 Tom Jordan arrived in Big Spring with his wife Mamie and four children in 1904. His intentions were to start a weekly newspaper. He joined in partnership with two of his brothers-in-law, Will and Tom Hayden, in a local weekly newspaper they named The Big Spring Herald.
 They started operations in a small, wood-framed building on East Second Street between Runnels and Johnson streets. A yearly subscription was decided at $1.50, and the newspaper had to compete with the already-established weekly newspaper, the Enterprise. After six years, the Enterprise folded and closed the doors. Jordan and Hayden were the clear winners, and the Big Spring Herald was here to stay.

 Tom and Mamie raised their nine children in a two-story home located at 900 Nolan (later Carvers Pharmacy). Mamie was a caring and loving wife and mother. She devoted her time and energy to each of the children and Tom. On Monday, February 5, 1922, Mamie started feeling ill. The doctor was summoned as she insisted that she was "just fine." She exclaimed that she did not want a fuss made. The doctor and Tom left her room so she could rest. A few minutes later,

Green to host Comedy Night at VFW

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Contributing Writer
 The festivities aren't over yet. The D.A.V. (Disabled American Veterans) has recently wrapped up a busy September of fundraising events, but there is still one more opportunity to support the organization and find out who they are. The second annual Comedy Night, hosted by Adrienne Green, will take place Nov. 5 at 7:30 p.m. at the V.F.W.
 "We had a good turnout last year and we are looking forward to having the community come out and join us again," Mike Tarpley, D.A.V. Sr. Vice Commander, said. "We have four comedians, one local and two members of the Veterans of Comedy sharing their talent. It will be a fun night of laughter."

 Veterans of Comedy Michael Shields and Chris Crawford will be returning, as well as Comedian Jeanette Fahey. Local Comedian Adrienne Green will also be performing. The content will include adult innu-endos, but there are no age limits on the show.

 "We aren't setting age limits on the show, but the material will include some adult jokes so it is up to the parents if they want to bring their teenagers," Adrienne Green said. "This is meant to be a fun night out, but also an opportunity to spread awareness and bring support for the D.A.V. and the veterans they support throughout the year."
 The Veterans of Comedy and Friends is a group of comedians who follows the motto "no laugh left behind" and through that sought to bring laughter to the men and women in uniform, past and present. The team was created in 2012 with nearly 30 members the group represents all five branches of service.
 "We don't have a lot of opportunity to just laugh and release some stress, and I

Avoid feeding pets these holiday foods

Special to the Herald
 Fall and winter holiday celebrations often include festive eats and treats — Halloween and candy are synonymous, as are Thanksgiving and turkey. As the holiday season approaches, it's important to remember that increased candy and other holiday foods in the home may be cause for paw-se for pet parents.
 Dr. Lori Teller, a clinical associate professor of telehealth at the Texas A&M School of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, says there are several foods people should avoid giving their pets, but especially any foods containing xylitol.
 "Anything that contains xylitol should never be given to dogs," Teller said. "It is extremely toxic and can lead to liver failure and death. It is a common replacement for sugar in many human foods, but it is so toxic to dogs that there has been legislation filed in Congress to require that any products containing xylitol be labeled as such. The bill is titled the Paws Off Act of 2021."
 Traditional holiday cooking and baking ingredients also can be dangerous for pet consumption. Some such items include chocolate, especially dark or baking chocolate; grapes or raisins; fatty foods; macadamia nuts and walnuts; bones; alcohol; raw dough; seeds and pits from fruits (such as apples, apricots, cherries, peaches); caffeinated products; avocado; and onions and garlic.
 "Any dangerous foods should be stored in a pet-proof cabinet, pantry or container," Teller advised. "Some pets are 'counter-surfers' and will jump up on a counter to steal something that smells irresistible."

"One year we had hidden our Halloween candy in the coat closet so our son wouldn't get into it before the trick-or-treaters arrived," she said. "Unfortunately, someone didn't make sure the closet was closed and latched, and our Labrador ate 4 pounds of Halloween candy. That was a fun trip to the veterinary hospital."
 Teller said that while some foods should be avoided in pet consumption at all costs, such as products containing xylitol and grapes or raisins, the effects of other foods are dose-dependent.
 "One example is chocolate," she explained. "If your healthy Labrador retriever gets a hold of a couple of milk chocolate M&Ms, then the risk is pretty low for any problems. However, if the dog eats a couple of squares of baking chocolate, there is a much higher risk of toxic effects and you should seek veterinary care. When in doubt, talk to your veterinarian."
 If you find yourself in a situation this holiday season where your pet has consumed something potentially detrimental to their health, The ASPCA's Animal Poison Control can be reached at 888-426-4435 and the Pet Poison Helpline can be reached at 855-764-7661.
 While some traditional holiday eats and treats are dangerous for pets, others can be enjoyed together in celebratory moments. "These include most fruits (minus the seeds or pits), such as apples, bananas, blueberries, and watermelon. Most vegetables are healthy as well, including carrots, green beans, chickpeas, lettuce leaves, and cucumbers," Teller

Greek monastery manuscripts tell new story of Ottoman rule

MOUNT ATHOS, Greece (AP) — A church bell sounds, the staccato thudding of mallet on plank summons monks to afternoon prayers, deep voices are raised in communal chant. And high in the great tower of Pantokrator Monastery, a metal library door swings open.

There, deep inside the medieval fortified monastery in the Mount Athos monastic Orthodox Christian community, researchers are for the first time tapping a virtually unknown treasure — thousands of Ottoman-era manuscripts that include the oldest of their kind in the world.

The libraries of the self-governed community, established more than 1,000 years ago on northern Greece's Athos peninsula, are a repository of rare, centuries-old works in several languages including Greek, Russian and Romanian.

Many have been extensively studied, but not the Ottoman Turkish documents, products of an occupying bureaucracy that ruled northern Greece from the late 14th century — well before the Byzantine capital, Constantinople, fell to the Ottomans in 1453 — until the early 20th when the area became Greek again.

Byzantine scholar Jannis Niehoff-Panagiotidis says it's impossible to understand Mount Athos' economy and society under Ottoman rule without consulting these documents, which regulated the monks' dealings with secular authorities.

"Ottoman was the official language of state," he told The Associated Press from the library of the Pantokrator Monastery, one of 20 on the heavily wooded peninsula.

Niehoff-Panagiotidis, a professor at the Free University of Berlin, said the oldest of the roughly 25,000 Ottoman works found in the monastic libraries dates to 1374, or 1371.

That's older than any known in the world, he said, adding that in Istanbul, as the Ottomans renamed Constantinople when they made the city their own capital, the oldest archives only go back to the late 15th century.

"The first documents that shed light (on the first period of Ottoman history) are saved here, on Mount Athos," he said, seated at a table piled with documents and books. Others, the more rare ones, are stored in large wooden drawers.

These include highly ornate Sultans' firmans — or decrees — deeds of ownership and court decisions.

"The overwhelming majority are legal documents," said Anastasios Nikopoulos, a jurist and scientific collaborator of the Free University of Berlin who's been working with Niehoff-Panagiotidis on the project for the past few months.

And the manuscripts tell a story at odds with the traditional understanding in Greece of Ottoman depredations in the newly-conquered areas, through the confiscation of the Mount Athos monasteries' rich real estate holdings. Instead, the new rulers took the community under their wing, preserved its autonomy and protected it from external interference.

"The Sultans' firmans we saw in the tower ... and the Ottoman state's court decisions show that the monks' small democracy was able to gain the respect of all conquering powers," Nikopoulos said. "And that is because Mount Athos was seen as a cradle of peace, culture ... where peoples and civilizations coexisted peacefully."

Nikopoulos said that one of the first actions of Murad II, the Ottoman ruler who conquered Thessaloniki — the closest city to Mount Athos — was to draw up a legal document in 1430 protecting the community.

"That says a lot. The Ottoman sultan himself ensured that the administrative system of Mount Athos was preserved and safeguarded," he said. Even before that, Niehoff-Panagiotidis added, a sultan issued a mandate laying down strict punishment for intruders after a band of marauding soldiers engaged in minor thieving from one of the monasteries.

"It's strange that the sultans kept Mount Athos, the last remnant of Byzantium, semi-independent and didn't touch it," he said. "They didn't even keep troops here. At the very most they would have a local representative who probably stayed at (the community's administrative center, Karyes) and sipped tea."

Another unexpected revelation, Niehoff-Panagiotidis said, was that for roughly the first two centuries of Ottoman rule no effort was made to impose Islamic law on Mount Athos or nearby parts of northern Greece.

"Mount Athos was something like a continuation of Byzantium," he said.

The community was first granted self-governance through a decree by Byzantine Emperor Basil II, in 883 AD. Throughout its history, women have been forbidden from entering, a ban that still stands.

This rule is called "avaton" and the researchers believe that it concerns every form of external administrative or secular intervention that could affect Mount Athos.

Father Theophilos, a Pantokrator monk who is helping with the research, said the documents show the far-flung influence of Mount Athos.

"Their study also illuminates examples of how people can live with each other, principles that are common to all humanity, the seeds of human rights and respect for them, democracy and the principles of social coexistence," he told The Associated Press.

The research project is expected to continue for several months, even years.

"What could emerge in the long term I'll be able to say when we have catalogued and digitized all the documents," Niehoff-Panagiotidis said. "Right now, nobody knows what's hidden here. Perhaps, even older documents."

Nearly 22M have already requested student loan relief

DOVER, Delaware (AP) — President Joe Biden said Friday that nearly 22 million people have applied for federal student loan relief in the week since his administration made its online application available — more than half of the number the White House believes are eligible for the program.

Speaking at Delaware State University, a historically Black university where the majority of students receive federal Pell Grants, Biden touted the first-week statistics since the application was beta-launched last Friday. He officially unveiled it at the White House on Monday.

Biden's plan calls for $10,000 in federal student debt cancellation for those with incomes below $125,000 a year, or households that make less than $250,000 a year. Those who received federal Pell Grants to attend college are eligible for an additional $10,000. The plan makes 20 million eligible to get their federal student debt erased entirely.

Biden highlighted the ease of the application, which doesn't require users to upload any forms or to create an account.

"Folks, it takes less than 5 minutes," Biden said. He said the "vast majority" of applicants are able to submit for relief from their phones.

Biden blasted Republicans who have criticized his relief program, saying "their outrage is wrong and it's hypocritical." He added, "I don't want to hear it from MAGA Republican officials" who had millions of debt and pandemic relief loans forgiven, naming GOP lawmakers like Reps. Vern Buchanan and Marjorie Taylor Greene, who received loan forgiveness, and Sen. Ted Cruz, who called some beneficiaries of student loans "slackers."

Asked Biden, "Who the hell do they think they are?"

she let out a moan, they ran back to her bedside where they discovered "her spirit had taken flight to that Home on High." The cause of death was listed as heart failure. Mamie was only 48 years old. Jordan became sole owner of the Big Spring Herald in 1925, when Hayden decided to take up other business pursuits. Tom was optimistic, as he planned to take the paper from weekly to daily. On June 3, 1928, the daily newspaper began with Vol. 1 number 1.

After only a year, the pressure of a daily paper was too much for Jordan as he decided to sell the business to Harde-Hanks in March 1929, and start a printing shop.

In 1927, Tom purchased a large lot in the new Washington Addition, and had a beautiful red brick Craftsman home built at 609 Washington Blvd. The three bedroom, two bath home was almost 3,000 square feet and featured a large front porch with massive brick columns. The French doors that opened onto the front porch had 37 individual small panes of glass in each door. Jordan spent his later years sitting on the large, cool porch. He died September 15, 1943, at the age of 75.

said. "White rice and plain bread in small quantities are also acceptable. Cooked chicken, turkey or fish, without the skin or bones, is also safe for pets."

Safe pet consumption of these foods depends on portion size.

"Any treats or human foods given to pets should not exceed 10% of their dietary intake," Teller shared. "More than this and their diet may become nutritionally unbalanced. It is always a good idea to talk with your veterinarian to make sure foods that you want to give your pet will be safe, especially if your pet has an underlying health problem."

Keeping your pet away from potentially toxic foods may also involve educating children and visiting relatives, or even keeping the pet out of the kitchen entirely. Keeping your pet's safety top of mind will help ensure that the entire family has a happy, healthy holiday season.

Judge dismisses case of Texas man who waited 6 hours to vote

By PAUL J. WEBER

Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas judge has dismissed illegal voting charges against a Houston man who stood in line six hours to cast a ballot in the 2020 presidential primary and became a figure over Republican efforts to tighten election laws.

The decision this week followed a wider ruling in Texas that limits the state's power to prosecute voting fraud cases, which has drawn backlash from Republican Gov. Greg Abbott and other GOP leaders.

Hervis Rogers, who in March 2020 did not leave a polling center at a historically Black college until about 1:30 a.m., had faced charges that carried a possible sentence of two to 20 years in prison. He had voted while still on parole from a felony burglary conviction, making him ineligible to cast a ballot under Texas law.

Rogers said he did not know he was ineligible to cast a ballot when he got in line at Texas Southern University, where reporters had interviewed him and other voters who expressed anger and frustration over the long wait.

The charges against Rogers were brought by the office of Texas Republican Attorney General Ken Paxton, who has promoted baseless claims of widespread election fraud and challenged the outcome of the 2020 presidential election. But the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which is entirely comprised of elected Republicans judges, upheld last month that the state cannot unilaterally prosecute election fraud cases.

The case against Rogers was dismissed Monday by a judge in Montgomery County, which neighbors Houston.

"I am thankful that justice has been done," said Rogers, who has been out on bail since last year. "It has been horrible to go through this, and I am so glad my case is over. I look forward to being able to get back to my life."

Paxton's office did not immediately return a message seeking comment Friday.

Thomas Buser-Clancy, an attorney for Rogers, said the state had not filed an intent to appeal. He said he could not speak to whether Rogers can or will vote in November's election.

Rogers said he was among the last people allowed in line before polls closed at 7 p.m. He said at the time he considered leaving but told reporters that "every vote counts."

Lines during the 2020 primary elections were longer in Houston's mostly minority, Democratic neighborhoods, which elections officials blamed on the local GOP's refusal to hold a joint primary that year. Republican accused the county of trying to shift the blame and said officials in Texas' largest county failed to heed warnings about high turnout.

Rangers hire 3-time World Series champion Bochy as manager

By STEPHEN HAWKINS

AP Baseball Writer

The Texas Rangers have hired Bruce Bochy as their manager, bringing the three-time World Series champion with 2,003 career victories out of a short retirement to take over a team that has had six consecutive losing seasons.

Texas made the surprising announcement Friday, just more than two weeks after its season ended. Bochy agreed to a three-year contract.

The 67-year-old Bochy hasn't managed since 2019, when he stepped away after 13 seasons and those World Series titles with the San Francisco Giants. The first championship came in five games over Texas in 2010, and the Giants won again in 2012 and 2014.

Rangers general manager Chris Young was a pitcher for San Diego in 2006, which was Bochy's final season with the Padres before going to San Francisco.

"As we went through the interview process, Bruce's passion and excitement about returning to the dugout was very evident," Young said. "It became clear he was the ideal individual to lead our club as we continue to build a championship culture here in Arlington."

Bochy was 951-975 in 12 seasons with the Padres (1995-2006) and took them to the last World Series in 1998. The former big league catcher had a 1,052-1,054 record in San Francisco from 2007-19.

The Rangers said they'd hold an introductory news conference on Monday. Bochy said in a statement he was excited to be joining the team after several days of extensive conversations with Young and a meeting with owner Ray Davis.

"Their vision and commitment to putting together a club that can contend and win year in and year out is impressive, and I became convinced I wanted to be a part of that," Bochy said. "If I was going to return to managing, it had to be the right situation. I strongly believe that to be the case with the Rangers, and I can't wait to get started."

The Chicago White Sox, Kansas City Royals and Miami Marlins have the three remaining manager openings among the 30 teams.

Fourth-year Rangers manager Chris Woodward was fired Aug. 15, two days before president of baseball operations Jon Daniels was also let go. Texas went on to finish 68-94, eight wins more than 2021 but what Young said after the season "was about half of our internal expectations." They lost 35 one-run games, a franchise record.

Texas was 17-31 under interim manager Tony Beasley, the longtime Rangers third base coach who was once Young's manager in the minor leagues. Several young players got extended looks during that span, and the GM said in August that Beasley wouldn't be judged solely on win-loss record. Beasley was interviewed for the job two days after the season ended.

When speaking after the season, Young had declined to comment when asked specifically if the managerial search could proceed without knowing whether Bochy had interest in the job. But he acknowledged then how much he loved playing for Bochy and expressed his respect for the man he considers one of the most successful and respected managers in the major leagues.

"With a calm and steady presence, he has a remarkable ability to connect and communicate with players, coaches, and staff, and his teams have always played with maximum effort," Young said Friday. "His knowledge of the game, as well as his integrity is unmatched."

Texas last offseason committed a half-billion dollars to free-agent shortstop Corey Seager ($325 million, 10 years) and second baseman Marcus Semien ($175 million, seven years), and also signed right-hander Jon Gray ($56 million, four years) to be their No. 1 starter. Left-hander Martin Perez was an All-Star after returning on a one-year deal before spring training.

While there were never any expectations that the Rangers would go from 102 losses in 2021 immediately to a title contender after that big spending spree, they never had a winning record at any point this season and peaked at 24-24 at the end of May. The six consecutive losing seasons are the most in the half-century since the franchise moved to Texas in 1972.

Davis has indicated the team is ready to add to its starting rotation, and potentially sign a middle-of-the-lineup bat.

"I don't plan on spending as much money as we did last offseason," he said. "But we plan on spending some money."

Column: Dusty Baker takes another run at that elusive title

By PAUL NEWBERRY

AP Sports Columnist

Johnnie B. Baker Jr. — he answers to Dusty — has built a lifetime of memories by bearing witness to some of baseball's significant moments.

It might be more appropriate to call him Forrest Gump.

When Hank Aaron hit his 715th homer, Baker was kneeling in the on-deck circle.

When Steve Bartman reached over a Wrigley Field railing in an ill-fated pursuit of that foul ball, Baker watched in stoic disbelief from the dugout.

He was there, too, for epic pennant races and champagne-soaked celebrations from coast to coast.

Yet one thing — and it's a biggie — has eluded baseball's Renaissance man.

A World Series championship as a manager.

At 73, Baker may be staring at his last — and probably best — chance to fill in that one glaring omission on his resume.

He's six wins away with a stellar Houston Astros squad that chalked up 106 victories during the regular season, more than any team in a nearly three-decade-long managing career that should carry Baker to Cooperstown.

Dusty puts a philosophic spin on his quest.

Like a fine bottle of wine — another subject he knows a thing or two about — one can't uncork the bottle until the time is just right.

"You can't rush it before it gets here, because it ain't here yet," he said. "So you've just got to put yourself in a position to do it."

His players made it clear that giving Baker one of the few things he doesn't have is one of their most potent motivators.

"We love going out there every single day and competing for him," third baseman Alex Bregman said. "He loves this team. He loves winning. He loves the game of baseball. And a hundred percent we want to win for him."

Backing up his words with his bat, Bregman hit a homer that accounted for all the runs in Houston's 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees in Game 2 of the AL Championship Series, which now heads to the Bronx with the Astros up two games to none. Six wins to go for Baker.

Six wins to go.

Stop right there, he'll tell you. With age comes wisdom, and he's learned that ever single day is to be cherished. Six more wins might as well be another lifetime away. For a guy with far more days behind him than in front of him, there's no need to hasten the journey.

"I'm just taking it one game at a time and just living my life," Baker explained. "You can't live too far in the future or else you're not really enjoying today."

Baker got a glimpse of what he was in for as a manager in his very first season at the helm.

The year was 1993, and Baker took over a San Francisco Giants team that went 72-90 the previous season but had signed the game's best player, Barry Bonds.

With a not-yet-bulked-up Bonds leading the way, the Giants won 103 games. They also happened to play in the same division as the Atlanta Braves, who won 104. In the last season before the wild card, the Giants sat at home with the game's second-best record.

And so it's gone for Baker ever since, plenty of regular-season joy mixed with staggering postseason heartbreak.

Flavor is front and center with this vegan lunch

Convenience has a tendency to reign supreme in regard to midday meals. Non-remote workers may simply opt for something from the nearest restaurant come lunchtime, while even those who work from home may eat last night's leftovers. Indeed, a hectic workday often guarantees that nutrition will be out-ranked by convenience on lunchtime priority lists.

But that doesn't mean midday meals can't be healthy. In fact, those who make time to eat right at lunchtime may feel more energized throughout the rest of the day. That's certainly possible for anyone willing to try this recipe for "Panko-Crusted Tofu Sandwich With Apple and Celery Remoulade Slaw" from Deb Roussou's "350 Best Vegan Recipes" (Robert Rose). Hearty enough to ensure you won't be hungry after lunch hour but healthy enough to make you feel better about your midday eating habits, this sandwich packs a flavorful punch that vegans and non-vegans alike can appreciate.

Panko-Crusted Tofu

Sandwich With Apple and Celery Remoulade Slaw
Serves 4

Apple and Celery Remoulade Slaw

1/4 cup creamy mayonnaise or store-bought vegan alternative
2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice

1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons chopped fresh tarragon
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
3 stalks celery with leaves, thinly sliced

1 Granny Smith apple, grated

1 pound tofu, drained and pressed
1/4 cup dry white wine
4 ounces firm or extra-firm silken tofu
6 tablespoons plain soy milk
3/4 teaspoons salt, divided

1/2 cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
3 cups panko bread crumbs
1/4 cup canola oil, divided

4 potato rolls or vegan store-bought sandwich rolls, split and warmed

1/4 cup creamy mayonnaise or store-bought vegan alternative

1 tomato, sliced
2 cups baby arugula

1. Apple and Celery Remoulade Slaw: In a bowl, whisk together mayonnaise, lemon juice, mustard, tarragon, salt and pepper. Stir in celery and apples, mixing well to combine. Taste and season with additional salt and pepper, if needed. Set aside.

2. Cut pressed firm tofu in half crosswise. Set each half on one narrow side and cut each into two 1-inch pieces. Pour wine into a shallow bowl and lay tofu slices in wine.

3. In a 2-cup glass measuring cup, using immersion blender or in upright blender, combine silken tofu, soy milk and 1/4 teaspoon of the salt and puree into a very smooth sauce. Pour mixture into a shallow bowl and set aside. In a third shallow bowl, whisk together flour, cornstarch, black pepper and remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt. Place bread crumbs in a fourth shallow bowl.

4. Working in batches, flip tofu in wine to dampen both sides, then remove from wine. Dredge tofu in flour mixture, turning to coat all sides and transfer to milk mixture. Using a fork and fingers, turn tofu to generously coat all sides. Using fork and fingers, lift and transfer tofu to bread crumbs and coat all sides, pressing lightly to help crumbs adhere. Transfer coated tofu to prepared baking sheet.

5. Place a large, heavy-bottomed skillet over medium-high heat and let pan get hot. Add 2 tablespoons of the oil and heat until it shimmers. Carefully place 1 or 2 tofu pieces at a time into hot oil and cook until bottom is golden brown and crusty, 1 to 1 1/2 minutes. Flip tofu and cook until bottom is crispy, about 1 minute. Transfer to a platter lined with paper towels to drain. Continue with remaining tofu, adding more oil and adjusting heat as necessary between batches.

6. Spread roll halves with mayonnaise. Layer bottom half of roll with Remoulade Slaw, crispy tofu, tomato slices and arugula. Top with other roll half and press lightly. Cut each sandwich on the diagonal and serve.

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass Pass Pass 1♥
Pass 3♣

Opening lead — ten of spades.
Odd things sometimes occur during the bidding — even in world championships. Consider this deal from a match between the United States and Thailand some years ago.
With a U.S. pair North-South, the bidding went as shown. Certainly a majority of players would open the South hand with one club, but the American South in this case elected to pass his aceless 12-point hand.
But something went drastically wrong on the next round when North passed South's jump-shift

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♣	Pass	1NT
Pass	2♠	Pass	3NT

The opening one-club bid, in the Bangkok System, was artificial. It showed 12 to 20 high-card points, and furthermore denied a five-card or longer suit, except possibly in clubs. The one-notrump response was forcing to game and asked for clarification of the opening bid.
South's two-club rebid showed at least five clubs and minimum values, but North then made no allowance — when he jumped to three notrump — for the possibility that South could have the sort of hand he had.
East made the normal opening lead of a diamond, and North could not avoid going down two for a net loss of 330 points on the deal.

Today in History:
October 24, the UN charter takes effect

Today is Monday, Oct. 24, the 297th day of 2022. There are 68 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Oct. 24, 1945, the United Nations officially came into existence as its charter took effect.

On this date:
In 1537, Jane Seymour, the third wife of England's King Henry VIII, died 12 days after giving birth to Prince Edward, later King Edward VI.

In 1861, the first transcontinental telegraph message was sent by Chief Justice Stephen J. Field of California from San Francisco to President Abraham Lincoln in Washington, D.C., over a line built by the Western Union Telegraph Co.

In 1940, the 40-hour work week went into effect under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938.

In 1952, Republican presidential candidate Dwight D. Eisenhower declared in Detroit, "I shall go to Korea" as he promised to end the conflict. (He made the visit over a month later.)

In 1962, a naval quarantine of Cuba ordered by President John F. Kennedy went into effect during the missile crisis.

In 1972, Hall of Famer Jackie Robinson, who'd broken Major League Baseball's modern-era color barrier in 1947, died in Stamford, Connecticut, at age 53.

In 1991, "Star Trek" creator Gene Roddenberry died in Santa Monica, California, at age 70.

In 1992, the Toronto Blue Jays became the first non-U.S. team to win the World Series as they defeated the Atlanta Braves, 4-3, in Game 6.

In 1996, TyRon Lewis, 18, a Black motorist, was shot to death by police during a traffic stop in St. Petersburg, Florida; the incident sparked rioting. (Officer James Knight, who said that Lewis had lurched his car at him several times, knocking him onto the hood, was cleared by a grand jury and the Justice Department.)

In 2002, authorities apprehended John Allen Muhammad and teenager Lee Boyd Malvo near Myersville, Maryland, in the Washington-area sniper attacks. (Malvo was later sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole, but Maryland's highest court has agreed to reconsider that sentence in 2022; Muhammad was sentenced to death and executed in 2009.)

In 2005, civil rights icon Rosa Parks died in Detroit at age 92.

In 2020, heavily protected crews in Washington state worked to destroy the first nest of so-called murder hornets discovered in the United States.

Ten years ago: Less than two weeks before Election Day, President Barack Obama set out on a 40-hour campaign marathon through battleground states; Republican Mitt Romney looked to the Midwest for a breakthrough in a close race shadowed by a weak economy. Hurricane Sandy roared across Jamaica and headed toward Cuba, before taking aim at the eastern United States. The San Francisco Giants took the first game of the World Series, 8-3, over the Detroit Tigers, as Pablo Sandoval became the fourth player to hit three home runs in a World Series game.

Five years ago: Republican Sen. Jeff Flake of Arizona announced that he would not seek re-election in 2018; he'd been critical of the path the GOP had taken under President Donald Trump. Fats Domino, the rock 'n' roll pioneer whose hits included "Blueberry Hill" and "Ain't That a Shame," died in Louisiana at the age of 89. Actor Robert Guillaume, who won Emmy awards for his portrayal of the sharp-tongued butler in the sitcoms "Soap" and "Benson," died in Los Angeles at 89. In a game that began in 103-degree heat, the Los Angeles Dodgers opened the World Series with a 3-1 victory over the Houston Astros in Los Angeles; Clayton Kershaw was the winning pitcher in his World Series debut.

One year ago: Pope Francis called for an end to the practice of returning migrants rescued at sea to Libya and other unsafe countries. Denis Villeneuve's "Dune" debuted with $40.1 million in ticket sales in its opening weekend in North America, drawing a large number of moviegoers to see the thundering sci-fi epic on the big screen despite it also being available to stream in homes. British pop star Ed Sheeran said he had tested positive for COVID-19 and would do interviews and performances from his house while he self-isolated. Tom Brady became the first player to throw 600 career touchdown passes and then tacked on two more in Tampa Bay's 38-3 rout over the Chicago Bears.

Today's Birthdays:
Rock musician Bill Wyman is 86. Actor F. Murray Abraham is 83. Movie director-screenwriter David S. Ward is 77. Actor Kevin Kline is 75. Congressman and former NAACP President Kweisi Mfume (kwah-EE'-see oom-FOO'-may) is 74. Actor Doug Davidson is 68. Actor B.D. Wong is 62. Actor Zahn McClarnon is 56. Singer Michael Trent (Americana duo Shovels & Rope) is 45. Rock musician Ben Gillies (Silverchair) is 43. Singer-actor Monica Arnold is 42. Actor-comedian Casey Wilson is 42. R&B singer, actor and TV personality Adrienne Bailon Houghton is 39. Actor Tim Pocock is 37. R&B singer-rapper-actor Drake is 36. Actor Shanae Grimes is 33. Actor Eliza Taylor is 33. Actor Ashton Sanders (Film: "Moonlight") is 27. Olympic gold medal gymnast Kyla Ross is 26. Actor Hudson Yang is 19.

Lunar Lightness

How light can you get? Inside every flaw there is an opportunity to explore. Inside every problem there is fuel to light. Can you transmuted your trouble into an anecdote or a catalyst? A fortuitous connection or invention? The moon in Libra explores possibilities in the antics of angles to Saturn, Mercury, Neptune, Mars and finally Pluto.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You've been fed a few falsehoods along the way, perhaps not even worth calling out. You'll chalk it up to people serving their own agendas without regard to the greater good. When it's your turn, you'll do better.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The luck is not handed down or handed out. The luck is stumbled upon by seekers or by soldiers on the job. Keep after your project and don't worry about good fortune; it will find you quite on its own.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The thought may cross your mind that if you let one thing go -- a token, a possession, an idea, a relationship -- you'll lose a part of yourself as well. You own what you own. Be confident in your ability to hold on to what you have.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The cosmic backdrop is complicated, and so are you. Something felicitous is likely to form out from the unique chemistry of this day. You'll magnetize a new friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Like a blink, a thought can be involuntary or voluntary. The thoughts of the world will drift like clouds through the sky of your mind. Also, you can choose a thought and think it at will -- a highly recommended and lucky choice today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). If you leave it up to the fates, they will fill in your agenda, no problem, with the call of duty at every hour and a responsibility around every corner. The fates don't do fun. You'll have to take the reins; throw it into the mix yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). If you want people to know what's on your mind, you'll send the signal, likely through action and not the inferior system known as words. When you don't want people to know what you're thinking, they won't be able to read you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Loyalty is the quality you admire and uphold. There may be an opportunity to sacrifice a bit of it at the altar of humor and gossip, but you'll be happier if you don't. Ask your better angels to guide your tongue.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You could turn a sympathetic ear, and such a compassionate reception would be welcome, although it brings but mild results. Nurturing and sympathy are soon forgotten. Inspire action instead. Bring about change.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're working on a problem even when you think you're not. Unusual thoughts pop to mind, and your dreams take a highly creative turn, too. This will influence a relationship and where you take things next.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Remember when you had excellent financial timing? You bought low and watched the value increase, and then you took things to market at the perfect moment to make a profit. Get ready because another such moment is coming.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 24). You're enterprising and don't need anyone else to point out where the opportunities lie. You have a sense of where the fun is and an even stronger sense for untapped opportunities and hidden resources. Discomfort is a necessary part of growth. The prickliness becomes less noticeable when a pursuit is extremely attractive. You move through it unthinkingly as the goal draws you ever nearer. Capricorn and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 11, 3, 33 and 14.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: New releases starring Kevin Kline include a drama "The Diary," written and directed by Jackie Chan, and the television series "Disclaimer." Despite being an Oscar winner, Kline confesses, "I've never felt completely satisfied with what I've done. I tend to see things too critically." Perhaps the deluge of emotional water sign energy in Kline's natal chart has him too emotionally connected to the moment to witness his own greatness.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
