Snyder man receives ten-year prison term

A 33-year-old Snyder man pleaded guilty to a forgery by passing charge last week in 132nd District Court and was sentenced to 10 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Kenneth D. Wortham, 33, of 211 36th Place entered his plea in connection with a July 16 offense.

Gilbert Pesina, 24, of 408 34th St. was on two years of probation for felony DWI, and his probation was revoked and he was ordered to serve 180 days in the county jail because he had been arrested for forgery by passing on March 23 in Tom Green County.

District Judge Gene Dulaney assessed a six-year probated term to 18-year-old Ricky Guzman of Post upon Guzman's plea of a guilty to a May 16 theft over $750.

Betty J. Crabtree, 49, of 2405 37th St. pleaded guilty to an Aug. 4 felony DWI offense and received a five-year probated term.

Tax protest group continues to seek names for roll-back

A tax protest group leader said Saturday that the group will continue gathering signatures on petitions for a tax roll-back election until it appears that everyone who wants to sign has had the opportunity.

Leland McCarty said anyone who wishes to sign the petition, calling for a roll-back from 39.80 to 34.75 cents per $100 in valuation, should call him at 573-2960 or Garland Bishop at 573-6965, preferably in the early morning or late afternoon.

"We hate to stop without giving someone the opportunity to participate," McCarty said, adding that only "three or four" people who have been invited to sign the petition have declined.

"When we have come to the end of people wanting to sign, we will make a decision on when to turn it in," he said. There seems to be an awful lot of feeling that the tax increase is entirely too high.

He said the group's leaders have intentionally "set up a low-key situation because we didn't want to hurt anyone's feelings or hurt anyone's business."

"We wanted to give people an opportunity to sign and an opportunity to vote."

McCarty said two weeks ago that the group already had more than enough names of registered voters to force the county commissioners court to call an election.

State law requires the signatures of at least 10 percent of the number of voters who were registered for the most recent county-wide election, which in this instance is 902.

The group has 90 days from the time of the county's Aug. 18 public hearing on the rate increase from 29.66 to 39.80 cents to get the petition in, or until Nov. 18. The roll-back level is only 34.75 because of declining oil property values.

McCarty said the group has not given any thought to whether or not such an election should be scheduled to coincide with the Nov. 7 constitutional amendments election.

The commissioners court would have 90 days following the presentation of a valid petition to call the election.

Brooks will head Nov. 7 vote drive

Martin Brooks, chairman of the board of West Texas State Bank, has been named to head the "get-out-the-vote" drive for Nov. 7.

The appointment was made Friday afternoon by the chamber's economic development committee which has special interest in proposition 8

Amendment 8 on the ballot calls for the sale of $400 million in general obligation bonds for the construction of additional correctional facilities in Texas.

Snyder has submitted a proposal calling for the construction of a second 1,000-bed facility next to the Price Daniel unit.

The Texas Department of Criminal Justice is expected to select sites at its November meeting, but the massive prison construction proposal is subject to approval of the amendment which authorizes the sale of bonds.

A similar vote was held in 1987 and Snyder overwhelming approved the bond amendment. Brooks spearheaded a similar vote drive in 1988 for water and sewer bonds.

That vote was approved by a 9-1 margin and the economic development committee presented Brooks a plaque of appreciation designating him as an "honorary warden."

Tommy Fletcher, owner of the Downtown 66 service station, is an avid Dallas Cowboy fan. But like a lot of fans who remember the good ole days of winning, 'Poke fans are becoming impatient.

Tommy's father sent him a clipping out of the Tampa sports section written by columnist Hubert Mizell:

"When Tampa Bay pro football was young, you heard people saying, 'If I had one NFL wish, it would be for the Bucs to someday be as good as the Dallas Cowboys.' Well, you can pop the muscatel, because someday is now..."

"Funny thing, during the Cowboys' champagne years, they practiced at a spartan facility encircled by a well-dented tin fence. From the exterior, it resembled an auto graveyard. But inside, those junkyard Cowboys had a football laboratory known for extraordinary creativity.

"Then in 1985, Landry's darlings moved to Cowboy Ranch, an 80,000-square foot Taj Mahal training base built from what was the centerpiece of a 200-acre Valley Ranch.... Today's players are well-groomed, and lavishly trained, but they don't play the game like yesterday..."

"But where has Roger Staubach gone? Where is Bob Lilly? Where did Billy Joe DuPree and Bob Hayes go? What ever happened to Don Meredith, and has anybody seen Calvin Hill lately? There is no Jethro Pugh, Cliff Harris or Drew Pearson.

Does anybody know the whereabouts of Walt Garrison? Or Ralph Neely? Or Harvey Martin? Or Charlie Waters? Or John Niland? Or Don Perkins? Or Mel Renfro? Or Chuck Howley. Or Rayfield Wright?"

It seems like the best solution for a brisk autumn afternoon is a tee-time instead of a game time.

Local Genealogical

Scurry County Genealogical Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the chamber of commerce.

The program, "This and That...Sons of Texas," will be presented by Oscar Russell of Odessa.

Other items on the agenda include discussion of an appointment to the hospital board to replace Janet Hall, approval of bills submitted to the tax assessor for property sold at a public sale Sept. 5, and approval of distribution of 1988-89 county available school funds.

"Perfect Attendance Month" in the Snyder public schools has been endorsed by the Board of County Development and the chamber's economic development committee.

Drug war talks fizzle in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's war on drugs is caught in a partisan battle in the Senate, with Democrats trying to add prevention and treatment money and Republicans arguing the revision would weaken the defense budget.

"If we're not willing to spend $150 million more, this is no war," Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, said Friday after a week of closed-door efforts to reach a compromise failed.

The talks broke off Friday and no new negotiations were scheduled.

Republicans were proposing to add $850 million to the $7.9 billion program Bush announced two weeks ago and Democrats were holding out for an additional $1 billion, with no further talks scheduled.

The parties also were at odds over how to distribute cuts in programs for money to go to the anti-drug effort.

The breakdown threatened to create a logjam of money bills in the Senate just before the Oct. 1 start of the fiscal year when the funds ordinarily would be needed. Lawmakers said they might pass a stopgap measure to keep federal workers on the job and benefit checks flowing.

The chief Republican negotiator, Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., said the two sides were actually fairly close and said he hoped the parties would take "a clear-eyed, Monday morning view" and resume bargaining.

"We have to wage this war and the sooner we get at it the better it's going to be," Hatfield said.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., the chief Democratic negotiator, said the White House had been "a shadow participant" in the negotiations and that its reluctance to compromise was the key problem.

"There comes a time when you have to fish or cut bait," said Byrd, the chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Republican lawmakers said they were frequently on the phone to White House chief of staff John Sununu on Thursday when a marathon bargaining session ended at midnight.

Sununu was in the office of Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas Friday morning for a strategy session with GOP senators, national drug policy director William Bennett and budget director Richard Darman.

Divided over ceiling...

Oil ministers to gather

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC ministers will take a fresh look at the world oil market and decide whether they can increase production without sending crude prices tumbling.

On the eve of their weekend talks, some ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries seemed reluctant to tamper with the cartel's current output accord.

The meeting was to begin today but there was no indication of how long it would last.

Algeria's oil minister, Sadek Boussena, insisted upon his arrival Friday in Geneva, "There's no need to raise the (production) ceiling as long as the price objective is not met."

Fawzi Shakshuki, the Libyan minister, agreed and said he would rather see better prices.

Iraq's oil chief, Issam Abdul Raheem al-Chalabi, said, however, he favored a "reasonable increase" in the supply cap. He gave no specifics.

The 13-nation cartel agreed in June on a production ceiling of 19.5 million barrels a day in the last six months of the year. Its price target was set at $18 a 42-gallon barrel.

But analysts say heavy cheating by Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates has helped kick supply up to 22 million barrels a day or more.

Prices have remained fairly firm, but they are under OPEC's target.

"We still have to obtain the goal of $18 ... We should work on it," said Ecuador's oil minister, Diego Tamariz.

Shakshuki said, "Eighteen dollars is better than increasing the quota." Prices haven't hit the $18 mark in the past three months.

A basket of seven major crudes monitored by OPEC averaged $17.04 a barrel last week. It went above $18 last spring.

West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark grade of American oil, has been trading in the range of $19.50 to $20 a barrel.

Fergus MacLeod, an analyst at Barclays de Zoete Wedd in London, predicted prices would slip from 50 cents to $1 a barrel if the cartel increased production without halting members' cheating.

OPEC ministers agreed in June to meet this month and decide whether to raise their output 500,000 barrels a day in the final three months of 1989.

MacLeod said such an increase probably would translate into total production of 22.5 million barrels a day.

The organization's secretary-general, Subroto of Indonesia, said that 22 million barrels a day "looks like the demand for OPEC oil in the fourth quarter" of the year.

In addition to the supply ceiling, the ministers' agenda included a discussion of the best way to set their quotas. Each country is assigned a daily quota.

Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates want bigger shares as do some other nations. To press their demands, the two countries have been pumping as much as double their daily quotas of about a million barrels each, analysts say.

Ali Khalifa al-Sabah, the Kuwaiti oil minister, told reporters that his pledge in June to rein in production had been "conditional."

Senior Center to issue identification cards

Identification cards for senior citizens will be issued Thursday and Friday at the Senior Center.

The cards entitle senior citizens to discounts at several local businesses, and provide information which would be needed in the event of an emergency.

Persons 60 and older who would like to have a card are asked to contact the center office in advance to provide the information to be entered on the card. Officials say this will make the work of issuing the cards faster on the designated day. Information may be obtained by calling the Center at 573-4035.

The Hot Potato Band from Big Spring will make a guest appearance in the senior center at 11 a.m. Tuesday and the Kitchen Band will play Wednesday morning. The Robert Allen Band will play for a dance at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

A domino tournament is scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m. Monday, and the Card Club will meet at 1 p.m. Thursday. Persons who enjoy bridge or other card games are invited. Pool players will have a meeting at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Senior citizens who would like to attend the Tyler Rose Festival with the Travel Club are reminded that reservations are still being accepted and information about the trip may be obtained by calling the senior center

Worst in 30 years...

Charleston, southeast begin cleanup

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Hundreds of National Guardsmen patrolled Charleston's streets against looting today and residents of the Carolinas began rebuilding their hurricane-shattered homes.
 Chainsaws buzzed, crews worked around the clock to restore power and telephone communications, and insurance agents braced for claims that could run into the billions from Hurricane Hugo, the region's most devastating hurricane in 30 years.

"It is the worst storm, the worst disaster, I've ever seen anywhere," a shocked Gov. Carroll Campbell said after surveying the destruction by helicopter. "We're going to be a long time digging out of this and rebuilding."

The hurricane was blamed for 12 deaths in the Carolinas.

In the six hours Hugo and its 135 mph winds surged through the state, it flattened dozens of homes and buildings, snapped trees, twisted bridges and washed scores of boats ashore. Mayor Joseph P. Riley Jr. said damage in his 3-century-old city alone might reach $1 billion.

"There's just destruction everywhere," said Riley, who imposed a curfew Friday evening.

Up to half a million customers across the state were without power as of late Friday. In inland Columbia, people lined up at an ice warehouse with coolers. Some areas of Charleston were without water, and residents were told to boil their drinking water.

Two hundred miles inland, Charlotte, N.C., also sustained heavy damage, and 90 percent of the city of 375,000 residents was without power, said J.J. Kelley, a police spokesman.

Two people were killed by Hugo after it moved into Virginia as a tropical storm. In the Caribbean, where Hugo first touched land, the storm killed 27-29 people and left 50,000 homeless.

"All things considered, we lucked out in a lot of ways," said Chipp Bailey, spokesman for Mecklenburg County Emergency Management in Charlotte, where the most serious injury reported was a broken pelvis suffered by a woman when a tree crashed through her roof.

The hurricane and its tidal waves of up to 17 feet smashed ashore at Charleston late Thursday. By Friday evening, the storm had advanced further west than expected, moving into Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and western Pennsylvania, where the National Hurricane Center stopped tracking it.

President Bush declared seven South Carolina counties — with a total of 750,000 residents — a disaster area. The declaration frees up federal aid for housing, loans and grants for rebuilding.

Hundreds of insurance adjusters have come to South Carolina to process the damage claims, but it will be days before they begin to catch up, said state Insurance Commissioner John G. Richards.

Along the coast, Folly Beach, Isle of Palms, Pawley's Island, Myrtle Beach, Cherry Grove and Garden City were devastated.

"Garden City for all practical purposes is gone," said Horry

Driving course for seniors set

The Scurry County chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will sponsor a 55 AliveMature driving course in the Senior Center Oct. 19-20.

The class is open to drivers 50 and older and offers eight hours of classroom instruction designed especially for senior motorists. Membership in AARP is not required.

County administrator M.L. Love after he toured the small unincorporated town near Myrtle Beach. He said damage there could run in the hundreds of millions.

Residents of the Isle of Palms and Sullivan's Island, which were among the hardest-hit barrier islands, were kept from even inspecting their homes because the Ben Sawyer swing bridge — the only link to the mainland — was knocked out.

Although the Pentagon had dispatched planes and ships from Charleston's Air Force and Naval bases as Hugo approached, the installations suffered perhaps $50 million in damage, said Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C. Charleston, a city of about 65,000 people, took the full force of Hugo.

Most of the historic antebellum mansions facing Charleston Harbor weathered the storm, but Fort Sumter, the first Union stronghold fired upon by the Confederacy at the beginning of the Civil War, suffered $1 million damage when a 17-foot wall of water roared over it, federal officials said.

Police reported isolated cases of looting. Fifty people were arrested in Mount Pleasant, across the Cooper River from Charleston, and 26 were arrested in Charleston.

The governor deployed 2,600 National Guardsmen to patrol streets, enforce the curfew, help remove debris, purify water and other duties.

Co-pilot pushed wrong button

NEW YORK (AP) — The co-pilot of the USAir jet that crashed into the East River, killing two people, inadvertently pushed a button that caused the 737-400 to decelerate, federal officials said Friday after interviewing the cockpit crew.

The plane began to veer to the left and the pilot, feeling a vibration, then aborted the takeoff, said James Kohlstad, acting administrator of the National Transportation Safety Board.

Kohlstad did not specify a precise cause for Wednesday's crash.

"He initiated the abort because of the drift," Kohlstad said, quoted the pilot as saying.

Kohlstad said the plane has automatic throttles, triggered by pushing a button that will accelerate the aircraft to a preset speed for takeoff.

The co-pilot inadvertently hit the disengage button and the pilot jumped in to move the throttle manually, Kohlstad said. The plane started drifting to the left, he said.

"The pilot felt and heard a vibration which concerned him," he said.

The co-pilot, meanwhile, told investigators he was looking out the front window when he realized the captain was going to abort the flight, Kohlstad said.

The pilot, referring to an earlier flight that day, told officials "the co-pilot's performance suggested that he was obviously new," Kohlstad said.

Kohlstad said it was the co-pilot's first operational takeoff on a 737-400 following completion of flight training.

After the crash, the pilot and co-pilot helped passengers get out of the plane, Kohlstad said.

Arms talks show progress

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (AP) — The Soviet Union is dropping its insistence that curbs on the Star Wars missile defense be completed before a Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty, breaking an impasse over talks to slash long-range nuclear weapons arsenals, says a senior U.S. official.

The announcement came at the end of a day of talks led by Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in which they neared agreement on an accord to open each other's underground nuclear tests to on-site inspection.

The foreign ministers were concluding their talks at the Rocky Mountain lodge today, with expectations high that they would set a target date for a summit between President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The foreign secretaries also made progress toward several other arms control agreements they were expected to sign before heading to New York on Sunday for a United Nations meeting.

A senior U.S. official, speaking on condition that he not be further identified, said the Soviet agreement to separate negotiations on the Star Wars missile defense system and START talks breaks a four-year deadlock on the issue.

"Minister Shevardnadze said they had dropped their linkage between completing and implementing in START and achieving a defense in space accord," said the official.

Many lesser points of disagreement remain in the proposed 450-page START agreement, but resolution of the space defense issue could accelerate the START pact, the official said.

Until now, said the official, "the Soviets have said they would not want to enter into a START agreement until there was an understanding on defense in space."

A Soviet spokesman, Boris Malakhov, said there would be no immediate Soviet response to the American comments.

The agreement on on-site inspections would clear the way for Senate ratification of two U.S.-Soviet treaties that were signed in 1974 and 1976. The pacts have been observed by both sides, but they have never agreed on how to monitor them.

Mother charged in unattended death

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 20-year-old woman has been charged in the killing of her 10-month-old son, who was left unattended in his crib for 11 days, police said Friday.

Rosemary Almaraz Quintanilla is in the Bexar County Jail on a $100,000 bond after her arrest early Friday, authorities said. She is charged with murder in the first degree.

"Due to the decomposed state of the child, we were unable to see any trauma on the body," Lt. Albert Ortiz told the San Antonio Express-News. "We will have to wait for the autopsy to see if the baby died of starvation or neglect or was dead before it was abandoned."

The woman told police she left the baby, Robert Almaraz, alone in her apartment because her current boyfriend's family did not like the infant.

Police said they allege Quintanilla spent the 11 days the baby was left alone with her boyfriend at his parents' home.

Quintanilla is pregnant, police said, and has a 2-year-old daughter, who has been placed in the custody of the Texas Department of Human Services.

An autopsy on the infant had not been completed Friday afternoon, officials said.

The woman gave police conflicting reports about her child's death.

Ortiz said the woman first told police that her baby had been abducted more than a week ago by a gang of men as she walked on a street near her home.

She said she did not call police but spent a week looking for the child in the neighborhood.

"Investigators could see right through her story. It just didn't hold water," Ortiz said.

The woman then changed her story and said she left the baby in its crib Sept. 10 while she went to stay at her boyfriend's house, police said.

The woman told police she returned home Thursday and was shocked when an acquaintance came to her apartment and brought the decomposed body wrapped in a blanket, investigators said.

Initial study of brakes disputes driver claim

ALTON, Texas (AP) — Federal investigators initially found no evidence to support a truck driver's claim the brakes failed when his vehicle rammed a school bus into a water-filled pit, killing 20 teen-agers, an official said Friday night. "From a visual inspection, we can find nothing to indicate a failure in the braking system," said Lee Dickinson, a National Transportation Safety Board member.

Dickinson said the visual inspection was 90 percent complete and investigators must conduct other tests.

The 10-member NTSB team of investigators planned to interview truck driver Ruben Perez and his assistant, who also was in the Dr Pepper truck when it hit the bus Thursday.

Perez told Texas Department of Public Safety troopers Thursday that the brakes failed on the truck, causing him to go into the intersection and hit the bus.

The bus, carrying 86 passengers, careened into a water-filled caiche pit owned by the city of Alton and immediately sank. It was the worst bus accident in Texas and the third worst in the nation's history.

More than 10,000 people filled the Tom Landry Stadium at Mission High School on Friday night to honor the bus accident victims.

"The emptiness that we feel will not be replaced again," said Sanjuanita Zamora, Alton mayor. "A part of our lives has been taken away from us."

Investigators spent Friday documenting the scene of the crash, an intersection outside this town of 3,700, and did not find evidence of "pre-skid marks."

"We found no pre-skid marks, which means we didn't see any evidence of braking on the part of the bus and the truck," Dickinson said. He cautioned that does not necessarily mean the vehicles failed to brake.

The NTSB found drivers at the intersection can see 150 feet of the intersecting road, Dickinson said. But investigators will test further the distance drivers can see on Sunday, when they plan to use similar vehicles at the same time the accident occurred to recreate what led to the mishap. The accident happened at 7:25 a.m., officials say.

Nineteen students were killed Thursday. Another, 15-year-old Yesenia Perez of Mission, died Friday morning at Mission General Hospital. Like many other students who were trapped in the overturned and sunken bus, the girl had inhaled a lot of water, said hospital spokeswoman Linda Thayer. At least 63 people were injured after the bus tumbled into the 40-foot pit. One student and the bus driver, Gilberto Pena, 46, remained in critical but stable condition; another student was critical and unconscious at Mission General.

Truck driver Perez, 25, was treated at Mission General and released Friday.

Dickinson said urine and blood samples were taken from both drivers and said the drivers tested negatively.

Completion nears on Stacy reservoir

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District began Thursday looking toward the completion of the Stacy reservoir project.

Even as the Colorado River was being diverted through the outlet works at the base of the dam in preparation to excavating the channel for a core trench, the board appropriated $250,000 out of the contingency and improvement fund to provide for initial recreational facilities at the lake which begin impoundment next March. Already, two of three required boat ramps have been poured and the other will be installed within a fortnight.

A hearing on condemnation proceedings on little over 1,300 acres of land has been set for Oct. 23 in Paint Rock, Robert H. Moore III, legal counsel reported. This, plus two small plots, is all that remains to be acquired in the basin area.

Work on the actual closure is due to begin in early October,

General Manager O.H. Ivie, reported, and four to five months will be required for the closure, which involves about one-third of the total volume of earthen embankment. Substructure for the San Angelo-Midland/Odessa intake is completed for practical purposes. The end is in sight on most of the environmental and cultural resource mitigations, he added.

Name of the Stacy Project Fund was changed to the Water Rate Stabilization fund.

In other actions, the board appropriated $45,110 as its share of a cooperative stream flow gauging with the U.S. Geological Survey above Stacy 10-year water sales contract with Chevron-Arco was approved.

Brown and Root's time on Stacy completion, originally set for mid-October, was extended 120 days. Administration of employees health insurance was authorized.

WTC golfers play in FW tournament

Western Texas College golfers hit the links in Ft. Worth Thursday and Friday, participating in the Ft. Worth Recreational Tournament at Pecan Valley Golf Course.

The Westerners carried two teams, Green and Blue, to the event.

The two squads finished tied for fourth place with three-round totals of 918.

NMJC took first place with a score of 857 followed by Weatherford Junior College with an 889 and Grayson County Junior College at 895.

Medalist honors went to NMJC's Shane Bertsch who tallied a 212 in the tourney. Teammate Thomas Ryp took second with a 213. Individual scoring for the WTC crew was topped, on the Blue team, by Brad Stewart, who carded a 225 including an opening round 70 on the par-72 course.

Chris Mathis scored a 231 followed by Jimmy Howe at 233, Mike Montgomery at 247 and Zeke Bidwell at 153. Bidwell was injured and did not complete round two of the tournament.

For the Green team, scoring was led by David Turrentine with a 54-hole tally of 227. His best round was a one-over 73 on Thursday.

Jerry Whitten scored a 220 for the tourney followed by fellow Green teamers Brandon Benedict at 235, Jeff Baker at 235 and Tony Lara at 241.

The golf unit will be in action again Sept. 31-Oct. 2 at the Mission Invitational tournament in Odessa.

Booster club plans meeting

The Western Texas College Booster Club will host a "Meet the Athletes" night, Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the WTC cafeteria.

Rodeo Coach Bob Doty will introduce his charges, Dave Foster, WTC golf coach, is to present the golf team, men's basketball coach, Tony Mauldin, is slated to introduce the Westerners and Kelly Chadwick, women's hoops coach, will present the Dusters.

Immediately following the meeting and refreshments, the men's and women's basketball squads will stage scrimmages as a preview of the upcoming season.

Information will also be made available on the Westerners game versus Southwest Christian at Reunion Arena in Dallas. The Oct 20 contest will precede the Mavericks-Spurs tilt.

"The trip last year was a lot of fun and really gave the Westerners a good start on the season," reported club spokesperson, Shirley Fritz.

Booster club members will be on hand Tuesday to accept new memberships and renewals for the coming season.

Admission to the event is free and all sports fans are invited to attend.

The Monday lunch meeting of the WTC boosters has been cancelled for this week because of the Tuesday event.

The next meeting will be held at Golden Corral, Oct. 2 at noon.

Youth bowlers attend tournament in Austin

The Snyder Youth bowling league took a group of 17 youngsters to the state bowling tournament in Austin, recently.

The Snyder kids went sight-seeing, were hosted at picnics and made a visit to the "treaty oak."

The youth group bowls every Saturday, beginning the first week in Oct. Competition runs through March.

Several in-house tournaments are planned for the season, including some with parents and coaches.

Members of the group are not obligated to bowl every week, but to attend the state event, bowlers must have rolled 21 games over the course of the season.

The gathering features qualified coaches to aid in the development of the young people's game. For children ages 3-7, "bumper bowling" is taught.

The game has a device in the gutters to keep the ball out to help the kids knock down pins. Coaches help the younger children to learn the proper way to roll the ball with two hands before eventually becoming proficient enough to use just one.

For more information or to register a child call 573-4438 or 573-2811.

Navratilova duels Fernandez in Virginia Slims round two

DALLAS (AP) — Martina Navratilova was shut out in the second set, but composed herself to beat Mary Joe Fernandez Friday night and advance to the semifinal of the $250,000 Virginia Slims of Dallas.

Navratilova, the No. 1 seed, rallied past Fernandez to win, 7-5, 0-6, 6-1. She will meet No. 3 seed Manuela Manieeva, who nursed a bad cold through her quarterfinal defeat of Raffaella Reggi. Fernandez lobbed well and took advantage of a double fault and several mishits to sweep through the second set. However, Navratilova reapplied the pressure by breaking serve at love to begin the first set.

"My serve went, and I lost concentration," Navratilova said of the second set. "But 6-0 is not embarrassing — she's a good player. Two of my service games in that set, she played great games, and she played very well on her serve."

Monica Seles soundly defeated fellow teen-age sensation Arantxa Sanchez 6-4, 6-2, in the quarterfinals at Moody Coliseum.

The 15-year-old Seles, who is Yugoslavian but is based in Brandon, Fla., allowed Sanchez, the tournament's No. 2 seed, to hold serve only twice. Seles served three aces against the 17-year-old French Open champion, who double faulted once on break point.

"She never quits. The first set came down to a couple of points at 5-4, deuce, and I was lucky to get those points," Seles said of Sanchez. "The second set, she kind of let it go, to 4-0. Then she got it back."

Maleeva battled to a 6-1, 6-7 (9-11), 6-3 victory over Reggi of Italy.

"During the match I was feeling very sick and very tired," Maleeva said. "After the second set, I was praying I would just survive. I never thought I was going to win."

Maleeva said she had played "a few matches when I said it can't be any worse, but today it was worse."

The 30-year-old Smith, ranked 62, ousted No. 8 seed Rosalyn Fairbank of San Diego, Calif., 7-5, 7-6 (7-5).

That put Smith in a tournament semifinal for the first time in 11 months. It's the first time she's gone that far in Dallas, her hometown, since her rookie year, 1978. Smith had not won a match in this event between 1978 and 1989.

Smith, the only unseeded player in the last eight, saved eight set points in the first set — one with Fairbank serving at 5-3 and seven on her serve in an 11-deuce game at 4-5.

"I feel eager, very high intensity," Smith said. "I'm really trying to play each point instead of thinking about the ones I missed."

Rangers fall to White Sox in 'spring' tilt

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The game might have been played in March in Port Charlotte, Fla., spring training home of the Texas Rangers.

Rookie pitchers paraded in and out, with a total of 12 hurlers taking the mound. There were a total of 27 hits.

When the craziness was over, the White Sox had claimed a 9-6 decision over the Texas Rangers.

"This is what happens when Texas and Chicago play with no place to go," observed White Sox catcher Carlton Fisk of the match-up of non-contenders.

"It was like a spring training game," said Chicago manager Jeff Torborg. "You're using full rosters, lots of pitchers, that sort of thing. I'm happy with the results, I'll say that."

The White Sox used a three-run ninth keyed rookie Carlos Martinez's run-scoring double to beat the Rangers for only the third time in 11 tries this season.

Steve Lyons added a pinch single for another RBI and Robin Ventura had a sacrifice fly in the inning to make a winner of Barry Jones, 3-2, who pitched a scoreless eighth inning. Bobby Thigpen pitched the ninth for his 33rd save.

Cecilio Guante, 6-6, took the loss, yielding singles to Scott Fletcher and Ivan Calderon leading off the ninth before Jeff Russell came on in relief.

"It was the proverbial seesaw battle," said Fisk. "Everybody was getting hits, they were shuffling pitchers. It was the longest one of the year."

Fisk went three-for-four and gave Chicago a 6-5 lead in the seventh before Pete Incaviglia's solo homer in the bottom of the eighth tied the game, 6-6.

The 41-year-old Fisk is having a good year and the White Sox probably will re-sign him next season. Fisk raised his batting average to .290 Friday night. He did nothing to lower his asking price Friday.

N.M. gridder dies during warm-ups

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An Alamogordo, N.M., football player died at a hospital here Friday night after collapsing during warmups before the Tigers' football game against Ysleta High School.

Luis Garcia died at Vista Hills Medical Center at 8:21 p.m. Friday, about 45 minutes after collapsing. Witnesses said no physical contact had occurred in the drills.

It's the second death of a football player in El Paso in two days. Sean Moran, 17, a Cathedral High School football player died Thursday afternoon at Beaumont Army Medical Center of head injuries he suffered during a game against Parkland High School last week.

The cause of Garcia's death was undetermined, pending an autopsy, but "he had a history of epilepsy," Vista Hills spokeswoman Holly Kubinski said. She said Garcia had two brothers and a sister who died of seizures after similar episodes.

The game was played as scheduled. Alamogordo won, 29-0. Garcia's teammates were not told of this death until after the game. One player ran screaming from the locker room, yelling, "No, no!"

"I told them Luis had passed away and for everybody to pray for him," Alamogordo coach Darrell Bode said.

"I was in a state of shock," Bode said. "He was a fine young man, and we made the decision to continue playing because we felt Luis would've wanted us to keep playing."

Garcia's parents drove from Alamogordo to Vista Hills, where they learned of their son's death. Bode said, "We're going to talk to the kids and ask them if they want to play (next week's game with Artesia). If they don't have the mental attitude needed, we will not play the game. But these are a bunch of tough young men. I just don't know what they'll decide."

Epilepsy is a dimly understood disorder of the brain and nervous system that is marked by repeated episodes of convulsions or seizures, blackouts, unusual behavior and sensory disorders.

The seizures can be sparked by sudden stimulation, such as a loud noise or a blinking light, or they can occur for no apparent reason.

The cause of epilepsy generally is unknown, but doctors say the seizures usually can be controlled by medication.

Dr. Randy Pollet, an El Paso sports medicine specialist who is a consultant and adviser to El Paso schools, said in a Friday interview before Garcia's death that youngsters "should not be in sports ... if they have a history of major medical (problems)."

He specifically mentioned epilepsy, saying, "We wouldn't let them play."

But Bode said a team of El Paso doctors had deemed Garcia fit to play a year ago. He "checked out fine to play football," Bode said.

Hits opponent with shoe...

Irate mom aids son's cause

LONDON (AP) — A mother did with her shoe what her son couldn't do with his fists: beat up his opponent in the ring in one of boxing's most bizarre bouts.

It happened Thursday night at the Guildhall in the southern English town of Southampton. Tony McCarthy was on the ropes. Steve McCarthy had knocked him to the canvas for an eight count, and it looked like Wilson might not survive the third round.

But that's where the mother came in.

"This little old lady came from about 10 rows back," observer Chris Skudder told the mass-circulation Sun newspaper. "She managed to get through the security men and clamber into the ring. She was waving this high-heeled shoe over her head."

And with that spiked heel Minna Wilson clobbered McCarthy, opening up a blood-gushing wound that required hospital treatment and left McCarthy unwilling to continue. When McCarthy left the ring, it gave her son the decision and outraged the fans in McCarthy's hometown.

"The first thing I saw (after the knockdown) was my Mum in the ring and then everything went wild," Wilson said.

While Mrs. Wilson was escorted away by ushers, her son, from Wolverhampton in central England, was kicked and punched by the crowd, furious at the referee's decision. Wilson escaped to a dressing room, sheltered by his trainer and manager Jimmy Tibbs.

Extra police were sent in when trouble flared, but there were no arrests and no reports of injuries.

British boxing officials began an inquiry Friday into the light-heavyweight elimination bout. Both were hoping to advance to a British title fight with champion Tom Collins.

Rules state the decision cannot be overturned, but John Morris, secretary of the British Boxing Board of Control, said: "I am sure there will be a rematch and both boxers will remain title contenders."

"There is always something happening in boxing and we've had similar problems in the past, although I cannot recall a boxer's mother getting involved," Morris said.

Morris said both boxers were likely to keep their purse money but said a final ruling would be made at a meeting of the BBBC's southern area council on Oct. 4.

McCarthy, who used the ring public address system to appeal for calm, went to Wilson's dressing room after the fight to shake hands.

Jack Bishop, McCarthy's manager and promoter of the fight, said he didn't know how Wilson's mother managed to enter the ring.

"I had stationed bouncers all around the ring but she still managed to slip through somehow," he said.

Mrs. Wilson was unavailable for comment.

Oilers at home for first time in 1989 campaign

Like a Broadway-bound musical, the Houston Oilers have been trying out their act on the road. Now they open at the Astrodome with Allen Pinkett in a starring role.

Pinkett will be starting at running back in place of Mike Rozier, who sprained a knee in last week's victory over San Diego. He also is expected to be busy as a pass receiver, a dual role he relishes.

"I don't mind it; the ball's not heavy," Pinkett said.

The Oilers have had nine consecutive road games since they beat Cincinnati 41-6 in the Astrodome on Dec. 11.

Houston played its last regular-season game in 1988, two playoff games, four exhibition games and their first two 1989 regular-season games on the road. In the meantime, the Astrodome's seating capacity was expanded to 60,000.

On Sunday, they will meet the Buffalo Bills. Both teams are 1-1.

In other games Sunday, unbeaten teams meet when San Francisco plays at Philadelphia and Phoenix is at the New York Giants. In a matchup of winless teams, Washington is at Dallas.

Also, it's the New York Jets at Miami, Atlanta at Indianapolis, Minnesota at Pittsburgh, Kansas City at San Diego, the Los Angeles Raiders at Denver, Seattle at New England, New Orleans at Tampa Bay, Chicago at Detroit and Green Bay at the Los Angeles Rams.

Monday night, Cleveland is at Cincinnati.

"I've got a lot more confidence now because of what I did last year," said Pinkett, who in 1988 rushed for 513 yards and caught 12 passes for 114 yards. "The main thing is we've got a great offensive line and with the other running backs we have, we'll have success as long as we can remain intact."

Another key is quarterback Warren Moon and his pass protection. Moon was sacked seven times by Minnesota in the season opener, which the Oilers lost, but he was untouched in the victory over San Diego.

Houston holds an 18-11 lead in the rivalry, but Buffalo has won four of the last five meetings, including a divisional playoff game last year. The Oilers, however, have won the last five meetings in Houston.

The Bills will be without All-Pro linebacker Shane Conlan, who is out for six weeks with a knee injury, and wide receiver Chris Burkett, who was waived one day after he stormed out of the Buffalo locker room when he learned he had been demoted from the starting lineup.

Astros defeat Giants by two

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mark Portugal won his seventh straight decision and third without a loss over San Francisco Friday night as the Houston Astros defeated the Giants 3-1 and snapped pitcher Scott Garrelts' eight-game winning streak.

Despite the loss, the Giants reduced their magic number to win the National League West to four, as second-place San Diego lost 2-1 in Los Angeles. The third-place Astros pulled to within six games.

Portugal, 7-1, who allowed four hits in 8 2-3 innings, is 3-0 with a 1.91 ERA in three starts against the Giants. Over his last five starts, Portugal is 4-0 with a 1.40 ERA.

Dan Schatzeder got the last out to complete the combined four-hitter.

Eric Anthony hit his third homer of the season and second off Giants pitching to lead off the third and give the Astros a 1-0 lead off Garrelts, 14-4, who lost for the first time since June 25 at San Diego. Garrelts, whose major-league leading ERA increased slightly to 2.32, is now 10-2 this season at Candlestick Park.

After Anthony homered in the third, Bill Doran walked and scored after Portugal's sacrifice bunt on Gerald Young's first of two RBI singles for a 2-0 Astros lead.

The Astros added a run in the seventh when Anthony singled, was balked to second, and scored on a two-out single by Young.

The Giants scored their only run on Kevin Mitchell's RBI single in the ninth.

The Giants played the game without Will Clark, who bruised his right shin bone Thursday night in a home plate collision with Los Angeles catcher Mike Scioscia.

Ryder team drops match

SUTTON COLDFIELD, England (AP) — American hopes of regaining the Ryder Cup suffered a crippling jolt Friday when Europe swept the afternoon four-ball matches for a 5-3 overall lead.

Just as they did two years ago at Muirfield Village in Dublin, Ohio, the Europeans scored a momentum-generating 4-0 blitz of the afternoon matches to take command.

"The way we played today, there was no way anyone could beat us," Spanish ace Seve Ballesteros said.

"It's a nice position," said European captain Tony Jacklin, who is seeking a third consecutive triumph in the biennial matches the Americans ruled until four years ago. "I couldn't ask for a better position. I'm so proud of our lads. It's a marvelous thing to see when they're in full flow."

It was considerably less thrilling for American captain Ray Floyd, who watched his team take a 3-1 lead in the morning foursomes, then falter in the face of a blustery winds, a highly partisan gallery and a blizzard of European birdies.

Cardinals nab grid victory

Hermleigh's Cardinals made it two wins in a row Friday, trouncing Patton Springs 53-27. Felix Martinez, who had a hand in 66 points last week versus Southland, led the Cards with six TD passes, three to Chris Velasco, two to Andrew Sanchez and one to Robert Romero. Velasco added a scoring strike of his own getting into the Rangers' end zone with a 12 yard toss to Manuel Castillo. Martinez added a two-yard touchdown run to his total.

Bulldogs lose 46-0 to Jags

"It got out of hand real quick," said Ira football coach Don Jones after Friday's 46-0 loss to Guthrie. The Jaguars carried off the win with about two-and-a-half minutes left in the third period on the 45-point rule. Guthrie shot out to a 22-0 lead in the first quarter and never looked back. Ira hosts the Jayton Jaybirds next week. Jayton plastered Borden County 68-19 Friday night.

HJHS defeats Highland 33-8

Hermleigh's junior high Cardinals hosted Highland Thursday and coasted to a 33-8 win over the visitors. Freddie Martinez, Cardinals' running back, had a pair of TD's and Leon Moreles hit the end zone three times. Martinez scored on runs of 20 and eight yards against Highland. Moreles rambled for a pair of touchdowns on carries of 17 and three yards, and picked a fumble out of the air and raced 25 yards for his third. Joey Sanchez kicked a two-pointer to round out Hermleigh's scoring.

Bet You Didn't Know...

...It costs $40,000 to rebuild a $13,000 car, part by part.
...Health care expenses rose 10% last year, double the general inflation rate.
...Accident victims not only get a lower percentage of claim payments when they use lawyers, but must wait twice as long to receive their settlements.

These three factors: skyrocketing cost of repairing cars, repairing people and the use of attorneys to settle claims all contribute to the increasing cost of your auto insurance.

That is why it's smart to shop around for the right coverage at the right price to fit your needs. You can avoid much of the legwork by using independent agents because we represent more than one company and can get several quotes.

Our Success Depends On Your Satisfaction With Our Service.

TYLER AND FELICIA — Tyler Riggan and his goat "Felicia" were one of the charming entries in the "Critter's Parade."

FLY OR FRY — Marci Griffin and Chris Meador were encouraging their chickens to get in a flying frame of mind for the annual "Fly or Fry" chicken-flying contest.

FLOWERS — Susan Blackard and her daughters, Casey, 6, and Shana, 3, viewed the Snyder Garden Club's colorful display.

CLOSE — 5-year-old Jonathan Scalf had almost made a ringer in the United Way's ring-throwing game at the Scurry County Fair.

FAIR-GOERS — Friday night's fair crowd inside the county coliseum was big and getting bigger at 8 p.m.

MIDWAY — This ride was one of the more colorful on the county fair's midway.

Justice minister claims she was forced out

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Justice Minister Monica de Greiff resigned Friday after death threats from drug traffickers and said she quit because President Virgilio Barco thought "he needed another type of person" in the post. In an interview with the Radio Caracol network, Ms. de Greiff said she wrote a letter of resignation after being asked to do so by the president. Ms. de Greiff was Colombia's sixth justice minister in three years. "The president has every right to ask for changes when he deems appropriate," she said. She said she would have preferred to stay on the job. "I love Colombia and I think we all have to be united during these difficult times," she said, referring to the current war between the government and the nation's powerful drug traffickers.

"The president thinks he needs another type of person in the ministry and he has every right to ask for my resignation," she said.

Ms. de Greiff, a 32-year-old lawyer who accepted the post July 16, criticized "unnecessary controversy" surrounding her resignation. She had consistently denied reports she would quit, vowing to continue cracking down on the drug cartels.

"On Tuesday, the president offered me the embassy in Portugal but I think that after assuming this responsibility as minister, I shouldn't leave right now. I must stay in Colombia, even as a private citizen," she said.

Ms. de Greiff said she would travel to the United States in the next few days to be with her husband and 3-year-old son, who are there after being threatened with death by the drug cartels.

During a visit to Washington in August, Ms. de Greiff appealed to the Bush administration for $19 million in additional aid to provide security for hundreds of Colombian judges threatened with death by drug traffickers.

There were newspaper and broadcast reports that Barco would make major Cabinet changes as a result of Ms. de Greiff's resignation, and a flurry of meetings took place in the presidential palace.

The change comes amid growing tension between the Barco government and the United States over the denial or cancellation of U.S. visas to 25 lawmakers and politicians, allegedly because of links to cocaine barons.

Foreign Minister Julio Londoño Paredes wrote a letter Friday to U.S. Embassy charges d'affaire Phillip McLain asking for an explanation of the publication in the media Thursday of the names of Colombians denied entrance to the United States.

The United States Embassy has said the Privacy Act forbids it from discussing individual cases of people denied visas.

DIVIDENDS DON'T LIE, a new book written by Geraldine Weiss and Janet Lowe, makes interesting reading for value investors.

A company's ability to pay dividends and to do so consistently has always been a fundamental measure of a stock's value. Because dividends are paid from earnings, they aren't paid or increased unless a company can afford it.

If you know this much about stock market theory, DIVIDENDS DON'T LIE will be beneficial to you.

Weiss and Lowe explain the relation of dividends, book value and earnings in the evaluation of a stock. Of these, however, they give credibility only to dividends. The book suggests that earnings can be manipulated to meet the needs of a corporation and that book value can be distorted by inflation.

Both suggestions are open to rebuttal. Most analysts would disagree with the book's position on both book value and earnings because both are generally accepted as valid yardsticks of value. However, the book's position of dividends does make sense. The safest approach is to accept them as opinion.

A history of regular dividend payment indicates that a company has both good earnings and sound book value. A consistent increase of dividends generally indicates a corresponding rise in earnings. In practice, however, this shouldn't be assumed. Instead, the dividends and earnings should be double-checked to ensure they're moving together.

Of course, the most value rests in blue chip securities. To be considered a blue chip company, Weiss and Lowe state that a company must meet the following requirements. A blue chip company has: raised its dividends at least five times in the past 12 years, improved earnings in seven or more of the past 12 years, had 25 years of uninterrupted dividends, a dividend ranking of A or better by Standard & Poor, at least 5 million shares outstanding, and at least 80 institutional holders.

Weiss and Lowe suggest using dividend history to arrive at a reasonable value price. A stock's yield is figured by dividing the share price into the dividend. For example, a stock that sells at $50 a share and pays a $3 annual dividend has a 6 percent yield. Weiss and Lowe state that a stock trading within 10 percent of either its historic high or low yield is either overvalued or undervalued.

The same dividend yield technique is used to determine the overall market potential. Before the market crash of October 1987, the Dow Jones Industrial yield dropped to its lowest point since 1982. This was a dividend-yield indication that the market was overpriced and ripe for a correction.

DIVIDENDS DON'T LIE will probably never become a standard of investing because it presents too many refutable opinions as dogma. However, it does do a good job of explaining the importance of dividends and ways to evaluate them.

The book is offered by Longman Financial Services Publishing, 520 North Dearborn, Chicago, Ill., 60610.

Ira man arrested on Nolan warrant

Three people were arrested by city and county officers Friday and early Saturday, including a 22-year-old Ira man who had been sought on a Nolan County warrant as part of the three-county "drug bust" officers conducted last weekend.

A county sheriff's deputy took James Blessingame of Star Rt., Ira, into custody at a time and location that were not reported.

Blessingame was being held on a $25,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway, and he was scheduled to be transferred to Sweetwater Saturday afternoon.

A 16-year-old boy was arrested for truancy and fleeing from a peace officer at 3:49 p.m. Friday in the 3200 Block of Houston Ave., and a 24-year-old man was arrested for public intoxication at 1:14 a.m. Saturday in the 2900 Block of Ave. G.

Irving Berlin dies at 101

NEW YORK (AP) — Songwriter Irving Berlin, who celebrated his adopted homeland with memorable melodies and simple but heartfelt lyrics in such standards as "God Bless America" and "White Christmas," died Friday. He was 101.

Berlin died Friday night in his sleep, said Alton Peters, his son-in-law.

"Berlin has no place in American music. He is American music," said the late composer Jerome Kern.

Berlin, along with 11 other American immigrants, received a medal from former President Reagan during the Statue of Liberty centennial celebrations in July.

Berlin, whose musical career began when he got a job as a singing waiter, wrote nearly 1,000 songs, from his first big hit, "Alexander's Ragtime Band" in 1911, to "Puttin' on the Ritz," which was revived in 1983 by the Dutch singer Taco and was a hit on the rock charts.

Officers work several wrecks

A pickup truck had to be towed from the scene of a two-vehicle collision at 10:27 a.m. Friday at 25th St. and Ave. Q.

A 1978 Chevrolet driven by Dan R. Hicks Jr. of 3726 Austin Ave. was in collision with a 1982 Chevrolet pickup driven by Deanna M. Holladay of 3015 38th St., after which the pickup had to be towed.

A three-vehicle collision was investigated at 1:45 p.m. Friday in the 3600 Block of College Ave.

Police said a 1982 Chevrolet station wagon driven by Rosalina L. Guzman of 1001 26th St. was in collision with a 1984 Cadillac driven by Necie M. Jones of Rt. 2 and a 1986 Chevrolet pickup driven by Todd L. Perry of 4500 El Paso Ave.

At 3:59 p.m. Friday in the 3100 Block of 37th St., a 1982 GMC pickup driven by Vicki S. Best of 2100 35th St. struck a parked 1987 Pontiac TransAm owned by Janice Brown of Box 378.

VCR stolen

Police Friday investigated a report of a stolen VCR at Perry's Variety Store in Highland Shopping Center.

Ophelia Pesina reported the theft at 10:53 a.m.

In an early Saturday incident, Kenneth May told officers at 1:14 a.m. that someone had broken down the store room door inside City Automatic Laundry at 2703 Ave. Q.

Laundry owner Gary Bingham was summoned to the scene, and he told officers that nothing had apparently been stolen.

Fire call

Firemen worked for about 45 minutes to put out a grass fire two miles west of Snyder Friday afternoon.

The call to an area across West 30th St. from the county rodeo grounds came in at 1:40 p.m., and the firefighters returned to the station an hour later.

Roll-over injures 4 early Saturday

Four people were injured, although none seriously, in a one-vehicle roll-over at 9 a.m. Saturday seven miles south of Snyder off the Big Spring Hwy.

The Department of Public Safety said a 1986 GMC Jimmy half-ton pickup truck driven by 16-year-old Amy Shoultz of 3604 44th St. was southbound when she reached into the floorboard to retrieve something she had dropped and the pickup went off the west side of the road.

A DPS trooper said she then over-corrected and the vehicle went back across the road, off the east side and through a fence and some mesquite trees before overturning once in a pasture.

Amy Shoultz, 12-year-old Susan Shoultz and 41-year-old Cynthia Shoultz, all of 3604 44th, and 12-year-old Kristi Sorrells of Ira were taken by private vehicle to Cogdell Memorial Hospital, where they were treated for bruises and abrasions and released.

The trooper said damages to the fence, owned by Jess Everett, had not been estimated.

Scurry County Folks...

By Bob Campbell

Lewis Helm of Ira has gotten a new lease on life, but what that required was nothing less than a new heart.

The 60-year-old manager of Ira Water Supply says the medical term for his condition is "a word as long as that table," but basically, "my heart was drying up" and he only had a year to 18 months to live when he and his wife, Margie, went to Houston to await a transplant operation last Oct. 23.

He has resumed operating the municipal water company — a concern that was left to his son, Jerry, and daughter-in-law, Pam, during the seven months that he and Margie waited in a Houston motel.

He finally underwent the surgery at Methodist Hospital there on June 20.

"The boy that donated had a blood vessel in his head burst," Helm said. "He was 32 years old. You have got to have everything, heart size, blood type. . . That's what makes it so hard.

"If you came home and one came in, there is no way you could get down there. They don't like for a heart to be out over four hours. I was lucky to get mine from Galveston," because of the interconnectedness of medical centers in Galveston and Houston.

Helm did return to Snyder for gall bladder surgery in the spring, but the Helms went back to Houston immediately afterwards. They finally came home for good on Aug. 2.

"I've been feeling great," he said in a Wednesday interview at the Snyder Daily News. "I haven't felt this good in the last five years. I get around real good, and I don't have any shortness of breath like I used to."

Helm said one inescapable fact of having received a heart transplant is that "you're never dismissed from the hospital," although he only has to go back for check-ups once a month for a few months, then once every two months and, finally, once a year.

He is required, however, to take his anti-rejection medicine at specific times each morning and evening, to keep his body from rejecting his new heart.

The medicine costs $190, at a discount rate, for a bottle that lasts 10 to 12 days. "It is something that is expensive, but you've just got to figure what your life is worth," he said.

Helm was a pumper for Newmont Oil Co. for 18 years, until the heart trouble that had started around 1980 forced him off the job in 1986.

He has become an advocate of organ transplants, saying there are always "more people waiting than there are donors" for Houston heart transplants.

He also advocates any type of organ transplants that save lives, saying one person with healthy organs could save the lives of as many as four people.

The man whose heart was donated to Helm had not left an organ donor's agreement, but his parents agreed to the transplant after consulting with attending physicians, he said.

"If this country could just get more donors, it would save a lot of lives," he said. "You would do it if you ever had to go through it or your folks had to.

"You're done dead, so you're saving somebody's life. It's a great thing."

Helm said he realizes that some people have qualms about donating their organs, "but I'm different because I've done been through it."

He has not been doing much recently, "just piddling is about all," because he is supposed to take it easy for six months after the surgery.

He visits a doctor here once a week.

He woke up from his operation in good spirits, with his wife, son and daughter-in-law at his bedside.

"I felt great," he said. "I felt so lucky that I was alive. There was not a lot of discomfort, but there are lots of tubes. I couldn't talk because there was a tube down my throat."

Helm said his Houston doctors were not able to give him a prediction as to what his life expectancy might be now.

"They can't tell you how long you can live because they're coming up with better medicine all the time," he said. "The oldest one is a man overseas who has had it 21 or 22 years, but they can't tell you five, six or seven years.

"We saw a 24-year-old girl down there who got one (a heart transplant) in six days. But the age doesn't make any difference.

Your heart can go bad at any time."

The Helms have one grandchild, a grandson.

Editor's Note: SDN reporter Bob Campbell filled in for regular Scurry County Folks columnist Shirley Gorman, who is out this week.

Couple exchanges vows in garden ceremony

Kimberly Michelle Burton and Derwin Glynn Price were united in marriage at 7 p.m. Aug. 19 in the garden of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L.M. Hatcher. Randy Gressett, former youth director of First Baptist Church, officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Burton and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Price.

A brass arch was placed in front of a garden wall covered with cascading natural English ivy. The arch was decorated with greenery and pink carnations. On each side stood large white wicker baskets of pink gladioli.

A white memory candle, encased in a glass hurricane lamp and used in the bride's grandparents' wedding, was atop a brass pedestal decorated with greenery and pink roses. The arch and floral baskets were done by Travis Flowers.

The only addition to the lush green trees, shrubs and other blooming flowers in the garden were large pink and gray bows atop English ivy, placed in the front of the Hatcher home with ribbon swags marking the pathway to the registration table, the patio and each aisle seat in the yard.

Galen Price, brother of the groom, provided sound and music for the ceremony. "Somewhere Out There" was played while the couple's parents and grandparents were being seated. While the minister, groom and groomsmen entered, "Lost in Your Eyes" was played.

Denise Merritt sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the lighting of the memory candle. Betty Watts was the keyboard player.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a teal-length dress of satin and lace. The satin sculptured bodice and softly gathered skirt were overlaid with lace. The lace overlay featured a high front neckline and capped sleeves. The neckline, Basque waist and high-low hemline were accented with delicate scalloped lace. The low V-back was accented with three satin bows.

Her waist-length veil was topped with a satin bow and flower with pearls, beads and lily-of-the-valley cascade.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of pink lilies, pink tea roses, white miniature carnations, baby's breath and needlepoint ivy. Streamers of pink and white bridal satin ribbon completed the bouquet.

Representing something old were diamonds from her maternal grandmother, the late Minnie Beall, made into her wedding ring, and a white Bible carried by her other grandmother, Teddie Hatcher, in her own wedding. Something new was her wedding dress while something borrowed was her grandmother's pearl necklace. She wore a blue garter.

The bride presented pink roses to her mother and the groom's mother during the ceremony.

Janna Davis of Snyder served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Lynda Murphy of Anson and Tracey Parks. Each wore a street-length floral print dress with a round neckline. The criss-cross surplice back bodice dipped to a V with a soft gathered skirt.

They also wore pale pink wedge heels.

The bridal attendants carried field bouquets of lilies, English ivy, carnations, and sweetheart roses tied with pink ribbons. They wore matching hair combs.

Barry Davis was best man. Groomsmen were John Murphy of Anson and Whit Parks. Ushers were Aaron Burton of Wichita Falls, nephew of the bride, and Johnny Brown, cousin of the bride.

The groom and male attendants were attired in gray Wrangler jeans, pink long-sleeved Oxford shirts and roper style boots. The father of the bride wore the same attire, topped with a gray blazer.

Julie Brown, cousin of the bride, registered guests. She presided over a table covered with a mauve ruffled tablecloth and white lace overlay, adorned with the wedding book, mauve plume pen and a gray and mauve floral arrangement.

A reception was held in the east end of the garden at the wedding location. The bride's table was placed in front of a towering pine tree and covered with a pink linen cloth with a white two-tiered lace skirt. At each corner, large pink and gray bows with streamers adorned the table.

The bows were connected with pink and gray ribbon swag drapes. They continued the decor of the home and wedding area of the garden, and were designed and created by The Pleasure's Mine.

The bridal bouquet served as the centerpiece of the table. A crystal punch bowl and dishes of mints, made by the groom's mother, also adorned the table.

The wedding cake was a lavish three-tiered confection featuring a unique design of hearts and roses in white butter cream, embellished with bells and doves. White pillars with cherubs separated the top layer. The cake was topped with three satin bells, white hearts, pink flowers and net.

White pillars held the bridal confection over a lighted fountain flowing with pink water in three levels. English ivy was nestled at the base. The cake was designed and created by the groom's mother.

Jessica Burton of Wichita Falls and Carol Kerrick of Ft. Worth, sisters-in-law of the bride, along with Denise Merritt, served at the bride's table.

A pink linen cloth with gray lace overlay covered the groom's table. A large sculpture of watermelon filled with a variety of fruit and melon pieces served as the centerpiece. Cheeseballs, chicken drumettes and other appetizers were also served. Rachel Price, sister-in-law of the groom, served at the groom's table.

The bride is a 1985 graduate of Snyder High School and a 1987 graduate of Western Texas College, with an associate's degree in management. She is currently employed with C.R. Anthony's.

The groom is a 1983 Snyder High School graduate, and plans to graduate in May from Western Texas College with a degree in golf course and landscape technology.

Following a honeymoon trip to Abilene and Lake Brownwood, the couple is at home in Snyder.

DIET-HEART CONNECTION

There is a growing perception by many Americans that links diet with heart disease problems.

More people are eating more selectively in an attempt to reduce blood cholesterol levels.

They believe the way to a healthy heart is through the stomach, and are attempting to reduce the risk of heart disease.

The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute and other related groups are continuing their educational efforts on behalf of healthier hearts.

The institute suggests these tips to lower blood cholesterol and reduce risk of heart disease:

—Less than 30 percent of total daily calories should come from fat, and less than 10 percent of calories should come from saturated fat.

—No more than 10 percent of the 30 percent of calories should come from polyunsaturated fat, and 10 percent or more of the total fat calories should come from monounsaturated fat sources.

—Between 50 and 60 percent of daily calories should come from carbohydrates.

—A daily diet should contain less than 300 milligrams of cholesterol, and calorie intake should be adjusted to achieve or maintain a desirable weight.

—While pure protein or carbohydrates contain four calories per gram, pure fat contains nine calories per gram. Alcohol provides seven calories per gram.

Food and Drug Administration health and diet surveys conducted in 1986 showed that 43 percent of the people who responded believed that fats and fatty foods caused heart disease and 40 percent said cholesterol caused heart disease. In a 1988 survey, 55 percent said fats and fatty foods caused heart disease and 45 percent indicated cholesterol was a risk factor.

People wanting to have their blood cholesterol checked may have tests prescribed by a physician and performed in a laboratory meeting standards set by Centers for Disease Control.

New, portable cholesterol screening equipment is available at pharmacies, hospitals, health fairs and other locations to make blood cholesterol measurements readily available, rapid and quit affordable.

The Home Economics Committee of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is conducting a program on "Wellness at the Worksites," which includes cholesterol screening. If interested, call the Extension office at 573-5423.

Couple married in candlelight rites

ROTAN — Before the candlelit altar of the First Baptist Church of Rotan, Laura Louise Gruben became the bride of Capt. Jon Carl Dodson of Marguette, Mich., at 7 p.m. Sept. 2.

The full military, double-ring ceremony was performed by uncles of the bride, the Rev. Edgar Jones, minister of senior adults at the First Baptist Church of Graham, and the Rev. T.O. Upshaw, interim pastor of First Baptist Church of Snyder.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Gruben of Rotan, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Sue Shelburne of Ballinger. The groom is the son of retired Col. and Mrs. Carl E. Dodson of Albany, Ga.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a dress designed by Barbara Wheat of King's Court Originals in Eastland. The embroidered lace with hand-sewn seed pearl bodice was accented with double-layer tulle sleeves edged with white satin ribbon. The double-layered tulle skirt edged with white satin ribbon lay over a white taffeta underskirt which fell to a cathedral-length, lace-edged train.

The bride's shoulder-length veil of finest illusion tulle brought by the bride from Belgium, was trimmed with white satin ribbon and fell from a tulle rose motif.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, gardenias and stephanotis on a white, satin Bible that her mother carried in her own wedding.

Matron of honor was Regina Sheppar of Lubbock. Bridesmaids were Carrie Atkins of Lubbock and Tina Blair of Midland, cousins of the bride, along with Linda Hudgins of Houston, Pam Krauss of Plano and Karen Phillips of Los Calinas. The attendants wore matching maize, taffeta dresses featuring Victorian bodices with stand-up ruffles on the shoulders accented with cabbage roses and balloon skirts.

Flower girls Tara Blair of Midland and Lauren Kennedy of Rotan, cousins of the bride, wore gowns fashioned specifically by Mrs. Norvelle Kennedy to complement the bride's gown. The abbreviated taffeta bodices were covered with rows of ruffled Alencon lace, embroidered bead-ed lace with white satin ribbon and were sprinkled with hand-sewn seed pearls.

Floor-length, full-gathered, double-layered tulle skirts over lace-edged taffeta underskirts were edged with white satin ribbon. The double ruffles on the bottom of the puffed tulle sleeves repeated the ribbon motif.

Beaded lace nosegays with bows and long satin streamers fell from bodice to ankle. Satin ballet shoes, lace gloves and ribbon bedecked baskets with white flower petals completed their attire.

Byron and Katie Kennedy of Rotan, cousins of the bride, were candlelighters.

Lt. Eric Dodson of Columbia, S.C., served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Capt. Greg Dodson of Enid, Okla., brother of the groom; Capt. Wilmer T. Jones III of Abilene, Capt. Alan Perdigo of State College, Penn.; Capt. Robert Stack of Fort Worth; and Capt. Fred Stone of Abilene.

Lamar Moree III of Albany, Ga., served as ring bearer.

Ushers were Greg Gruben of Midland and Maury Gruben of Plano, cousins of the bride; and Tony Gruben of Lubbock and Todd Gruben of College Station, brothers of the bride.

Brian and Christopher Atkins of Lubbock, cousins of the bride, were greeters.

Nuptial music was presented by organist Barbara Perkins of Abilene. Vocal soloist, Susan Thomas of Lubbock, sang "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us," "My Treasure," "Not To Us O, Lord," and "The Lord's Prayer." Vocal soloist Bobby Gruben sang "Bless This House." Ken Johnson of Lubbock was trumpet soloist.

Tony and Todd Gruben gave Bible readings. Misty Gruben of Rotan, cousin of the bride, and Elizabeth Bondy of College Station registered guests.

After the bride and groom left the church through a sabre arch formed by the groomsmen, the wedding guests followed the couple to Cross Roads Baptist Church fellowship hall for a lovely buffet reception. Music was presented by harpist Kim Gorman of Snyder.

Serving the white bride's cake, designed by Mary Ann Stewart of Stamford, cousin of the bride, were Kathy McCombs of Sweetwater and Evette Gruben of Abilene, cousins of the bride. Sally Gruben served at the groom's table while Carye Gruben of Lubbock presided at the punch bowl.

MRS. JON CARL DODSON (Harley Bynum Photography)

After the bride and groom received guests, the couple cut the bride's cake with the sabre. Capt. Dodson was awarded for being distinguished student of Virginia Military Institute.

The bride graduated from Rotan High School, received a bachelor's degree in accounting from Texas Tech University and completed a master's degree in business administration from Hankamer School of Business at Baylor University.

The groom is a graduate of Rutherford High School in Panama City, Fla. He received a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering from Virginia Military Institute, completed pilot training at Reese A.F.B. in Lubbock and received a master's degree in public administration from Northern Michigan University. He serves as the T-37 Detachment Commander at K.I. Sawyer A.F.B. in Gwinn, Mich.

The couple will reside in Marguette, Mich., following a honeymoon trip to Scotland.

Of the 23 countries of Latin America and the Caribbean for which 1987 data is available, 12 reduced their national government deficit, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. One country, the Bahamas, maintained its same low deficit of 0.5 percent in relation to its gross domestic product, while Paraguay continued to show a surplus.

Company talks

WILTON, Conn. (AP) — A survey of people recently involved in a company move shows that a majority (43 percent) were originally told of the move individually by their manager.

According to the PHH Homequity Inc. survey of 1,000 employees involved in a group move, 34 percent were informed through a company meeting, 12 percent heard through rumor and 11 percent were informed by a department meeting or newsletter.

On Aug. 14, 1945, President Harry S. Truman announced that Japan had unconditionally surrendered, ending the hostilities of World War II. Capitulation came several days after the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and after Emperor Hirohito called upon Japan's war council to give up.

Teens want washers & toasters in first home

CHICAGO (AP) — Home economics students age 12 to 18 rated clothes washers as the first major appliance they would buy when establishing a household, according to a nationwide survey developed by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers and FORECAST For The Home Economist magazine.

Students were asked to assume that their home would already have a refrigerator and range-oven. No. 2 choice for a major appliance was a clothes dryer for girls and a microwave oven for boys.

Both male and female teens rated toasters as the first portable appliance they would purchase. The second-place favorite in that category for girls was a hair dryer and for boys, a blender. Both sexes agreed that an iron was third.

Luck is part of it

By James Jacoby

Austrian experts Jan Fucik and Fritz Kubak won the Icelandair open pairs event last February in Reykjavik by a very wide margin. Although the winners were experts, the wide margin tells us they had a healthy serving of luck. Today's hand is a good example.

The opening two-heart bid was a special opening, showing a long heart suit and four clubs, as well as opening-bid values. Kubak, South, doubled for takeout and then bravely bid four spades when the bidding got back to him at the four-heart level. West doubled and led the queen of hearts. Declarer won dummy's ace and played a club. East won the ace and could now defeat the contract by playing back a diamond. West would take the ace and play another diamond, allowing East to ruff with the spade king. Instead East inexplicably played another heart. Kubak ruffed and cashed the ace of spades, dropping the now useless king from East. Declarer now played diamonds. West won the ace and played a club to South's king. Now came the high diamonds, a diamond ruff and a heart ruff. When declarer played his last diamond, the only trick that the defense could still take was the spade jack.

Certainly the defense would have been easier if West had selected the jack of clubs for his opening lead, but he can't be faulted for leading partner's primary suit. There was really no excuse for East not to lead his singleton diamond when he got the chance.

Dear Abby

Reader Puts a Pox on Those Who Would Deny Use of Pot

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1989 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Your anti-marijuana column proves that there is still no shortage of hysterical, unreasonable busybodies who would impose their will on everyone else. Sorry, Abby, but what I put into my own body is not your business, not William Bennett's, not anyone's business but mine. If I drive while intoxicated, or show up at work intoxicated, then the government or my employer has legitimate reason for intervention — otherwise, forget it. And, please, Abby, learn to separate fact from fantasy. Like any drug, marijuana can be abused, but it is certainly less harmful than alcohol or tobacco. As for being illegal, that is a situation which will in time be remedied.

The drug war will continue to tear our country apart until people understand that no one has the right, or the power, to tell others what they may consume. And until you accept this, you will be part of the problem. JOHN deLAUBENFELS, DULUTH, GA.

DEAR JOHN: You rattled the wrong cage when you said that what you put into your own body is not my business. When what you put into your body alters your behavior so that you become a threat to my body, then it becomes my business.

DEAR ABBY: When my mother broke up her home 25 years ago, she gave me her sterling silver flatware and tea set. My mother, who is now 92 years old and in full command of all her mental faculties, recently told me that she wants her silver given to "Jennifer," my eldest daughter who was married last month.

This request came as a total surprise to me, as I had planned to enjoy using it for the rest of my life. Jennifer never mentioned the silver to me. However, I thought it was rather odd that when she selected her china and crystal, she didn't select a silver pattern. Now I suspect that my mother must have promised Jennifer my silver, and is probably expecting me to give it to her now.

I don't want to cause my mother any embarrassment, but I now find myself in a very awkward position with my daughter. Kindly advise me. DELAWARE DILEMMA

DEAR DILEMMA: The silver is yours; it was given to you 25 years ago with no strings attached. Since it's a family heirloom, you would probably want your oldest daughter to have it one day, but you, and you alone, should decide when. (You may prefer to leave it to her in your will.) Don't feel pressured to give it to Jennifer now because she neglected to select a silver pattern in anticipation of getting yours.

My advice: Enjoy using the silver. Tell your daughter that she's welcome to "borrow" it whenever she wishes, and "one day" it will probably be hers.

DEAR ABBY: I have read you for years, but this is my first time to write to you. Abby, why do people promise to write, to call, to send pictures and to visit, and never make good their promises? This is especially sad for older shut-ins. The mailbox is empty, the phone never rings, and their days are long and lonely.

It is so much better not to make promises to older people — then surprise them with your thoughtfulness.

My mother is 89. Four of her friends have promised to visit her "soon" — well, it's been a year since she's seen any of them. How can people be so unkind? Mom called today, asking me to pick up a birthday card for one of these forgetful friends.

I would love to see this in the paper.

NONA IN HAWAII

DEAR NONA: Some folks need a little nudge. Write again next week, and let me know if our nudge was effective.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Professor studies slipping, falling

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Tom Leamon not only tolerates slip-ups in his basement laboratory, he provokes them.

It's all for science: Leamon, head of Texas Tech University's industrial engineering department, is a pioneer in the study of slipping and falling.

"No one has any idea why or how people fall," Leamon said. "You know it's a slip. You don't know why."

Leamon slipped into the subject a couple of years ago when he learned that about 4,000 people die each year in the United States as a result of falling in public places such as supermarkets, fast-food restaurants and city streets. Falls are the second-leading cause of accidental death in the United States, after traffic accidents.

Before he can figure out how to prevent falls, Leamon needs to find out what makes people slip and how they react when they do. It's not as easy as it sounds, because walking is an extremely complex activity, difficult to analyze.

With a $300,000 federal grant, Leamon equipped his basement lab with three video cameras plugged into a minicomputer that records 200 times a second what people do when they slip and fall.

Test subject: — graduate students who are paid $10 an hour for being the fall guys — wear a harness connected to a revolving mechanical arm. They also wear reflective ping-pong balls taped to their right shoulder, elbow, wrist, hip, knee, ankle and foot.

The subjects walk in circles for two hours at a time, repeatedly crossing about 15 feet of slick steel plate placed in front of the cameras. When the subjects slip, the cameras sense where the ping-pong balls are in three-dimensional space — in other words, how the body is moving as it falls.

A "force plate" under the floor — a distant cousin of a bathroom scale, but much more sophisticated — senses how much force the subject's foot is exerting downward, sideways, forward and back.

Boarding homes...

Alternate care for elderly

McGREGOR, Texas (AP) — Senior citizens who don't want to live alone and do not require nursing home care have a new alternative.

Called a board and care home, the home-style facility allows elderly people to rent a private room yet enjoy the advantages of a family setting, such as eating meals with other residents.

Cooking is done for them, unless they'd like to help. The senior citizens may provide their own furniture for their room.

Board and care is a fairly new concept here but has been popular in Europe for some time. Floyd and Bonnie Norton have converted their large home in McGregor to accommodate four boarders.

"This is my way of beating the 'empty nest syndrome,'" said Mrs. Norton, the mother of five grown children. "It would be nice to have a house full again."

The Nortons cannot provide nursing care but say their home is for elderly people in reasonably good health who do not want to live alone or in a large facility.

"A lot of older people don't want to live with their children," Mrs. Norton said. "This would be perfect for them."

The home can also be used for respite care for families caring for older relatives. For instance, if the family went on vacation, the elderly relative could move in for a few weeks.

Mrs. Norton, the self-described "house mouse" and perpetual hostess, said the board and care homes she has visited are nice, family-style homes.

The board and care concept offers both companionship and privacy.

"I want them to retain as much of their independence as they can," Mrs. Norton said. "That's important for their mental health."

The stimulation of living around other people may help prevent an older person's health from declining, she said.

"Often they don't like to eat alone," she said. "They don't have much of an appetite when they're by themselves."

Hazel Limback, director of aging services for the Heart of Texas Council of Governments, said board and care is a new idea in this area.

"I think there is a need for alternative lifestyles for the elderly," she said. "This is just one more option."

As yet, few regulations exist governing such facilities. "Homes are being requested to register with the State Department of Aging," Ms. Limback said. "No law requires this. It's at the option of the facility to do so."

The Nortons say they have voluntarily registered their home.

The Nortons say that should a resident fall ill, there will be a two-week grace period. If after that time, they and the resident's family decide the elderly resident's medical needs cannot be met, the family will be asked to move the resident.

Fed look-alike mail crackdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — An elderly couple in Texas is invited to join a $50,000 "Social Security" sweepstakes.

An 81-year-old retiree in New Jersey receives an envelope from the "IRS" asking her to donate money to a group opposing a new Medicare law.

A California couple gets a "warrant of appearance" to claim a prize from the "Department of FBI."

Official-looking letters from official-sounding groups with no connection to the government are under scrutiny this year by members of Congress hoping to crack down on legal but potentially misleading mailings.

Direct-mail schemes involving "look-alike" letters and "sound-alike" organizations range from real estate investment deals to sale of services that already are available for free from the government.

The "FBI" letter, for example, was from the Fountains Bureau of Invitations and invited families to visit a California resort. The "IRS" designation signified only that the letter came from a non-profit group with a particular Internal Revenue Service classification.

Many look-alike mailings fall into a "gray area" — they confuse the recipient about their origin but are still legal, said Thomas W. McClure of the Postal Inspection Service. "Something needs to be done to make sure the public gets a clearer interpretation of what they're receiving."

The Direct Marketing Association, a trade group, tries to police itself and deter unethical solicitations, but look-alike mailings "have been a consistent problem over the past couple of years," said spokeswoman Lorna Christie.

The House in July approved legislation that would require private mailings bearing official-looking emblems, titles and insignia to include prominent disclaimers of any government affiliation. Similar legislation is pending in the Senate, with committee action likely this fall.

The legislation's supporters include the American Association of Retired Persons, which says "look-alike" mailings often target the elderly and prey on their concerns about the well-being of Social Security and Medicare. Some come in envelopes similar to those containing Social Security checks and bear typical government messages like "Buy and Hold U.S. Savings Bonds."

"There seems to be no end to people's creativity in finding some way to make money at other people's expense," said the AARP's Robin Talbert. "People get confused about exactly what it is they're getting."

Groups charge fees ranging up to $40 to help married women change the name on their Social Security records, get Social Security numbers for children or obtain personal earnings records. In many cases, recipients are unaware the services are available at no cost through SSA.

Thursday's school bus accident near Mission brought back memories of a similar tragedy 11 years ago near Snyder when four McCaulley High School students were killed while traveling to a basketball tournament in Hermleigh.

While the Dec. 8, 1978 wreck 12 miles west of Roby did not involve as many students, it was devastating to the small community of McCaulley and sent shock waves throughout the area.

Twenty-five people, mostly young high school students, were involved when an oil well servicing truck heading south on Farm to Market 611 failed to stop at an intersection and collided with a school bus traveling west on Hwy. 180. The collision left four dead and nine in critical condition — at least two of them for months afterward. All but one passenger on the bus were admitted to hospitals.

Ambulances and private vehicles carried victims from the frigid scene for over an hour. Funeral homes offered vehicles to help transport the injured, who were carried to at least four different hospitals. Eight were taken to Cogdell Memorial, where, as in other hospitals involved, doctors and nurses labored with earnest to minimize the severity of the injuries.

SDN Opinion Page

Columns - Cartoons - Look Back - Letters - Quotables

At one time, over 100 people were at the site, many of them parents and friends who had rushed to the scene as word of the accident spread.

During it all, a light snow-fell, seemingly oblivious to the tragedy. The impact of the wreck became even more obvious with time, as McCaulley began the long, slow process of trying to rebuild and families and friends fought with ever-present memories of children and friends who would never return home.

Meanwhile, area communities worked to help ease the pain. Funds were established for wreck victims and their families at several financial institutions throughout a 100-mile radius.

One of the most heartwarming events occurred in the community of Hobbs, which responded to the accident by hosting a McCaulley Benefit Basketball Tournament, inviting the same teams McCaulley was never able to entertain.

McCaulley had scheduled its tournament for the weekend of Dec. 14-16. But hosting a tournament a week following the disaster was a chore McCaulley could not even consider, emotionally or physically. Instead, Hobbs took over, and the response was remarkable.

Volunteers, many from Hobbs and others from Snyder, Roby, Rotan, Ira, Hermleigh, Sweetwater, Hamlin, Guthrie and Paint Rock helped with the concession stand or brought food. The tournament generated over $1,000 the first day. Offers of help and donations continued to pour in throughout the tournament.

Though the McCaulley school bus accident drew focus statewide, it may not always be remembered outside West Texas. In the cold terms of casualties, it doesn't compare with the last Thursday's accident in Hidalgo County in which 19 were killed; the Sept. 29, 1959 schoolbus wreck in Delta County in which eight were killed; the Feb. 6, 1973 collision in Lamb County in which seven died or the May 4, 1950 accident in Madison County that also claimed seven lives.

But McCaulley will never forget. And Snyder will never forget. And neither will the victims, or the hundreds of families and friends.

McCaulley has since discontinued school at the high school level, as has Hobbs. But 11 years later, the memories are still present. The tragedy at Mission brings it all back.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

According to the recent completion of a 10-year research study, the results of which were made public on "Good Morning, America," school teachers as a general rule have the unconscious but pronounced habit of treating their boy students differently from their girl students.

Researchers found that boys received much more feedback — both positive and negative — than girls. Their questions were answered more succinctly, they were given more attention, and greater effort was taken to work with them individually. It made no difference whether the teacher was male or female.

Several causes for this were found. One was that boys, in general, tend to demand attention more than girls. They are more vocal about speaking out and tend to demand answers to their questions — or attention of both positive and negative types. Girls tend to sit back and quietly wait their turn. The main type of positive attention girls tend to receive, according to the study, was praise on the basis of appearance — either personal grooming or the neatness of papers.

One surprise of the study was the discovery that even feminist teachers tended to make this unconscious mistake. One teacher who allowed herself to be observed was found to be one of the worst "offenders." Not only did she teach secondary math — a highly important course for both boys and girls — but she was president of her local chapter of the National Organization for Women. While watching videotapes of herself, she confessed to being "humiliated" by what the tapes demonstrated.

Another finding of the study was that girls who attended all-girl schools tended to do better over-all than their coed counterparts, since there was no classroom competition from boys.

NONE of the teachers who had been observed WANTED to treat their students differently based on sex. They were all completely unaware of it. Yet, there is good news: principals who cooperated in this consciousness-raising study found that teachers could completely alter their classroom behavior within only a couple of days — once they became aware of what was happening.

The researchers concluded that there are a number of things which can be done to alter this unfortunate trend. Parents, for one thing, need to be aware of it, especially those who have daughters. "Girls who learn that education is not a spectator sport," said one researcher. Involvement with our children's classroom teacher and school can make a difference in this as in everything else. Also, we can teach our daughters to speak up, to be assertive, to get that teacher's attention whenever it is necessary. This can be done without offensive or disrespectful behavior.

My daughter, who is now in fourth grade, once complained for months about a teacher who, though she was a straight-A student, never called on her for the answer, never allowed her to do extra projects even when she begged, and when she finished her work early, simply told her to hush and read a book. I made an appointment with the teacher, found her to be receptive and eager to help. Soon Jessica was happily buried in the library doing all sorts of reports and what-not. She still wasn't called on as much as she would have liked, but she was stimulated to learn, which was important, and her attitude overall improved tremendously.

Most teachers welcome parental involvement as long as it isn't hostile or accusatory. Get to know your child's teacher and principal. Question your kids each day about school. At the first sign of trouble, visit the teacher and find out what you can do to help.

And for heaven's sake, tell your little girls to speak up. Their future — and ours — depends on it.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

I just have an old fashion high school education so I would like for the Commissioners Court to explain to me, and if I can't understand it, maybe some of the taxpayers can.

Back when Scurry County had only the main highways running through it, the rest of the roads were county maintained, with one commissioner and two hands in each precinct. This made a total of 12 hands to maintain these roads.

The State of Texas came along and paved half of these roads (Farm to Market). They are maintained by the State. Now, the county has over twice as many hands and equipment to work half the amount of roads. "Why is this?"

Now concerning the rollback, most people are saying if we vote to roll back the taxes it will cut some of the social benefits so our judge says, "Now doesn't that tug at your heart strings?"

This is what they want you to think so they can keep you from seeing the real monster. The real monster is the other end of the stick, which is the white collar jobs the county has made over the past 40 years. They should let about half of them go.

I guess I shouldn't say anything else about the poor little old hospital. I will make a deal: when they quit, I will quit. I see where they spent another $31,000 of our taxpayers' money just so the TDC prisoners can get them some new false teeth.

A.L. (Jack) Dunn

To the editor,

Fall is here again and for many of us in Snyder, fall means that it is SOCCER time!

We, the parents and board members, want to be the local pushers. The pusher of grass, SOCCER FIELD GRASS.

This fall is Snyder Soccer's ninth year and soccer in Snyder has come a long way since those early days, from rough uneven fields, filled with weeds and grass burrs, temporary goals, temporary concession stands and no restroom facilities.

Today our fields of grass are beautiful, lush and green. We have a new concession stand and we now rent Can-Do-Porta-Potties each season.

Snyder Soccer's biggest expense is the grass. Over one-third of our budget goes to the maintenance of the fields, such as top soil grading, sprinkler system, grass seed, fertilizer and weed killer. Our field managers, Gerald Corkran and Dale Johnston, have spent many hours maintaining our fields of grass without one penny paid in salary.

Our overhead for the fields of grass is many times more than the other grass pushers. The parents' and players' investment is only pennies each time they use our grass. Our side effects are more positive, productive and longer lasting. Our grass helps develop strong bodies, a quick thinking mind and learning to work as a team.

Our fields of grass are the best around. If you have ever seen or played in Lubbock, Abilene or Midland, you would know what I mean. When our players fall, they come back up with only grass stains. At other fields, it would be gravel burns, a possible turned ankle from holes in the fields or grass burrs in their socks, shorts, hands, legs and arms.

To use our fields there must be players and teams. When there are teams there are uniforms and equipment to be used and purchased. Now, a comment about Snyder Soccer's second biggest expense.

To keep our registration fees the lowest in the area, uniforms are provided each season. Each player rents his or her uniform for the season and is expected to return it when the playing season is over. Unlike school sports where uniforms and equipment are budgeted with public funds, or baseball, softball or T-ball where private sponsors pay for uniforms, Snyder Soccer, according to our national soccer rules, is not allowed to have private sponsors for teams. We do have several very fine businesses and business people that help support us each year. Their donations are applied to the maintenance of our fields of grass.

Our uniforms have been used for five seasons now. They are faded, snagged, stretched or shrunken. We have many missing uniforms from those who have moved or simply forgotten that they had them. To keep our Snyder families from having the expense of purchasing new uniforms with higher registration fees next season, we are having a FALL FUND RAISER. Snyder Soccer needs to raise over $5,000 to purchase the uniforms. Our selling period is over Sept. 26. Our product is the "Incredible Edibles," items ranging from $3 to $18.

If a child comes to your door who is a soccer player please take the time to look and BUY. One fine Snyder gentleman and his wife didn't want to buy, but contributed to the cause. Thank you so very much.

Through your support, you TOO can become the PUSHERS. The pushers and supporters of Snyder Soccer.

Thank you for the time you have spent reading this letter and thank you for your support in the past, present and future. Janet Polk Sec./Treas. Snyder Soccer

American dream becomes nightmare

AUSTIN (AP) — With unintentional callousness, a banner across a full-page advertisement proclaims: "Live the American Dream." Below it is the latest list of Austin-area HUD foreclosures, homes where the American dream went bust for buyers unable to keep up the payments.

Move 'em out, those who have failed the ownership of a home. Make way for new buyers whose hopes are still high — who, a cynic might say, still have illusions.

Let them lose sleep as two incomes become one because of layoff, illness, childbirth, divorce or death.

Let them ponder how they forgot that when mom got a job so they could afford the house, the tradeoff would be paying for child care.

Let them suffer the middle-of-the-night sweats when the job is moving to another city, but they are trapped in a house they cannot sell because they owe more on it than it is worth.

Let them dwell with nostalgia about the landscaping they worked so hard on, their financial outlays for big and small improvements, the floor plan that was perfect. That's what a lot of people talk about when they meet with counselors at Consumer Credit Counseling.

"Other people have struggled so much, they see the house as being the culprit," said Lonnie Williams, director of the Austin branch of the counseling service, a division of the Child and Family Services agency. "They have reached a point where they hate that house."

Even people who avoid foreclosure have hair-raising close calls. The dream may not evaporate, but it can still burden.

"It's one of the most dramatic things your average, middle-America family is ever going to face, except maybe cancer," said a former Austinite who was separated from his family for nearly a year when he took a job in another city and they were unable to sell their house.

Foreclosure crossed the minds of another former Austin family, Jeff and Judy Van Pelt. When his job moved to Clear Lake near Houston in 1987, the Van Pelts learned that their house was virtually unsalable.

They leased the house, but for 29 percent less than their mortgage payments. They had to pay a huge income-tax bill last year because as renters they did not have enough deductions. Recently they re-leased the house at a higher rent, cutting their loss but not diminishing the long-distance worry.

"It's been like an albatross about our neck," Mrs. Van Pelt said.

As long as they own the house — the foreseeable future, she said — they will be burdened emotionally as well as financially.

The Van Pelts, who have three children, have bought a house in

Richards' book tells 'dirty trick'

AUSTIN (AP) — In her new autobiography, state Treasurer Ann Richards suggests that her likely gubernatorial opponent sought to scuttle her keynote address to the Democratic National Convention, the speech that made her one of the party's rising stars.

The charge, which drew a "no comment" from Attorney General Jim Mattox's office, comes in the first chapter of "Straight from the Heart: My Life in Politics & Other Places."

The book tells her life story, from growing up near Waco to treatment for alcoholism to victory as the first woman elected statewide in half a century. But in the opening chapter, Ms. Richards tells about the speech that gave her a national political profile.

"It's a speaker's dream," she says of the address to the 1988 Atlanta convention.

"Everybody who cares even the slightest bit about politics can be counted on to watch, or at least will hear about what you have to say. I had never even considered giving it."

After then-party chairman Paul Kirk extended the surprise offer, Ms. Richards recounts what she says was Mattox's bid to keep her from giving the speech.

"Now, the talk of my making the governor's race was pretty much an open case, and the political tides never stop churning," she writes.

"... I was told that Jim Mattox, my likely primary opponent, had tried to dissuade Paul Kirk from extending the invitation to speak. The reply from the national office was, 'Well, the governor's race is a long way off, and we have no intention of getting involved in it, but the decision is made.'"

"And so, on Monday morning, the announcement came from Paul Kirk that I would be the keynote speaker. And my life was completely overturned."

Mattox campaign manager Jim Cunningham said he knew nothing about any such effort. Elna Christopher, the attorney general's press secretary, said, "We have no comment."

The book, co-authored by New York writer Peter Knobler and Clear Lake to feel part of the community.

Putting down roots by buying houses began in earnest after World War II. Baby boomers' parents bought "starter houses," little boxes of places that came with few amenities but plenty of leeway for individual touches.

Now the baby boomers want to be just like mom and dad, except they want three bedrooms and two baths in the suburbs, with amenities. Nationally, the home ownership rate is about 60 percent.

Toward the end of the baby boom, house payments took 19 percent of the median income of a husband working full time; by 1984, payments on a home required 31 percent, University of Texas sociology professor Joe R. Feagin and a colleague wrote in a book about American cities.

That means that a lot of people cannot afford to get into the game. In Austin, the median price of a home was $76,825 in July, according to the Texas A&M University Real Estate Center.

Some who can afford the down payment and qualify for a mortgage are wary of buying because they fear they will become a prisoner in a house they cannot sell if they lose their job or relocate.

They are the envy of people who have to get out. Perhaps the economic downturn means their income isn't rising as fast as expected. Perhaps they underestimated the costs for utilities and maintenance. Maybe they were overly optimistic when they calculated whether they could afford to buy the house.

Consumer Credit Counseling advises potential purchasers to limit mortgage payments to 25 percent of their monthly net income, which is the amount left after taxes and Social Security are deducted.

"I think most people are very concerned about taking care of their responsibilities," Williams said. "It hurts them. It hurts them personally that they have to default on their mortgage. The economy has caused this. It's not that they're bad."

"People have such a sense of failure," Williams said. "It (home ownership) represents so much more than a sense of shelter. It's an emotional thing."

Is the American dream just a marketing slogan? A myth? Whose dream is it, anyway?

"Right after World War I, both the real-estate industry and the federal government pressed for growth in single-family home construction," Feagin and Robert Parker wrote in a book that Prentice-Hall Inc. will publish in December.

"The U.S. Labor Department put up 'own your home' posters from Maine to California with captions such as: 'Own a home for Your Children's Sake,' 'Thrift Puts Savings into a Home,' and 'Construction Now for a Greater and Still Happier America.'"

"Since Herbert Hoover, every U.S. president has pressed the idea of home ownership as a key to being a good citizen," Feagin and Parker wrote in their revised edition of "Building American Cities: The Urban Real Estate Game."

"Getting a divorce was the hardest thing I have ever done. Harder than alcoholism, harder than treatment, harder than politics. I had never lived alone in my life."

Over the years, the classical retort "take two aspirin and call me in the morning" (meaning "don't bother me tonight") has become stock medical humor. You don't hear the phrase anymore, because the public has become too sophisticated for such clichés. Nevertheless, doctors still play the game of "Guess What I'm Really Saying"; now they do it more surreptitiously.

For example, here is a list of statements you may have heard from your doctor, after each remark, I've translated what the healer is really saying.

"I'm afraid I have some bad news." This used to mean that elderly, senile aunt Ella had quietly died of pneumonia. The meaning has changed. Translation: "I doubt your insurance coverage will pay for all the expensive and unnecessary tests I ordered."

"I can't see you in the office for three weeks." Translation: "You haven't paid me a dime in two years, and I'm not going to get stuck with another deadbeat."

"This won't hurt." Translation: "I've never had this procedure, so how am I supposed to know what it feels like?"

"All medicines have side effects. You'll just have to put up with them." Translation: "I'm too lazy to look up the list of specific side effects and to go through the effort of prescribing a safer, alternative drug."

"Call me next week if you're not feeling better." Translation: "I'm late for my golf game."

"Just sign on the dotted line, I'll take care of the rest." Translation: "Boy, do I hate these pre-operative consent forms. If you knew what could go wrong, you'd never have the surgery."

"Of course you're not pregnant! Wanna bet?" Translation: not necessary.

"I'm calling you about your lab work." Translation: "What a drag. I'm really tired of all this public-relations stuff, but I have to do it to keep patients."

"I didn't return your call because I had to go out on an emergency." Translation: "I had to pick up my kid from little league, and I wasn't about to get tied up with a bunch of dumb telephone calls."

"Put on this gown and I'll be right back." Translation: "I'll get to you as soon as I examine three other patients and discuss stock options with my broker."

"Rather than talking about this on the telephone, why don't you come down to the office to discuss it?" Translation: "Why should I waste 10 minutes on the phone when I can say the same thing in the office and get paid for it?"

"Everybody your age should have one." Translation: "I'm older than you and, like most doctors, wouldn't dream of subjecting myself to such a dangerous and uncomfortable test."

"I can't see you today." Translation: "My office schedule is as full of holes as Swiss cheese, yet I wouldn't dare admit it."

"I don't treat this disease, so I'm referring you to the Medical Center." Translation: "This problem is so disgusting that I can't wait to send you to a specialist."

"How long have you had this?" Translation: "Only a jerk with two brain cells would have put up with this as long as you have."

"Relax." Translation: "I'm so nervous I could scream. I hope you don't suspect I'm not qualified to perform this procedure."

"There you go playing doctor again." Translation: "If a lawyer ever finds out how right you are, I'll spend the next year in court."

"Remember, it takes $10 to put you to sleep and $400 to wake you up." Translation: "Why do you zipper-brains always complain about anesthesia bills? I have to earn a living, too."

"Don't pay any attention to the bill. It's just for accounting purposes." Translation: "Oops, got caught again trying to pad another bill."

"I think you ought to cut down a little on the booze." Translation: "You're a roaring alcoholic with a liver that's shot, but you're rich and I can't risk losing you as a patient by speaking the truth."

"Don't move. I'm almost finished." Translation: "This will take at least another five minutes, and we're not even to the painful part yet."

President Bush's reputation on line at educational summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — For George Bush, this week's education summit with the nation's governors provides a unique opportunity to redeem a campaign pledge to become "the education president." But the meeting could also leave him vulnerable to blame for the failings of America's schools as no president has ever been.

By convening the governors for only the third time in the nation's history, the president has raised expectations that under his leadership the country will find ways to remedy persistent shortcomings in its schools.

Most of the meetings at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville on Wednesday and Thursday will take place behind closed doors. The White House says the governors wanted it that way.

"We're going to have some roll-up-your-sleeve meetings," said the president, who wants the summit to produce "new ideas that can help us develop national educational goals and objectives."

America's schools are "not making the grade," complained Bush, citing a recent comparison of 13-year-olds in a dozen countries that placed American students last in math and near the bottom in science.

"We're spending more money on education than most other countries, and frankly getting less in terms of our investment," he told reporters last week.

"The educational system is basically well-fed, but it's undernourished," said Bush. "We must find innovative, accountable ways to improve performance."

The first time a president summoned the states' chief executives to a summit was in 1908, when Theodore Roosevelt brought them together to discuss how to conserve America's natural resources; the second time was in 1933, when Franklin D. Roosevelt sought their advice on the Great Depression.

By investing this session with the stature of a summit, the president has aroused hopes that, as Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton put it, Bush will "assume some personal responsibility for the future of the quality of education."

"Once you pick up this ball, you pretty well got to run with it. If you try to put it down after the summit's over, then I think you have dashed expectations, disappointed people, a divided country," said Clinton, a Democrat who tried but failed to increase taxes this year to raise teacher salaries.

Apart from Bush's education secretary, Lauro F. Cavazos, no educators will take part in the deliberations, and the governors have been instructed to bring just one aide each to the table.

Unlike a superpower summit or the annual economic parlay of America and its allies, the Virginia meeting will not be propelled by legions of striped-pants aides toiling behind the scenes to agree on accords in advance for the political leaders to ratify.

Bush appears intent on hearing first-hand testimony from the governors — many of them veterans of battles over school reform in their states — on which ideas hold the most promise.

Bush has already indicated his interest in hearing success stories on how to recruit and keep teachers, how to keep drugs and crime out of schools and how to give parents more choice over which public school their child attends.

Eventually, the president will propose new education goals for the nation, not at the end of this summit but at a later date, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Bush, like Ronald Reagan before him, has been an enthusiastic backer of efforts in Minnesota and elsewhere to give parents more choice in public education. The rationale is that public schools will be put on their mettle if forced to compete for students instead of relying on a neighborhood monopoly.

Bush also backs expanded aid for magnet schools, which strive for excellence through academic specialties.

The president has lauded New Jersey's successful experiment with an alternative certification program that allows non-education majors into the teaching profession.

Virtually every state has raised graduation standards since the scorching 1983 report "A Nation At Risk," written by a Reagan administration panel, and teacher salaries have spurred ahead faster than inflation.

But American pupils still lag behind their counterparts in other industrialized nations on virtually every international study. Scores have stagnated on college entrance tests.

America's schools are beset with drug and dropout problems unheard of in Japan, which graduates nearly all of its teenagers from high school.

Bush, in a public television documentary last spring, said he viewed the three most pressing problems facing America's schools as "drugs, drugs and drugs."

The federal budget deficit makes it difficult for Bush to promise major resources to carry out education initiatives. He sent Congress on April 5 a modest $441 million package of proposed additions to the Education Department's nearly $22 billion budget.

More than half the requested money — $250 million — would go to create a Presidential Merit Schools awards program, providing cash grants to top schools. In addition, $100 million would be earmarked for magnet schools.

The proposal has made little headway on Capitol Hill, although the House last week passed a small component: scholarships for math and science majors who become teachers.

Cavazos says the Charlottesville summit is just "the beginning" of Bush's efforts to begin a national dialogue on education.

But after six years of school reform and literally scores of reports ruminating on what is wrong with America's schools, many educators are impatient for results.

Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, warns, "It will be a terrible letdown and a waste if the summit deals with trivialities, if... symbolism is all the president has in mind, and the education summit turns out to be just another media event."

Water district budget to increase slightly

Budget of the Colorado River Municipal Water District will increase less than two percent in 1990 over the current year, directors decided at their meeting Thursday in Big Spring.

Although the budget figure of $18,386,142 compares with $12,645,631 this year, the net difference actually is only $230,261. This is because $5,377,013 Stacy debt funds were not charged to the budget this year, although they actually were paid by the district along with San Angelo, West Central Municipal Water District (Abilene) and Midland, which together have a 49.62 percent interest in Stacy water. Next year, the $5,470,000 Stacy debt service will be included in the budget. The three contract cities will be paying their contract share.

While water rates will not be fixed until the January 1990 meeting, it is not anticipated that there will be any change in charges to member cities Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder.

Four items account for more than the $258,394 increase in the operating budget for next year. They are: $11,848 more for water royalties due to an additional 6.7 cents per 1,000 gallons on 1.76 billion gallons expected to be pumped from the Ward County well field. This increase actually occurred in the middle of this year due to a contractual periodic price indexing.

Also, $110,848 more for electric energy due to an increase in rates expected from Texas Utilities at mid-year; $65,000 more for liability insurance (which already has increased sharply beyond current year estimates); and $34,000 more for hospitalization insurance because the district will administer its own program under a self-insurance plan.

Prime revenues of $12,851,012 (exclusive of that pledged to Stacy) are projected on sale of an anticipated additional 450 million gallons of water.

A break-down of budget categories for 1990 includes source of supply expense, $893,052; pumping expense, $4,612,629; administration and general, $1,172,052; recreation, $187,827, with a total of $6,865,660, up 2.04 percent. (Capital expenditures including nine pieces of rolling stock plus a heavy-duty trailer and a maintenance boat, will be $119,000, but appear in the budget only as to amortization costs.) Debt service of $9,465,893 is down .3 of one percent.

Of total expenditures, $1,556,456 will be in manpower costs, which do not include a dozen people associated with the Stacy project and who are paid out of the 1985 construction fund. Another major charge is $3,718,448 for electric power.

One other budget change is renaming the Stacy project fund the rate stabilization fund. Its yield comes from a calculated 10 cents per 1,000 gallons of water delivered to member cities. Part of the district's 50.38 share of Stacy debt service comes from this. Several years ago, rates were raised a total of 10 cents in two increments in anticipation of the Stacy project.

The world's worst single-aircraft disaster took place in 1985 when a Japan Airlines Boeing 747 crashed into a wooded mountain range during a domestic flight, killing 520 people.

Soviets getting economic advice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The focus is on arms control in this latest round of U.S.-Soviet talks, and the Bush administration knows how it wants to approach that subject.

But on the economic front, there is no decision yet on how much help — beyond good wishes — to give Mikhail S. Gorbachev as the Soviet president tries to restructure his country's industries and agriculture.

Arms control and economics are related. Reducing troops and weapons gives Gorbachev more capital to spend on consumer goods and other necessities.

President Bush and his foreign policy advisers have made up their minds in one respect, at least.

They will move to conclude arms control agreements that are in U.S. security interests. But they will not be "frantic" about it, Secretary of State James A. Baker III said this week.

On the economic front there have been only hints. The judgment within the administration seems to be that Gorbachev's perestroika program will succeed or fail mostly on decisions taken in Moscow.

"There are no simple or quick fixes," Baker said.

But on some specific steps that could help Gorbachev, the administration is still making up its mind.

One is whether to give the Soviets the same kind of trading privileges granted Hungary this week. Another is whether to support membership for Moscow in the Geneva-based General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

This summer Gorbachev entered a bid for links to the annual summit meeting of the United States and six other industrialized democracies — Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Japan and West Germany.

He didn't get his foot in the door.

Baker's advice this week to the Soviets was to help themselves by pulling out of regional wars around the globe and redirecting billions of dollars saved into the economy.

"They are spending billions of dollars in regional conflict situations that we think could be put to better use to assist the process of perestroika," he said.

Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger took a tougher line last week in a speech at Georgetown University.

He reminded the Western allies and Japan that Gorbachev "is no anti-communist" and said they should avoid "bankrolling merely cosmetic Soviet reforms."

Some people would make the argument that the United States, its European partners and Japan have a stake in Gorbachev succeeding. They would argue he has lowered tensions while also trying to improve conditions at home.

Failure could usher in a hard-line successor.

Others argue that the West should keep its distance and let the Soviets figure their own way out of difficulty.

Slam fever

By James Jacoby

High-level competitive auctions can be the strangest things. But if you assume a modicum of rational thought by your partner, you can sometimes draw a conclusion that will guide your decision. In today's deal the two-heart cue-bid by North showed a two-suiter — spades and a minor suit. When South bid four spades over four hearts, North knew that South was probably making a sacrifice bid. But North also knew he himself had a big hand, so four spades would easily make. Nevertheless, he simply passed four spades. East now bid five diamonds, and South continued with five spades. When West bid six hearts, North asked himself what would justify South's bid of five spades when South for sure had virtually nothing in the way of high cards. North came up with the right answer — South had to be void in hearts. So North bid six spades, hoping that the club losers could be held to only one.

Playing the doubled contract was easy. Declarer ruffed the opening heart lead, drew two rounds of trumps ending in his hand, and led a club. With the A-Q in front of the dummy, there wasn't even a guess in the suit. Making six doubled was a nice result. What's more, the game was team-of-four, and North-South shortly found out that their East-West teammates had made six hearts doubled. How sweet it is!

State mandates problem for small Pennsylvania town

JACKSONVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Tired old Jacksonville is running out of coal, youth, taxes and time.

Hanging on with only about 60 residents, caught between decreasing tax revenues and increasing state pressure to install sewers, the Borough Council has begun talk about disbanding and casting Jacksonville's nearly square-mile of territory to the mercy of neighboring townships.

"If we go another five or 10 years, no one is going to be here anymore," says Councilman Stanley Gryczuk, 77, a retired miner and butcher.

"The old ones are dying off and the young ones leave us," says Councilwoman Mary Grimm, 81, a retired cook.

Jacksonville, about 50 miles east of Pittsburgh, was never as big as nearby Saltsburg. But plentiful coal and hard work kept it on the map, its young folks close and its future hopeful.

With neat frame houses scattered along a hillside, it boasted as many as 150 residents in the 1930s, mostly coal miners and their families, and even a bank, barber, butcher, blacksmith and railroad station.

"It was the quietest, nicest town you'd ever want to see," says Jacob Grimm, 84, Mary Grimm's husband, a retired miner and himself a councilman "for, oh, about 30 years."

Council members say there are fewer people willing, or able, to govern.

Mayor Tom Salva, in his 60s, has been too ill to attend a council meeting in two years.

"We don't expect him to come to the meetings. We bring things to him," Mrs. Grimm says. "In the last election, we were trying to get someone new to be the mayor, but no one would run, so we just wrote Tom in."

The average age of the council members, including the Grimms and Gryczuk, is 71.5 years, without counting young Frank Stango.

Stango, 21, a business major at nearby Indiana University of Pennsylvania, was recruited for the council several years ago by his mother, Councilwoman Josephine Stango, 56, a part-time postal worker.

Councilman Adam Gordish, a retired coal miner, is 75 years old. His son-in-law, Robert Yatzkanic, 56, is also a councilman. Delores Yatzkanic, Gordish's daughter and Yatzkanic's wife, is borough secretary.

Most everyone is a Democrat. Mrs. Grimm says there are six Republicans and she can give directions to each of their houses.

Townfolk say Yatzkanic, an X-ray technician at a nearby Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant, is one of the half-dozen or so people in Jacksonville still working.

"Everybody's retired," Mrs. Grimm says. "We have more widows in town than anyone else. The young people grow up, go to school and then they leave."

The council also expects young Stango to leave town one of these days. It recently won permission from a Common Pleas Court judge to allow it to eventually reduce its numbers from seven to five members.

"Jacksonville's as big as it's going to get," Stango says with a shrug. "Unless something comes this way, I don't see any reason for anyone to move in."

The borough has no property, no municipal building and no equipment of its own. The council pays $10 to meet once a month in a classroom at the United Presbyterian Church about halfway up Mill Street.

Mrs. Yatzkanic estimated the borough's annual budget at about $19,000, mostly to keep water in a few fire hydrants, street lights illuminated, and Mill Street and a few side roads repaired and plowed.

"We didn't have to name our side streets until we got ambulance service," Mrs. Grimm says.

The borough pays a man with a pickup truck $45 to plow and sand the streets whenever it snows.

Council members were shocked when a state agency said Jacksonville must contribute $700 a year for unemployment insurance for the trucker and the borough's part-time solicitor.

They are angry that state or Indiana County officials often charge the borough the same standard governmental fees paid by larger communities, such as Indiana, the county seat of about 16,000 people.

Most public tasks, such as patching a municipal road, are too small for local contractors to bother with, Gryczuk says. Bigger projects would jolt the municipal budget and the taxpayers.

"We have to wait three or four years to accumulate enough money to get a road fixed," Gryczuk says.

Council members also are worried about a potential financial knockout — a longstanding demand by the state Department of Environmental Resources that Jacksonville install a sewer system to replace septic tanks.

Mrs. Stango says the latest estimates put the cost for sewers at about $40 per month for each homeowner, mostly for interest on the capital expenditure.

Mrs. Stango says the borough doesn't have the money for engineering studies for the sewer project. Mrs. Grimm says most residents can't afford sewers anyway.

At the Golden Pheasant tavern on the two-lane state highway, owner Eddie Sklar, himself a former councilman, worried that new talk of disbanding the municipality may cost him his liquor license eventually.

"This is my livelihood," he says. "I don't want to lose it."

Sklar suggested the borough can save money by asking homeowners to pay for the street lights near their homes and by asking neighboring townships to run their plows down Mill Street occasionally.

He says council members should have installed sewers years ago, when costs would have been less.

Your Birthday

Sept. 25, 1989

Your material prospects look rather encouraging in the year ahead, but it is best not to become involved with friends in financial ventures, because you'll be able to do better with people with whom you're not involved socially.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't feel compelled to go along with others today if they try to get you involved in an activity you really can't afford. You'll be the one who will have to eventually pay the bill, not them. Major changes are ahead for Libra in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't do anything out of spite today in order to get even with someone else. If you do, there is a chance it will hurt you more than it will your adversary.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Confidential information that comes to you today may be of little or no value. Before you act upon it, check the facts with other sources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) People you know little about must be dealt with very cautiously today or else you might come up with the short end of the stick. Be careful where you place your trust.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you get involved in a joint effort today, have a clear cut understanding in advance as to whom is responsible for what. One or both parties could feel abused if ground rules aren't established.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't do anything today that could unnecessarily irritate your co-workers. If you make them angry, they might make life rather difficult for you in return.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It might be wise to avoid speculative enterprises today, because Lady Luck may be taking the day off and she won't be available if things get to push and shove.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Disagreements between you and your mate should be resolved within the confines of your home today instead of airing them in public. Open discussions could invite problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The assistance you require today for a tedious assignment might not be available. If you can't accomplish the tasks unaided, wait for another day when you can get help.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A social obligation you've been avoiding might force its way into your schedule today. It's best you attend to it graciously and get it out of the way once and for all.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Outside influences could prevent you from doing what you plan to do today. If this occurs, try to exercise tolerance and flow with events instead of bucking them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your endeavors must be clearly thought out each step of the way today or else you might end up painting yourself into a corner. Instead of rushing to get things done, make haste slowly.
