Grasses Used By SCS To Help Erosion On Lakes

How many times have you seen wind-swept waves splash against the edge of your favorite lake, steadily eroding the shoreline?

Or watched the wave action slowly gouge away the sod of an earthen dam?

Probably too often, especially if the dam or lake has a long surface area facing the prevailing wind.

One way to stop this damage is with expensive stone riprap. But Soil Conservation Service plant scientists are hoping they can find plants that will do the same job under most conditions--and with far less cost.

Clyde W. Graham of Temple, state conservationist for SCS, says several water tolerant grasses and shrubs appear to have promise for helping reduce wave action damage. SCS constantly searches for superior plants that will help solve a wide variety of conservation problems.

"For cutting shoreline erosion, we are looking for plants that will do a better job than bermudagrass," Graham says. "Common reedgrass, giantreed, switchgrass, and indigobush are some of the plants that have shown up best so far."

Graham explained that bermudagrass will usually protect a shoreline or dam unless the surface fetch is too long. The problem is aggravated if a long fetch faces north, northwest, or south.

"After analyzing wave action damage on upstream watershed lakes in Texas, we decided that you can expect damage any time the fetch exceeds one-half mile to the north or northwest.

Longer fetches to the south also cause trouble."

SCS, in cooperation with the state's 190 local soil and water conservation districts, is trying to find combinations of water-loving plants with strong root systems which can hold against constant pounding from wind-blown waves. Since availability of trial planting stock is a problem, SCS workers first have had to dig up most of the promising plants, then transplant them at the SCS plant materials center at Knox City. Here, along with hundreds of other plants, they are propagated and grown for increase. The center is the focal point of the SCS search for superior conservation plants.

Plants with shoreline protection values may also help stabilize eroding streambanks. Conservation leaders hope plants whose purposes will eventually be grown commercially by seed producers for sale to the public.

"Right now, however, we need to learn more about plants which will prevent wave erosion under a variety of conditions," Graham stressed. "Further studies will have to be made to determine the best combinations of plants. We are also just beginning to learn something about proper planting patterns."

Graham said that the first shoreline evaluation plantings were made in 1969 and so far have been done largely by hand. He hopes easier and faster methods can be developed in the future.

Jaybirds Prepare For Annual Contest With Rochester Steers

"We just didn't have an offense", is the way Coach Jerry English explained the Jaybirds 21-0 loss to Spur Friday night.

Five times in the first quarter Spur fumbled the ball to the Birds, once inside the 10 yardline, but they just didn't have the punch to get into the end zone.

Several times the Jaybirds put on good drives, but always bogged down when they got in scoring position.

"We're going to Rochester next Friday, and we're going to win us a ball game" English told the boys in the dressing room following their second consecutive loss.

The Birds have not reached the strength this year, they had expected earlier. First, All-district linebacker Paul Davis moved out of the district. And then, all District Fullback Harold Judy, converted to signal caller this year, suffered a broken arm, and has seen no action.

So Coach English has had to call on a group of young inexperienced boys in the backfield. They have played well, but need some experience.

Parker Kidd did some very fine running in the Spur game, but it was not enough. Brad Dibrell, Alfonso Trevino and Steve Kidd also put out good efforts in the backfield.

The Jaybirds receivers were getting behind the Bulldog defenders and open for passes, but mostly were being overshot, as the pass was being rushed most of the time.

Rochester is also 0-2 for the season. The Jaybirds have won every contest from the Steers for the past three or more years, so this should be a good contest.

Game time 8 p. m. Friday in Rochester. Go out and boost the Jaybirds into their first victory.

HISTORY OF THE "H"

The letter "H" may have started as a picture sign of a fence, such as is found in a very early Semitic writing which was used about 1500 B.C. on the Sinai Peninsula. Beginning about 1000 B.C. in the city of Byblos and in other Phoenician and Canaanite centers, the sign was given a linear form from which all later forms are derived. When the Greeks borrowed the alphabet from the Phoenicians, they named the sign eta and used it for the consonant "h" and the long vowel "e". The Romans then took over the form "H," with the sound value of the English "h." The capital letter came into English unchanged from the Latin.

A small Greek eta with curves was developed from the capital letter. By the 9th century the corresponding Latin letter, which indicated the sound, "h," acquired a shape much like the English handwritten and printed small "h."

The letter "h" begins many words today such as "help," "hope," "happy," "house" and "homework."

LEGAL NOTICE ON REILING OF BRANDS

All brands and marks on Texas livestock must be re-recorded with County Clerks after August 30, 1971, according to a new law passed during the last session of the Texas Legislature. Producers will be given a six-month period (August 30, 1971 through February 29, 1972) in which to register these brands and marks and the location on the animal which they are currently using, after which time any unrecorded brand will be available for use on a "first-come" basis.

The law further states that all such brands and marks must be re-recorded every 10 years. Each County Clerk records for his given county only, so many producers may need to record their brands in additional counties if their operations are extensive.

The owner shall have the right during this six-month period to file the mark and brand now recorded in his name. In the event it cannot be determined from the records who first recorded the brand and mark in the county, then the person who has been using such mark and brand the longest shall have the right to have the brand and mark recorded in his name.

It should be noted that it is illegal to brand livestock without first properly recording the brand with the County Clerk in the county in which the livestock are held.

When the brand or brands are recorded, the location on the animal on which the brand is to be applied must be designated. If the brand is to be applied to more than one location on the animal, it must be so recorded and each additional location for the brand on the animal shall constitute a separate recording of that brand.

There is no limit to the number of brands and/or marks which may be recorded in a county by a person as long as requirements of this law governing the recording and re-recording of livestock brands are met. Minors may have marks or brands separate from that of the father or guardian, which must be recorded or re-recorded as provided by the new law.

It is the obligation of the County Clerk to assure that no more than one brand of a kind be recorded on the same location on the animal in each county. Therefore, no two people in a county may record the same brand in the same location. It is also the responsibility of the County Clerk to make certain that in recording any brand for a person, that the part of the animal on which the brand is to be placed be designated.

The law as outlined above applies to all counties in the state of Texas and shall take precedence over any special statutes heretofore applying to individual counties pertaining to recording and re-recording of brands.

The fee for recording each brand is $2.00.

Do we ever pause to pray

For a man who's gone astray
For a soul who's lost his way?

Have we spoken words of cheer
'Though we feel distressed and drear
Shown through kindness most sincere
That to us his soul is dear?

Do we help in his distress

Halloween History is Spooky

Customs and superstitions gathered through the ages go into our celebration of Halloween, or "Holy Eve," on October 31. The day is so named because it is the eve of the festival of All Saints, but many of the beliefs and observances connected with it arose long before the Christian Era, in the autumn festivals of pagan peoples.

Ancient Druids had a three-day celebration at the beginning of November. On the eve before, they believed, spirits of the dead roamed abroad, and they lighted bonfires to drive them away. In ancient Rome the festival of Pomona, goddess of fruits and gardens, occurred at about this time of the year. It was an occasion of rejoicing associated with the harvest; and nuts and apples, as symbols of the winter store of fruit, were roasted before huge bonfires.

Even after November 1 became a Christian feast day, honoring all saints, the peasants clung to the old pagan beliefs and customs that had grown up about Halloween. It became a night of mystery and fun-making, with many picturesque superstitions. Folk came to believe that they could foretell the future of that night by performing such rites as jumping over lighted candles.

In the British Isles, great bonfires blazed. Young people disguised in grotesque masks and carrying lanterns carved from turnips gathered in each village.

Our Halloween celebrations today keep many of these early customs unchanged. Young and old still gather to hunt nuts and duck for apples bobbing in a tub of water. Grinning pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns, rustling cornstalks, and white-sheeted figures create an air of mystery, and black paper witches and cats are used for party decorations.

In 1970, more than three and a half million American students participated in the "Trick or Treat" for UNICEF drive, aiding disadvantaged youngsters throughout the world.

This year, there's an important new addition to the "Trick or Treat" for UNICEF drive. It's called "Treat of Life". American families and businessmen will join forces to help the world's children. Several national consumer product manufacturers are contributing money to UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund, via a label saving program. Sponsors are the makers of Clark Gum, Bird's Eye Vegetables, Hunts Snack Pack, Kool-Aid, Pals Vitamins, Peter Paul Candy, and Welch's Jelly. Housewives, students, clubs and organizations are being urged to save proofs of purchase from these products and submit them now through November 15th. The manufacturers will contribute cash to UNICEF for each proof sent in. The money will buy food, medicine and educational supplies for disadvantaged children.

The program is evidence of a new and altogether different kind of Halloween spirit, people helping people.

All About Allergy by M. Coleman M.D. & Norman Shure M.D.

This book covers everything from the most common allergy disease such as hay fever, hives, eczema, and asthma, to a number of obscure diseases which are attributed to allergy or to allergy in combination with other agents. Designed not only for the allergy sufferer but for all who are interested in knowing about allergy, this enlightening and thoroughly up-to-date book discusses each disease in all its aspects: diagnosis, prevention, and treatment.

Dr. Harris and Dr. Shure present in simple terms the basic principles of allergy--why people are allergic. They describe procedures the doctor will employ and suggest to the patient how he can facilitate diagnosis and treatment.

The Okinawa Chamber of Commerce championship (as a Marine in '59) wasn't Lee's biggest title, but it was his first. Since then, you count 'em: Golf Rookie of the Year, 1967; U. S. Open (twice); British, Canadian, Hawaiian, Texas (his home state) twice; and many others, including the 1969 World Cup. Sportsman, citizen, and friend of the Newspaperboy.

"FOLLOW-THROUGH--"

says Lee Trevino--

"IS WHAT MAKES A BOY A GOOD NEWSPAPERBOY"

Lee Trevino thinks like a golfer. And why not? This year he made history by winning three national titles (U. S., Canadian, and British) within a span of three weeks. So when asked about Newspaperboy Day, he had this comment on what makes a newspaperboy tick:

"He follows through. He takes care of his customers. Never mind the season or the weather, your newspaperboy knows you count on him--so he's always there with your paper. Follow-through is what wins newspaperboy Day--and it's also what makes a newspaperboy tick."

successful newspaperboy. And you can add another word too: "thriftiness." Like their parents and many other Americans, thousands of newspaperboys save part of their earnings in U. S. Savings Bonds, in preparation for college or other financial needs of the future.

Buying Bonds is just another example of their all-round good citizenship, another reason for the nation to be proud of its newspaper carriers. Like Lee Trevino's cap, Uncle Sam's hat is off to these young businessmen on the occasion of their annual day in the spotlight--Newspaperboy Day 1971.

Change Is Not Always Progress--You are old enough to remember the good old days if you can remember:

When you left your front door open.
When you went to church and the preacher preached from the Bible.

When even the word "socialism" was a dirty word.

When the poor were too proud to take charity.
When a nickel was worth five cents.
When you bragged about your hometown, your state, and your nation.

When the flag was a sacred symbol.
When this Government stood up for Americans.
When everyone knew right from wrong.
When things were not perfect and you didn't expect them to be.

Sept. 30 Is School Day At Lubbock Fair

Students, residents, and chaperones of children's homes or special schools in the Lubbock area will have their day at the 50th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair thanks to the Lubbock Firefighters Association, Gene Ledel Shows Inc. and the board of directors of the big exposition.

A "special day" has been set aside Sept. 30 for the youngsters from Lubbock State School, Billenger School, Children's Home of Lubbock, Buckner Baptist Children's Home, Coronado Children's Home, Gristown USA, Milam Children's Training Center and other homes and organizations for handicapped children.

Several hundred children will be treated to free rides on the midway through the courtesy of Ledel and his carnival crew. Refreshments will be provided by several of the concessionaires.

The Lubbock firemen and other chaperones will assist the youngsters and will serve a picnic luncheon of hot dogs, potato chips, cold drinks, etc. The food will be prepared by the firemen at their concession adjacent to Fair Park Coliseum.

All of the students and residents and their chaperones will be admitted free to the grounds by the fair association. Groups are urged to arrive at the Broadway entrance to the fairgrounds between 10 a. m. and 10:30 a. m.

The midway will be the center of attraction from 10:30 a. m. until noon. Lunch will be served just inside the Broadway Avenue gate at noon. From 1:30 p. m. until completion, the children will tour the exhibit buildings, livestock barns and other areas, including the Texas Wildlife Exhibit in the Agriculture Building and the Children's Barnyard.

The special day was scheduled at hours when Fair Park is not crowded with regular fair visitors.

The 54th annual renewal of the big exposition is scheduled Sept. 27 - Oct. 2 and will feature the return of Tennessee Ernie Ford, who returns after a six-year absence to see if he can smash his own box office record. The Ol' Pea Picker will be in Fair Park Coliseum Monday through Wednesday with The Celebration and Singer-comedian Glen Ash.

On Thursday, a Mexican all-star variety show featuring Lucha Villa and Jose Alfredo Jimenez and the Mariachi Guadalajara will dip in for a one-night stand.

An Interesting Trip

September first we picked up Mrs. Brady and son Willie Hugh at Abilene (my husband's sister) leaving there at 10:45 a. m., drove to Queen City near Texarkana, and visited with a friend there.

Thursday we drove into Nashville. We got a motel and spent the night.

Friday we spent the day seeing places of interest and shopping. Friday night we attended the "Grand-Ole-Oprey", saw Roy Acuff and his band, coming in with The Wash Cannon Ball, also String Beans from "Hee Haw" and Oswald. They had a different band every half hour. Our Jayton boy, Weldon Myrick played all through the show (off and on) but we could not get an opportunity to talk to him. The show was very good. They are building a new building and will be using it sometime next year.

We drove from there to McMinnville. My mother-in-law's birth place. A distant cousin is still there, has a big apple orchard on top of the Cardwell Mountains (named for the family).

We visited the Casey Jones Museum in Casly's old home in Jackson, Tenn. Every room had a fireplace, kitchen an old wood stove. Bedroom old dresser, wooden bed, with standing pillows and chamber under the bed. All kinds of things used on a train and the model of engine he drove to his death.

By way back we came through Birmingham, Ala., Meridian and Jackson Miss. The Mississippi River is something to see. I couldn't get a picture it was raining.

Onto Menden and Shreveport La. which are beautiful. We spent two nights in Menden with friends that have the radio station there. Another place of interest was back into Texas by way of Houston, Galveston and Baytown where we visited a daughter Ima Jo Humphreys and family.

We had an enjoyable and safe trip for which we are thankful but it is good to be back in "good ole Jayton".

AN INVISIBLE NET FOR FALL'S CURLY HAIRSTYLES

Indian Summer Days often bring back a lovely bit of summer. They can also bring more of summer's heat and humidity. Just when you think you've conquered the drooping hairstyle problems of humid weather, along comes a pocket of summer to dampen the spirits of a pretty hairdo. At the time you want to wear more curls!

Feminine, romantic hairstyles are returning with the fall. This calls for a lovely soft hairdo - the more curls, waves and tendrils, the better - which can wilt badly unless it is protected with extra holding power.

A non-aerosol spray, Final Net, from Ellen Kay Cosmetics, a subsidiary of Clairol, may be just the answer to Indian Summer hair-care woes. It has exclusive, moisture-repellent ingredients that spray out in a fine mist giving even the most delicate hairdos a firm and lasting hold without a lacquered look. Humidity and moisture are "locked" out.

As It Looks From Here

By Rep. Omar Burleson
Member of Congress, Texas

MOST FEDERAL COURT DOCKETS are overburdened with a backlog of cases. It would be a good assumption that the Federal District Judge sitting in Huntsville, Alabama, would have plenty to do without meddling into the affairs of Butler High School in that City.

U. S. District Judge, H. H. Grooms, showing that unerring eye for grave and weighty issue of national importance, which seems to distinguish much of our judiciary these days, has outlawed the use of the Confederate Flag as the school's banner and "Dixie" as their fight song.

Dr. Max Rafferty, Dean of Troy University in Alabama had this to say about the Court's action. "Their flag, forlo! these many years, has been the same Stars and Bars under so many thousands of their great, great grandfathers fought, and their song--no surprise considering their school's geographical location-- is "Dixie".

A few students, out of the school's enrollment of 2,000, found the old flag and the song "offensive." The Federal Judge decided to take away from the great majority of the children their right to enjoy the symbols of their ancestors' gallant struggle.

Sure, the Civil War was over a long time ago and there is no need to continue to fight it but it is no wonder that the kids in Butler High School are a little up-tight about the decision.

This is not the first time that judges have decided to stamp out symbols of a vanquished cause. The Irish fought for 500 yards to save their harp and shamrock from similar unwarranted action. The Scottish Highlanders had to hide their tartans after the battle of Colloiden. The Jews down through the centuries have seen the sacred emblems of their faith confiscated and destroyed by courts in Europe.

Dr. Rafferty's comments go further. "We are watching this ancient evil operate in our land, casting its long shadow over our own children. In the past decade, we Americans have been told by judges where our children must go to school, what they may wear in class, how they may behave and what they may or may not read. And from here on, it appears even the school songs they sing are to be controlled by the courts."

The State of California has its Bear Flag. Our State of Texas has its Lone Star. Both are symbols of historic significance. Is it possible that now such symbols may be forbidden by those who find them to be "offensive?"

For that matter, and following the same absurd reasoning, may not some court even find the Stars and Stripes to be "objectionable?" In the early days, as our pioneers pushed Westward, "Dixie" was hummed around thousands of open campfires. As the wagon trains fought their way across a raw and savage continent, the song cheered and solaced a people. There remains romance in the whanging banjos in a summer twilight aboard paddle-wheel steamboats. It meant something to the people.

The Bars and Stars of the Confederacy holds a respect by the people of the South, as a symbol of heroic lost cause. There are few, if any, in modern days who hold this banner in undue deference to the Stars and Stripes. They do hold history in respect. They know it floated blithely on the morning breeze at first Antieta m. It was carried through Shiloh's gloomy woods and Chickamauga's solitudes. The song of "Dixie" burst from hoarse throats and laboring bodies at Cold Harbor and at Chancellorsville.

When at last the Civil War crested bloodily on the heights of Gettysburg, the song echoed like a solemn requiem over the defeated hopes of the greatest "lost cause" in the annals of our Nation.

To ban "Dixie" as a school's fighting song and to prohibit a flag as a part of a school symbol, is banning history itself. This little song and the banner is part and parcel, warp and woof of the great tapestry which is the American story.

Refusal to Work

Out of work? To millions of people in that predicament, unemployment compensation has been a Godsend. But in order to collect those weekly checks, you have to be willing to take another job if one turns up.

This raises problems. How willing do you have to be? If the job is good but the hours are bad, must you accept anyhow--or lose your right to compensation?

Generally speaking, the law makes reasonable allowance for hardship cases. For example:

An unemployed woman was offered a job on the night shift at a nearby factory. When she refused to take it, her unemployment compensation was cut off.

But in a court hearing, she told the judge that she would have had to walk home in the dark through a tough neighborhood--and that she had been terrorized twice by nocturnal assailants.

The judge decided that her refusal to take the job was justified, and ordered her compensation payments reinstated.

That does not mean, however, that you can wait serenely until the perfect job comes along. Another case involved a restaurant worker who, accustomed to working from 6 a.m. to 3 p.m., turned down a job that started two hours later in the day.

"Frankly," he explained, "it's just too hard for me to change my hours. I'm used to the old way."

But this time, a court denied his right to unemployment compensation. He was out of work, noted the court, more by choice than by necessity.

Suppose a job that is offered would create religious conflicts. A number of cases have arisen involving Seventh-Day Adventists who were not willing to work on Saturday.

Almost invariably, the courts have accepted this as a legitimate reason for rejecting a job, with no effect on the person's right to collect unemployment compensation.

"Work which requires one to violate his moral standards," said one court, "is not suitable work."

4-H Horsemen To Participate In State Show

About 400 of the state's premier junior horsemen will be competing in the State 4-H Horse Show to be held September 23-25 in the Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum in Fort Worth.

The special events of drill team and cutting horse competition, English pleasure and jumping will be held the first day, according to B. F. Yeates, horse specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Halter classes will be judged on Friday plus showmanship and eliminations in pole bending, barrel racing, and western pleasure.

Eliminations in reining and in the other performance events will continue Saturday with all final competition slated for 7:30 p.m. An awards program will follow.

To be eligible for state competition, in the regular events, a 4-H'er must have been one of the top 20 contestants in his respective Extension district, points out Yeates. There are 12 such districts in the state. The special events of the first day of the show are open to any 4-H'er with a horse project. There are about 12,000 4-H horsemen in Texas at present.

Crosby County horseman Brad Smith will be the only participant from Crosby County to enter the show. Brad won this honor in the District 2 4-H horse eliminations held at Tulla. Brad will participate in the Reining and Western Pleasure events.

No School Bus Passing Under New State Law

A new state law effective Monday, August 30, will no longer permit Texas motorists to stop and then pass a school bus which is loading or unloading children inside or outside a business or residence district.

Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said the new law, passed by the 62nd Legislature, applies in both cities and rural areas and requires motorists moving both directions on the same roadway with a school bus to stop and remain stopped as long as the flashing lights on the bus are in operation. Drivers shall not proceed until school buses resume motion or are signaled by the school bus driver to proceed or the flashing lights are no longer in action.

Under current law, which applies only in rural areas, drivers must stop for a stopped school bus, but may then proceed around it at a speed of not more than 10 miles per hour if safe to do so.

Tech Museum Introduces New Exhibit

September brings a new look to The Museum of Texas Tech University, with the introduction of two different exhibitions in the galleries.

Early Western Range photographs, by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's veteran photographer, Frank Reeves, will be exhibited in the East gallery, September 18 - October 10, sponsored by the Ranch Headquarters Association.

On loan from the Amon Carter Museum, the photos are a repeat of a successful exhibition of Reeves' work shown in the Museum's former location in 1965.

To announce the recent acquisition of works by Bess Hubbard, internationally known Lubbock artist, the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce and the West Texas Museum Association have gathered works from their collections and some on loan from the artist to show the public. A piece of sculpture recently added to the Women's Division collection, along with nine graphics by The Museum as a gift of Mrs. Helen DeVitt Jones, will form the core of the exhibit, which opens September 19, and will be on view in the main gallery through October 17. A special preview opening will be sponsored by the two groups for members of the West Texas Museum Association, September 17, 4:30 - 6:30 p.m.

The fifteenth annual meeting of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. will be held September 28 from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon at Vann's Catering Service, located seven miles southeast of Lubbock on the Slaton highway.

Organized in 1956 "to better the conditions under which High Plains cotton is grown and marketed," Lubbock-based PCG represents well over 20,000 cotton producers in 25 counties surrounding Lubbock. The area each year accounts for about half the cotton produced in Texas and over 15 percent of total U.S. production.

Featured speaker for the event will be Kenneth Frick, Washington Administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), and PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson is inviting all cotton producers and cotton oriented businessmen to attend. "And that should include just about everybody," he said.

"From the Washington office of ASCS come all of the cotton program rules and regulations that govern the day-to-day business of growing cotton for a livelihood," Johnson said, "and I think we can all profit from Mr. Frick's inside knowledge of top-level thinking as regards cotton's future."

Prior to accepting his present post in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Frick was a sizable cotton farmer in California, "and he knows the business from every angle," Johnson added. Another highlight of the morning program will be an all-cotton style show, staged by Kim Dawson of the Dallas Apparel Mart. Many in the Plains area have seen Dawson-produced style shows in the past and have been highly impressed. Models for the show will be from Texas Tech and will feature Miss Wendy Wooley, 1970 South Plains Maid of Cotton.

For the second year in succession the annual report of the president will be given by Donnell Echols of Lamesa. Echols was elected president of PCG in 1969, and under PCG by-laws is required to step down this year. Johnson, PCG's executive officer since 1965, will give the annual report on association activities. Valuable door prizes will be awarded at intervals throughout the meeting, climaxed by the awarding of a portable color television set as the grand prize.

Immediately following the membership meeting, at which newly-elected directors will be certified, the PCG Board will convene to elect officers for 1971-72. PCG has two directors elected from

Cotton Insects Big Threat In 1972

Cotton producers who want to be sure of having plenty of boll weevils, bollworms, budworms and pink bollworms in their crop next season are encouraged to delay harvest, stalk destruction and plowing under of crop residue until after frost.

"One way of assuring the survival of these major cotton pests for the 1972 season is to provide them with plenty of food and protection this fall and winter," says Dr. John G. Thomas, Extension entomologist at Texas A&M University. "However, with the hope that most producers want to avoid this situation, they should consider harvesting as early as possible and shredding stalks and plowing under all cotton debris at least six inches deep."

Extremely high weevil populations during August and September have caused extensive losses in many areas of Texas, according to Thomas. In areas where boll weevils have been particularly numerous, growers are encouraged to include an insecticide phosphate-type defoliant at the time of harvest.

This reduces the amount of weevils surviving the field and later entering diapause or winter hibernation.

The number of bollworms observed in cotton fields through central and northern Texas the past few weeks causes real concern in 1972, adds Thomas. "We have seen larger bollworm numbers in these fields this year than at any time in the decade. Unless producers reduce overwintering pink bollworm numbers through early harvest and thorough destruction, 1972 may very well bring back memories of the early and mid-50's."
