SCS Steps Up Efforts To Control Erosion

Edward E. Thomas, State conservationist for SCS, said this week "Local conservation districts and SCS technicians are redoubling their efforts to help farmers and ranchers get new cropland acres under a conservation plan, and to apply measures needed to stop excessive soil erosion.

These include the newer minimum tillage techniques as well as crop rotation, strip cropping, terracing, and contour plowing.

"There are also some acres that should not be used for crops at all," Thomas said. "They ought to be left in grass or trees."

"Runoff and erosion of sloping land reduces crop yields," he continued. He added "Soil blowing and erosion cut farm profits by reducing the benefits of fertilizers and by lowering the yields. Farmers who allow soils to erode waste energy, and it takes more fuel and fertilizer and other materials to produce a good crop on eroded soils than on the stable soils."

Baptists, Catholics & Women

The Southern Baptist Convention recently turned down proposals women be ordained as ministers in the church. Standing by the church interpretation that the scriptures specify only men be ordained as ministers, delegates at the recent Dallas convention rejected pleas to "modernize" Baptist practice. The motion to reject the proposal was made by the wife of a Houston minister and carried overwhelmingly.

Thus not everyone believes women should plunge into every pursuit men have traditionally followed. The Southern Baptist position parallels that of the Roman Catholic Church and certain other churches, in general, on this question.

America, of course, is in the forefront of the movement to grant women the right to enter every field of human behavior heretofore dominated by men. But many obviously believe the idea and goal can be pushed too far—to military combat, for example, or to church ministry.

Even in America those of this persuasion think a line of distinction (libbers say a line of discrimination) should be drawn, in the best interests of both sexes. And since America is leading the women's lib charge, it will be interesting to see if the churches turn out to be that part of the social structure which repels the liber tide, stabilizes some of the existing differences between the sexes—which polls indicate a majority of both sexes, in fact, favor.

Network News

Recent audience ratings have revealed that the number of viewers of television news is down, from last year, for all three networks. Of the three networks, the biggest decline has been felt by CBS, which had led the other two networks substantially.

The CBS evening news decline is larger than that at NBC and ABC, and a general belief among many is that CBS' stronger preoccupation with Watergate woes, muck-raking and scandal reporting is the reason.

Television reporters such as Dan Rather, who earlier this year attempted on national television to debate the President in a tone many considered disrespectful of the office, and others, have obviously turned off much of the American viewing public.

The obsessive preoccupation on Watergate by too many self-righteous, biased or anti-Nixon reporters has undoubtedly wearied some of television's viewing audience, who have grown tired of night after night overemphasis.

Of course, the networks don't admit their bias or preoccupation. Rather, television reporters seem to be busy patting themselves on the back and seeking acclaim from the liberal, the left, and awards, for their zealous efforts. But the American public is souring on too much Watergate from the three New York-based networks, and the audience decline for news shows proves it.

Perhaps if a few million more Americans are wise enough to turn to good newspapers for the news rather than opt for the easy, soft chair route—where they can't really get complete news coverage anyhow—economic considerations might force the networks to curb bias. Economic considerations are, after all, the networks' primary concern.

Gerald R. Ford, Vice President:

"Our greatest threat comes from no foreign foe but from those at home who seek to impose the power of negative thinking."

Anwar Sadat, President of Egypt:

"The role of the United States under the leadership of President Nixon is vital to promote peace and tranquility in the area."

Candy Bars

News that comes too late to save the rotted teeth of an earlier generation stirs hope among the not-too-far-gone, the young and even the toothless.

That news is a Food and Drug Administration proposal that the makers of candy bars and other goodies begin enriching their products with vitamins and minerals, according to FDA guidelines.

That will do much to put needed vitamins and minerals into the bodies of millions who eat an improper diet of sweets and carbohydrates and not enough fresh vegetables and fruits, etc.

The proposal is so sound and helpful, in fact, one wonders why it wasn't conceived a generation ago. If it had been implemented then, a generation which suffered the tooth cavity blues and tooth pulling horrors would have been spared much of its ordeal—if that generation had also brushed its teeth (with chloride when it became available) in addition!

Coffee Drinkers

As some already suspected, medical researchers have recently concluded drinking too much coffee makes one more susceptible to heart attack.

A Boston team, after a study of the habits of many heart attack victims, says those who drank as many as five cups of coffee a day proved twice as likely to have heart attacks as those who drank no coffee at all.

As with cigarette smoking, this result will be challenged; it will be claimed that the individual who drinks coffee is exhibiting worry or strain, which may be the cause of the heart attacks, not coffee. But the recent medical study points to coffee. If you drink it, wisdom suggests a sensible limit.

HONEYMOON

The wedding bells rang, the bride was radiant, the groom's mother cried, just a little, and the maid of honor caught the bouquet. It was a perfect wedding, and the honeymoon has been ideal.

Tomorrow, this young couple will be going home to begin a new way of life. In it, reality will be combined with romance. There will be the blending of two temperaments under a single roof. There will be all the frustrations of daily living, and the pain as well as the pleasure that comes with just being alive.

How will they adjust? That depends on the basics that were taught to them years ago, in their own homes—and in church.

Two tablespoons of regular flour may be substituted when a recipe calls for 1 tablespoon of cornstarch.

Always use fabric softener on permanent press articles to prevent lasting wrinkles.

When cooking chocolate cakes, sprinkle the tins with cocoa mixed with a little sugar instead of flour.

Freeze meatballs in empty egg cartons by lining with plastic wrap and putting a ball in each egg indentation. Wrap with freezer wrap before placing in freezer.

When traveling or eating out, keep a piece of ribbon with a safety pin on both ends for attaching to a paper napkin. Result -- instant bib for baby.

Fashion

Dresses are more in evidence this season than heretofore. Pants suits continue to be popular but are not seen as often on people who keep up with current trends, excepting for casual wear.

The long T-shirt in cotton that reaches almost to the knee is popular with youngsters.

Natural make-up is the "in thing" for women. A bit of color on the lips and cheeks helps.

Fatso

Many of us view overweight acquaintances as individuals displaying little will power and self-discipline.

While this may be true in some cases, a group of researchers looking into the problem of obesity reported sometime ago that overweight persons often eat no more (and exercise as much) than those who stay trim.

Different people burn up calories at a different rate and some gain weight on a certain diet while others--on the same diet--lose weight.

Thus the overweight friend may not be a glutton, may not lack will power or self control. His or her "engine" perhaps does not burn efficiently the fuel (food) taken in.

"Fatso," then, may not be the uncontrolled eater some think. In many cases, of course, he or she is fat because too much food is shoveled down the hatch. But it's not always so--and we shouldn't jump to conclusions.

Life can be enjoyed by all who are willing to accept it patiently.

Do high radio and television towers have a tendency to draw lightning and thereby lessen the danger to lower structures and trees nearby?

High metal towers will often draw electrical discharges from clouds passing low overhead. So will especially tall buildings. Since the electrical charges of clouds are attracted by the nearness of high grounds, like transmission towers, these towers often pull the lightning that would otherwise discharge later, elsewhere.

If you live in the vicinity of very tall buildings or high metal towers, these structures will act as the old lightning rods--draw the lightning and ground it harmlessly.

The tendency of these tall towers to attract lightning is recognized to an extent that builders install special lightning devices to carry off the frequent bolts that strike them. In a lightning storm, stay away from such structures, tall trees and any other high objects which might suddenly become a ground for electrical discharge from the clouds.

A MAN WITHOUT MERCY
Margery Hilton

Compassion and loyalty two endearing qualities, but they had brought Gerda to heartbreak and almost wrecked her opportunity of ever finding happiness.

Compassion had led her into a brief and tragic marriage, and the sacrifice of her integrity in the eyes of the one man she loved.

Three years later she was a widow and loyalty to her employers had forced her back into the power of this one man who could destroy her.

Loyalty of another sort had led Gerda to give entirely the wrong impression of herself--an impression that had not been forgotten by Jordan Black. Yet he was the man she loved as much as he despised her--and he was a man without mercy.

Miranda was delighted when her boss asked her to accompany him on a business cruise to the Caribbean. But when it came to sweet-talking one Roger Gallant, she realized she had taken on more than she could manage.

Roger was clearly in the habit of taking what he wanted, and then throwing it away--and it did look like Miranda was going to be his latest victim.
