No Conveniences In Burma Says Mrs. Carl Snyder

Teaching the first grade in Rockport Elementary School this year has few terrors for Mrs. Carl Snyder, who taught her own children and some of those belonging to other American technicians during four years she spent in Burma and Thailand, where her husband had gone to teach vocational agriculture.

"We were living in Hallettsville before we went to the Orient," she said, "and Carl was teaching vocational agriculture there, before he was employed by the state department and sent overseas as part of our foreign aid program."

"We landed in Rangoon, Burma, right after the British had been expelled and went up country to the capitol of the South Shan States—a place called Taungyi—and we stayed there for the next two years. We had a western style house, and after we got through fixing it up it appeared very spacious and elegant, but the kitchen was out in the yard.

"We had servants. We had to, because they were the only people that knew how to get things done with the lack of conveniences."

One of the things Mrs. Snyder missed worst was running water.

"We used a Shanghai bath," she said. "The servants brought a jar of water and put it in the bathroom and then you took a dipper and ladled it over you. The water ran off through a ditch in the floor. Most of the up-country places had open sewers."

Cooking was done with charcoal, over an open brazier, and, when Mr. Snyder was home, the family always tried to have American style cooking, because he had all the native food from fried crickets on up and down, and he didn't want it at home. However, Mrs. Snyder says, she had become quite used to native style dishes, either Chinese or Indian, before she returned to America.

"But it's funny," she said, "how hungry you can get for things you never even knew you liked when you can't get them. It wasn't safe to eat green vegetables of any kind without prolonged boiling, so we never had any salads. We were a long way from the American commissary, also, and it was a long way from the source of supply, so about the only thing you could get there was canned goods."

"We just had to make do with what we had or could get. We were supposed to get beef, but there were a number of times that Carl was sure the meat was buffalo. Whatever it was, it was always tough, for they never kill an animal over there for food unless it's old and tough. The native cooks would cook meat all day, and finally get it tender enough, but I never could."

You never had to wonder what sort of centerpiece a hostess would have on her table, especially if you caught her unawares, Mrs. Snyder said.

"There were all the pills you could think of, vitamin pills, malaria pills, salt tablets, and one of every kind that the drug companies make, I think. I know it sounds bad, but we had very little sickness of any sort, and I believe if we'd be as careful in this country as we were over there we'd be healthier here."

The Snyder children took it all in their stride.

When they went to Burma the oldest daughter, now going to school in Houston, was only 11; their son was 10; and their youngest daughter was only five, although today they're 17, 16, and 11, respectively.

"It was an adventure to our boy," Mrs. Snyder said.

"He learned to talk the vernacular, though he's forgotten most of it since we've been home, and he came and went pretty much as he pleased. I expect he knows more about Burmans and Thais than we do. The older daughter has outgrown her stay abroad, and the younger one has forgotten a lot of it. But they had lots of fun while we were there."

There were schools at Taungyi, and later in Rangoon, but they weren't too good, and so Mrs. Snyder taught the children herself, holding classes at home to supplement those in the schools.

"We used the Calvert plan, prepared for people like us who couldn't reach good schools, and with what I had learned obtaining a Bachelor of Science degree at the University of Houston, we made out reasonably well," Mrs. Snyder said. "At least we kept the two older youngsters more or less abreast of what they would have learned in this country, so they weren't too far behind when we got back. And in Bangkok, where we went after two years in Burma, it was easier. They had an International School there that children of American technicians attended."

It was easier living in Bangkok in other ways, also.

"There were quite a few people from America there, and you could get more of the things you were used to. Up country, particularly at first, it had been quite a strain talking to the natives, although after two years, when we left for Bangkok, we had become more used to it and I didn't mind it so much.

"And the Burmese and Thais were much alike—friendly and soft-spoken. But in Bangkok we had our own community of friends, and were near a doctor and things like that. There was a big American colony there, and you could get things like Coca-Cola and ice cream, and the restaurants would make you a good American hamburger or try to."

"When we were up at Taungyi, in the Shan country, we tried to make things like that but didn't have much luck. We'd buy Coca Cola syrup from the commissary and mix it ourselves, but some how, it never tasted much like a Coke."

"It was an interesting experience, but we were glad to get back, and get the children into American schools, where they can get some laboratory sciences and learn by experimentation. Over there everything was theory, and they were crammed full of that, but they couldn't learn by doing and some things just have to be learned that way."

The Snyders have built a new house up at Seventh and Cactus in Fulton; the two children at home have made new friends and have already fitted into the easy-going life of summer vacation time. This fall they will enter school here, while Mr. and Mrs. Snyder both teach in the Aransas County Independent School District.

Shrimp Landings Show Season Rise

Despite some grumbling from shrimp fishermen along the Texas coast, examination of Fish and Wildlife releases for June show that production for this year is only a little over a million pounds less for the first six months of this year than it was for the same period in 1957, while June production is up about the same amount over May this year.

During the period from January 1 to June 31, 1958, Texas fishermen produced 10,585,000 pounds of tails, as compared to 1,752,000 a year ago. June of this year produced 2,889,000 pounds of tails against 2,970,000 a year ago.

However, catches are on the upswing, according to statistical information gathered by the Service's specialists, and first place has been taken this month by the Aransas Pass-Corpus Christi area, where boats landed 916,000 pounds, compared with 435,000 pounds a month ago, and taking the lead from Brownsville, which dropped back to second place.

The Brownsville landings in May amounted to 551,000 pounds; in June they were up to 595,000. Third place goes to Freeport, whose 475,000 pounds of tails in June shows a very marked increase in landings at that port over the 123,000 pounds brought in there a month ago.

Port Isabel landed 450,000 pounds of tails in June, compared to 363,000 pounds in May; Rockport was fifth with a rise of almost 100,000 pounds in June, for a total of 195,000 against 98,000 the month before. Port Lavaca and Palacios landed 141,000 pounds against 73,000 in May, and last and lowest port on the Texas coast was Galveston, with only 117,000, although this too showed a rise from 48,000 pounds in May.

Port Arthur-Sabine reported no catches.

There were no oyster catches reported either, although, interestingly enough, Galveston's six-months' total of 3585 barrels was far below the 9012 barrels reported for the same period a year ago.

Fin fish landings dropped a little. Galveston and Freeport noted only 97,000 pounds against 117,000 pounds in May; none were caught at Port Lavaca, Palacios, Rockport, Aransas Pass and Corpus Christi, and Port Isabel dropped from 12,000 pounds in May to only 10,000 pounds in June.

Blue crab landings at Galveston, pegged at 3000 pounds in May, were non-existent in June, but at Port Lavaca and Palacios they amounted to 47,000 pounds compared to only 10,000 the month before.

There was a total of 59,000 pounds of crab meat produced at the last two ports.

Shelley Roaten was in San Antonio Wednesday on business.

Thanks to Voters of Precinct 2

At this time I offer these words of thanks to my supporters for the wonderful vote of confidence that you gave me in last Saturday's election, but I intend to more fully show my appreciation of what you have done for me by serving the best interests of all of the people of my precinct as their Commissioner during the next four years.

Florence Is My Favorite City Says Miss Jarboe

"Florence is my favorite," says Miss Marjory Jarboe, as she and her sister continue their European tour, and in this she joins the Florentines themselves, who call it "Firenze la Bella"—Florence the Beautiful.

It might also be called the "City of Famous Men," for with its wonderful past are connected the names of Dante, Petrarch, and Boccaccio, who were the greatest story tellers and poets of the Middle Ages; of Cimabue, Ghirlandajo, Andrea del Sarto, Filippo Lippi and Leonardo Da Vinci, the painters; of Giotto and Brunelleschi, the architects; of Machiavelli, the statesman; of Galileo, the philosopher; of Savonarola, the theologian; of Americus Vesputius, the navigator; of Lorenzo de Medici, called The Great, patron of art and literature; and of Michelangelo, Luca della Robbia, Donatello, Cellini, and Ghiberti, the sculptors.

And on the card from Florence that Marjory sends are depicted the magnificent bronze doors of the historic eight-sided Baptistery, the work of the last-named sculptor.

"We saw these today," says the postal card, written 500 years after Ghiberti had finished them.

One of the first ranking goldsmiths and sculptors of the Renaissance, his art has been perpetuated in the doors which in beauty of ornamentation and perfection of form and finish are counted among the finest works of art in Italy, and far surpass anything of the kind attempted since the days of the ancient Greeks.

The first gate, on which Ghiberti was engaged for 20 years, consists of 28 panels, representing incidents in the lives of Christ, the fathers of the Church, and the Evangelists, and so greatly was it admired that the artist received the order for the second gate. This took as much time to complete as did the first one, and the subjects on it are from the Old Testament.

Of the pair, Michelangelo pronounced them "worthy to be the gates of Paradise," and so it says on the card in four languages—Italian, French, English and German.

Of Michelangelo himself, whose imposing figures of Giuliano and Lorenzo de Medici decorate their tombs, Miss Jarboe says:

"We saw many of his statues, which make the marble look very delicate and expressive."

The Misses Jarboe also saw the tombs of Dante and Galileo, and the great dome over the Cathedral of St. Mary of the Flower, so much admired by that prince of sculptors and architects, Michelangelo, that he used it as his model when designing St. Peter's in Rome.

Built in the 13th century, the dome at Florence was the first to use dove-tailed piling in its design.

(Note: From Florence, Marjorie and her sister, Maud, went next to Venice of the gondoliers, and it is her letter from there that will appear in next week's paper, as a fourth in the series which she has very kindly written to share experiences of her European trip with the folks at home.)

MRS. MARY JUERGEN TAKES MEXICO TRIP

Mrs. Mary Juergen, secretary-manager for the Chamber of Commerce, returned Sunday from a week's vacation in Monterrey, Mexico.

Accompanying her were her house guest, Mrs. B. T. Billups of Dallas, Mrs. Agnes Currie and Miss Carol Currie of Rockport.

Mrs. J. W. Ingersoll was in charge of the chamber office in the absence of Mrs. Juergen.

ARTIFICIAL—Estron acetate is the synthetic material from which this chemise-tunic summer dress is woven. It is said to have the look and feel of an eastern import. Banded and bowed in same fabric that makes up body of the dress, it features a below-the-knee permanently pleated skirt.

GLASSCOCK ASKS ENGINEER PERMIT

C. G. Glasscock-Tidelands Oil Company has requested permission from the U. S. Engineers to operate in Aransas Bay, approximately one-half mile north of Fulton.

The oil company proposes to put a two-inch pipe line at the above location. The pipe lines would be placed from the mean high tide shore line northeasterly for a distance of approximately 3,020 feet across State Tract 122 and to an existing well in State Tract 123. The top of the pipes would be placed 1½ feet below the bed except through shell reefs or beds where they would be placed a minimum of one foot below the bed of the bay.

LIONS HOLD THURSDAY MEET

The Rockport Lions Club met Thursday at noon with a pretty fair turnout. The National Anthem and the Invocation were led by Rev. Lion Avant. After the dinner Past Presidents Chas. Roe, Jr., and Dave Segler were awarded a desk calendar and pen set by Jack Hagar in appreciation for their fine work in the Lions Club.

After the regular meeting a short directors' meeting was held at which time three new members were voted into the club. These are Ray Torres, David Kelso, and Dr. H. F. Elliott. Guests of the club were David Kelso and Harold Segler. Houston, Texas.

The next meeting will be on the first Thursday in August, the 7th, at Thompson's SPA at 12:05 noon, at which time Rev. Asa Avant will bring a program on the United Nations.

BENEFITS PAYABLE TO PARTIALLY RETIRED WORKERS

A person doesn't have to quit working completely or sell his business to become eligible for Old-Age Insurance benefits under the Social Security Act, according to H. M. Cleveland, Manager of the Corpus Christi Social Security district office.

The law requires that deductions be made from benefits of eligible persons if their earnings from work or a business are over $1200 in a year. However, even though earnings are over $1200, the worker or self-employed person would be eligible for one or more monthly payments if the earnings were not more than $2080 per year. Benefits may be paid after age 72 without regard to future earnings. Persons who meet the age and work requirements should inquire about benefits even though they are still employed, or in business for themselves. No benefit can be paid unless a claim is filed, Cleveland added.

The Corpus Christi social security district office is located at 530 South Water Street, Corpus Christi, and the telephone number is TULIP 3-4447.

CONGRATULATIONS

Of interest to local residents will be the birth of a daughter on July 20 to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Miller, of Washington, D. C. Mrs. Miller is the former Nancy Millar, niece of Mrs. A. L. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. James G. Millar, of San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bradley, of Dallas, and their daughters, Judy, Charlotte, and Becky, and son, Rusty, spent last week in Rockport visiting the William Beetleys, and fishing.

ROCKPORT METHODIST LEADERS HOLD MEETING

The commission of education of the First Methodist Church and the workers' conference of the church school met Monday night in Fellowship Hall, according to the Rev. Asa F. Avant, pastor.

Also included in the meeting were the ex-officio members of the church board, who are LeRoy Young, Chester Barre, Mrs. I. E. Allemang, Mrs. Asa F. Avant, Miss Sue Eller, Miss Joy Hamblin and the pastor.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Laurie, of San Antonio, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bruhl last week. Dr. Laurie is president of Trinity University.

Many Thanks for the wonderful support my friends in Aransas County gave me Saturday in my race for district attorney.

I plan to continue an active campaign and will truly appreciate your continued support. The time until the runoff is short and it is necessary that I spend considerable time in the other counties and I ask that each of you campaign for me not only in Aransas County but with your friends in the other counties of the district.

Voters --- Attention

In this issue of the Pilot there appears the full text of one or more of the Constitutional Amendments to be voted on at the upcoming General Election (Nov. 4). So that you may be fully informed we urge that you read each proposed measure in its entirety, and study all of them carefully before you go to the polls to cast your vote.

A brief digest of the nine different amendments follows:

NUMBER ONE ON THE BALLOT (HJR 1)—Provides for annual sessions of the legislature, changing the compensation, per diem and travel expenses of members of the legislature and authorizing temporary residence of the Lieutenant Governor and Speaker of the House in the Capitol Building.

NUMBER TWO ON THE BALLOT (SJR 6)—Authorizes each county to establish, after approval by its voters, a retirement, disability and death compensation fund covering the elective officers of the county or precinct, as well as the appointive officers and employees of the county or precinct.

NUMBER THREE ON THE BALLOT (HJR 30)—Provides that vacancies in the office of County Judge and Justices of the Peace shall be filled by the Commissioners' Court only until the next General Election.

NUMBER FOUR ON THE BALLOT (HJR 31)—Provides that any District, County, or Precinct official serving a four-year term must resign before announcing for a different office if there remains unserved more than one (1) year of the term for which he was elected.

NUMBER FIVE ON THE BALLOT (HJR 48)—Provides that a Home Rule City may provide by Charter Provision, and a City operating under the general laws may provide by majority vote, for a longer term of office than two (2) years for its officers, either elective or appointive, or both not to exceed one year.

NUMBER SIX ON THE BALLOT (HJR 17)—Provides for pension to retired Texas Rangers who are ineligible to participate in the Employees Retirement System of Texas, and their widows.

NUMBER SEVEN ON THE BALLOT (SJR 4)—Authorizes the Legislature to make appropriations and establish procedure for advertising the historical, natural, agricultural, industrial, educational, recreational and other resources of Texas.

NUMBER EIGHT ON THE BALLOT (HJR 36)—Gives the Legislature the power to authorize vendor payments for medical care in addition to the amount paid in the form of direct public assistance to and on behalf of needy recipients of Old Age Assistance, Aid to the Blind, Aid to Dependent Children or Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled; providing for the acceptance of funds from the Federal Government for the purpose of paying such assistance.

NUMBER NINE ON THE BALLOT (SJR 3)—Authorizes the Legislature to create a Hospital District coextensive with the incorporated limits to the City of Amarillo, Texas, and a countywide Hospital District in Wichita County, Texas, and Hospital Districts in Jefferson County, Texas.
