All scout members and their families are invited to attend.
It's really a sad situation, when a man cannot even campaign for office, without being felled by an assassin's bullet. Wallace was heavily guarded, by his own elite State Troopers, the Secret Service, Sheriff's Deputies, and other officers. He had spoke from behind a bullet-proof shield, but, naturally he wanted to mix with the people, and that is when he got it. This too, within miles of the Center of our Federal Government.
The State of affairs in our nation is serious. My opinion is that much of this is a direct result of the policies and decisions of our courts. Due to legal harangue and dragging out of prosecution, the law holds no fear to many people.
Four years ago Bob Kennedy was shot in the presence of many witnesses, and yet the person who shot him has not had justice administered to him. In many states a person

Music Department Closes Out Year With Concert

The Jayton Public Music Department presented their annual Spring Concert on May 11th in the High School auditorium.

The concert was a successful way to close a year of musical study. There was a large turn out of interested listeners, and four visiting band directors were present. These included Fred Smith of Brownfield, Wes Hayes of Knox City, Tim Jones of Hamlin, and Buck Hughes of Spur.

The first performance on the program was given by The New Generation Stage Band. The Stage Band, also acted as filling between performing groups. The first, second, and third grade choir sang several numbers, then the beginner fourth grade band performed. The fifth and sixth grade bands provided the closing for the elementary portion of the concert.

After a brief intermission, the curtains opened to the 1971-72 Jayton High School Sweepstakes Band.

The band began its part of the program by playing its three U. I. L. contest tunes. Then the new officers of the Band Boosters Club were named as Muriel Hanke for president, Bob Hamilton for vice-president, and Alta Rider for secretary-treasurer. The John Phillip Sousa Award was presented by the Thomas Fowler Agency to both Marilyn Smith and Mike Rice. This is the first time for two students to receive this award.

Marilyn Smith, All-Region clarinet, played her U.I.L. Contest solo, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Eugene Harris. For the grand finale, the band played "The Blue and The Gray", "Ballet Overture", and "Sonus Ventorium". As the band played the spectacular end of "Sonus Ventorium", they received the highest compliment a standing ovation.

Red Sox Lose To Aspermont And Spur

Tuesday night May 9th at 7:30 the 1972 Little League Season got under way officially when Umpire Royce Stanaland yelled "Play Ball".

The Red Sox got off to a slow start letting the Spur Yankees score seven times in the first four innings before the Sox could get into the game. Finally in the bottom of the fourth the Red Sox got a few breaks and scored six times. The fifth showed 2 more runs for the Yankees and the Sox closed the fifth with no runs and two left on base. The Red Sox held them in the sixth but could only come up with 2 scores on a great hit over the fence by Zane Newton, Red Sox third baseman. So the game ended with the score 9-8.

Friday night May 12th the Red Sox played the Aspermont Tigers and once again they began to play ball too late; the Tigers won 10-9.

The Red Sox began with Lanny Hall pitching to Robert Segura, finishing the game with Billy Ballard pitching to Joe McMeans.

These boys can play ball after they finally get started but, so far they have been too late starting. Next time we are hoping for a faster start.

Come on out and give these boys some support.

Can't Show Only A Part Of The Bacon

Ever wished you could see what a whole slice of bacon looks like while it's in the package?

A proposed regulation by the U. S. Department of Agriculture may solve that problem for consumers.

"The USDA has proposed that windowed packages of bacon show the full width and at least 60 percent of the length of a representative slice of bacon," said Texas AGM University foods and nutrition specialist Karen Krelpha.

Consumers who want to comment on this proposed regulation should send two copies of their statement to the Hearing Clerk, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. Comments should reach the Hearing Clerk before June 20, 1972.

Multiple Ownership Claims
Is it possible for more than one party to claim ownership of the same piece of real estate at the same time? It happens—and the result can be a complicated legal battle. A home ownership case recently reported by a title insurance company will illustrate.

Statement

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT ONE

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the people of precinct one for the consideration and support which was given me in my campaign for commissioner. All of you have been extremely cordial in welcoming me into your homes. Also, I was glad to hear your views and interests concerning the future of Kent County. By working together, I believe that many of our large problems can be made smaller. As in any political race such as this, there can be only one winner. I would like to thank my opponent for the manner in which he conducted this race. I believe, that both of us did our best to stick with the issues and left personalities out.

Now that the election is over, I would like to say to the people of this precinct that I want to serve all of you as commissioner. Please feel free to call me at anytime. Thank you again for your support.

Sincerely,
Bill Paris

ABOUT PEOPLE YOU KNOW

By Clique Smith Phone 237-3593

Uncle Zeke Sez

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Did you see them recent stories out of the Philippines where scientists has gone in the woods over there to study this tribe that was found living like the cave man? Ed Doolittle come to the country store Saturday night with a handful of clippings on the subject, and he allowed what was pretty good was where one scientist said that tribe can learn the civilized world a heap about living.

For instant, Ed said, we got a world where a feller can get rich selling do-it-yourself divorce kits and where we got enuff bombs to bust the world open like a stepped on catelope. The Tassaday tribe ain't got no weapons or divorce. Ed reported, and they ain't even got a word in their language fer anger. Whoever said that ignorance is bliss said a mouthful, was Ed's words.

The fellers was general agreed with Ed, Mister Editor, that civilized man is about to outsmart himself fer a fare thee well. Bug Hookum said it looks to him like learning is getting out of hand. If a little education is a dangerous thing, allowed Bug, to much education is worst. When we git to the place where experts say religion is bad fer children, like this report he had saw, Bug said we has got to smart fer our own good.

Actual, broke in Clem Webster, the education pendulum might be swinging the other way. Clem said he had saw we got a surplus of school teachers new that can't git jobs at $500 a month, and we got companies crying fer pipefitters that could start at $900 a month. Furthermore, Clem said, we got to have somebody with some practical sense to figger out problems like he saw this college had. They is 9,000 students at the college and they drive 7,000 cars. In the hole town they ain't but 3,500 parking places. The best remedy the educated town manager could come up with was that half the students would have to be driving around all the time, and everybody else in town would have to walk.

General speaking, allowed Ed, they is enuff good solid ignorance left in the country to keep us out of danger fer a while yet. Ed had saw where younguns under six now spend 65 per cent of their time watching television, and Ed was of a mind they ain't no risk of getting over-smart staring at the TV. And another example, Ed said, is that the stores in this country had got us convinced that we was getting all them trading stamp gifts flat free from nobody knowed where, but now they has got us just as convinced that if they quit giving stamps they can reduce their prices. Somewhere in there is a lesson, was Ed's words.

Personal, Mister Editor, I know we can't crawl back in a cave, but I agree with Ed that when a college offers a course in robbing banks in order to "establish a level of mutual self-respect between robber and robbed" we has gone overboard. Maybe its time to set up a new course called "Right and Wrong."

Yours truly,
Uncle Zeke

You could pass the tree a hundred times without seeing the bright little bird peeping out. Nature neglected to give man such camouflage. In the scheme of things he is actually quite obvious. But God created man in His image—a much greater asset. He was given a strong body and a mind with which to think. And He has given us a very special gift; the miracle of Faith.

As It Looks From Here

By Rep. Omar Burleson
 Member of Congress, Texas

Congressman Omar Burleson and O. C. Fisher issued a joint statement today that the Department of the Navy is announcing its interest in portions of McCulloch, San Saba, Mason and Llano Counties as possible site for an extremely low frequency communications system.

The proposed system would provide nearly worldwide coverage from a single transmitter complex within the United States. Successful development of this system would provide National Command authorities with a secure, reliable and survivable system for communicating with U.S. nuclear deterrent forces including submarines submerged at operating depths and speeds. Navy officials said the availability of the proposed survivable extremely low frequency would make a major improvement in the ability of Navy communications systems to withstand attack, jamming, and blackout in a post-attack environment. This improvement would make the U.S. nuclear deterrent policy more credible by demonstrating to any aggressor this Nation's command and control capability and its ability to retaliate if attacked.

The Navy is interested in McCulloch, San Saba, Mason, and Llano Counties because of the low conductivity substrate which underlies the area. Underlying low conductivity rock is essential to the efficient and economical operation of such a system. In addition, the essentially flat terrain and low population density would minimize construction costs should the Navy later request Congressional approval to proceed with the construction of an operational system.

Navy officials said that research on extremely low frequency communications has been underway since 1958, in 1963, a small test facility was used to communicate with a submerged submarine at a distance of 2500 miles. Intensified research into the electromagnetic effects of such a system has been underway since 1968. This research as reported in an environmental impact statement submitted to the Congress and the Council on Environmental Quality, has shown that any impact on utility systems and nearby conductors can be suppressed. No adverse environmental effects have been found at the electromagnetic field levels that would be associated with such a system. This research, which has involved the efforts of more than 30 consultants and contractors, is continuing.

The Navy said that the type of operational system it has in mind would consist of an underground grid of widely dispersed transmitters and antennas. Total Navy land requirements for an operational system would be 500 acres or less primarily limited to widespread 2-acre transmitter sites. Rights-of-way across private land would be obtained to implant antenna cables. The land above the antenna cables could be restored to its original use.

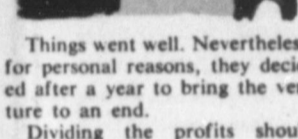

A final decision on whether to proceed with the construction of an extremely low frequency system is not expected for three or four years. During this period, the research and development now underway will continue. In addition to environmental studies, efforts will be directed to the development and design of the most economical and efficient system possible. If a decision is made to proceed with the construction of an operational system, a sizeable construction force would be required. Navy officials indicated that 300 to 500 people would be required to operate and maintain the system, upon its completion.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Plain English"

Gerald had the idea and Fred had the money. Over a midnight cup of coffee, they agreed to start manufacturing a new kind of toy. As for profits, they agreed on what they assumed would be a simple formula: a "fifty-fifty" split.

Things went well. Nevertheless, for personal reasons, they decided after a year to bring the venture to an end. Dividing the profits should have been merely a matter of arithmetic. But Gerald insisted he was entitled to an extra share as wages, on the ground that he alone had put in regular working hours at the company office.

Fred finally won the argument—but only after a costly trip to court. Two years of bitter litigation was the price the partners had to pay for failing to make clear, right at the start, what they meant by the expression "fifty-fifty."

The case illustrates the danger of assuming that "plain English" is always plain. When money or legal rights are at stake, people have an astonishing capacity for putting different interpretations on what might at first have seemed perfectly clear.

Consider the following words: "fireproof," "cash on hand," "furniture," "unmarried," "immediately," "children." Plain English? But:

Does "fireproof" mean that someone who was married, then divorced?

Does "immediately" allow for a reasonable delay?

Do "children" include step-children?

Each of these questions has led to litigation. Furthermore, in each instance, courts have given both yes and no answers, depending on the particular circumstances.

Crop Reports From Farmers Are Needed

During the last half of May, some 22,000 Texas farmers will receive a crop acreage questionnaire from Charles E. Caudill, Agricultural Statistician for the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Austin, Texas.

This information will be the basis for determining the planted acreage for the State of Texas and for each county. There are 254 counties in Texas, and reports are needed from many farmers so that each county will be well represented. Accurate estimates are of great importance to farmers in planning production and marketing and in production and marketing and in providing an unbiased picture of Texas agriculture.

The Texas Legislature has provided a program of estimates for each county. Texas covers such a wide area that State totals alone do not provide adequate information on Texas' most basic industry—agriculture. This is a cooperative effort of USDA's Statistical Reporting Service and the Texas Department of Agriculture.

For homeowners that weren't blessed with the proverbial "green thumb", success can probably be found with cannas. "Cannas grow quickly from tubers available at many nurseries. New dwarf varieties are especially appropriate for container culture and provide brilliant splashes of color during hot weather. The large bananalike leaves are also handsome", notes the Texas AGM University specialist.

A list of hardy, sun-loving summer annuals that can be grown from seed planted in late spring includes zinnias, Marigolds, periwinkles, four o'clocks, cleome, portulaca, gloriosa daisies, globe amaranth, nasturtiums, and balsam.

For shady spots, sultana is hard to beat with its bright colored flowers against dark green foliage, says Welch. It can be grown from seeds or from cuttings. Gardeners looking for a quick effect will probably find blooming size plants readily available.

Castor beans can provide high masses of tropical foliage in green, bronze or purple with a minimum of effort. Caution should be used, however, since the plant is poisonous. "Shasta daisies have strong perennial roots that enable them to withstand periods of drought and suffering better than most plants. The flowers are one of the best for cutting" adds the horticulturist.

Two vines that will grow and flower quickly from seed, are moonflowers and morning glories. Both grow practically anywhere. Moonflowers offer a delicious fragrance during the night while the blossoms are open.

"Trees do a tremendous job of making life more attractive and comfortable," notes Welch. "Trees instill pride in citizens of a community and demonstrate a feeling of continuity with the past and anticipation for the future." Unfortunately, in our haste for so-called "quick shade," too many poor quality trees are planted, contends the specialist. "Selecting the right tree for the right location is worth considerable thought."

Mineral Rights? Is that home you're about to purchase sitting on top of a mineral deposit? If so, who owns the rights to the minerals? These questions can be of considerable importance to real estate purchasers in many parts of the nation. For example, a home owner in the northwest recently became concerned about possible hazards of living on land above tunnels dug for a coal mine years earlier. It was reported that a considerable amount of coal remained in the mines—possibly for extraction at a later date. When your purchase of a home may be affected by a mineral deposit, it's an excellent idea to find out about mineral rights before completing the transaction. A title search and owner's insurance will inform and protect you regarding mineral rights and many other matters that could threaten your real estate investment. These other items include air rights above the ground and additional sub-surface rights beneath the earth.

Sturdy 30 Plants Make Life Beautiful

By Roberta Stanaland County HD Agent

In your home landscape plan, consider trees, shrubs and annuals that are tough enough to withstand heat, drought and pollution. How many plants are there to choose from? Fortunately, Texans may consider any of a number of so-called "study 30", says Dr. William Welch, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

For homeowners that weren't blessed with the proverbial "green thumb", success can probably be found with cannas. "Cannas grow quickly from tubers available at many nurseries. New dwarf varieties are especially appropriate for container culture and provide brilliant splashes of color during hot weather. Some slow growing trees can be 'hurried up' with proper care. For instance, southern live oak and Shumard oak will grow moderately fast if good conditions are provided. Cedar Elms provide dense shade with minimal care and thrive in a wide range of environmental conditions.
