TAXPAYERS—KILL THIS PROPOSAL!

Telephone Bank Unnecessary

All of us are concerned with our steadily increasing tax burden that results from excessive federal spending, and many of us could cite some expensive government projects that the American public could afford to do without. A typical one is the proposed $300 million "Rural Telephone Bank" which would finance co-operatives with taxpayers' funds at low rates of interest.

Not only would the government bank compete unfairly with tax-paying financial institutions, but it would also commit federal involvement in this area until 1984. Under pending legislation the Rural Electrification Administration would continue to make loans to telephone co-ops at only 2 per cent interest. We believe that any federal business-type activities involving credit should provide that interest rates and maturities be based on market realities.

The proposed "bank" is not necessary to meet the needs of rural telephone cooperatives, and its establishment would create a precedent for setting up a Rural Electric Bank, another project that taxpayers would not welcome.

Creation of new unneeded government corporations is not in the public interest.

STOP PASSING THE BUCK

For nearly every ill that besets the country, far too many people stand ready to blame the government. They blame it when some people do not have enough to eat; they blame it if there is an increase in unemployment; they blame it for the malfunction of countless welfare programs, just as they blame it when law enforcement breaks down and city streets become unsafe.

It appears that as we have become a nation of big government, we have also become a nation of buck passers. As long as we remain so, there is little doubt but that we will continue to demand more from government than it can provide. In return, we will continue to be swamped with near-confiscatory taxation and bureaucratic mishandling of the nation's affairs, since it is patently impossible for any governmental organization to successfully administer to the needs of a people who must be guided and subsidized through life.

The United States became a great nation as a result of the initiative and resourcefulness of private citizens. That is the only way it can continue to be a great nation, so we should stop passing the buck in Washington.

FACT AND OPINION

An Iowa Public Service Company release noted that 87 per cent of Americans die without having made wills. Nearly $100,000,000 accumulates in probate courts each week, because people "forgot" to make wills. See your lawyer today! Remember to make that will today; tomorrow may be too late.

A MAN WHO BELIEVED IN AMERICA

For millions of Americans the passing of Dwight D. Eisenhower, 34th President of the United States and commander of the allied armies in Europe, provided a solemn occasion for recalling the vital qualities of leadership in this Republic.

Gen. Eisenhower was a product of the American experience and embodied patriotic virtues which are essential to this country if it is to endure. At a time when there is disorder in the land and not inconsiderable disloyalty to its values, as evidenced among the militants of the New Left, it is timely to bear in mind what is basic to greatness and to the survival of the American system.

Nowadays, militants angrily denounce "The System," and call for its overthrow or radical alteration. The militants have their camp followers in politics who try to sell the idea that the United States is riddled with imperfections and in need of radical reconstruction. Some officeholders, sad to say, believe that it is smart to adopt the New Left's slogans about this being a land of hunger and hardship.

Dwight Eisenhower was a product of the American System and his success in life demonstrates how effective and workable that system is. He was born into a family of modest means. His father was a worker in a creamery in Abilene. Today, "liberals" no doubt would describe his family as "deprived" or "disadvantaged." But the Eisenhower family didn't see it that way. Members of the family worked hard; they had faith in America. Not only the future President but his brothers did well in careers, achieving substantial success. The story of the Eisenhower family is the story of countless other American families of modest means who believed in the virtues of work, thrift, and loyalty to God and country.

The man who later in life was to command the largest force of free men ever committed to battle was a man brought up to believe in self-reliance. He didn't have the comforts and pleasures of other young men from more affluent circumstances, but he didn't complain. He relied on his own abilities and energies. He didn't expect an OEO or any other agency to provide him with instant prosperity.

For the young Eisenhower, service to country was a wonderful opportunity, not something to be avoided by taking refuge in graduate school. Throughout life, he adhered to West Point's injunction to follow the path of duty, honor and courage. These concepts are a million light years away from what the New Left intelligentsia teaches today. Instead of stressing duty, the "liberal" intellectuals urge young men to avoid national service. Honor is scorned by the Left intelligentsia as an outmoded concept. Instead, they urge the young to seek peace at any price, to believe that it's better to be "died than dead." Finally, courage in defense of one's country is dismissed by radicals as a shopworn concept. They speak of the virtue of anarchy.

In the eight years that Dwight D. Eisenhower was President, he displayed none of the arrogance of power characteristic of some of his predecessors and successors. Though his administration disappointed some conservatives who hoped for a thorough house-cleaning of entrenched radical elements in the federal government, President Eisenhower was not afraid to show his belief in free enterprise. He brought businessmen into the Cabinet. As a result, America's affluence gained greatly in the 1950s. Home ownership grew enormously during the Eisenhower years. American society was strengthened and stabilized.

Like other outstanding men, Gen. Eisenhower made mistakes in his appointments and his policies, but he acknowledged mistakes. He was extremely reluctant to give moral approval to court-ordered experiments with public education. It has been written that he felt he erred greatly in using troops at Little Rock in 1956.

In the main, however, Gen. Eisenhower was in the central current of American thinking. He understood the strength of the American system, and upheld it as a model of opportunity and enlightenment. He had no use for the strident doctrines of social revolution. He rejected the demagoguery and truth-twisting that is involved in describing America as a land of hunger and poverty. His confidence in the United States and its essential goodness and greatness should be remembered for years to come.

FEATURE AT FAIR PARK IN DALLAS

A BLACK-EYED MARTHA (Dawson is this flower child's last name) peers from underneath an outsize sunflower while Dana and Deborah Millet simply look at the camera—all in anticipation of the Spring Jubilee April 12-20 at Fair Park in Dallas. The entirely new nine-day spring event will combine the annual Flower and Garden Show, opening of the big summer Midway season, Jubilee Nights in the Cotton Bowl, free shows and exhibits, concerts and entertainment, ice skating, classic and antique automobiles, Artists' Market, an exciting bake-off with big prizes to winners, all activities in addition to specially planned spring landscaping and lighting throughout the park.

Spring Jubilee
Is Planned For Cotton Bowl

DALLAS — A spring shower of stars in the Cotton Bowl — that's the forecast for Jubilee Nights entertainment, a feature of the first Spring Jubilee April 12 through 20 at Fair Park in Dallas.

The stars will be Johnny Hartford, Gary Lewis & The Playboys, and Conway Twitty and The Lonely Blue Boys and Connie Smith and the Sundowners.

Fun at Fair Park is the aim of this first-ever spring fling, sponsored by the State Fair of Texas.

The free shows — Jubilee Nights in the Cotton Bowl — will begin at 7:30 each evening during the nine-day event, with each show scheduled for three evenings.

The first three nights, April 12, 13 and 14 will star Conway Twitty and The Lonely Blue Boys and Connie Smith and the Sundowners. Both of the stars have an impressive listing of network television and stage appearances, in addition to consistent showings on the country music record charts.

Johnny Hartford, the talented young singer who composed "Gentle On My Mind," will appear April 15, 16 and 17. Johnny is a double Grammy Award winner for the best Country and Western Song of 1967, and the Best Folk Performance of that song. His style is familiar to viewers of the Glen Campbell television show.

Sports Tips

GOLF

When you're playing a standard five-iron shot, the feet should be set apart a distance that corresponds to the width of your shoulders. When you play the longer irons and woods, spread the feet apart somewhat. And when you play the more lofted clubs, bring the feet closer together. After your game, a shower with Burley's special shower soap makes you feel you stroked under par.

Nutritionist To Hold Health Meeting In Burk

"Fakes and Swindles in Foods," a subject of interest to anyone interested in their own health will be covered in a special interest meeting Wednesday, April 16. The meeting will be at 10 a.m. in the Burk Burnett Texas Electric Auditorium.

Mrs. Frances Madden, Nutritionist for the Texas State Department of Public Health, will present the program. Mrs. Madden is well qualified to present the subject, so needed in the modern world where food fads are followed, because of a lack of knowledge.

With a B.S. degree from the University of Missouri, she completed dietitian internship at Presbyterian Hospital in New York City. She holds an M.A. degree from Columbia University in New York and has completed special work in Child Nutrition at the University of Washington in Seattle. Before assuming her present position, Mrs. Madden served as hospital dietitian for Baylor Hospital in Dallas and was on the faculty at the University of Missouri for four years.

Mrs. Madden lives with her family in Sherman, Tex. She has three children. Her husband, Fred Madden, is a veterinarian and began his practice in Wichita Falls several years ago.

The special meeting is open to public and is sponsored by the Wichita County Program Building Committee on Foods and Nutrition. Mrs. J. A. Fouts is chairman. Members of the committee are: Miss Alma Hair, Mrs. Lloyd Walker, Mrs. E. W. Roderick and Miss Marilyn Doelp. Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent, works with the sub-committee which plans all foods work of the Wichita County Home Demonstration Program.

'68 Miss Burk Tells Experiences

As Miss Burk Burnett, I have had a very special year; a year in which I have made many new friends and have learned many things about competition and responsibility. The enjoyable experience of both the Burk Burnett and State pageants will remain unforgettable memories and will always be my most cherished treasures.

I have found that the rewards from being a part of the pageant are many. To name only a few: the gaining of self confidence, poise, showmanship, and determination. Also the scholarships awarded me at both the Burk Burnett and State pageants have greatly assisted me in my first year of college.

I want to thank everyone for the wonderful encouragement given me during the State pageant in Fort Worth. The many telegrams, phone calls, letters and flowers that I received during the preliminaries will always be remembered. I especially want to thank the Modern Study Club for their steadfast loyalty, confidence, and encouragement during the state finals. Without them, there may not have been a Miss Burk Burnett pageant, and my wonderful year would never have been. I shall never forget it.

Girl Scouts And Leaders Entertain Day Care Center

The Burk Burnett Day Care Center were entertained by the Girls and leaders of Girl Scout Troop 45.

They sang songs and played games with the children while Easter eggs were hidden. The Girl Scouts adopted the "Buddy system" so that each child in the Day Care Center found several colored eggs.

After the egg hunt the Girls served refreshments to the children and staff of the Day Care Center.

The staff and children would like to thank the Girl Scouts and their leaders, Mrs. Vera Oelschlager and Mrs. Madge O'Leary for the eggs and refreshments and time that each gave in preparing this delightful experience for these children.

In the quest for world peace, agricultural production may be America's most potent weapon. It is one vital area where we far surpass the communist countries.

Furukawa Exhibition

A seven-story pagoda, a modern replica of an ancient Buddhist pagoda, standing 282 feet in height, will be the exhibition site for 32 Japanese companies at EXPO '70, Osaka, Japan. Their exhibition will be entitled the Furukawa exhibition.

The theme of the exhibition will be "Dreams of ancient and modern Japan: The Seven-Story Pagoda of the Todaiji Temple and Computopia."

The pagoda itself will be a reproduction of the one which once dominated the compound of the Todaiji Temple, noted for its Great Buddha, in Nara. It was originally built in the 8th century but later destroyed. Its modern replica hence symbolizes the dreams of antiquity.

Beneath it there will be an exhibition hall, the Computopia exhibition hall, where the most up-to-date electronic equipment will be displayed. In contrast to the dreams of antiquity, the Computopia exhibit will embody the dreams of modern Japan with its emphasis on the computer which has revolutionized modern society and opened new vistas.

The remote past and the ultra-modern, this theme will highlight the Furukawa exhibition of 32 Japanese companies.

Heeding Better Than Speeding for Label Reading

Have you joined America's popular new educational trend... speed reading?

Whether or not you decide to increase your ability to read fast, keep in mind there are times when reading accurately is more important than reading speedily.

One such time is when you read the label on a medicine container, says the Council on Family Health. Taking or giving medicine is so important to the health and safety of you and your family that you should understand the directions you are reading, and then double check yourself.

If you want to measure how well you understand what you read, test yourself by reading a medicine label in your home, says the Council, a non-profit organization sponsored as a public service by leading members of the drug industry.

Did you note the amount of medicine to be taken? Does the dosage vary for adults and children? How often should the medicine be taken?

If a liquid, should you shake the container well before pouring? Is it for external or internal use?

Does the label state the purpose of the medicine?

Are there instructions for proper storage... such as "Keep in a cool place." Should you take the medicine before or after eating?

Are there cautions as to certain activities that should be curtailed or discontinued while taking the medicine? Not all medicine labels contain all of the information listed above, but all information on each label is important. Heeding rather than speeding is the watchword when reading directions for the use of medicine, says the Council on Family Health.

DO YOU RECALL.....

THOSE WONDERFUL YEARS...

They shall abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness... The Lord has blessed us with children and now grandchildren. Our lives, and now theirs have been molded in the church. One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts. Pass on this priceless heritage to your children and grandchildren.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

MARAUDING FOR MARLIN

With engines opened a third forward, the sleek white Norseman slipped out of Crown Colony Club marina at Chub Cay in the Bahamas bent, like Norsemen of old, on plunder.

Capt. George Seemann stood at the wheel in full battle array—polo shirt, white shorts and battered sneakers. The mate and I rounded out the ship's company aboard Mitchell II, as formidable a marauder as you'll find among game fishing boats in southern waters. This is a craft that's powered for relentless pursuit and equipped to quickly track down and subdue its quarry. It was a thrill to be aboard.

I watched the mate prepare the balao and Spanish mackerel baits as Seemann steered us into Tongue of the Ocean, an outstanding fishing hole situated between Andros and New Providence Islands and Exuma Cays. The Tongue is a tumultuous crossroads of bait and game fish where veteran Vikings like Seemann pillage regularly. Marlin, sailfish, dolphin and other large predators hunt for the balao, mackerel and mullet that are constantly flushed by currents across the shoals at the tip of the Tongue into deep water—inviting forays by game fishermen.

Less than 15 minutes out we were putting over Spanish mackerel on 30-pound test Bonnyl monofilament with wire leaders for deep trolling. We were using the new Mitchell 1040 4/0 big game reels and nine thread 2792 Custom big game rods with roller guides and tip. We also set out lighter rigs—the versatile Ambassador 9000 casting and boat reels with six-thread 2791 Custom rods—and skipped balao for the surface feeders.

As we dropped the last of the balao astern, we passed a floating rip of seaweed and watched as a stubby dorsal broke the surface and sliced toward the baits. "Dolphin," Seemann hollered. Within seconds it socked into the balao and I grabbed the rod and reel and could feel the dolphin's vitality and strength. He leaped shaking his bluff head and the yellow, blue and green hues of his body seemed to rainbow in rage. He was a bull, running 40 to 50 pounds, and only after lots of tortuous leaping and running did I bring him to boat. He was a valiant fighter so we cut him loose.

As the mate set out another bait one of our deep lines tore loose from the outrigger and I pounced on the large rod and reel and backed into the fighting chair. It was exciting to watch the light blue Bonnyl fly off the husky reel into the deep water and wonder what indiscriminate feeding monster now unwittingly rushed into battle—moments and yards away. I let the line run out and allowed the fish to swallow the bait before I set the hook and adjusted to a heavy drag. I worked with him for 20 minutes before he broke water and identified himself. Blue marlin, all right, and it was plenty of strong running and gymnastic leaping for another 20 minutes before I had him at boat-side.

The purplish blue dorsal twitched in the water and the marlin's spear clattered against the boat. His was our first spear of the day and prospects for more action were very encouraging.
