fairway. From the rough, his second shot hit a tree and carried only 50 yards. His third shot left him 20 feet from the hole and he two-putted for bogey.

Norman recovered for a birdie on the par-5, 527-yard second hole when he reached the green in two shots, then parred the rest of the front nine.

Then on No. 11, Norman hit his tee shot behind a tree and ended up with a bogey-5.

Troy Aikman leads Cowboys into new era in Houston win

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Roger Ruzek didn't upstage Troy Aikman's coming-out party. He simply capped it with a victory.

That's probably the best way to look at the 55-yard field goal Ruzek kicked as time ran out Saturday night, giving the Dallas Cowboys a 30-28 victory over the Houston Oilers in the NFL's annual battle of Texas.

Not only was it a fitting ending to Aikman's 306-yard passing yardage for the game, in which the $11 million man was officially anointed Dallas' starting quarterback, but it gave owner Jerry Jones and Coach Jimmy Johnson a win in their first game at Texas Stadium.

The combination — Aikman, Jones and Johnson, plus the first Dallas game NOT coached by Tom Landry — resulted in a crowd of 63,582. That was Dallas' largest pre-season gathering since 1981. It also was the largest crowd of any kind for the Cowboys since Nov. 17, 1985, when they lost 44-0 to Chicago, a game that might have started America's team on its downhill slide to the 3-13 record that precipitated Landry's removal after last season.

"I hope people don't read too much into a winning pre-season game," said Johnson, who chose Aikman, the No. 1 pick in last April's NFL draft, over Steve Walsh, who played for him at Miami and was taken in the supplemental draft.

"We are a long way from being a good football team. We wanted to win, because this team has been down for a long time. But next week we are 0-0."

Still, the Cowboys will go into New Orleans next week with three wins in four exhibitions — as many victories as the Cowboys had in 16 regular-season games last season.

And they will go into it with a starting quarterback they didn't have last year — Aikman, who threw for 203 yards in the first half, when Dallas took a 20-7 lead, and finished 19 of 31 for the 306 yards.

"He played like a veteran," Houston defensive end William Fuller said. "We kept hitting him, we couldn't rattle him."

Aikman was sacked four times and hit a half-dozen more. A couple of times he was hit late and played the last three quarters

Reaches quarterfinals...

Evert routs 15-year-old Seles

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert, playing nearly perfect tennis against a psyched-out 15-year-old, postponed retirement and kept alive the dream of a final U.S. Open championship Sunday.

Evert, 34, looked as youthful in pink and white, with a rose ribbon in her short ponytail, as 12th-seeded, hard-hitting Monica Seles. But Evert showed greater patience and precision to reach the quarterfinals for the 19th straight year.

Evert, the No. 4 seed and six-time Open winner, moved Seles around the court like a puppet on a string, sending her chasing balls from corner to corner, in and out, in winning 6-0, 6-2.

In rallies that sometimes lasted more than 50 shots, Evert matched the moonballs and power strokes of the grunting, squealing Seles, and wore her down with angled and deep shots that frequently kissed the lines.

"I don't know where it came from," Evert said. "I haven't seen that form all year."

Seles, who had said she was worried about the match and might feel sad if she were the one to end Evert's career in major tournaments, didn't play close to her own potential.

Seles, a left-hander with two-fisted shots on forehands and backhands, certainly was not the player who beat Evert in the finals of a tournament at Houston this year.

Evert said Seles probably will be one of the world's top three women players within the next few years, but may have been bothered by the crowd cheering for Evert.

Evert, who received standing ovations from the packed crowd on her entrance and exit, next faces fifth-seeded Zina Garrison, who beat Donna Faber 6-4, 7-6.

If Evert survives that match, reaching the semifinals for the 17th time, she would go against the winner of the quarterfinal match between No. 2 Martina Navratilova, who beat Regina Rajchrtova 6-2, 6-0, and Manuela Maleeva, who beat Natalia Zvereva 6-2, 6-0.

"I knew she was not going to lose to Seles today," Navratilova said of Evert, a longtime friend. "It's nothing against Monica, she's a nice girl, but I knew she would not lose to a youngster like that in a round like that."

Jay Berger, the 11th seed, beat unseeded upstart Pete Sampras, the 18-year-old who beat defending champion Mats Wilander.

Berger's 7-5, 6-2, 6-1 victory put him into the quarterfinals of a Grand Slam event for the second time. He lost to Boris Becker in straight sets at the French Open this year, and lost in the round of 16 at the U.S. Open in 1985, his only other Grand Slam appearance.

Astros fall to surging St. Louis Cardinals 4-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Leon Durham picked a big moment for his first contribution to the pennant race.

Durham, batting .083 in 12 at-bats between stints at Triple A, hit a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the ninth inning for his first RBI, giving the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory Sunday over the fading Houston Astros. The victory moved the Cardinals within 1 1/2 games of first-place Chicago, which lost 8-5 to Atlanta, in the National League East.

"It makes me feel I'm finally helping the ballclub," said Durham, a 33-year-old veteran who was one of seven players the Cardinals called up from Louisville for the September stretch drive. "That run meant a lot to me."

Houston, which had 14 hits on both Saturday and Sunday but lost both games, has won only three of its last 11. The Astros are 23-26 since the All-Star break.

"We have six games left with the Giants," said Astros manager Art Howe, whose team blew a 3-0, sixth-inning lead. "As long as we're not more than six out we're in the race."

Terry Pendleton led off the ninth with a single against reliever Danny Darwin, 11-4, and Denny Walling, 4-for-6 against his former team, followed with a hit-and-run single to put runners at first and third. Darwin walked Jose Quiendo intentionally before Durham lifted a fly to medium center.

Todd Worell, 3-5, worked a scoreless ninth for the victory. The Cardinals had been stuck 2 1/2 games behind the Cubs for the previous six games, winning when Chicago won and losing when Chicago lost.

"We wanted to be a game-and-a-half up at this time," Pendleton said. "It took us a week, but we're now a step closer."

Milt Thompson's sacrifice fly in the eighth off reliever Juan Agosto scored pinch runner John Morris to tie the game.

Willie McGee led off with a single and advanced on Mark Portugal's wild pickoff throw. McGee injured his left hamstring rounding second and was replaced by Morris, who advanced on a sacrifice and scored on Thompson's fly to medium right.

Portugal gave up five hits and three runs in 7 1/3 innings. He had a one-hitter for five innings and retired 11 in a row in one stretch. He struck out five and walked three, singled twice and scored the third Houston run in the sixth.

Portugal got into trouble on his first two pitches in the sixth when pinch-hitter Vince Coleman tripled and McGee doubled. McGee later scored on Thompson's grounder.

Cardinals starter Joe Magrane gave up 13 hits in six innings, failing to become the league's first 19-game winner. He had given up only 17 hits in the last three games, all complete-game victories.

"It was very disappointing, but being able to hold them down was gratifying," Magrane said. "It seemed to be one of those days when they hit everything to the right spots."

Glenn Wilson had three hits and an RBI to pace Houston's attack.

College football starts with eight Top 25 wins

By The Associated Press

It was a hot day in the Top 25 on Saturday. For the most part, it wasn't the action on the field, it was the temperature.

Eight of the 10 Top 25 teams that played won, with No. 6 Florida State losing to Southern Mississippi 30-26 and No. 7 Louisiana State losing to Texas A&M 28-16.

Even though it was the Saturday before Labor Day, it wasn't too hot for college football, not with television demanding that the schedule be stretched out. It was 101 degrees at College Station, Texas, 93 at Tucson, Ariz., 88 at Albuquerque, N.M., 85 at Clemson, S.C., and 84 at Norman, Okla.

In fact, the temperature was higher than the rushing yards for eight teams in Top 25 games Saturday.

"(It's) the hottest weather I've ever played in," Clemson running back Joe Henderson, who was bothered by cramps, said.

In other games, No. 12 Clemson beat Furman 30-0, No. 15 Oklahoma routed New Mexico State 73-3, No. 17 West Virginia defeated Ball State 35-10, No. 18 Arizona topped Stanford 19-3, No. 19 Brigham Young downed New Mexico 24-3, No. 20 Pittsburgh beat Pacific 38-3, No. 21 Houston overwhelmed Nevada-Las Vegas 69-0 and No. 24 North Carolina State defeated Maryland 10-6.

Three of the top 25 will be in action Monday night, with No. 14 Colorado entertaining Texas and No. 22 Illinois at No. 5 Southern California.

Rice stopped an 18-game losing streak, the longest in Division I-A, beating Southern Methodist 35-6. The Mustangs were playing their first game since 1986, following the NCAA's two-year "death penalty" for numerous rules violations. Southern Methodist played in Ownby Stadium, which is on its campus, for the first time in 41 years. The Mustangs had 17 freshmen in the lineup.

Quarterback Dee Dowis scored six touchdowns and gained a school-record 249 yards in 13 carries, leading Air Force past San Diego State 52-36. He scored from 55, 28, 12, 16, 60 and 17 yards.

Kiwanis Club hosts tourney

The annual Ruidoso Kiwanis Club fishing tournament is scheduled for Sept. 16 and 17 at Alto Lake.

Prize money for the contest has already surpassed previous year's awards with a grand prize of $10,000. The lesser prizes consist of 90 other tagged fish totalling $3,000 in awards, ranging from $25 to $100.

Fishermen may pre-register by sending an application to Kiwanis Fishing Tournament, 1009 Mechem Drive, No. 3, Ruidoso, N.M., 88345 or P.O. Box 1107, Ruidoso, N.M., 88345.

Tickets will be mailed up to Sept. 12. Applications received after that date will be set up at a "will call" table at tournament headquarters.

Fishing hours for the event are 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Co-ed league sets tourney

A double-elimination softball tournament, sponsored by the Church Co-ed Softball League, is set for Saturday and Sunday.

Deadline for registration is Thursday, Sept. 7. Entry fee for participation is $30.

Teams will compete at Winston and North Parks.

Openings in the tourney will be limited to members of the church co-ed league.

For more information or to register contact Ricky Hopper at 573-0398.

Bowlers meet to organize

An organizational meeting for the fall season of the Commercial Bowling League is set for Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at Snyder Lanes.

League officials are hoping to have at least one member of each team in attendance.

A starting date for the new season will be set and officers will be elected at the gathering.

All interested bowlers are invited and encouraged to come.

Club to host 2-man event

The Snyder Country Club will host a two-man partnership golf tournament Sept. 9 and 10 with first participants playing low ball the first day and in a scramble format the second day. A practice round may be played by competitors Sept. 8.

A maximum handicap differential of eight will be given and golfers will be pre-flighted for the event.

Cash awards will be given for first through fourth place in the tournament. First prize is $550, second is $450, third is $350 and $250 is the prize for fourth place.

The entry fee is set at $220 per team and teams must be entered by Thursday.

Judge didn't want trial to be delayed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal judge who found Delta Air Lines at fault for a 1985 crash that killed 137 people plans to take senior status next spring, but not for the health reasons that threatened to disrupt the 14-month trial.

“What really worried me — I’ve had some illnesses, and I was afraid something might happen before we finished it,” U.S. District Judge David O. Belew Jr. told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in an interview at his home Saturday.

The longest aviation trial in U.S. history ended Friday when Belew ruled that the crew of Delta Flight 191 was responsible for the August 1985 crash at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. Delta argued that the crash — caused by violently shifting winds, or wind shear — occurred because air traffic controllers and weather forecasters failed to adequately warn the flight crew of the severe weather.

Belew, 69, had colon cancer surgery three months before Delta’s 1987 liability suit against the U.S. government was filed in his court.

But he says he will take senior status — a form of retirement — because it would give Fort Worth two senior judges who could help with the caseload of two full-time judges.

Earlier this year, Fort Worth’s other federal judge, Eldon Mahon, announced he would take senior status on Oct. 1.

Belew’s court docket swelled to nearly 700 cases during the Delta trial. He usually presided over Delta 3½ days a week, working a half-day Thursday and using Friday to handle criminal cases.

To minimize the chance of the case being sent back to his court by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, he said he was liberal in allowing testimony.

“I wanted it all to get in, so if I made a mistake the 5th Circuit could either affirm it or reverse it,” Belew said. “I wanted the 5th Circuit to have all the testimony, so if I’m wrong they can correct it.”

“As far as I can tell, there should be no reason for the 5th Circuit to send it back to me.”

Belew also was a hands-on judge.

Twice he toured the air traffic control tower and weather radar room at DFW Airport.

He flew to Atlanta and took a simulated ride through a wind shear. On the trip back, he sat for 30 minutes in the cockpit jump seat.

The colon cancer did not resurface during the 14-month trial. But Belew said he took a week off during that time to undergo minor, unrelated surgery.

President Carter appointed Belew in 1979. He said the Delta 191 case was his “biggest and most significant because it involved more lawsuits and more money.”

The ruling means Delta must absorb the loss of the $25 million airplane and may pay up to $175 million in damage claims filed by victims.

Delta has said it will appeal.

The 72-page opinion was also his most difficult to write, Belew said.

“You knew the evidence was there because you heard the testimony,” Belew said. “Then you had to go back through 18,000 pages of testimony and find it.”

After closing arguments in April, Belew said he took much of his work home. He said he spent the summer sifting through the Delta trial transcripts that covered his living room floor and tables.

Belew, who will be 70 on March 27, said he plans to take senior status May 1. A federal judge can obtain senior status when age and years of service equal 80. The classification allows federal judges to work part time but continue to receive their $89,500 annual salaries.

“I do pretty good selling,” she said. “People call and ask me, ‘Do you have so and so?’ All the things I have are real nice.”

Mathews, who has three daughters and a son, started holding garage sales when her children brought clothes home from college.

“What my girls didn’t want, they would bring home when the seasons changed,” she said. “They would exchange things among themselves and then I’d sell what’s left over.”

“Now, anything they want to sell they bring it to me and I sell it for them.”

“Them” also includes 14 grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and other relatives. The dirt bike was from one of her grandchildren.

Mathews gives the profits to the owner of the items, noting the more reasonable the price, the more likely the sale.

“The people who would rather have a tax write-off sell better, while those who need the money don’t sell as good because their prices are too high,” she said.

“People who have been to the garage sales before call me and ask if any of the girls have brought clothes home.

Sometimes I sell $60, $70 or $80 worth of stuff at one time,” Mathews said.

After her retirement, Mathews began holding sales almost monthly. Now the sales are less frequent.

Still, she sometimes has trouble figuring out garage sale shoppers.

“I’ve had garage sales and had a shirt that someone paid $40 for, and we want to get $5 or $6 for it, but people won’t pay it,” Mathews said. “They just don’t seem to understand that they are getting a $40 shirt for $5.”

“But you put something out there for 98 cents that it seems like no one would want and people would buy it right away,” she said. “I don’t understand it.”

Hilda Rodefeld does. The Texas City resident, who lists garage sales as one of her hobbies, doesn’t even look at clothes.

“I very seldom even touch the clothes. I’m not interested in that,” Rodefeld said.

“Sometimes I can just walk up to a driveway, see what they’ve got, turn around and go back. There’s no need for me to go in there.”

Rodefeld said she shops for small items, such as glassware and “little collectibles, things like that.” But she bought a bedroom set for her granddaughter that was “in really

Lubbock girl...

Flutist is one of nation's best

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — If there was one thing that unnerved Maria Harding at the recent New Orleans-based National Flutists' Association, it was the carpeting.

“When I heard it was in a ballroom, I panicked. I thought, ‘Oh, great. It will be a huge carpeted room that will just swallow up flute sounds,’” the 18-year-old Lubbock resident recalled.

But as Miss Harding finished the third note of her piece, she looked up from her music and saw the judges, who had been listening to competitors for more than two hours, straightening up in their chairs.

“She started with three long notes and there was a ripple. It was visible, audible. That’s what is known as capturing your audience from the beginning,” said Margaret Redcay, Miss Harding’s teacher.

It was the same effect a “tall, skinny girl with an awful flute” had on Mrs. Redcay five years ago.

“She came on a recommendation from David Matthew, the organist at First United Methodist Church. He said, ‘She’s one of the most talented people I know.’ I get so many calls I want to hear them before I accept them. She played with the most immediate, unusual talent,” Mrs. Redcay said.

“After a year, I realized I was faced with an awesome responsibility. When people are talented like she is, they develop themselves. You just keep them from doing the wrong thing. The problem is getting yourself out of the way,” she said.

Miss Harding, who beat the other seven finalists at the New Orleans competition to be named Best Young Flutist in the United States — is now enrolled in the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y. She’ll be among 110 freshmen and one of about 20 flutists among the school’s undergraduate degree in applied music.

Half of her year’s costs — nearly $20,000 — will be covered by scholarships. She also just agreed to serve as a Yamaha flute spokeswoman. Her service may include a television video with several young flutists, she said.

Sometimes, Miss Harding said, she wonders how she can make a career out of music. Then she’ll start to play — three hours a day, on the average — and she can’t imagine how she couldn’t try.

She is a brunette whose nearly 6-foot frame captures the same willowy effect as her music. Her wide eyes grow even wider when she recalls meeting the former New York Philharmonic musician Julius Baker, who told her she was a star.

“(Music is) a labor of love. It’s like I feed off of (the audiences’) energy and it becomes a natural high. Afterward, I really shake,” she said.

“(Musicians are) kind of lonely sometimes, but we find each other. To be able to express music accurately, you have to have really deep emotions. Musicians relate well to each other,” she said.

That seems to be the case in Miss Harding’s family, at least. Though she has played the flute for only six years — including a stint in the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra — her mother, Carla Beardmore Harding, said she was weaned on music.

Mrs. Harding and her husband, Bruce, a saxophone player who is now in the oil field service business, used to perform in dance bands when the family lived in Omaha, Neb. And Miss Harding’s 13-year-old brother, Christian, is a concert cellist who also composes music.

Miss Harding said she wants to expand her repertoire of instruments to include the guitar and piano. She’s excited about learning new theories. But mostly, she’s looking forward to meeting other serious musicians. “People who are like me, who won’t look at me funny,” she said.

Garage sales can be very popular

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — Mary Matthews says she has never been to a garage sale. But she has sold everything except a garage over the past 25 years.

“I don’t recall ever going to a garage sale in my life,” she said. “She’s been too busy having them,” her husband, Jimmy, quickly added.

Clothes are her biggest item, but Matthews has sold a dirt bike, electronic foot massager, videocassette recorder and numerous knick-knacks and bric-a-brac. Last week, she sold a garage door.

“I had a friend who was expanding his garage and wanted to get rid of a garage door. So I ran an ad and sold it at 7 a.m. the next day,” Matthews said.

“I do pretty good selling,” she said. “People call and ask me, ‘Do you have so and so?’ All the things I have are real nice.”

Mathews, who has three daughters and a son, started holding garage sales when her children brought clothes home from college.

“What my girls didn’t want, they would bring home when the seasons changed,” she said. “They would exchange things among themselves and then I’d sell what’s left over.”

Rodefeld said she shops for small items, such as glassware and “little collectibles, things like that.” But she bought a bedroom set for her granddaughter that was “in really good condition and a fairly good price.”

“Some of them are just junk, you know,” said Rodefeld, who has cut back on garage sales because she started taking her grandchildren to school. “It’s mostly just junk, but sometimes you get lucky and it’s pretty good.”

“I like pretty bowls, dishes, glasses, and I picked up a real nice set of Corningware once that was real cheap and real nice,” she said, sounding proud. “Some people sell cheap, others that for a few dollars more you could go buy it new in a store.”

Like many garage sale aficionados, Rodefeld is interested in items that are clean, unbroken and in good condition. And when she has garage sales, she tries to offer the same quality.

“I bring home so much stuff sometimes that I don’t need it. I used to have big garage sales twice a year, but now I help my daughter when she has them at her house,” she said.

“I just love to see what people are going to come in and buy. Some people get really excited over what you have to sell,” Rodefeld said. “I think that’s great.”

Carter to host Ethiopian talks

ATLANTA (AP) — Former President Carter, in the mode of his Camp David triumph, is staging talks this week between the Ethiopian government and Eritrean rebels on the 28-year-old war that has claimed hundreds of thousands of lives.

Ten years ago, Carter brokered the Camp David peace agreement between Israel and Egypt. The sessions beginning Thursday have a more modest goal: getting the two sides to sit down together.

“In the history of political affairs, the most significant single step is the first meeting,” Carter said last month in announcing the talks.

Previous attempts have failed to arrange talks between the Ethiopian government and the well-organized, heavily armed rebels fighting for independence for their province. But Carter, during a July visit to the East African nation, said the opportunity for peace has never been better.

The war has turned more than 1 million people into refugees. It has drained the Ethiopian economy, contributed to the suffering from famine and drought and led the government to bring in Soviet and Cuban military aid.

The two sides now have agreed that Carter should act as a neutral observer for the preliminary talks, which the participants say they hope will lead to more substantive meetings.

Neither Ethiopian leader Mengistu Haile Mariam nor Isaias Aferki, general secretary of the Eritrean People’s Liberation Front, will attend the meetings at the Carter Center. The center, opened in 1986, houses the Carter presidential library and museum as well as a think tank, a conference center and offices of foundations

Tiny panda cub's death reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fifth cub born to giant panda Ling-Ling died Sunday after 39 hours of fighting an infection transmitted from its mother, but disappointed zoo officials said they haven’t given up hope for a successful birth.

Maybe next year, they said.

As her human handlers recounted Ling-Ling’s latest travails at a news conference, the black-and-white animal sat in her nest cradling apples put there in place of her missing baby.

The never-named tiny cub, weighing only 3.1 ounces, was born prematurely Friday at the National Zoo and taken from its 250-pound mother six hours later because of concern of infection.

Zoo officials said the cub, a male, first began showing signs of strength, but then weakened despite around-the-clock efforts by zoo veterinarians as well as from pediatric experts enlisted from nearby Children’s Hospital.

Caretakers originally had thought the cub was a female, but determined it was a male after examining it more closely after death.

The cub was placed in an incubator, fed a special formula through a tube into its stomach and given antibiotics to fight the infection, officials said.

“Every effort was made to pull this cub through its illness,” said zoo director Michael Robinson.

At one point, when zoo officials managed to successfully separate the cub from a sedated mother, Robinson recalled, “I thought we’d won.”

But Mitchell Bush, chief veterinarian at the zoo, said the cub’s survival was an uphill struggle because of the premature birth and the infection. During most of its 39 hours of life the care given the cub was similar to what a prematurely born child would receive.

Bush said there had been concern from the start that the cub might have caught an infection from its mother, which has had problems periodically with a kidney infection since 1983 and had a recurrence only a week ago. The tiny cub’s chances of survival were reduced further because it weighed only about three-fourths of what a normal panda cub would weigh, officials said.

Three of the four previous cubs born to Ling-Ling also died of infection shortly after birth with the longest-living cub surviving for four days in 1987. Because of the mother’s problems with infection, a decision was made nearly two years ago to take any future newborn away from the mother, Bush said. That approach had never been tried before, officials acknowledged.

No giant panda cub has yet to be successfully bred in captivity in the United States, although cubs have survived at zoos in Mexico, Japan, Spain and China, the native home for giant pandas.

While disappointed, officials at the National Zoo said they continue to have hope Ling-Ling will become pregnant again. Robinson said although Ling-Ling is 20 years old — the oldest panda surviving in any zoo — there have been cases in China where pandas older than Ling-Ling have given birth.

“We’ll face next year with more knowledge and experience than ever before,” said Lisa Stevens, manager in charge of the zoo’s Panda House.

British troops intervened militarily in Northern Ireland in 1969 as sectarian violence between Protestants and Roman Catholics increased.

State plans to study junior college finances

AUSTIN (AP) — The state auditor will begin reviewing the financial administration of Texas' 49 junior colleges — which spend more than $1 billion per year — in light of a report that focused on the troubled American Educational Complex in Killeen but also found potential problems at other two-year schools.

University of Texas management professor Terrell Blodgett recently told state leaders that his six-month study of the AEC revealed that other community college financial records often were substandard.

"Budgets are, for the most part, general documents with sparse financial and program information," Blodgett's 310-page report stated. "Audits vary widely, in format, scope, content, and depth."

Blodgett also said another area of concern "is the lack of preparation of local governing boards to fulfill their oversight responsibilities as laid out by state law."

"Many of the (junior college) budgets show proposed expenditures for the coming year, and they don't give their elected board or the public any indication of what they have spent," Blodgett said.

"The budgets lack specificity which would be necessary to make intelligent decisions," he said.

He also said there is little, or no training for board members who want to learn how to analyze the spending blueprints.

Junior colleges statewide spend more than $1 billion annually, with about half that amount coming from state coffers and the remaining from local taxes, tuition and fees, officials said.

Sharon Leggett, first assistant state auditor, said a review of the colleges is included in the department's annual plan.

"We're not going to financially audit those institutions, but we are going to look at how well they are being audited, and the quality of the budgeting process and the oversight by the board," Ms. Leggett said.

Stanton Calvert, executive director of the Texas Public Community Junior College Association, said he believes the review could be beneficial.

"I don't think the auditors will find shortcomings," Calvert said. "There will undoubtedly be recommendations and they will be welcome. That's in the nature of any large institution. You can always do things better."

He said Blodgett was not critical of other junior colleges, but wanted to make sure that what happened at AEC doesn't happen elsewhere.

"What happened at Killeen (AEC) has been an unhappy exception to the other schools. There were some pretty severe lapses. They were riding the edge of the rail," he said.

Blodgett's report detailed nearly two decades of administrative irregularities at AEC that has plunged the school to the brink of financial disaster.

Blodgett and a team of state auditors looked at about 15 community colleges when investigating the AEC, a community college that has expanded into a worldwide network of education operations on military bases and Navy ships.

Based on the study, Blodgett said that community colleges in general "could easily be viewed as the stepchildren of education in Texas" despite the fact that they enroll more than one-half of all students in higher education in the state.

In addition, about 75 percent of all minorities in higher education are enrolled in community colleges, he said.

Blodgett said the schools "are overshadowed at the local level by the local school districts, and at the state level by the four-year institutions."

But still, he added, "In spite of this split responsibility, they have functioned reasonably well in the state."

Mabel Duck

Funeral services for Mabel Clare Duck, 86, were set for 10 a.m. Monday at the Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home Chapel. Burial was to follow at Hillside Memorial Gardens. Rev. Keith Berryman of the North College Avenue Baptist Church was to officiate the service.

Mrs. Duck died at 5 p.m. Saturday at Snyder Nursing Center.

She married Raymond Duck in Cass County in 1919. He preceded her in death in 1977. She was also preceded in death by a son and a daughter.

She was a resident of Snyder for 45 years, and a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include a daughter and son-in-law, Dorothy and Duaine Davis, of Snyder; a son and daughter-in-law, R.L. and Nell Duck of Sulphur Springs; five grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren; and three great-great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Pee Wee Newman, Dillard Herrley, Elton Beck, Kenneth Rinehart, Martin Parks and Jerald Beard.

Eva Stevenson

Funeral services for Eva Lena Stevenson, 97, of San Antonio, were held at 4 p.m. Saturday at the Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home Chapel. Burial followed in the Hermleigh Cemetery. Rev. Rex Reynolds officiated the service.

Mrs. Stevenson died at 8:30 a.m. Thursday at Four Seasons Nursing Home in San Antonio.

She was born Sept. 6, 1891 in Venus.

She was preceded in death by her husband, George L. Stevenson, in 1951.

Survivors include a daughter, Melba M. Kramer of San Antonio; two sons, Gordon D. Stevenson and O.J. Stevenson, both of San Antonio; a sister, Nancy Bullock of Dallas; a brother, Howard S. Appleton of Dallas; three grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; and three great-great-grandchildren.

Family members served as pallbearers.

Officers note several arrests

A 16-year-old boy was arrested for evading arrest, resisting arrest and public intoxication at 11:46 p.m. Saturday in the 2700 Block of Ave. J, after which county juvenile authorities had him incarcerated in the Midland County Youth Detention Center.

A 32-year-old woman was taken into custody for DWI at 9:49 p.m. Sunday in the 1000 Block of 26th St., and a 30-year-old man was arrested at the same time for PI.

Two men were arrested for PI early Sunday, a 23-year-old at 1:53 a.m. in the 1400 Block of Ave. M and a 20-year-old at 2:17 a.m. in the 2000 Block of 37th St.

A 30-year-old man was arrested for PI and disorderly conduct at 6:40 a.m. Saturday in the 2100 Block of Ave. E.

Curfew ordered after 2nd night of violence

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — National Guardsmen with rifles helped enforce an overnight curfew after a second night of violence followed the looting of more than 100 stores by young people in town for a fraternity festival.

The curfew issued after a Labor Day weekend gathering of students from mostly black colleges turned violent was lifted this morning.

The resort's main thoroughfare, Atlantic Avenue, was reopened and families began heading for the beach for the last holiday of the summer.

Officials in this town of 250,000 praised police, but a civil rights leader said officers contributed to the tension that touched off the riot.

A 35-minute sweep by club-wielding officers late Sunday added dozens of arrests to the 160 arrests and 395 citations between Friday evening and Sunday afternoon. Police had no immediate figures on the number of arrests overnight.

Two people, both over college age, were shot in the first night of violence.

"Last year, everything was real nice. There was no violence ... but this year the place was jammed with police and they were hassling people," said Paul Williams, a 21-year-old student from Philadelphia's Temple University.

Another witness said some participants chanted a slogan from the hit film "Do The Right Thing," which is about racial violence in New York City.

"We will not tolerate lawlessness from anybody," Mayor Meyera E. Obendorf said. "Let the word go out that Virginia Beach will not stand by and watch as unruly individuals trash our city."

In an interview on NBC's "Today" show this morning, the mayor said police "have shown extraordinary restraint" in making arrests. She said police had fired no shots and had not used tear gas.

She said the city has "gone out of its way" to welcome the young people gathered for the annual Greekfest, which attracts students from up and down the East Coast. She said some students had complaints about the way they were treated, but "there's no excuse for trashing a city if you're not happy with your circumstances."

But Jack W. Gravely, president of the Virginia chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, faulted the city's tactics as much as "an element who came to disrupt" the students' gathering.

During last year's Greekfest, police cleared smaller groups of young people from the street. Other large fraternity gatherings have erupted in violence in the past, including a beach party in Wantagh, N.Y., in July at which three people were shot. And some Florida towns packed with college students every spring have seen scattered street disturbances, alcohol problems and vandalism over the years.

Bush enjoys vacation time

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush said he wasn't out to "look busy" on his vacation. No, this was a real vacation, pure and simple, he insisted.

Just to make sure everyone got the point, Bush spent the past three weeks showcasing his good time.

Americans saw him boating, playing tennis, golfing, dining out, jogging, playing ball and otherwise having daily doses of fun.

His self-ascribed nickname, Mr. Smooth, became almost a household word. His bad-luck fishing streak was the subject of media accounts nationwide.

And when the president on a dare stripped off his shirt and leaped into the sea with his slacks on, the burst of goofiness was carried on the nightly news.

Bush spent more hours in the public eye during his vacation than he normally does at the White House.

Unlike many past presidents who used vacations to get out of the limelight, Bush seemed to relish the chance to show off his recreational penchants.

Away from the suit-and-tie world of Washington, Bush was a study in perpetual sports motion. His golf speed — 18 holes in around two hours — was dubbed "aerobic golf" by presidential physician Lawrence Mohr.

A keen competitive streak, tempered by apparent good sportsmanship, was evident in everything he did from fishing to horseshoes.

Some might even say the president showed himself to be something of a ham.

One survives Cuban air crash

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Cuban jetliner bound for Italy exploded shortly after takeoff and crashed, showering flaming debris on a Havana suburb, officials and news reports said. Only one survivor was reported among 126 people aboard.

The crash of the Soviet-made plane during a thunderstorm Sunday evening also injured 63 people on the ground, damaged 20 homes and snapped power lines, blacking out an area around the airport, news agencies said.

In Rome, a Foreign Ministry employee said one man, believed to be Italian, survived the crash but was hospitalized in critical condition.

Officials said earlier that all aboard were killed. The chartered Cubana de Aviacion jetliner was carrying 113 Italians, two Cubans and a crew of 11, said the Cuban ambassador to Rome, Javier Ardizzone.

Italian television showed footage of emergency workers rushing through the wreckage carrying bodies on stretchers through the darkness. Firefighters aimed streams of water at the charred shell of the plane.

Nearby were the smoldering hulks of two trucks apparently hit by the plane. Youths in T-shirts stood at the door of a one-story house whose roof appeared damaged by the nearby plane. Flames leaped from a pile of rubble.

Soldiers in green uniforms surrounded the plane, helping rescue workers sort through the wreckage.

Prensa Latina, Cuba's official news agency monitored in Mexico City, said the plane exploded shortly after takeoff.

The dispatch said officials did not elaborate on the cause of the accident but that Gen. Rogelio Acevedo, Cuba's civil aviation chief, named a commission to investigate the crash.

Mexico's Excelsior news agency said there was a heavy downpour with thunder and lightning when Flight 9046 took off for Milan, Italy, with a scheduled refueling stop in Cologne, West Germany.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the four-engine Ilyushin 62 crashed a half mile from the runway and 20 houses were damaged.

Cuba's state-run television interrupted its regular programming to show the plane engulfed in flames, Excelsior reported, adding that that area around Havana's Jose Marti airport was plunged into darkness for a time when the falling wreckage snapped power lines.

Cuban authorities had not released a passenger list or disclosed any identities of victims by early this morning.

The Mexican news agency Notimex quoted Havana's Radio Reloj as saying 63 people on the ground were hospitalized with injuries after the wreckage rained down on the suburb.

The Tass report, monitored in London by the British Broadcasting Co., said all approaches to the road leading to the airport were blocked off by traffic police.

Home costs nearly 2 million dollars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Anjelica Huston reportedly paid nearly $2 million for Richard Chamberlain's house, which the actor is giving up to move to Hawaii for his new TV series "Island Son."

But actor Jack Nicholson isn't moving in with her, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

"Miss Huston will live in her new home without Jack Nicholson, her boyfriend of several years," her real estate agent, Joe Coons, was quoted as saying. "When I asked her why they lived apart, she said, 'It just works out better that way.'" basketball.

Warden Les Woods has jokingly told O'Keefe that he will not get air conditioning in his gymnasium office until the unit's basketball team, which will be called the Price Daniel Rattlers, beats WTC.

O'Keefe views his job as being as important, in a sense, as the inmates' classroom educations and vocational training, because they learn teamwork and build self-esteem through athletic competition.

"A lot of them have never been on a team before," he said.

They will also play ping-pong and dominoes.

"It keeps them off the guards' backs and gives them a goal for themselves," he said. "A lot of them have never played sports. They've lived a life of crime and have been in gangs all their lives."

Their primary level of competition will be among the four 250-man housing units, which are identified among the unit's various buildings as buildings "I," "J," "L" and "N."

The 6-foot-4 O'Keefe, now down to 250 pounds, is single and numbers among his hobbies "laying out" in the sun at the apartment complex where he lives, the Western Crest Apartments. He also enjoys water skiing and playing basketball.

He has a saying about his work: "It keeps their minds off doing time."

O'Keefe thinks he might have a basketball team that would be competitive with college teams because he already has some inmates who played in college.

He has outdoor and indoor courts for them to practice on, and he is motivated to encourage them in part because of an experience he had when first assigned to the Las Cruces unit, where one of the inmates was a former scholarship basketball player at New Mexico State who had been convicted of selling drugs.

"I couldn't believe it, but it can happen," he said. "They do the crime, and they can end up inside. It's sad, but you can't treat them any differently from the others. You can't show favoritism."

"Doing time is hard."

Judge didn't want trial to be delayed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal judge who found Delta Air Lines at fault for a 1985 crash that killed 137 people plans to take senior status next spring, but not for the health reasons that threatened to disrupt the 14-month trial.

"What really worried me — I've had some illnesses, and I was afraid something might happen before we finished it," U.S. District Judge David O. Belew Jr. told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in an interview at his home Saturday.

The longest aviation trial in U.S. history ended Friday when Belew ruled that the crew of Delta Flight 191 was responsible for the August 1985 crash at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. Delta argued that the crash — caused by violently shifting winds, or wind shear — occurred because air traffic controllers and weather-forecasters failed to adequately warn the flight crew of the severe weather.

Belew, 69, had colon cancer surgery three months before Delta's 1987 liability suit against the U.S. government was filed in his court.

But he says he will take senior status — a form of retirement — because it would give Fort Worth two senior judges who could help with the caseload of two full-time judges.

Earlier this year, Fort Worth's other federal judge, Eldon Mahon, announced he would take senior status on Oct. 1.

Belew's court docket swelled to nearly 700 cases during the Delta trial. He usually presided over Delta 3½ days a week, working a half-day Thursday and using Friday to handle criminal cases.

To minimize the chance of the case being sent back to his court by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, he said he was liberal in allowing testimony.

"I wanted it all to get in, so if I made a mistake the 5th Circuit

First U. S. planes arrive

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The United States on Sunday began shipping a $65 million package of military aircraft and weapons to help Colombia fight its war against powerful cocaine empires.

The first to arrive were two C-130B transport planes. U.S. Ambassador Thomas McNamara, present at a Bogota military air base where the transports landed, said the big jets "are in excellent condition and should serve the Colombian armed forces for many years."

The commander of Colombia's air force, Gen. Alfonso Amaya Maldonado, said the C-130s "will be used in the fight in which we are engaged ... to re-establish order."

The high-tailed C-130s can take off and land on 3,000-foot runways, even those with no paving, and presumably could be used in raids on remote coca-leaf plantations and clandestine cocaine-refining laboratories. By contrast, passenger jets such as 747s and DC-10s need runways of 9,000-10,000 feet.

Also on their way to this South American country, according to the Pentagon, were five UH-1H transport helicopters and eight A-37 reconnaissance jets. The A-37s can be outfitted with machine guns and rockets.

The United States also has provided Colombia rifles, pistols, machine guns, rockets and grenades — even bulletproof vests for Colombian officials and judges who prosecute drug traffickers.

Bogota's anti-drug newspaper El Espectador, bombed Saturday by drug-cartel terrorists, came out Sunday with a smaller edition that maintained its hard line against the drug barons.

"We will continue moving forward!" the front page proclaimed in Spanish. "In its 102 years, El Espectador has always gone ahead, overcoming all adversities," said the paper, whose publisher was assassinated in 1986 by drug traffickers.

Eighty-four people were injured on Saturday's bombing.

Several Bogota newspaper editorials on Sunday called on Colombia's Congress to make permanent the special anti-drug measures decreed Aug. 18 by President Virgilio Barco, providing for the extradition of drug traffickers and the confiscation of their property.

Colombia's Supreme Court has until the end of September to determine whether these measures are constitutional. If the court says no, the government might have to release suspects being held for possible delivery to the United States to face drug charges there.

could either affirm it or reverse it," Belew said. "I wanted the 5th Circuit to have all the testimony, so if I'm wrong they can correct it."

"As far as I can tell, there should be no reason for the 5th Circuit to send it back to me."

Belew also was a hands-on judge.

Twice he toured the air traffic control tower and weather radar room at DFW Airport.

He flew to Atlanta and took a simulated ride through a wind shear. On the trip back, he sat for 60 minutes in the cockpit jump seat.

The colon cancer did not resurface during the 14-month trial. But Belew said he took a week off during that time to undergo minor, unrelated surgery.

President Carter appointed Belew in 1979. He said the Delta 191 case was his "biggest and most significant" because it involved more lawsuits and more money.

The ruling means Delta must absorb the loss of the $25 million airplane and may pay up to $175 million in damage claims filed by victims.

Delta has said it will appeal.

The 72-page opinion was also his most difficult to write, Belew said.

"You knew the evidence was there because you heard the testimony," Belew said. "Then you had to go back through 18,000 pages of testimony and find it."

After closing arguments in April, Belew said he took much of his work home. He said he spent the summer sifting through the Delta trial transcripts that covered his living room floor and tables.

Belew, who will be 70 on March 27, said he plans to take senior status May 1. A federal judge can obtain senior status when age and years of service equal 80. The classification allows federal judges to work part time but continue to receive their $89,500 annual salaries.

Garage sales can be very popular

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — Mary Matthews says she has never been to a garage sale. But she has sold everything except a garage over the past 25 years.

"I don't recall ever going to a garage sale in my life," she said. "She's been too busy having them," her husband, Jimmy, quickly added.

Clothes are her biggest item, but Matthews has sold a dirt bike, electronic foot massager, videocassette recorder and numerous knick-knacks and bric-a-brac. Last week, she sold a garage door.

"I had a friend who was expanding his garage and wanted to get rid of a garage door. So I ran an ad and sold it at 7 a.m. the next day," Matthews said.

"I do pretty good selling," she said. "People call and ask me, 'Do you have so and so?' All the things I have are real nice."

Matthews, who has three daughters and a son, started holding garage sales when her children brought clothes home from college.

"What my girls didn't want, they would bring home when the seasons changed," she said. "They would exchange things among themselves and then I'd sell what's left over."

"Now, anything they want to sell they bring it to me and I sell it for them."

"Them" also includes 14 grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and other relatives. The dirt bike was from one of her grandchildren.

Matthews gives the profits to the owner of the items, noting the more reasonable the price, the more likely the sale.

"The people who would rather have a tax write-off sell better, while those who need the money don't sell as good because their prices are too high," she said.

"People who have been to the garage sales before call me and ask if any of the girls have brought clothes home. Sometimes I sell $60, $70 or $80 worth of stuff at one time," Matthews said.

After her retirement, Matthews began holding sales almost monthly. Now the sales are less frequent.

Still, she sometimes has trouble figuring out garage sale shoppers.

"I've had garage sales and had a shirt that someone paid $40 for, and we want to get $5 or $6 for it, but people won't pay it," Matthews said. "They just don't seem to understand that they are getting a $40 shirt for $5."

"But you put something out there for 98 cents that it seems like no one would want and people would buy it right away," she said. "I don't understand it."

Hilda Rodefelf does. The Texas City resident, who lists garage sales as one of her hobbies, doesn't even look at clothes.

"I very seldom even touch the clothes. I'm not interested in that," Rodefelf said. "Sometimes I can just walk up to a driveway, see what they've got, turn around and go back. There's no need for me to go in there."

Rodefelf said she shops for small items, such as glassware and "little collectibles, things like that." But she bought a bedroom set for her granddaughter that was "in really

Lubbock girl...

Flutist is one of nation's best

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — If there was one thing that unnerved Maria Harding at the recent New Orleans-based National Flutists' Association, it was the carpeting.

"When I heard it was in a ballroom, I panicked. I thought, 'Oh, great. It will be a huge carpeted room that will just swallow up flute sounds,'" the 18-year-old Lubbock resident recalled.

But as Miss Harding finished the third note of her piece, she looked up from her music and saw the judges, who had been listening to competitors for more than two hours, straightening up in their chairs.

"She started with three long notes and there was a ripple. It was visible, audible. That's what is known as capturing your audience from the beginning," said Margaret Redcay, Miss Harding's teacher.

It was the same effect a "tall, skinny girl with an awful flute" had on Mrs. Redcay five years ago.

"She came on a recommendation from David Matthew, the organist at First United Methodist Church. He said, 'She's one of the most talented people I know. I get so many calls I want to hear them before I accept them. She played with the most immediate, unusual talent,'" Mrs. Redcay said.

"After a year, I realized I was faced with an awesome responsibility. When people are talented like she is, they develop themselves. You just keep them from doing the wrong thing. The problem is getting yourself out of the way," she said.

Miss Harding, who beat the other seven finalists at the New Orleans competition to be named Best Young Flutist in the United States is now enrolled in the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y. She'll be among 110 freshmen and one of about 20 flutists among the school's undergraduate degree in applied music.

Half of her year's costs — nearly $20,000 — will be covered by scholarships. She also just agreed to serve as a Yamaha flute spokeswoman. Her service may include a television video with several young flutists, she said.

Sometimes, Miss Harding said, she wonders how she can make a career out of music. Then she'll start to play — three hours a day, on the average — and she can't imagine how she couldn't try.

She is a brunette whose nearly 6-foot frame captures the same willowy effect as her music. Her wide eyes grow even wider when she recalls meeting the former New York Philharmonic musician Julius Baker, who told her she was a star.

"Music is a labor of love. It's like I feed off of (the audiences') energy and it becomes a natural high. Afterward, I really shake," she said.

"(Musicians are) kind of lonely sometimes, but we find each other. To be able to express music accurately, you have to have really deep emotions. Musicians relate well to each other," she said.

That seems to be the case in Miss Harding's family, at least. Though she has played the flute for only six years — including a stint in the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra — her mother, Carla Beardmore Harding, said she was weaned on music.

Mrs. Harding and her husband, Bruce, a saxophone player who is now in the oil field service business, used to perform in dance bands when the family lived in Omaha, Neb. And Miss Harding's 13-year-old brother, Christian, is a concert cellist who also composes music.

Miss Harding said she wants to expand her repertoire of instruments to include the guitar and piano. She's excited about learning new theories. But mostly, she's looking forward to meeting other serious musicians.

"People who are like me, who won't look at me funny," she said.

Tiny panda cub's death reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fifth cub born to giant panda Ling-Ling died Sunday after 39 hours of fighting an infection transmitted from its mother, but disappointed zoo officials said they haven't given up hope for a successful birth.

Maybe next year, they said.

As her human handlers recounted Ling-Ling's latest travails at a news conference, the black-and-white animal sat in her nest cradling apples put there in place of her missing baby.

The never-named tiny cub, weighing only 3.1 ounces, was born prematurely Friday at the National Zoo and taken from its 250-pound mother six hours later because of concern of infection.

Zoo officials said the cub, a male, first began showing signs of strength, but then weakened

despite around-the-clock efforts by zoo veterinarians as well as from pediatric experts enlisted from nearby Children's Hospital.

Caretakers originally had thought the cub was a female, but determined it was a male after examining it more closely after death.

The cub was placed in an incubator, fed a special formula through a tube into its stomach and given antibiotics to fight the infection, officials said.

"Every effort was made to pull this cub through its illness," said zoo director Michael Robinson.

At one point, when zoo officials managed to successfully separate the cub from a sedated mother, Robinson recalled, "I thought we'd won."

But Mitchell Bush, chief veterinarian at the zoo, said the cub's survival was an uphill struggle because of the premature birth and the infection. During most of its 39 hours of life the care given the cub was similar to what a prematurely born child would receive.

Bush said there had been concern from the start that the cub might have caught an infection from its mother, which has had problems periodically with a kidney infection since 1983 and had a reoccurrence only a week ago. The tiny cub's chances of survival were reduced further because it weighed only about three-fourths of what a normal panda cub would weigh, officials said.

Three of the four previous cubs born to Ling-Ling also died of infection shortly after birth with the longest-living cub surviving for four days in 1987. Because of the mother's problems with infection, a decision was made nearly two years ago to take any future newborn away from the mother, Bush said. That approach had never been tried before, officials acknowledged.

No giant panda cub has yet to be successfully bred in captivity in the United States, although cubs have survived at zoos in Mexico, Japan, Spain and China, the native home for giant pandas.

While disappointed, officials at the National Zoo said they continue to have hope Ling-Ling will become pregnant again. Robinson said although Ling-Ling is 20 years old — the oldest panda surviving in any zoo — there have been cases in China where pandas older than Ling-Ling have given birth.

"We'll face next year with more knowledge and experience than ever before," said Lisa Stevens, manager in charge of the zoo's Panda House.

Carter to host Ethiopian talks

ATLANTA (AP) — Former President Carter, in the mode of his Camp David triumph, is staging talks this week between the Ethiopian government and Eritrean rebels on the 28-year-old war that has claimed hundreds of thousands of lives.

Ten years ago, Carter brokered the Camp David peace agreement between Israel and Egypt. The sessions beginning Thursday have a more modest goal: getting the two sides to sit down together.

"In the history of political affairs, the most significant single step is the first meeting," Carter said last month in announcing the talks.

Previous attempts have failed to arrange talks between the Ethiopian government and the well-organized, heavily armed rebels fighting for independence for their province. But Carter, during a July visit to the East African nation, said the opportunity for peace has never been better.

The war has turned more than 1 million people into refugees. It has drained the Ethiopian economy, contributed to the suffering from famine and drought and led the government to bring in Soviet and Cuban military aid.

The two sides now have agreed that Carter should act as a neutral observer for the preliminary talks, which the participants say they hope will lead to more substantive meetings.

Neither Ethiopian leader Mengistu Haile Mariam nor Isaias Afewerki, general secretary of the Eritrean People's Liberation Front, will attend the meetings at the Carter Center. The center, opened in 1986, houses the Carter presidential library and museum as well as a think tank, a conference center and offices of foundations devoted to peace and public health.

Carter Center officials will not disclose the size of the negotiating teams, where the groups will stay or security plans. The meetings will be closed, and no one knows how long they will last.

Dayle E. Powell, the Carter Center's director of conflict resolution programs, said extensive efforts have been made to ensure the negotiators feel comfortable during their stay.

"Not just their physical comfort, but the feeling of neutrality," she said. "We are making every effort to provide for them a congenial environment in every aspect."

For example, Carter Center personnel are careful not to term the Ethiopian-Eritrean conflict a "civil war," which Ms. Powell said implies support for the government's view of the struggle as a conflict within a single state.

Eritrean guerrillas, which share some Marxist principles with the Ethiopian government, believe their province at the northern tip of Ethiopia, with 3.5 million people, should be an independent nation.

An ancient Ethiopian kingdom, Eritrea has been ruled by the Ottoman Turks, the Italians and, finally, the British during World War II before becoming part of a federation with Ethiopia after the war. Fighting broke out between Ethiopia and Eritrea in 1961 and Ethiopia annexed Eritrea in 1962.

Eritrea has long been coveted territory because its location on the Red Sea gives Ethiopia its only ports.

British troops intervened militarily in Northern Ireland in 1969 as sectarian violence between Protestants and Roman Catholics increased.

State plans to study junior college finances

AUSTIN (AP) — The state auditor will begin reviewing the financial administration of Texas' 49 junior colleges — which spend more than $1 billion per year — in light of a report that focused on the troubled American Educational Complex in Killeen but also found potential problems at other two-year schools.

University of Texas management professor Terrell Blodgett recently told state leaders that his six-month study of the AEC revealed that other community college financial records often were substandard.

"Budgets are, for the most part, general documents with sparse financial and program information," Blodgett's 310-page report stated. "Audits vary widely, in format, scope, content, and depth."

Blodgett also said another area of concern "is the lack of preparation of local governing boards to fulfill their oversight responsibilities as laid out by state law."

"Many of the (junior college) budgets show proposed expenditures for the coming year, and they don't give their elected board or the public any indication of what they have spent," Blodgett said.

"The budgets lack specificity which would be necessary to make intelligent decisions," he said.

He also said there is little, or no training for board members who want to learn how to analyze the spending blueprints.

Junior colleges statewide spend more than $1 billion annually, with about half that amount coming from state coffers and the remaining from local taxes, tuition and fees, officials said.

Sharon Leggett, first assistant state auditor, said a review of the colleges is included in the department's annual plan.

"We're not going to financially audit those institutions, but we are going to look at how well they are being audited, and the quality of the budgeting process and the oversight by the board," Ms. Leggett said.

Stanton Calvert, executive director of the Texas Public Community Junior College Association, said he believes the review could be beneficial.

"I don't think the auditors will find shortcomings," Calvert said. "There will undoubtedly be recommendations and they will be welcome. That's in the nature of any large institution. You can always do things better."

He said Blodgett was not critical of other junior colleges, but wanted to make sure that what happened at AEC doesn't happen elsewhere.

"What happened at Killeen (AEC) has been an unhappy exception to the other schools. There were some pretty severe lapses. They were riding the edge of the rail," he said.

Blodgett's report detailed nearly two decades of administrative irregularities at AEC that has plunged the school to the brink of financial disaster.

Blodgett and a team of state auditors looked at about 15 community colleges when investigating the AEC, a community college that has expanded into a worldwide network of education operations on military bases and Navy ships.

Based on the study, Blodgett said that community colleges in general "could easily be viewed as the stepchildren of education in Texas" despite the fact that they enroll more than one-half of all students in higher education in the state.

In addition, about 75 percent of all minorities in higher education are enrolled in community colleges, he said.

Blodgett said the schools "are overshadowed at the local level by the local school districts, and at the state level by the four-year institutions."

But still, he added, "In spite of this split responsibility, they have functioned reasonably well in the state."

Funeral services for Mabel Clare Duck, 86, were set for 10 a.m. Monday at the Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home Chapel. Burial was to follow at Hillside Memorial Gardens. Rev. Keith Berryman of the North College Avenue Baptist Church was to officiate the service.

Mrs. Duck died at 5 p.m. Saturday at Snyder Nursing Center.

She married Raymond Duck in Cass County in 1919. He preceded her in death in 1977. She was also preceded in death by a son and a daughter.

She was a resident of Snyder for 45 years, and a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include a daughter and son-in-law, Dorothy and Duane Davis, of Snyder; a son and daughter-in-law, R.L. and Nell Duck of Sulphur Springs; five grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren; and three great-great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Pee Wee Newman, Dillard Herrley, Elton Beck, Kenneth Rinehart, Martin Parks and Jerald Beard.

Eva Stevenson

Funeral services for Eva Lena Stevenson, 97, of San Antonio, were held at 4 p.m. Saturday at the Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home Chapel. Burial followed in the Hermleigh Cemetery. Rev. Rex Reynolds officiated the service.

Mrs. Stevenson died at 8:30 a.m. Thursday at Four Seasons Nursing Home in San Antonio.

She was born Sept. 6, 1891 in Venus.

She was preceded in death by her husband, George L. Stevenson, in 1951.

Survivors include a daughter, Melba M. Kramer of San Antonio; two sons, Gordon D. Stevenson and O.J. Stevenson, both of San Antonio; a sister, Nancy Bullock of Dallas; a brother, Howard S. Appleton of Dallas; three grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; and three great-great-grandchildren.

Family members served as pallbearers.

Officers note several arrests

A 16-year-old boy was arrested for evading arrest, resisting arrest and public intoxication at 11:46 p.m. Saturday in the 2700 Block of Ave. J, after which county juvenile authorities had him incarcerated in the Midland County Youth Detention Center.

A 32-year-old woman was taken into custody for DWI at 9:49 p.m. Sunday in the 1000 Block of 26th St., and a 30-year-old man was arrested at the same time for PI.

Two men were arrested for PI early Sunday, a 43-year-old at 1:53 a.m. in the 1400 Block of Ave. M and a 20-year-old at 2:17 a.m. in the 2000 Block of 37th St.

A 30-year-old man was arrested for PI and disorderly conduct at 6:49 a.m. Saturday in the 2100 Block of Ave. E.

Curfew ordered after 2nd night of violence

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — National Guardsmen with rifles helped enforce an overnight curfew after a second night of violence followed the looting of more than 100 stores by young people in town for a fraternity festival.

The curfew issued after a Labor Day weekend gathering of students from mostly black colleges turned violent was lifted this morning.

The resort's main thoroughfare, Atlantic Avenue, was reopened and families began heading for the beach for the last holiday of the summer.

Officials in this town of 250,000 praised police, but a civil rights leader said officers contributed to the tension that touched off the riot.

A 35-minute sweep by club-wielding officers late Sunday added dozens of arrests to the 160 arrests and 395 citations between Friday evening and Sunday afternoon. Police had no immediate figures on the number of arrests overnight.

Two people, both over college age, were shot in the first night of violence.

"Last year, everything was real nice. There was no violence ... but this year the place was jammed with police and they were hassling people," said Paul Williams, a 21-year-old student from Philadelphia's Temple University.

Another witness said some participants chanted a slogan from the hit film "Do The Right Thing," which is about racial violence in New York City.

"We will not tolerate lawlessness from anybody," Mayor Meyers E. Obendorf said. "Let the word go out that Virginia Beach will not stand by and watch as unruly individuals trash our city."

In an interview on NBC's "Today" show this morning, the mayor said police "have shown extraordinary restraint" in making arrests. She said police had fired no shots and had not used tear gas.

One said the city has "gone out of its way" to welcome the young people gathered for the annual Greekfest, which attracts students from up and down the East Coast. She said some students had complaints about the way they were treated, but "there's no excuse for trashing a

But Jack W. Gravely, president of the Virginia chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, faulted the city's tactics as much as "an element who came to disrupt" the students' gathering.

During last year's Greekfest, police cleared smaller groups of young people from the street. Other large fraternity gatherings have erupted in violence in the past, including a beach party in Wantagh, N.Y., in July at which three people were shot. And some Florida towns packed with college students every spring have seen scattered street disturbances, alcohol problems and vandalism over the years.

Bush enjoys vacation time

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush said he wasn't out to "look busy" on his vacation. No, this was a real vacation, pure and simple, he insisted.

Just to make sure everyone got the point, Bush spent the past three weeks showcasing his good time.

Americans saw him boating, playing tennis, golfing, dining out, jogging, playing ball and otherwise having daily doses of fun.

His self-ascribed nickname, Mr. Smooth, became almost a household word. His bad-luck fishing streak was the subject of media accounts nationwide.

And when the president on a dare stripped off his shirt and leaped into the sea with his slacks on, the burst of goofiness was carried on the nightly news.

Bush spent more hours in the public eye during his vacation than he normally does at the White House.

Unlike many past presidents who used vacations to get out of the limelight, Bush seemed to relish the chance to show off his recreational penchants.

Away from the suit-and-tie world of Washington, Bush was a study in perpetual sports motion. His golf speed — 18 holes in around two hours — was dubbed "aerobic golf" by presidential physician Lawrence Mohr.

A keen competitive streak, tempered by apparent good sportsmanship, was evident in everything he did from fishing to horseshoes.

Some might even say the president showed himself to be something of a ham.

One survives Cuban air crash

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Cuban jetliner bound for Italy exploded shortly after takeoff and crashed, showering flaming debris on a Havana suburb, officials and news reports said. Only one survivor was reported among 126 people aboard.

The crash of the Soviet-made plane during a thunderstorm Sunday evening also injured 63 people on the ground, damaged 20 homes and snapped power lines, blacking out an area around the airport, news agencies said.

In Rome, a Foreign Ministry employee said one man, believed to be Italian, survived the crash but was hospitalized in critical condition.

Officials said earlier that all aboard were killed.

The chartered Cubana de Aviacion jetliner was carrying 113 Italians, two Cubans and a crew of 11, said the Cuban ambassador to Rome, Javier Ardizones.

Italian television showed footage of emergency workers rushing through the wreckage carrying bodies on stretchers through the darkness. Firefighters aimed streams of water at the charred shell of the plane.

Nearby were the smoldering hulks of two trucks apparently hit by the plane. Youths in T-shirts stood at the door of a one-story house whose roof appeared damaged by the nearby plane. Flames leaped from a pile of rubble.

Soldiers in green uniforms surrounded the plane, helping rescue workers sort through the wreckage.

Prensa Latina, Cuba's official news agency monitored in Mexico City, said the plane exploded shortly after takeoff.

The dispatch said officials did not elaborate on the cause of the accident but that Gen. Rogelio Acevedo, Cuba's civil aviation chief, named a commission to investigate the crash.

Mexico's Excelsior news agency said there was a heavy downpour with thunder and lightning when Flight 9046 took off for Milan, Italy, with a scheduled refueling stop in Cologne, West Germany.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the four-engine Ilyushin 62 crashed a half mile from the runway and 20 houses were damaged.

Cuba's state-run television interrupted its regular programming to show the plane engulfed in flames, Excelsior reported, adding that that area around Havana's Jose Marti airport was plunged into darkness for a time when the falling wreckage snapped power lines.

Cuban authorities had not released a passenger list or disclosed any identities of victims by early this morning.

The Mexican news agency Notimex quoted Havana's Radio Reloj as saying 63 people on the ground were hospitalized with injuries after the wreckage rained down on the suburb.

The Tass report, monitored in London by the British Broadcasting Co., said all approaches to the road leading to the airport were blocked off by traffic police.

Home costs nearly 2 million dollars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Anjelica Huston reportedly paid nearly $2 million for Richard Chamberlain's house, which the actor is giving up to move to Hawaii for his new TV series "Island Son."

But actor Jack Nicholson isn't moving in with her, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

"Miss Huston will live in her new home without Jack Nicholson, her boyfriend of several years," her real estate agent, Joe Coons, was quoted as saying. "When I asked her why they lived apart, she said, 'It just works out better that way.'"

basketball.

Warden Les Woods has jokingly told O'Keefe that he will not get air conditioning in his gymnasium office until the unit's basketball team, which will be called the Price Daniel Rattlers, beats WTC.

O'Keefe views his job as being as important, in a sense, as the inmates' classroom educations and vocational training, because they learn teamwork and build self-esteem through athletic competition.

"A lot of them have never been on a team before," he said.

They will also play ping-pong and dominoes.

"It keeps them off the guards' backs and gives them a goal for themselves," he said. "A lot of them have never played sports. They've lived a life of crime and have been in gangs all their lives."

Their primary level of competition will be among the four 250-man housing units, which are identified among the unit's various buildings as buildings "I," "J," "L" and "N."

Miss Huston recently finished a movie with Woody Allen and will attend this month's Emmy Awards ceremonies as a nominee for her role in the miniseries "Lonesome Dove."

and numbers among his hobbies "laying out" in the sun at the apartment complex where he lives, the Western Crest Apartments. He also enjoys water skiing and playing basketball.

He has a saying about his work: "It keeps their minds off doing time." O'Keefe thinks he might have a basketball team that would be competitive with college teams because he already has some inmates who played in college.

He has outdoor and indoor courts for them to practice on, and he is motivated to encourage them in part because of an experience he had when first assigned to the Las Cruces unit, where one of the inmates was a former scholarship basketball player at New Mexico State who had been convicted of selling drugs.

"I couldn't believe it, but it can happen," he said. "They do the crime, and they can end up inside. It's sad, but you can't treat them any differently from the others. You can't show favoritism. "Doing time is hard."

Much-anticipated bash lives up to its billing

HOUSTON (AP) — They called it "The Biggest Party in History."

They exaggerated. But Randy Quaid's long-promised, long-awaited bash Saturday at the Astrodome, sponsored by Miller Lite and headlined by The Who's concert performance left most celebrants quite satisfied.

An estimated 120,000 braved record heat to join the mirth in Houston.

Smaller events sponsored by Miller Lite were held Saturday in Midland-Odessa, Corpus Christi and San Antonio. The Who and most of the other acts who performed at the Astrodome Saturday played their performances Sunday for crowds in Dallas, and a smaller event was held in Mercedes.

At San Antonio's HemisFair

Park, more than 50,000 tickets were sold for headliner concerts by George Strait and Hall & Oates.

Few problems were reported. Guards were notified that somebody was selling bogus beer tickets.

Temperatures were 102 at San Antonio's shindig.

"I hope everyone realizes that the purpose of this party is to raise money for Texas Special Olympics, not to sell a lot of beer," Quaid told the San Antonio-Express News.

About 25,000 people crowded onto the Naval Air Station in Corpus Christi, for barbecue and bands, including Cheap Trick, Huey Lewis and, via satellite, The Who.

A steady bay breeze kept the 97 degrees from feeling even hotter.

Four thousand turned out in Midland-Odessa's 100-degree weather for the "We're Having A Party" celebration at Twin Cities Speedway.

Comedian Paul Rodriguez of Los Angeles opened the show, saying he was pleased to be involved with the event.

Miller Brewing Co. has pledged $1 million in proceeds from the events to benefit the Texas Special Olympics.

The extravaganzas have been hyped for more than a year, with actor Quaid appearing in Miller Lite commercials enticing the public with his "I'll get back to you with more details" slogan.

Keith Chappell, 29, told the Houston Chronicle he was impressed with the Houston extravaganza, held at the Astrodome, the Astrohall and its parking lots. "I was too young to make Woodstock, but I wouldn't have wanted to miss this."

"This'll definitely make history," Chappell said admiring the music and the crowd.

Most of the complaints were about the heat, which doctors in the emergency care center estimated at a mid-afternoon high of 115 degrees on the blacktop in the Astrodome parking lot.

The Who played to 40,000 fans in the Astrodome Saturday night. The venerated British rock band followed sets by Texas blues-rockers Stevie Ray Vaughan and the Fabulous Thunderbirds.

The Who opened with "Substitute" and "I Can See For Miles." They played for more than two hours.

The concert capped a 13-hour day of live music that began at 11 a.m. on two outdoor stages in the parking lot and one inside the Astrohall.

Six thousand runners participated in a 10-kilometer "Dome Run." Except for a five-hour professional wrestling card, all the pre-Who concert events were free.

Occasionally, masses of people would spontaneously scream with relief upon entering the air-conditioned Astrohall.

"One thing about having a brewing company sponsor your party — you don't have to worry about running out of beer.

Miller Lite's sponsorship of the event had drawn criticism from organizations such as Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

The controversy over The Who's acceptance of Miller's tour sponsorship was further fueled by group leader Pete Townshend's acknowledgment that he is a recovering alcoholic, as are Stevie Ray Vaughan and Natalie Cole.

Poll says...

Nearly one in four would join union

NEW YORK (AP) — Half of Americans say workers are better off with unions than without, but more people regard management favorably than view unions favorably, a poll has found.

Many respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll saw unions as weakening, and few objected to that trend. Still, by a 49 percent to 31 percent margin, they said workers are better off with a union than without one.

In what could be seen as a positive sign for the future of unions, young respondents, ages 18 to 29, were the most likely to favor unions. They scored higher than their elders on questions about their opinion of workers and about whether they think employees are better off under unions.

Overall, however, non-unionized respondents were more unwilling than willing to join a union — 47-37 percent, with the rest unsure.

Moreover, while 44 percent thought of unions favorably, 64 percent had a positive view of management. And seven in 10 favored so-called right-to-work laws, which ban mandatory union membership.

On other issues, the poll found most workers this Labor Day satisfied with their salaries, working conditions and time off. But 41 percent rated their pensions fair or poor, and 37 percent rated their pay as fair or poor.

Nearly nine in 10 respondents backed raising the minimum wage, which has been $3.35 an hour since 1981. Most supported the $4.55 minimum approved by Congress over the $4.25 urged by President Bush, but most also liked Bush's plan allowing new workers to be kept at $3.35 for their first six months.

Bush vetoed legislation in June that would have phased in a $4.55 minimum wage by 1991 and did not include his "training wage" proposal. Congress is expected to take up the issue again this fall.

The poll was conducted by telephone among a random sample of 1,163 adults from July 6-17. It had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 points for the entire group and 4 points for the 812 who were employed.

When rating their own circumstances at work, respondents gave the highest grades to the safety of their workplace — 87 percent said "excellent" or "good" — and their overall working conditions, with 81 percent favorable.

Sixty-nine percent expressed satisfaction with their time off, 61 percent rated their health benefits favorably and 60 percent said their salary was excellent or good as opposed to only fair or poor.

The lowest ratings went to pension benefits: Of those with an opinion, just 46 percent viewed their pension plans as excellent or good, while 41 percent were dissatisfied. A quarter overall rated their pension benefits as poor.

Benefits were not the prime concern, however: Fifty-four percent said they would prefer better wages to better benefits.

Concern over wages lessened among white-collar, management workers. Seventy-one percent of them rated their salaries favorably, compared with 57 percent of blue-collar workers and of non-management white-collar workers.

Union members also were less likely to be concerned about their wages. Seventy-one percent were satisfied, equal to the salary satisfaction among management workers.

Union and management split on another point: Union members said by 83-10 percent that workers are better off with unions, while management employees said by 46-37 percent that workers are better off non-unionized.

Union membership, declining over the years, now accounts for just under 17 percent of the nation's work force.

Dispute Glemp's remarks...

Cardinals claim pact is binding

PARIS (AP) — Three of the four Roman Catholic cardinals who signed an agreement with Jewish leaders to move a convent away from the Auschwitz death camp said Sunday the pact must be carried out.

In a statement, the French and Belgian church leaders said Cardinal Josef Glemp, the primate of Poland, "could only have been speaking for himself" — not for the church — in suggesting a renegotiation of the accord.

Glemp was quoted Saturday in Italian newspapers as saying it was a scandal to move the convent, as agreed to in Geneva in 1987 by a Jewish delegation and four Roman Catholic archbishops: Cardinal Franciszek Macharski of Krakow, Poland, Cardinal Godfried Danneels of Brussels, Cardinal Jean-Marie Lustiger of Paris and Cardinal Albert Decourtray of Lyon, France.

In their statement issued in Paris, Decourtray, Lustiger and Danneels defended the agreement, which they said was "patiently and loyally negotiated over two years," and the capacity of the negotiators on the two sides.

"If the Jewish delegation at the Geneva meetings, led by Mr. Theo Klein, then president of the European Jewish Congress, is 'not competent,' who would be?" they asked.

"And if four cardinals, including the archbishop of Krakow, are not qualified to represent the Catholic side, who might be? The Auschwitz camp is in the Krakow diocese. According to church law, its archbishop has full authority there. The cardinals who accompanied him belong to nations who, in the West, were among the chief victims of the Hitler barbarism."

The dispute over the Carmelite convent, just outside the fence surrounding the Auschwitz camp, has become a source of growing tension between Jews and Roman Catholics in Europe. Jewish groups say the convent and its Christian religious symbols offend the memory of the 2.5 million Jews who died there.

Under the Geneva agreement, the nuns were to have been moved by Feb. 22 of this year to an interfaith prayer center to be built several thousand yards away. But the deadline has passed.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL NEWS

Bryant's has carpet cleaning experience

Bryant's Carpet Cleaning has served Snyder over 11 years. They have used or seen every type of carpet cleaning. Even though they could use a cheaper method, they prefer steam extraction. This method extracts the dirt and stains, whereas other methods leave the dirt in the carpet. For a clean and safe carpet, steam extraction is by far the best method.

Some methods leave the carpet wet, but they leave it only damp so it will dry in only a few hours. This is because they have the latest truck mount unit with more power than smaller units. The unit stays in the van and only the cleaning head goes into the house, eliminating spills in the home.

Most carpets need to be cleaned within a year, depending on the traffic. Not only can they be dirty, but after walking on the carpet awhile the carpet protector is worn off. They can clean the carpet and replace the carpet protector, which is similar to Scotch Guard.

In some cases they can clean the carpet as inexpensively as you can rent a machine. Many times when people try to do it themselves and the carpet won't come clean, they keep adding detergents to the machine. This results in the carpet becoming too wet. Also, the detergents leave a residue in the carpet and the carpet seems to get dirty quicker. Bryant's doesn't leave a residue in the carpet because they prespray with cleaners and when they go over the carpet with the cleaning head, they use only soft hot water.

Kate Jackson undergoes breast surgery

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Actress Kate Jackson, recovering from breast surgery and getting ready to make a new movie, has bought a house here in sight of her childhood home so she can occasionally get away from it all. "Maybe now more than ever Birmingham is home," Miss

Jackson said. "The people that I love the most are there, and to me that's what home is."

"The surgery was a complete success," she said Thursday of the operation two weeks ago to have a malignancy removed. "My recovery has been amazing. I really can't believe I feel so well. "I think it's such an incredible thing that they can do the reconstructive surgery right at the time, so you don't have to go through this incredible trauma that I think women had to go through up until recently."
