5.4 quake jolts West Texas, one of state's strongest ever

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — One of the strongest earthquakes in Texas history struck Friday evening in a western region of the state that's home to oil and fracking activity. There were no immediate reports of damage or injuries.

Several people in Big Spring reported feeling the quake when it occurred.

The U.S. Geological Survey said the temblor had a magnitude of 5.4 and struck at 5:35 p.m., local time. It was centered about 14 miles (22 kilometers) north-northwest of Midland, with a depth of about 5.6 miles (9 kilometers).

The agency had previously issued a preliminary magnitude of 5.3 before updating it. In the interim, the National Weather Service's office in Midland tweeted that it "would be the 4th strongest earthquake in Texas state history!"

Geophysicist Jana Pursley at the USGS's National Earthquake Information Center in Colorado said that according to early reports received by the agency, the quake was felt by more than 1,500 people over a large distance from Amarillo and Abilene in Texas to as far west as Carlsbad, New Mexico.

"It's a sizable earthquake for that

Symphony brings holiday cheer to Howard County

Top, Conductor Dr. Keith Graumann and the Big Spring Symphony Orchestra performed their annual Holiday Spectacular concert Saturday in the Big Spring High School Auditorium.

By ROGER CLINE
 Managing Editor

The Big Spring Symphony Orchestra's annual Holiday Spectacular never fails to bring the Christmas spirit to West Texas. This year's show was this past Saturday evening, and once again, the Symphony's mix of religious and secular holiday music, instrumentals, soloists, and voices of the Howard College Choir combined to bring the holidays to life.

"I thought it went really well. It was very musical," said Dr. Mark Watt, director of the Howard College Choir. "Everybody that participated really seemed to be into the music, and I just thought it was a very solid concert. I was very proud of our kids."

Following the traditional playing of the National Anthem at the start of the show, the Orchestra performed two medleys of Christmas music: Fanfare & Celebration, arranged by David Culross; Brassy Holidays by Scott Hale.

Next was the well-known March of the Toys from the Hollywood Christmas classic Babes in Toyland; followed by Shepherds Hey by Percy Grainger and Carol of the Drum, an arrangement of The Little Drummer Boy, arranged by K.K. Davis.

Christmas festivities provide support to United Way

United Way board members and agency representatives hosted Breakfast with Santa at the Courtyard on Saturday.

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Contributing Writer

The festivities continued this past weekend as the United Way of Big Spring and Howard County and their agencies served up some holiday fun.

"One good thing about our community is that there are numerous opportunities to make memories with your family," Christian Fair, Executive Director of the United Way of Big Spring and Howard County, said. "Even better, in the process of making these memories we can support agencies who do so much for our community throughout the year."

There was an opportunity to enjoy some holiday painting at the Victim Services Paint and Sip with Santa on Friday evening. Friends, families and community members took a few hours to enjoy some hot chocolate and paint Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer at Ryan Hall, while supporting a good cause.

"This was our first Paint and Sip fundraiser event, all donations go to the United Way of Big Spring. We were honored to have the families and friends that came to the event to show support and have a great time," Chavonna Parker, Co-Director at Victim Services, said. "We learned a lot from this event, and we hope for a bigger event next year."

Melba Jean Smith

Melba Jean Smith, 85, passed away the morning of Thursday, Dec. 15, 2022. She is preceded in death by her parents, Lillian Opal and William Frank Bertrand; her siblings, William Walter Bertrand, Wallace Ray Bertrand, and Betty Jo Warner.

She is survived by: her children, Pam Powell and husband, Jim; Jennifer Hargrave, Rodney Smith and wife, Melissa. Grandchildren:

Kelsey Kaufmann and husband, Rich; Megan Warren and husband, Matthew; Hayden Smith and wife, Michaela; Bailey Smith and wife, Beth.

She is also survived by: four great-grandsons, Kaleb Kaufmann, Lyam Kaufmann, Hudson Smith, and Sutton Smith and various nieces, nephews, and their families. Melba was born on a dairy farm near Abilene, Sept. 20, 1937, the youngest of four.

She attended Wylie schools through her sophomore year of high school and graduated from Abilene High School. Melba married and had three children and spent her early years in Abilene, moved to Midland, finally settling in Big Spring where all three kids attended and graduated from school.

Her most memorable jobs were at KBST Radio in Big Spring where she was the bookkeeper and Western Container where she served various roles. She retired in 2002 from Western Container after 20 years and moved to Kerrville.

She lived her last several years surrounded by family in the Dallas area. Melba was a faithful member of various Methodist churches throughout her life and enjoyed making friends through Bible study groups and Sunday School classes.

She became a member of Beta Sigma Phi, a service organization, in 1966 and served many years alongside ladies that became lifelong friends. She will be remembered for her style and sass, her love of sports, Mexican food, and most importantly her strong faith.

She will forever be our very own yellow rose of Texas. A graveside service will be held at a later date in Abilene. In lieu of flowers, memorial gifts may be made to Harmony Dance Team, through their website harmonydanceteam.com.

Charles Green

Charles Green, 84, went to be with the Lord Thursday, Dec. 15, 2022. Visitation will be 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. with family receiving friends from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. at Myers & Smith Funeral Home. Funeral service will be 2 p.m. Wednesday at 14th and Main Church of Christ with burial at Trinity Memorial Park.

Charles was born Oct. 19, 1938, in Smithville, to Izell and Will Johnson. She spent most of her adult life in Big Spring and was a member of West Highway 80 Church of Christ.

Charles and all of her sisters were choir directors. She would make copies before copiers; she would write out everything for choir members. She was a coach for softball and a voting judge. She owned her own beauty shop and was co-owner of Johnnie Green's Barbecue. She was fun-loving and never met a stranger. She had an open door policy. She made sure no matter what the funds were they always had a vacation.

She leaves behind those who will cherish her memory: 5 children, Debra Clark (Ron) of Murfreesboro, TN, Johnny Green of Big Spring, Delbert Green (Tony) of Big Spring, Carl Green (Sheriel) of Big Spring and Tim Green (Cathy) of Big Spring; 1 special son, Gary Jones of Lubbock; 3 sisters, Wilene Knox of Big Spring, Jennie Clark of Odessa, and Izell "Twinkle" White of Murfreesboro, TN; 2 brothers, Ullis Johnson and Roy (R.C.) Johnson; 29 grandchildren; and 37 great-grandchildren.

Charles was preceded in death by her husband, Johnnie Green; parents, Izell and Will Johnson; 3 brothers, Melvin, Robert Lee and Frederick (Tee) Johnson.

Arrangements are under the direction of Myers & Smith Funeral Home. Pay you respects online at www.myersandsmith.com region," Pursley said, adding, "In that region such an event will be felt for a couple of hundred miles."

The quake was followed shortly after by a less-intense aftershock, and Pursley said there could be more going forward with declining magnitude.

"I haven't received any information about damages but it can crack stucco or driveways close to epicenter," she added.

A quake of similar magnitude struck West Texas a month ago. That Nov. 16 temblor was measured at 5.3 and had an epicenter about 95 miles (153 kilometers) west of Midland.

CONCERT

The orchestra next performed three Christmas hits by instrumental favorite Mannheim Steamroller, all arranged by that group's founder, Chip Davis: Deck the Halls; God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen; and Pat-a-Pan.

Soloist Lawrence Thibeault next joined the orchestra, singing the famous holiday classic written by crooner Mel Torme and first popularized by Nat King Cole: The Christmas Song.

The Howard College Choir, under the direction of Dr. Watt, next joined the Orchestra onstage, performing Johannes Brahms' O Schöne Nacht (Beautiful Night); and Joyous Carols of Christmas, arranged by Joseph Martin.

The intermission followed, and as the orchestra took a break, Santa and Mrs. Claus put in an appearance, delivering goodies to children in the audience.

The second half of the evening's music led off with Leroy Anderson's well-known holiday instrumental hit Sleigh Ride; followed by a nod to those who celebrate the nine days of Hanukkah at this time of year, a performance of Fantasia on Yerushalayim Shel Zahav, by Robert Wendel.

Soloist Nadia Kiley next joined the Orchestra, singing Cantique de Noel, also known as O Holy Night, by composer Adolphe Adam. Kiley was then joined by Thibeault, and the pair sang a duet version of Do You Hear What I Hear? by Noel Regney.

The audience got to participate in the next part of the concert, as the orchestra played a Christmas Sing-A-Long arranged by John Fennagin.

The orchestra next played Brazilian Sleigh Bells by Lee Norris.

The Howard College Choir next returned to the stage with a traditional spiritual entitled Ain't No Grave Can Hold My Body Down, followed by Gustav Holst's Christmas Day, featuring soloists Jayden Tubb (bass), Krista Coffman (soprano), and Avree Tubb (mezzo-soprano).

The orchestra and soloists next led another sing-a-long, this one featuring popular Christmas music, arranged by Lee Norris.

After a thunderous ovation, the orchestra gave a single encore performance of Brazilian Sleigh Bells.

The Symphony's next performance will be Feb. 19, and will feature a duet performance by soprano Nicole Keeling and bass Dorian McCall, who hails from Chicago.

On April 22, the symphony will give their Spring Pops Concert, featuring the Dave Alexander Band.

UNITED WAY

According to Parker, there were 46 attending the first Paint and Sip. All proceeds will benefit the United Way, which in turn supports local agencies such as Victim Services.

"I enjoyed the atmosphere. It was fun and comfortable. It was easy going and allowed you to paint at your own pace. I laughed and had a great time with my daughter, Harley," Cheryl Franco, one of the attendees at Paint and Sip, said. "They had plenty to drink and eat. I would go to another event."

The Christmas spirit continued to shine with a special Breakfast with Santa, at The Courtyard. Members of the United Way board and representatives from supported agencies were on hand to greet families as they enjoyed a pancake breakfast with Santa and Mrs. Claus.

"Our agencies and board members were able to spread some Christmas spirit as families came in to make a few more special memories this holiday season," Fair said. "Santa scheduled in one more visit before heading back to the North Pole to prepare for the big night. We appreciate all those who took the time to enjoy breakfast and took the opportunity to share their wish list with Santa."

According to Fair, there were about 70 who attended the Breakfast with Santa. All proceeds from the event will go toward helping meet the goal for the campaign season. This year, the United Way of Big Spring and Howard County set the goal at $250,000 to help the 15 supported agencies.

"Our agencies provide an array of services, and when we stop and think about it, we all know someone who has been impacted by one or more of these agencies. We all hit times where we need a helping hand or a little support and knowing there are people there to help is a great comfort; it's an even better feeling to know that throughout the year, we can come together as a community and return the support to those agencies and those serving those agencies," Fair said.

The United Way campaign will wrap up shortly, but donations are always accepted and much appreciated. Those wanting to make a donation can do so by reaching out to a United Way board member or by stopping by the office at 215 W. Third.

Big Spring's Brandon Clemmons and Randall Shaw earn first THSCA Cross Country Regional Coach of the Year Awards

By PATRICK GONZALES
Herald Sports Writer

Brandon Clemmons Randall Shaw

Last week The Texas High School Coaches Association and Texas Farm Bureau announced it's first ever Cross Country Regional Coach of the Year Awards and two Big Spring coaches were recognized.

Big Spring head cross country coach Brandon Clemmons and assistant coach Randall Shaw received the first ever regional awards. Clemmons received the Regional Head Coach of the Year for Class 4A Boys, while Shaw received the Regional Assistant Coach of the Year for Class 4A Boys.

In his third year at the helm, coach Clemmons has led the Steers cross country team to UIL State Cross Country Meet two years in a row along with coach Shaw where they have finished fourth overall.

According to a press release, THSCA recognizes cross country coaches across Texas for their achievements for the 2022 UIL Cross Country Season. These awards recognize coaches across the state of Texas for their exemplary achievements in the 2022-23 UIL Cross Country Season.

"THSCA is very passionate about the celebration of our coaches. Creating the Coach of the Year awards is an amazing opportunity to highlight the elite coaches across Texas," said Joe

Martin, the Executive Director of the THSCA. "We're excited to celebrate and honor almost 1,600 coaches across 23 different sports in Texas for their athletic accomplishments during the 2022-23 school year."

Congratulations to Big Spring High School Head Coach Brandon Clemmons on being selected as the Boys Cross Country 4A Regional Head Coach of the Year, and to Assistant Coach Randall Shaw for earning the Regional Assistant Boys Cross Country 4A Coach of the year!

TCU's Sonny Dykes named AP coach of the Year

By RALPH D. RUSSO
AP College Football Writer

TCU's Sonny Dykes was named The Associated Press Coach of the Year on Monday after leading the No. 3 Horned Frogs to the College Football Playoff in his first season with the school.

Dykes received 37 of 46 first-place votes and 120 points from AP Top 25 voters to become the second TCU to win the award, which is presented by Regions Bank.

The first two were won by Gary Patterson (2009, 2014), the coach Dykes replaced after last season.

"It's the ultimate team award," Dykes told AP. "It's indicative of literally everybody in our office, coaches, players, everybody, because more so than ever in college football it is truly a team effort."

TCU (12-1) faces No. 2 Michigan (13-0) on Dec. 31 in the Fiesta Bowl for a berth in the national championship game.

Tulane coach Willie Fritz was second with 40 points and two first-place votes, followed by Tennessee's John Heupel (38 points, one) and last year's winner, Jim Harbaugh of Michigan (28 points, five). Georgia's Kirby Smart (15 points) also received a first-place vote.

Dykes, 53, is in his fourth stop after stints with Louisiana Tech, California and SMU.

The Texan and son of longtime Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes, Sonny Dykes is 83-64 in 13 seasons as a head coach.

"It's not always like this and I've been on both ends and so something like this probably means more to me than it might somebody," Dykes said. "I've been 1-11 and I've been fired. I've been kind of on top and then on bottom, too. I'm always thankful for those bad times because it really truly does make you appreciate the good times more."

Dykes' path to AP coach of the year is unique. The award was established in 1998 and no coach had ever won his first coach of the year on his fourth stop as an Bowl subdivision head coach.

Dykes moved across town to take over at TCU after being with rival SMU for five years.

Playing against the Horned Frogs annually, he had a good idea of what kind of team he was getting.

Instead of a major roster overhaul of last season's 5-7 TCU team, Dykes dipped into the transfer portal to fill some holes, but mostly took what he inherited and turned it into one of the best teams in the country.

"Sometimes it's more about the chemistry of things and trying to get the chemistry of those rooms right as opposed to necessarily adding talent," Dykes said.

"That part of it, I think, is really overlooked. Just the chemistry and creating competition and all that."

The Horned Frogs started the season unranked and didn't lose until dropping the Big 12 championship in overtime to Kansas State.

"We really had no expectations whatsoever when the year started," Dykes said.

"We thought we had a chance to be pretty good, but we just gained confidence every week and we had some kids that really were tough and like to compete, and that made everything so much better."

Dykes is one of several head coaches in major college football right now who worked for Mike Leach early in his career.

Leach died last week at 61 of complications from a heart condition. He was in his third season at Mississippi State after stints at Texas Tech and Washington State.

Dykes called Leach one of the most influential people in his career, second only to his father.

"One of a kind, for sure," Dykes said.

Homemade for the Holidays

Recipe Corner

Put the finishing touch on Chanukah celebrations

Challah is a special bread within Jewish households that is cooked to herald the Sabbath and celebrate various holidays. Jewish scholars indicate that the history of challah can be traced to the scripture story of manna, or bread, that God sent to the Israelites in the wilderness. Also, during the days of the Temple in Jerusalem, Jews presented dough as an offering to priests, who used it to bake their own bread.

Challah can be sweet or savory, and leftovers can make for a delicious French toast base for breakfasts and brunches. Anyone can learn how to make challah for their holiday celebrations. Traditional challah is made with eggs and a shiny egg wash, but this plant-based version uses potato water starch in the recipe. Bake up a loaf or two with this recipe, courtesy of "Plant-Based Gourmet: Vegan Cuisine for the Home Chef" (Apollo Publishers) by chef Suzi Gerber.

Challah
Makes 2 loaves

- 3 Yukon Gold potatoes or other butter potatoes (about 1 1/2 pounds), peeled and cubed
- 1/3 cup safflower oil or avocado oil
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 5 cups all-purpose flour or gluten-free all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon kala namak (Indian black salt)
- 1 teaspoon turmeric powder
- 1 teaspoon sea salt
- 1 packet active instant dry yeast (approximately 1/4 ounce)
- 1/2 cup Homemade Butter (see below), softened and cut into cubes
- 1/3 cup oat milk

1. To make "potato water," combine the potatoes with 3 1/2 cups cold water in a large pot, bring to a boil, and keep at a boil for 20 minutes, uncovered. The liquid level should reduce to about 2 cups.
2. Drain the potatoes, and reserve the liquid.
3. Combine 1 1/2 cups of the potato water with the safflower oil and sugar in a mixing bowl or a large measuring cup with a pour spout (reserve the remaining potato water). Whisk until sugar is completely dissolved.

4. Combine the flour, cornstarch, kala namak, turmeric, and sea salt in a stand mixer and whisk to combine. Make sure there are no salt clusters for the yeast to come in contact with, then slowly add the yeast.

5. Change the mixer attachment to a dough hook, and slowly add the potato-water mixture to the dry ingredients while mixing. This slow pour should take about a minute.

6. Add in the softened butter, 1 cube at a time, until fully incorporated.

7. Knead the dough hook on medium-high (number 6 on standard home machines) for 10 minutes, keeping an eye on the elasticity of the dough. Pinch and pull the dough to check its elasticity: When ready, it should stretch like a rubber band and reach about 10 inches without breaking.

8. Let the dough rise, covered, for 45 minutes at room temperature. It should double in size.

9. Portion the dough into 2 equal blocks. Divide each block into thirds to form a traditional straight braid, or into 4 sections to form a round braid. Roll the pieces into equal-sized ribbons that are at least 18 inches long. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper and braid the ribbons directly on the parchment, tucking the ends under and pinching them together.

10. Cover again and let rise a second time, for 30 to 45 minutes. The dough should dramatically increase in size, eliminating any gaps in the braid.

11. Preheat the oven to 375 F.

12. While the bread rises, combine the remaining potato water (about 1/2 cup) with the cornstarch in a small saucepan. Bring to a simmer, whisk often until a thick gel forms, and then remove from the heat.

13. Slowly add the oat milk to the gel, whisking until the gel is thin enough to paint.

14. Brush a generous and even amount of the starch-and-oat-milk wash onto the risen bread right before placing in the oven.

15. Bake for 40 to 45 minutes, rotating once halfway through. Remove once the crust is smooth and dark and the bottom is strong. When you thump the bottom with your finger, it should sound hollow. The internal temperature should be 190 to 200 F.

16. Paint the loaves again with more of the wash and let cool. Store in zip-top bags. Keep for 3 to 5 days (if they last you that long!) at room temperature, or up to 6 months if frozen.

17. If you over-proof or let the finished loaves sit out uncovered or past 5 days and they get hard, it's French toast time.

Homemade Butter
Makes approximately 2 1/2 cups

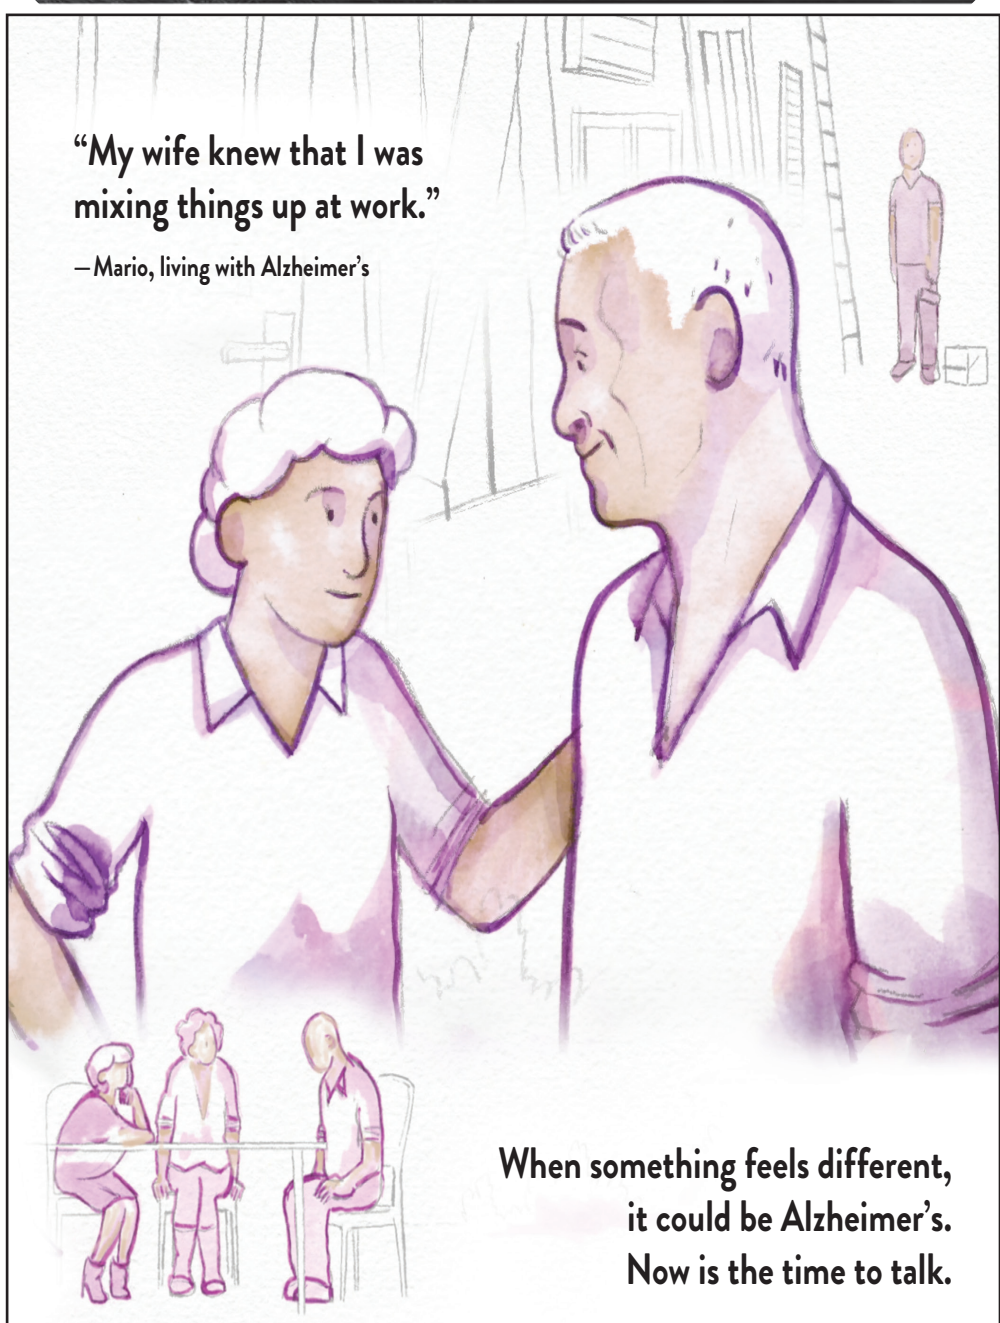

- 1 cup hempseed milk or full-fat canned coconut milk
- 1 tablespoon apple cider vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 3/4 cups melted refined coconut oil (the kind that is solid at room temperature)
- 3 tablespoons safflower oil, avocado oil, or sunflower oil
- 1 tablespoon sunflower lecithin powder or 1 1/2 teaspoons liquid lecithin
- 1/2 teaspoon arrowroot powder

1. Combine the hempseed milk, apple cider vinegar, and salt and stir. Allow to curdle for 5 to 10 minutes.
2. In a blender or food processor, combine the milk mixture with the remaining ingredients and blend for 2 minutes on high.
3. Pour the mixture into a stick mold or any shape tub and freeze for at least 3 hours.
4. Keeps for up to 1 month in the fridge or up to 6 months in the freezer. Tip: Use the boiled potatoes from making the potato water and turn into mashed potatoes or potato pancakes.
