Farabee Sponsors Rural Industrial Development Bill

Austin - State Senator Ray Farabee announced Monday his sponsorship of legislation which would put State law on the books for rural industrial development.

The legislation calls for a referendum on a constitutional amendment allowing the issuance of industrial development bonds. These bonds could be issued by political subdivisions of the state such as cities and counties. They would make available financing for new or expanding industry at tax free municipal bond rates which are usually 1 1/2 to 2% below prime commercial rates.

Farabee stressed that these revenue bonds would not be backed by the general credit of the political subdivision issuing the bond. Since the liability for revenue bonds is not based on the taxing ability of the city or county, taxes would be unaffected by the issuance of these bonds.

Senator Farabee also explained that home rule municipalities can design their charters to allow the issuance of revenue bonds. Counties and small non-home rule cities, however, are currently prevented by the State Constitution from issuing such bonds. Farabee further stated, "It is time we stopped tying the hands of our smaller communities in the area of industrial development."

At present 44 other states, including all states bordering Texas, use industrial bonds to attract industry.

The Texas Industrial Commission, citing the latest survey by a national organization of state development agencies, noted that "...the 457 revenue bonds issued in one year helped create 47,000 new jobs. These jobs were mostly in non-metropolitan areas, and the majority of the plants financed by this method employed less than 100 people."

Senator Bill Patman-D of Ganado is sponsoring the legislation with Senator Farabee.

Easter Seal Services Are Stepped Up

Because of the steady growth in numbers of crippled children and adults in Texas, the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults in Texas has stepped up its rehabilitation services.

1974. "Despite medical scientific advances," Murdoch explained, "the rank of the crippled are growing. This is because of population growth, increased number of accidents and medical treatment which saves victims of crippling diseases who might not have lived in past years."

Living With Antiques and Collectibles

Living With Antiques and Collectibles was presented by Raymond Hooper and Jim Wyatt to the Girard Demonstration Club on March 19, with Mr. Orwin Phena as hostess in the Girard Community Center. Probably nostalgia fever has resulted in such big business from coast to coast gotten to all of us in a small way, so we need to know how to collect attractively whatever type furnishings we have.

The Library has books that will give you this information. Use the Eclectic look, which is mixing new with old, pleasingly.

Present were Mrs. Jake Swearingen, Mrs. Leva Simpson, Mrs. Fred McGaha, Mrs. Alton Clark, Mrs. George Darden, Mrs. Hugh Turner, Mrs. Woodrow Hodges, Hooper, Wyatt, Stephens, members.

Visiting were Mrs. Vera Griffith, Aspermont; Mrs. Buck Thompson, Mrs. Don Gannon, Mrs. C.V. Hagar, Mrs. Garth Gregory, Mrs. Fletcher Rich, Mrs. Virgil Kilpatrick, Mrs. Billy Lew Wilson, who helped with the surprise birthday celebration for Mrs. Fred McGaha after the club meeting.

QUALITY SEED IMPORTANT FOR COTTON CROP

The first step to a good cotton crop is planting quality seed, emphasizes a cotton specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. But good seed may be in short supply this year due to unfavorable harvesting weather in many parts of the state last fall. Cotton exposed to weather damage or stored in trailers, ricks or modules when it exceeds 12 per cent moisture will suffer a reduction in seed quality. High quality planting seed tolerates cold, wet soil conditions that cause seedling disease. Good seed also means more rapid seedling emergence and growth. If lower quality seed must be used, delay planting until the soil has warmed, avoid planting too deep, and increase seeding rates.

"Operating Loss" And Farm Taxes

Due to severe price drops in the cattle and cotton markets in 1974, farmers and ranchers who suffered a "net operating loss" may be able to get some income tax relief on income previously earned. The Internal Revenue Service has special provisions for such losses, according to an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The loss is carried back three years and applied against the taxable income of that year. If the taxable income of that year was not sufficient to offset the operating loss, the remaining loss is applied against the income of the second preceding year, and so on.

Farmers Should Know About the Tax Deductibles

College Station -- With the March 3 income tax deadline for farmers and ranchers rapidly approaching, particular attention should be given to various deductible expenses. "Each year agricultural producers pay extra income taxes because they fail to deduct certain legitimate business expenses," points out Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Every dollar of business expense not deducted will result in a higher income tax bill."

The Texas A&M University System specialist lists a number of commonly overlooked expense items:

1. Allowance for space in the home used as an office.
2. Items in the home used for business--calculator, typewriter, paper and recordbooks, to name a few.
3. Postage.
4. Meals for hired labor.
5. Bank charges and interest on charge accounts.
6. Tax preparation fees.
7. Bookkeeping fees.

8. Cost of purchased livestock that was lost, stolen or died during the year.

9. Auto and truck expenses, such as licenses and insurance, according to the portion used for business.

10. Costs of utilities, telephone service and other service charges that pertain to the farming and ranching business.

11. Subscriptions to farm and ranch and related magazines.

12. Farm organization dues.

13. Expenses incurred on business trips, and that portion of vacation travel that related to business.

"The key to preparing an income tax return that most correctly reflects your farming or ranching operation is to have a good record-keeping system," emphasizes Hayenga. "Such records should indicate all items purchased for business. These items should be paid by check whenever possible to have a record of payment."

School officials would like to remind parents that there is no school for students Friday, Feb. 28th, due to a teacher inservice meeting. School will release one hour early Thursday, the 27th, and buses will run early that day. The regular schedule will be followed on Monday, March 3rd.

Which CRUMBLES First?

Here stands what remains of a Grecian temple dating to 10 B.C.

Which crumbles first -- the civilization or its religion? Do spiritual foundations collapse because a culture is in trouble? Or do cultures deteriorate because their spiritual foundations are collapsing?

To historians it's like the question about the chicken or the egg.

My main concern is our own civilization. This involves my family and the contribution we can make. We have a Bible -- we read it! We have a Faith -- we try to live it!

My religion makes me conscious of the dangers of today's civilization. Yet, I am an optimist... especially on Sunday when my family is at church... and when we see your family there too!

CITES BIBLE Widow doubts 'Lib' move

By ART ARTHUR
Copley News Service

LAKE BLUFF, Ill. — Women's lib? It's just not in the book for a woman here, and the book she cites is the Bible. "Women can't be the leaders; God didn't set it up that way," said Kathy Melton, who lectures on her views of womanhood along the posh North Shore of suburban Chicago. "Look at Genesis. Even after Adam and Eve were tempted by Satan, God commanded Eve that 'thou shalt be under thy husband's power and he shall have dominion over thee.'" Mrs. Melton, 34, a widow and mother of three children, maintains that a wife "should have reverence for her husband's position as leader, protector, and provider." "A wife should have childlike and trusting qualities, be a competent housekeeper, shouldn't wear drab or unfeminine clothes, and she should radiate happiness," Mrs. Melton adds. Mrs. Melton took to the lecture circuit with her ideas about three years ago, about the time it was learned her husband, Don, had leukemia. Don, dean of students at Trinity College, near here, died in early 1974, and Mrs. Melton's subsequent experiences have tended to buttress her view. "After I've lost and seen what I've had," she explains, "I really get fed up with women who can't accept their husbands' throwing their dirty socks in a corner.

"Once I learned my husband had leukemia and I knew he wouldn't be with me too long, he could have thrown his socks anywhere in the house; I would have gladly picked them up. Women simply don't know what they have."

According to Mrs. Melton, submission by a wife to her husband is "merely deferring to the leader."

"It's not like tyranny," she says. "A man who loves his wife and whose wife loves him isn't going to ask for unreasonable things."

"What's more, I believe women should be proud that they can sexually satisfy their husbands and have the privilege to raise children."

Marriage is not a necessity for women seeking fulfillment, Mrs. Melton says, because "careers can be satisfying."

However, she adds, women getting married "should get some guidance about the priorities of marriage."

"The husband should be the top priority, even over children," Mrs. Melton says.

"Too often, after the first years of marriage, diverging interests crowd into a woman's life — her children, clubs, a career — all taking the priority her husband should have."

During her marriage, Mrs. Melton says she and her husband, once their family had arrived, "had difficulty putting the priority of their marriage ahead of their children."

"Put simply," she explains, "it was difficult talking with three screaming children."

According to Mrs. Melton, she and her husband remedied that by reserving one night a week in which they would go out to eat without the children "even if it was just for a hamburger."

"That gave us a chance to talk," Mrs. Melton says, "and, frankly, an opportunity to remember the person to whom we were married."

COSTLY FARM INCOME TAX ERRORS
Common mistakes cost Texas farmers and ranchers additional dollars at income tax time, points out an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Among these are letting the tax accountant do it all, poor planning, failure to claim investment credit, poor record keeping, failure to watch tax changes, failure to use capital gains fully, failure to deduct expenses for land clearing and soil and water conservation, and failure to deduct expenses for business trips.

Home Grown Fruit Makes Good Eating

College Station--There's nothing tastier than home-grown fruits and vegetables--but it takes the right canning equipment to preserve their natural freshness for eating during the rest of the year. Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist, reminded this week.

"Pressure canners for low-acid vegetables--green beans, corn and greens--may be purchased at different prices depending on size," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System, said.

She noted that 16- and 20-quart sizes are popular. Pressure saucepans with 10-pound gauges are also satisfactory for canning.

"High-acid foods such as fruits and tomatoes require a waterbath canner of about seven-quart size.

"Jars, lids and rings which were in short supply should be plentiful later in the year," Miss Reasonover said.

The specialist suggested other useful equipment would include a wide mouth funnel, slotted spoon, cutting board, measuring cups, colander or strainer and basket or blancher for scalding.

With the two to ten inch snow falling in the area Friday night, the extreme cold weather Saturday and Sunday, and the two or more inches of fresh snow Saturday night, this area has had a good winter seige.

It is amazing at the different type drivers you see in the snow. Some are very good drivers and make it fine. Others don't know how to drive on ice and in the snow, and they soon foul up.

People have a way of appraising the road conditions by the number of vehicles piled up on the roads.

A good careful driver can drive on the icy streets and roads and make it fine, but at the same time he will pass others that did not make it.

Because there are some who don't make it, is no reason to declare a road undrivable.

It is not enough, while driving on the ice to pretty well have your own car under control. You must also watch the rest of the traffic, and try to stay out of the way. And some times this is extremely difficult.

It is always good to do what is termed as defensive driving, but in the ice it is a must.

Cong. George Mahon, who is a veteran West Texan in Washington, has been declaring his concern, and even alarm with administration spending.

In 1935 when Mahon first went to Congress, the national budget was about nine billion dollars.

This year it is about three hundred and fifty nine billion.

The deficit amount of the current budget (amount spent above the amount of income) is several times bigger than the budget was back in the late thirties.

The huge ever-rising national debt is getting something to be alarmed about. The Republicans call themselves conservatives as compared to their title of liberals for the democrats, yet the national spending done by first Nixon and now Ford, make the liberals of Kennedy and Johnson look like lowly pikers as compared to them.

We have a huge army of the unemployed now, getting up near to the ten percent figure. And this is not the whole show. There are many people out of jobs that are not included in the unemployed figures.

There is one reason for this.

Local car dealers report they are selling some new cars, but very few of the ones with the factory rebates on them.

The slow movers, are still slow movers. People know what they want and that is what they are buying. They evidently are not hunting a "bargain" on a new car.

Which gets us down to the question: Would you pass up the particular car you want, and buy one you really don't want, when buying a car, to save maybe $200.00? Surely not, especially when you are spending from $3500.00 to $6000.00 on a car. It just don't make sense.

The money that people draw on the welfare and the unemployment lists, is so near the amount that people draw on jobs, that many people do not really want jobs.

I know people who will not take small or part time jobs, because it will interfere with their getting welfare money.

I don't know what the answer is, but this is a condition that should not exist.

There is much unemployment, but have you tried to hire someone to do skilled or semi-skilled work? Try it some time.

Farmers and ranchers, as individuals are many of them very smart people, but you group them up, and they don't look so smart.

There are two national farm organizations, Farm Bureau and Farmers Union, that should well represent the farm and ranch interest.

Yet we are now seeing the recent birth of new organizations of cattlemen, whose avowed interests are to work for the best interest of cattlemen.

I am not questioning their intentions, and good purposes, but everytime a new organization is born, it divides the interest, and makes it even harder for the people they are supposed to represent, to really be represented.

If one liberal and one conservative organization are really representing the farmers and ranchers, then other new organizations are just making the waters even more muddy, by dividing the representation.

Organizing is good, but if organization divides the group, then it seems to me to be defeating the original purpose.

No particular group in mind--but this is a thought that I think should be weighed carefully.

There is about only one thing the farmers and ranchers all seem to agree upon, and that is we need a new secretary of agriculture.

And this is not a new thought. All back through the past forty years, this has been the theme.

The interests of agriculture are so varied and so widely divergent, that it seem no man heading the USDA has the ability or strength of character, to please very many of the farmers, much less be popular with all of them.

If we ever get to the point in the United States to where the Secretary of Agriculture is popular with anyone in agriculture, then as they say, "That will be the day."

present conditions will change for the better before Saturday but it is wishful thinking. Our present economic situation didn't get this way overnight nor will any remedy come about so soon. The economic situation which we are now experiencing has been building up for years and impending warnings were either not heeded at all or else we indulged in the hope that they would not occur.

NOW THERE IS DANGER WE MAY BE OVERLY REACTING BY TRYING TO USE band-aids and scotch tape to bind things up for some immediate relief. The trouble is that, when and if some temporary prop-up is accomplished, it will not stay glued. Remedies for problems following may be more difficult to meet than to face up squarely to them now for longer-range solutions.

Income Averaging saves taxes

With farm and ranch incomes fluctuating considerably during the past two years, producers may want to consider a technique called "income averaging" to reduce their tax load for 1974, points out an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. For the technique to apply, taxable income for 1974 must be at least $3,000 more than 30 per cent of the total taxable income for the four immediately preceding tax years. In addition to ordinary income, capital gains on the sale of livestock and other assets may also be included in income averaging. Schedule G must be completed for income averaging.

Good Question

Trying to rest after an exceedingly hard day, poor father was being bedeviled by an endless stream of unanswered questions from little Willie.

"What do you do down at the office?" queried the youngster.

"Nothing," shouted the father.

It looked as if the boy had been shut up for a while, but not for long. After a thoughtful pause, Willie asked, "Pop, how do you know when you're through?"

As It Looks From Here

By Rep. Omar Burleson
Member of Congress, Texas.

Washington, D.C. -- A ROMAN CALENDAR MARKER, IMPATIENT WITH February's unpredictable conduct, introduced a month with 29 days. Augustus Caesar decided to drop a day from the already short month and decreed that it be 28 days, except for leap year. From those who know (and this is not all represented to be original) February comes from the word "Februare" and it means to purify and to cleanse.

A WATERCOURSE IN THE NORTH WHICH HAS FROZ-

EN OUT MOST FORMS OF LIFE, cleans itself getting ready for another season. As if secretly, nature seems to use February to clean out what is weak and useless, including life to be replaced by new life.

A FEW DAYS AGO IN WASHINGTON, THE YIELDING OF WINTER'S POWER was demonstrated by snow falling in great flakes but then, unannounced, the sun broke through. For a few moments, the two elements collided as though some agreement had been broken. Remember the fable of who was the most powerful - the chilling wind or the warming sun. The sun caused the man to take off his coat. In the recent weather happenings, the sun again prevailed. It did not prevail 100 miles to the North where snow had an eight-inch victory in Philadelphia and New York.

FEBRUARY TO SOME PEOPLE IS THE LONGEST MONTH IN THE YEAR BECAUSE it can be dark, disagreeable and without prediction. Even so, it is the last stop before the corner of spring is turned. The apparent deadness now visible in the natural world is a necessary ending which completes the cycle begun eleven months ago.

ANOTHER EMPEROR, some time in some place, MAY WANT TO MAKE restitution. Such a decision would have merit if only to give spring a little longer to get ready. Short notice is risky.

OUR ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL LIFE AT THE PRESENT TIME IS SOMETHING like February, which will end Friday, and much more controversial. It would be good if we could say that
